Stella Mordaunt:
The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XXIII.

It seemed only the other day that she was running about the island like a boy, and here she was in an English mansion, surrounded by luxury, the guest of an English nobleman and his sister! It was so strange, so sudden a change that she felt confused; but Stella was not lacking in common sense and will-power, and she resolved that the arrangement she had made with Lady Cecilia should be carried out.

She was a companion, a dependant and she could at least endeavour to earn the money with which she would make her way back to Rath.

Meanwhile, Cecilia was lecturing to her brother in his own room. "You really must be careful, Cecil," she said, half laughingly. "The way in which you said, 'Welcome to the Abbey,' the expression of your face, were too plain."

"I know," he said, penitently. "I know I gave myself away. I could not help it. To see her here, under my roof, see her with the innocent wonder in her olive eyes as she looked round—But she did not notice?"

Lady Cecilia shook her head thoughtfully. "No, she did not notice your tone and manner, Cecil. She is quite innocent and blind, at present. I wonder what it is that so completely occupies her mind, that keeps her so ignorant of your infatuation for her?"

"Don't call it infatuation," he said. "It is an ignoble word for such a love as mine. But I will be careful, Cis."

"You must, if—if you hope to win her," she said. "I have a feeling, a presentiment, that if she knew you loved her, she would—"

"What?"

"Take flight," said his sister, gravely; "so be cautious for my sake, for I have grown very fond of her, and I don't want to lose her."

"To lose her!" he echoed, with dismay.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Amongst the dresses which Lady Cecilia had lent to Stella was an evening one. It was a simple affair of black silk and lace, and the maid, who, notwithstanding Stella's protest, appeared when the dressing-bell rang selected it for Stella's wear, and helped her on with it.

Stella and Lady Cecilia were of the same height, and the dress fitted remarkably well; and Lord Lisle, as he waited for her at the bottom of the stairs, had hard work to keep his admiration from revealing itself in his eyes.

Few will escape a cold this winter, but alas! many colds run into Catarrh.

Neglected Catarrh is the straight gateway to consumption.

Catarrhose is a germ-killer—destroys microbes that cause Catarrh.

It heals and soothes, relieves the cough, gives throat and lungs a chance, cleanses the nostrils, clears out the phlegm.

"You are not looking a bit tired," he said, as if by not doing so she had deserved well of the State. "This is the drawing-room. Wants doing up—redecorating—doesn't it?"

But Stella stood enraptured by the beauty of the room with its panelled ceiling, and ivory and gold walls, its ormolu furniture, and costly pictures.

"Why, it's perfect!" she said. "Then I hope you will like the dining-room," he said, with half-concealed eagerness. "It is in better order than this. It was restored, refurbished, by my uncle, the late owner of the Abbey. He spent some pains and money over the picture-gallery and music-room; he was an enthusiast on music."

"Now, your promise, Cecil!" exclaimed Lady Cecilia, entering at that moment.

He laughed. "Pardon, Miss Mordaunt! I forgot my promise. Come along. You ought to be hungry, if you are not."

He gave Stella his arm and led her into the dining-room. It was a magnificent apartment, panelled with oak, and lightened by modern pictures of famous artists. The butler and a couple of footmen waited at the table, and Stella noticed the magnificent array of heavy plate. Only a few weeks ago she had eaten her meals in the open, under a tree, or on the beach, and the strange and sudden contrast might well have confused and embarrassed her; but, to Lady Cecilia's satisfaction and delight, Stella was perfectly self-possessed and free from any appearance of gaucherie. She accepted the service of the stately butler and his satellites, the footmen, as if she had been accustomed to them all her life, and Lady Cecilia unconsciously breathed a sigh of relief and satisfaction.

She, like her brother Cecil, had been fascinated by Stella's beauty and the nameless charm which she wielded so unconsciously. But Lady Cecilia was, of course, alive to the objections which might be urged against a marriage between a Lisle of Lisle Abbey and a waif of the sea. She brushed aside her own aristocratic prejudices and was willing, indeed anxious, that he should win Stella, and admitted she herself was not proof against the charm which Stella so unconsciously wielded.

And this charm, this fascination, was intensified when they went into the drawing-room after dinner, and Lord Lisle, quite by chance, said: "Do you play, Miss Mordaunt?"

Stella hesitated. She had a sweet voice, a voice which had been made strong by singing to Rath in the open air on the island; but she was reluctant to trying it here, in the magnificent drawing-room of the Abbey; but Lady Cecilia drew Stella's arm within hers and led her to the piano. "I have not sung for—for so long!"

Stella said, "I don't know whether I can or not."

"Let us see, dear," said Lady Cecilia; and she sat down and struck some chords.

"I must play for myself, I am afraid," said Stella. "But it is so long since I saw a piano."

Lady Cecilia rose, and Stella seated herself at the piano. It was, as she had said, so long since she had played, and sung to, an instrument, that she felt strange; but after a moment or two she remembered the notes, and played and sang that melody which no one can sing fairly well without bringing tears into the eyes of the listeners, "Eily Mavourneen."

As she sang it, she thought of the island, and of Rath, and the last notes of the song—the sweetest, the saddest, ever written—were tremulous with her emotion.

Lisle stood near the piano, a smile on his face, but an aching pain in his heart. If he should lose her! He was so agitated by the longing, the desire that possessed him that he left the room.

Stella slept little that night. The present, the actual, were mixed inextricably with the past, and she dreamt that she was back in the island, singing to Rath as he felled a tree, or made snares for the wild duck, or that he was carrying her in his arms across the beach, and her head was lying on his shoulder.

Next morning the late autumn sun filled her bedroom with light, and as she woke from a dream of the island and of Rath, the maid came in with a cup of tea.

"My lady said I was not to wake you, miss," she said, shyly, for she was a country-girl just promoted to the position of lady's-maid; "but I heard you sigh as I opened the door, and I knew you were awake."

Stella raised herself on her elbow and looked at the girl dreamily. "You must have sharp ears," she said.

The girl blushed, and looked down. "I sleep in the little room next yours, miss," she said, as if in explanation, "and I—I heard you crying in the night—Oh! I beg your pardon, miss! I didn't mean to be disrespectful!"

Stella motioned to her to come nearer to her, and looked at her. The girl was pretty, but rather pale and sad-looking.

"What is your name?" asked Stella.

"Bligh, miss—Susy Bligh," replied the girl.

"But, Susy, you must have been awake to have heard me crying—if I did cry," said Stella, shrewdly.

The girl's face flushed, then grew pale again.

"I—I didn't sleep very well, miss," she said.

"What is the matter?" asked Stella, pushing the falling hair from her face and regarding the girl with gentle curiosity.

Susy hung her head and bit her lip softly, then she hastily wiped a tear from her eyes.

"He—he enlisted, miss, and—and he's gone abroad with his regiment," she faltered.

Stella took the girl's hand and stroked it, and poor Susy, overcome by such tender and unexpected sympathy, sank on her knees beside the bed and hid her face in her hands.

"I'm—I'm very sorry, miss, and I beg your pardon, and hope you'll overlook it," she sobbed, apologetically. "I don't know what made me tell you, I don't. It was the kind way you looked and spoke to me. And I hope you won't tell Lady Cecilia that I—that I cried."

"No, I will not tell her," said Stella.

"Thank you, miss. She'd think me ungrateful, miss, and so it is; for I've got a good place, and I'm—I'm in every way comfortable; but I—I can't forget him. It's very wicked of me, miss, and of course you can't understand, being a lady, how a girl feels when her young man goes for a soldier, and is taken from her to some far foreign parts."

Stella smiled; it was a smile very near indeed to tears.

"I—I think I can understand, Susy; but you must not get low-spirited. He will come back presently; he will not forget you."

"Oh, no, no, miss; I'm not afraid of that!" sobbed the pretty, pale-faced girl. "But—but something may happen to him."

"Nothing will happen to him," said Stella, cheerfully. "He will come back safe and sound, and—and you will be married and happy ever afterwards, Susy."

The girl's smile broke through her tears, and she edged nearer to Stella, and looked at her gratefully.

"Thank you, miss," she faltered. "You are very kind to overlook my foolishness, and—and, oh, do you think you'd like me for your maid? If you would, I should be so glad; and, indeed, I'd do my best, miss."

"If I have a maid, you shall be the one, Susy," said Stella. "But, Susy, you—you must not tell anyone you heard me crying in the night."

The girl looked shocked by the injunction.

"Oh, no, no, miss! Why, miss, how do I know that you haven't some trouble like mine—begging your pardon, miss, for presuming."

"There is no need to beg my pardon, Susy," said Stella. "We all have our troubles, and—and I have mine."

Stella mentioned the girl to Lady Cecilia at breakfast that morning.

"May you have her? Certainly, my dear Stella," said Lady Cecilia, at once. "She is a very nice girl, I believe. She was in the laundry, but Mrs. Hopkins has taken her in hand lately, and trained her for a visitors' maid. Why, have you taken a fancy to her? She is rather a pretty girl, isn't she?"

"Yes," said Stella; but she did not add that her reason for taking to the girl was because Susy was separated from her sweetheart.

After breakfast, Lisle took the two girls over the Abbey and the grounds. He played the part of cicero with a modest pride, and was delighted with Stella's appreciation and admiration, which she could not find words to express.

"It isn't a bad old place," he said, with the modest kind of apology proper to the owner. "And when I've restored the east wing and—Who's this, Cis?" he broke off to ask.

The Difficulties of the Land Campaign at the Dardanelles—The Topography of the Gallipoli Peninsula.

(By Sir Edwin Pears in the Manchester Guardian.)

The forcing of the Dardanelles which has been undertaken by England and France, is a gigantic undertaking. I have nothing to say here as to the great advantages which will accrue to us if it is successful, or the injury that may be done to our prestige if we failed, which, of course, we shall not do. other shrubs growing thickly together, and giving thick cover for quail and other birds.

The portion of the peninsula which is clearest of scrub is that near Bulair. At that place there are encroachments reaching across the settlements from the Gulf of Xeros to the entrance of the Straits of Gallipoli from the Marmora. The lines were laid down by French engineers during the Crimean war, and the defence of these lines has never been altogether neglected. We may be certain that during the last six months it has been greatly strengthened by the Germans.

We have absolutely no information up to the present time of what has been done in that neighborhood by the Allies. It may be taken for certain that the leaders of the expedition, regarding such lines as the only gate of entrance landwards into the peninsula, have taken measures to secure them. It is to be noted, however, that even though we had absolute possession of the lines of Bulair, this would not prevent the sending of troops and munitions of war into the peninsula from Constantinople. For in the first place, they can pass through the entrance from the Marmora beyond Gallipoli and land at a dozen places, or, even if our ships from the Gulf of Xeros were able to attack successfully the transports passing into the Straits, with the aid of aeroplanes, they could land at various points on the south coast of Marmora and make their way overland to Lampsaki or even push on to Chanak. The lineal distance between Cape Helles and the great group of forts on the peninsula at Kilit Bahr, is not more than ten miles. But along the whole distance there are a series of small hills and valleys (the latter called deres) where the attacking is difficult.

Nfld. Women's Gifts for the Troops.

The women of Newfoundland have just sent to the St. John Ambulance the fifth consignment of warm clothes and comforts for the troops. It consists of about 40 cases and barrels filled with socks, shirts, sweaters, and almost every kind of article in use in a hospital.

Working under the direction of the Newfoundland centre of the St. John Ambulance Association, the Hon. Secretary of which is Mrs. Cluny Macpherson, the women of all classes have co-operated in the supply of these articles, which now amount to scores of thousands. Most of the socks are made by quite poor classes, who keep sheep for their own use, but who since the war have not only given the wool which is usually employed for their own garments, but have themselves made it into socks. One old lady of 82 has made eight pairs in three weeks, while the peasants reckon they can make a pair a day. The features of these consignments are the excellence of the material and work, the cleanliness and finish of all the articles, and the perfection of the packing.—London Times, May 4.

A Sensational Story

COMES FROM COKE OVEN DISTRICT.

Man Dead; May Have Received Injuries Which Caused His Death.—Was Looked After by Colored Men?

The death occurred at Whitney Pier yesterday of Thomas Cooke, a native of Carbonara, Nfld., after a very short illness. It was learned that Cooke had come to the hotel on Tuesday last after his ship had arrived in port, and taken possession of his room. He was apparently in his usual health and was about as usual.

On inquiry at the Atlantic Hotel where he had been, it is alleged, he went out, and after being absent for several hours, returned to the hotel looking as if he had been badly beaten, and with a bad cut on the head. It is said that he told persons at the hotel that he had been roughly handled by some colored men at the Coke Ovens.

The undertaker told the Post this morning that the physician in attendance had said that pneumonia had been the cause of death. The man had been lying in bed for some time.—Sydney Post, May 22.

The Forcing of the Narrows

The Difficulties of the Land Campaign at the Dardanelles—The Topography of the Gallipoli Peninsula.

Sir Edwin Pears in the Manchester Guardian. The forcing of the Dardanelles, which has been undertaken by England and France, is a gigantic undertaking. I have nothing to say here as to the great advantages which will accrue to us if it is successful, or the injury that may be done to our prestige if we failed, which, of course, we shall not do. I am concerned simply with giving your readers an idea of the topography of the Dardanelles, and especially of the Gallipoli peninsula. The only portion of the peninsula which need concern us is that which extends from its extreme end at Cape Helles, as far as the lines of Bulair, which is about a distance of forty miles. The width of the peninsula varies greatly from about three miles at Bulair, increasing gradually beyond the town of Gallipoli on the south until nearly ten miles of width is attained about twenty miles from Cape Helles, then again suddenly decreasing until it reaches a place opposite Nagara Point, which is on the Asiatic side of the Straits, until it terminates at Cape Helles, where it is less than two miles across.

The general direction of the peninsula from northeast to southwest. On the north it is bounded as to two-thirds of its length by the Gulf of Neos, on the remaining third by the Aegean. There are three neighboring islands, of which the telegrams have already made mention, and of which we shall hear more. Right at the mouth of the Aegean entrance and about five miles distant are a series of rocks, known as Rabbit Islands. The most important of them belongs to a British subject. The second island is Tenedos, which is three or four miles farther south and about a mile and a half from the shore. It has a high peak, which enables those who climb it to see over the range of low hills, which separate the valley of Troy from the Aegean, and whence we had telegrams recently stating that the inhabitants were watching a bombardment made by the French at Kum Kale and beyond it. The third island worth mentioning is Imbros, which lies a little to the northwest of Cape Helles and is evidently a base for the fleet.

Hills and no Roads.

The Peninsula is traversed by a long series of hills which give travelers by the sea the impression that they range from 250 to 500 feet high, but the chart shows that there are one or two points that rise to a thousand or eleven hundred feet. The peculiarity about the range of hills is that they are broken transversely through their entire length, so as to leave an impression that they are often at right angles to the sea. It will be recognized at once that a hilly country of this kind is well suited to the hiding of batteries and ill-suited for the marching of an army. On the side of the Dardanelles the hills throughout the southern portion usually come down abruptly to the sea, practically leaving little or no beach. This is conspicuously the case in the Narrows, by which is meant a range of about six miles between a point immediately opposite Nagara Point southwards past Maidos, the great forts at Kilit Bahr, and the others of a group of forts immediately opposite Chanak.

There is very little plain land throughout the peninsula, and its chief track, hardly worth the name of a road, runs between the great ranges sloping down to the Dardanelles and one of less height on the shore of the Gulf of Xeros. Most of these hills are covered with a low scrub of dwarf oak or arbutos bushes, with

The Extra Tariff of March, 1914.

Statements tabled in the House of Assembly show that the tariff imposed some fourteen months ago for the government to make up for the reduction made in 1913 produced between March 11th, 1914, and March 31st, 1915, a period of three weeks over a year. This revenue amounted to $382,442, instead of the $720,000 it was calculated to bring in. The most productive of the articles taxed were the following:

Rum	$33,274
Whiskey	12,211
Butterine	35,841
Tobacco	21,901
Cigarettes	26,272
Surtax	242,952

These items alone accounted for $372,461 out of $382,442. It will be seen from this that the balance representing revenue from other articles is little, and the proof is afforded that little of the extra taxation imposed came on the men with tens of thousands a year, who ride in automobiles and drink wine, on whom the Premier said he intended to make the new taxes fall. An effective commentary on this is that those who drink rum, by so doing, provided $33,274 of the new taxation, and those who drank champagne provided by that means $37. The Premier said he intended to make the new taxes fall on those who drink rum, by so doing, provided $33,274 of the new taxation, and those who drank champagne provided by that means $37. Word has been received that the S.S. Florizel, which made a trip to Cuba and other Southern ports, will leave New York for here on June 12th, coming via Charlottetown and that the Stephano will leave New York for Halifax and this port on Monday next. So far as is known at present both ships will make alternate visits to Charlottetown during the season enroute to St. John's.

Amusements.

THOUSANDS PLEASED WITH MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY.

"The Million Dollar Mystery" commenced at the Nickel Theatre last evening. Great interest has been centered in this film and it was not surprising that there was very large attendance. Long before 8 o'clock the spacious theatre was filled and until the closing hour there was a strong stream of patrons. The film was interesting from the start and was keenly watched by all. The fact that it is one of the greatest movies ever shown on canvas with highly sensational scenes added attractiveness to it. Every one in St. John's is anxious to see it and those who were unable to attend yesterday will go to-day. The plot is an exceptionally well laid one, and the following chapters are even more fascinating. See to-night's show and the others as well.

CROWDS SEE PANTIMME—BEST EVER.

Hear what the crowds say, that the pantimime is one of the most beautiful of all the productions ever presented at the most enterprising and popular theatrical of the city. The various mechanical effects, the costumes, the songs and dances are quite good enough for a Broadway theatre, but not too good for Rossley's to give of their patrons. There was a splendid matinee under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor, Lady Davidson, Miss Davidson and the Misses Davidson yesterday afternoon. Lady Davidson expressed her pleasure and the distinguished party were very complimentary with the entertainment. Rossley as the Old Woman who Lived in the Shoe, has the crowd in roars all the time he occupies the stage. Our own city children are real little artists. On Friday night will be a gala night. The tickets are going fast for the double contest. Early door at 6.45 p.m.

"TENNESSEE I HEAR YOU CALLING ME."

Sang at the Crescent Picture Palace by Mr. Delmonico yesterday is a beautiful tenor song and was well received by the ladies and gentlemen who attended; he also gave a vocal cornet imitation of "Silver Threads Among the Gold" in a manner that pleased everybody. The picture programme made up of drama and comedy was thoroughly enjoyed, especially the work of the great comedians, John Bunny and Sidney Drew. The same programme will be repeated to-day; go to the Crescent and enjoy a good laugh.

"OIRS" IN THE WEST END.

Last night the popular little theatre was crowded to the doors at every performance. The pictures are all new and full of interest, and the sweet little singer had to respond to encore after encore. There is only one fault to be found with the cosy little house, it is not large enough to accommodate the crowds who nightly visit it, so popular has this theatre become.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.
"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an adage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household. Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber,"—without any labour at all—Independently of the state of the kitchen fire.
The cost is reasonable.

FOR THE BATHROOM.
An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance.
Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost!
Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!
A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no fires to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.
The master of the house has hot shaving water and a hot bath when ever he wishes without delay or trouble.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.
When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.
But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.
Later-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toll of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates, and the removal of dirt and ashes.
The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12,tf

KARL LIEBKNECHT.
(From the London News).
The "eye witness" tells us this week of the German officer who, even in captivity, preserves his insolent bearing. He is the symbol of the Germany we are fighting and that we are going to beat. But Liebknecht is the symbol of the Germany with whom we are going to be reconciled. He stands there, the bravest man in Europe at this moment, challenging and resisting the whole current of the war. And, as I have said, the significant thing is that he is still free. It was different in 1870 when his father, Wilhelm Liebknecht, one of the founders of the German Social Democracy, was clapped in prison together with Bebel, for resisting the Reichstag the proposal to annex Alsace-Lorraine. Karl has gone further than his father went. It was he who, when the German press was fanning the flame of the war, against the Belgians by stories of atrocities committed against the German soldiers, hunted the stories to their sources in hospitals and elsewhere, proved them to be baseless and denounced them as such in the newspapers.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Your correspondents "John Workman" and "Another Workman" relating to the schools and their methods interested me very much, as I have a young son going to school (or should I say college) and another ready to go, and as I myself went to school in England I am naturally anxious to learn all there is to be learnt as to the methods of our city schools. So far as I can make out the few years I have resided here, and from what has appeared in the press, the method in vogue in most of the city schools, is nothing more or less than a "cramming system." At any rate, by the number of books I have seen carried backwards and forwards to school by the scholars who have had to do what are called home lessons, I should say that cramming is too good a name for it. I call it punishment for a young boy or girl to have to take up their school lessons again after tea. If it is done, as one of your correspondents suggest, to make the teachers lot an easier one, then I want to know what do we pay school fees for. If it is true that the child of the educated parent stands the best chance of getting through its lesson easier in school, because the child is helped at home with its home lessons; then for no other reason should these lessons be done away with, because its plain that uneducated parents cannot learn their children anything which would help them in school.

For myself I don't intend to pay the teacher and help to do the work myself. Nobody ever did it for me, because in the National Schools of England there are no home lessons for the simple reason they are not necessary, if they were, make no mistake, we would have had them to do. I can see trouble ahead in our home if these home lessons continue in vogue; up to now so far as I can make out, our senior Kindergarten kiddie, has no home lessons to do, if he has I haven't seen him do them, and I'm quite certain I'm not going to use any kind of persuasion for him to do them.

As everyone knows education in England is free and its good, too, if anyone wants a higher education so as to fit him or her for such professions as lawyers, doctors, engineers, etc. etc., of course they have to pay for it, but for the workman and his family these National Schools more than fill the bill, and its a great pity that there are not similar schools in St. John's, free and compulsory, and without home lessons. All those that liked them could go to college and pay and take their lessons home. I am afraid we shall not see that in St. John's just yet, because this has got to be a Government proposition, and its a long, long way to free schools for Newfoundland in my opinion.

To my mind home lessons are only a custom which can easily be dispensed with. If I am wrong will some one kindly tell me why are they necessary and what good they do the scholar or anyone else.

Thanking you in anticipation of space.

HARD LUCK.
Little Willie's pulling weeds, and his gentle bosom bleeds for the fish are fairly thick 'way down yonder in the creek. So he thinks his fate is hard as he sweats around the yard, and his eye with moisture blurs while he pulls the cocklebur. Gentle Willie, slay the weeds, ere the blamed things go to seeds; while the other fellows fish, let your stickle go swish-swish; pull them, hack them with your knife—for that sort of thing is Life. All of us who earn our hay thus are toiling, day by day; doing things that break our hearts, in the workshops or the marts, at the loom or at the plow, earning bread with streaming brow. All of us profoundly wish we might quit our work and fish; but in vain we long and yearn; for the call of Life is stern; we must to the burden bend, we must strive until the end. What's the answer, Willie asks. Let us pretend we like our tasks. Let us to our comrades say, "You go fishing—we will stay pulling these delightful weeds!" Let us make our work a joy; that's the answer, Willie boy.

OPINIONS ON NEW CABINET.

The general consensus of opinion with regard to the Cabinet, is that though the appointments are surprising, taking a national point of view, they are at least nearly as good. While the Times and Post speak as if the Liberal Government had fallen, the remainder of the press refrain from saying that the new regime must be relegated to oblivion all party. The Manchester Guardian, the Radical organ, notes the fact that the new cabinet is a shadow on the horizon of the war. The Globe says that the natural place was as Minister of the Colonies, and that the Government is recognized as a success in the eyes of the Empire.

OFF WITH THE OLD.

By RUTH CAMERON.

In a neighbourhood in which I was visiting a few weeks ago, the minister whose church my friends attended, had just left for fresh fields and pastures new. He had been a popular minister and I expected to hear nothing but regrets. On the contrary this is what I actually heard. "You must hear the new minister. He has such a powerful clear voice that you don't have to strain your ears to listen." (The former minister's gentle, low pitched voice had been greatly admired.) "Have you seen the new minister? Good looking, isn't he? I do like to see a minister clean shaven." (The former minister had worn a Van Dyke.) "We go to church every Sunday now. The new minister preaches interesting, broad gauge sermons. I think there is such a thing as too much religion even in a sermon, don't you? (A hit at the former pastor.) And so it ran. And yet the moment his back was turned. Now if ever a man gave his whole heart to his people, their former minister was that man and they had really seemed to appreciate him. And yet, the moment his back was turned it was off with the old and on with the new. "I thought Mr. S. was a universal favorite," I ventured to say once.

"Oh yes, we liked him." I was assured, "but he had his faults." It seemed to me that that sentence struck the keynote of this common tendency to be off with the old and on with the new in two shakes of a lamb's tail. Newsweek Covers a Multitude of Sins. "We liked him but he had his faults." Of course he had, Madame, the best of us have. And other people get tired of these faults and think they'd like to try some new ones. Maybe the congregation got tired of their minister's virtues, too. That's just as possible. And now they've got a new bundle of faults and virtues and though, to my thinking at least, the virtues in that bundle are fewer and the faults less forgivable, they are new, and nothing covers a multitude of sins and shoddiness like newness.

Trying New Faults.

A friend of mine is always getting "a really splendid maid this time." A few months later I hear that she has decided that she cannot any longer endure the faults which have gradually developed in her treasure and is going to try again. The new maid is in her turn pictured as a find and my friend is happy in her for a few months until her particular foibles commence to wear upon her. In a new neighbourhood I heard with some surprise the fervor with which the neighbours ran down the former tenant of my house. Later I was visiting in the neighbourhood to which he had moved and was even more surprised to hear him as highly extolled. We're queer, restless, unsatisfiable critics, aren't we? Perhaps the best we can do is not to blame others who react against us in the same way.

Our Volunteers.

Five volunteers enlisted with the Reserve Force yesterday which makes a total of 1,828 enrolled to date. The names of those who enlisted yesterday are:— Levi Pond, Hickman's Harbor, N. W. Arm. At the House.

WEDNESDAY, May 26th. The Grand Bank Water Company's Bill and Newfoundland Products Corporation Bill passed the third reading. The Council's amendments to the Hospital Bill were read a second time. The matter of supply was deferred until Thursday. The House then went into Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Lloyd in his opening remarks regretted that the Leader of the Opposition was absent through illness, and referred to Mr. Kent's criticisms of the Budget during the past two years, which criticisms had been fair, illuminating and full of interest. Mr. Lloyd then went on to deal with some of the main points of the Budget. While admitting that the present financial difficulties of the country were largely and mainly contributed to by the war, he said it was most essential to consider all the factors that have contributed to the financial conditions with which we are faced. The Government has told the House that it is committed to the Budget of the present year and that the revenue will have exceeded the revenue by some $715,000. In addition to this it must be remembered that this deficit is the net deficit after the collection of additional revenues to that imposed in March, 1914. He held that it was not fair to consider all the factors in September last and on Thursday last there would have been a total deficit approaching $1,200,000 on the basis of the Tariff of March, 1914, which was expected to be so productive, that the Government took power to reduce the surplus, if they found during the course of the year they were getting more revenue than they wanted. They had found it necessary to impose considerable additional taxation in September and again last Thursday, and yet after considering the revenue due to this additional taxation the best the Minister can show for June 30th next is a deficit of $715,000. If we take into consideration the comparative small response from this extraordinary big tariff, we must realize that the War has had in financial difficulties before the war. But the deficit was not the sole cause of the financial straits of the Government. The Government was in a large deficit before the war was thought of. Last June 30th there was an actual deficit of $302,000 and not even dream of. The Minister has not been able to get into the world wide depression and has quoted largely from Canadian sources and has not been able to get into Newfoundland to show that the widespread depression had affected the purchasing power of Newfoundland in the past year or more, whereas there has been no cessation whatever in Newfoundland, the activities of our people being curtailed in no department and with this highly gratifying condition being reflected in the enormous importations and the increased Custom House and other revenue-receiving branches of the public service, and with no deficit put in March 1914 he estimated a surplus at the end of June, 1914. The additional tax revenue collected to the tune of $114,000 and but for this supplement would have been $416,000 instead of $302,000. That the deficit was not due to the depression can be seen by reference to another part of his speech of last Thursday, in which he quoted a table of the exports for the year ending June 30th last was the greatest value of the exports for the year which showed a deficit of $416,000 on the Election Budget Tariff. This proves that the deficit of 1914 was not due to lack of purchasing power, for it was greater than in any year of big surpluses, but was due to the taking off of the duties in 1913 for Election-servicing purposes. The Minister, contrary to his usual custom, had given no forecast for the year ending June 30th, 1915. His forecasts recently had been unfortunate. But it was as well to face the situation and see what was before us. The expenditure had not been cut down and it would go on as usual. On the 1914 Budget current expenses exceeded current income for year '14-'15 by $1,200,000. There would be the same deficit for the year '15-'16. It was likely to be a war year and to meet this estimated deficit we had the new taxation of September last and Thursday last. Under the circumstances of the war, we shall be fortunate if we get $600,000 out of these new sources of revenue and next year we shall have to face another year of about $600,000 to clear of a deficit. In his opinion it would have been wiser to curtail instead of hampering our industries such as fishing and agriculture by additional taxation on what the country must live and at the proper time he would oppose the resolutions relating to these matters. In conclusion he said that his remarks had not been made merely to disparage the Government, for he could sincerely sympathize with them as he recognized the difficulties besetting the finances of the Colony owing to the present abnormal conditions and mistakes of the past. The Minister of Finance in reply held that in taking off the duties in 1913 the Government had done so in accordance with their promise to the country and because the large revenues of the preceding years had warranted it. He disagreed with Mr. Lloyd in the figures he had quoted as to the amount to be received from the proposed taxation for the coming year and said that the revenue from kerosene and gasoline alone would be greater than that estimated by Mr. Lloyd. This Mr. Lloyd disputed. Mr. Clift was of the opinion that the amount would have been better had the Minister of Finance tried to economize as regards expenditure rather than resort to increased taxation. He believed that the expenditure for the public service of the Colony could have been considerably reduced without lessening the efficiency of the service. He also believed that there would be a large deficit by June 30th of this year, and a still larger one by June 30th of next year, but could see no effort made to curtail expenditure. The same estimates were being passed.

THE LOSS OF THE TRIUMPH.

LONDON, To-day. A brief statement by the Admiralty says that while operating in support of the Australian and New Zealand forces on the shore of the Gallipoli Peninsula yesterday, the Triumph was torpedoed by a submarine and sank shortly afterwards. The majority of officers and men, including the captain and commander, are reported to have been saved. The submarine was chased by destroyers and patrolling small craft until dark. The Triumph was built at Barrow in 1902 for the Chilean Government, but purchased by Britain in 1903. She was laid down under the name of Liverpool, and was a sister ship of the Conestoga, which also was purchased from Chile and re-christened Swiftsure. Since the present war broke out the Triumph has been in operation both in the Far East and European waters. As the flagship of the British Asiatic squadron she participated in the bombardment of the German base at Tsing Tan, the last October, and was reported to have been damaged by the shell fire of the German forts. After the fall of Tsing Tan, the Triumph returned to European waters, and early in the present year began operations with other units of the Allied fleet against the Dardanelles.

PARIS, To-day. A German aeroplane was brought down to-day by Braine, pilot of the French machine, which defeated the German aircraft and was awarded the military medal for his achievement, and the observer and officer promoted.

OPINIONS ON NEW CABINET.

LONDON, To-day. The general consensus of newspaper opinion with regard to the new Cabinet, is that though certain appointments are surprising, asquith takes a national ministry, which takes in at least nearly all the talents. While the Times and Morning Post speak as if the Liberal Government had fallen, the remaining Conservative journals refrain from any comments. In fact the dominant note is that the new regime must at once relegate to oblivion all party feelings. The Manchester Guardian, the northern Radical organ, noting the omission of any Nationalist and the inclusion of Sir Edward Carson, fears that this shadow on the wall will darken the horizon at the close of the war. The Globe carries at Bonar Law, being given the Colonies, and says his natural place was as Minister of Munitions. The difficulties of a coalition Government is recognized on all sides, but in the words of the Morning Post it is an experiment of which the success is vital to the British Empire.

FIRST ARMY CONTINUES TO MAKE PROGRESS.

LONDON, To-day. The First Army continues to make progress east of Festubert. The Territorial Division carried last night's Galicia they have resumed their offensive against the Russians along the River San and claim to have met with further success, while in Flandres and Artois the Germans continue, according to French reports, to make furious attacks in an effort to regain ground taken from them in recent weeks and hold that which they took from the British in the region of Ypres. Except for the German admission that the British have captured part of their trenches North-east of Givenchy, the reports of bellicose headquarters continue to contradict each other. One side claims gains while the other says all attacks were repulsed with heavy losses. So far as the West is concerned however, the fighting as has been the case for months consists largely of trench warfare, which is a captured trench, a few prisoners and machine guns is considered of sufficient importance to emphasize, but this is the picture whereby the commanders hope to wear down their opponents, until they become so weak that a real forward movement will be possible. The Italians who have crossed the Austrian frontier to the East along a front of 60 miles toward the Isonzo River have not yet met any serious opposition. The fact is, no important battle is expected until the invaders reach the river as it is here the Austrians are established, and on this line they will make their stand, as they have had a long time to prepare for an invasion. It is probable they will oppose the Italian advance by means of the same method as caused the deadlock in Flanders. In the Italian case, however, the constant, whose condition remains serious, has brought the political situation to a standstill. It is probable as unlikely that there will be any developments until after pending elections. The alleged torpedoing of the American steamer Nebraska, featured by all London papers which describe the incident as "Another Challenge to America."

WHAT WILL AMERICA DO?

WASHINGTON, To-day. The course of the United States Government in the case of the American steamer Nebraska, damaged off the coast of Ireland, was underlined to-night, because officials without definite information as to whether the ship was torpedoed or struck a mine. Messages from Ambassador Page and Consul General Skinner, London, to-day transmitted a report of the British Admiralty that the vessel had been torpedoed. Officials noted with much interest the Captain's report to his owners indicating a doubt as to whether the Nebraska was hit by a torpedo or mine. So far as the State Department is informed there is no British mine field near where the Nebraska was struck.

EXPLAIN REASON FOR COALITION GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, To-day. The Marquis of Lansdowne and Bonar Law, both of whom now occupy seats in the coalition ministry, explained before 9 o'clock last night, all foreign vessels leaving Liverpool lately have had names of nationality painted in large letters on their sides and have flown large flags. Yesterday evening the clear period between eight and nine o'clock is twilight hour in the British Islands at this season. The message to Lloyd says an armed trawler went to the assistance of the Nebraska and stood by her all night.

ECZEMA FOR TWO YEARS CURED BY ZAM-BUK

Mrs. A. Warwick, Cooksville, Ont., writes:—For two years I was badly troubled with eczema on my leg. I used various salves and lotions, but could get no relief. The sores kept getting worse until finally I was obliged to give up my work. I was in despair when one day a friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. I did so, and I cannot tell you how pleased I was with the result. Zam-Buk quickly allayed the itching and smarting sensation, and finally healed the sores. My leg is now as well as ever.

Hundreds of others suffering from eczema have ended this distress by applying Zam-Buk, some even after suffering twenty-five years and spending hundreds of dollars on medical treatment. Zam-Buk is purely herbal. Unlike ordinary ointments it does not contain harsh minerals, poisonous coloring matter, or waxes animal fats which in a short time go rancid. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or sore its herbal essences penetrate to the very root of the trouble, kill the disease, and relieve the pain.

BOMBARDMENT OF ANCONA.

MILAN, To-day. The destruction of the railroad junction evidently was the object of the bombardment of Ancona by the Austrian squadron which raided the Italian coast on Monday. According to additional details received here, the warships appeared off Ancona about midnight, accompanied by two aeroplane, which flew over the coast. The bombardment began at 3 o'clock and continued for two hours. Shells of all sizes were fired. The guns were trained not only on the railroad yards but on the military hospital, the Bank of Italy and two barracks. Slight damage to the railroad was caused. Austrian warships retired from Ancona when an Italian fleet appeared. Because of the reports that the Austrian squadron had been sighted from Ancona a few weeks ago, all Germans employed there were arrested as spies.

FIFTY KILLED.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. Fifty German soldiers and passengers in a street car at Ostend were killed by a bomb dropped from a tied aeroplane, according to a despatch from that city to the Telegram, describing a series of air raids made by the United States and German forces and shipping in the harbor. Numerous houses have been damaged.

SEE DIFFICULTIES AHEAD.

NEW YORK, To-day. The New York World says: It is to be hoped that an examination of the hull of the Nebraska will show that the vessel struck a drifting mine. It is a dubious time for another Gulf-light incident. It is difficult to believe that in view of the situation between the United States and Germany since the sinking of the Lusitania, the German Government would have authorized its submarine commanders to attack American ships. It is equally difficult to believe that a German commander would have made an attack on his own feasibility. The Tribune says: If the Nebraska was torpedoed by a German submarine, Ambassador Gerrard should be recalled; Count Von Bernstorff should receive his passports and diplomatic relations between Germany and the United States should cease.

VIGOROUS FIGHTING IN THE DARDANELLES.

PARIS, To-day. A despatch from Athens, dated May 25th, says: "The action of the Allies against the Turkish positions on the Dardanelles Straits is continuing vigorously. Reinforcements are constantly being brought up. The Turks appear to be terrorized by the incessant renewal of attacks. These attacks indicate to them the absolute determination of the Allies to force the Straits. From time to time the British and French artillery throws a veritable hail of shells on the Turks."

PRZEMYSL SAFE.

LONDON, To-day. The Times' Petrograd correspondent says the Russian military observer considers Przemysl at the present time quite safe, and thinks there is no reason to apprehend envelopment and blockade of the fortress.

AIR RAID ON MOUTH OF THAMES.

LONDON, To-day. A fleet of Zeppelin airships torpedoed an attack against the British works defending the mouth of the Thames River early to-day, but were driven back by the searchlights and anti-aircraft fire. The attack centered about Southend on the sea in Essex, on the northern side of the Thames estuary, about thirty-five miles from the centre of London. Twenty incendiary bombs were dropped at a most successful point, and killing a girl. Several persons were hurt. There was reported to be four Zeppelins in the fleet, which was first sighted at 11.15 last night. The great dirigibles manoeuvred, keeping high in the air, but at the height of the attack they descended until they were within the range of the anti-aircraft guns. It is reported from Sheerness that a Zeppelin was seen speeding towards London. This was the sixteenth air raid of the Germans over the East Coast. The balloons are believed to have crossed the North Sea from Zebruges.

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, May 26.
The Governor, Newfoundland: In the Dardanelles the First French Division made considerable progress on May 21st and are now close to the Turkish trenches.

On May 22nd the enemy made a determined attack against the Indian Brigade, gaining a temporary footing. A counter-attack drove them back with the loss of over 500. Many prisoners taken.

On the 23rd an armistice was granted for burying the dead. Opposite the Australian and New Zealand Corps, over 3,000 Turks were buried. On May 24th, the French with the British naval division advanced considerably during the night, with slight loss. A territorial division also pushed forward, and the new line was consolidated.

Sir John French reports some portions of the line lost during the enemy's gas attack, not yet recovered. The amount of gas used was greater than ever before. The gas was emitted from cylinders over a front of five miles, for four and a half hours, rising in places forty feet. Asphyxiating shells also were used. Our men have demonstrated that, with due precautions, they can defeat this form of attack.

The French Government report important progress north of Arras. An enemy salient called Crow's redoubt, was carried, also another very strong fortified work. A large enemy trench was taken near Souchez. There has been progress at other points in this neighborhood.

Latest reports say that furious fighting is in progress. A) French gains are maintained. B) The Russian Government report an offensive being pursued on the Dnieper. Over 2,200 prisoners were captured in the course of the day. No reference is made to the German claim to success north of Przemysl.

The Italians are advancing in Trentino and on the Isonzo.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.
PARIS, via St. Pierre, May 26.
The checks sustained by the enemy yesterday in the district of Angres and north of Lorete heights provoked, on their part, an extremely violent reaction. The battle raged furiously during the evening and night. We maintained all our gains. Our troops are giving proof of magnificent courage and tenacity. The Germans at first counter-attacked the works taken by us northwest of Angres and renewed desperate efforts in their attempts to recapture them. In spite of an exceptionally fierce bombardment, we maintained entirely our own positions. On the other hand we occupied a village where we had secured a footing in the afternoon, and are holding on in spite of a fierce bombardment. Similarly we advanced on the heights northeast of Lorete and captured a German trench in the vicinity of Souchez. An artillery contest, rather sharp, occurred in Soissons and Rheims districts.

During the 25th our aeroplanes were exceedingly active on the whole front and were successful in several operations. They dropped 200 projectiles, of which 82 were heavy bombs of 20 pounds weight, and several shells weighing 86 pounds. The efficiency of these explosives were verified on several points. During the previous night four shells were thrown on the Douai railway station. A fire immediately broke out in the vicinity of the station and in the sheds containing goods.

AMERICAN STEAMER TORPEDOED BY SUBMARINE.
LONDON, May 26.
The American steamer Nebraska, Capt. Green, from Liverpool, May 24th, off Delaware Breakwater, was torpedoed yesterday by a submarine at a point forty miles west southwest of Fastnet, off the south coast of Ireland. The sea was calm at the time. The crew at once took to the boats and stood by the vessel. It was soon ascertained that the Nebraska was not seriously damaged. She had been struck forward and her foreholds were full of water. The crew returned on board and got the vessel under way. No lives were lost among the crew. The Nebraska did not carry any passengers. The foregoing information was received to-day by the British Admiralty, and it was at once communicated to the American Embassy.

NEBRASKAN NEARING LAND.
LONDON, May 26.
A message to Lloyd's from Kinshel, Ireland, says that the Nebraska passed that point at 11 o'clock, apparently bound for Queenstown. She was down at the bow. She was proceeding under her own steam and flying the signal, "I am under control."

FIERCE FIGHTING.
PARIS, May 26.
A great air raid, in which 293 bombs were dropped, was made against the German military depots on Tuesday. A terrific night of fighting has taken place in Angres region (south of La Bassée and north of Lorete heights), where the French not only held firm against the furious assaults of the Germans, but gained new ground. Official despatches show that attacks and counter-attacks between Arras and Neuve Chapelle are incessant by day and night.

ALLIED FLAGS IN FRANCE.
PARIS, May 26.
Flags of European Powers allied against Germany, namely France, Italy, Britain, Russia, Belgium and Serbia, were to-day by order of the French Government, displayed in groups over many public buildings and monuments in Paris. Among

ITALY PROCLAIMS BLOCKADE.
PARIS, May 26.
The Italian Government to-day declared a blockade of all ports on the Austro-Hungarian coast. This proclamation, like that of Britain and France against Germany, will entirely cut off all neutral trade by sea with the enemy, and indicates that the Italian fleet has done rapid work thus sweeping the Austrians from the seas.

ASQUITH AND SALANDRA.
LONDON, May 26.
It was announced officially to-day that Asquith had sent a telegram to Premier Salandra, of Italy, expressing pleasure that the long standing relationship between the two countries had ripened into a more intimate relationship. Salandra responded with the hope that a long era of liberty and peace may be opened in Europe.

ITALIANS ADVANCING NORTH.
GENEVA, May 26.
The Italian troops which have invaded Austria along a line running north of the Gulf of Trieste, continue the advance to the Isonzo River on three points, forcing the Austrians to retire. Apparently the Austrians thus far have made no determined resistance. The Italians captured 300 prisoners yesterday. Casualties on both sides have been slight. The King is expected to go to the front this week, and probably will proceed to headquarters. The Italian Chief of Staff and Italian Ambassador to Germany are expected to reach Chiaso, Switzerland, to-night.

MOST UNPREDICTABLE.
COLOGNE, May 26.
A novel situation has arisen in the relations between Germany and Italy. According to a usually well informed Berlin correspondent of the Volkeszeitung, formerly no state of war exists between the two countries, the paper says, but Prince Von Buelow is said to have informed the Italian Government before leaving Rome that German troops were so closely intermingled with the Austro-Hungarian forces, that Italy might be forced to accept the German army as German soldiers. The Ambassador is reported to have pointed out that Germany naturally would regard this as an unfriendly act and would take steps accordingly.

KING VICTOR IN COMMAND.
PARIS, May 26.
A despatch to the Havas Agency from Rome, says that King Victor Emmanuel has assumed the supreme command of the army and navy forces, and that he left to-night ignorant for the Italian headquarters.

MINISTERIAL APPOINTMENTS.
LONDON, May 26.
Additional appointments in connection with the reconstruction of the Government was announced to-day, nearly all to places outside the Cabinet. Herbert L. Samuel, who was President of the Local Government Board under the former regime, is appointed Postmaster General. A position he held for several years until two years ago. Fredk. E. Smith, who has been Director of the Official Press Bureau of the War Office, has been made Solicitor General. Edwin S. Montague has been re-appointed Financial Secretary of the Treasury.

'TIMES' AND 'MAIL' DEBARRED FROM STOCK EXCHANGE.
LONDON, May 26.
The flame of indignation against Lord Northcliffe on account of the Kitchener attacks, burns stronger than ever. Chas. Clark, Chairman of the Stock Exchange, who protested at a meeting, is still receiving thousands of congratulatory telegrams approving of his action. Kitchener wired him to-day: "Please accept for yourself and convey to the members of the Stock Exchange my cordial thanks for expressions of confidence contained in your telegram." Spencer Leigh Hughes, in the Daily News, to-day, suggests that Lord Northcliffe should shake off that coy excessive modesty which is his only failing, and should take his place among his brother peers and tackle Lord Kitchener face to face. The Manchester Stock Exchange Committee at a meeting to-day, resolved: "In view of the disgraceful and unpatriotic attacks on those responsible for the conduct of the war, a copy of the Times or Daily Mail shall be allowed in the Manchester Stock Exchange."

MAJORITY OF OFFICERS AND MEN SAVED.
LONDON, May 26.
The battleship Triumph was torpedoed by a submarine and sank shortly afterwards. The majority of the officers and men, including the captain and commander, are reported saved.

Fifty persons were drowned to-day when the Chilean steamer Maximiliano Errazuriz struck a reef and sank. The Errazuriz is a vessel of 1,800 tons, 240 feet long and built in 1872.

PURSUED BUT ESCAPED.
MAARLUIS, Holland, May 26.

Children vs. Dogs.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The following notice appeared in this morning's News: Drivers are requested to recognize their dog's fidelity by not letting it chase their motor or other vehicle to the point of exhaustion. S. P. A.

Evidently the Society for Protecting Animals are more interested in dogs than children, for the above clipping is a clear suggestion that dogs be taken in the motor, or carriage, as the case may be, while poor children who go countryward to get a breath of fresh air are compelled to keep a keen watch out or they will be bowled into the drain head first. The S. P. A. must certainly be hard up for something to do when they issue an idiotic notice like the foregoing. What are we coming to, are we about to imitate the silliness of the smart-set of New York? Instead of dogs in motor cars it would be a far more pleasing and suitable sight to see four or five little boys or girls enjoying the hospitality of those who have all the good things of this life at their disposal. But, sir, we never see anything like that happen in this city and why it is I cannot understand. When on a trip to the States two years ago, in the town I stayed the wealthy people gave their automobiles for a day in order to give the poor children of the town an outing after the winter. Here the opposite is the case, they evidently think more of dogs than old women or children. Why if an old woman do go for a drive in the country now, she is liable to die suddenly of fright. Narrow roads and reckless drivers of motors make carriage driving almost a thing of the past as far as old people are concerned. I have drifted a little from the subject; but, Mr. Editor, it is enough to make poor people's blood boil to see the antics of some people in this town, and the notice I have referred to would lead one to believe that we have not yet reached the limit.

Yours truly,
COMMON SENSE.

Amazon Explorer Swears By Grape-Nuts

Algot Lange—famous tropic explorer—recently made a perilous exploration of the lower Amazon.

The question of food supplies was a big one. Economy of space—food value—keeping qualities—palatability—all had to be considered.

Lange chose for his standby—

Grape-Nuts

Here is the way he refers to this food here and there through his book, "The Lower Amazon."

"I have included in my supplies Grape-Nuts."

"At lunch I eat some Grape-Nuts (an American breakfast cereal) with condensed milk."

"After this egg (turtle) meal comes for me Grape-Nuts from sealed tins."

"I go back to the moloca at noon to eat my lunch of roast turtle, Grape-Nuts and hard-tack."

Everywhere—at home or abroad—wherever big things are accomplished—this famous wheat and barley food is relied upon to build and sustain vigor and energy of body, brain and nerve.

Ready to eat—delicious—economical—nourishing.

Teachers and Home Lessons.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In last Thursday's Telegram there appeared a letter signed "Pro Bono Publico," condemning the present custom of Nfld. teachers of giving work to the children to be done at home.
With all due respect to the writer, I must say that I think his views on the matter are incorrect. He asserts that this work done by the children themselves is of no educational value and gives an instance of a boy who was given a map to draw, and who did not know how to set about it, and had not drawn any maps before, and had not received very much instruction concerning how to do it. The writer advised the boy to tell the teacher that he could not do it, but the boy, in spite of this "set to work and managed to draw a fairly good copy." Was not this effort to do his best in spite of difficulties, of no educational value to that boy? Was not such work inculcating in him habits of perseverance and instilling into him a self-reliance that no amount of mere teaching could do?
The true aim of education is to train and accustom the child to think and to act for himself and by himself. With this aim in view the real teachers of Nfld. try to turn out real thinking men and women and not miniature encyclopedias.
Some mention was also made of the methods used in schools in England. But it must be remembered that this is Newfoundland, and that methods used with perfect success in England might mean utter failure if used here where surroundings and circumstances are radically different.
In nearly all English schools there are at least two or three teachers. This means that the pupils on one teacher's hands are very nearly on the same level. This simplifies the work in an amazing degree. Here in Newfoundland it's quite different. There are scores of schools in the island with about fifty pupils in each, and one teacher. These fifty pupils are scattered from a class learning their letters up to V, or VI. Standard with two or three distinct classes in each book, as the irregular attendance which is the curse of our schools, prevents any attempt to keep the pupils classified.
This being the state of things, a teacher could not possibly manage to advance pupils if they only learned what he spent hours explaining. The writer admits that it would take him nearly all night to show one child how to draw a map. If teachers were to spend that much time with a class on any day (and lessons on such work cannot be given in serial form) the result would be that about forty out of the fifty children would go home without having received any attention, and Johnny's mother and Willie's father would be up to the school-room to rate the teacher for "not hearing my boy's lessons."
Now I may say in closing, that those fault-finding armchair critics who seem to think that Newfoundland teachers are putting on the parents the work, for which they are receiving such princely salaries, would likely change their minds on the subject if they would take the trouble of looking into it.
How is it that teachers who are getting the "parents to do their work for them" so quickly give up teaching? How many smart-brained young men and women find the strain of teaching so great that they have to give it up after a few years, and what a small number are able to make a life-long profession of it?
I think if the worthy gentleman, whose zeal for the public good, is so great, would look into these things he would see that the teachers are not "slouching," and that they are "more sinned against than sinning." Moreover he would likely come to the conclusion that these teachers who have made teaching their particular study, who know the theory of it, and can see from their everyday experience how far correct these theories are, must after all be the proper ones to know if they are using correct methods. If they are conscientiously satisfied that they are doing right, then it takes more than a man who can "write a letter anyway," to prove they are wrong.

"What Are You Doing for that Eczema?"
"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."
"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggist's."
Zylex, 50c. a box; Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.
