Ulster Approves
Craig's Attitude.

Premier Speaks at Guildhall--- Better Prospects of Irish Agreement --- Lloyd George Sends Personal Message to Harding -- American Officers Cruelty Contended By Soldiers.

ULSTER'S ATTITUDE.
LONDON, Nov. 9. Ulster Cabinet representatives here unanimously approved to-day the "firm attitude" which Sir James Craig has maintained in conferences with Mr. Lloyd George.

PREMIER AT THE GUILDHALL.
LONDON, Nov. 9. At the Lord Mayor's banquet last night Lloyd George declared there were better prospects of Britain's proposals to Ireland being heeded to-day and of Ireland accepting the invitation to enter the British Commonwealth as an equal, than for years, but that the Conference was still in a critical stage. Alluding to world affairs the Premier noted the numerous symptoms indicating a business revival. The world is settling down to work, he said, and the blue sky is beginning to emerge, while the Washington Conference is like a rainbow in the sky, for without the assurance of peace restoration of business is impossible.

LLOYD GEORGE TO HARDING.
LONDON, Nov. 9. Lloyd George has sent a personal message to President Harding to-day, regretting that the delicate state of the negotiations and pressure of the employment situation prevented his attendance at the Disarmament Conference, thanking the President for his lead, and declaring the heart of majority. The city of Albany will have a Democratic administration for the first time in 22 years.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIST RISING.
LONDON, Nov. 9. An anti-Bolshevist revolution has broken out in Southwest Russia, Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House to-day.

NEW YORK STATE ASSEMBLY.
ALBANY, Nov. 9. The New York State Assembly for 1922 will include 95 Republicans and 82 Democrats, a gain of 25, 2 Socialists and 1 Republican Democrat.

BRITAIN PAYING UP.
LONDON, Nov. 9. Arrangement has been made to begin paying interest on the debt owed by Great Britain to the United States, at the rate of £80,000,000 yearly. It was announced by Sir Robert Horne to-day.

JUGO-SLAVIA WARNED.
PARIS, Nov. 9. The Allied Council of Ambassadors to-day sent a note demanding the immediate withdrawal of invading Jugo-Slav troops from Albanian territory.

MONTENEGRIN INSURRECTION.
LONDON, Nov. 9. Insurrection has broken out in Montenegro to secure Montenegrin independence from Serbia, according to a despatch from Rome.

SLAY ADVANCE ARRESTED.
LONDON, Nov. 9. The advance of Jugo-Slav troops into Albania has been arrested by heavy counter-attacks by the Albanians, according to a Central News despatch.

SYDNEY PROSPECTS NOT TOO BRIGHT.
SYDNEY, Nov. 9. Prospects in the Cape Breton Steel industry are none too bright. Vice-President MacDougall told the Citizens' Committee on unemployment to-day. Very few orders for the Sydney mills are in sight, and the Government order for rails will be finished in two months.

ANOTHER STRIKE IN ROME.
ROME, Nov. 9. The Chamber of Labor to-day decided to declare a general strike here, owing to armed conflicts between railway workers and Fascist or extreme Nationalist, who arrived in trains waving flags.

BODY RECOVERED.
SYDNEY MINES, Nov. 9. The body of Robert McEwen, missing since the explosion in No. 2 Colliery at Florence yesterday, was found in the mine to-day.

CANADIAN FRESH FISH BUSINESS.
OTTAWA, Nov. 9. Inauguration this spring of an ex-

Labrador Belongs to Quebec, Says Thompson.

NEWFOUNDLAND HAS ONLY ADMINISTRATIVE CONTROL OF COAST, DECLARES LAW TIMES EDITOR.

Arising out of an interview concerning Newfoundland's interest in the Labrador boundary, as granted by Sir Patrick McGrath to the Free Press, the contention that Newfoundland can have any claim upon Labrador was disputed in an interview given this paper by Bram Thompson, a barrister at Regina, and editor-in-chief of the Canadian Law Times, published at Toronto.

Mr. Thompson, who has been staying at the Royal Alexandra hotel while engaged in professional affairs in the city, states that Newfoundland has never been given any rights of ownership to any part of Labrador, but was, simply as a matter of administrative expediency, given "administrative control" of the country. In fact, he goes the length of contending that the whole of Labrador rightly belongs to the province of Quebec.

Mr. Thompson's contention is based upon certain statutes to which he alluded. By an Imperial act of 1763, the eastern boundary of Quebec was set, roughly, as being the St. John's river, northward from the island of Anticosti. But by an Imperial act of 1791, the whole of Labrador was annexed to Quebec. It remained an undisputed part of Quebec until 1821, when, as a matter of expediency, owing to inaccessibility and other difficulties, "administrative control" of Labrador, was reposed in the government of Newfoundland. This action had been deemed advisable owing, mainly, to fishery disputes arising internationally.

Confederation Final.

That act giving "administrative control" is, however, Mr. Thompson concludes, over-ruled by the last Imperial act governing the provinces of Canada, which was the act of Confederation of 1867. That expunged any prior commitments which the Imperial parliament may have made for the internal administration of lands belonging to Quebec; for Quebec, at Confederation, obtained complete control of its own lands. Part of these were Labrador. The question then, according to Mr. Thompson, is not as the government of Newfoundland appears to be setting it forth. The issue, he says, revolves upon a territory which was annexed to and made part of Quebec, and which never has been disjoined from it.

The issue to be submitted to the privy council appears from what Mr. Thompson understands, to be solely of where runs the western boundary of Labrador. This boundary was set as running northwards from the straits at a point at its deepest about 200 miles inwards from the Atlantic coast. The area so embodied is rich in iron and timber limits. But the major issue which Mr. Thompson reads into the enactments governing the whole ownership, and not merely that of any boundary, of Labrador, is that the country rightly belongs to Quebec, and could not have been dissevered from the Dominion of Canada.

PROVINCIAL TITLE TO LANDS.
Although the matter was revived in the mind of Mr. Thompson in the interview he had in the Free Press, yet it had been curiously brought to his attention some months ago. A firm of lawyers in Boston had read some articles he wrote in the summer of last year in the Canadian Law Times, advocating that the Dominion government, as such, has never legally had title to its lands, they rightly, with all the natural resources contained within them, belonging to the provinces. The Boston lawyers requested Mr. Thompson's opinion upon the soundness of a contract to a vast timber area in Labrador conceded by the government of Newfoundland to an American syndicate. Upon looking up the law governing the question, Mr. Thompson advised the Boston lawyers that he found that since the government of Newfoundland had no power to grant the concession it could not enforce it, but that since it had granted it, it could not repudiate it. As to the Dominion or other government, since, through its apathy it had not exercised its rights, it could not repudiate the contract, although not having made it, it could not enforce it.—Winnipeg Free Press.

PACKING PLANT REDUCTIONS.
CHICAGO, Nov. 9. Four big packing houses have requested employees to consider in the plant councils a reduction of pay in the near future, but the amount of reduction was not specified.

WINNIPEG'S GROWTH.
OTTAWA, Nov. 9. The census gives Winnipeg's population $18,098 as against 461,190.

WINTER WEATHER.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. Winter weather prevailed to-day in the Middle West with heavy snowfalls in some States.

BENJAMIN H. KAUFFMAN, Reading, Pa.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Tania saved my wife's life," was the positive statement of Benjamin H. Kauffman, 505 Bingham St., Reading, Pa., popular clothing salesman for the well-known firm of Croft & Keck.

"I was almost desperate from worrying over her condition, as she had suffered so long without getting relief and I can hardly believe my own eyes now when I see the change in her. Why, she doesn't show her age by twenty years and declares she never remembers feeling better in her life. Her health was falling steadily for a year as a result of catarrh of the stomach, and I have never seen anybody suffer as much from indigestion and nervousness as she did.

"After a five weeks' course of Tania she was like another person, and I'm firmly convinced that years have been added to her life. It makes me shudder now when I think what the result might have been if she hadn't taken Tania in time."

Tania is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

press service to assist in development of the fresh fish business from the Cape coast, is announced by the Dominion Fisheries Department.

GLADYS KLARK CO.
REPEAT THE BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE.

Another successful performance of "The Blindness of Virtue" was given by the Gladys Klark at the Casino last night. The play called for some very impressive emotional work which was very capably carried out by Miss Gladys Klark, LeRoy H. Bally, Ellen Andrews and J. Edmund Balfour, whilst the humorous side of the piece was left entirely to Miss Dot Jewell and Louis Lytton. The settings of the play were superb, whilst the plot and local left nothing wanting. To-night will see the last performance of this play. The bill for to-morrow night, Saturday night and matinee performance will be a strong social drama, entitled "A Wife's Secret." This is a big play with a big plot and containing a tremendously big theme.

MISUNDERSTOOD.
Lord Lee, formerly Minister of Agriculture and an expert on all that relates to farming, fired off an amusing after-dinner story the other day.

It concerned a certain Sussex squire who, the harvest having been safely gathered in, invited his men to the customary feast.

Knives and forks effectively banished eloquence for a time, but at length the orating began, and the oldest servant stood up to propose the health of the host.

"Fell ter me, Squire," he said, "ter propose yr' health. Baint much of a speaker, but yev've bin a good master ter us, an' yev've seen we put in some good work for yew."

"Here! Here!" from the Squire. The ancient one looked hurt and scratched his head for an inspiration.

"Here!" he snapped at last. "Yen and in the fields, too. Dang it all, Squire, don't lay so much stress on the 'here'; only Bill Tobbins 'ad more'n six 'alpina!"

THE DEVOUT LOVER.
The colonel believed in soldiers being bachelors, so he usually refused his men permission to marry.

One applicant turned away looking so downcast that even the officer's stern heart was touched.

"Look here, my man," he said, "come to me again in a year's time, and if you still want to be married, I'll give my consent."

The year passed. Again the private applied; the colonel was quite taken aback.

"Well, well, I really must give you permission," he smiled. "I never expected to find such constancy in either man or woman."

The private saluted.

"Thank you, sir," he said gratefully; "b-but, please, sir, it ain't the same woman!"

Obituary.

GEORGE R. LINDSAY. It is with deep regret we announce the death of Mr. Charles R. Lindsay, who for many years was chief of the Delivery Department at the Postal Telegraph, a position from which falling eyesight caused his retirement about three years ago. Mr. Lindsay was a son of the late James Lindsay, of Harbour Grace, and one of Mr. Roddick's pupils at the Grammar School in that town. He was for many years on the staff of Sellars and Cairns, later with Marshall and Rodger, and previous to entering the Civil Service was for some time with Ayre & Sons, Ltd. His wife, formerly Miss Facey, with one daughter, Alice, and three sons, Bertram, Harold and Raymond survive; also two sisters, and two brothers, Miss Lindsay of Circular Road, Mrs. Wm. C. Mews, of Rennie's Mill Road, Mr. Archibald Lindsay, Circular Road, and Mr. Eugene Lindsay, (Lawrence & Co., Ltd.) of Cathedral Street. Mr. A. Lindsay is at present on the West Coast, and the recent storm has rendered communication impossible. Mr. George Lindsay's health had for some years been uncertain, but there were no apparent indications to cause apprehension. Two or three days ago he was prostrated by an attack of an illness to which he had been previously subject. He was removed to hospital, where he passed peacefully away. To his widow, children and immediate friends the Telegram extends the sympathy of their many friends. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon.

Valuable Ruins Uncovered.

ARCHAEOLOGISTS GREATLY INTERESTED. Athens, (Associated Press)—Dr. Karamanolis, one of the Greek inspectors of antiquities, has accomplished some most interesting work in the ruins of the palace at Thebes. According to legend, this place was founded by Cadmus, who is said to have first brought the alphabet to Greece. In previous campaigns, the remains of the fresco decorations of the earlier palace, 1600 to 1400 B.C., were brought to light. This consisted largely of a frieze of elaborately dressed and gilded women carrying flowers, painted jugs, or ivory boxes. This year the excavator has found some of the store-rooms of the later palace, 1400 to 1100 B.C. From these there have been extracted a hundred or more big stirrup jars. They are unfortunately broken but they can be put together again. A considerable number of these jars have painted on them inscriptions in the still undecipherable Mycenaean alphabet. The letters, or rather signs, are of a hieroglyphic character and are derived but differ from the well known and equally undecipherable Cretan pre-historic alphabet. Scientists believe it possible that the difference of alphabet means a difference of language. However much professors may dispute about the meaning and character of these alphabets, Athens archaeological circles attach special interest to the fact that ancient tradition has once more been proved right by the discovery of what might be called Cadmean letters in the ruins of Cadmus' city.

Bolsheviks Becoming Civilized.

THE RESTORATION OF THE BOILED-SHIRT. MOSCOW, (Associated Press)—Boiled shirts made their reappearance here at the opening performance of grand opera. There were seven of them, and not one was the sort that one scrubs with a sponge. This extremely bourgeois attire was an announcement that starch has arrived in the Moscow markets with the changed economic policy. The entire audience in the great opera house heralded the advent of a new era in Russia. Seats were sold in the old-time way. It cost 24,000 rubles to have an excellent seat in the pit or first balcony, and the seats were all full, as well as in the galleries. The mammoth auditorium is just as brilliant in its dull gold and red interior as it was in the days of the Czar. The initial opera was Glinka's "Russian and Ludmilla." It was brilliantly staged. There was a marked difference between the opera crowd this year and that of three years ago. In the opening months of the Soviet regime, Bolshevists of both sexes nearly all wore black leather coats, which they dramatised very heavily at the opera and in all public places. The absorption of a large bourgeois population and three years of experience in government have changed the dominant party. The members have softened and become more conventional. The percentage of bearded, masculine looking women is smaller. Femininity is reasserting itself. The old-time Russian courtesy is reappearing in all gatherings. Red army soldiers are now generally shaved and have their boots polished. The constant lecturing of the immaculate "Trotsky" has sunk into the army. He is a great stickler for proper care of clothing and equipment and the same word has been generally passed along in all government departments.

Unpatriotic Conduct.

ENGLISH FILM GETS PRINTING DONE IN GERMANY. Not only is the British Post Office losing money through firms, to avoid the high postal charges here, sending circulars abroad to be posted to customers in this country, but printers are losing trade through the firms getting the circulars themselves printed abroad.

At a time when unemployment is widespread in this country it is a serious matter to find work sent to a foreigner while British printers stand idle at home and draw out-of-work allowances. Reading through the circular distributed by the German Post Office for a Coventry firm (a copy of which was sent to the Daily Mail), a typographical error aroused suspicion that the circular itself had not been printed in this country. On enquiring the firm stated frankly that the circulars had been printed in Germany, at a price about 75 per cent. below the English charges.

We sent addressed envelopes to Germany," added the managing director, "but the British Post Office refused to carry them. We then sent lists to an addressing agency in Cologne, and it has despatched the circulars to England. Instead of a penny per packet, the postal post is, with the present value of the mark, about an eighth of a penny. We save on postage and we save on printing. We have spent £1,000 on advertising by this circular."

Backache

Backache is the outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women often make the mistake of attributing other causes and overlook the derangement of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief. This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mrs. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the past two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine prescriptions but made no result. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the second box made me feel a good deal better. I have since used six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."

It's Freezing Guns!

That's how we describe Newfoundland weather—one of the most rigorous climates in the world.

When the stinging wind whips round the corners, and Jack Frost snaps at you in that blustering way of his, hinting shrilly that you need warm things to wear.

"By jiminy, it is cold."

We've got every kind of comfy, heat-producing, cold-resisting garment to wear. Get yourself tight and trig underneath the protecting caress of pure wool wearables and you can snap your fingers in Winter's grim face and turn your back on the doctor. But it must be pure wool—to wear "mixtures" is to take a risk. Every wool garment we sell contains wool as pure as northern snows.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT PRO-ROGUE.
LONDON, Nov. 10. The session of Parliament which opened in February ends to-day, with the prorogation of both Houses after a brief autumn sitting, which began Oct. 18. This special meeting was summoned to deal with unemployment. While this problem was duly taken care of, the interest of members has been mainly focused on Irish peace negotiations. Several members, apprehensive of the present state of the Irish situation, urged the Govt. to allow another adjournment instead of prorogation. Austen Chamberlain, however, reminded his inquirers that Premier Lloyd George had repeatedly promised that nothing would be finally settled, with regard to Ireland, without calling the House together. A new session could be opened, he pointed out, should developments require it. Members separated overnight with some feelings of anxiety, mainly due to a belief, which nevertheless was not unanimous, that Irish settlement will be rendered impossible by the attitude of Ulster. It was recognized, however, that Ulster had not yet fully examined the Government's proposal.

LONDON'S INTEREST IN MICHAEL COLLINS.
When Mr. Michael Collins went to Downing Street recently there was a large crowd in Whitehall to witness his arrival. The Commander-in-Chief of the I.R.A. is what might be called the "star turn" of the Irish delegation so far as the general public is concerned, but like so many people who achieve a newspaper notoriety he does not fit in with the classes of the nation. There is nothing of the dashing brigand about his appearance. His jacket does not betray the faint outline of a hidden revolver. On the contrary, he is an ordinary looking young man, almost carelessly dressed, whom most people would pass in the street without a

LONDON GOSSIP.

THE PRINCE AND INDIA.

LONDON, Oct. 18, 1921. A friend of the Prince of Wales puts to me the position of the Prince towards his visit to India in this way: "The Prince feels the same sort of reluctance to his visit to India as any one would feel about a visit to a country house when half the guests have announced their intention to cut you and many of the servants have declined to wait on you. Moreover, the Prince admittedly has thoroughly enjoyed his popularity and his public receptions. He does not welcome the thought of that popularity being tarnished, and being of a very sensitive character, he is really suffering from the prospect of an unfriendly attitude on the part of the people with whom he is yet unfamiliar. Weighed against this is his anxiety not to thwart the wishes of the Prime Minister, for whom he has a strong personal liking."

The opposition, I may add, of many persons near the throne and of a very large number of serious students of Imperial affairs continues to gather against the projected tour of the Prince in India. Obviously the situation has become more intractable as the rumours of obstacles and unpleasantness in India increase, for those only made it the more difficult, of course, for the tour to be abandoned.

THE PARK HUTS.

The celebrations of the third anniversary of the Armistice will coincide with the beginning of the work of removing the war huts from St. James's Park. The huts used by the Army Postal Service and afterwards by the Pensions Ministry in Regents Park and the huts on the Embankment at Charing Cross and the huts in the Victoria Tower Gardens, next to the House of Lords, will be dealt with in the beginning of next year. The Ministry of Pensions in Regent Park, Denmark Hill, will remain for the present—and the present in such cases usually means a year or two. All the wooden huts in St. James's Park are to be sold, but the concrete building occupied by the Ministry of Shipping will have to be smashed or blasted. Doubtless some of the shipping public would like to give their services for that work free. The Passport Office conducts its business there now, and although there has been a great improvement in its methods there is a fairly large public that would also like to assist in the clearing up. The huts near Storey's Gate, now occupied by a section of the Admiralty. It will take a considerable time before these huts, with their central heating and drainage systems, are all cleared away and the floor of the lake repaired to hold water again. The clearing up will be strongly advised anyone else to the continued presence of these huts in public parks. I must add in fairness that the huts themselves were not the eyesores they were so frequently called.

FLATS FOR THE MILLIONS.

So many schemes which have as their ostensible object the complete solution of the housing problem have been mooted from time to time that the inception of further projects to the same end seem both belated and unnecessary. Nevertheless, the housing difficulty still persists, and the production of fresh schemes continues. The latest is of a character which at all events strikes the imagination. It is a plan to provide family service flats suitable for all classes of the community on an extensive scale in various parts of London. A start has been made first in the West End, where a property allowing over 40 suites, has been secured and adapted by the promoters. Each floor has its own domestic staff, the catering is supervised by an experienced steward and the kitchen by an expert French chef, the rents, inclusive of all meals, domestic service, and valeting, ranging from £300 to £750. It is proposed to develop the scheme in other residential districts on an ambitious programme which aims at the provision of 7000 service rooms by 1924. Numerous advantages of the system are held out, including the abolition of premiums, the absence of domestic servant worries, and the opportunity to secure greater comfort at less cost than is possible in the ordinary house to-day.

MIRARD'S LINIMENT FOR GARGET IN COWS.

Every day seems to bring the announcement of a ball in aid of some charity. Between now and Christmas there will be three dances at Prince's Galleries for the funds of Queen's Hospital for Children. The Victory Ball is fixed for the eve of Armistice Day, with the Duke of Connaught as chief patron, and the proceeds are to go to the Prince of Wales's Fund for the Boy Scouts. On November 28th comes Miss Hoga Netherole's Ball at Devonshire House for the Peabody League of Health, the Queen being patron. On the next night there is a dance at the Hotel Cecil for the London Hospital. On December 7th Princess Marie Louise gives a ball at Kent House for the Bermondsey Working Girls' Club, and on December 8th the Three Arts Club Ball is held, the rendezvous being changed from the Albert Hall to Covent Garden. The students of the Royal Academy attelers announce their fancy dress ball as a Guy Fawkes revel on November 4th at the Galleries of the R.I.B.A. I hear that Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, is to hostess at another dance to help the Stepney Infant Welfare Centre.

second look. He might be a professional football player or even a policeman in multi. Physically, he is built for either part. But closer inspection gives an impression of strength of character, and there is a look of determination in his eye. His arrival in London was in keeping with his recent career. From the time he left Dublin he had gone in fear of discovery, and he plumed himself on the fact that he had succeeded in hiding his identity from his fellow travellers and his features from battalions of camera men. Once safely installed in the Sinn Fein headquarters, however, he overcame his shyness of publicity, and faced the photographers and the interviewers fearlessly. To the latter he was not very communicative. London is just as anxious to see Mr. Collins as it was to view Mr. Charles Chaplin, and the first attempt to gratify this curiosity was made.

LONDON UNIVERSITY AND ITS NEW SITE.

Next week's meeting of the London University Senate will have to answer an invitation from the L.C.C. to reopen the whole question of the new site. The L.C.C. now desires that the rival claims of the Holland Park estate be fully explored before anything more is done on the Bloomsbury project. The advocates of the Holland Park estate make the points that it is several times bigger than the Bloomsbury site, has greater possibilities of subsequent expansion, has natural beauties which Bloomsbury lacks, is cheaper, and though not as central is easily accessible. The facts of the position up to the present are as follows. The Government last year offered the Bloomsbury site to the University, the Senate consulted the L.C.C., whose support was indispensable; the latter promised to complete a grant of not more than a third of a million pounds if the University accepted the Government's offer. It was largely on the strength of the L.C.C.'s approval and promise of support that the Senate finally accepted the gift of the Bloomsbury site. The Government, therefore, bought the site, and gave it to the University. The sale contracts were completed last January, the price being £425,000. Building has started on the Bloomsbury site. The new School of Historical Research, with which is housed the British Institute of International Affairs, has been erected in Malet Street, an anonymous benefactor gave £20,000 to establish the Institute, and building was started as soon as the new site was accepted.

GETTING SENTENCE MITIGATED.

The young lad, resident of Hoylestown, who yesterday was fined $20 or 30 days imprisonment for breaking a pane of glass had to go to jail as his father was unable to pay the fine. It appears that the owner of the glass also owns a dog which some two weeks ago made at the boy and tore his clothes. The boy was in dread of the animal, and when he was passing on this last occasion the dog flew at him and to protect himself he threw a stick from a bundle which he was carrying, but it missed the dog and broke the glass. Some interested residents were to-day at court endeavoring to have the sentence mitigated and the boy released.

HERE AND THERE.

FEW HERRING TAKEN.—A few herring were taken in the nets at Broad Cove, C.B., this morning; the fish were of small size and the fishermen say there is no body of them near shore yet.

HEAVY SENTENCES.

Three boys were charged before Judge Morris this morning with being into the G.L.B. Armory and taking a quantity of goods from the Quartermaster's Department. One was sentenced to six months imprisonment and the others to three months each.

NATIONAL POPPY DAY.

Provided that the s.s. Schem, which is bringing the poppies to be sold on Armistice Day, arrives in time, the streets to-morrow will be invaded by a detachment of young ladies, who will sell the emblems of "Flanders Fields" in aid of G.W.V.A. funds. It will indeed be a fiftyninth person who will refuse to purchase a poppy, reminiscent of a worthy one and the poor man's mite is just as welcome as the rich man's cheque. No one should be seen on the streets to-morrow without a poppy. Mrs. W. B. Fraser is in charge of the preparations for Poppy Day.

GETTING SENTENCE MITIGATED.

The young lad, resident of Hoylestown, who yesterday was fined $20 or 30 days imprisonment for breaking a pane of glass had to go to jail as his father was unable to pay the fine. It appears that the owner of the glass also owns a dog which some two weeks ago made at the boy and tore his clothes. The boy was in dread of the animal, and when he was passing on this last occasion the dog flew at him and to protect himself he threw a stick from a bundle which he was carrying, but it missed the dog and broke the glass. Some interested residents were to-day at court endeavoring to have the sentence mitigated and the boy released.

A Pregnant Silence.

To-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, a two minutes' silence will be observed throughout the British Empire and the Republic of the United States of America.

To-morrow all peoples under the British and American flags are asked for a scant two minutes to let work drop from their fingers; to let mundane thoughts pass from their minds, and permit their hearts to drift back three years to a time when the sound of guns carried a message of horror: to give from their wealth of hours a few brief seconds of thanksgiving of memory and of gratitude.

minutes before 11 o'clock, the bells and chimes of the city churches will send forth a musical peal to direct the attention of the populace to the approach of the hour.

NEWFOUNDLAND OFFICERS WILL PRESENT WREATH.

Beyond the Layman.

Yesterday morning, in the most accidental way, I came to know that Judge Morris was correct. I at once called on His Honor after a pleasant conference we had decided not to withdraw it from publication.

In regard to the major matters, the lines for which His Honor has been public, and the listing of which I intended no comment. I heard of drunkenness, I was informed by competent officials that the minimum fine was constantly "reduced." This was what I spoke of.

The nuisance law I believe provides for a fine of one dollar for first offence, and two dollars as a maximum for second offence within twelve months, and ten dollars maximum for subsequent offences within twelve months.

Certainly the law that under such circumstances was only indisposed to a prohibitory law. Drunkenness is ipso facto disorder.

It is open to severe penalty. His Honor informed me that he had only one to inflict a one dollar penalty. The solution of this tangle is beyond the layman. Possibly prosecution should be made under the nuisance act, possibly the court should take account that the fundamental law has changed from license to prohibition for first offences, and should be increasing penalties for continuous law-breaking. His Honor assures me that he will give careful attention to these suggestions.

Yours faithfully,
CHARLES H. JOHNSON.

Boosting Basket Ball.

A movement is now on foot for the organization of a Basket Ball League in the city and teams are now being formed and are getting in readiness for the winter. Basket Ball is an excellent indoor game and should be popular during the cold months. The C.L.B. Cadets and the C.C.C. have signed to their respective armchairs. The Methodist, Bishop Spencer and St. Paul's Colleges have also signed. Those who possess the opinion that Basket Ball is merely a girl's game will find their idea an erroneous one if ever they engage in a real game.

Hospital Without Supplies.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
MARTIN, RUSSIA, Oct. 11.—(By Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press)—The lack of medicine in Russian hospitals becomes accentuated here. It is even worse than in the Volga. "Tzaritsin has 100 hospitals, none of which has a pair of quinine or of any of the simpler medicines, nor have they any with which to purchase anything for their patients. At the Soviet hospital for typhus established here in a converted private residence, there are 50 patients with a lone woman doctor in charge and with a few servant girls. She is totally without oil, camphor, alcohol, bed clothing or fresh garments. In the First hospital, at the outskirts of the city, there are 150 patients, but no medicines, no lye soaps, no carbolic for washing the germ-infested patients. The daily food of the convalescents consists of one dish of meat, one-sixth of a pound of meat, three-quarters of a pound of bread. The Soviet government furnished all medicines free to hospital patients and the general public. It ceased doing so some months ago.

TRY AND HUNGRY.

Doctors and hospital attendants are tired and hungry despite the fact that there is now the best and cheapest food in the entire Volga district. Here the public market is fully supplied. But as in other Volga cities, the market is the source of most of the trouble. The market lies between the river and the railway station, at each of which may be seen some 5,000 to 10,000 refugees in various conditions of underfeeding. They are arriving in cold mud. Many refugees are arriving from points as far as Orenburg, where the crops are being destroyed. They are arriving to reach Poltava and the P. district, but the trains are irregular, due to bad railroads and to the "green army" bands. Some-Bolshevik peasants who sometimes are otherwise interested in the district, there is no business in it. Tzaritsin district may be any prospect of any. Its army is in a state of disintegration. Members of the red army, themselves, are being sent to the Russian civil war in the south has ended.

Slideways for Kiddies.

Now that the winter season is approaching the kiddies are looking for a fall of snow that they may get out with their sleds and skates. As parents with small children are always anxious when they are sliding on the hills of the city, would it not be a good suggestion for the Municipal Commission to arrange to make several slideways and small rinks in convenient parts of the city. One of these would be Bannerman Park. A nice rink and slideway (for kiddies) could be made there without great expense, and one of the present caretakers of the park could be employed to keep everything in order.

Wedding Bells.

MILLS-BUNNELL.
St. Thomas's church was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding last evening when Mr. Harvey McNeill was united in the Holy bonds of matrimony to Mildred, eldest daughter of Mrs. and Mr. Frederick Mills. The bride, who was given away by her father, was very prettily attired in a tawn coloured costume with hat to match and carried a beautiful bouquet of flowers. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ethel Mills, while the groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. S. J. McNeill. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Capt. Clayton. After the nuptial knot had been tied a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Beaumont Street, where a very enjoyable evening was spent. The presents received were many and beautiful. It was long after midnight when Mr. and Mrs. McNeill were motored to their home on Golf Avenue, where they will reside in future.

The True Badge of Citizenship.

"Red Michael," of Red Deer, Alberta, or Dr. Michael Clark, is an outstanding public man in Canada. He was the friend and colleague of Gladstone and Grey, when residing in England, fought for an extension of suffrage, and for home rule for Ireland, and in Canada has been the foremost exponent of Free Trade, as Cobden and Bright understood it. As a Laurier Liberal, he became a Progressive, co-operating with leader Creer until recently, breaking away on the ground that the Agrarian, or Western farmer, movement, was a class or group heresy. He is now a Liberal candidate. Recently, in a speech at Yorkton, Saskatchewan, he made the following points:

"I broke with the Progressive Party when in my judgment they ceased to be progressive," declared Dr. Clark, in opening his campaign as Liberal candidate in the Federal constituency of Manitoba.

One of the largest crowds in the political history of the town formed his audience. Dr. Clark stated that within the last few months the Progressive movement took on an "illiberal, narrow, intolerant and purely class aspect." Within the last few months movement had degenerated into a narrow autocratic class movement. My views about certain class movements are not the growth of the past few months. On March 5, 1920, speaking in Parliament, I used this language: "With what has fallen from these gentlemen about any one class or party, but he reminded these that the chameleon merely changed the color of his skin, underneath he remained the same."

"Our outlook must be dictated by national considerations. We must support these policies we believe to be good, not only for our own class, but for all classes in Canada. Our outlook must be national. This is what influences me in appearing in this constituency as a Liberal candidate."

In another portion of his address, Dr. Clark said: "The caste to which a man belongs is an accidental thing, citizenship is the fundamental thing. Just imagine running society on the principle of herding the inhabitants of a country or province into separate industrial principles. It is a retrograde step."

"Fancy the men of history being remembered according to the class to which they belonged. Robert Burns was a farmer, but who thinks of the great bar of Scotland as a member of a class. Manhood and womanhood is the true badge of citizenship today."

The Cathedral Bell.

The bells of Shandon
On Lee, sounds grand on
And we don't dispute but they're grand no doubt.
Beloved their name is
Made wide world famous.
By the gifted writings of Father Prout.
But each day I'm hearing
My love I'm sharing,
With a bell, which is far more dear
to me
Than the bells of Shandon
"Which sounds so grand on
The pleasant waters of the River Lee."
Rome's bells are splendid
Their loud notes, blended
With the air surrounding her seven hills
Make a joyous feeling
There's no concealing
And fills the soul with religious thrills.
St. Paul's Church grand is
In England's land is It's bells, loud pealing, where millions
toll
They sound sonorous
Like some sweet chorus
In the metropolis of that dear Isle.
But one bell, my brothers
Above all the others
St. Paul's or Shandon, or St. Peter's,
Rome
Much to me dear is
More sweet and rare is
'Tis a bell which rings in my Island
Home.
To the past it binds me
It oft reminds me
Of the forms and faces I once did know
Then a lonely feeling
Is o'er me stealing
As my thoughts revert to the long ago.
My soul it ranges
To view time's changes
To the sandy Fleming from Erin's
Isle
And memory glances
To Michael Francis
Who night and day for the church did
toll.
Before me thronging
The thoughts, come strong in
My heart; as down through the years
I peer
On friends long sleeping
Now in God's keeping
At lone Mount Carmel and Belvidere.
So with grave reflection
And with affection
From my heart outpouring the truth
I'll tell
No bell more rare, is
To me more dear, is
Than the one I love, the Cathedral Bell.

Disclaims Responsibility.

DR. GRENFELL DENIES FOREIGN PRESS ALLEGATIONS.
At a meeting of the Grenfell Association held yesterday, Dr. Grenfell disclaimed all responsibility for William Willard Howard or any of his projects and said further, that he could not accept any responsibility for foreign press allegations unless made over his signature. Several gentlemen present upheld Dr. Grenfell and lauded his work. The Prime Minister suggested that Dr. Grenfell should boost Newfoundland in his future lectures.
The meeting was held at Government House under the presidency of His Excellency the Governor. There were present the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Rev. Canon Bolt, Rev. Dr. Fenwick, Hon. M. G. W. H. H. Rev. E. C. Harpe, H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., Rev. C. H. Johnson, Rev. A. Clayton, Lt. Col. Macpherson, C.M.G., Rev. C. A. Moulton, Rev. R. E. Fairbairn, Messrs. W. C. Job, R. B. Job, W. G. Gosling, A. B. Morine, L. E. Emerson, H. A. Outerbridge, A. E. Holsman, C. McK. Harvey, H. R. Brooks, J. W. Hiscock, E. G. Grant, W. S. Monro, I. C. Outerbridge, W. Winsor, C. P. Ayre, R. F. Horwood, F. R. Emerson, E. R. Watson, and about forty other representatives of the mercantile, legal, medical and fishing community.
The Prime Minister, Sir Richard Squires, who had expressed a desire to attend, was also present. His Excellency opened the proceedings, briefly stating the object of the meeting, which was to meet and hear Dr. Grenfell, who had recently arrived from St. Anthony and is leaving for Canada to-morrow, and to deal with allegations made not long ago in the foreign press. He then called upon Dr. Grenfell, who, after referring to hospital and other work of the past season, and expressing his profound belief in the future of Labrador, proceeded to deal with the allegations in the foreign press. He described the difficulties he always meets with when lecturing, particularly when reporters actually did not attend the lectures. After touching upon an interview he had with the Prime Minister that morning, he requested Sir Richard Squires to let him have a press cutting from an Indianapolis paper showing him on that occasion. This article the doctor read in detail, commenting on it as he went along, and disclaimed responsibility for Mr. Howard or any of his projects. Dr. Grenfell took occasion to refer to the system of poor relief on the Labrador, affirming that if a proper sociological study were made of its conditions it would be possible to get rid of a system which, besides being demoralizing, was always moving in a vicious circle.
His Excellency then invited Sir Richard Squires to address the meeting. The Prime Minister dealt with the difficulty under which ministers laboured in connection with loan and trade negotiations when reports derogatory to the Colony appeared in the American press. Though he had never attended a lecture by Dr. Grenfell, he considered the doctor would be one of the greatest assets Newfoundland possessed, as no other person could command the audiences which greeted him whenever he appeared on the platform in the United States. He suggested that the doctor avail of every opportunity to "boost" the Colony.
Mr. Morine stated that he had attended a lecture at Toronto, to which he went rather reluctantly but came away converted, and he considered that Dr. Grenfell, whose work it was to aid suffering humanity, should be left to make his appeal absolutely in his own way.
The Governor said the meeting should come to some definite decision as to reporting or not the reflections upon the Colony and asked Dr. Grenfell if he had any further remarks to make. The doctor claimed that it was quite impossible for a busy man like him to keep track of irresponsible reporters, and he disclaimed all responsibility for anything appearing in the press except over his own signature. The Chairman suggested the outlines of a statement for publication by the Association if they so wished.
Mr. Morine thought it unwise to publish anything. Sir Joseph Outerbridge agreed and asked for Dr. Grenfell's opinion. The doctor concurred.
Captain George Whiteley, of Bonaventure, then delivered a vigorous speech in which he referred to his thirty years acquaintance with Dr. Grenfell and expressed the regret of the fishermen that "Our Doctor" had been made the subject of expressions which were absolutely unjustified.
Mr. John T. Crocher, of Battle Hill, said that after twenty-seven years experience, they all had absolute confidence in the doctor.
Captain William Winsor, speaking for the fishermen far North, referred to the large number of lives that, to his personal knowledge, had undoubtedly been saved through the ministrations of Dr. Grenfell and his devoted band of surgeons and nurses.
Mr. Edwin Grant spoke of a similar long experience at Blanc Sablon, during which he spent fourteen winters on the Labrador Coast, and quoted one particularly interesting case in which the doctor had, after travelling with him many miles in a blizzard, saved an old fisherman's life by amputating a diseased foot. Mr. Grant acting as an anaesthetist. He thoroughly en-draged the statements of previous speakers.

Captain Wesley Keen, speaking generally in support, said that what struck him as a remarkable fact was, that after Dr. Grenfell had addressed large audiences day and night for six months, travelling from New York to San Francisco and in Canada, there were only two misrepresentations in the press.
As the hour was getting late His Excellency then asked for an expression of opinion, and it was decided with practical unanimity to make no public statement. This finished the main business of the meeting.
Hon. R. Watson moved, seconded by Mr. W. H. LeMessurier, C.M.G., and it was carried, that as this was the first meeting after the death of the late Mr. Archibald Macpherson, who had always been a warm supporter, financially and otherwise, of the Grenfell work, the Secretary be instructed to convey to Mrs. Macpherson the deep sympathy of the Association in her bereavement. Before the meeting adjourned Dr. Grenfell thanked His Excellency the Governor for presiding, and for the many acts of kindness and courtesy he had received at his hands. His Excellency entertained the members at tea before they dispersed.

Fishermen! Here's the Boot for You-"Excel"!

"EXCEL" Made "All in One Piece"

"EXCEL"

The Fishermen's Friend

All fishermen know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of rubber and how the uppers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use of a fisherman's boot gets. The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life or resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and extreme cold far longer than other boots. Consequently they don't crack anywhere near so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "tire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure, which leaves the rubber pliable, weatherproof and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Pliable Uppers. Weatherproof and Wear Resisting. Tough Tire Tread Soles. Made "All in One Piece."

"EXCEL" Boots are sold by all reliable dealers from Coast to Coast.

The Lure of the Labrador

By DR. WILFRED T. GRENFELL, M.D., F.R.C.S.

ARTICLE II.

We have just completed a visit to a number of the northern fjords of Labrador that are little known, with a view to induce more of the great mass of world tourists to visit us. We are putting, we hope, at least two more practically unknown ones on the map, and there are many more deserving similar attention. Being personally familiar with the fjords of Norway and Iceland, I am convinced the Labrador has, in the northern fjords, a real attraction to offer, that would prove a valuable source of income to this colony if only it were properly mapped. Nor can we afford to overlook anything that will supplement the fisheries, with fish worth four dollars a quintal, and fowl, and other articles still so high. With all at six dollars or even five dollars a bushel, prices prevailing in Labrador this year, very few will see any money coming to them for their wares. It is practically impossible for even the best of fishermen to live off the fishery now. The Newfoundland schooner men that I speak of all felt this, and so many of them are going to the States to see us here to-day. We never received $1 for Labrador fish in my five days but four was five, so that instead of fifteen to twenty dollars, the Labrador prices this year. Yet the fisherman in the foundation of the whole fabric of this colony. The fisherman will be very little. He will come to his own some day, we are certain, but meanwhile the source of income can be neglected. How many Newfoundlanders know the fjords of Labrador and its wonderful fjords, seven miles up the beautiful coast river, up to which we steamed seven miles, a party of six, to the foot of that awe-inspiring natural wonder, in an ordinary heavy trap boat. Flocks of geese and black ducks and divers scattered as we passed up, and though we were not out for hunting, but for mapping, we had six geese when we returned to the ship, all shot from the boat as we passed along.

How many know Uqtook Bay? Like Kanariktok it runs in some thirty miles from the sea, and is connected over half way with it by one of the most beautiful, lofty, narrow, and winding side fjords, but through which a steamer can pass. The nearest approach I know in Newfoundland is the lovely entrance to Fortune Harbor in Green Bay, which every tourist loves. But this new pass is flanked by beautiful red and grey gneiss capped with heavy outcrops of the impressive jet black trap rock that adds so much to the grandeur of the larger part of your northern seaboard.

How many know Adlatok Fjord? This we mapped five years ago, and it was an immense additional pleasure to be able to recognize it from one's own chart, and navigate it without anxiety for shoals. Mr. George W. H. Hartford, in whose yacht "Norseman," we were making our rough survey that it might cost the Association not one cent, loves this fjord the best of any yet. And Mr. Williams Agar of Princeton University, the geologist who assisted me, was similarly minded. Its river teems with salmon, and the pools are near the mouth, and the heavy rushing torrent, and its confined rocky gorge, certainly make them "some pools." A party of Englishmen passed us here going up the river valley for two months or so work and sport in the interior.

We were obliged to omit the fjords from Hopedale and Hebron this year, as for many years we had promised to chart Saegleik main arm, but there are many fjords between such as Okpatik, Allatok, and Tikkoaktokak, which latter we explored in 1914. That alone is worth a visit from the most blasé globe trotter. It is an almost perpendicular sided glacier bed, its Eskimo name means "finger" or "thing that points," and it runs some forty miles direct into the mountains with its cliffs averaging some 2000 feet. So steep are the ice polished sides that in some places the whole forested covering, including young trees, has incontinently avalanched to the landwash, and lies in a pathetic crumpled up condition as if calling for help from the passerby.

But Saegleik middle arm was our objective. All we knew of it was the marvelous cleft in the cliffs that resembles nothing so much as the gigantic entrance to a giant's castle, as one sees it passing north or south by John's Island. How to tackle it and find even the right entrance might have puzzled anyone, for it is some years since we went north. Captain George Barbour, in a Government steamer, ranges nowadays the whole of the northern coast in the fishing season, and many of our friends who have attempted that trip have come back more than enthusiastic though practically no accommodation is offered to tourists, and the voyage is confined practically to outside waters. We remembered, however, that one stout fisherman from Twillingate always anchored all summer among the islands off Saegleik entrance. Skipper Tom White was anchored right there, in the old anchorage, when we rounded the familiar rocky head; just as if no world war had come and gone since we sat and chatted on his same deck in that selfsame spot, where he never fails to supplement materially his colony's wealth. No, he had "only been in some twenty-five miles fishing." He did not know anyone who had been right up, but his advice helped, and we were glad to renew the acquaintance of one of our most stalwart fishermen. Eskimo regularly fish the southern arm that has low sides and good anchorages. It is not a cutting into the basal formation of the Labrador coast range, but rather, a low valley running parallel with the main coast mountain uplift. But the middle arm pierces directly into the granite walls for 36 miles by our measurement. Its slides run up to mountains 4,000 feet high, and the facing cliffs rise perpendicularly out of the deep ultramarine water of a practically bottomless gulf, having no anchorages and only mountain torrents plunging in high cascades right into the waters.

From the outside cape it is 36 miles to the steep crag that rises direct from the end of the gorge to a height of 3650 feet. Two lateral valleys de-bouche here, one on each side, and their rivers have carried down sand enough into the cavernous cup of the old glacier bed to give holding ground when one's stern is tied onto the boulders ashore. One can scarcely imagine a more impressive sight than that from the summit of this high mountain. Rows of mountain tops, with here and there visions of silvery fjords in between, seemed to interlace their journey to the sea, while the vast barren table land of the Labrador central peninsula formed a treeless horizon to the westward. One or two lofty snow covered peaks barred our view to the northward.

In the two valleys game was abundant. Parallel mountain clefts running perpendicularly up the hill sides were filled with willows, and out of these willows grouse flew in large numbers as we crossed them. We found carbon grazing in both valleys and selected two fat bucks for our larder, and to enable us to carry a few protoid tributes of affection to our friends on the schooners outside.

These are but a few of the physical attractions of Labrador, sampled in one brief month. Weeks and months could be spent with pleasure and profit in these unknown fastnesses. Our geologist's only complaint was that he was unable to leave us and remain, equipped to tackle the many interesting problems presented by the weird medley of metamorphic rocks we found ourselves among.

Surely in the vast wilderness of material mud somewhere be hidden for man to discover, mineral wealth such as has rewarded man's patient search in other parts of the same great belt of rocks that forms the surface of Canada from Nova Scotia through Percupine and Cobalt to the gold mines of Alaska.

MISSING.

The house was fine to look upon And all the grounds were neat and trim. But of his neighbors I was one Who really didn't envy him. His walls with tapestries were hung And costly pictures, old and rare. But there was not a sign that young And healthy children sheltered there.

His books would thrill the bibliophile, And I was glad to look them o'er. But happier with them I would feel If there were toys upon the floor; Each kept with dignity its place. By servants paid for that, no doubt. But on them I could find no trace That children ever pulled them out.

In all his mansion fine I found No building blocks or rubber ball. No train of cars was left around. To clutter up his marble hall. I looked in vain on every chair For scratches left by little feet. But there was no disorder there— And home should never be so neat.

For all his wealth and mansion fine, For all the treasures he has bought, I would not trade the house of mine Where pillow fights are nightly o' finger marks I point with pride. To scattered toys such care I give, A house too neat I can't abide. I want a home where children live.

Some Baby!

Two proud fathers of babies about the same age were having a boasting contest in the City train the other morning. "Can your baby talk yet?" Jones asked. "No, not much," Brown admitted. "Can yours?" "Oh, yes; talks like anything," Jones replied confidently. "Yours is walking about now, I suppose?" "No, he hasn't begun to walk yet," said Brown. "Not yet?" Jones exclaimed. "Why, he's older than mine, and mine is toddling about." Brown was beginning to get exasperated. "By the way," he asked casually, "does yours use a safety-rasor or one of the ordinary ones?"

Insect Builds a Boat.

It is not generally known that the eggs of the gnat are laid upon the surface of the water. These, however, would sink if the gnat had not an ingenious plan for preserving them. The gnat lays about three hundred eggs at a time, and these are joined together in the form of a little boat by means of a sort of glue which covers each egg. This little boat is a marvellous construction, for, though it is but very small and delicate, no tossing of the waves upsets it, and nothing can fill it with water or turn it upside down. In fact, the glue which covers it, prevents it from ever getting wet. Even if the boat is pushed down to the bottom of the water, it comes up again quite dry.

INDIANS GUILTLSS OF CRIME.

Pardy Brothers, of Burin, Perished in a Blizzard.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

"Anything but History, for history must be false."

—Walpole, No. 141.

In writing about the Pardy brothers of St. John's, Burin, several writers, and, at least, one historian, have asserted that they were murdered by the Indians. From reliable information I have lately received this assertion would appear to be entirely at variance with the true facts of the case. All previous accounts have stated that about the year 1800 two men, named Pardy, of St. John's, were murdered by Indians at Bay D'Espoir. During the summer of that year one of the Pardy's, a foreign Captain, came in his vessel trading along the West Coast. He visited the Indian encampment at Bay D'Espoir, and found no person home except an old woman—the rest of the Indians having gone on a hunting trip in the country. It is said Pardy and his men took all the furs which they found ready cured, in spite of the old squaw, who did all in her power to prevent them, and that she was ill-treated. When the Indians returned they found all their furs gone, and the old squaw in a dying condition. Hearing that Pardy committed the outrage, they swore eternal enmity to any person bearing that name. The next year the Pardy's of Burin went to Bay D'Espoir to perform a winter's work, as it was called, and one day two brothers, with another man, went in the country trapping and hunting. They met a party of Indians, who, on finding their names was Pardy, shot them at once, but did not harm or interfere with the other man. Their bodies were brought home and buried at Tit's Island, a small island in Burin harbor, which, at that time, was used as a burial place for the dead of all denominations. The Pardy family were the very first inhabitants of Burin, and a tombstone is now to be seen on Tit's Island, erected to the memory of Henry Pardy in 1789 or thereabouts. Such was the story that gained credence up to now.

Tit's Island, or Pardy's Island, now called, is about one acre in extent. This neighbourhood must have been very early inhabited, and burials on this island must have taken place at a very early period, because, I know a gentleman, who is seventy years of age, and whose grand-parents were laid to rest in the churchyard there. They were natives of Kilmacshomas, County of Waterford, Ireland, and fished out of Burin in the latter part of the eighteenth and beginning of the nineteenth century.

THE TRUE STORY.
The above statement was always believed to be in accordance with fact, but it has now to give way to indisputable evidence taken from the epitaph on the tombstone, by Mr. George W. Bartlett, the enterprising merchant of Burin, a copy of which I give for the benefit of the readers of the Evening Telegram. Mr. Bartlett writes:
"These verses were deciphered from an old tombstone of the three Pardy brothers who perished in a snowstorm in the woods between Burin and Garlands, 27th Feb'y, 1781."
"Old tradition had it that they were killed by Indians in Bay D'Espoir, and Professor Dahl, who visited Burin and heard it from an old lady, went over to the Island where the graves were, and imperfectly deciphered the inscription, and wrote an article in the Newfoundland Quarterly, which seemed to uphold the tradition of their being killed by Indians, on account of 'Dogs and Guns' being on the tombstone."
"The writer read the article and his curiosity being aroused of such an old tombstone being in the place, he went over to the island, and with a preparation, cleared the stone, and managed to get it correct."

The inscription is as follows:—
"Within these graves below three Brothers lie,
Whom Death quick summoned to eternity—
In quest of Fur they left the Shore;
They little thought they should ne'er see it more.
Through woods and dreary wastes they went their way,
And with 'Dogs and Guns' pursued their Prey.
Fortune their labours crowned, and furs they won,
Repaid their anxious cares and honest tolls.
But Ah! before they'd reached their bleasing Home
Heaven's decree had fixed their wretched Doom.
Exposed to Snow and piercing Cold
In death's cold Arms their Souls soon sunk to rest."
"The names of the three brothers were—
Henry Pardy, aged 35 years
John Pardy, aged 28 years
Jethro Pardy, aged 25 years."
"While the writer was there he came across another old Tombstone with this inscription. Needless to say he must have been a Saint on earth in those days, 'in spite of the fact that Rum was one shilling and sixpence a quart':—
"In loving memory of James Pardy who departed this life 18th January, 1783, aged 76 years."
"A loving Husband and a Father kind
From care and labour free is here confined,
His Life with Charity conspicuous shone
And Justice, Meekness, Patience were his own.
Religion thro' long sickness was his Guide,
And in the faith of Christ he lived and died."
GEORGE A. BARTLETT.
After this conclusive proof of Mr. Bartlett, all the past references to the Pardy brothers being killed by Indians fall as flat as the proverbial pancake, because the cause of their death is clearly and unmistakably explained in the epitaph on the old Tombstone. Professor Dahl could not have been very careful in his search, otherwise he would have "dug deep" into the mystery and discovered the record of the cause of their deaths, which was hidden away for about a century or more. It was left for Mr. Bartlett to settle the matter.

Suicide Amid White Flowers.

A double love tragedy took place at the Hotel Continental, Paris, recently, when the police, who had been called in by the hotel authorities, found a wealthy Swiss merchant of Geneva named Schaeffer lying fully clothed on the bed. By his side was a beautiful blonde Swiss girl named Marthe Gillibert. Both had revolver bullets in the head. The room was full of white roses, carnations, and wreaths. These floral wreaths, evidently made by the young girl, lay beneath their heads on the pillows. Inquiry elicited the information that Schaeffer, who was 42, was highly respected in Geneva, where he was married. Recently he had been ill, and had been attended by Marthe Gillibert, who was a nurse. The couple fell in love, and Schaeffer, on the pretext of business, went with the nurse to Paris. Schaeffer and the girl apparently agreed that a happy life was impossible for them, and as they could not bear to separate they took the fatal step of double suicide. Early on Friday the girl went out to the Madeleine flower market, and was seen by the hotel porter returning with her arms full of most beautiful white flowers. From the first examination of the bodies it appears that the girl must have fired both shots, first killing her lover, then turning the weapon on herself. Schaeffer left a brief note requesting the police to break the news to his family in Switzerland.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94 P.C. AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil). The inventor, R. V. Johnson, 14 Washington Place, New York is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

The Diamonds in Your Ring.

Stone-setting an Art Which Takes Six Years to Learn.

There is a tremendous amount of detailed work in setting precious stones. After an apprenticeship of six years a setter has still a long period of training to undergo before he can attain the experience of a first-class craftsman. Concentration and meticulous care are essential. Very often impaired eyesight is the fate of the diamond-setter, unless he is careful to obtain a good light. This can be readily understood when we learn that a single ring contains sometimes as many as two hundred small stones, each hardly bigger than a pin's head.

Specially shaped holes have to be cut, and the adjusting of a stone in its setting is a fine art in itself. The hole is so cut that the stone is slipped in with a little pressure, and in such a way that it cannot possibly fall out. In old-fashioned rings silver takes the place of the more modern platinum, which is used in the better grades of rings. Silver has the disadvantage of tarnishing and softness, and will not stand the necessary heat of soldering so well.

Dust That is Valuable.
People are often confused about diamonds, rose diamonds, and brilliants. They are all three "diamonds," but a rose diamond has a flat bottom, with only the upper half cut and polished. A brilliant is a completely cut stone. Rose diamonds are not as valuable as brilliants. A diamond-setter's workshop comes in for a good deal of spring-cleaning. The floor is regularly swept, and the dust burnt in a special furnace. From the residue is recovered a valuable deposit of gold and platinum dust. This residue is called "emel," and gives a handsome return when sold. The setter must also wash his hands before leaving the workshop, for gold-dust has a trick of creeping into the pores of the skin and beneath the finger-nails. The water is drained off into a tank fitted with an outlet tap half-way down the side. The lamel sinks to the bottom, and once a month is collected and melted down into a very substantial ingot. A gown of white crepe is fringed with chenille and worn with many emeralds.

Novel Lifeboat.

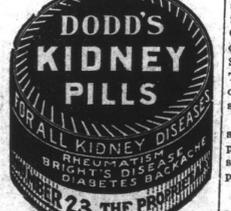

New Invention Goes Through Tests Successfully.

A new type of lifeboat for liners has been invented by a Liverpool man, and was put through its tests successfully recently. The boat is driven by a propeller actuated by levers in the centre after part of the boat in place of oars, and is provided with a hood which can be drawn up to give shelter from wind, sun, or seas, and which divides the boat into two compartments.

Mr. I. R. Fleming, of Messrs. I. R. Fleming and Co., Water-street, Liverpool, is the inventor, and the boat was built by Messrs. Nicholson (Glasgow Dock), Ltd., where it was tested in the presence of the inventor; Capt. J. L. King, shipping surveyor of the Board of Trade, Barrow; Capt. Smith, nautical surveyor, Board of Trade, Liverpool; and representatives of the principal Liverpool and Barrow shipping lines.

The lever method of propulsion showed considerable superiority in point of speed in leaving a sinking ship as compared with the ordinary propulsion by oars.

"Plain Mrs." Leeds.

Mayor of the First Arrondissement of Paris made a witty bowler wedding of young Billie Leeds the Grand Duchess Xenia Georgievna, according to Temple Bar in the Weekly Herald, when he told her after the ceremony that she was plain Mrs. Leeds. The rank and precedence a woman has by birth does not forfeit, and although cases of rank being voluntarily relinquished—e.g., in the cases of Patricia Ramsay, the Battenbergs and the Tecks—very much less in strict law there is authority in such a relinquishment. It is one apparent exception to the fact that the daughter of a peer, for example, marrying a peer, her husband's precedence in lieu of her own. The exception is more apparent than real, for though it may in a lower place in the scale of precedence she exchanges the intangible "peerage" as a peeress, it is a very definite and much more thing, and one enforceable by which she is not. It has of late been pointed out that if the two daughters of a duke married respectively an earl and a baron, whilst the first eloped with the footman married him she would nevertheless precede the daughter of a duke take the precedence than countesses or barons. Whilst the two elder daughters would be summoned to a Coronation as peeresses, and as such could be tried for felony, the footman's wife would be tried by a stipendiary jury, and her property would be taken from a shop.

Eye Items.

Scientists can see the same object in two different ways. That seems nothing new, yet really it is a miracle. It is only possible because in the eye of one of these things an image is thrown off from its surface in all directions. The person, according to his position, sees it in one of these directions. It is because the nerves of the eye are burdened with rays, before they have had time to contract and focus them. If we have a well-lighted room and go into the street, everything seems much darker than it really is. That is because the eye is contracted indoors, and has not had time to dilate and catch the lesser rays. "Getting used to the light" is merely waiting for the pupils to dilate. The eyes and tigers see in the same way. Because they have the power of contracting at will the pupils of their eyes and thus collect all the scattered rays of light there are, which are even in "darkness." We know why we can see our reflection in a mirror. It is not because the mirror is a mirror, but because the light from our face, striking the glass, and unable to pass through it because of the "backing," is thrown back again to our eyes. It is in this way that we see the two images fall on the two retinas simultaneously, and are combined. There's more in the eye than we think!

Books of Colour Names.

Books for colours have been a difficulty since the Chinese Emperor in 2700 B.C. thousand years ago, wore purple. The "Blue of Heaven," sometimes we write at the fancy of modern dyers to their credit, but actually they are merely imitating the efforts of their predecessors. The Greek, Agrippa d'Aubigne, compiled a wonderful history of the use of his day, among which we may cite the names of a Sicilian Spaniard, Colour of the Widow, the Scratched Face, Time, and the Dying Monkey. The days of Louis XVI. the names are generally more poetic—supper, the blue regere, and so on; but the origin of which English seldom stop to examine. The Antiochian appeared one day in a brown-coloured robe. "Crest your pace" (it is the colour of a lion). And puce became the name for the remarkable later that her face was "couleur des chevaux." Whenupon the Queen's became the reigning shade. James the extravagance of colour names and their limit in 1827, when we find fashion books such names as "Lead Mouse and Frog in Love."

Baby Girl Suckled by Lioness.

A family secret for many years, how Mrs. Magdalene McCabe, as a child was suckled by a lioness, has been revealed here by her husband, upon her recent death at Johannesburg, a special correspondence to the Daily Mail from that city. Mrs. McCabe, the daughter of Mr. F. Swart, who spent his time with his wife hunting in the wilder parts of South Africa, was born during a trek through Colesberg. Mr. McCabe says that one morning, near the Crocodile River, Magdalene, who was 3, was told to go down to the water where her mother was washing. Five minutes later the girl had disappeared. After the distracted parents had searched 8 days for her, two fazed bushmen walked into the camp and said to Mr. Swart, "White man, bring guns. We have found your child." The bushmen took Mr. Swart along the river's banks for about three miles and then they pointed out a tiny figure being suckled with two lion cubs by a lioness. The hunter fired a shot in the air, and the lions fled, leaving the little girl, her clothes torn and her body badly scratched, but otherwise unharmed. When Magdalene was ten she was found by her father near the Limpopo River flinging pebbles at two lions on the opposite bank. She said to her father, "There are the big dogs that carried me across the river."

Seeing With Your Nose.

Recent experiments show that the sense of smell in human beings often has a profound effect on the other senses. A pleasing odour, for example, stimulates the senses, while a disagreeable one depresses them. The same experiments demonstrated that the use of a perfume spray in cinemas, by stimulating the olfactory nerves, has the little-known effect of making the pictures seem clearer to the vision, and the music plainer to the ear. The scientist in charge of the experiments holds that the colours of pictures in art galleries, and the tones of singers and instruments at theatres, music-halls, concerta, and the like, would be enhanced if the atmosphere were perfumed with incense. It is a curious fact that women who go to the theatre heavily perfumed often notice that their hearing has been appreciably sharpened.

Miles of Microbes.

The microbe which causes the dread wool-sorters' disease, or anthrax, is a tiny fellow only one three-thousandth part of an inch in length. Rather more than six million could nestle comfortably side by side on the surface of a postage stamp. He multiplies, not by laying eggs, but by splitting himself into two. This splitting process takes place once every half-hour, at the end of which time the single microbe has become two full-sized ones joined together like the links of a chain. The chain is still not a very long one; but let us see what would occur if nothing happened to stop its growth for a whole day. Doubling its length every half-hour, it would measure an inch and a half in six hours. Fourteen hours would see it a mile and a half long; in twenty-two and a half hours it would stretch from the earth to the moon; while in twenty-four hours it would attain a length of 1,547,888 miles. Such an appalling rate of increase is prevented in three ways—the microbes cannot find the huge masses of food necessary for their growth; they are destroyed by sunlight; and they prey upon each other.

A Tip for Financiers.

Geneva, (Associated Press)—The collapse in Austrian exchange turned a police court fine into a fortune for an Austrian army officer who has just been sentenced to pay 60 francs at Buchs for assaulting a customs official before the war. The officer then was released upon cash bail of 5,000 Swiss francs, deposited at a time when the crown was the equivalent of the franc. When he paid his fine and received the bail he deposited years ago, he found that he had what would be charged into more than 2,000,000 Austrian crowns.

A Tall Order.

A customer had overhauled a large number of clocks of all shapes, sizes and descriptions, but nothing seemed exactly to suit his taste. At length the jeweller, in despair, fetched out a massive timepiece of complicated design. "Here, sir, is a clock which will, I think, suit your aesthetic taste. At precisely ten o'clock every morning the tiny bells chime and a bird hops out and sings a carol." "I will take that if you will make a few changes in it." "With pleasure," the jeweller said. "I have a daughter," went on the customer, "and I want the clock for the room where she entertains her company. Make it so that at eleven o'clock at night a milkman's bell will ring and a newboy will skip out and about 'Morning papers!'"

He was tired of Tea.

The buyer of a leading wholesale grocery house in Nova Scotia had been snowed under with tea samples all his business life. All the glamor of tea had gone from him. Appeals from enthusiastic friends for him to try Blue Bird left him unmoved till a week ago. Then he tried Blue Bird Standard Label and said it was the finest tea known in Nova Scotia, at any price, and bought 5 lbs. for his home.
