CHEER UP! THE WHEAT IN WEST IS ALL RIGHT

The Critical Time Comes Later When Wheat is in Milk.

Winnipeg, May 10.—Assuming that 50 per cent of spring wheat is seeded by Saturday or by the end of the first week in May, and that the balance of crop will be put in before the middle of the month, there does not appear to be any real grounds for apprehension regarding the lateness of the season, for the records of the Red River Valley, which are very complete and cover forty years back show that successful wheat crops have been harvested when wheat seeding has not been completed by May 24.

It all depends on weather conditions of the season. Thus in 1907, when seeding was later than at present by at least ten days, no real anxiety was felt as to the crop until the cold wet weather of June and early July served to check the growth and bring about a dangerously late harvest, much of the grain indeed being frozen while still in the milk stage.

It has, however, been a very trying spring for after fair promise in late March, April set in bitter cold and stormy. Some farmers who got on their ground good and early are none the better for it, for the grain has only lain dead on the ground.

So far Alberta winter wheat seems to have come through the ordeal well, but nothing will be known definitely as to what, if any, damage was done by inclement weather of couple of weeks ago, until official reports are forthcoming.

Cattle and horses have never come through the winter better and the same can be said of sheep, so that with good prices ranchers should have an unusually good season.

The usual spring prairie fires have done considerable damage in some sections, particularly south of the elbow of the Saskatchewan river, and in the district between the main line of the C. P. R. and the boundary, south of Swift Current, where several farmers have been burned out, one or two lives lost, and much of the country denuded of feed. This is a serious matter, as it is but just being opened up chiefly by Americans and new settlers, who depend for the first season for feed for their working oxen on the prairie wool.

Have to for twenty-four hours in the Atlantic in thick fog with hundreds of icebergs within a short distance, was the report made by Capt. Phoenix Cook, of the Alaska line steamer Siberian, which arrived in port early yesterday morning from Glasgow and St. John's, Nfld. In all my experience, said Captain Cook, I never saw so much ice, field and bergs, and so thick were they that when we were within 120 miles of St. John's and running a northerly course, we had to run 215 miles south to get clear. The good judgment of Capt. Cook evidently saved his steamer from the same fate that befell the C. P. R. liner the Champlain. "We passed hundreds and hundreds, I never saw so much ice in my life," were the words of Captain Cook—Halifax Echo, May 10.

A SUGGESTION

St. John, N. B., May 10. Editor Times.

Sir—Allow me through the medium of your valuable paper to make a suggestion, which, I think, would appeal to many, particularly those citizens who reside in and about the "old town."

Some time ago a large bell was installed in the Holy Trinity church, but after serving a very brief period, a complaint was made and it ceased to call the neighboring citizens of that denomination to worship. Now, since this bell is installed, and idle, why not connect it with the fire alarm system and make some use of a present worthless object.

Thinking you for your valuable space, and hoping to see or hear of steps being taken in this matter, I remain, Yours very truly, CITIZEN.

COLLINS CASE IN THE POLICE COURT

Witnesses Reveal a Shameful Condition of Affairs in the White Street House Where Mrs. Murphy Was Injured.

The preliminary examination of Charles Collins, accused of wounding Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy in his apartments at 23 White street, on Saturday night, was commenced in the police court this morning, and two witnesses were examined. John Murphy, the husband of the injured woman, and Laura Murphy, their daughter. A strong link for a chain of circumstantial evidence against Collins was formed by the daughter's declaration that she perceived Collins retire from the kitchen where her mother was lying prostrate and bleeding to the front room, as she opened the kitchen door to induce her mother for the third time to sever herself from her associates in the debauch and return across the street to her own quarters.

Though pleading is unnecessary in a preliminary hearing, Collins entered a plea of not guilty and it is evident that he bases his defence on the Murphy woman inflicting accidental self-injury. He declares that he heard her fall in the kitchen, while he and his mother were in the front room. He was not represented by counsel.

The first witness was John Murphy. He said that he resided in an adjoining house to Collins. He left his house at 7.15, and saw Mrs. Murphy going into the kitchen with Mrs. Collins. He returned shortly after 9 o'clock. Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Murphy were lying intoxicated on the floor of Collins' flat. He entered the Collins' house at half past nine. He saw Sergt. Campbell find a long pair of shears on the floor. He saw a pool of blood on the floor and a quantity of bloody apparel. His wife was lying in a pool of blood in the kitchen when Sergeant Campbell found her, but when he made his visit alone the trio were lying in the front room. On the second visit the Collins were still in the front room.

To Collins he said he was unaware if his wife made a statement to a physician. His wife informed him in the hospital that the wound was caused by the shears. She was not conscious when he first visited the Collins' abode.

Laura Murphy, daughter of John and Elizabeth Murphy, the second witness, stated that she went into Collins' at 7.45 and endeavored to persuade her mother to leave. Old Mrs. Collins refused to allow her to depart. She invited the witness to remain. She stopped for twenty minutes and left. She returned in half an hour and everything was tranquil. She went back for the third time, after 10 o'clock, and saw her mother lying on the floor of the kitchen. She saw Collins emerging from the kitchen when she entered, and he went into the front room. Her mother was lying in a pool of blood. She called for Mrs. Collins, but the old woman was "too ill to answer. Collins came to the kitchen and had a glimpse of the prostrate woman. He denied that he knew how Mrs. Murphy was injured. She took off her undershirt and banded her mother's head. On her first and second visit her mother was in the front room and on the third visit she was in the kitchen. On the second visit her mother was capable of walking and was accompanying the witness to the door when old Mrs. Collins prevented her from departing from the house by pulling her back.

In reply to a query from Collins she stated that he did not tell her that her mother must have fallen, and added that he heard the Murphy woman fall. There was blood on Collins' hands on her last trip to the house. On her first two visits she entered via the front door and on the third visit by the rear entrance. At this point adjournment was ordered until Friday morning, when the witnesses, namely William Brown and his wife, who it is said, can adduce important testimony. Mrs. Collins and Nelson were in court during today's hearing. The Browns family occupy apartments in the house at 23 White street, and are fellow tenants of Mrs. Collins, and her son, Nelson is a boarder with one of the families. Mrs. Murphy's evidence will in all likelihood be taken at the hospital.

Constant brooding over his incarceration is believed to have affected his heart.
