WARNING!
 IN THE INTEREST OF THE PUBLIC SAFETY.
 The Rifle Range on the South Side Hill will be in constant use, from daylight till dark, for musketry practice, until our Regiment leaves for England.
 All persons are therefore prohibited from approaching the Rifle Range within 200 yards from either side, or within 1,000 yards of the targets to the eastward.
 Any unauthorized person so doing will be liable to arrest, besides incurring serious danger from rifle bullets.
 A number of red flags will be used to indicate the Danger Zone. This prohibition does not extend to any part of the Hills west of the 800 yards Firing Point.

 We hold the agency for a fine Lighting System for town and outports. This system generates its own gas from Kerosene Oil, is perfectly safe and gives a better and brighter light than electricity at only a fraction of the cost.
 Owing to the many other lines which we handle we have not time to work this agency properly, but it should prove a fortune to any man with a little spare cash and time to work the city and outports thoroughly.
 We offer to transfer the agency and our stock comprising Table Lamps, Shop Lamp, House Lamps, Tanks, Hollow Wire, Tools, etc. (which cost us over $110), for SEVENTY-FIVE DOLLARS CASH. We also have a list of applicants in the city and outports for particulars re these lamps, many of whom could be turned into customers.
 It costs you nothing to investigate. Demonstration arranged.

A Great Intrigue, —OR, THE—
Mistress of Darracourt.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Susie's knees trembled and gave way under her, and, overwhelmed by horror, she slipped to the ground, and, to hide her white face, bent as if to pick some flowers.

"Yes, Harry Horne," repeated the marquis, gravely. "It need be no secret, for I shall communicate to the police in an hour all I have told you. But perhaps you had better not mention the matter for a little while."

"No, no, I won't say anything," she assented, in a frightened voice. "But Harry Horne! It seems quite incredible. Such a nice young fellow—a gentleman he always seemed—"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Yes, I am bitterly grieved and shocked to think that any one who has lived in the place so long—that any one who was born here, under the shadow of the house, as it were—should have committed this crime; that is, if it should prove to be him. Of course, there is only the fact of Forbes finding him lurking about the place at present. He may be innocent. No one will be more delighted than I shall be to find that my suspicions have been misplaced and that I have wronged him."

"Yes, yes," she assented. "But—how could he get at the plate? How did he learn the secret word?"

There was a minute's silence, during which Susie raised her white face and seemed to listen with her heart in her mouth.

The marquis shook his head.

"I cannot tell! There is only one way which I can think of."

"What is that?" she asked.

"I don't like to mention it—"

"Oh, please!—I am all on fire with curiosity and interest!"

"Well," he said, slowly, reluctantly. "Mind, you force me, Miss Verne!"

"Yes; do not mind me: speak quite openly."

"He may have obtained the information from you!"

"From me!" exclaimed Marie Verne; then she dropped her head and plucked at the convolulus in her hands as if nervously.

"Yes; you say you told Miss Darracourt. Were you alone when you told her?"

"I—I don't remember," she stammered. "Were we alone? I quite forget. I'm so confused that I can't recall—why, yes, I think so. I am not sure. Oh, dear, how dreadful this is!"

"Don't let it trouble you," he said, in a kindly way, "or I shall regret having told you anything about it."

Marie drew a long breath, eying the cowering Susie at her feet.

"I wish you hadn't told me the word, then I couldn't have told it to anyone else," she said, fervently. "But there, it's too late now. Oh, dear, I feel so dreadfully upset! I shan't dare to tell Lucille!"

"Do not," he said, gravely. "Wait for a little while, at any rate. The less the matter is talked about the present the more chance we have of catching the thief, be he whom he may."

"Yes," she assented. "I must go now. My head aches terribly, and I feel as if I had stolen the plate myself! Only think if it should turn out to be my fault! I should never forgive myself!"

"And I shall never forgive myself for telling you the word, in that case," he said, gently. "Pray, think no more of it. We shall get hold of the culprit before many hours are over, and I have no doubt I shall recover my property."

"Oh, I hope so!" she exclaimed.

"Good-bye. Come up and tell Miss Darracourt all about it."

"I will, after I have seen the police," he said, and raising his hat he walked quickly away.

Marie Verne gathered her flowers together, uttering little exclamations of dismay.

"Come, Susie," she said. "I am so intensely upset that I don't know what I am doing."

Susie rose white and trembling.

"Oh, miss, how good of you not to tell him!" she gasped, clasping her hands.

"Tell him, the marquis, what?"

"That I was in the room when you were talking about the secret word, Miss Marie. I thought I should have died, miss, all the time. For I am the only other person who knows the word, excepting you and Miss Lucille."

"Yes," said Marie, gravely. "And you are sure that you did not tell any one, Susie?"

"Sure. Quite—quite sure," declared poor Susie. "I never mentioned it to a living soul, Miss Marie; it has never passed my lips."

"Then it is not from you that Harry Horne got the word," said Marie, thoughtfully.

Susie's face flushed and then grew pale again.

"Harry! Master Harry!" she exclaimed, indignantly. "Do you think that it's Master Harry who has done it, miss? Why, he wouldn't do it to— to save his life! Master Harry steal the silver things from the marquis! Why, he'd rather die first! Oh, it's quite impossible, Miss Marie!"

"Yes, I think so, too, Susie; but you heard what Lord Merie said: Harry Horne was seen lurking about the place—close to the window of the plate-room—"

"Oh, don't say 'lurking' Miss Marie!" broke in Susie, made quite courageous in her defence of the absent man. "Master Harry never lurks anywhere; he is too much—too much like a gentleman, Miss Marie! Besides, why should he lurk? If he wanted to go to the Hall, or the Court, he could go the same as any one else. Ah! if you knew him better, miss—as we all know him—you would say it was impossible that any one should think he did it."

"And yet the marquis thinks he did it," said Marie, watching her closely.

"The marquis. Yes, miss," assented Susie, hesitatingly; "but the marquis is no friend of Master Harry's, miss. He—he struck him with a whip, Miss Marie; and there's ill blood between them in other ways. It isn't for me to say so, Miss Marie, but I think—her voice trembled and dropped—"the marquis would do him an injury if he could."

"Wait a minute," said Marie; "I have never been inside the hut, let me see if he is at home."

She went to the window—as she spoke, and looked in.

"Come here, Susie," she said. "This is very strange; the whole place is in disorder as if—"

"Oh, no, I won't come, miss," said Susie, quite upset. "If Master Harry was to come and find us! Oh, please let us go!"

"Nonsense!" Marie said, sharply. "I am going in to see what this means."

And before Susie could utter another word she put the key in the door and unlocked it, and went in.

"He is not here," she said. "Come in—you need not be afraid. What a state the place is in. A pretty room, though," looking round.

"Yes, yes; let us go now, Miss Marie!" prayed Susie.

"In a minute. Books and drawings, and everything upset. I wonder where he can be? It looks as if he had been packing up—see how—all the things are tumbled about. He has been packing, too; there's string and paper all over the chair there. Susie, I don't like the look of this."

"Don't like the look of it, miss? What do you mean?"

Marie Verne looked at her with a troubled look in her eyes, and shook her head.

"Your friend Master Harry has gone," she said, darkly.

"Gone, miss?"

"Yes, gone!" She went to the door of the inner room and pushed it open with her foot as she spoke, and uttered a low exclamation. "Look, Susie. It is too true. The bed has not been slept in. He has flown!"

Susie went and stared, pale and troubled. The bed had not been slept in, as Marie Verne had said, and there were, too, palpable evidence of packing in this as in the other room.

"I don't like the look of it, Susie," said Marie Verne, shaking her head.

"Let us go! We must say nothing about it!"

"Oh, you are quite, quite wrong, miss!" broke in Susie, in a state of agitation. "Master Harry may have gone on a visit—he often goes to the town—"

"What, in the middle of the night, without a word to any one!" exclaimed Marie Verne. "Remember, he was seen in the Hall grounds last night—looking at the plate!" She walked round the room as she spoke, and stopping suddenly, uttered a cry of alarm. "Look, Susie! Oh, dear, dear!"

Susie dragged herself to her side and following the pointed finger with frightened eyes, saw an antique silver vase glittering under the table.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL
Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"You think so, do you?" said Marie, in a voice of pretended concern.

"Yes, miss," said Susie, wiping her eyes; "I do believe he would. And Master Harry's one that never did him any harm, too."

Marie Verne seemed to consider a little while, then she stopped short, as if an idea had struck her.

"Susie, if that you think is true, and the marquis is so great an enemy of Harry Horne's, he would not have much mercy upon him if he had him in his power."

"Mercy! No, Miss Marie," said Susie, with an air of troubled conviction. "The marquis wouldn't have much mercy on any one he didn't like; but, thank Heaven, he can't do Master Harry any harm. And as to his stealing this plate, why, miss, I'd as soon think it was the mistress herself. Which way are you going, miss?"

for Marie Verne had struck into the woods.

"I was just thinking of going and telling Harry Horne," she said.

Susie stopped short with an exclamation of alarm.

"Tell Master Harry what the marquis said?" she almost screamed.

"Why, miss, he'd kill us both; he'd be certain to go and kill the marquis. Oh, I wouldn't dare to, Miss Marie."

"But I dare," said Marie, with an air of virtuous indignation. "If what you say is true, Harry Horne ought to be warned, and I shall warn him."

"Then, may I go back home, please, miss?" implored Susie.

"No!" said Marie, sharply. "You will come with me; I cannot go alone. Don't be so stupid, Susie, he will not hurt us, and we may be doing him a service."

Trembling, her timid soul shrinking from the ordeal, Susie crept after her. Presently they came within sight of the hut. It looked strangely desolate, and a dog of Harry's came fawning and whining to them.

"Why, the place is shut up!" exclaimed Marie, with an air of surprise.

"He's out, miss," said Susie, with devout thankfulness. "Let us go, Miss Marie!"

"And here is the key on the doorstep," said Marie, picking it up; "that is strange."

"It may have fallen out of the lock, miss. Please let us go."

A Thought for the Times

CHAPTER VII.—THE WAR.

I. C. MORRIS.

War has its glory, and amid its many dangers and its awful horrors the thought of this glory has enthused the soldiery of both sides. This feeling is natural to all men; and in such times as these the passion is at its highest pitch. Nor could it be otherwise, for does not the declaration of war awaken memories long lost?

Or late years we have enjoyed, as much peace that we were beginning to lose our interest in the glories of our nation; and instead of reading the illustrious pages of history for instruction we have pored over the pages of some trashy novel for entertainment. The age is truly a reading age, but the books to which the majority of us devote our time are superficial and fictitious. This has robbed the present generation of much of its true patriotism and let it in a state of lamentable imperial ignorance. Some of us were unconscious of how little we knew of our Empire and its national life until the war broke out, and to properly understand the nation's position we have been obliged to overhaul our log book, and examine our geography. We had lost the glory of our sire. We have had so much sunshine and peace, that we were feeling inclined to "take it easy."

Peace is desirable, but not laxity; because in indulgence in the latter unfit us for the proper protection of the former. But at present we are all "on our mettle," and the nation's blood is up, and the glory of the past is tinkling in our veins. We seem to hear again the clarion notes of Waterloo, and to feel afresh the dash of "The Light Brigade," and already we have gained a better knowledge of the Empire. Our entire vision is widened, and we all see further than ever before.

This feature of the war is a desirable one, and whatever the loss may be, either in finances or in men, the nation will emerge from the conflict a greater power than ever before. Much of the useless appendices that may have grown up around her during her time of ease, will have been removed, and only the useful and necessary will be recognised. The cobwebs of years will be swept away, and a cleaner, brighter and more unified Empire will stand forth before the world, and Britain will be greater than ever. This will be one of the bright sides of this war, and also one of its greatest benefits and most illustrious glories. The price truly will be great—the price of blood and tears, of

SAFETY CITY NEWS

Safety First!

The chauffeurs and drivers of vehicles of all kinds should be most careful when crossing car tracks. If they do not take due regard for their own safety, they will not take any chances cutting across the tracks in front of moving street cars. Nor will they continue to drive on the tracks in front of cars after the first warning clang of the bell.

Master of the Road.
The only real anti-skid.

Never did Rim-Cut.
"Most envied Tire in all America."

The Battle Cry is on!

All over the country the people are of one voice in the fight for "Safety First."

More than two years ago we were telling motorists that Safety was the First Consideration in buying tires. We knew then, as we know now, that Dunlop Traction Tread is the one tire which ensures Safety in automobiling.

Dunlop Traction Tread having settled the point of the motorist's Safety, the battle cry is now tending to the Safety of "the man on the street." But Dunlop Traction Tread while protecting the motorist in his car also protects the pedestrian, even if he is negligent in his own regard, because perfect control of the car means perfect control of the situation. The Master Tire is always master of events.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hanson Frazier

An Anxious Day

After her brief dialogue with Calhoun, the stoupy Atlantan, Marian prolonged her stroll for over an hour, exploring nooks and bends of the river bank. She was heartily remorseful that she had purposely led Calhoun on, and allowed him to become sentimental. She realized now that she had undoubtedly made a great mistake in stirring this impetuous fellow up, and then throwing cold water on his ardor. He was different from the types of men she had had the most to do with in the past. She was genuinely sorry for him, and thoroughly sorry that she had permitted the first manifestation of his sentiments.

"Well," she concluded philosophically, "he'll take a few more drinks and forget that I ever lived."

Nevertheless, she was disturbed by vague fears, fears which his parting words had imparted and impressed upon her. Returning to the Inn after her ramble, she beheld at a distance the Inn's automobile start for its morning whirl to the railway station. She caught a fleeting glance of Calhoun, the only passenger, clambering into the tonneau of the touring car, followed by his bags, which one of the Inn's attendants swung into the car. The horn of the motor car tooted, and the vehicle sped off in a cloud of dust.

"So he's left," murmured Marian under her breath.

"Why this sudden departure of your friend?" inquired Mrs. McCarens curiously a moment later, when Marian encountered her in the Inn.

"Who's departure?" asked Marian innocently.

"Mr. Calhoun's. He's just gone. And you not here to bid him goodbye?" smiled the other.

"Called away on important business by the morning mail, I presume," returned Marian, wondering whether

The German Collapse.

On September 5th, the outlook was black. German forces had overrun almost the whole of Belgium and most of France north of a line drawn from the mouth of the River Somme to Paris and from Paris to Nancy. The allies seemed unable to stop the invading hordes of Germans. Shot and shell as they were, mowed down in thousands, there were more behind who forced on the advance all the time. But by September 5th, the blow was spent. The allies had given way all along the line. But the line had not been broken nor had their strength been squandered. The armies were kept intact, continually strengthened, and then came the rebound. Since that time the Germans have been driven back and back until their right wing which had been making such extraordinary forced marches of twenty miles a day has been shattered and they are now a demoralized mob, retreating as fast as they can, with the allies relentlessly cutting them to pieces. Something of the same character appears to be going on on the German front, but not to such a great degree, as they are more concentrated and have more favourable ground for defence. The centre is giving way fast and there now seems to be hope of cutting off the German retreat and inflicting on them a blow from which they will find it difficult to recover. To aid their centre and to keep their lines to Liege, Luxembourg and Metz clear they are withdrawing east from the northern and western parts of Belgium and it seems probable that Brussels will soon be evacuated. This great collapse is probably due in great part to the wonderful success of the Russians in Galicia and Poland, where not only have serious defeats been inflicted on the Germans, but the Austrians have already lost one-third of their soldiery and two-thirds of their artillery. The success continues it will not be long before the war is being carried on entirely on German and Austrian territories. How hard pushed the Germans are will be seen from the fact that they have been forced to put large numbers of their sailors in the field. One correspondent declares that the Germans have met their Moscow and soon must meet their Waterloo. May that not be long delayed.

Capt. Sam. Bartlett Back From Far North

IN HIS SCHOONER 'EFFIE M. MORRISSEY.'

After an absence of seven weeks, Captain Sam Bartlett arrived back last evening from Port Burwell, near Cape Chidley, where he carried a cargo of coal for the Canadian Government. The 'Effie' left here on July 25th with 200 tons of coal. Shortly after leaving port the new auxiliary engine, which Capt. Bartlett had installed in his craft last winter, gave out and could not be remedied. After that the vessel had to continue the journey under sail, which greatly impeded progress. Going north considerable ice was met and very thick. The 'Effie' got jammed several days unable to move, during which time she got her cutter away in an endeavoring to break through the ice. Regarding weather conditions, Capt. Bartlett said it was very changeable, some days calm and fine, and others stormy. The schooner reached her destination a distance of a thousand miles from St. John's on August 17th. Her coal cargo was put on board the Canadian Government steamer Acadia. Capt. Bartlett also saw the steamers Minto and Arrammore at Port Burwell which are establishing light-houses and engaged at other work there. After remaining two days the 'Effie' left Port Burwell on August 19th. The return trip was made quicker and under more favorable circumstances than going north, owing to all the ice having broken up. Capt. Bartlett, speaking to the Telegram, said he had nothing of a startling character to report. There was an abundance of fish at Port Burwell but there was nobody catching it. Capt. Sam belongs to a family that have made fame and success as daring navigators and intrepid explorers of the north. Although he has passed the three score and ten mark he is as hale and as active as a man twenty years his junior and at present has no notion of retiring from the scene of adventure. He is the uncle of Capt. Bob Bartlett, who, it is universally known, has added pages to the world's history by reason of his heroism and achievements both in the Arctic and Antarctic regions.

The Ever Ready Safety Razor (improved) is decidedly the best dollar's worth you can get in the Razor line. For it includes a dozen specially ground blades of fine steel, and these will give six months' daily shaves without stropping. Add to this the fact that it is impossible to cut yourself with the Ever Ready, and the amount of time saved over either the use of the ordinary razor or the barber, and you will appreciate the fact that it pays well to use the Ever Ready. The new Ever Ready frame is a great improvement on the older style, being heavier and much more substantial. Price $1.00 complete. Extra blades 50 cts. for 12, 40c. for 6. Be sure and get the Ever Ready.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is moderately and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland. — sept 14

MARSHALL BROTHERS.

The Glory of Manual Labor.

By RUTH CAMERON.

With the one exception of religious intolerance, I think the popular prejudice is that narrow minded, unthinking prejudice against manual labor as compared with brain work. As if one could separate the two in the first place! As if it did not require certain by no means despicable mental qualities, and what is more certain fine qualities of character, to do most kinds of manual labor.

Every time I do any considerable piece of manual labor I am impressed anew by the patience, the perseverance, the painstaking which is required to do those things well.

A friend of mine who frequently complains of the price charged at the garage for cleaning his automobile, decided the other day to clean it himself, in the early part of Saturday afternoon and take his family out for a ride later on. He did not go to ride. There was just time enough left for a much needed bath before dinner, when he had finished with the machine. And the worst of it was that although he had finished with it and it had certainly finished him, he had by no means properly finished the job of cleaning it.

Here was a spot of mud which he had missed; there a bar left uncleaned; he had not removed the tarnish from several of the brass fittings, and had completely forgotten to wash the glass in his lights. He would certainly have complained of any garage which had turned his machine out in such shape.

"I wouldn't have believed there were so many parts to the blame thing," he said.

Of course he wouldn't. None of us ever do realize the patience and will directed energy it takes to perform a thousand and one manual services which we receive as a matter of course from day to day, until we try to do some of them ourselves.

You think you are vastly superior to a carpenter, don't you, Mr. Professor? Yet I fancy he could teach your classes things worth knowing quite as well as you could build a house fit to live in.

You probably look down on the washerwoman, Miss Stenographer, but to my mind anyone who can take an unsavory heap of soiled clothes and transmute them into something sweet smelling, snowy and dainty, does a very fine thing. Indeed it seems to me that she is writing poetry in the language of work.

Genius some one has said is an infinite capacity for taking pains. Even the humblest day laborer may be a genius.

GERMAN SAVAGERIES.

BELGIUM'S PROTEST.
(Issued by the Press Bureau.)
The Belgian Minister has made the following statement:—
"In spite of solemn assurances of good will and longstanding treaty obligations, Germany has made a sudden, savage and utterly unwarranted attack on Belgium.

"However sorely pressed she may be, Belgium will never fight unfairly and never stoop to infringe the laws and customs of legitimate warfare. She is putting up a brave fight against overwhelming odds, she may be beaten, she may be crushed, but to quote our noble King's words, 'She will never be enslaved.'

"When German troops invaded our country the Belgian Government issued public statements which were placarded in every town, village and hamlet warning all civilians to abstain scrupulously from hostile acts against the enemy's troops. The Belgian Press daily published similar notices through the land. Nevertheless, the German authorities have issued hateful statements containing grave imputations against the attitude of the Belgian civilian population, threatening us at the same time with dire reprisals. These imputations are contrary to the real facts of the case and, as to threats of further vengeance, no menace of odious reprisals on the part of the German troops will deter the Belgian Government from protesting before the civilized world against the fearful and atrocious crimes committed wilfully and deliberately by the invading hosts against helpless non-combatants, old men, women and children."

"Long is the list of outrages committed by the German troops and appalling details of atrocities, as touched for by the Committee of Inquiry recently formed by the Belgian Minister of Justice and presided over by him. This Committee comprises the highest judicial and university authorities of Belgium, such as Chief Justice Van Iseghem, Judge Nys, Professors Cottier, Wodon, etc.

"The following instances and particulars have been established by careful investigations based in each instance on the evidence of reliable eye-witnesses:—

"German cavalry occupying the village of Linneuseux were attacked by some Belgian infantry and two German officers were killed by our troops during the fight, and subsequently buried at the request of the Belgian officer in command. No one of the civilian population took part in the fighting at Linneuseux. Nevertheless the invaders divided these peasants in three groups; those in one group were bound and eleven of them placed in a ditch, where they were afterwards found dead, their skulls fractured by the butts of German rifles.

"During the night of August 10, German cavalry entered Velm in great numbers. The inhabitants were asleep. The Germans, without provocation, fired on M. Deglinme-Gevers's house, broke into it, destroyed furniture, looted money, burnt barns, hay and corn stacks, farm implements, six oxen, and the contents of the farmyard. They carried off Mrs. Deglinme-Gevers half naked to a place two miles away. She was then let go and was fired upon as she fled, without being hit. Her husband was carried away in another direction and fired upon. He is dying. The same troops sacked and burned the house of a railway watchman.

"Farmer J. J. Dieck, of Neerhespen, bears witness to the following acts of cruelty committed by German cavalry at Orsmel and Neerhespen on August 10, 11 and 12:—

"An old man of the latter village had his arm sliced in three by tonight's rifle; he was then hurled head downwards and buried alive. Young girls have been violated and little children outraged at Orsmel, where several inhabitants suffered mutilations too horrible to describe. A Belgian soldier belonging to a battalion of cyclist carabinieri, who had been wounded and made prisoner, was hanged, while another, who was tending his comrade, was bound to a telegraph pole on the St. Trouw road and shot.

"On Wednesday, August 12th, after an engagement at Haeleu, Commandant van Damme, so severely wounded that he was lying prone on his back, was finally murdered by German infantrymen firing their revolvers into his mouth.

"On August 9, at Orsmel, the Germans picked up Commandant Knapen, very seriously wounded, propped him up against a tree and shot him. Finally they hacked his corpse with their swords.

"In different places, notably at Hologuesur-Geer, Barchon, Pontisse, Haeleu, and Zelck, German troops have fired on doctors, ambulance bearers, ambulances, and ambulance wagons carrying the Red Cross.

"At Boncelles a body of German troops marched into battle carrying a Belgian flag.

"On Thursday, August 6, before a fort at Lige, German soldiers continued to fire on a party of Belgian soldiers (who were unarmed and had been surrounded while digging a trench) after these had hoisted the white flag.

"On the same day at Vottem, near the fort of Lincin, a group of German infantry hoisted the white flag. When Belgian soldiers approached to take them prisoner the Germans suddenly opened fire on them at close range.

"Harrowing reports of German savagery at Aerschot have reached the Belgian Government at Antwerp from official local sources.

"In one single street the first six male inhabitants who crossed their thresholds were seized and shot at once under the very eyes of their wives and children.

"They compelled the inhabitants to leave their houses and marched them to a place 200 yards from the town. There, without more ado, they shot M. Thielemans, the burgomaster, his fifteen year old son, the clerk of the local judicial board, and ten prominent citizens. They then set fire to the town and destroyed it.

"The following statement was made by Commandant Georges Gilson, of the 9th Infantry of the Line, now lying in hospital at Antwerp:—

"I was told to cover the retreat of our troops in front of Aerschot. During the action fought there on Wednesday, August 19th, between six and eight o'clock in the morning, suddenly I saw on the high road between the German and Belgian forces, which were fighting at close range, a group of four women with babies in their arms and two little girls clinging to their skirts. Our men stopped firing till the women got through our lines, but the German machine guns went on firing all the time, and one of the women was wounded in the arm. These women could not have got through the neighboring German lines and been on the high road unless with the consent of the enemy.

All the evidence and circumstances seem to point to the fact that those women had been deliberately pushed forward by the Germans to act as a shield for their advance guard, and in the hope that the Belgians would cease firing for fear of killing the women and children.

"This statement was made and duly certified in the Antwerp Hospital on August 22nd, by Commandant Gilson in the presence of the Chevalier Ernest N. Bunsyweck, Chief Secretary to the Belgian Minister of Justice, and M. de Carlier de Marchienne, Belgian Minister to China.

"Further German atrocities are continuously being brought to notice and made the subject of official and expert inquiry by the proper authorities.

"In publishing the above statements the only comment the Press Bureau can offer is that these atrocities appear to be committed in villages and throughout the country side with the deliberate intention of terrorizing the people, and so making it unnecessary to leave troops in occupation of small places or to protect lines of communication. In large places like Brussels, where the diplomatic representatives of neutral Powers are eye-witnesses, there appear to have been no excesses."

RUSSIANS TAKE PRISONERS.
LONDON, Sept. 14. The Governor, St. John's, Nfld. The following is from the Press Bureau:—

Russian successes against the Austrians continue. As a result of one victory, the Russians captured 30,000 prisoners and several hundred guns. The Australian Naval Reserve forces have captured the Wireless Station at Herbersdorf. Casualties: Two British officers killed, one wounded, four seamen killed, three wounded. German casualties: Over 20 killed; two officers, 15 non-commissioned officers, prisoners, also 56 native police.

All day yesterday the enemy stubbornly disputed the passage of the Aisne by our troops, but despite the difficulty of forcing the river against strong opposition, nearly all the crossings were secured by sunset. On our right and left the French troops were confronted with a similar task, in which, like ourselves, they succeeded. Many more prisoners were taken. The French headquarters reports that the Crown Prince's Army has been driven back and his headquarters moved from Ste. Menchould to Montfaucon.

(Sgd.) HARCOURT.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, Sept. 14. (Official) To our left the enemy had prepared north of the Aisne, between Compeigne and Soissons, a line of defence which they were compelled to abandon. The German detachments remaining at Amiens withdrew to Peronne and St. Quentin, in the centre the Germans had also organized a stronghold behind Rheims which they have abandoned. In the region of Argonne they have returned north beyond Bellinot forest and Thioncourt. At the right wing there was a general retreat of the Germans yesterday, and the territory from Nancy to the Vosges is completely clear. Kaiser, from peronne on the 7th, was following the movements of the armies in the direction of Nancy. Although great precautions were taken by the German authorities, news of their defeat leaked out in Germany through Switzerland, causing great despair. In several towns the inhabitants started manifestations calling out for news. From Ostend reports are circulating that quarrels have arisen at Brussels between Prussian and Bavarian soldiers. In one case ten were killed. Since yesterday in Germany, bread is being made of barley and potatoes, and, further more, orders have been issued to economize in cattle. A despatch from Nish says the Serbian offensive continues with success on the left bank of the Save. On the remainder of the front the situation is unchanged.

DRIVING THE GERMANS BACK.

LONDON, Sept. 14. A despatch from Petrograd states that persistent rumors are current there that the larger part of the Austrian armies capitulated yesterday.

RELIEF OF VERDUN.

LONDON, Sept. 14. The army of Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm, comprising the flower of the German forces, has been driven northward, was the significant announcement of the Official War Bureau this afternoon. It was stated that as a result of the fierceness of the French assault in force the Crown Prince was forced to remove his headquarters from Ste. Menchould, on the main highway, 25 miles southwest

TO STOP A COLD QUICKLY AND PREVENT CATARRH, USE "CATARRHOZONE."

Right to where the living germ of Catarrh is working will the healing fumes of Catarrhozone go in ten seconds. No liquid medicine can penetrate to the deep recesses that Catarrhozone bathes with its soothing vapor—that's just why it proves so wonderfully effective. The health-laden vapor of Catarrhozone cures the worst of coughs and hoarseness. The innermost parts of the bronchial tubes are reached. Bronchitis is cured—every cell in the head, throat and nose is treated by Catarrhozone's wonderful fumes. You can't beat Catarrhozone for hoarseness, weak throat, sore nostrils, catarrhal and bronchial troubles of any kind. Get the complete $1.00 outfit. Smaller size 50c. Trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

Right to where the living germ of Catarrh is working will the healing fumes of Catarrhozone go in ten seconds.

Nothing more serious than the common cold. If it gains headway you can't stop it from running into Catarrh, deafness, or serious throat trouble. Catarrh spreads very fast. From nose to throat it goes in a day. Soon the Bronchial tubes are affected—and before you know it, unless very healthy the lungs are hit, and it's too late. While you have the chance, drive colds and Catarrh right out of the system. You can quickly do so by inhaling the rich piney vapor of Catarrhozone.

too overjoyed to express their emotion by noise or singing; but men were seen embracing each other with fervour, while women gave vent to their feelings by crying quietly. Everybody is amazed at the unexpected change in the tide of war and fullest credit is given to General Pau who is regarded as having by prompt and decided strategy changed the face of the campaign.

THE GERMAN RETREAT.

LONDON, Sept. 14. A despatch to the Times from Paris, says: "The General in command in Paris has a half million fresh troops under his control which will be used presumably in pursuing the enemy. News that the German forces from Port a Mousson to Saint Die are falling back shows that the five German armies of General Von Kluck and Von Buelow—Crown Prince Frederick William and the Duke of Wurtemberg and that operating in Moselle are in retreat. The difficulties of the retreating army are many and there are good chances that the allies may annihilate them before they reach the frontier. The Germans appear to be abandoning their natural route along the valley of the Oise and endeavoring to withdraw further eastward to the barren and difficult country of the Champagne where the roads are poor and provisions are scant, and beyond to the forest of Ardennes. To the east the wooded ridges of the forest of Eguonne form as formidable barriers to progress as an army could have. Beyond again is the Meuse most of the bridges of which will be destroyed if they actually have abandoned the Oise Valley the German lines of communication are reduced to one passing by Givet, Namur and Liege, the other passing by Metz, Montmady and Luxembourg. The next line to the south is commanded by the guns at Verdun.

IMMENSE CAVALRY LOSSES.

LONDON, Sept. 14. A despatch to the Express from Paris says the German losses in cavalry are appalling. A German cavalry officer who competed at the Olympic Horse Show a few years ago and who is now a prisoner, estimates that the wastage in cavalry horses, especially in Belgium, amounts to two-thirds of the total strength allotted to the army operating in the direction of Paris.

DRIVEN FROM THEIR FORTRESSES.

PARIS, Sept. 14. The German armies of invasion have been dislodged from all fortified positions and are retreating rapidly and in disorder everywhere. This information was issued here by the Military Governor of Paris on authority from Bordeaux this afternoon.

RUSSIANS IN BELGIUM.

LONDON, Sept. 14. "In a despatch from Ghent, the correspondent of the Daily News says that after two days of investigating he has confirmed the statement that Russian troops are in Belgium.

THE RUSSIAN STORY AGAIN.

ANTWERP, Sept. 14. The Russian reinforcements landed at Ostend are estimated to number between 207,000 and 300,000 men. They came from England, being transported by the Aquitania and Oceanic; others came direct from Archangel by Union and Castle liners.

NOT CONFIRMED.

LONDON, Sept. 14. Premier Asquith stated in the Commons this afternoon that the Government was without confirmation of the reports that German soldiers had fired on Red Cross flags and killed and mutilated wounded or killed women and children, as has been alleged in certain charges published. The Premier next announced that no further steps will be taken with Irish Home Rule or Welsh Disestablishment Bills for twelve months or in any event until the end of the war. He explained that the Home Rule and Welsh Disestablishment Bills would be placed on the statute books at once, but that they will not be put into operation until the end of the war.

War News. Official.

THE FOLLOWING BULLETIN WAS POSTED AT ST. PIERRE TO-DAY.

ST. PIERRE, This Afternoon. Official.—On the right wing we have caught up with rear guards and even main bodies of the German armies. Our troops entered Amiens, abandoned by the Germans. The latter still seem to hold on a front outlined on Aisne. At the centre the enemy is resisting on the heights north and northwest of Reims but between Mount Argonne and the River Meuse they are falling back on the right wing. In Woereve, the French troops have managed to clear the fort of Tryon violently attacked. For the past few days on Lorraine, the French detachments have been in pursuit of the enemy and keeping a good offensive. The spirits and health of our armies continue excellent.

It is rumored that the Germans are trying to establish a stronghold in Luxembourg. Mr. Poincaré has communicated a telegram from King Albert, saying a great victory won by the great bravery and the military genius of allied armies has caused us immense joy. I am requested to convey to you and the Belgian nations hearty congratulations. We hold an unshaken confidence in final success. Mr. Poincaré tendered his thanks, adding that the French troops were proud to fight side by side with the brave Belgians and the British for Liberty, Civilization and Justice. No one will forget what the great Belgian people did for the common cause.

The offensive of the Belgians is continuing vigorously on a very large battle front. The Belgians are re-occupying Arraschot, Trelmont. On the railway line to Brussels, Lege and Aix-la-Chapelle they put the Germans in a very dangerous position, compelling the enemy to show fight. On the right wing, the Belgians owing to the superior numbers of their adversaries were compelled to retire on their positions, but the left wing was successful. The Belgians entered Termonde, of which thousands of houses were destroyed and fourteen hundred priceless art works were also destroyed.

Nerviline Ends Neuralgia, Brings Relief Instantly.

No Remedy Like Old "Nerviline" to Cure Pain or Soreness.

That terrible ache—how your fairly reel with it—that stabbing, burning neuralgia—what misery it causes. Never mind, you don't have to suffer—use Nerviline, it's a sure cure. Not an experiment, because nearly forty years of wonderful success has made a name for Nerviline among the people of many different nations. There is nothing speedier to end Neuralgia headache than old-time "Nerviline," writes Mr. G. C. Dalgleish, from Evanston. "It is so powerful and penetrating that it seems to eat up any pain in a minute. My family couldn't get along with out Nerviline. We always keep the 50c. family size bottle handy on the shelf, and use it to end chest colds, sore throat, coughs, ear-ache, toothache and pain in the back. My wife swears by Nerviline. For cramps its effect is astonishing and we believe it is better and speedier than any other household family remedy."

Crowds Delighted

WITH LADS IN THE OVERALLS. Matinee and night Rosaley's was filled and every one was delighted with the Lads in the Overall. It is the most novel act ever seen, and our own city children gave one of the best exhibitions of singing and dancing ever given yet by those youngsters. Their first number in bare feet was the prettiest thing they have ever done, and Mrs. Rosaley is to be complimented on her latest show. The two babies—Dodd and Kelly—certainly excelled themselves last night, and must have cost their trainer, Mrs. Rosaley, many a long practice; it was well worth the price of admission this one act. Besides the great two reel feature, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a marvellous film, the other dramas and comedies were very good. Also, coming by the S. E. Carthaginian are four British Belles. These young English ladies are all good singers, expert dancers, with the most beautiful wardrobe in the business.
