Starvation in Finland.

Representatives of the American food commission have arrived in Finland to investigate conditions growing out of the acute food shortage there prevailing, and to ascertain the amount of foodstuffs needed to relieve the distress of this unhappy country.

The chairman of this commission of American representatives, Captain August A. Krantz, United States Army, has made a fifteen days' trip through southern, eastern, and interior Finland. Upon his return he made a detailed report of the things he saw, of the misery which is to be found in nearly all parts of the country. The following statement was made by Capt. Krantz to Mr. Frazier Hunt, special correspondent of the Chicago Tribune:

"No one can picture the terrible good conditions in the greater part of the country. Money means nothing, the government food cards nothingthere's simply no food to be had. Children are dying by hundreds of swelling sickness' caused by malnu-

During the summer of 1917, when thence. so many Allied tank ships were being sent to the bottom by the U-boats that naval vessels in European waters were in dire need of fuel, the White Star Line was able to assist in overcoming any cause for anxiety on this vital point by carrying oil without decreasing its other large war cargoes, in the tanks of the Adriatic, Baltic, Cedric and Celtic. Each steamer took between 2500 and 3500 tons of fuel on the voyage from New York, the first consignments to be transported in passenger vessels, and this novel experiment helped in a large measure to relieve quickly the critical fuel situation. To the end of the war, a total of 88,000 tons of oil was carried by these ships, and the officials of the company recently received the hearty thanks of the British Admiralty and the British nation

In Memoriam.

A sudden gloom was cast over Newbridge on April 2nd, when the news went forth through the people that their dearly loved friend. Mrs. David Power, of Mount Carmel, had passed into eternity: and to make the lews the more pathetic, it was just wo months since they were present at her marriage celebration, and greeted her most heartily and with acclamations of joy. The deceased was formerly Miss Nellie O'Reilly, of Placentia, who spent ten years of her life in the teaching profession, and the first four years of these she spent at Newbridge, where she discharged her duties with untiring efforts. She ossessed such a noble character, an amiable manner and an ever present smile, which gave cheer to the people as well as to her pupils, and won the love and admiration of them all. as well as all those with whom she was acquainted, whilst in that parish. The esteem which she won from them did not cease with the resignation of her duties, nor even did it vanish with the lapse of time, but it was as fervent in their hearts on the day of her return as it was when she labored amongst them, and they were glad when they became aware that she was making her home in their parish.

Her husband was one of Salmonier's noblest and bravest who responded to the first call to arms in defense of King and Country, and being one of our Blue Puttees returned to Newfoundland in August on furlough, and before the expiration of time the armistice was signed, and when he was discharged he returned to his home at Mt. Carmel, and on January 29th, 1919, entered into the matrimonial state, which caused his many friends to rejoice on seeing him making his new home in their settlement. But it was God's Holy Will to separate them, and we feel assured that he feels her death-blow a terrible pang. Besides her sorrow-stricken husband she leaves to mourn her a father and mother, two brothers and eternal rest to her soul.-R.I.P. "Though she is gone she is not forgotten, Never shall her memory fade, Deepest thoughts shall always linger By the grave where she is laid."

Grimly Determined.

The tide of hostility to the Gov ernment of the hour is rising rapidly, month or next fall the issue is beyond peradventure of doubt. The aroused sentiment of the people is beginning to manifest itself, and a grim determination to throw off, at all costs, the political leeches who have fastened upon the body politic is now more evident than ever, because an unanimity prevails as never before: an unanimity which has developed, grown, and thrived and now has given proof of its existence in a wonder fully spontaneous manner. To a close observer the quietness and repressed feelings of last night's public demonstration were deeply significant of the purpose for which the electors had gathered together, and in that the Legislature. very quietness lay the strength and steadfastness which is so necessary to the success of a just and righteous

It was a demonstration by men who knew what they wanted and were grimly determined appeal was to the Crown; they were asking nothing but their legitimate rights: they sought that protection which is within the power of the Crown, by its Vice-regent, the Governor, to give. They laid at the foot of the throne, as it were, a petition requesting that those rights of Magna Charta, which had been handed down as the fundamentals of Government for centuries be not trampled upon. They sought justice from him who is sworn to defend it, and their case was fairly and respectfully presented.

In other words, the success of conspirators depends upon the swiftness with which they carry out their programme. The present Government have a good understanding of this, they and whether an election is held next are adepts, as they have already demonstrated, in "the dreadful thing." The springing of a General Election at a time of the year when it is physically impossible to properly and efficiently carry it through, is but one of the instruments for assuring the "Spanish three-masted vessel Christo success of the Conspiracy, and, if the people are wise, they will make use of every lawful means to prevent it.

Hundreds of Electors in each of the districts of Burgeo, Burin, Fortune Bay, and Placentia & St. Mary's lost their vote at that Election, by being absent on the fishing Banks; and hundreds in the Northern Districts, by having departed for the French Shore fishery. Now there is no precedent for the theory that thousands of people may be given a Vote by a legalized List of Voters, and then deprived of the opportunity to exercise that Vote. Yet that is the theory the present Government are advancing. The feather-headed politician may argue, that if such disfranchisement as is alleged takes place, both parties are likely to suffer to an equal extent; that the Election will be as fair to one party as to the other. Pealing in the Peace.

The six bells of Westminster Abbey, which have not been rung as a peal since the coronation of the King, are being increased in number to eight, and will be ready to ring in the peace. One of the old bells, the smallest and ablest, will not be used, so three new ones are to be cast. Casting a bell is no easy matter, for, as may well be imagined, its tone depends upon the perfection of its shape. As a matter of fact a bell is hardly ever cast "true to pitch." If it is, it is called a "virgin peal," and regarded as a most interesting curiosity. Nearly all bells require working down after casting, a task which re-Earth's quires the greatest experience and the rim must be cut away; if too sharp, then the thickness of the sound bow must be reduced. CAPE TOWN, April 7. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)-The debate on the second reading of the enemies' repatriation bill was resumed Saturday. Sir Thomas Smart, leader of the opposition, emphasized the necessity of the Government taking whatever steps were requisite for the safety and peace of the state. He was prepared to make liberal exceptions in the direction of not touching peaceful and law-abiding enemy aliens, but he contended none should be allowed to remain in the country who might be a danger in the future. Sir Thomas also questioned the contention of Sir Thomas Watt, Minister of the Interior, made in March last, that the Immigration Act gave sufficient power to exclude enemy subjects inasmuch as in his opinion the definition of sedition in the Act did not include violent and incendiary speeches, which in view of the presence of millions of natives, might become a serious danger. He therefore advocated the registration of aliens, at the same time emphasizing that he did not desire any sternly reprehensive measures. He aware that the House voted unanimously the amnesty bill of 1914 for the rebels, but he said that the peace and safety of the country should be
