Sir Thomas Lipton Tells

Facts About Yacht Racing

As Affected by the War *******

TIR THOMAS LIPTON, the Irish baronet and yachtsman --- and merchant --- has had his own share of worries about the labor situation. He predicts it would be impossible to revive yachting in Great Britain on any extensive scale until things become normal, because the expert sailors for yachts are mostly fishermen, and fishermen nowadays, with a run of luck, are able in many instances to clear $150 or more a week. When the British army demobilization has proceeded as far as it is going, Sir Thomas thinks that yachting will not only revive but that it will be on a larger scale, as regards small boats, than ever before. While the British have ever been a seafaring people, they have been made more so by the demands of the enormous number of men to operate not only the ordinary fighting ships but the prodigious fleets of lesser craft which did scout-ing, patrolling, mine-laying and similar jobs and inured their crews to the sea in all sorts of weather. Sir Thomas Lipton is one of the oddest mixtures of brains and blarney that ever came prominently before the public. He is a survivor of that school of extraordinarily shrewd Irish-bred merchants who a one time were the backbone of the commercial world. Noawdays, when an Irish name on a great mercantile establishment is almost a curiosity, speaking countries he is also known as probably the largest food dealer in the world. And he is a self-made man, who was in his youth a boy employed in the mines of the United States, although he was born in Glasgow, Scotland, on May 10, 1950, of Irish parentage of Irish parentage.

He returned to Great Britain and by a rare combination of brains, Irish blarney and Scotch shrewdness, built up his chain of stores that stretch around the globe. Sir Thomas has a head for think-

Sir Thomas has a head for think-ing. He gives the impression that his second thoughts are best, and his head indicates that. There is a bulge to his forehead, well above the eye-brows, and there is a development of the muscles of the forehead, which are tokens that while his Irish par-entage may make him impulsive, his mental processes tend to keep the impulsiveness in check and cause him to weigh a problem carefully if given to weigh a problem carefully if given sufficient time. His experience in challenging for the America Cup this year exactly justifies that conclusion, and he told the story himself. Said

"When the armistice became an when the arministic became an assured thing and it seemed that the world would settle down to peace, I thought the occasion ripe to revive-the challenge for the America Cup. The official challenge was already over here, having been delivered be-fore the war in 1914. There would have been eight or nine months or have been eight or nine months or more before the race was held, and I thought that would be time enough for peace conditions to return.

I thought that would be there enough for peace conditions to return. "The American yachtsmen did not think that a race in 1919 was desir-able. Since discussing the matter with them I accept their views en-tirely and am convinced that they were entirely right and that I was too precipitate. The negotiations for a definite peace have been indefinitely prolonged, the economic readjustment has been a slcw and difficult process and the return of the soldiers and placing them in employment will oc-cupy the public mind for many months. I am now glad that the race has been postponed for at least an-other year." Brains are required to make a man open to conviction. Sir Thomas has brains.

Every interviewer who has met Sir Thomas Lipton lately has noted that he has affected to a profound degree by the horrors of the war. It is impossible to talk with him more than a few minutes without the conversation switching around to the sight throughout Great Britain of men who have lost limbs or eyes or both, or have otherwise been maimed and handicapped or incapacitated by the war. It is deeply to be regretted that the people of the United States who are prone to discuss the peace proposals as mere academic questions, because they know nothing of the actual horrors of war, as evidenced in Great Britain and France, do not all have an opportunity to talk to Sir Thomas and be pulled off their pitiful perches. Speaking of the effect of the war upon sports generally, Sir Thomas said:

"The heavy income and other taxes upon the large fortunes which ormerly supported seagoing vachts

PADEREWSKI'S HAIR.

Flowing Locks Made Him Victim of Hysteria.

Hysteria. Long hair has its own associations in the popular mind, and people per-sist in holding this preconceived view. It first made Paderewski a victim of hysteria, now it causes sur-prise that he could be anything else than a pianist. When he first came to the United States, says the New York Sun, had he "patronized the hotel barber on his arrival, and sub-sequently kept his hair short in the sequently kept his hair short in the fashion affected by most Americans, we should not hear now so many ex-clamations of surprise over his de-velopment in statesmanship." The case is analyzed, but the people will hardly profit:

Nearly all of our military terms and designations are derived from the Normans. These designations are marshal, general, colonel, major, capmarshal, general, colonel, major, cap-tain, adjutant, cornet, lieutenant, en-sign, officer, sergeant, corporal and soldier. The military terms are siege, manoeuvre, trench, tactics, march, invasion, assault, escalade, encampment, column, battery, forti-fication, battalion, bombardment, re-connoisence, orficed, army, wor connoissance, enfilade, army, regi-ment, company, military, artillery, militia, cavalry, infantry, volunteer, etc. These are in strong contrast to the sea terms, nearly all of which are pure Anglo-Saxon.

Various Noises.

A critic in London encourages concert-goers who are bewildered by some of the latest musical composi-tions. "The very fact," says he, "that the composer is given carte blanche to make any noise he likes has given the hearer the chance of practically getting to know, in process of time, all the noises there are. As he gets to know them he can distinguish them: as he distinguishes them he can discriminate between the noise and the music." In the opinion of this critic all the old rules for passing judgment on musical composition have gone by the board, and no new rules have taken their places. So it apparently becomes the affair of the concert-goer to listen with an open mind and cultivate an ability to decide for himself what parts of a composition are music and what composition are music and what parts are unsuccessful experiments parts are unsucc in artificial moise.

Arkona Baptist Church Celebrates

The Arkona Baptist Church squared the last $365 of its mortgage debt last week and celebrated the event Friday week and celebrated the event Friday evening with a congregational banquet and on Sunday, the 13th, by offering to erect a "branch" church edifice in the Telugu City of Annakapilli, India. The amount subscribed by the close of the evening service was a little over $600. This, on short notice, was creditable and it will of course be increased when the congregation hears definitely from the Foreign Mission Board as to the full amount required. The Arkona Baptist Church now rejoices over a free-from-debt, up-to-date, commodious place of worship, as well as over the prospect of helping a very needy cause into a like blessing.

anie an Line Verbed s T Electric P worship, as wern as over the prospect of helping a very needy "cause into a like blessing. The chief guests at the Friday evening's function were Rev. S. W. Wright, the minister in charge seven years ago when the present building was erected, now of Smith's I'alls, and Miss Anna C. Murray who laid the corner stone, and the same week left as missionary to India. In an excellent report the treasurer, Dr. J. L. Huffman, remarked that the task of the building committee had been a satisfac-tory and a pleasant one and that he believed that its members would be glad to continue in service, if needed. Miss Murray, who closed the evening with a stirring address, took up the doctor's practical suggestion and proposed that "this Church continue the building com-mittee and error a wurch useded place of this Church continue the build mittee and erect a much needed place of worship in the strategic City of Annaka-pilli of 20,000 people with scores of heathen temples, each a breeding centre of corruption and discontent, but with of corruption and discontent, but with not a single Christian church to radiate the beneficent, saving light of the Gospel. That evening and on Sunday morning there was a hearty response to the appeal, Rey. Charles W. King, the minister, and Miss Murray presenting the situation more fully, after a rousing message by Mr. Wright on "Workers Together with God." The Church voted unanimously to take up the work as Together with God." The Church voted unanimously to take up the work as both a missionary opportunity and the "best kind of Christian patriotism." The approved site is in a fine mercantile centre, surrounded by a fertile agricul-tural district. Annakapilli is on the Yellamunchilli field of 690,000 inhabit-ants, occupied by Misses Murray and McLetsh, both of Arkona, with Rev. A. A Scott as director. The need is yeary anis, occupied by Misses Mintay and McLeish, both of Arkona, with Rev. A. A. Scott as director. The need is very great. At the Friday evening gathering an interesting historic sketch of the Arkona Baptist Church's life and leadership was read by Mrs. Horatio Smith, a grand-daughter of the late Mr. Nial Eastman, Sr., the first deacon and founder of the work. The Church originally met iu a log schoolhouse, 18 x 20 ft., on Mr. Eastman's farm, near the present Arkona cemetery, and is now in its 80th year of service, "still going strong." In 1858 the present site in Arkona was secured and a brick church built, and in 1912 the well appointed, red brick edifice was erected. Twenty-six pastors, sixteen of whom have been called to their reward, have presided over the work. There erected. Twenty-six pastors, sixteen of whom have been called to their reward, have presided over the work. There have been twenty-eight deacons, only seven of whom have survived. Eight of the Church's young people have devoted their lives to the work of the Gospel' on the home and foreign fields, one of whom, Dr. W. E. Norton, superintend-ent of home missions, has passed away. Many Christian homes have been estab-lished in this district. Mr. Wright gave strong messages at all the three gatherings. Friday evening he spoke on "The Debt We. Owe to Christ, the principal of which we never could pay, but the interest of which we all could and should keep up by a steady, whole hearted service for the Redeemer." A fine group of photographs of the Church's pastors was secured for the evening, a photograph of which will be taken for framing. The Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. H. Rooks is president, pro-vided an excellent repast and social time in the schoolroom of the church, the congregation retiring to the auditorium for the program of addresses, etc.

ROCHE_FRASER

A wedding of interest to a large circle of friends in New Westminster, B.C., took place at the Roman Catholic cathedral, Victoria, on Thursday, July 3rd, when Miss Mildred A. Fraser, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fraser, 2651 Cedar Hill road, Victoria, became the wife of Mr. Frederick J. Roche, of New Westminster. Rev. Father O'Boyle officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charm-ing in a smart tailored suit of navy blue cloth with small flower toque, and earry-ing a shower boquet of roses and orchids. She was attended by Mrs. Ernest Jack-son as matron of honor and the grooms-man was Mr. J. A. Fraser, brother of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the guests including relatives and a few near friends. Mr. and Mrs. Roche are spending their honeymoon motoring in Washington and on van-couver Island, and on their return will make their home in Mission, where Mr. Roche, who has been acting manager of the New Westminster branch of the Merchants' Bank, has been appointed manager of the Mission branch. The groom's many friends in Watford, his old home, extend congratulations, in which the editor of the Guide-Advocate ioins. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fraser, INDIAN POETRY.

Important Collection Entitled "The Path on the Rainbow."

Mary Austin, the novelist, has been carefully studying the songs and chants of the North American In-dians for several years, and she recently published an anthology of this primitive poetry, to which she gave the title "The Path on the Rainbow," which will interest everybody who has paid any attention to Indian "The Path on the Rainbow" lore. does not lend itself readily to review. One might go about the task in the thoroughly businesslike and justly academic manner adopted by Mary Austin in her introduction to the book. One might profess to discover, and, indeed, might discover the gold-en thread of development running through this extraordinarily primi-tive verse, and one might or might not arrive at the conclusion which Miss Austin arrives at that the "poe-tic art in America at the time it be-gan to be overlaid by European culture had reached a mark close to that of the Greeks at the beginning of the Homeric era." On the other hand, one might end by questioning whether there were any standards by which this strange song-dance-verse could with justice be judged. As it appears before us in the cold black and white of a translation, at best, a sorry third of itself, whatever that self may be, it must be honestly con-fessed that much of it is frankly fessed that much of it is inamity meaningless; and that much more of it is a simple repetition of simple statements of fact, without any effort to do more than to call up the picture which each reader has of July 29 Lyndenville. My Dear Miss Briggs: Pardon what may appear impertinent curiosity. Was it not the white cottage opposite, which you had rented for the summer? And was I not given to understand that you live alone? Yet this afternoon, a young and beautiful girl suddenly faced me from the window seat of my own living room, beneath which she explained, she had left her music while occupying this house; possessing the music, she passed out of my house and directly over to yours. I may also add that I have inadvertently noticed the young woman from time to time in your garden. Was it by your authority, Miss Briggs, that she came for the music? Respectfully, AMOS GILES.

Dr. Pierce uses It is instinct with the true poetic spirit, abundantly free, tremendous-ly concentrated on the expression of one idea and universal in its appeal. There is much more like it. And Dr. Pierce uses the same root-called Blue Co-hosh—in his "Favorite Pre-scription" skill-fully combined with oth er agentsthat make it more effective. There is much more like it. And yet a careful study of the book must convince one that the ordinary man, trained in the literature of the West, is not fully equipped to appreciate Indian poetry. What the poems really expressed to the Indian, when to the Women who are worn out, who suffer from pain at regular or irregular intervals, words was added music, music call-ing up in every cadence a thousand who are nervous or dizzy at times, should take that reliable, temperance, herbal tonic which a doctor in active practice prescribed many years ago. "Verse is to the Red singer but a shorthand note to his emotions, a sentence or two, a phrase out of the heart of the situation. It is the in-side song alone which is important. Says the medicine man, explaining these matters, 'You see, Injun man singin' an' cryin' while he sing. It ain't what he singin' make him think, that's what he cryin' about.'" So remarks Miss Austin in the course of her introduction. As an explanation of Indian poetry it could not well be improved upon. Send 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. WHAT IS A CURE? VEGETABLE MARKETING IS IT A TEMPORARY OR PER-MANENT CONDITION? MANENT CONDITION? Let us get down to brass tacks. Is there is any such thing as a cure? You may eradicate every trace of disease from your system and be restored to your former state of health—but you haven't attained a cure. Why? Be-cause as long as disease germs are pre-valent in the universe you may be efficient again.

EW growers realize the importance of properly harvesting and marketing their early vegetables. The large majority are expert enough to produce an excellent crop, but there is perhaps only about one out of ten that harvest and market their crop to the best advantage. The public is today, perhaps more than before, demanding a high grade product. They are willing to pay the price if they get the quality, and the gardener that will make the greatest success will be the one that caters to this demand.

There are several factors of great importance necessary to achieve the greatest amount of success. Foremost of these, perhaps, is proper harvesting. Few, even of our growers, realize how rapidly our vegetables deteriorate in quality after they are taken from the ground. Much of the fine flavor and crispness is lost in the case of such products as onions, lettuce and radishes in only a few hours unless special care is exercised in handling. Such crops should never be exposed to winds or the hot sun and if they can be kept in a cool, fairly moist condition, the least possible loss in quality will be maintained. To market the vegetable crop to best advantage the grower must ever keep in mind the ultimate destination of his goods. The housewife is the one that he must please. If she is well pleased then she tells her neighwoil pleased then she tens her heigh-bors quietly over the back fence, but if she finds that she has received something of very inferior quality then she proclaims her grievance from the housetops and forever after will be hard to convince that there is such a thing as high quality. is such a thing as high quality.

is such a thing as high quality. The most important factors to bear in mind are few in number and are not hard to put into practice. The proper degree of maturity is the first one that must be considered. Carrots, beets, onions, radishes and the other bunching crops should not be pulled before they reach the proper size before they reach the proper size. They should be carefully pulled and taken to the bunching houses. There they are neally bunched, tied and washed and then should be protected the atmosphe sible by covering. Lettuce, spinach, sible by covering. Lettuce, spinach, parsley, cabbage and cauliflower should be carefully cut and placed in baskets or carriers. Care should be taken that none of the dirt is taken up and allowed to fall through the leaves, as this is hard to remove even by careful washing and will always by careful washing and will always lower the quality. There is perhaps not more than one person in ten that can be called a really successful salesman, and here is where a good many of our growers fall down, and after produc-ing a high grade product they are unable to market it to the best advantage. The first requisite, as has already been mentioned, is a high grade article. An inferior grade can-not be expected to obtain the highest not be expected to obtain the highest price. The proper care in preparation is also important. A neat, attrac-tive package, well-packed, with high grade vegetables will always com-mand the higher price. Furthermore, an attractive article will be its own salesman, and no matter how over-bleshed the merket may be will comsalesman, and no matter how over-stocked the market may be, will com-mand a good price. The proper care in sorting and grading is also quite important. Vegetables of poor qual-ity should never be placed on the market. They will not only have to be sold at a much lower price but will also have the effect of lowering the price on the higher grades, with the result that many a good market has been almost ruined by a small quantity of inferior goods. has been almost ruined by a small quantity of inferior goods. From this we see that the greatest results can only be obtained by grow-ing a high grade article, carefully harvested and attractively and effi-ciently marketed.—A. H. McLennan, B.S.A., Ontario Vegetable Specialist.

TER is one of the essential requirements for the growth of plants. Its functions are a solvent and carrier of plant-food, a food directly or indirectly for the plants and it helps to maintain the plants in a turgid condition, thus enabling them to stand more erect and resist the force of the winds. Also the evaporation of the water from the surface of the leaves equalizes the temperature of the plants. Thus water serves the plants in no small way, and so the farmer 'is always very anxious each spring that his soil have sufficient water stored within it to supply the growing plants during the next three or four months, when the rainfall may not be sufficient for their requirements The amount of water required for The amouni of water required for crops is rather surprising; in humid regions they require from 200 to 500 pounds for every pound of dry mat-ter produced, and in dry climates the amounts are about double of these. Of the ordinary farm crops the legumes including clovers, peas and beans, use the most water; then comes potatoes next; then in order oats buckwheat harley, wheat, rape, oats, buckwheat, barley, wheat, rape, maize and millet. The water that the plants take from the soil exists in the form of from the soil exists in the form of thin films around the soil grains. If the soil be well drained and other-wise in good physical condition, these films will occupy about one-half of the air space of the soil, the other half being available for air, which is very necessary for the growth of the rest. The water in the form which is very necessary for the growth of the roots. The water in the form of films has the power to rise up through the soil grains in a manner similar to that of the rise of oil in a lampwick or water through a lump of sugar. This rise takes place more quickly and extends higher if the soil grains be fairly fine and in a mellow grains be fairly fine and in a mellow grains be larry line and in a meriow and friable condition, or in other words, be in good tilth. Water in ex-cess of this film water should be drained from the soil, otherwise the soil remains cold and the air is ex-cluded from the roots. roots Conserving the soil moisturesconsists of getting as much as possible of the rains and the meltage of the snow down into the lower depths of the soil, and in the second place, pre-venting the water that rises to the surface during the period of growth from evaporating. The first can be secured by fall ploughing and in other ways making the soil surface as open and receptive as possible for the easy entrance of the water and the evaporation can be prevented to a large degree by keeping the sur-face, after the crops are sown or planted, well mulched. The soil mulch, one to three inches deep, is found to be very effective in keeping the film water from reaching the sursnow down into the lower depths of found to be very effective in kceping the film water from reaching the sur-face and there evaporating under the sun and wind. The surface of the soils, should not be allowed to be-come crusted, as a crust on the top cracks open and allows the water to escape. The best illustrations of mulching and its good effects are found in every well-tilled garden, but to a large degree the practice is practicable on the farms by a judi-cious use of the harrow and roller. When the grain fields are rolled im-mediately after seeding, the harrow should be used; if power enough be ayailable both may, bo passed over the field at once. Even after the grain is up 3 or 4 inches, should a heavy rain pack down the soil, the roller may be used to good advan-tage in re-establishing a mulch. The more frequently the corn and root the film water from reaching the surtage in re-establishing a mulch. The more frequently the corn and root fields are cultivated throughout the season of growth, the more effective the mulch will be to conserve the soil moisture.—R. R. Graham, B.S.A., O. A. Why Plenty of Water Is Necessary for Cows In Hot Weather.

for Cows In Hot Weather. Water is very necessary for cows at all times, because the body itself contains a large proportion of water; the functions of the body cannot properly take place except plenty of water be supplied; and milk contains about 87 ½ per cent. water. All this makes water needful at all times to the cow giving milk, but in hot weather there are added reasons why the cow should have plenty of water. These hot weather additions to the water supply of cows are necessary: 1. To assist in cooling the body. When the animal body becomes too warm, nature suggests an extra sup-ply of water, which lowers the tem-perature of the body of the animal.

Guide-Advocate WATFORD, JULY 18, 1919 NOTE AND COMMENT

The Toronto Telegram says: By all means let the farmer in on this collective bargaining program. If he should take it into his head to strike. the rest of us would have to quit as soon as the canned goods gave out.

The total area of the Dominion under field crops has increased from 30,566,168 acres in 1910 to 42,602,-288 acres in 1917, an increase of 12,046,120 acres, or 39 per cent. as stated in statistical data compiled by tion. the Dominion Census Bureau. The average yield per acre of fall wheat in Canada is 23 bushels and of spring wheat 19 bushels. This compares with the United States average of 15.5 bushels for winter wheat and 13.2 for spring wheat. The figures are taken from the Canada Year Book which has just been published. and relate generally to 1916-17.

Peter McArthur, the well-known farmer contributor to the daily press, says: "It strikes me that the chief cause of the misunderstanding between city and country people is due to the fact that country people think that all city people are rich or at least highly paid, while city people think all farmers are prosperous. Both are wrong. The percentage of prosperous farmers in the country is just the same as in the cities. Both city and country are mostly made up of struggling people who are justfolks. If they understood each other better they would get together and right many wrongs from which both suffer.

Parkhill Gazette:-Perhaps the closing of one room in our Public School will not be given a thought. But it is a part of the handwriting on the wall. The white race is dying out. Unless there are four children in every new home, the white race will continue to die out. In almost any foreign home in Canada, you will find as many children as you will find in a whole schoolsection in East or West Williams and plensy of other townships, and while the church thunders its warning about what will happen should the yellow race arise and go to war with the white race, we close a room in the Public School and never pause to realize what it signifies. It means the future of Canada. Shall we rule Canada through our children, or shall the children of the foreign woman receive the ruling of our country as a heritage.

LISTLESS, PEEVISH GIRLS 德非南京:

When a girl in her teens becomes peevish, listless and dull, when nothing seems to interest her and dainties do not tempt her appetite, you may be certain that she needs more good blood than her system is provided with. Before long her pallid cheeks frequent headaches, and breathlessness and heart palpitation will confirm that she is anaemic. Many mothers as the result of their own girlhood experience can promptly detect the early signs of anaemia, and the wise mother does not wait for the trouble to develop further, but at once gives her daughter a course with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which renew the blood supply and banish anaemia before it has obtained a hold upon the system.

Out of their experience thousands of mothers know that anaemia is the sure road to worse ills. They know the difference that good red blood makes in the development of womanly health. Every headache, every gasp for breath that follows the slightest exertion by the anaemic girl, every pain she suffers in her back and limbs are reproaches if you have not taken the best steps to give your weak girl new blood, and the only sure way to do so is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

New, rich, red blood is infused into the system by every dose of these pills. From this new rich blood springs good health, an increased appetite, new energy, high spirits and perfect vomanly development. Give your der thter Dr. Williams" Pink Pills, and take them yourself and note how | comptly their influ-ence is felt in better health.

A weekly paper in the interests of the League is to be published, it will be known as "The Irish Statesman."

THE TWELFTH AT STRATHROY

There was a good turnout of Orangemen from this district at the Battle of the Boyne celebration at Strathroy on Saturday and all report a fine meeting and good time. Twenty three lodges were in the parade.

The visitors began to arrive early in the morning and before noon scores and scores of Orangemen had collected on the principal streets. At 1 o'clock the whole town was surrendered to invading crowds. Then half an hour later the lodge leaders assembled their members and a long procession was formed with a fife and drum band for almost every lodge. The huge banners and flags were unfurled; everything was quickly arranged for the parade. Finally at 1.30 o'clock the bands started playing and the procession began its march. Three beautiful white horses carried the leaders of the assembled lodges at the head of the line and were followed by Reeve S. Oake's
