MISCELLANEOUS.

EXPERIENCE vs. EXPERIMENT

Learning office work is like learning any other kind of work or trade or profession. Machinists are trained by practical machinists, doctors by doctors, dentists by dentists. The secret of success of the graduates of Willis College is that they are the only ones trained by expert, experienced office workers for expert work.

For Stenographer, Secretary or Accountant, we have the best courses available anywhere. Last year our increase was 45%. This year to date is even better. Still Employers Demand Exceed the Number of Willis Graduates.

Presentation of Clock

Miss Hazel Allen, who has been organist of the Methodist church for some years, was last Thursday evening presented with an address and a mantle clock by the choir, on the occasion of her leaving the church to take another position. The presentation took place in the parsonage, and a very pleasant social hour was afterwards spent.

Carleton Place Boy Dies in Renfrew

The family of Mr. J. C. White have the deep sympathy of the town in their trouble and bereavement. Their last grief is caused by the somewhat sudden death of the youngest son, George Ernest, a bright lad in his eighteenth year. He had been attending the high school, and during the holidays spent his time in profitable employment. About a month ago he went to Renfrew and took a position in the munition factory. A week or so ago he was taken with the prevailing influenza which on Thursday developed into pneumonia. He was taken to the hospital, where every attention was given him, but on Saturday evening he succumbed to the inevitable. The remains were sent on to Carleton Place on Sunday morning and the funeral took place yesterday afternoon to the 5th Line Ramsay cemetery, where interment was made in the family plot.

Rev. Mr. Monds Welcomed Home

Last Thursday evening the members of St. Andrews congregation assembled in the school-room to accord a hearty welcome home to their pastor, Rev. J. Monds, who spent the summer months in the mission fields of the church in British Columbia. The chair was occupied by Mr. G. A. Burgess, the chairman of the management committee, and addresses were given by Dr. Downing, R. J. Robertson and others. Rev. Mr. Dobson brought the greetings of the sister congregation. Mr. R. J. Robertson read a resolution from the Kamloops Presbytery expressing to the congregation their feelings of gratitude for having for the summer such an able missionary, and expressing their high appreciation of Mr. Monds' work on the western field. Songs were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Brown and Mr. D. R. Ferguson. Mr. Monds made brief reference to his summer's experience, thanked the congregation for their welcome, and promised to make fuller reference to the great mission work in the west. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant social evening was spent.

Presentation at Prospect

An incident quite out of the usual track place in the quiet little village of Prospect two days ago, when Mrs. Ramsay, wife of Capt. Ramsay, formerly Miss Jean Kidd, was presented with an address and a well filled purse. Mrs. Ramsay, who is a graduate nurse of the Royal Victoria Hospital, went overseas as a nurse in 1915, and saw service in Egypt, in Greece, in Belgium and in England, and whilst in the motherland met her fate in the person of Capt. Ramsay, and married. About a month ago she returned to Canada and to her home at Prospect. Her erstwhile friends were glad to see her again and welcome her home and as an earnest of their sincerity made the presentation, which took place at the home of her father, Mr. James Kidd. Rev. Mr. Richards read the address and the presentation was made by two of her girl friends prior to her departure for Montreal. Miss Kidd had been organist in St. Augustine church, and was well and favorably known in the vicinity. After the presentation a social evening was spent, refreshments were served and Mrs. Ramsay exhibited to the callers a number of interesting souvenirs of the war, which she had collected during her term of service at the front. Mrs. Ramsay has since left for the United States.

Death of Mrs. J. A. Blair, Beckwith

Quite unexpected indeed was the death last Wednesday morning of Mrs. J. A. Blair of Beckwith. The deceased lady had been indisposed for a short time and a week ago Sunday was taken seriously ill. Her physician advised specialist treatment and on Sunday evening she was taken to Ottawa, where the physicians diagnosed her ailment as acute gastritis. On Wednesday morning she passed away. The deceased lady was 50 years of age. Before her marriage she was Margaret J. Simpson, daughter of the late James Simpson of Goulbourn, and she was widely known and most highly respected. The funeral took place Friday afternoon to Dewar's cemetery. The bereaved husband and other sorrowing relatives have the deepest sympathy in their bereavement.

Ex-Mayor Smythe and the other members of the club are having their annual outing at Long View Island this week.

Mr. John Wilson, for many years proprietor of the Hicks House, Perth, and known all over the province, died at his summer home at Otty Lake Saturday, following a stroke which he sustained about two weeks ago. Deceased leaves a widow and three sons, all of whom are wearing the King's uniform, and one daughter Mrs. E. R. Meighen, Toronto.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

TEMPERS
Tempers are queer things anyway. We snap and growl, and scold, and fume, and fret for no cause under the sun that we know of, and when trouble really comes we smile and take it as unconcernedly as though it was the most commonplace affair. We will sulk for a week over a slight that was all in our imagination and grow all the madder because we know that the whole matter is an invention of our own. The fact is, when we feel good, a eyelone can't spoil our equanimity, but if we chance to be out of sorts and have the blues, we are going to get mad and stay mad and if we don't find any provocation we will make one. The man who gets the blues—and who is there who doesn't get them—is a most unfortunate person. Ten minutes after the attack begins he has concluded that he is the most abused man in the face of the earth. Every person in the town is working against him—he knows it and it is no use to deny the fact. If the unfortunate man is married, he wreaks disgust upon his wife and boy and cow.

"The sanctity of the marriage relation must not be broken by divorce," says every sentiment, no matter though the ever-present spectre of bruises, wounds, perhaps of a fearful death, may hang over the head of the victim, she should walk unswervingly by the side of the despicable brute whose private life, nerved by rum or reasonless passion, may at any time strike down her frail form. The man who lays his hand upon a woman, save in way of kindness, deserves no companion but eternal banishment from her very presence.

No matter how small a sin is, examine its tracks and you will find that they point straight toward the pit.

The foundation of society rests on its home. The success of the home rests on the wives. Therefore, first of all teach our girls how to be successful wives. Teach them that jealousy is an immorality and gossip a vice. Train them to keep the smallest promise sacredly and to speak to people only as they would speak to them. Teach everyone they meet, and to notice other people's faults only to avoid them. Train them to do small things well and to delight in helping others, that sacrifice made for other's pleasures is a means of soul development. Once give a firm foundation of character like this, which the poorest as well as the richest parents can give to their girls, and no matter what necessity arises they will be able to meet it.

Make a home; beautify and adorn it; cultivate all heavenly charms within it; sing sweeter songs of love in it; bear your portion of toil, and pain, and sorrow in it; con daily lessons of strength and patience there; shine like a star on the face of the darkest night over it. High on the pinnacle above all

HARVESTING NUTS AS A PATRIOTIC PASTIME

Throughout Canada there is a generous supply of nut-bearing trees which yield an abundance of edible nuts rich in food value, as the butternut, black walnut, the hickories, hazelnuts and beech nuts. Nuts are more nutritious than milk, eggs, bread and meat, one ounce of nut kernels being equal in food value to a pint of milk. Nuts are ready to eat without the labor and cost of cooking. They may be served in the form of delicious sandwiches, in salads, in fruit jellies and cakes, or a handful may be kneaded into a loaf of bread before it goes into the oven. A few kernels put through the meat chopper and scattered over the breakfast cereal adequately supply the place of bacon.

This important food crop is waiting in the woods to be gathered in. A few afternoons spent nutting in the woods during the bright autumn days will supply the home with nuts for the winter and will save the meat supply for our country's defense. After gathering, the nuts should be spread on the attic floor or on shelves in a dry place to allow the surface moisture to escape. They may be cracked at leisure by the boys and girls in dull weather and stored in air tight glass jars.

A few of the finest nuts should be saved for planting nearer home. Nothing will give the children greater pleasure than to choose and plant their own nut trees. If space allows, a future nut orchard might be planned or young trees transplanted as shade trees. The beech is a very beautiful tree, both in winter and summer, and the butternut, walnut and hickory make good garden shade trees and their wood is very valuable.

The butternut occurs from New Brunswick to Ontario, while the black walnut is found in the southern part of Ontario. The shagbark hickory ranges from Quebec to the north shore of Lake Huron, the mockernut hickory occurring in Ontario only. The hazel nut extends from the Maritime Provinces to Saskatchewan; the beaked hazel nut has an even greater range extending into British Columbia. The beech ranges from Nova Scotia to Ontario.

The Revere House, Brockville, has been closed. Adolph Gorr, accused of shooting and killing John Bohn at Golden Lake, has given himself up to Pembroke authorities. He says he knows nothing about the shooting.

earthly grandeur, all gaudy glitter, all fancied ambitions, set the home interests. Feed the mind in it; feed the soul in it; strengthen the love and charity, and truth, and all holy and good things within it.

Every man's life is a failure who does not try to do something to leave the world richer than he found it.

There is no work so humble that faithfulness in it will not be noticed and rewarded.

Good appearances may be pleasant but solid realities are safer and more comfortable.

OLD AGE
We wish to say a few words for the old folks, believing that the infirmities of advanced years are often treated with an indifference that is hard to bear. Not by all, of course, for there are many, we will hope the majority, that are thoughtful of the aged and kind to them. Then again, there are others who, to put it mildly, are harsh and cold. It is very natural to smile on what is lovely and strong, and frown on the reverse without even observing that we do so; add it often follows, with the young especially, that as they look on the furrowed face, the dim eyes and trembling hands, the tottering, uncertain steps of an old man or woman, they seem to forget that in that worn and homely prison house are a heart and soul which yearn for recognition, for kindness in word and deed, and for a little love, with an intensity that youth in its fullness does not know. They must forget, or one would not so often hear such remarks as, "Oh grandma, don't bother; grandpa forgets everything; grandma, what do you want to go for? Old folks ought to be contented at home!"

In our words to others, in all our dealings with them, it is our duty to stop and think; and with the old it is positive cruelty not to do so. It is down hill, remember; a hill with steep stony paths, and at its foot there is only a grave. Don't by impatient words and looks push them along its precipitous ways; don't bruise their weary feet with rocks of ridicule and uncalled-for jest; don't glaze that downward slope with the ice of indifference; and above all, don't hang on every bush and boulder placards of their own deterioration. It is not necessary to remind them that they have left their prime and strength behind. They know it; none to well.

Parents are land marks and little ones cope them.

Our achievements are less than our intentions usually. Let us aim high.

Keep a close eye on the man whose wife is afraid to ask him for money.

The plant of happiness cannot thrive without an air of cheerfulness.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Mrs. Willie Theriault, Paquetville, N. B., says:—"I am extremely thankful that I tried Baby's Own Tablets for my baby. Through their use my baby thrived wonderfully and I feel as if I cannot recommend them too highly." Baby's Own Tablets break up colds and simple fevers; cure constipation, colic and indigestion and make teething easy. In fact they cure all the minor ills of little ones. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Valuable Patent

An old colored minister announced that he had invented an automatic collection basket, which would be passed around by the deacons of his church. "It is so arranged," his brethren said he, "that if you drop in a quatch or half dollar it falls noiselessly on a red plush cushion; if you drop in a nickel it will ring a bell that can be distinctly heard by de ential congregation; but if you let fall a suspender button, my brethren, it will fish off a pistol."

Presence of Mind

A man entered a clothing store, ostensibly to purchase a suit. He tried on a coat, and while the proprietor's back was momentarily turned he made a dash for the door, and gaining the street, started to run away with the stolen garment.

The proprietor rushed out, yelling "Stop thief!" and took up the chase. A policeman soon joined in and ordered the fleeing man to halt. As however, the thief kept on running the policeman drew his pistol, whereupon the clothing dealer grabbed the officer's arm and said: "Mr. Policeman, if you shoot, for God's sake shoot him in the pants; the coat belongs to me."

DAY OF WAISTCOAT

Paris Sketches Predict Advance of the Long Garment.

Promises to be Dominant Feature of New Autumn Clothes Which Will Be Introduced in August.

Last January, the women in Paris wore waistcoats of fur, velvet, knitted wool and dyed homespun that reached from the collar bone to the knees. The heads of dressmaking houses, who are carefully watched wherever they go, contributed to the fashion for these accessories by placing them in their own suits.

America introduced few of them, and she did not find even the short waistcoat of last February, a success, declares a writer on fashion topics. It was worn by a few segments of smart women, fashionable and unfashionable, rich and poor, but the long waistcoat was treated as an outcast. It was not even recognized. But France persisted and the dressmakers in New York are putting it into suits and frocks for summer resorts. The prophecy runs that it will be a dominant feature of new autumn clothes.

In a large bunch of Paris photographs that have come over, this long waistcoat is repeated in many fabrics on women who are snapped as they go about their new and active life. The sketches that come over from the big designers as heralds of what will be advanced in August, show the long waistcoat also. It is made in a different color from the gown; it is used for protection or for beauty, and although it is probably taken from the reign of Louis XIV, it has none of the elegance or jauntiness of its predecessor. It merely looks warm and comfortable, or gay and colorful.

It is the longest waistcoat that has ever been worn by woman. It was matched in length by those worn at the court of the Grand Monarque. Looking at it in its most essential feature, it is merely another way to straighten the figure. It, therefore, can be adopted by those to whom middle age has brought an undesired roundity.

DARK BLUE HELMET TURBAN

Charming enough would be this dainty helmet turban alone, but its designers were not satisfied, so they added the charming summer veil. The hat is dark blue, covered with a multitude of summer flowers. The same flower motif is carried out in the dark blue veil.

RIBBON FOR DRESS TRIMMING

Many Beautiful Designs Being Effectively Used; Never More Beautiful Than This Year.

Ribbon plays an important part in dress trimmings, accessories, etc., and never have they been more beautiful than they are this year. Many are interwoven with gold and silver and some are formed almost entirely of dull gold or silver tissue.

There are ribbons of satin with pale spots in old-fashioned tints, and pale taffeta ribbons in rose, mauve and natter blue, over which are sprinkled at intervals "lucky" lady birds brocaded in dull gold or silver.

Striped or checked fallie ribbons are extremely fashionable, and among the novelties are ribbons with long weaved fringe at the ends.

Various are the ways in which these ribbons are utilized for frock trimmings. They are introduced in the form of inset bands, plaited, shirred or plain, and sometimes as frillings or ruchings.

Hats Off for Hair.

Keep your hat off as much as possible. Hair cannot lie too easily or loosely for its own health, and that of the nerves and head. Anything like pressure, heat or strain about the head will injure the brain and the finest parts of the nervous system. Pulling the hair up too tightly from the back of the head and ears will cause the glands of the neck to swell. Notice what a relief it is to take all your hairpins out of the hair and let it hang loose for a few hours.

If you adopt an easy, artistic and natural hair dressing, nervousness will disappear and headaches will be unknown. It is not only beneficial to the growth of the hair, but to the nerves of the head to wear it tied with a ribbon at the nape of the neck, free of hairpins, whenever possible.

MANUFACTURE OF CIDER

Winter Rhubarb Can be Produced Cheaply and Conveniently.

Turnips Grown on Dairy Farm Best Fed to Dry Cows, Young Stock and Pigs.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

SWEET cider is unfermented apple juice, and hard cider is fermented apple juice. To get the juice the apples are either crushed or ground in a cider mill and the juice expressed from the pulp.

The fermentation of apple juice, or any other fruit juice, is brought about by yeast cells are microscopic plants invisible to the naked eye and are always present on the surface of fruit. When the fruit is crushed to get the juice many of these yeast cells get into the juice and if these are not destroyed they will induce fermentation.

Consequently, in the manufacture of sweet cider we must destroy the yeast cells that are present and prevent others from getting in. The surest way of doing this is to pasteurize the juice immediately after it is obtained from the fruit and store away in well-sealed containers. In the case of cider the pasteurization process means heating the juice to 170 F. for ten minutes and then filling into containers that have been scalded and can be tightly corked. Care should be taken not to let the temperature get above 170 F. during pasteurization or the character of the juice will be injured. The juice is then stored away at a low temperature to allow it to clear.

Hard cider is produced by allowing the fresh apple juice to ferment in the cask. The fermentation is naturally induced by the activities of the yeast cells that get into the juice from the surface of the apples. As, however, there are various kinds of yeast cells, and also many mold spores liable to be on the fruit which may injure the quality of the cider, spoiling the flavor, it is a good plan to control the fermentation either by pasteurizing the juice and then adding a good yeast, or simply by adding a good yeast to the raw juice as soon as obtained from the apples. —Prof. D. H. Jones, O. A. College, Guelph.

How Winter Rhubarb is Produced.

The production of rhubarb in winter has become of considerable value among gardeners. It is easy to do if certain methods are followed. If one is making a permanent business of rhubarb forcing, it is necessary, each year, to set out a new bed as plants once forced are of no further value. In the spring large roots should be dug, split in one bud section, replaced in rich moist ground. During the growing season they are kept up and free from weeds. In the fall they are covered with manure. Next spring a second bed is planted as before. That fall a large part of the first bed is taken up leaving sufficient to replant another bed the next spring. The roots are taken up the last thing in the fall before the hard freezing weather comes and are placed in piles in a shed where they can easily be got at during the winter, but will remain frozen. About Dec. 1st take in a sufficient number of roots, place these buds side up on the floor of a warm cellar—about 68 to 70 degrees—and cover with an inch of sand. Be sure to fill in all interspaces. Keep this sand moist. About a week later the buds will begin to swell, and in from four to six weeks, depending upon the heat of the room, the cooler the slower growth starts—you should watch the buds ready for market. After these roots are exhausted throw them away and put in more. If a constant supply is required make a new bed every two or three weeks during the winter. Be sure to keep all lights dimmed. Put burlap or brown paper over the windows to get the bright pink color so much desired.—A. H. MacLennan, B.S.A., Ontario Vegetable Specialist.

Should Cows Be Fed Turnips?

This is an old question about which considerable difference of opinion exists. If my reader is Scotch, he or she will likely answer the question by saying, "Yes," as Scotchmen, turnips, and good farming are three things usually found together on farms in Ontario.

There was a time when butter buyers were not so particular about the flavor of butter as they are at present. It is common to hear women purchasers on city markets, say to farm butter-makers, "Your butter is turnip," which is sufficient to cause a loss of the sale. Creamery-men object very strongly to "turnip cream." While it is doubtless true that some careful feeders are able to feed quite large quantities of turnips to cows giving milk, without causing any serious trouble, there is always danger, which can best be avoided by not feeding these to milking cows. If they are grown on the dairy farm they are best fed to dry cows, fattening cattle, young stock, pigs, etc. However, if they are fed in the stable where cows are milking, and more especially where the root house opens into the stable and where the turnips are pulped in the stable or in a feed-room adjoining, the odor of the turnips fills the air, which is carried into the milk pail at the time of milking and thus the milk, cream, and butter become tainted from the stable air, even though the milk cows may not be fed any of the turnips.

The safest plan is not to grow turnips on a dairy farm. Grow mangels, or sugar beets, and corn for silage. These crops will give as good returns as turnips, are no more expensive to grow, and are much safer. "Safety first" is a good motto on a dairy farm.—Prof. H. H. Dean, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

RAMSAY COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Ramsay council was held in the town hall, Almonte, on Saturday, Sept. 28th, at 10 o'clock, a.m., all the members being present.

A Foolish Question

Two army officers, while ballooning, lost trace of their whereabouts, and, wishing to ascertain what part of the country they were passing over, descended until they came within hailing distance of a couple of farmers. When nearly overhead one of the officers called out:

"Hi, there, Johnny, can you tell us where we are?"

The rustic gazed up at them in much amazement. Thinking he had not heard, one of the officers shouted again, louder than before:

"Where are we?"

"Why, you're in a balloon ain't ye?"

What the officers said when they heard this would probably spoil the story.

On account of Kidney Trouble I was invalided to England. I was treated there for some months in the 5th and 11th Hospitals, and was finally invalided home to Ottawa, where I received treatment in the Convalescent Home. ### AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition!

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-Intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rash, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Canadian Emphasis.

By the bye, don't be shocked by our damning and swearing. It doesn't mean the same in Canada as it does over here. It's natural to us. In Canada everyone swears. My little boy—he was six years of age at the time—was swearing one day in the kitchen and the cook told him if he was not careful his teeth would drop out. He looks up at her—only six years of age, mind you—and says, "Daddy's teeth haven't dropped out!" What do you think of that?—Gen. Alec McDougall, Canadian Forestry Corps, in London Chronicle interview.

Tommy Sized It Up.

Tom's kindergarten teacher took her class to see the chickens in the school yard. A homely brown hen was mothering a brood of tiny chickens hatched in an incubator. The aristocratic chicks had tufts of feathers on their heads. Tommy quickly noted the difference between hen and chicks and blurted out: "Fahaw, she can't be their mother." Then, after a moment's consideration, he added with an air of conviction: "Oh, I guess she's only the nursegirl."

SOLDIERS' WIVES SAVE

Through Thrift They Accumulate Surplus for Their Husband's Return

People in the Western suburbs of Toronto have known hard times but the great majority have "stuck it out" and succeeded in keeping their homes. Now wages are high, many of the men working on munitions and other kinds of war work. One finds many examples of thrift among these people. A man who drives a coal wagon has built a house worth $3,000, which as the result of seven years' work, he now owns clear. His wages just now are $22 a week but for most of the seven years they were not above $14. He has a wife and family, the former being thrifty as the wives of most of the men generally are, who, starting with nothing get ahead very quickly.

Another man worked for small wages as assistant in a butcher's shop. He managed to build a house, sold it to advantage four years ago, rented a store and went into the butchering on his own account. His business grew and he built a big store which he now owns outright. He is on the high road to real affluence.

A THRIFTY FAMILY.

Here is the case of a returned soldier who has been back from the front a year. He now has a job downtown, his wife is working and so are his eldest son and daughter. In the year he has been back the family has transformed its one storey frame house into a two-storey cement one and built a cellar. They have thus got together a property worth $3,000 in a year and have done all the work with their own hands after doing their regular day's work.

A soldier's wife, bringing up a family of four children, last year bought each of the children a $50 war bond out of her savings from the separation allowance and her husband's assigned pay of three years. This year she means to lead another $100 to Canada when the call comes and present the bond to her husband on his return from the war.

THE FRUGAL MIND.

Another soldier's wife, bringing up a family of three children, goes out as a charwoman. She has cleared off a $600 mortgage on her little home in the four years her husband has been away. "We want to put by all we can," she said, "against the time my husband comes back. That is one reason why I have saved so hard. Then, again, I do not want to weaken the country, which needs all the goods and labor for war purposes by buying anything I can possibly do without.

The instances given are but typical of scores and hundreds of others where people have proved, as regarded saving, that "where there's a will there's a way."

POTATO SEED PRODUCTION

(Experimental Farm Note)

Like begets like in the potato field as elsewhere, but judging by the quantities of inferior tubers used for seed purposes, the importance of this law is not appreciated by many. The use of small potatoes taken from the bulk of the crop, year after year, and used for seed will eventually lead to yields of inferior potatoes.

At potato digging time the great opportunity for seed selection is offered. With the product of each plant spread on the soil it is an easy matter to select out those plants that have given the largest yield of the most desirable type of potato and are free from disease. The potatoes from such plants only should be gathered and saved for use as seed the following year. This saving of seed at digging time may seem to many as an extra burden during a rush of work, but it is not.

There is less actual labor attached to seed selection at the time of the potato harvest than there is practising any other method of seed selection. Furthermore, the results from hill selection are reasonably certain while with other methods there is some speculation. Potato growers would do well to watch closely for exceptionally good plants. These, harvested and saved apart from the main crop, may become the granddads of fine potato fields in the future.

HIS OWN COAL BIN

I have in my coal bin a fair percentage of my year's needs in soft coal because I know Canada will not receive a full supply of anthracite. The soft coal I can either mix with the hard coal or use it by itself until Christmas, and then again as spring is approaching. If necessity should demand, I could use it throughout the entire winter and keep my family comfortably warm. It would be well if every person put a percentage of soft coal in their cellars.

—C. A. McGrath, Canadian Fuel Controller.

Wartime Economy

Mr. Benson went to New York to business, but lived in Brooklyn. Often he was not able to get home in time for dinner at night. He told his wife that he would phone her every day as to whether he could leave the office or not.

Mrs. Benson was of a very thrifty disposition, and the following was her solution of the problem: "Sam, if you find that you can't be home for dinner, phone me at exactly six o'clock. If the telephone rings at that hour, I'll know it is you and that you are not coming for dinner. I won't answer it, and you'll get your nickel back."

French War Dogs

Not every one realizes the important place which dogs are taking in this war. Of course, the Germans began training dogs for war uses many years ago, but the French did nothing in that line for two years after war had begun. They now have 18,000 dogs trained or in training. These are cared for by the Blue Cross, which, at the request of the French army, are received at these bases, disinfected and quarantined. They are then assigned for duty or training.

Terriers are used to free the trenches of rats, and the larger dogs are used for patrol work, to police prisoners, as first aids to ambulances to carry appliances and water, to seek out wounded men in shell holes and out-of-the-way places. It is said that Samoyede dogs have actually saved the guns to which they were harnessed; they carry shells, and even draw sleighs and light transport. Perhaps most important of all are the messenger dogs, which can travel where men cannot go, and exceed any other messenger except the pigeon in speed. They travel through the barrage, making 23 or 24 miles an hour, and are, literally "faithful unto death," striving even when wounded to perform their allotted task. No one would question for an instant the fine appreciation which has caused the French Government to mention its dogs in despatches.

So far, over 1,000 French dogs have been treated at the hospitals. All operations on dogs and horses are performed under anaesthetic by trained veterinarians. The town of Mossley lately presented to Lady Smith-Dorrien, president of the Blue Cross fund, a cheque for £1,050, which is the first instalment of its subscription towards this fine work. Mossley is a town of only 8,000 inhabitants.

Brains More Than Protection

Irish Homestead: The prosperity of an industry does not depend upon protection, but upon the quality of brains at the service of the industry. In Russia, with high tariffs, agriculture was not progressive before the war. In Germany, with high tariffs, agriculture was prosperous and progressive. In Ireland and England, before the war, under free trade agriculture was a decaying industry. In Denmark, with free trade, agriculture was prosperous and progressive. Now it is obvious from these facts that protection alone will not buttress up an industry, nor will the competition free trade make possible destroy an industry. The real factors which make for prosperity of the people engaged in the industry, if they are intelligent and educated they will adjust their industry to any circumstances. If they are unintelligent and uneducated they will make a mess of any industry, no matter how nature or State policy favours them.

Some fifteen weekly newspapers in Ontario have gone out of business within the year.

J. W. Hunt, chief of police, Arnprior, has resigned after four years' service, and Mr. George Jackmann will be the new chief.

Rev. J. P. McLennan has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Baptist congregation in Perth, to take effect immediately.

Stewart McLraith, Lanark, has the misfortune of breaking his arm just above the elbow, by a fall on the stairway of his home.

Mr. J. C. Knox, who has been editor of the Smiths Falls News for some months, has left to take a position on the Ottawa Journal as sporting editor.

Perth's coal allotment for this winter is 4,700 tons. Some people are wondering how the county town with a much smaller population than Carleton Place is allotted 1500 tons more coal.

THREE DAYS OF LECTURES AND MUSICAL EVENTS

Opera House, Carleton Place

OCTOBER 16th, 17th and 18th, 1918

Afternoons at 3

Evenings at 8

Wednesday, Oct. 16

The Chautauqua Festival will open with two Japanese plays given by a high class Japanese and his wife, the one the ancient Japanese comedy entitled "The Mirror," and the other scenes from Modern Japanese life entitled "On the Road to Tokio." These will be enriched by special Japanese scenery, costumes, works of art, etc.

There will also be presented on the opening day, an afternoon and evening talk by Pitt Parker, of Boston, who is one of the most famous cartoonists and clay modelers on the platform. He will give an exhibition of his art, both afternoon and evening.

Thursday, Oct. 17

The second day's program will consist of a lecture by Shorland P. Fannon, who will speak both afternoon and evening. Mr. Fannon is a community lecturer who has been in community welfare work for over ten years, and has been able to accomplish many great things for the bettering of the town and community, in the way of schools, churches and business. He has held the presidency of a commercial club, and in every way is very capable from experience to help your town. There is no more entertaining lecturer on the platform today than Mr. Fannon. He is well versed in all phases of his subject, and will have much to say that will interest all public spirited people.

The musical program on the second day will consist of Alexander M. Skibinsky, the famous Russian violinist, Hartwell De Mille, the Canadian baritone and the Wells Sisters, both of whom are readers, one of whom is a pianist and the other a trombonist. This makes an unusually strong musical organization. Skibinsky has become famous on Chautauqua platforms and De Mille was one of the leading musical attractions on the Ontario summer Chautauquas this year.

Friday, Oct. 18

The third day's lecture will be given by Albert Edward Wiggam, who was sent by a United States commission to gain up to date knowledge with regard to the war situation, and he has returned with full information which he gives in a most entertaining way. He was a member of a recent United States commission to Canada, and has much to say about the splendid part Canada is playing in the war. His lectures will be received with much enthusiasm.

The music of the third day will consist of the Pilgrim Girls Orchestra, composed of five artists and a reader, who are a band of sterling entertainers, and who give a splendid concert in ensemble and as soloists.

All of the above artists have been on the large Chautauqua circuits during the past summer and are of the very highest grade in their line. They will present a splendid three days' entertainment such as has never been enjoyed in this community

THE HERALD.

TUESDAY, OCT. 8th, 1918.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg has resigned as chief of the German army.

The peace bluff of the Germans is not likely to have the desired effect—the defeated are not likely to have the privilege of making the terms.

Attention is drawn to announcements of the Federal Government appearing in this issue. The Military Service branch of the Department of Justice is calling upon male United States Citizens in Canada between 21 and 30 to register with the Registrar under the M.S.A. and is advising farmers exempted from military service to apply for extension of time and to secure permits to engage in other work of national necessity during winter months.

CITIES BUILT BY THRIFT

Thrift converts shacks into comfortable, cosy homes. Alongside all large Canadian cities there have grown up suburbs that had their beginnings in a few rude dwellings built by poor people, but which, through thrift, have, in a surprisingly short time, become thriving districts. One of these is Earlscourt, in the northwestern portion of Toronto, known a few years ago as "Shacktown."

This district was settled in about 1906. The fact that lots could be bought at $6 or $7 a foot, and on easy instalments, put land within the reach of persons of poor circumstances. Ten dollars down and five dollars a month enabled scores to buy. These terms meant that within four years a man could pay for a lot. In the meantime he put up a cheap shack and, as the months rolled on, gradually improved it. At the same time in almost all these homes there was a family with small children.

How did these people get along? By saving. Not only were they of the wage-earning class, but they were mainly drawn from the ranks of unskilled labor, poorly paid. However, they had learned to live on less than they received. This often meant a struggle, but determination saw them through.

Two examples will serve to show how they got along. Seven years ago there came to Earlscourt a middle-aged Englishman, an unskilled laborer. He bought a lot on easy terms; built a shack during the evenings, and gradually improved his environment. Today his equity in his property is $1,500.

An Irishman arrived in the district seven years ago. He had a wife with four children in Ireland, and, by raising money through a loan, he brought them out. An unskilled workman, his average wage was about $10 a week, out of which he paid $2 for rent, and the same amount on his loan. The family lived on $6 a week. The man managed so well that he was able to buy a lot, on which he built a house, his equity in which is now $600.

Men do not do these things themselves. Their wives play a big part in it. They are thrifty heroines, helpmates in the true sense of the word. Above all things, these people have learned well the lesson of thrift, a quality that makes for success amid the most adverse conditions and which Canadians generally must practise rigidly from now on if victory is to be made sure.

A Good Provider

The Kingston police visited the home of Mrs. McIlroy, Patrick street, and found there stored in her bedroom 500 pounds of sugar and 300 pounds of flour. It was seized and Mrs. McIlroy will have to face the magistrate. In the house the police also found a keg of whiskey, which was confiscated.

Sir Thomas White left Ottawa on Saturday for a tour in the West. He will speak at a number of points en route.

Much perturbation has been caused in shipping circles by a new order issued by the Canadian Freight Association as to rules of shipment. The order states that "effective October 7, freight when to be delivered in less than carload lots, must be plainly, legibly and durably marked, showing the name (not initials only) of only one consignee and the address to which consigned."

HUNS SEEKING PEACE

Germany Has Asked For an Armistice.

Prince Maximilian of Baden, the Imperial Chancellor, Sends Note to President Wilson, Asking Him to Assume Role of Mediator—Teutons Offer to Accept Basis of Peace Outlined by Allies.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Prince Maximilian of Baden, the German Imperial Chancellor, announced in the Reichstag Saturday that he had sent a note, through the Swiss Government, to President Wilson, in which Mr. Wilson was requested to take up the bringing about of peace and to communicate upon the subject with the other belligerents. Austria and Turkey will take the same step as Germany. The basis of the new German peace proposal is complete rehabilitation of Belgium, creation of popular assemblies in the Baltic provinces, Lithuania and Poland, and establishment of an independent federal state of Alsace-Lorraine.

The text of the note forwarded by the Imperial German Chancellor, Prince Maximilian, to President Wilson, through the Swiss Government, follows:

"The German Government requests the President of the United States to take in hand the restoration of peace, acquaint all the belligerent states of this request, and invite them to send plenipotentiaries for the purpose of opening negotiations.

"It accepts the program set forth by the President of the United States in his message to Congress on Jan. 8, and in his later pronouncements, especially his speech of Sept. 27, as a basis for peace negotiations.

"With a view to avoiding further bloodshed, the German Government requests the immediate conclusion of an armistice on land and sea, and in the air."

It is announced that Turkey will take a similar step.

Austria-Hungary has resolved to ask President Wilson to make representation in their interest for a general armistice and negotiations for a general peace, according to a Berne despatch to the Havas Agency.

The text of the Austrian proposal follows:

"The Austro-Hungarian Monarchy, which has made only defensive warfare, and has borne witness several times to its desire to put an end to the bloodshed and conclude an honorable peace, proposes by presentation to President Wilson to conclude immediately with him and his Allies a general armistice on land, on sea and in the air, and start without delay negotiations for peace."

"These negotiations will be based on the fourteen points in President Wilson's message of Jan. 8, and the four points of Feb. 11, 1918, and those equally of Sept. 27, 1918."

The new peace note of Baron Burián, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, will declare that all of President Wilson's terms have been accepted, according to a Vienna despatch, which is published in the Dutch press.

Has Not Reached President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Germany's newest peace offer—proposing an armistice while President Wilson considers and conveys to the Allies a proposal on the basis of the terms laid down by the President himself—had not reached Washington in official form, and there was, therefore, no authorized statement of how it was regarded by the United States.

SERBS PURSUE ENEMY.

Teutons Retire In Disorder In the Balkans.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Serbian forces after violent fighting on Friday entered Vranje, 50 miles northeast of Uzbik, according to a Serbian official statement issued yesterday. Several hundred prisoners were taken by the Serbs. The enemy is retiring in disorder towards the north. The Serbian statement reads:

"After violent fighting our advanced guards entered Vranje on Friday. Several hundred prisoners and many guns were captured. The enemy is withdrawing northwards in disorder."

German troops which have been fighting in the ranks of the Bulgarian army have been withdrawn and are now marching back toward their headquarters, says the official statement by the German General Army Headquarters.

The text of this section of the German statement says:

"Our troops, which hitherto had been fighting in the ranks of the Bulgarian army, have been withdrawn and are marching back toward their headquarters. They have completely met the high demands made upon them and have accomplished excellent work."

The Austrian War Office admits the withdrawal of Austrian troops from Vranje. An official statement issued yesterday says:

"On the Serbian front our advanced troops have been withdrawn from Vranje.

"Near Neumarkt, in Southern Tyrol, as a result of an Italian air raid on a prisoners' camp numerous Italians were killed and wounded."

Two Important Retirements.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Two important enemy retirements are in progress. The first of these is on a seven-mile front south of Cambrai. It is due to British pressure from the south in the direction of Le Cateau, and has amounted to between one and two miles. It is expected this retirement will have as its sequel the abandonment of Cambrai.

There are increasing indications of a probable retirement of the enemy from the Douai sector.

FRESNOY IS TAKEN.

British Also Within Four Miles of Lille.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Wide gains of great importance have been made by the British armies advancing in the region northeast of St. Quentin. They captured the towns of Montbrehan and Beurevoir Saturday.

Following the capture of Beurevoir, which was taken by English troops, and Montbrehan, which Australians captured with 500 prisoners, Haig's troops pushed forward and took possession of Aubencheul-aux-Bois, and established themselves on the high ground toward Lesdain, nearly five miles southeast of Cambrai. More than 1,000 Germans were captured in the operation. In Sunday's fighting the town of Fresnoy, west of Douai, was occupied, Douai is in flames and there are increasing indications of a probable retirement of the enemy from the Douai sector.

The present retirement of the Germans is on a seven-mile front south of Cambrai.

The German front line is running almost in front of Lille, and British patrols are so close to the city that they could reach it in an hour's walk.

Haubourdin and the nearest group of industrial towns which are so closely knitted to Lille are only two miles distant from our advanced line over good roads which are unbroken after four years of trench warfare in this region. To-day our infantry is less than four miles distant from Lille's outer boulevards.

About Lille and its lesser neighbors there is an air of pathetic desolation and the British vanguard is looking longingly across the plain to a forest of chimneys, amid which there is no life. They can clearly see that the streets of the factory towns which lie nearest to them are empty of all except a few Germans, who are fitfully stirring themselves behind deserted houses. The rattle of their machine guns and the crash of our shells betokens that he still has a malignant interest in our approach.

It is, however, quite evident that the enemy there is far from desiring battle, and meanwhile the corpse of Lille rests in the clear sunshine.

KING BORIS ON THRONE.

New Bulgar Monarch Retains Pro-Ally Ministry.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 7.—The first decree signed by King Boris was one demobilizing the Bulgarian army, according to a despatch from Sofia. Former King Ferdinand left Bulgaria Friday night. Before signing his declaration of abdication he received the various party leaders, who all expressed approval of his decision.

The Bulgarian Government yesterday offered its resignation to the new king, who expressed his confidence in the Cabinet, and asked the Ministers to retain their portfolios.

King Ferdinand, in abdicating the Bulgarian throne, according to a despatch from Sofia, issued the following manifesto:

"By reason of a succession of circumstances which had occurred in my kingdom and which demand from each citizen such sacrifice, even to the surrendering of one's self for the well being of all, I desire to give as the first example the sacrifice of myself.

"Despite the sacred ties which for 32 years have bound me so firmly to this country, for whose prosperity and greatness I have given all my powers, I have decided to renounce the royal Bulgarian crown in favor of my eldest son, his Highness, the Prince Royal Boris of Tarnovo.

"I call upon all faithful subjects and true patriots to unite as one man about the throne of King Boris, to lift the country from its difficult situation and to elevate new Bulgaria to the height to which it is predestined."

The abdication of King Ferdinand was announced by Premier Malinoff at a crowded session of the Bulgarian Parliament, and the news was received by the deputies with the greatest interest.

BIG BAG OF TURKS.

Allied Forces In Palestine Take Over 79,000 Prisoners.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Seventy-one thousand Turks have been taken prisoners by Gen. Allenby's force since the commencement of the British operations in Palestine and Syria, according to an official statement issued by the War Office. This is in addition to 8,000 prisoners claimed by the Arab army. The text of the statement reads:

"There has been no change in the general situation. Northwest of Damascus our cavalry are clearing the country. They have taken more than 15,000 prisoners in this area.

"Since the commencement of operations on the night of Sept. 18 more than 71,000 prisoners and 350 guns have been captured, besides some 8,000 prisoners claimed by the Arab army of King Hussein.

"Included in these figures are the Turkish commanders of the Sixteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Fifty-third and composite divisions, the commander of the Maan garrison, Ali Verbi Pasha, and German and Austrian troops numbering over 206 officers and 3,000 other ranks."

Bolsheviki Break With Turks.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 7.—A Russian note to Turkey published by Vorwaerts concludes, according to a Berlin despatch:

"The Russian Government is obliged to state that in consequence of the action of the Turkish Government, the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, which was to have established peaceful relations between Russia and Turkey is null and void."

It is understood that this applies only to the clauses in the treaty concerning the relations between Russia and Turkey.

OCTOBER RETROSPECT

(Experimental Farm Note)

Threshing throughout Canada is in full swing and the final estimates of the crop will soon be available. The yield per acre will vary greatly in the different provinces according as the weather conditions have been favorable or otherwise. In contrast if the returns from a series of farms in any locality were compared, the yields per acre of these farms would be found to vary much more than the average yield per acre of the various provinces. The reason for this wider diversity is not weather conditions so much as the methods employed in growing the crop and the difference in varieties and seed.

It is absolutely essential if one is desirous of improving their crop yields that they know the exact yield in bushels per acre that their fields return. Guessing will not do. There has been too much guessing about this important question and many have fooled themselves to their own detriment. Many estimate their grain on the basis of the bushels sown. This method is without practical value. For instance, oats sown at the rate of two and a half bushels will give just as large or a larger yield than oats sown at the rate of three or three and a half bushels per acre.

If a field has yielded only fifteen bushels of wheat or twenty bushels of oats, now is the time that the reason for such a low yield should be ascertained. The past season's work should be reviewed while it is still fresh in the mind. The factors that enter into the successful growing of a crop are many and varied and each should receive attention such as, the previous crop, the tillage operations, the treatment of the seed for disease, the rainfall, the variety sown, the quality of the seed, the date of seeding, etc.

Each of these should be considered until you establish in your mind just what factors are responsible for the low yield. This cannot be done intelligently unless one knows exactly what his land has returned in bushels per acre. Just as each man is able to place his finger on the weak spot in his methods during the last season so will his fields respond in bushels of grain the next. Critical retrospect is invaluable in planning the next year's operations.

RETREAT ON BIG FRONT

German Defences Are Now Going to Pieces.

Magnificent Gains Have Been Made by Franco-American Armies in the Great Champagne Smash—Troops Under Leadership of Gouraud, Mangin, Berthelot and Pershing Score Victories.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A magnificent result has been achieved by Gouraud's army—the enemy has evacuated Moronvillers massif and Fort Brimont. Thus one of the strongest positions of the whole fighting, the possible menace to Gouraud's flank, has been removed and his whole line brought level.

French troops have smashed through the German positions in the Champagne area over a wide front. They have crossed the Aisne Canal and have reached the outskirts of Aguilcourt and are approaching Amunencourt-le-Petit, eight miles north of Rheims.

Further east the French are advancing on a line north of the towns of Pomacle, Lavannes and Epoye, and have captured Faverger on the Suippe river.

As a result of the various victories of the French-American forces a general foe retirement toward the Suippe and Arnes rivers has been made on a front of twenty-eight miles. The Germans have abandoned strongly-fortified positions held for four years.

Could there be a more eloquent tribute to the success of Foch's system of manoeuvre? While the American victory has carried their line east of the Argonne almost to the eastern end of the Grand-Pre defile, where they will soon be able to join hands with Gouraud's men and clear the forest below of boches, the Franco-American attacks in the eastern Champagne are steadily gaining ground.

The French have consolidated the occupation of Autry Station, which had already been taken and lost in a counter-attack. Farther west Berthelot's army, which has crossed the line of the Aisne Canal due north of Rheims, is stabbing hard at the enemy retreating from the centre of the great salient. On Berthelot's left Mangin also is gaining ground, despite a heavy fire of gas and high explosives. Beyond him Debeney's troops made a brilliant local attack Saturday night above St. Quentin and carried the heights southeast of Charbonvet, taking 450 prisoners.

Up to Friday night the Franco-Americans had taken over 3,000 prisoners and nearly 40 guns.

Fires observed in the region of Laon may be a significant indication of the effect of the combined efforts of the French forces from west and south against the corner-stone of the German positions around St. Gobain Forest.

Throughout the front the defence is being strained to the breaking point. Captured German orders illustrate the handicaps under which the enemy is laboring. One refers to the shortage of horses for artillery and direct local commanders to utilize for batteries horses from the transport service, even at the risk of interfering with the latter's efficiency. Another refers to the jamming of machine guns due to substitution of iron for copper cartridge cases and the inferior quality of "ersatz" grease, where with the guns are lubricated. A third insists on the absolute necessity of a better liaison between the artillery and infantry, to avoid cases where "artillery has been 400 short—that is, fell upon its own trenches—throughout the whole day, despite the remonstrances of our infantry."

Two others contain instructions for special measures against tanks and anti-aircraft, thus proving their efficiency in the recent fighting. The most numerous of all are injunctions in the most stringent terms to hold on to every foot of ground and maintain the morale of the soldiers by every means possible. Elaborate "schools of patriotic instruction" have been installed in every German army, with eloquent spellbinders from the universities and other branches of civil life appointed to galvanize the waning spirit of the troops. In short, everything denotes that the German leaders realize the imminence of collapse and are striving vainly to avert it.

Dead 50, Wounded 100.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Danger of further serious explosions at tanks and anti-aircraft, thus proving their efficiency in the recent fighting. The most numerous of all are injunctions in the most stringent terms to hold on to every foot of ground and maintain the morale of the soldiers by every means possible.

Alsace Retreat Prepared.

GENEVA, Oct. 7.—Forty villages in Alsace-Lorraine, from Basel to Colmar, have been evacuated by the civil population, according to Democrite.

The Germans, adds the newspaper, have now ordered the inhabitants of Mulhausen, Altkirch, and other smaller towns to prepare to leave immediately.

Broke Altitude Record.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Capt. R. W. Schroeder's world record-breaking altitude flight at Wilbur Wright Field, near Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 18, was certified at 28,900 feet in a statement by the Aero Club of America. The previous world's record, made in 1913 by G. Legagneux in France, was 20,258.

Freeman Smith, St. Thomas, was fined $50 for permitting gambling in his apartments.

With Acknowledgments to Luke Fildes, R.A.

To every home there comes a time when every thought, every hope, every prayer for the future centres on the recovery of one loved one. In that hour of anguish, every means to recovery is sought—the highest medical skill, trained nurses, costly treatment. Does the price matter?

It may be so great as to stagger the imagination—a sum beyond the possible. But does anyone ask, "Can we do it?" Money or no money, they do it. And somehow they pay. It may mean doing without things they think they need. It may mean privations, sacrifices, hardships. They make unbelievable savings, they achieve the impossible, but they get the money to pay.

To-day in this critical period of our nationhood, there is imperative need for MONEY—vast sums of money. Only one way now remains to obtain it. The nation must save, every community, every family, every individual Canadian must save. If anyone says "I cannot save" let him consider to what extent he would pinch himself to relieve the sufferings of a loved one at home; and surely he would not pinch less for our fighting brothers in France.

PIRATES HAVE A NEW LEADER

Dismissal of Admiral von Capelle Is Expected.

HE FAILED TO MAKE GOOD

The Reported Change That Is Being Made in the German Admiralty May Be Taken as an Indication That the Apostles of Frightfulness Are Not as Powerful as They Were Previously.

It looks as though Admiral von Capelle, one of the leading spirits of Hun piracy, will have to go. He is at present "on leave," to quote the German announcement, and his post as the Kaiser's Imperial Minister of the Navy has been filled for the time being by Vice-Admiral Behncke. Ever since it became certain that the submarine policy fathered by von Tirpitz and pressed by von Capelle had proved a failure, his position has not been any too secure. Then came the mutiny in the Kiel Canal, when German sailors killed their officers because they objected to being ordered to sea and death in the U-boats. At that time von Capelle came very close to being retired, but the Pan-Germans saved him, as they feared that the new Minister of the Navy might not be an apostle of frightfulness. That they were right in their guess is indicated by the choice of Behncke. Commenting on the appointment, the Tageblatt, of Berlin, recalls that Admiral Behncke, when deputy chief of the Admiralty staff, told the American naval attaché at Berlin that, although the staff was convinced the employment of U-boats would greatly influence the rapid conclusion of peace, regard must be paid neutral ships and human life aboard all mercantile vessels, whether under neutral or enemy flags. He is quoted as having said that the German Admiralty staff did not wish to employ submarines in defiance of international law.

Birds in War.

For years an ardent sportsman, Capt. Herbert W. McBride naturally turned for relaxation to observation of such animal life as he could find on the battle's edge when he got to the war, and his relation of these observations forms by no means the least interesting part of his book, "The Emma Gees." He found that the birds and other forms of wild life seemed to be little affected by the continual noise of shells and guns. "Pheasants, partridges, and rabbits were numerous at one point in and behind our lines, and I have seen them running about, feeding or playing, when shells were falling and bursting all about them, without showing any signs of fear," he writes. "Indeed, they were sometimes killed by the shells, especially shrapnel, but those unhurt would carry on with the business in hand indifferent to the fate of their companions." Robins, sitting out in front on the barbed wire "were often used as targets by men firing experimental shots." A pair of swallows reared a family in a dugout, the nest being "within a few feet of my head when I was in my bunk." The account of the doings of a pair of magpies is worth quoting:

"I watched a pair of magpies who were building a nest in a tree near our station. A shell had struck the tree, below the nest, and had cut it in half, while a large branch had lodged just above the nest. The whole thing was swaying dangerously in the light breeze, and a strong wind would surely bring it down, but that pair of chattering magpies appeared to be debating whether to continue their work or move elsewhere. One would hop down to the place where the shell had hit, and, cocking his head this way and that, would let loose a flood of magpie-talk that would bring his mate to him, and then they would both investigate, flying to the shattered place, clinging to the bark, and picking out splinters and pieces of wood. Then they would go up aloft and consult about the nest itself. I watched them for the better part of an hour, when the verdict appeared to be to 'take a chance' and go ahead with the building.

A DILEMMA.

The Outstanding Literary Joke of the Year.

Some years ago, in the days before the war, when the world was still trying to be polite about the high and mightiness of the Prussian war lord, and trying hard not to laugh at the "Ho, way there; goose-stepping" of the Prussian army, as Carlyle might have expressed it about any army but the Prussian, it was suddenly enabled to vent all its pent-up amusement in one wild shriek of laughter by a poor cobbler in the mark of Brandenburg, one hailing from a little city called Koepenick. The cobbler found the calling of making boots a dull one. He was built for greater things, and he knew it. And so one day, having noticed the standing and deportment of countless officers, both ober-officers, and unter-officers, he conceived the idea of personating one of them. It was no sooner said than done, and behold the mayor and the corporation, placing them under lock and key, mulling the town in serious damages for an imaginary offence, and departing. The cobbler was caught, of course, tried, and imprisoned, but he earned the gratitude of Europe.

Now it is a long cry from the mark of Brandenburg to Printing House Square, the historic home of the Times of London, but Printing House Square has had its Koepenick incident, and, whilst the parallel cannot be carried a step further, the world is grateful for the incident. It took the form of a letter which arrived at the office one day before Monday, May 26th. This letter contained a poem signed "Rudyard Kipling." History does not relate what vistas of recollection it opened out, recollections of the "Seven Seas," the "Recessional," and a great host of other masterpieces. History, indeed, relates no more than this, that on Monday morning, May 26th, "The Old Volunteer" made its bow to the readers of the Times over the signature of "Rudyard Kipling," that within a few hours of its appearance the Times received a letter from Mr. Kipling to say that he did not write it, and that the next day the Times came out with an apology and an assurance that the forger was being tracked to his lair.

But nothing could get over the horror of the poem. For indeed it must be said it is more than cowardly stuff. Not all of Mr. Kipling's work, it is true, reaches the heights of excellence, but "The Old Volunteer" is terrible.

"I can hear the bugle calling
And it don't want me.
While the superannuation-chap
O' Germany
S' a fighting for the Kaiser in
But our order's for the young 'uns
O' the old Brass-Band."

And so it goes on through three dreary stanzas, concluding with the following enormity:

But there's be a better Judgment for
The last Relay:
I shall hear the bugle calling,
And, I'll march that Day."

And the Times! Well, the Times, like a certain notorious monarch, "is loser either way." It apologized, of course. But that did not seem to make the difficulty any less. There appeared, indeed, to be no way out for the Times. It could not say the thing was well written, for that would have been an impossible reflection on its own literary judgment. And if it ventured to say what it really thought of it, from a literary standpoint, there was always the remorseless recollection that it had never questioned its authorship. Inference from such adverse criticism would be that the Times was ready to publish any kind of literary outpouring, always provided it was over a great name.

A dilemma, indeed. But the great paper may surely take heart of grace. For a great laugh is precious at all times.

Take German Trade.

The manufacture of "engalith," which is the term used in England to designate the composition known as "galalith" in Germany, has been undertaken by three concerns. Large quantities of this substance are being made for war purposes, as well as for export to this country, France, Spain and Italy. It is produced in rods, tubes and sheets, and in some sixty different colors, and is worked up into a great variety of articles, such as buttons, combs, heads, hair and hat pins, hair and clothes brushes, toilet articles, carriage and motor fittings, pencils, penholders, telephone accessories, scientific and electrical instruments and fittings, switchboards, labels, pipe stems, cigar and cigarette holders, umbrella handles, piano keys, chessmen, dominoes, draughts, dice, counters, pocket and fruit knife handles, paper knives, photo frames, finger plates and jewelry; but being slightly hygroscopic is not adapted for articles that have to come into frequent contact with water or acid, such as table knife handles, bathroom tiles or basins, fountain pens, fishing tackle, electric storage cells, and tooth brushes. "Engalith" is an excellent substitute for celluloid, although it cannot be used to replace the latter in the manufacture of very thin articles.

Twenty-four Hour Times.

In China time is calculated on a basis of a 24-hour stretch instead of two twelve-hour periods, as we are still doing. This is indicated by a time-table of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway. We have, for instance: Tanyang, 12.09; Chinkiang, 12.52; Nanking, 14.15; Pukow, 15.30. Italy also is using 24-hour time.

THE PELICAN.

The Brown Pelican Is No Destroyer of Food Fish.

What a wonderful bird is the pelican. His bill can hold more than his belican; He can keep in his beak Food enough for a week, But I don't know how the belican.

—From the ballad of the pelican as quoted by W. D. Howser, poet of the Fish and Game Commission of Tennessee.

The tenth convention of the International Association of Game and Fish Commissioners, which held its session in New York recently, gave the brown pelican a clean bill of health as being no destroyer of food fish, thanks to T. Gilbert Pierson, of the National Association of Audubon Societies.

Mr. Pierson told the delegates, who came from various states in the Union, how he stood up to his waist in swamps in Louisiana, Texas and Florida, with mosquitoes feasting upon him, trying to learn definitely of the fish-eating habits of the pelican that the three states accused of being responsible for their depleted fisheries last year.

Pelicans, when disturbed, it seems, disgorge their food, and when Mr. Pierson could get near enough to a rockery he investigated the contents of the bill that in an adult bird will hold four quarts. The Audubon man found that pelicans are decreasing in the Gulf states very rapidly, and he estimates that the 50,000 to 65,000 pelicans that breed in the reservations do little or no damage to food fish, for their diet consists of menhaden principally, varied with mullet, pig fish, pinfish, herring, and an occasional crayfish, of which only two are food fish whose price in the markets does not exceed four cents a pound.

The pelican is of more value as a curiosity in Florida, Mr. Pierson said, than in any other form, and thousands of feet of film are used yearly in photographing the bird, and the picture postcard is an industry of some account throughout Florida.

Dr. Wm. T. Hornaday remarked that "if the quail and grouse are to be saved there must be long closed seasons, killing of cats and other vermin, the suppression of free ranging dogs during the breeding and rearing seasons, the utmost possible feeding and sheltering of quail in winter and the eliminating of the deadly and now universal pump and automatic guns."

Shell Shock.

The way in which shell shock manifests itself varies greatly in different individuals, so that it is not possible to give a description which covers every case.

Sometimes these symptoms are chiefly mental. The man suddenly loses his courage, breaks into a cold sweat, and cannot think or act. He becomes dazed, does not obey orders, feels as if in an adult bird will hold four quarts. The Audubon man found that pelicans are decreasing in the Gulf states very rapidly, and he estimates that the 50,000 to 65,000 pelicans that breed in the reservations do little or no damage to food fish, for their diet consists of menhaden principally, varied with mullet, pig fish, pinfish, herring, and an occasional crayfish, of which only two are food fish whose price in the markets does not exceed four cents a pound.

Sometimes the mental state is not one of obscured consciousness but rather of excitement. The mind is continually on the qui vive for sights and sounds. The man starts and runs automatically at any noise, jumps or twitches like one with St. Vitus' dance, or trembles like one with shaking palsy. Such a man cannot sleep, or, if he does, wakes suddenly with dreams or visions of horrid sights and sounds—starts up in a tremble, with every sign of intense alarm, and in a semi-conscious state fights all who try to calm or restrain him. He may have vivid hallucinations, seeing the sights of trench or battle just as if they were going on about him, and manifesting all the emotional effects which these sights would ordinarily awaken. A Canadian who had suffered thus, and had apparently recovered, was standing on the City Hall steps at a recent parade when an automobile tire suddenly burst with a sound like a gun. He immediately lost all control of himself—ran shouting through the crowd—bought the police who tried to restrain him—was in a state of intense excitement which could not be quieted, trembled like a leaf, and panted as if exhausted, and not for four hours did he come back to his normal state of mind—and then he had no memory of what had occurred. —Scribner.

Old-Fashioned Business.

Apropos of the Old Lady of Shoe Lane, as the now defunct Standard of London was called, being the first English newspaper to print a serial story, a well-known editor used to tell a story of when Anthony Trollope came to him to arrange for the appearance, serially, of "Doctor Thorne." The editor offered £2,000, but Trollope wanted £3,000, and when the editor objected, the author offered to toss him for the other thousand. The editor, however, was obdurate. "But I felt unsettled," he went on to say. "I felt mean. I had refused a challenge. To relieve my mind I said: 'Now that is settled, come over to my club, where we can have a quiet room to ourselves, and I will toss you for that thousand with pleasure.' But Trollope wouldn't."

How About Your Danger Zone?

YOU'VE got it—every human being is born with it—your large intestine, or colon. It is a large tube—a reservoir or sewer—intended to collect waste matter and remove it from the body.

Plug it up with waste, neglect it, and you're sick on your feet. The waste matter stagnates, undergoes decay, fermentation and germ action. Dangerous poisons are produced, that can easily be absorbed and carried all over the body.

Allow constipation to become established, and you are liable to become definitely and miserably sick—and not on your feet either. You have broken Nature's laws.

Better be kind to her. Keep the danger zone clean, with a regular bowel movement, and Nature will thank you, and pay you back in gold coin—health, good nature, and a feeling of eagerness for your daily task.

A large proportion of almost every form of sickness is caused or made worse by the poisons produced as a result of constipation.

Nujol has the approval of established medical practice, because it does not upset the system as do pills, castor oil and purgative mineral waters, salts, etc. It softens the contents of the colon, making them easy for the intestinal muscles to move at regular hours. Don't fight Nature. Help her. Nujol is health insurance for tens of thousands of American families today. Sold at drug stores everywhere.

Move to Save Wild Turkeys.

The prisoners in the state penitentiary of Washington run, among other things, a game bird farm. Until lately they have raised wild turkeys for the Thanksgiving dinner for the convicts.

The fact that wild turkeys have been killed in such numbers in the forests of the western part of the state that they have almost disappeared has caused the state game warden to decide to take up the business of raising them on a larger scale and flocks will hereafter be liberated each summer to populate the woods.

The wild turkeys are larger and harder than the domestic breeds, and the warden, whose name is L. B. Darwin, is experimenting with cross-breeds. He hopes to develop a bird that will be useful to poultrymen and yet be able to sustain itself in the woods.

"He's worth something to me, too," Fyfe muttered, "a lot more than you think, maybe. I'm not trying to club you. There's nothing in it for me. But for him—well, he needs you. It isn't his fault he's here or that you're unhappy. I've got to protect him, see that he gets a fair shake. I can't see anything to it but for you to go on being Mrs. Jack Fyfe until such time as you get back to a normal poise. Then it will be fine enough to try to work out some arrangement that won't be too much of a hardship on him. It's that or a clean break in which you go your own way and I try to mother him to the best of my ability. You'll understand some time why I'm showing my teeth this way."

"You have everything on your side," she admitted dully after a long interval of silence. "I'm a fool. I admit it. Have things your way, but it won't work, Jack. This farce between us will only smolder. I think you lay a little too much stress on Monohan. It isn't that I love him so much as that I don't love you at all. I can live without him—which I mean to do in any case—far easier than I can live with you. It won't work."

"Don't worry," he replied. "You won't be annoyed by me in person. I'll have my hands full elsewhere."

CHAPTER XIII. The Opening Gun.

THE month of November slid day by day into the limbo of the past. The rains washed the land unceasingly. Gray veils of mist and cloud draped the mountain slopes. As drab a shade colored Stella Fyfe's daily outlook. She was alone a great deal. Even when they were together, she and her husband, words did not come easily between them. He was away a great deal, seeking, she knew, the old panacea of work, hard, unremitting work, to abate the ills of his spirit. She envied him that outlet. Work for her there was none.

"You underestimate Monohan. He'll play safe personally."

Lefty Howe's wife was at the camp now on one of her occasional visits. Howe was going across the lake one afternoon to see a Siwash whom he had engaged to catch and smoke a winter's supply of salmon for the camps. Mrs. Howe told Stella, and on impulse Stella bundled Jack junior into warm clothing and went with them for the ride.

When she returned from the launch trip Fyfe was home and Charlie Benton with him. She crossed the heavy rugs on the living room floor noiselessly in her overshoes, carrying Jack junior asleep in her arms. And so in passing the door of Fyfe's den she heard her brother say:

"But, good Lord, you don't suppose he'll be saphead enough to try such fool stunts as that! He couldn't make it stick, and he brings himself within the law first crack. And the most he could do would be to annoy you."

"You underestimate Monohan," Fyfe returned. "He'll play safe personally so far as the law goes. He's foxy. I advise you to sell if the offer comes again. If you make any more breaks at him he'll figure some way to get you. It isn't your fight, you know. You unfortunately happen to be in the road."

"Hanged if I do!" Benton ejaculated. "I'm all in the clear. There's no way he can get me, and I'll tell him what I think of him again if he gives me half a chance. I never liked him, anyhow. Why should I sell when I'm just getting in real good shape to take that timber out myself? Why, I can make a hundred thousand dollars in the next five years on that block of timber. Besides, without being a sentimental sort of beggar, I don't lose sight of the fact that you helped pull me out of a hole when I sure needed a pull. And I don't like this high handed style. No; if it comes to a showdown I'm with you, Jack, as far as I can go. What the thunder can he do?"

"Nothing that I can see," Fyfe laughed unpleasantly. "But he'll try. He has dollars on your cents. He could throw everything he's got on Roaring lake into the discard and still have forty thousand a year fixed income. Sabe? Money does more than talk in this country. I think I'll pull that camp off the Tye."

"Well, maybe," Benton said. "I'm not sure!"

Stella passed on. She wanted to hear, but it went against her grain to eavesdrop. Her pause had been purely involuntary. When she became conscious that she was eagerly drinking in each word she hurried by.

Her mind was one urgent question mark while she laid the sleeping youngster in his bed and removed her heavy clothes. What sort of hostilities did Monohan threaten? Had he let a hopeless love turn to the acid of hate for the man who nominally possessed her? Stella could scarcely credit that. It was too much at variance with her idealistic conception of the man. He would never have recourse to such littleness. Still, the biting contempt in Fyfe's voice when he said to Benton: "You underestimate Monohan. He'll play safe; . . . he's foxy." That stung her to the quick. That was not said for her benefit. It was Fyfe's profound conviction. Based on what? He did not form judgments on momentary impulse. She recalled that only in the most direct way had he ever passed criticism on Monohan, and then it lay mostly in a tone, suggested more than spoken. Yet he knew Monohan, had known him for years. They had clashed long before she was a factor in their lives.

Fyfe and Benton came to dinner more or less preoccupied, an odd mood for Charlie Benton. Afterward they went into session behind the closed door of Fyfe's den. An hour or so later Benton went home. While she listened to the soft chuff-a-chuff-a-chuff of the Chickamin dying away in the distance Fyfe came in and slumped down in a chair before the fire where a big fir stick crackled. He sat there silent, a half smoked cigar clamped in one corner of his mouth, the lines of his square jaw in profile, determined, rigid. Stella eyed him covertly.

She leaned forward to speak. Words quivered on her lips, but as she struggled to shape them to utterance the blast of a boat whistle came screaming from the water, near and shrill and imperative.

Fyfe came out of his chair like a shot. He landed poised on his feet, lips drawn apart, hands clinched. He held that pose for an instant, then relaxed, his breath coming with a quick sigh.

Stella stared at him. Nerves! She knew the symptoms too well. Nerves at terrible tension in that big, splendid body! A slight quiver seemed to run over him; then he was erect and calmly himself again, standing in a listening attitude.

"That's the Panther," he said, "pulling in to the Waterbug's landing. Did I startle you when I bounced up like a cougar, Stella?" he asked, with a wry smile. "I guess I was half asleep. That whistle jolted me."

Stella glanced out the shaded window.

"Some one's coming up from the float with a lantern," she said. "Is there—is there likely to be anything wrong, Jack?"

"Anything wrong?" He shot a quick glance at her, then casually, "Not that I know of."

The bobbing lantern came up the path through the lawn. Footsteps crunched on the gravel.

"I'll go see what he wants," Fyfe remarked. "Calked boots, won't be good for the porch floor."

She followed him.

"Stay in. It's cold." He stopped in the doorway.

"No; I'm coming," she persisted.

They met the lantern bearer at the foot of the steps.

"Well, Thorsen?" Fyfe shot at him. There was an unusual note of sharpness in his voice, an irritated expectation.

Stella saw that it was the skipper of the Panther, a big and burly Dane. He raised the lantern a little. The dim light on his face showed it bruised and swollen. Fyfe grunted.

"Our boom is hung up," he said plaintively. "They've blocked the river. I got hooked for arguing the point."

"How's it blocked?" Fyfe asked.

"Two swiftns on logs strung across the channel. They're drivin' piles in front. An' three donkeys buntin' logs in behind."

"Swift work. There wasn't a sign of a move when I left this morning," Fyfe commented dryly. "Well, take the Panther around to the inner landing. I'll be there."

"What's struck that feller Monohan?" the Dane sputtered angrily. "Has he got any license to close the Tye? He says he has—an' backs his argument strong, believe me. Maybe you can handle him. I couldn't. Next time I'll have a cant hook handy. By jingo, you gimme my pick up Lefty's crew, Jack, an' I'll bring that cedar out."

"Take the Panther round," Fyfe replied. "We'll see."

Thorsen turned back down the slope. In a minute the thrum of the boat's exhaust arose as she got under way.

"Come on in. You'll get cold standing there," Fyfe said to Stella.

She followed him back into the living room. He sat on the arm of a big leather chair, rolling the dead cigar thoughtfully between his lips, little creases gathering between his eyes.

"I'm going up the lake," he said at last, getting up abruptly.

"What's the matter, Jack?" she asked.

"Why, has trouble started up there?"

"Part of the logging game," he answered indifferently. "Doesn't amount to much."

"But Thorsen has been fighting. His face was terrible. And I've heard you say he was one of the most peaceable men alive. Is it—Monohan?"

"We won't discuss Monohan," Fyfe said curtly. "Anyway, there's no danger of him getting hurt."

He went into his den and came out with hat and coat on. At the door he paused a moment.

"Don't worry," he said kindly. "Nothing's going to happen."

But she stood looking out the window after he left, uneasy with a prescience of trouble. She watched with a feverish interest the stir that presently arose about the bunk houses. That summer a wide space had been cleared between bungalow and camp. She could see moving lanterns and even now and then hear the voices of men calling to each other. Once the Panther's dazzling eye of a searchlight swung across the landing, and its beam picked out a file of men carrying their blankets toward the boat. Shortly after that the tender rounded the point. Close behind her went the Waterbug, and both boats swarmed with men.

Stella looked and listened until there was but a faint thrum far up the lake. Then she went to bed, but not to sleep. What ugly passions were loosed at the lake head she did not know. But on the face of it she could not avoid wondering if Monohan had deliberately set out to cross and harass Jack Fyfe—because of her? That was the question which had hovered on her lips that evening, one she had not brought herself to ask. Because of her or because only decent way there is to play it. So did he. Why can't he abide by that?"

Noon of the next day saw the Waterbug leave to a quarter mile abeam of Cougar point to let off a lone figure in her dinghy and then bore on, driving straight and fast for Roaring Springs. Stella flew to the landing. Mother Howe came puffing at her heels.

"Land's sake, I been worried to death," the older woman breathed. "When men get to quarrelin' about timber you never can tell where they'll stop, Mrs. Jack. I've known some wild times in the woods in the past."

The man in the dink was Lefty Howe. He pulled in beside the float. When he stepped up on the planks he limped perceptibly.

"Land alive, what happened yuh, Lefty?" his wife cried.

"Got a rap on the leg with a peevy," he said. "Nothin' much."

"Why did the Waterbug go down the lake?" Stella asked breathlessly. The man's face was serious. "What happened up there?"

"There was a fuss," he answered quietly. "Three or four of the boys got beat up so they need patchin'. Jack's takin' 'em down to the hospital. Blast that yeller headed Monohan!" his voice lifted suddenly in uncontrollable anger. "Billy Dale was killed this mornin'."

"Of some enemy that far preceded her? She had thought him big enough to do as she had done, as Fyfe was tacitly doing—make the best of a grievous matter."

But if he had allowed his passions to dictate reprisals she trembled for the outcome. Fyfe was not a man to sit quiet under either affront or injury. He would fight with double rancor if Monohan were his adversary.

"If anything happens up there I'll hate myself," she whispered when the ceaseless turning of her mind had become almost unendurable. "I was a silly, weak fool ever to let Walter Monohan know I cared. And I'll hate him, too, if he makes me a bone of contention. I elected to play the game the Canned tomatoes fill such an important place in feeding our army that the government asks for an increase of 50 per cent from tomato-canning states. ### Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METERIANO, 36 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 13

ABRAM'S GENEROUS TREATMENT OF LOT.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 13:1-11; 14:14-16. GOLDEN TEXT—A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity.—Proverbs 17:17. DEVOTIONAL READING—Romans 9:12-21.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL FOR TEACHERS—Genesis 12:13-14; 24; 18:16-33; 19:29.

I. Abram and Lot Return From Egypt (vv. 1-4).

Abram went into Egypt because of a famine. No doubt the famine was sent in judgment for the sins of the people, but also for Abram's sake. He needed the graces of his heart developed. He needed to be taught the weakness of his own heart, and the faithfulness of God. The child of God is not promised exemption from trials, but grace sufficient to endure them. Abram failed. In the midst of his trials he went off to Egypt without God's direction, where he got into trouble. To take one's own way always brings him into trouble. His expedient to save his life was unworthy of Abram. He lied, and a lie is never justifiable. It is much better to die than to lie. Abram by prevarication deceived the king, but as soon as the truth was known he was thrust out. Though Abram had strayed from the pathway of faith, he had the good sense to go "unto the place where his tent had been in the beginning, where the altar was." This showed that he was willing to confess his mistake, and begin life over again. This Egypt experience was a loss spiritually to Abram, though he became rich there. Increase of riches is no sign that a man is in fellowship with God.

II. Abram and Lot Separate (vv. 5-11).

The goods of both Abram and Lot greatly increased. When they attempted to settle down, trouble arose between their herdsmen. This is the first record of trouble between relatives over financial matters. Riches often interfere with friendship. They kindle jealousy and strife between men. They engender greed and selfishness in men. Many times members of the same family are estranged from each other through strife for wealth. For the chosen of God thus to quarrel is utter folly and criminal, especially when the enemy of the Lord's people looks on. "The Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelt then in the land" (v. 7). It is bad enough to quarrel with a neighbor, but to do so in the presence of the world which delights therein is greatly to stultify. Abram's behavior is a fine example of the art of living together peaceably. The disgraceful situation was relieved by a generous proposition from Abram. Lot was allowed his choice. Separation is sometimes necessary. Though he owed all to Abram, his selfish heart caused him to grasp for the best. Lot's action shows that his stay in Egypt was ruinous to him. Perhaps he chose the plains of the Jordan because of their resemblance to Egypt. One cannot go into Egypt without being affected by it. This was a fatal choice for Lot. The motive actuating him was worldly advantage. Though he for awhile prospered, it was an expensive undertaking for him. Lot with all his goods was taken away when the confederate kings came against Sodom. He is an example of one saved so as by fire (I Cor. 3:11-15). He set his affections upon earthly things, and the time came when he had to separate from them. The world and its lusts pass away, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever (I John 2:15-17). Lot was not wholly corrupt; he was a man who allowed the world to get the better of him. Once his money and his family were in Sodom he simply endured the wickedness, longing to escape from it (II Peter 2:6-8).

III. Abram Delivers Lot (Genesis 14:14-16).

Though Lot's trouble was the result of his selfish choice, Abram's magnanimity of soul expressed itself, taking up arms to deliver him from the oppressor. This was because Abram was a man of faith. Faith trusts God and fights for the right.

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses. The big dose purges its way [through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly. The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well. Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

Colorless faces often show the absence of iron in the blood. Carter's Iron Pills will help this condition.

While Lot suffered from his evil choice, Abram was greatly prospered. He grew rich in temporal things, while at the same time he was rich toward God. It were much better to have God—and a poor piece of land, than a rich piece of land without God. When Lot was involved in the ruin of his sad choice Abram had the power to deliver him. Abram's whole life shows that those who make obedience to God first get the needed worldly gain (I Kings 8:13-33; Matthew 6:33).

So far as I have observed God's dealings with my soul, the fight of preachers sometimes entertained me, but it was Scripture expressions that did penetrate my heart, and in a way peculiar to themselves.—John Brown Haddington.

MAJOR HOOPER WHEN A PRISONER

MAJOR HOOPER WELCOMED HOME

He and Pte. Wm. Patterson Tendered a Reception

The home coming of Major W. H. Hooper, who organized the first company of the 42nd Reg. at the outbreak of the war in August, 1914, and afterwards was given charge of the men from both Renfrew and Lanark in this battalion, was made the occasion yesterday evening of a demonstration by the citizens of Carleton Place.

The Women's Institute presented Major Hooper with a life-membership in the Red Cross Society, and the distinction he also most becomingly acknowledged, testifying in the strongest possible terms to the Red Cross in the different countries in which he had occasion to witness their work.

The programme concluded with the national anthem. Belgian Veteran Killed near Perth About two months ago Lucien Godfroid, a Belgian, who was fighting for his country, when he was severely gassed, and a sufferer from shell shock, arrived in Perth, where his sister resides. He was in a pitiable condition, nervousness and mental affliction being his trouble. Shortly after he secured work with the building company erecting houses in Fairhouse Park, and was a good and willing workman; but his affliction was a great handicap as his memory was defective and he was given to fits of moroseness. On Friday last he was missing, and a search was begun, with the result that his body was found on the old Thompson farm, just on the outskirts of the town. He had secured a shotgun and started out to see what he could get in the way of game; but when he was found he had a gaping wound in his forehead, caused by the charge of shot from the gun. In his hand was an unlighted cigarette and a match, the unfortunate young fellow evidently being in the act of lighting the cigarette when death came. Death was caused by the gunshot wound from the gun in his own hands. His clothing on one side of the body was badly burned, but there were few indications of powder on the face. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at St. John's Church. The funeral was of a military nature, the casket being draped in a Union Jack, and six returned soldiers acted as pallbearers, while all the other returned soldiers in Perth marched in front of the hearse.

On account of the ban upon public meetings it was decided to hold the reception outdoors and arrangements were hurriedly made. The Almonte band was engaged for the evening, but when Bandmaster McDowell endeavored to gather his men he found that fully half of them were laid up with the prevailing influenza. However as five motor cars had been sent over to Almonte to bring up the musicians an effort was made to muster what they could and a dozen men came over, but a procession was formed at the town hall, led by the band, the school cadets and the girl guides, and about fifty automobiles conveying the members of council, school board, reception committee and citizens, and proceeded to the home of Major Hooper, where he and his family were picked up. Then returned across town to the home of Pte. Wm. Patterson, who also recently returned from the front, and picked him up and returned to the central public school, where the front entrance was illuminated and decorated with flags.

Major Bates, in a very clever address, delivered most audibly, so that the vast crowd upon the playground and to the street beyond could hear, explained the object of the gathering, reviewed the experiences of Major Hooper and extended to him a most cordial welcome home—Pte. Wm. Patterson was also most heartily welcomed.

The horns tooted, the crowds cheered, and the band played. Then the Mayor read a formal address of welcome to the returned soldiers and both were presented with an illuminated scroll signed by the Mayor and Clerk of the town.

Pte. Patterson most modestly acknowledged the honor upon him, and thanked the citizens most sincerely.

Major Hooper expressed his pleasure on being once more in his home town, and in a most tribute to the memory of the half dozen brave boys who had left with him and had not returned—the real heroes—he accepted the honor conferred, and thanked the citizens most sincerely for the demonstration of goodwill extended.

The programme concluded with the national anthem.

TORONTO TO THE Y.M.C.A.

The well-known correspondent, Mr. W. Beach Thomas, in writing his descriptive despatches of the recent heavy engagement of the Canadian Corps in France to the Continental Edition of the London Daily Mail, writes as follows: "One village under considerable shelling and still within reach of machine-gun bullets contained a dressing station, and of all things an incinerator, to which large notices directed you. Not far from them was a German notice board. I hear from an Officer who visited the spot again a day later that another notice, 'This way to the Y.M.C.A.' was added. A dashing cavalry Officer, very much of the old school, possessing a voice that would carry about two miles, begged me with great earnestness to do him one service. Would I mention 'the Y.M.C.A.'? It had provided his men with hot coffee before riding out." It has since been authoritatively determined that Mr. Thomas, in this despatch was referring to the Canadian Y.M.C.A.

The Women's Institute

Despite the unfavorable weather there was a good attendance at the Women's Institute held in the Council Chamber Saturday afternoon, Oct. 5th, to hear Miss Winnifred Lewis, of Clarence House, London, England, give a very instructive and interesting address on the management, equipment, and the staff of this Canadian hospital. $25 was voted to Miss Lewis for this worthy cause. Three Red Cross life membership pins were given to members of the Institute and also one presented to Capt. W. H. Hooper.

Once again the Institute makes their appeal for articles and money for the Xmas stockings for our boys overseas. The same can be left with Mr. Neilson, W. J. Hughes, or Mr. Peden at the town hall, any time during the month of October.

Donations for October thankfully received, Mrs. P. McDonald, $1.00; Mrs. T. C. Arthur, $1.00; Mrs. Yull, $1.00; Mr. J. Patterson, $2.00; Miss Agnes Stark, Ottawa, $1.00; Misses Herner, Chapleau, $1.00; Mrs. T. Leach, $1.00; Mrs. S. A. Torrance, 50c; Mrs. A. W. Gram, $1.00.

STRONG PEOPLE NEEDED

The need for people to be healthy is urgent. Those whom illness has put outside the ranks of robust men and women feel their position keenly. They are handicapped in every walk of life and weak men and nerve-worn women need more earnestly than ever to put their health right and become active and strong. Many who began "patching" months ago are as ill now as on the day they began vainly tinkering with common drugs. Every ailing man and woman should remember that the ills of debility, nerve-exhaustion, indigestion, sleeplessness, neuralgia and depression come from a faulty blood supply. Worry, over-work or other causes have impoverished the blood and left the life-stream impure. The nerves thereby are starving and the whole system is languishing for new blood. In this condition many thousands have won back strong nerves and new health and strength through the new rich blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually makes. In a weak or bloodless condition it is not only a waste of time and money, but also a further menace to your health to tinker with common drugs. Follow the example of so many thousands by giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial, and they will transform you into healthy, active, men and women.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sufficient Butter in Canada

The Canada Food Board has commanded all the creamery butter made during October and up to November 9th, to be shipped to Great Britain and her Allies. While Canadians are accustomed to two pounds of creamery butter per week, per person, the people of Great Britain at the present time are confined to 2 ounces per week, per person and 2 ounces of butter over there includes a large proportion of oleomargarine.

Increased Acreage for Year

Every effort should be made to help the farmers of Canada to put increased area under the plow this fall. City men have helped with the harvest, and success seems to be assured. City men must help out in cases where farmers find labor scarce for fall plowing. Men, now in cities, who have worked on farms and can handle horses, should render themselves available for this important work.

John Gillanders Turriff, member of Parliament for Assiniboia since 1904, has been called to the Senate. When two extra senatorships for Saskatchewan were created last year only one was filled, the appointment going to W. B. Willoughby, leader of the Conservative opposition in the legislature. Mr. Turriff now secures the other appointment as a Liberal Unionist.
