WEATHER RESPONSIBLE FOR GOUGH'S DEFEAT

British Fifth Army Was Pushed Back by Sheer Weight of Numbers in Opening Days of German Offensive—Aftermath of the Battle
London, May 14.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—Misty weather and an overwhelming weight in numbers—probably four to one—enabled the Germans to push back Major-General Gough's fifth army in the opening days of the spring offensive and to gain a decided advantage. The line west of St. Quentin was held by the Fifth army, and it only fell back, fuller reports now available say, after a most gallant defence.

By Courier Leased Wire
London, May 14.—German artil-

which attacked one of our posts desperate enemy attempt last night

first of a series of efforts to regain the lost ground, owing to the value of the height which commands the approaches to the valley leading

The night last night was in the darkness, and was a bloody hand-to-hand struggle over the rocky slopes

Thus far the fighting around Monte
Corno has been of local character,

It is said that certain Municipal Councils in Norfolk may expect trouble about resolutions recently adopted for the payment of expenses of delegates to the Anti-Conscription convention at Ottawa.

These resolutions are so clearly contrary to law, that movements are already on foot for application to the Courts for an injunction to prevent payment. In any case the auditors are expressly told to allow unlawful payments (See Section 237, s. 2. of the Municipal Act.)

Councils would be wise to rescind all such resolutions and avoid legal expenses and trouble.—(Com.)

Old Ends of News. The old curling rink is being torn down, the removal of the roof and siding shows a splendid structure of excellent timbers. Its preservation removes a landmark to recall pleasant memories of many a joyous bonspiel in days that are no more, and sounds the death-knell of curling in Simcoe for years to come.

The stone in Lynnwood Park for the inscription of the Campbell bronze plate is in place and ready for the stone cutter's chisel. And with the leaves unfolding and the grass close cut the park has not presented a lovelier appearance since it was first opened to the public. Chairman Battlie has been on the job from the start.

Unless we err in our observations and deductions of yesterday evening there was some detective work done last evening by way of finding out who has been swiping tulips about town of late. The work has been done long after the curfew bell tolls and many interested citizens feel quite sure that the work has not been done by children of tender years. Perhaps, some young ladies have been testing out the character of their gentlemen escorts.

He came here from a hospital and was most highly respected. A wife, two daughters and one son are left to mourn his great loss.

U.S. FORCES TO BE USED IMMEDIATELY SAYS LORD REDDING

MISTAKE SOMEWHERE

By Charles Leased Wife. Washington, May 13.—Lord Redding, the British ambassador, in a statement here today declared that the announcement coming by way of Ottawa that the American army would not be fully utilized on the western front until developed to its full strength, was directly opposite to information he received from the British war cabinet and that he was in the dark as to its meaning.

The ambassador's statement added to the puzzle in which American officers found themselves today by reading the announcement from Ottawa. The confidential information reaching here recently indicated that such a plan as outlined from Ottawa was under serious consideration.

The ambassador authorized the following statement: "The statement attributed to the British war cabinet, to the effect that the Allies are confident that they have been given the choice of a small immediate American army for defence, or waiting till they are reinforced by a complete American self-supporting American army, they have chosen the latter; is, in fact, a complete misstatement."

"I am quite in the dark as to the origin of the statement. At present all I can say is that I am convinced that the document has not been issued with the knowledge of the Premier or the British war cabinet."

New York, May 13.—An Associated Press despatch from Washington today says: "The decision not to use the American army in France until it has been built up to proportions of a complete and mighty force, follows a long period of consideration between two schools of military strategists, which have been contending ever since the German drive began as to the most effective manner to use the American forces."

From the best information that can be gathered here, one school of strategy has contended for using the American forces in the battle line as fast as they arrive and for conducting a continuous counter-offensive with the hope of ending the war in 1918.

"The other, it is said, has favored the use of the American force very little, holding it back until it could be used with all the necessary complements of heavy artillery, aircraft and other appliances and then striking a mighty blow in conjunction with the British and French, which would smash the German lines and bring a decision."

The confidence of the British military authorities that they can hold their line until American aid arrives in full force, or at least such a heavy toll of German life in falling back that the actual advance will be with the Allied armies, is very gratifying to military experts here. Some of them are not in full accord with the reports of the British war cabinet, practically no use of the American army until it reaches its full strength."

Brush this through inded, streaked locks as they become dark, glossy, youthful.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays, by the asking of a few drags, you can have "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray. Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You can dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application of two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OPEN REVOLT FOR 8 DAYS

Story of Great Mutiny in Austrian Fleet Early in February

AT POLA AND SATTARO

Red Flag Was Hoisted at the Latter Port and Rebels Got Upper Hand

London, May 14.—The London Times correspondent with the Italian army says that news is trickling through to Italy from time to time about the great mutiny in the Austrian fleet early in February, and it is possible now to give a fairly accurate idea of what happened. The mutiny began at Pola, but, as it broke out almost simultaneously at Cattaro, it looks as if there had been collusion between the two ports, masters of the Adriatic. Workmen at the sailing began at Pola. They demanded the abolition of various disciplinary measures and punishments inflicted on shipboard and ashore. The movements of the Austrian fleet were confined to the harbor. The crews left their posts and thronged the decks, hurraing and acting as they pleased. Their officers were powerless, but there seems to have been no fighting between them and the mutineers.

Red Flag at Cattaro. The naval authorities parleyed with the men for a week and finally all the sailors and workmen's demands were granted. The mutiny took a more serious turn. Six cruisers and several destroyers hoisted the red flag. The German and Magyar elements in some crews held aloft and were in shouting contest with them and the mutineers, the guns of one cruiser being turned on another, and some mutineers being killed. However, the mutineers got the upper hand after three days of the mutiny in France.

The officers were seized, the Admiral commanding being taken by the sailors from his flagship to confinement in a vessel in the harbor, where he received apparently no very gentle treatment.

Demand For Peace. The mutineers gave all orders afloot or ashore. These were printed and signed. "The Committee of the Crews" was elected and the sailors' committee thus communicated to Vienna its demands, among which the request for the immediate conclusion of peace was prominent.

Alarm was given by these measures and conciliatory but non-committal replies were sent. After many prolonged discussions the authorities in Vienna decided to despatch to Cattaro a division of the fleet, under the command of Admiral von Sattaro, upon which it was thought that reliance might be placed. When they appeared before Cattaro the position was critical, as mutinings had broken out in the new division.

The situation was saved by the Tonic element in one of the revolting cruisers in the harbor getting free and hauling down the red flag. Negotiations were opened on the subject of the mutiny between the Admiral and the mutineers, and finally the latter consented to surrender the vessels on receiving written guarantees that no action would be taken against any man and that all the demands of the mutineers would be settled. The Cattaro fleet then returned to its allegiance, after having been in open revolt for eight days.

Cashed Officers. In consequence of the mutiny, Emperor Charles cashiered a number of high officers on the ground that it was their slackness that had permitted the outbreak. About thirty officers are believed to have been cashiered. The fleet has been put under command of a notoriously severe and much-disliked Admiral. Efforts were made later to revoke the amnesty to the mutineers, and they have been severely punished, but nothing has been done publicly as most of Austria's sailors belong to the oppressed races.

There is no doubt that the mutiny continues in the fleet, as well as in the army.

U. S. INTERNS COUNT MINOTTO Son-in-Law of Packing Magnate Taken in Custody as Alien Enemy

Chicago, May 14.—Count James Minotto, son-in-law of Louis F. Swift, the packer, was taken into custody here yesterday by Deputy United States Marshals on a Presidential warrant ordering his internment.

A habeas corpus action was immediately instituted in behalf of the Count, and he was taken before Federal Judge Carpenter and released on $50,000 bond. Hearing of arguments on the habeas corpus proceedings was set for May 20.

Attorney General Gregory has authorized the issuance of a Presidential warrant for the arrest of Count James Minotto under the President's proclamation relating to German alien enemies.

Count Minotto, a son-in-law of Louis F. Swift, the packer, is a man of such towering nationalities that he comes near to being a man without a country. His father was an Italian of avowed pro-German sympathies, and his mother was a noted German actress. He was born in Berlin and educated in the banking business in Germany. When the European war broke out he was employed in a German bank in London. He came to the United States and took out first naturalization papers here, but never completed the naturalization process. At first he was openly pro-German, but when Italy entered the war he offered to return to his father's land as an Italian reservist, and was refused for physical reasons. Later he offered an ambulance service to the Italian government, but this gift also was refused.

Not Accepted by U. S. Then he sought a commission in the United States army, but his German citizenship prevented. He offered his services to the Bureau of Naval Intelligence to become a United States Secret Service agent, but officials suspected him of bad faith and did not accept.

He has associated with society people in England, the United States and Argentina. He was a visitor at the German Embassy in London and Washington, was a friend of Count Sussburg, the now notorious German Charge at Buenos Aires, and also of M. Caillaux, former French premier, recently arrested on a charge of treason, and with Mrs. Caillaux, when they were in South America.

Secretary McAdoo was entertained by Count Minotto when the Secretary visited Buenos Aires two years ago. The Count at that time re-

APPALING STATE OF BELGIAN CHILDREN The state of the Belgian population in the conquered districts is appalling. Food cannot be obtained at any price and unless the efforts of the relief commissions on this side of the Atlantic be greatly accentuated actual starvation will levy a heavy death toll on the people, especially the children. One of the cables said: Provided all shipments now on route arrive, the Belgians will still be without bread for 20 days. Think of it! In this land of plenty it is hard to realize the awful fate that awaits these children through starvation. The Belgian relief has arranged to transfer all children under 13 years of age, who have become debilitated through lack of nourishment to France, Switzerland or Holland. In these countries food and medical care will be provided for them by the relief. This special work is known as the "Belgian Children's Health Fund," and every Canadian father and mother should support this worthy cause to free these children from that country of death and give them the opportunity to develop that all children deserve. TO EXTEND ALLIANCE.

By Courier Leased Wire
Amsterdam, May 13.—Resolutions in favor of the extension of Austria's alliance with Germany were passed at the congress of Germans in the Austrian Tyrol, said a despatch from Stenzing, Austria, to 'The Vossische Zeitung' of Berlin. The resolutions urge a closer military and economic union and the establishment in Austria of German state institutions and constitutional law.

The Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, Baron Burian, has gone to German great headquarters in connection with negotiations, which will decide the future relations of Germany and Austria-Hungary. A military and customs union is contemplated although the outcome is uncertain owing to the political chaos prevailing in Austria.

KULTUR BEGINS AT HOME

By Courier Leased Wire
London, April 24.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—A tale of a cruel hoax on young girls in a Kieler village is related by 'The Kieler Zeitung'. Irminshausen maidens, promised a Sunday afternoon dance in the town hall, dressed themselves in their best. They trooped to the hall and waited for two hours in vain for partners and music. Then the burgomaster arrived, closed the doors and ordered each girl to sign her name to an official paper. He then informed them that the dance would not take place. The next day policemen visited the girls' homes and confiscated their ribbons and laces.

Rupture is not a tear or breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is stretching or dilation of a natural opening, says J. Y. Egan of Toronto, the noted rupture appliance specialist who will visit Brantford at the Kerby Hotel, Saturday, Sunday (all day and night) 2 days only, May 18, 19. The "Curatrus" as now used and approved, will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature to close the opening in the shortest time known. This appliance has received highest awards wherever shown, producing results without harmful injections or surgery. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. If interested, call; he will be pleased to show you same without charge. See his advertisement.

ALLIES SUPERIOR IN GAS WARFARE

Enemy is Getting an Overdose of His Own Medicine Today

Correspondence of The Associated Press London, May 11.—Gas warfare has developed to a very considerable extent since its first use as a surprise weapon by the Germans at the second battle of Ypres. At that time the gas cloud or wave was released from great cylinders of liquid gas embedded in the trenches and discharged by pipes leading through the parapets. This form of attack has now been largely discarded, for it depended for effectiveness on the prevailing wind blowing from the right quarter. It soon became apparent that the gas shell was a far more important weapon than any gas cloud or wave, for its action is independent of the wind and continues as long as the gas shells can be kept up so that the whole target area is continuously poisoned.

Though entirely surprised by the British gas attack, the British and French quickly devised measures and every soldier was supplied with a gas mask. The box respirator which every allied soldier now carries is an absolute protection against all forms of gas, provided that it is put on at the first alarm and is not removed until the danger is past.

But it is very difficult to fight their effect without removing the respirator. There can be little speech, and a man can neither eat, drink, nor smoke. During a gas attack, there must be as little unnecessary movement as possible. For violent movements of the body are likely to displace the mask and let a little of the poisoned air into the lungs. Gas shells are now used largely by the sides for the bombardment of back areas and lines of communication, for the silencing of hostile batteries, and as a barrage previous to an infantry attack, when their effect is often supplemented by gas-wave discharges from trench cylinders. The effect of a gas attack is much worse and lasts much longer in closed spaces such as trenches and dugouts, and is more effective in towns and villages than in the open. There are many kinds of gas now in common use. There is a purely suffocating gas; a tear gas which attacks the eyes; a sneezing gas, intended to provoke an easier assimilation of the poison gas which accompanies it; and lastly mustard gas, which is an eye, lung and skin irritant, and is discharged from trench mortars.

The majority of gas casualties recover quickly, provided they have been promptly exposed to the fumes before they enter their respirators. The effects of the irritant mustard gas are not usually serious, most cases recovering in two or three days. It is generally stated that the gas attacks of the French and British are more potent even than those of the Germans, while the Allies' respirators are much better than the German because the Germans have not been able to get rubber enough to use it plentifully in these instruments. The German mask is of leather or treated so badly that the German gas casualties have been inordinately heavy.

OILS FOR CANADA.

Washington, May 13.—The War Trade Board announced to-day that applications authorizing the export of vegetable oils imported from the Pacific coast ports and passing through in bond on through export bills of lading, will be favorably considered, providing the shipments have been purchased by Canadian firms for consumption in Canada, and they are routed to pass into Canada at Duluth, Minn., or at a border point west of that city.

London, May 13.—Referring to trade agreement between Norway and the United States, The Morgenbladet of Christiania, according to a despatch to 'The Times' from the Norwegian capital, says the Allies intend to establish in Christiania a sort of a branch of the War Trade Board to facilitate commercial transactions. The staff, it adds, will be installed in the American legation, while representatives of British, French and Italian commercial interests will meet and confer.

JOE JACKSON HAS LEFT WHITE SOX

Famous Slugger Deserts Majors to Work at Munitions

Philadelphia, May 14.—Joe Jackson, star outfielder of the Chicago American League Baseball Club, notified Manager Rowland last night that he had accepted a position with the Harlan and Hollingsworth Shipbuilding Company, at Wilmington, Delaware, a subsidiary of the Delaware and Maryland, Delaware and Sparrows Point, Md. It is one of the strongest leagues outside of organized baseball, and has in its ranks many players formerly in the major and minor leagues. The Bethlehem Steel League opened its season last Saturday. Joe Jackson of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and that he would not play with the White Sox any more this season. Jackson recently received word that he had been placed in Class 1A by the draft board of Greenville, S.C., his home town. He was notified on Saturday to appear before the nearest draft board for examination, the notice stating that he probably would be called between May 25 and June 1.

Joe Jackson said last night that he would start work at the shipbuilding plant to-day, but declined to state whether he would seek exemption from the ground that he is employed in a war industry. He played his last game with Chicago here on Saturday.

NEW YORK CLUB OF 1890 WAS ONE THAT MADE A COMEBACK

Champions 1888-1889 Broken Up, But Were Able to Build up Again

While the weakening of many baseball teams due to the necessities of the present war will upset the prophets, yet it is questionable if any major league organization will be so thoroughly disintegrated as was the New York pennant winning nine of the National League of 1888-89, due to the Brotherhood war of 1890. The Giants had won the pennants of 1888 and 1889 in decisive manner and the team was unquestionably the strongest baseball machine of that period.

The pitching staff was particularly effective with Tim Lincecum, Mickey Welch and Ed Crane at their best, and the work behind the bat was done by the redoubtable Buck Ewing, who never had a superior as far as batting in all categories, including hitting, base running, throwing and generalship.

Keefe at the time was the mainstay of the staff, as he had speed, control and a cool head, and was with a puzzling change of pace, was a good second.

Crane had terrific speed but lacked control, but Ewing handled him with the same ease and success that he did the experienced Keefe and Welch.

At the first base was the gigantic Roger Connor, one of the heaviest hitters of the time, while at second was Danny Richardson, an excellent heady infielder and a fair batsman. John Montgomery Ward, the failure of whose pitching arm compelled him to take an infield position, covered short field and greatly aided the Giants with his brainy work. Arthur Whitney was the third baseman.

The outfield was composed of Jim O'Rourke, a hard hitter and fair fielder; George Glor, who previously had gained fame with Anson's Colts and Mike Tieran, a crack infielder and an excellent batter.

This combination was altogether too strong for the other teams in the National League and won the championships of those two years without difficulty.

These were happy days for President John B. Day and Manager Jim Mutrie of "We are the people" fame. But the clouds-revolt were gathering and while Mr. Day was unable to convince himself that his champions would desert to the banner of the Player's League, that is exactly what they did and about the only thing left was the pennant banner and the base bags.

Two of the players, Mickey Welch and Mike Tieran, remained loyal to the Giants, and in this pair was a nucleus Day and Mutrie set about getting a team to represent New York in the National League for the season of 1890. Not only had the Player's league grabbed all the men of Day's club but they had acquired a lease of a field adjoining the grounds on which the Nationals played.

But there was a rift in the clouds and the management had the opportunity presented of purchasing the entire Indianapolis club, which withdrew from the National league agents. In this deal the Giants secured the great Amos Rusie, who was a power in the pitching department for years, and among the leaders were Jack Glasscock, Jerry Denny, once a sensational third sacker for the Providence Grays in Radbourne's time; Charles Bassett, an infielder, and Jesse Burnett, an outfielder. With these players and some recruits New York managed to make good, showing in the race and finished sixth.

Therefore it would seem that many of the teams of the present time, have been riddled by the draft are warranted in taking a hopeful view of the future.

BOXING FOR ARMY CHAMPIONSHIP

Men, Women and Children Attended Big Bout at Aldershot

Aldershot, England, April 13.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—A great number of soldiers encamped in this district had an object lesson in the conduct of a big boxing match here a few days ago when they were invited to be the guests of the British soldiers at a program of fourteen contests between representatives of the Aldershot Command and the Southern Command of the British army.

The headliner of the tournament included about half of the best boxers in England now all in khaki. Among them were Sergeant Jimmy Wilde, Sergeant Ralph of the Canadians, Sid Burns, Corporal Billy Fullerton, and several others whose names were well known at the National Sporting Club in pre-war days.

There were no purses, the prizes being simple silver and bronze medals worth about $5 each. Had the competition been held in a London arena and been open to the public, the program would have been worth about $25,000 to the promoters. But the public was not admitted, and the prize of admission to the contests between ranged from twelve cents to one dollar. The latter amount corresponded to the $30 seats in the old days of the National Sporting Club in London.

There was an enormous attendance of officers and men together with a great many soldiers' families. It was probably the first time in the history of the ring in which men, women and children attended a match of championship calibre.

Despite the severeness of the fighting, there was only one bout in which any blood flowed. The majority of the men taking part were so physically fit, owing to their military training, that they were able to stand up in the ring and give and receive punishment with a degree of fortitude seldom seen in professional boxing meetings.

An impressive feature of the entire competition, from the standpoint of the American spectators, was the scrupulously strict and fair refereeing. Holding and clinching were stopped immediately, one warning only being given. Any pair who stood up and engaged in "shadow-fighting" also received a first—and last—caution. There were fourteen contests altogether, each of six rounds. The Aldershot Command won the most, taking thirteen of the fourteen events. Commander Walcott, head of the American branch of the British Admiralty Intelligence Department in London, was the chief referee.

THE SITUATION.
 A big Austrian offensive against Italy is now expected as the result of a conference between the Kaiser, the Emperor of Austria and leading military and civil leaders of the two countries. Just what was conceded to the Dual Kingdom in connection with the matter is not known, but it is taken for granted that the Kaiser and his associates agreed to give way to Austria in connection with Poland and in other directions.

A renewal of the German offensive on the Western front still remains in abeyance. It is very certain that in view of the important objectives as planned, the massing of men and material will this time be on a basis beyond previous compare. With regard to the participation of American troops in the defence some misunderstanding seems to have arisen. One despatch said that Foch was so confident that the French and the British forces could handle any assault, that the U. S. troops would not be called on, but instead be left out of the fighting until they could take a hand in force on their own behalf. On the other hand, Lord Reading, British representative at Washington, states that his information is quite otherwise, and that every man will be needed. All the indications would seem to tend to the belief that such is the case.

Canadians generally will be glad to know that Hon. Dr. Beland has at last been released from his imprisonment in Germany. In Europe at the time war broke out, he did not hesitate to offer his medical services to the Belgians, and falling into the hands of the Huns, he received the usual harsh treatment, even to the extent of exclusion from the bedside of his dying wife, to whom he had recently been united. In the last Dominion election he was returned without opposition to his constituency of Beauce.

A GREAT IMPROVEMENT.
 News from Quebec has lately shown a very great improvement in the attitude of the people towards the Military Service Act and the prosecution of the war. It would be idle to speculate upon the cause of the change in sentiment, but it undoubtedly exists and that is quite sufficient.

During the course of an address to a number of young Laval students now in training with a battalion, Archbishop Mathieu said that one of the chief reasons why the King and British Parliament were so willing to have Laval University founded for the French-Canadians was that they were so confident that it would be the cradle of loyalty, that when the time came when the young men would be called upon they would not fail to do their duty to their country. The archbishop said: "To-day we have the proof that their confidence was well founded, when we see so many Laval men in khaki and going to the front."

He counselled them to fight, to die if necessary, for their country, and they must remember that patriotism is rewarded not only here, but hereafter, for the reward of their country's defenders is heaven. That kind of talk has the right ring about it and such sentiments are now frequently heard in the sister province.

Those French-Canadians who have been at the front have abundantly proved their bravery and there can be no doubt that the others who are about to follow in large numbers will also maintain that high standard.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.
 One of the most desirable things just now is to tell the bell over the departure of Brant County toll roads.

Whatever his object may have been Maurice certainly had the last part of his name dumped on his ambitions.

It is reported that the Turks in Mesopotamia still continue to be chased—in one sense for the first time in their lives.

The Kaiser has been returning more of his blasphemous thanks to the Almighty and that, too, with his murderous hands becoming more deeply imbued each day with the blood of the innocent.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his wife have been the recipients of many hearty congratulations upon the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. With regard to such a happy domestic event political differences very properly have no part.

Trouble is threatening in Toronto over the announced intention of the Street Railway management to use women on the cars as conductors. At a mass meeting of the men a resolution was passed affirming that members of the fair sex could not stand the strain; that their health and morals would become affected, that returned soldiers should be given preference, and that the present staff will refuse to give instruction, or help run any car on which there is a petticoated official. For their part representatives of the women declare that they are quite as well able to undertake the job as their sisters in other countries, and that returned men should be given first pick and the women what is left. At this distance it looks as if a merry war was about to be staged regarding the matter.

Buffalo Express: Early last fall the British seamen's and firemen's union voted to boycott Germans after the war for two years and to add a month to the term for every additional crime committed on land or sea against non-combatants. A report has just been made by the union showing that the two-year period has been extended to five years and four months, based upon a careful record that has been kept of the submarine sinkings and air raids. The boycott will consist of the refusal of every member of the union to sail on a ship on which a German is employed in any capacity. In the report just made, however, notice is given of a proviso under which the boycott may be "mitigated" if the German people take "full control of the Kaiser" and establish "a true democracy." It will be surprising if action similar to that taken by these British workers is not taken by organized labor in other countries.

REGISTRARS FOR SOUTHERN ONTARIO

Continued from page one to be performed, not out of a sense of compulsion, but rather in a spirit of pure patriotism and as an act of encouragement to our gallant overseas defenders. The registration of the man and woman power of Canada will go forth to the world as the noblest expression of Canada's unalterable determination to support her own and the Allied armies until the final victory.

Strengthen Morale of the Army.
 The few minutes required for registration or the one day's salary donated by the willing workers, will be a small sacrifice indeed compared to those now being made by Canadian manhood in the forefront of the battle line. Yet it will be of inestimable value in maintaining the splendid morale of our unsurpassed citizen soldiers to know that those for whom they are fighting on the fields of France and Flanders are not recreant to the solemn duty of the hour in their beloved Canada. That duty calls for the exercise of every generous and high resolve in all the avocations of a spirited people, whose very existence as a people and whose great heritage is involved in the issue of the struggle.

Education Necessary.
 It is particularly desirable that clergymen of all denominations, members of Parliament, school teachers, professional agriculturists and members of other professions, journalists, captains of industry, members of council, in short, all those who by reason of their social position wield great influence, should make known the requirements and the purposes of registration, in order that no false conception of its import may gain ground, or jeopardize its success.

The Call and the Response.
 The people of Canada responded nobly to the urgent demands of the war; large numbers of their best young manhood have left and are still leaving for the front; they may be found in all the different army services; many have made the supreme sacrifice; others have been wounded or invalided by sickness; all have gained imperishable renown on the blood-stained fields of France, Belgium and elsewhere. The record of their achievements is the immortal heritage of Canada for all time. Out of their abundance our people have contributed freely to the different war relief funds and organizations, shall we be less generous now in making a much smaller contribution to the great cause by simply placing ourselves on record as a united people, mobilized for the purpose of helping these boys of our own flesh and blood who are battling overseas for all we now so boastfully enjoy?

Let our message on Registration Day be one of sympathy and steadfast purpose to our soldiers at the front; in common with the rest of Canada let our answer to the calls of the Registration Board be the clarion voice of a united people, conscious of the justice of its cause, and animated by a common determination to do all in its power to have that cause prevail.

HINDENBURG MUST FIGHT ALLIES OR GERMAN INTRIGUE

Dispatches From Holland Tell of Trouble Among Teuton General Staff
RIVALRY MENACING

(By Arthur Draper.)
 London, May 13.—It jars all our preconceived notions of a great battle for the fate of the world, but the operations it should die down almost to somnolence.

We are in the midst of the greatest battle the world has ever seen. But for the fact that the most brilliant minds from the critical sectors of the front, a front extending from Flanders down through Artois and Picardy to Champagne, report little more than insignificant flashes of contact here and there, on hardly a larger scale than that of the ordinary local engagements of the old dead-end positional warfare.

Must Renew Attack.
 Except for the two-division attack on the north side of the Lys Valley salient on May 8 and 9 Von Hindenburg's offensive remained almost all last week. What is the reason? Reorganization of men, of materials, reorganization of shattered divisions, the marshaling of more reinforcements by military intrigues, the German attack is in operation. Hindenburg cannot stop where he is—either in Flanders or Picardy—without confessing failure. And a confession of failure would mean the morale of the German civilian public and even imperil his own status as generalissimo, already undermined by military intrigues, by despatches from Holland to-day say: "Possibly it is Hindenburg's personal dilemma to-day that he must either fight the Allies or fight Von Ludendorff and the Crown Prince."

War of Wreckers.
 Another thing, the great battle, begun on March 21, developed unexpectedly within two days into a warfare of mere attrition. Such a warfare has been seen in the west since the battle of the Marne. It retained for a couple of weeks all the dramatic features which characterize warfare of movement. Since then it has been into the old warfare of position.

Hindenburg did "break through" on the west front, west of St. Quentin, and to a lesser extent on the front west of Lille. But now the breaches in the walls have been stopped up. Hindenburg is held down once more to finding an opening in the barrier in front of which plunging through which he may revive the spectacular effects of the warfare of movement. The third assault will be the most difficult of all. It requires the most exacting and a minute co-ordination than was achieved in the two previous efforts. It has involved a delay which seems to keep the great battle hanging over the heads of the Allies.

After Kemmel.
 Yesterday the French improved their positions north of Kemmel village, which lies to the northeast of Mount Kemmel. By pushing a disposition to contest the German hold on Kemmel, the most coveted because it is the most commanding eminence in the Flanders plain.

Possibly, if Von Hindenburg doesn't strike first, the Allies may think it worth while to secure their lines on the north side of the Lys Valley, by enveloping and storming Kemmel itself.

To The Editor of The Courier
 To the Editor, Courier, Sun Life Building, Toronto, Sun May 11, 1918.

Dear Sir:—You have doubtless seen press despatches dealing with the Canadian Food Board relative to the hoarding of flour and sugar, and I am asked particularly by the Board to notify all branches of our Committee that the greatest possible publicity should be given to these orders. Consumers must return to the dealers surplus flour and sugar, in accordance with the terms of the orders, before May 15th, otherwise they are liable to heavy fines and the confiscation of the flour and sugar to the Crown.

It is the duty of police officers to enforce the law, and, as in all other cases, ignorance of the law is no excuse.

These orders of the Board once again call attention to the extremely critical nature of the food situation with regard to flour and sugar. The unnecessary suffering which will be entailed upon our soldiers and Allies overseas, should we not cooperate in these orders to the utmost, should of itself be a sufficient reason for the most vigorous action possible on your part to impress upon the public the necessity of obeying these orders to the full. Indeed, if our people have the right spirit, they can, without hardship, do far more than the orders themselves call for. Many families, whose sons are overseas, and many others who feel the call much more because they have no sons to send, are not using lard or bacon at all, and are curtailing their use of even the standard wheat flour to the utmost. If every family helps, the savings will be great, and the rations of our troops need not be reduced.

Yours faithfully,
 ALBERT HABBOTT,
 Secretary.

German Newspaper in Spain Spreads Fiction Wholesale

The frantic anxiety shown by the Germans to minimize the importance of America's intervention in the war is the best evidence of the fear they feel. The German papers are full of stories, possible and impossible about what is happening in the United States, and every effort is made to create a false impression of the German people that America's adhesion to the allied cause is but a half-hearted affair. It is however, the German-controlled press in neutral countries that is most pernicious in its efforts to mislead the German people that America's adhesion to the allied cause is but a half-hearted affair.

As soon as Bob finished his supper we retired, and the next morning he hurried away so that he might have time to stop at John Kendall's and see how he had passed the night. He made no mention of what we had talked about the night before. To be perfectly honest I was delighted that he had not. He probably thought something had occurred to make Miss Riggs change her mind; and unless he saw her soon, there might never be any explanation of the matter.

Bob was going to the station to meet John's mother—so he had told me, and although I said nothing about it, I hated him to be so friendly. I considered it an altogether unnecessary attention.

All such things kept his interest in John Kendall and his other friends alive—so I thought. I was wrong. Dinner time came and the telephone bell rang: "Don't wait for me, Margaret," Bob said. "Mrs Kendall is here, and I am going to take her out for a bite of dinner while Henry Creedmore is with John."

This was the third night Bob had remained away from home at dinner time, and I turned away from the telephone, my mind filled with bitter thoughts toward those whom I considered to blame for what I called his defection. It was the third evening he had devoted to the people for whom I cared less than nothing. Surely it was most aggravating.

He came in about eight o'clock, and we spent the remainder of the evening quietly together in the library. He looked very tired but very handsome, and I told him over and over how much I loved him, how he meant everything in the world to me.

Then I told him that by spring we should have another in our little home. He was very tender and dear.

These strenuous times are turning the thoughts of unmusical people to this means of letting down the tension. The need of music is undeniable.

CHAPTER LIV.
 A Confidence.
 As soon as Bob finished his supper we retired, and the next morning he hurried away so that he might have time to stop at John Kendall's and see how he had passed the night. He made no mention of what we had talked about the night before. To be perfectly honest I was delighted that he had not. He probably thought something had occurred to make Miss Riggs change her mind; and unless he saw her soon, there might never be any explanation of the matter.

Bob was going to the station to meet John's mother—so he had told me, and although I said nothing about it, I hated him to be so friendly. I considered it an altogether unnecessary attention.

All such things kept his interest in John Kendall and his other friends alive—so I thought. I was wrong. Dinner time came and the telephone bell rang: "Don't wait for me, Margaret," Bob said. "Mrs Kendall is here, and I am going to take her out for a bite of dinner while Henry Creedmore is with John."

This was the third night Bob had remained away from home at dinner time, and I turned away from the telephone, my mind filled with bitter thoughts toward those whom I considered to blame for what I called his defection. It was the third evening he had devoted to the people for whom I cared less than nothing. Surely it was most aggravating.

He came in about eight o'clock, and we spent the remainder of the evening quietly together in the library. He looked very tired but very handsome, and I told him over and over how much I loved him, how he meant everything in the world to me.

Then I told him that by spring we should have another in our little home. He was very tender and dear.

about it, and at once cautioned me about taking proper care of myself, not worrying, etc. He probably thought I shall be all right, and very happy if you will do right by me and stay with me and love me as I love you." I told him. The next morning I assured him that all I cared for in the world was that he should care only for me and my happiness; as I cared for him.

I never dreamed that this constant reiteration of my love might tire him; that he would become annoyed because of my caresses. To hear him say he loved me was sweet music to me; why should he not feel the same?

That women crave the expression of love far oftener than do men I now believe, but at that time I judged Bob by myself, taking no account of the difference in temperament, his desire to rest after a hard day at the office, or the frame of mind he happened to be in. To say "I love you darling" had become as much a matter of course with me, as to say "good morning," or "good night."

John Kendall began to improve all as soon as his mother arrived. Bob had said so much to me about calling on her that one afternoon I asked Elsie to go with me. Mrs. Kendall was a very dignified, very handsome old lady with the manners of a grande dame. She spoke in glowing terms of Bob and of his devotion to John.

"I don't know how I can ever repay him," she said feelingly. "I wanted to tell her that she could repay me by persuading Bob to give up some of the people with whom he spent so much time—her son included—but hardly dared. It was one thing to talk to a young woman like Marion Riggs, and quite another thing to express my opinion to this dignified matron."

She served tea and cakes, and while John and Elsie chatted of the social matters in which they were interested, she talked to me. I told her of Donald, and she declared she was very fond of children and hoped she might see him before she left for home.

"I am going to try to keep her now that she is here," John broke in. He was in an invalid's chair and looked very thin and old.

"I shall stay as long as you need me, my dear boy," she replied, then explained that John's father was not well, and needed her as soon as it was wise to leave John. "I shall not worry when I go now that I have met his friends," she added turning again to me. "A Mr. and Mrs. Root and a Miss Riggs called yesterday. Charming people, all of them."

Elsie heard and flashed a laughing glance at me. "I am glad you were pleased with them, Mrs. Kendall, but I do not care for them. They are altogether too free and easy to please me. She looked surprised and both Elsie and John looked a bit distressed, but I didn't mind.

"They belong to a Bohemian class of people of whom I disapprove more because of their influence on my husband, than for any other reason. I went on, not appearing to notice the look of surprise on her face, although it had not escaped me.

"Bob is too sensible to be influenced by anyone," John Kendall said quietly. "Then he added smiling humorously, 'Even by you, Mrs. Garrett.' I have known him many years and I have never known him to really give in to anyone's opinion on any vital subject. He doesn't say much, but I notice he usually does as he thinks right irrespective of anyone else."

"He is married now," I returned, "and has me to consider," then I left. I sorry I had called, and with my mind made up to tell Bob what had been said.

DR. BELAND RELEASED

Joyful News Excites Wild Cheering in House of Commons

Ottawa, May 14.—Shortly after dinner last night Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux read in Brussels, Belgium, a cablegram from Hon. Dr. Henri S. Beland, M.P. for Beauce, who has been a prisoner of war since 1914; he has been released by the Germans, and is now in Rotterdam. The announcement was greeted with wild cheers and the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," in which members of the House, irrespective of party, joined.

A few moments later Sir Robert Borden entered the House and read a cablegram from Sir George Perley, High Commissioner of Canada in Britain, confirming the report. The cheering broke out again. The Premier's Praise. The Prime Minister added a warm tribute to the Hon. Dr. Beland, who was in Belgium on his honeymoon, after his marriage to a Belgian lady when the war broke out and was captured by the Germans while giving medical aid to wounded Belgian soldiers.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux spoke in complimentary terms of the efforts of the Prime Minister, adding that "the Government have done their utmost to have Dr. Beland released."

London, May 14.—A telegram was received here yesterday from Hon. Dr. Beland; "I am released, Writing." Dr. Beland, who was ex-Canadian Postmaster General, has been interned in Germany ever since the war opened. News came from him at intervals. Madam Beland, who has been in Germany for some few months back, but the news was kept from her husband for several days, in order apparently that he should not ask permission to attend the funeral, he then being in Germany, and Madame Beland dying in Brussels.

The cablegram from Sir George Perley, which the Prime Minister read, was as follows: "Have telegram from Beland at Rotterdam saying he has been released from Germany. Am personally delighted and feel sure this news will be most welcome to you and all other Canadians."

PLANS FOR PARADE FOR READINESS

The Industrial Recreation League's Field Day on May 24th Will be a Big Event

Further arrangements for the industrial recreation league parade of May 24th were completed at a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. last night. It was decided to raise the guarantee list for 400 entries. No less than eighty entries have been received up to the present time. The Dufferin Rifles band has been engaged for the occasion, and it is likely that three bands in all will take part in the parade. It is proposed to have the bands start from the Market St. station, and to have the floats and other features of the parade lined up on the cross streets, whence they will fall into line as the bands pass. The merchants of Colborne, Dalhousie, Market, and George streets are being canvassed for tributes, and the response is proving remarkably satisfactory. The sanction of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association has been obtained for the cycling events, and application will also be made to the C. A. A. U.

BOUGHT TRUCK. The purchase of a Maxwell motor truck for the board of works was completed last night by the special committee from the board appointed to take up the matter.

KILLED IN ACTION. Private E. R. Symons, who is officially reported as having been killed in action, was born in Brantford, a son of Mr. Wm. Symons. He is listed in the Canadian Mounted Rifles at Windsor, Sept. 29th, 1917, and was sent to Hamilton, the training headquarters of the regiment, leaving last October, and was transferred to the 102nd Batt. in France, his death being reported from the 57th casualty clearing station. His mother, two sisters and four brothers reside at Windsor, Ont.

TOLD OF MISSION WORK. Last evening the members of Colborne St. Methodist church heard a splendid address from the Rev. Mr. Carr, of Riverdale Baptist Church, who has recently returned from eleven years missionary work in the Canary Islands. His talk was very interesting and was much enjoyed by the large number of leaguers present. Miss Phyllis Sayles rendered a delightful solo. The chair was taken by Miss Myrtle Elvidge.

PRODUCTION AT HOME

Continued from page one. Canada, in the following year, in March 1916, you issued a second agricultural war book "Production at Home"—in which your minister of agriculture, after expressing the thanks of your government for the noble effort, says: "Gain or no gain, the course before the farmers of Canada is as clear as it was last year. They must produce abundantly to meet the demands, be they may be made." "Following this second appeal in the next year, the year 1917, when everybody realized the grim nature of the struggle that lay before us with the Russian debacle in full view, and thanks be to God, the great American nation became our ally, when every reading man knew it would be impossible for that nation to mobilize her strength and place it effectively upon the battle line before the spring of 1918, it was then on the lips of every wide-awake citizen that Germany's last chance was in the spring and summer of 1918. That was when she would make her supreme effort.

"With all this knowledge in plain view, your government enacted the Military Service Act and then Sir, you called to your cabinet a new body of men—some new men—who through their spirit of patriotism and commanding sense of public duty and high national honor, proceeded to appeal to the Canadian electorate on the one hand and direct the enforcement of the Military Service Act on the other. Under its provisions and true to your record since the inception of the war, exemption certificates were granted to practically every bona fide young unmarried farmer between the ages of 20 and 35 and of your own people, your own loyal Canadian citizens—exemption certificates as solemn and sacred to them, as these should be as solemn and sacred to you as that for the sanctity of which the peoples of the Allied nations are pouring out their life blood in the battle fields of France and Flanders.

"Following the issue of these certificates, Sir Robert Borden, Premier for 1918, is very desirous to press publications; declared: "We cannot emphasize too strongly the absolute urgent necessity for increased food production. The issue of the war may depend on the quantity of food produced in Canada and the United States."

"Then, Sir, your Government established your Canada Food Board, with Hon. A. C. Dunning as director of food production, who declared at the recent meeting of the board, committee of commerce and agriculture headquarters in Regina: "The world is afloat; famine is approaching; a world like to inform you, gentlemen, of the serious need of men at the front, but the need of food is more urgent. The food situation in 1918 is very dark, but for 1919 it is even more so."

"Dr. J. W. Robertson, another appointee, chairman of the advisory council of the Canada Food Board, said: "Unless we can get more food now we shall go under and a million people will starve. This is my conviction, and I know as much about the situation, perhaps, as anyone."

"You also appointed Mr. H. B. Thompson, chairman of the Canada Food Board, who declares that Great Britain is on shorter rations than at any time in the last 100 years. The situation is not only grave, but its possibilities are terrifying. A large measure of responsibility for providing food for Europe falls upon Canada. Every available acre in the cities must be utilized. Men in non-essential industries at the present time are simply dozens of rations. To men who should be on the farm or should be relieving men who are needed on the farm, the Canada Food Board said: "Get out of the city, do not be a destroyer of rations while our food supplies are so dangerously low and starvation is threatening the Allies."

"Following these appeals from your officers, Sir Robert Borden, according to press reports, again declared: "Get out of the city, do not be a destroyer of rations while our food supplies are so dangerously low and starvation is threatening the Allies."

PRACTICAL DAILY GUIDE FOR VACANT LOT AND BACKYARD GARDENERS ENLISTED IN GREAT PRODUCTION CAMPAIGN.

Issued by the Canada Food Board in collaboration with experts on the staff of the Dominion Experimental Farm. COVER SOIL WITH STRAW. Here is a tip for the gardener who wants extra early and tender radishes, lettuce, mustard and cress. It is a popular practice in France and Great Britain, but one that is little indulged in on this side of the Atlantic. All the salad crops can be induced to be more sprightly in their growth if the row or patch is covered with straw for three or four days after the seed has been sown. The straw shades the ground, keeps in the moisture and rapidly draws up the young seedlings. The crop gets a good start when the radishes, lettuce and onions shoot up and are ready for use at least a week earlier than they would otherwise be.

POLITICAL ECONOMIST DEAD. By Courier Special Wire. London, May 13.—Baron Courtney of Penwith, political economist and deputy speaker of the House from 1886 to 1892, died in London Saturday. Leonard Henry Courtney, first Baron Courtney of Penwith, was born in 1837 and studied law. From 1880-84 he was under secretary for the Home Department, under secretary of the Colonies and financial secretary of the Treasury. WARNING AGAINST HOARDING OF SUGAR

Excess Quantities May be Seized After Wednesday of This Week

By Courier Leased Wire
 Ottawa, May 14.—The Canada Food Board, in a statement issued to-day, reminds the public that the clause providing for seizure and forfeiture of holdings of flour and sugar in excess of the quantities prescribed by the Board comes into effect at midnight on Wednesday of this week. After that time flour and sugar in excess of the quantities prescribed in the Food Board's orders of April 25 and April 26th may be seized and forfeited. In addition, any person holding excess quantities of either flour or sugar is liable to a fine of not less than $100.

Reports just received from different parts of Canada show that large supplies of both flour and sugar have already been turned back to dealers in compliance with the order.

Apparently there has been some misunderstanding as to the use of the expression "excess sugar." This includes all sugars made from sugar cane or sugar beets.

REGISTRATION DAY JUNE 22

Public and Other Schools to be Used in all Parts of the Dominion

By Courier Leased Wire
 Provided the many and intricate details of organization can be completed in time Saturday, June 22nd, will be the day upon which general registration will take place.

In many towns and cities the organization is already well under way. Public schools and teaching staffs have, in a large number of instances, been placed at the disposal of the registrars.

It is the desire of the government that registration shall be carried out with the least possible interruption of business, and with a minimum inconvenience to employees. Provision has therefore been made to permit large industrial and business concerns to register their employees, an officer of the company, foreman or other employee being sworn in as deputy registrar. These registrations can take place several days prior to the date of registration, provided the formalities are complied with.

Two points are emphasized in connection with the registration. First and foremost is the necessity of making the registration complete. It is pointed out that if the war continues it may be necessary to have recourse to the rationing system, in which event the facts obtained through registration will be of great value. The second point is that the information obtained shall be immediately available and made to serve a practical and beneficial purpose.

In view of the fact that it is suggested that provincial and municipal labor bureaus and all parties desiring labor should obtain information directly from the local registrars on the day of registration, as to the available labor supply in a particular locality. Ascertaining in this way particulars of local labor conditions before the cards are returned to Ottawa will avoid delay, and should assist materially in satisfying labor requirements.

SAPPER KELLY, WATER DIVINER, SAVED THE DAY

Gallipoli Exploit Assisted by Engineer—Terrible Hardships Suffered by Soldiers

STRUCK FLOW OF 2,000 GALLONS

Until Well Found Water Brought in Ships for the Troops

Can you, who drink when you are thirsty, and to whom a half gallon of liquid is just fair day's ration in hot weather, imagine the sufferings of the Gallipoli campaign of the British forces who fought on the Gully? It is not a matter of a pint of tepid water a day? If you can, then imagine even that supply cut off, and you will understand the importance of Sapper Kelly and his water-divining rod. A writer in the London Graphic says:

"True, there were wells at some of the landing places, and before the great heat water could often be procured in small quantities by scooping shallow pans on the beach, but as a rule, more than two-thirds of the supply had to be brought from abroad, risking the uncertainty of the sea voyage and the certainty of being landed under shell fire. The average ration was about a pint and a half, which was often cut when most needed, that is, when lighting was being carried on."

When you remember that here at home the individual consumption in hot weather is something like about three pints of liquid per day, and in hot weather something nearer half a gallon, you will realize to what extremes of hardship the men were subjected. To add to this came dust and insects, which mingled with the food. The result was dysentery and sickness, and a general sapping of the strength of our forces.

Turks Had More Water.
 The Turks had always more water than we. At Anzac they held the wells near Lonepine, and inland from Cape Helles, at Krinid, a fair supply existed. Their transport lines naturally could not be interfered with. Besides this, they were all more or less insured to extreme heat, while our men had to go through a scorching period of readjustment before their constitutions could conform to this and all the unusual conditions of an existence for which their lives before had so little prepared them.

Looking down from "Walker's Ridge," somewhere about the 800-foot level, could be seen the dozen tanks which usually contained the water supply for the trenches. Many men were gathered round, but the tanks were empty. No water seemed nearer than a matter of seven days, when the new supply by the sea was expected to arrive. It had to be manned as usual, and the continuous attack carried on against Johnny Turk.

It was in this crisis that Sapper Stephen Kelly, water-diviner, played his part in saving the situation. He was lying wounded on a stretcher outside a clearing on the lower level, but his mind was busily working, says the writer in the Graphic.

In Australia, water-divining is a much more usual proceeding than here, where the precious fluid is seldom scarce. The operation is simple when taking up a new tract of country will naturally employ a professional diviner to locate the best spots for putting down bores, and thus securing a permanent supply for the sheep at many different quarters of the run. In his profession of engineering Sapper Kelly had many times used his gift at home.

How Divining is Done.
 He had noticed on the Peninsula that indications were not wanting of the chance of striking a flow. This information was telephoned to him to the command at the Ridge. General Hughes immediately came down in person to investigate what seemed a slim chance of saving the situation. The whole operation was under shell fire incessantly at this time, and yet Sapper Kelly, with the aid of two comrades and a crutch, managed to hobble long to the spot, and, after stating his belief that a flow was procurable, he at once started on his search.

The operation is carried out, as a rule, with a willow rod or fork held in both hands, just on a level with the chest. When passing over the flow the rod dips violently downward, thus indicating the best spot for sinking or boring. A copper rod or coil is sometimes employed. Sapper Kelly, in this case with a fine sense of irony, used the flange of a Turkish shell straightened to form a rod. After working for some time he located a strong flow on a bank of sand, but fifty feet from sea level. This at a depth of six feet was found to deliver fully 2,000 gallons per hour. The shortage was at once obviated, and the trenches manned with a rejuvenated army.

ALL TO REPORT WHEN NOTIFIED

Men Called up May Then Make Application for Exemption From Service

EXPLANATION ISSUED

By Courier Leased Wire
 The following announcement is made by the Department of Militia and Defense:

"In view of the fact that there seems to be some doubt as to the procedure to be adopted by men drafted under the military service act, or orders in council in amendment thereof, it should be clearly understood that every man who is ordered by the registrars to report must do so on the date specified, whether he proposes to claim leave of absence or not. Should he be between the ages of twenty and twenty-two, both inclusive, leave of absence must be granted on one ground only, namely that he is the sole remaining son of military age in the family, the others being already serving or having suffered death or disablement. Service in this case means service in some field of operations of a unit in England or Canada, providing drafts for service in a field of operations."

"Men desiring to claim leave of absence on the above grounds should so state upon reporting to the depot of notification, and before the notice of the registrar. They should have prepared a careful statement showing the other sons of the same family with the age and service of each. This statement should be certified as correct by some responsible person to whom the commanding officer can refer. If such a statement discloses sufficient grounds to bring the case within the policy above referred to the man concerned will be given provisional leave of absence and the case will be forwarded to militia headquarters, Ottawa, by the officer commanding the unit for final approval. Full instructions as to above procedure have been sent to all district commanding officers and to all officers commanding depot units."

"The foregoing does not affect the commanding officer's power to grant a few days leave in the home of the man in special circumstances, nor the two weeks furlough which farmers may obtain on application to their commanding officer to complete seeding."

GREATEST CRIME SINCE CRUCIFIXION

Sentiment of American People From Outset of the War

By Courier Leased Wire
 Montreal, May 13.—Hon. James N. Beck, New York, who is in Montreal to receive an honorary degree from McGill University to-day, addressed a large gathering in St. James' Methodist Church last night. He said that at the outbreak of the war the heart of one of the greatest German bankers in Berlin cabled to a New York banker, who represented the Berlin bank in the United States: "We hope we have your sympathy. How do you regard it?" The reply Mr. Beck said, was: "We regard it as the greatest crime since the crucifixion of Jesus Christ."

Mr. Beck said that the New York banker even at the outset of the war showed the sentiment of all the thoughtful Americans.

Hon. Mr. Beck referred to a prophecy of his which he said had been greeted with enthusiasm by mercantile audiences of stock brokers, hard-headed business men and others that when after the war, when Great Britain and France come to settle for the $4,000,000,000 they owe now and the $7,000,000,000 they will owe before the war is over, the reply of the United States will be: "Recepted in full. It is paid already, paid by the blood of your sons who died as much for us as for you."

Mr. Beck said one result of the large number of American soldiers going overseas would be the cementing of an enduring friendship between the Americans and the French and British.

LAURIER HONORED BY PRESS GALLERY

Parliamentary Reporters Presented Liberal Leader With a Bouquet

By Courier Leased Wire
 Ottawa, May 14.—The occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier was marked by the press gallery of Parliament by the presentation of a bouquet of fifty red roses, the presentation being made by a representative delegation of the press men in Sir Wilfrid's office just before the House re-assembled in the afternoon. Charles Bishop, of the Montreal Star, president of the gallery, delivered a brief speech of congratulations, which was seconded by Tom King, of the Toronto World, who presented the bouquet.

In the course of a brief reply, Sir Wilfrid advised every member of the gallery who was still single to take unto himself a wife. "Among the blessings of life," he declared, "there is no blessing like that of a good wife. Gentleman, I have enjoyed that blessing for these fifty years. I thank you for the good things which you have said of my wife. She has been to me an inspiration, a comfort, a help, a good soldier at all times, in happiness and adversity, but probably more especially in the latter. Get married and I will hope for you and I can hope no more than that, all the happiness which everyone of these fifty years have brought to me."

In conclusion Sir Wilfrid said: "We all have our duties to perform. We may differ in our opinions. But let us all do our duty as we conceive it to be right."

MUNICIPAL HOG-RAISING IN PARIS

Paris Plans to Increase Production and Dispose of Garbage Waste

(Associated Press)
 Paris, May 14.—Municipal hog raising in Paris on a large scale may result from the war. Lack of labor and deficient transportation facilities have not only held up provisions needed by the housewife and made them dearer, but have delayed the garbage before front doors until it has compelled universal attention to its immense volume as well as to the inconvenience from its overstay in the street.

Hog raising has been proposed as a remedy for the lack of food and the superabundance of rotting waste. Vegetable garbage and greasy substances in the boxes over which Parisians have been tumbling nightly since the war began would, each year, and pork is now worth fifty cents a pound.

Thousands of errand dogs nourish themselves on the contents of garbage boxes, and a great many of the treatment from our officers. In the United States there was some confusion at first, in getting the lines lined up, but those volunteering at this time—Pte Smith enlisted as a volunteer, being ineligible under the draft—are assured of being better cared for. South Dakota, of which Sioux Falls is the leading industrial city, although not the capital, is one of the foremost states of the union, so far as loyalty is concerned, and in several counties in that state the draft was not enforced, because the necessary quota was raised by voluntary enlistment. Pte. Smith looks for the supremacy of amateur sport after the war, and the downfall of professionalism. At the same time he points out that it is difficult to draw a line between the two, for "all amateurism will lead to professionalism, if there is enough money in the latter, and if the money is needed."

SCALE IS TURNED. By Courier Lensed Wire. London, May 13.—The carrying through of the American effort, The Morning Post to-day says, means the turning of the scale against the enemy. That is an immense event in the history of the old world and the new. It is the greatest that has happened, except the war itself, since the French revolution."

Leafs and Birds Split the Series. Baltimore Took Last Game Which Was Called in the Seventh. BEARS CRAWLING UP. Took Odd Game From Rochester Yesterday by 4-0 Score.

Baltimore, Md., May 14.—The Leaflets bowed humbly to the Birds in the last game of the series yesterday afternoon, the count being 3 to 1, the game being called at the end of the seventh inning on account of rain. The Howleyites left town immediately after the game for a series in Jersey City, well satisfied with having broken even with the Birds after dropping three in a row to Birmingham.

The contest yesterday afternoon was just a ball game with scarcely a redeeming feature. There was a steady drizzle during the greater part of the set-to and both teams were listless in their work. Mason and Crabbe were hooked up as opposing pitchers and the home flogger had decidedly the better of the going. He did not start out very auspiciously but was all to the merrily after the first inning. The same could not be said of Crabbe, who was in hot water more or less all the way.

Newark, N. J., May 14.—Newark won the odd game of the series with Rochester here yesterday by a score of 4 to 0. Three hits, coupled with good base running and an error netted Newark two runs in the second inning, and three hits in the seventh added two more runs for the home club. The score: R. H. E. Rochester... 00000000—0 4 2 Newark... 0209020X—4 10 4 Batteries—Grant, Russell and Flaherty; Bommel and Madden.

At Jersey City.—The local team yesterday returned to winning form against Syracuse. By a spirited batting rally in the seventh inning Jersey City wiped out the visitors' earlier advantage and won by a score of 3 to 1. Horsey held the Syracuse batsmen to four hits, while Jersey City pounded Detroit for eight. The score: Syracuse... 00100000—1 4 1 Jersey City... 0000030X—3 8 2 Batteries—Detroit and Hopper; Horsey and McGraw.

Collard, who conducted a private banking business in St. Catharines for nearly half a century, died last night, aged 84 years. He was also American consular agent for St. Catharines up to a few years ago. He leaves one son, W. H. Collard, manager of the Imperial Bank at Ridgeway.

THAT SON-IN-LAW OF PA'S

REX Theatre. Vaudeville Pictures. Mon., Tues., and Wed. Return of the Screen's Most Popular Star Anita Stewart. "THE SUSPECT". Forrest and Church. Singing, Talking, Zylophone. 9th Episode: "The Lost Express". Keystone Comedy. Coming Thursday. Constance Talmadge. "SCANDAL".

Music and Drama. To be mistaken for auto-handlers was the experience of a company of players who went to New Jersey recently to photograph a garage scene, the beautiful New Jersey estate, the owner had given his permission without remembering to notify his servants.

When he arrived home he found that a crowd of neighbors and servants were holding the entire motion picture company, whom they had shut up in the garage, under guard. Mr. Davis explained that the garage was in the scene of the picture is used by a "crooked" servant to hide loot which he had stolen from his employer. The amused owner immediately made amends by inviting the entire company to lunch.

California has long been famous for its girl swimmers, and visitors to the west shore beaches often marvel at the great number of the fair sex who are experts at the treading, the crawl and other famous strokes calling for great skill. As there is bound to be a shortage of life guards at the beaches this summer there is a movement on foot to organize the feminine contingent to take up this work. Mack Sennel, comedy studios are responding to the call valiantly. Charles Ray is becoming a flatter expert, and has been in training for nearly six weeks. Every picture this fine star has to play in during the next few months calls for him to have a scrap. In "Playing the Game," he has one of the best that was ever screened.

Usually mistaken for anything but a screen star when she is away from the Goldwyn studios, Madge Kennedy was amused the other day when she visited a New York shop where she was not known. "This is a model very popular with college girls," the saleswoman remarked in showing the little actress a simple dress. Madge Kennedy smiled and said, "But isn't it too youthful for me?"

"I'm sure your mother will like it," answered the clerk. "Why not let me send it on approval?" When Miss Kennedy gave her name the secret was out of course, and it caused a ripple of surprised comment.

THE BRANT. It is an all-comedy bill which is offered patrons of the Brant the first of this week, headed by Charlie Chaplin in "A Dog's Life," his first picture under his new million dollar contract, and one of the snappiest comedies the star has ever turned out. Neither is it slapstick comedy, except in places, for Chaplin takes another long step away from that direction and substitutes for it that subtle comedy of which he is so peculiarly a master. Jack Pickford and Louise Huff, co-star in "His Majesty Bunker Bean," a comedy-drama of modern business life which holds the attention throughout. Burzac's Comedy Circus is a novel vaudeville offering, featuring "The Kicking Mule," and presenting a troupe of trained dogs and ponies in a veritable miniature circus. "The Bride" is another of James Montgomery Flagg's cartoon series, a sketch of a girl from real life. The first episode of the patriotic serial "The Eagle's Eye," exposing German intrigue in America, is not the least attraction on a feature program.

THE REX. Popular Anita Stewart is seen at the Rex the first of this week, in "The Suspect," one of her first pictures.

BRANT THEATRE. Special All-Comedy Bill Mon., Tues., and Wed. Jack Pickford and Louise Huff. In Their Latest Comedy Feature "His Majesty Bunker Bean." 5th Episode: "THE EAGLE'S EYE". Exposing German Plots in America. Burzac's Comedy Circus. A Troupe of Trained Dogs and Ponies. Featuring "THE KICKING MULE". THE BRIDE. J. Montgomery Flagg's Girl Series. Extra Added Attraction Charlie Chaplin. "A DOG'S LIFE". His First $1,000,000 Comedy Picture. Coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Douglas Fairbanks. "MR. FIX IT".

Ten-Inning Tie Halted by Rain. Cards and Phillies Failed to Break Pitchers' Duel. REDS RETAINED LEAD. "Lena's" Double Helped—Merkle Bats 1000 When the Cubs Won.

St. Louis, May 13.—Rain, which had been intermittent throughout the game, caused a halt at the end of the tenth inning to to-day's game between Philadelphia and St. Louis. The score was 3 to 3. It was a pitchers' duel between Oeschger and May, the former allowing but two hits. These came in the first inning, one of which, a home run by Cruise, with two men on, gave the locals their runs. The score: Philadelphia 200001000—2 R. H. E. St. Louis... 300000000—3 2 3 Batteries—Oeschger and Adams; Burns; May and Snyder.

At Cincinnati.—Crimin was up wild in the first two innings to-day that the Cincinnati team secured seven runs on two hits, a double by Blackburne and a triple by S. Mack, enough to win the game. Chicago pitched good ball for the last five innings. Brooklyn earned five runs off Toney and Bresale, but good fielding prevented them from tying the score. The score: R. H. E. Brooklyn... 110001020—5 15 2 Cincinnati... 330000000—7 7 5 Batteries—Crimin, Macquard, Chelver and Knepper; Toney, Bresale, Ellis and Wingo; Allen.

At Chicago.—Chicago batted Brooklyn's pitchers freely to-day and won 10 to 3. Merkle and Kilduff led the attack, the former having a perfect batting average. He drove in three runs, while Kilduff, with his four hits, drove in five of the locals' runs. The score: R. H. E. Boston... 020006600—2 R. H. E. Chicago... 0210202X—10 16 0 Batteries—Nehr, Canavan and Wilson; Taylor and Killifer.

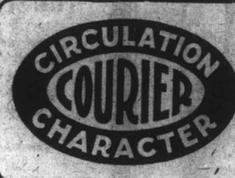

After a long absence from the screen, and a powerful tale of modern Russia, which affords the talented star ample scope for her well-known versatility. The production is a seven reel one, and a powerful cast of Vitagraph players are seen in support of Miss Stewart. Forrest and Church offer a singing, talking and zany performance of unusual merit, combining pleasing musical selections with clever comedy dialogue. The ninth episode of the Mutual railroad serial "The Blue Express," featuring Helen Holmes, sustains the interest of previous chapters. The lighter side of the program is well catered to by a Keystone comedy.

Rippling Rhymes

MAN POWER, men whose veins have numbered 50; and hope springs in my breast again, the prospects now seem bright. Before this beastly war is done, fool rules will go a-kissing, and loyal gents will say for me to go and do some fighting. They've barred me out because I'm fat and deaf and broken-winded; and rules responsible for that. I hope will subject me. When first we broke into the game, Apollo were demanded: "We do not want the old or lame"—the officers were candid. "No man is fit to chase him unless he's like Narcissus." And so I dropped my sword and gun, and went home to the missus. "They're mighty choice," said Jane, "my lad, to turn down beefy writers; but wait a while, and they'll be glad to get such dewily fighters." And now it seems that Jane was right; the sergeant's growing shrilly, and he admits a gent my fight who gives his age as fifty. And pretty soon the fat and bald, and the sprained and the sweened, will from the paths of peace be called, by Uncle Sam subpoenaed. For paths of peace I care no hoot, I burn with martial ardor; I long to slay the Krut fed Tex and condescend his ladder to cut down the bars! Let every skate who wants to fight go fighting, though he may score three hundredweight, as I do at this writing.

GERMAN SWINDLED

FRENCH SOLDIERS Promised to Obtain Them Choice Positions, For a Consideration
Associated Press, Paris May 11.—The arrest of a German subject, Simon 'Freischman, on the complaint of swindling soldiers, has called attention to the fact that the Prefecture of police and the Secret Service department have still 150,000 records of foreigners living in France to investigate.
One of the reasons for the delay in action is the liberality France has shown, even toward the subjects of countries at war with France. A considerable number of papers have criticized the government for too great leniency in this respect, and have attributed some of the espionage that has come to light to this attitude.
'Freischman, the Libre Parole says, enjoyed greater liberty of movement than French citizens and travelled freely without documents in parts of France to which Frenchmen were unable to penetrate without special permits. He conducted the military authorities in the concentration camps altogether and was apprehended only when soldiers filed a complaint against him for obtaining money under false pretense that he could have them assigned to choice posts in the interior.
