Lord Cecil's Dilemma

The Picnic
Woodall Forest

The lawyer's eyelids fluttered, but he replied, steadily:

"Certainly not. I am as much in the dark as you are. I quite believe that she was at the Hall, until I heard from you a few days since."

"I only believe half you say, Lupus, for I recognise your fine Italian hand in the libelous reports that originated in a scurrilous society paper. Mind you, sir, I will obtain certain proof of this, and if you are not careful, things may go hard with you. At present I am not sure whether you are in league with this woman or not; but no matter how you play with me, you are on the losing side!"

"Sir Charles, you are mad!" blurted Lupus. "I would remind you, Sir, that another gentleman is present!"

The young baronet had not heard the door open, but he turned to encounter the eager glance of a big, bloated man, some five years his senior. So questioning was his gaze that Hastings looked at him sharply a second time, and in some way he felt convinced that the interrupted conversation had more than a passing interest for him. This conviction caused him to make a mental note of his appearance—tall, fair, and good-looking in his youth; a brown, neglected beard; a blotchy, swollen face; vicious gray eyes and eyebrows that met thickly in the center of the forehead over a short nose.

"Good-morning, Mr. Lupus," Sir Charles said, turning on his heel. "I don't know that I shall have any more use for you, unless I am provoked again!"

With this ambiguous remark he measured the waiting client from head to foot—for he had distinctly seen a glance of warning flash from the lawyer's eyes—and turned upon his heel.

"Feters," snarled Lupus, to the office boy, "watch that gentleman out of sight!"

Not till the office boy returned did the lawyer take further notice of his bloated client; but when he knew that Sir Charles was actually gone, he beckoned him to the inner room.

"That is your rival, Spiers!" he laughed, sardonically. "I dared not ask him into the privacy of this office, lest you burst in upon us, and betray yourself. I tell you that you must drop the liquor, or we play to lose!"

"I feel that I hate him," growled Spiers, "and have yet to learn that he has not lured Lucy away from me."

"You talk like a fool," sneered Lupus, "though what can have become of her is a mystery. I have seen her but once since she announced her determination to assume the title of Lady Hastings, and she declared you to be dead!"

"But I am not, you see!" was the bitter retort. "She deserted me in Monaco, when I was supposed to be dying, and took every shilling away with her."

"Her own money!" the lawyer reminded him. "She left England with a large fortune."

"And she tired of me," continued Spiers, savagely—"tired of me and left me penniless in a strange land. I felt lenient toward her—I tried to believe that she really thought me dead, and was afraid of the infection that was ravaging the place. I was too fond of her to be harsh, until you told me that she confessed a fondness for this husband. Ha! ha!"

There was mirth in his laugh, but his face wreathed itself into a sardonic grin, and his bloodshot eyes rolled like those of a wild beast.

"If I believed that he was hiding her," he continued, with growing ferocity; "hiding her from me with her consent, for the sake of the thirty thousand pounds, which she had when she left Monaco, I would visit my gentleman, and murder them both!"

"You talk madness," interpolated Ebenezer Lupus.

"Are you working straight with me?" demanded Spiers, suspiciously, "or is it a game of double?"

"I think that I have lent you between fifty and sixty pounds already!" was the retort.

"Will you swear that Lucy said that she cared for this fellow?" he went on, moodily.

"I will, and I don't wonder at it."

"You don't wonder at it!" mimicked the other. "You know nothing at all about it!"

"You have squandered half her fortune—you have abused her! She cared for you once, but believed you to be dead, and was glad of it. You have become a mere drunken brute."

"And Lucy is in love with this baronet, eh?"

"Yes," replied Lupus, with a cunning smile.

"And you are helping her against me!"

"No; I deny that. I am of the opinion that she has again fled to escape you, and that what money I have lent you is gone. I shall lend you no more. I have simply made a bad bargain, and must put up with the loss. Your appearance has lost me a fortune. It has not only frightened away Lucy Ranklin—I beg pardon, Lady Hastings—but Sir Charles also."

"You lie!" interrupted Spiers, with drunken ferocity.

"Pray bear me out, sir," said Lupus, tartly. "You have led me astray by swearing that you had proof that Lucy was at Emden. Do not believe one word of it now. Had it been the truth, we could have put twenty thousand pounds in our pockets, and she would have still been under your control, had you desired it. By trusting to your statements, I have missed a big chance, and parted with my hard-earned ready money. I shall be pleased to bid you good-day, Mr. Spiers!"

"So this is your new hand!" snarled Spiers. "You are playing into the hands of this baronet now! but I'll be revenged. I'll kill him—I'll kill her, and you!"

He sprang at Lupus, and tried to seize him by the throat. He bore him to the office floor, but Lupus slipped out of his grasp like an eel, his deepest gray eyes gleaming with fury. In a moment he had snatched a revolver from a private drawer, and the musk was thrust into his assailant's face.

"One movement," he panted, "and I will make carrion of you! Out of my office, rascal! and if ever you put foot over the doorstep again, I will shoot you!"

Spiers glowered at him, and retreated to the door, which the half-scared office-boy was holding open.

"You have bested me in every way, Mr. Lupus," said the fellow. "You have got my papers from me; you have wormed everything out of me with promises; but my turn will come. I am going in search of Lucy to kill her; I will kill this baronet who has taken my place in her heart—who is spending her money; then I shall come back to you!"

He recoiled into the street, and Ebenezer Lupus smiled in a sickly fashion, and shuddered.

For a little while he remained in deep thought. Should he send for Sir Charles and warn him? Should he sell him the whole truth? Would the young baronet believe him? Would he be willing to pay a substantial sum of money down? Ebenezer Lupus came to the conclusion that he would not, and he relinquished the idea with a sigh. He had clearly overreached himself—he had missed a fortune by a streak of ill-luck just when it was within his grasp. The unexpected appearance of Spiers had been the first shock to his plans. Then he had hoped to still make a large sum by taking Spiers partly into his schemes. He was informed that Lucy Ranklin was at Emden, and believed it. Sir Charles Hastings' actions gave color to it—until his last letter. Then came his visit that day, and Lupus was convinced that Lucy was gone, and with her vanished his dreams of gold.

"No, I will not warn Sir Charles," he exclaimed; "I will tell him nothing. He is not the man to part with money. Even if he were inclined to do so, he is quite capable of commencing the suit against me for conspiracy. Let him go his own way, and I will bide my time—I will bide my time!"

Ex-Kaiser's Cruel Conduct.

AS HIS FATHER LAY DYING.

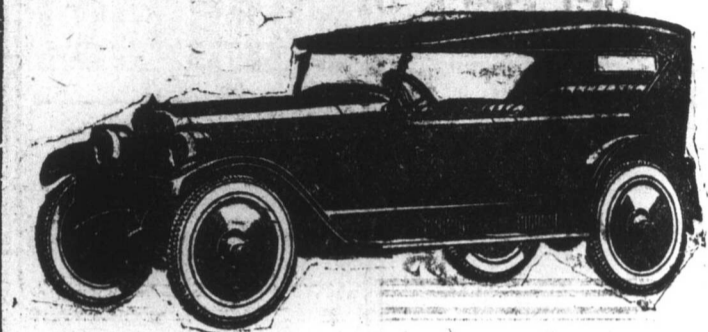

"Why didn't father fall at Woerth?" meaning the battle of Woerth-a-der-Sauer in the Franco-German war in 1870, when the then Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm defeated the French. "It would have been lucky," said the ex-Kaiser Wilhelm to his mother, the daughter of Queen Victoria, according to Robert Dohme, who was a member of the court of Wilhelm's father, Friedrich III. In his memoirs, now being published, Dohme in referring to the well known differences between father and son, describes the selfish behavior of Wilhelm's entourage on the occasion of his father's death. The day before he died officers attached to Wilhelm's

The castle was surrounded by troops under the command of Wilhelm's friends; who cut the castle off from all communication with the neighborhood. While Kaiser Friedrich was dying nobody, not even his children, could enter or leave without permit from Wilhelm's friends.

BRITAIN'S POLICY IN PALESTINE.

Twenty-Four Hours Delay of Miner's Strike
... Free State Troops Being Reinforced.

MANDATES GIVEN FINAL APPROVAL.

LONDON, July 24. The mandates created under the League of Nations and the final approval of the Council of the League of Nations at its first sitting this afternoon, M. Viviani, France, reported to the Council's action as a solemn and important accomplishment for the League and one full of significance and historic interest. In an eloquent but restrained address the Earl of Balfour outlined Great Britain's future policy in Palestine, which, he said, would be one of strict impartiality and justice, in which all the traditional feelings, sentiment and religious feelings of the different racial groups would be respected and held inviolate. He predicted great material prosperity, rapid advancement and fuller privileges for the Arabs and others and a new regime. He was confident the establishment of the Jewish national home, which had been acclaimed in America and in Europe, would not be antagonistic to or incompatible with the interests of Great Britain never had any desire regarding the holy places, but that of administering justice and exact justice between all the great religions and communities concerned, he said.

twenty-four hours. The shippers and trimmers at the International Pier, Sydney, whose grievances threatened to precipitate the walkout, decided by an eight vote margin—fifty-seven to forty-nine—to remain at work until 4 p.m. Tuesday, pending further negotiations with the British Empire Steel Corporation. August 15th was named tentatively by the Chief Executive officers of District 26 of the United Mine Workers of America as the date for the Nova Scotia miners to strike if the 1921 rates of pay were not restored at the mass meeting of miners at Glace Bay on Sunday. However the shippers have been assured they would have the support of the entire district in their particular wage dispute now in the crisis stage. A further strike of shippers, it is pointed out, would tie up the outlet practically of the entire output of coal of the Cape Breton County mines. Shippers are asking reconsideration to the 1921 rates of pay which, they state, would give them $26.40 for a full week against $21.10 at present.

NATIONALS REINFORCED.

DUBLIN, July 24. During the week end many reinforcements were despatched to strengthen the Free State divisions which intend to undertake a new offensive against the recruit forces. These troops are now massing along a line established from Limerick, through Tipperary Town and Clonmel to Waterford. It is reported that the Government's dispositions have been completed and

MINERS STRIKE DELAYED.
SYDNEY, July 24. An immediate general strike of the twelve thousand coal miners of Nova Scotia which threatened to-day was averted off this afternoon for at least an attack may be expected at any moment. The irregular troops have two alternatives, they may decide to resort entirely to guerrilla warfare and thereby prolong hostilities, or retreat upon and concentrate in Cork and attempt to hold that city at all costs.

CONSIDERATION OF DEBTS ASSURED.

PARIS, July 24. A general consideration of allied debts in their relation to the reparations question seems assured for the forthcoming meeting of the representatives of the Allies in London. This was the conviction expressed to-day in reparations circles. Having conclusively determined that the United States under no circumstances proposes to be drawn into the conference in which debt cancellation is to be the chief topic, the Allied Governments have decided to go ahead independently of the United States. The hope was expressed to-day, however, that any economic improvement which Government experts think would result from even a partial remission of debts and revision in the total of the indemnities to be paid by Germany would not be ignored by the American Government, if several years hence the American Government reconsidered its attitude towards European debtors.

NON-COMMITTAL.

LONDON, July 24. Asked in the House of Commons this afternoon whether Great Britain had offered to cancel France's debt if she would reduce her claims for reparations from Germany, Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied it was ill-advised to rely on newspaper reports.

MONTREAL CLOTHING WORKERS TO STRIKE.

MONTREAL, July 24. It was ascertained to-day that every clothing worker in Montreal will walk out on strike within forty-eight hours. The exact hour was not given.

STRIKE IS ON.

MONTREAL, July 24. Between five and six thousand garment workers are on strike in Montreal, the decision to come out being reached to-night. The strike involves ninety per cent. of those engaged in the industry.

SYMPATHETICALLY NON-COMMITTAL.

LONDON, July 24. The British Government has received the note from Washington asking co-operation in suppression of spirit running into the United States through Bermuda and the Bahamas. In connection with the Washington note the Government is communicating with the authorities in Bermuda and Bahamas to ascertain the truth of the allegations concerning false clearance papers, etc. The question, it is said, is complicated by the transfer of registries of ships. The United States Government has been informed that the British Government is seeking the necessary information. Meanwhile the British attitude is sympathetically non-committal.

TO TRADE WITH RUSSIA.

OTTAWA, July 24. The Government has authorized the appointment of a permanent Canadian Trade Commissioner together with an assistant to Russia to investigate openings for Canadian trade. The step has been taken under the Anglo-Russian trade agreement. It is understood the Russian Government contemplated establishing a trade agency in this country.

HAS OIL MONOPOLY IN MACEDONIA.

ATHENS, July 24. The Greek Government has granted the Anglo-Persian Oil Co., petroleum rights for the whole of Macedonia. If the Company's enterprise is successful the Government will draw royalties which are expected to be an important source of revenue.

REMOVING EMBARGO ON CANADIAN CATTLE.

LONDON, July 24. The House of Commons after rejecting an amendment to the motion removing the embargo on the importation of Canadian cattle agreed to the bill without division. Canadian cattle up to the present have only been admitted into the country to be slaughtered at port of entry. The Cabinet and political parties are so divided on the question that the Government permitted the House to have a free vote. The vote rejecting the amendment was 247 to 171.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

NO, NO, SONNY! NOT TO-DAY.
What's a dotting dad to do
With a little chap like you,
Teasing, begging all the time,
Hand extended for a dime
For an ice cream cone or sweet
Mother says you mustn't eat?
If my purse were twice as fat,
Really it could not supply,
All the things you'd have me buy.
Trouble is, when you commence
Love shuts out my common sense,
And so far as you're concerned
My old head's completely turned;
All that I can seem to say
Is a boy that used to be
Who was wanting things like you.
Wanting, wanting all day through,
And it hurts his dad to say,
"No, no, sonny! Not to-day."

Know it isn't wise or good,
Shouldn't do it if I could;
Little boys have greedy eyes,
He regrets it soon who buys
All the sticky stuff or sweet,
That his youngster wants to eat;
Yet forever comes the sad
Picture of another dad
Who was forced so oft to say,
"No, no, sonny! Not to-day."

What's a dotting dad to do
With a little boy like you,
That the picture of a lad
Do you think he can forget?
All the times those eyes were wet,
And how bitterly he sighed,
As some fond wish he denied?
It's no easy thing to say,
"No, no, sonny! Not to-day."

Dried Fish.

The man who sent the cable, or was it a wireless failure as the prospective lot of the Lunenburg fleet on its summer trip, has proved to be a poor prophet, for the latest reports say that fish are very plentiful, and while few of the fleet missed them on their first baiting, the majority did well, and the outlook now is that the entire number will return with better than an average cargo. The same report about the fish supply reaches us from Gaspe, the North Shore of the St. Lawrence and Newfoundland. As a matter of fact this seems to be a real fish year; something which is likely to stand as a record at least in Lunenburg for some time to come.

But if fish are plentiful in the sea weather of the right kind is not so plentiful on land, and the result is that the fish buyers of Lunenburg are away behind with their deliveries, so far behind in fact, that it is thought perhaps a fortnight's consumption of certain foreign markets will be lost because there is nothing to supply them. The exporting trade are hoping now that the maximum heat of the summer is due to arrive shortly, that the situation with regard to deliveries will improve. It seems very likely that a very considerable quantity of the spring catch will be still unsold by the time the summer catch is ready for market.

The dried fish situation in Europe is a shade stronger which is rather encouraging. Oporto seems able to absorb all that Newfoundland has shipped to her at a fair price. There is also a good demand from Spain. Dullness is reported from the Italian market, owing no doubt, to the financial condition, but the outlook in Italy is hopeful, and it is expected that arrangements will be made for financing her fish requirements before the new cure is available for shipment. The report from South Brazil is that the Havana market is very free offerings from Norway and Canada. The Havana market is very disappointing, quite so, but the rest of Cuba is good, and the average for the Island will be fairly satisfactory. Trinidad is anxious to get some large fish from us, but we have no supplies available for immediate shipment. The Barbados market is over-stocked with "clean-up" supplies from Newfoundland. We regret to say that Porto Rico is not a very good place for us at the present time; to-day's quotations show a net return of about $7.25 per quintal to the shipper. Of course there were probably poor fish and unsuitable for many other markets, but still the price is lower than we like to see it.—The Maritime Merchant.

The Prince of Wales.

If there were even a doubt that the British people are a family, whatever their domestic differences, that doubt was surely dispelled once and for all on June 21. London's welcome to the Prince of Wales on his return from his great Eastern tour resolved itself into a demonstration which for enthusiasm will not soon be forgotten by anyone who was in the midst of the dense crowds. When he arrived at Plymouth he confessed that he felt "the thrill of the homecoming." It was one of those simple, spontaneous, and perfect phrases which are characteristic of His Royal Highness's utterances, and it described not only his own emotions but those of every man, woman, and child assembled to greet him. The whole Empire is keenly conscious of the great things he has achieved and realized with the King and Queen in his safe return from a mission to the nature of which none could be wholly blind. His progress was followed with solicitude, his personal triumph has been complete, and

SEALOR'S WILL ON IDENTITY DISC

William Henry Thom Skinner, a ship's plumber, who went down with H.M.S. Indefatigable at the Battle of Jutland, left an extraordinary last will and testament. A naval identification disc about the size of half-crown contains this curious will, which has been admitted to probate and filed away at Somerset House. The will reads:—

Nfld. Postage.

Interviewed in Montreal a few days ago Sir Richard Squires, Premier of Newfoundland, had some very interesting remarks to make about the increase of postage on letters.

It may be that some rule of the Royal Union has caused the increase of the postal rate between Canada and Newfoundland when the rate to Great Britain and some other countries was increased.

Child Welfare.

CRIMINAL IGNORANCE.

"No wonder your baby doesn't retain her food, or sleep, or gain in weight; you wouldn't either, if you were bounced and jiggled as you bounce and jiggle her."

It requires only twelve months for a baby to become one year old and no longer subject to the hazards of infant mortality, but there are still many risks for him to encounter;

AN IMPORTANT PUBLIC CONCERN.

Community action can remedy many conditions dangerous to the lives of infants. The purity of the water, the food, the milk supply; the cleanliness of streets and lanes; the disposal of waste—all these are within control of the community.

FLIES.

Diarrhoea may be caused by germs carried to your baby by flies. Protect him by keeping flies away from the food and dishes.

Keep the baby's bottle and nipple away from flies. There should be no garbage or rubbish uncovered near the house.

What Do You Think of a Fluid

That will drive roaches and ants out of every hole, crack, or crevice before killing them and not poison food?

That will knock flies off the wall and not harm paint or paper?

That will keep the bedroom, kitchen, or verandah clear of flies, mosquitoes, etc. for several hours after a few sprays?

That will take fleas off a dog and not harm the dog?

That will destroy chicken lice without any injury to your stock?

That applied in small quantities to the exposed parts of the body will insure you from Mosquito bites?

That as a general disinfectant is stronger than the ordinary carbolic solution.

THAT FLUID IS SAN-O-SPRAY.

No insect can live where San-O-Spray is used. Yet San-O-Spray is non-poisonous to human beings and can be used with perfect safety in pantries, kitchens, dining rooms, and cellars.

"East Lynne" was seen at the Nickel Theatre last night by crowded houses. The story as told in the modernized version made a straight appeal to the St. John's public.

Be Cautious.

It seems that to hold the fish markets for Newfoundland against increasing competition, we are called upon to make the best fish possible and this seems to be somewhat slighted—any new appeals—as people are used to old methods of curing, etc.

OPENING CONFERENCE YESTERDAY.

For some time the Executive of the Child Welfare Association have been working for the establishment of a Baby Health Week, during which a series of conferences would be held between mothers and children, doctors and nurses, etc., with the view of increasing the safeguards of the health of the little ones. This important work was brought to a satisfactory conclusion recently and preparations made for the opening conference which took place yesterday at the Community Nurses' Offices, Renfrew Building. From 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 7 p.m., a continuous stream of mothers and babies flowed into the building. They were received by Mrs. MacKeen, who was hostess for the day, and shown into an office where the Community Nurses, Misses Cunningham, Lacy and Parsons, assisted by Mesdames Leonard Outbridge, Angus Reid, V.P. Burke, Misses Joyce Dunfield, Helen Rogerson, Mary Doyle, D'Alberty and Milley, weighed and measured each child and prepared it for inspection and examination by Drs. Wilson, Fraser, A. Tait and Cornell who were present in an adjoining room. A record of each child, including all information as to its system, state of health, appearance, etc., is made at the beginning and a copy is supplied to the parent. The original is kept on file in the Community Nurses' office for reference. Free advice is given in case of the illness of any child, and the mother is advised as to clothing, feeding, bathing and caring for the baby, whether ill or well. The object and aim of the conference is to show the physical condition of children examined and to indicate points at which their health and vigor may be improved. The Association had expected a large attendance, but the gathering yesterday afternoon far exceeded anticipation, and shows that the work which the Association is doing through its capable and devoted community nurses is appreciated. Yesterday's conference was for children living west of Adelaide Street. From 2 o'clock this afternoon Lady Crosbie will be hostess to children from 1 to 10 years living between Adelaide and Prescott Streets. The same mode of procedure will be gone through and these children will also receive the benefits of examination and advice will be tendered the parents. In the evening a Band Concert will be held in Bannerman Park by the C.L.B. Band in aid of the Child Welfare Association.

In the Realms of Sport.

Everything is all set for the big clash to-night between the champion Lions and the B.I.S. The last three baseball games have produced a really excellent brand of ball—one that has thrilled the fans. Duggy French and his plucky bunch of youngsters are right after the champs and threaten to mop them up. Walter Callahan will however have something to say to this when he goes on the mound for Davy Duff's aggregation. The game starts at 7 o'clock sharp.

The B.I.S. again successfully defended their laurels last night when they defeated the Highlanders 3 to 0. For the first fifteen minutes play was very exciting, alternate visits being made to each goal but no scoring resulted. Then Walter Callahan broke clear and sent a hot one to Vavasseur, which he handled, but the sodden field made a greasy ball and he was unable to hold it, with the result that it went through. Four minutes after Callahan again sent in a fast low one, scoring number two. The second half was absolutely devoid of any interest until about five minutes before full time when Adams and Halley gave a splendid exhibition of toreadors, much to the amusement and edification of the fans. It ended up in a penalty being awarded against Adams, which Callahan cleverly placed, and notched up number three for the champions. The B.I.S. were minus Fred Phelan, Burke, and Higgins, with the result that the team had to be re-positioned, but nevertheless they fully controlled the play, particularly in the second half. The next football game will be on Friday night when the Stars and Cadets will come to grips.

The Regatta Committee having "passed the buck" to the Football League concerning the eligibility of certain members of the C.E.I. team, the League is holding a meeting to-night at 7.30 to give their pronouncement. A meeting of the Regatta Committee is called for 9 o'clock so that the matter will be settled promptly once and for all. It is to be hoped however, that the League will send a recommendation to the Regatta Committee asking that the rule be more clearly defined in future years and thus obviate all acrimonious discussion.

Mr. W. J. Burt, Secretary of the Grand Falls Athletic Club, informs us that the first round of games for the Hayward Inter-Town Cricket Club later than August 19th. Any teams wishing to compete for the trophy are kindly requested to communicate with Mr. Burt who will furnish full particulars. It has been decided that no games will be played on the Athletic Field at the Falls after the above date as it is to be ploughed up and new seed to be sown in it.

The annual Garden Party in aid of the Carbonear Methodist Church will be held to-morrow. An excellent sports programme has been arranged consisting of football, cricket, 100 yards, 1-2 mile, obstacle and 3-legged

Hot Weather Hints.

WOMEN WILL APPRECIATE.
Thinking cool thoughts helps to keep one cool; quiet movements, a soft voice—all help to create an impression of coolness. The very sight of a hot, flustered, impatient person panting and puffing produces a perspiration, whereas, to look on a serene person is almost as refreshing as to feel a cooling breeze.
Much can be done towards keeping cool by wearing the right clothes and eating the right food.
Suitable Clothes.
Those women who are accustomed to wear corsets should not dispense with them, as by so doing they run a risk of catching cold; but they should choose loose garments. Petticoats and dresses should not be tight-fitting, and light colours in clothes should take preference over dark shades, which are always heating to the eyes. Shoes and stockings should be changed frequently, and it is essential that shoes should not be tight. Hats should be light in weight and shady, and must not press on the forehead. Washing gloves should be worn, and they, too, should be loose fitting.
Food should be light. Chicken, if possible, boiled fish, well-cooked vegetables, fresh salads, stewed fruit, weak tea, homemade lemonade, boiled water are all suitable hot-weather fare. It is a mistake to eat much meat or uncooked fruit, to drink milk or alcohol in large quantities.
A bath at bedtime, an open window all night, and pleasant thoughts to lull one to sleep are all important factors in the art of keeping cool.
It is of primary importance that the digestive organs should be in good order, and a little cooling medicine is often advisable.

Useful Hints.
If the omelette pan has "caught" a little dripping heated in the pan will dislodge the burnt particles, which can then be wiped off.
Ties can be made to look like new if wiped with a cloth wrung out of skimmed milk, or polished with furniture cream.
Add a small lump of sugar to the boiled starch, for baby's frocks or pinafores. The garments will be easier to iron, and will have a nice gloss.
Blunt scissors can be sharpened by moving them backwards and forwards on a piece of glass. The stem of a wineglass will sharpen the bluntest blades.

Here and There.
WARSHIP DUE.—The French warship Cascopee is due in port to-day from sea for supplies.
TRAPS DAMAGED.—The heavy rain and wind storm of the past few days have done considerable damage to traps on the local grounds. Many had to be taken ashore for repairs. Fish are not so plentiful as during the past two weeks, and only small hauls are now being taken.

Plastic Surgery Wonders

What has become of the men who had terrible facial wounds in the war?

The foreign visitor to Britain often asks this question and finds it hard to believe that great numbers of these men are not still dragging out hopeless and dreary existences in sad homes and hospitals. The "Daily Mail" learns that of some 10,000 cases of this kind which passed through the main concentration hospital for bad facial injuries, the Queen's Hospital at Sidcup, only 19 or 20 men are regarded as incurably disabled. The Ministry of Pensions purchases for these men of a country house as a home for them.

The wonderful number of cures is due largely to the skill of Major H. D. Gillies, R. A. M. C., chief plastic surgeon at the Sidcup hospital. He has grown for the disfigured, new lips, chins, and cheeks, mended and replaced shattered jaws, and even replaced faces that had been literally burned away by terrible explosions.

In mending wrecked faces his principle is "bone for bone, cartilage for cartilage, and fat for fat." He has built jaws with bits of bone from the leg, cheeks with fatty tissue covered with strips of skin taken from the body, and noses with cartilage from the ribs.

To a "Daily Mail" reporter, Major Gillies paid a high tribute to the skill of his fellow plastic surgeons at Sidcup. "Their success in making good the wreckage of the war is practically complete," he said. "The maimed men are to be found sitting alongside you in omnibuses and trains, working in shop and office, on the land, or back in the Navy and Army again. You would not have an inkling of what had happened to them.

"I can tell you of one case, a petty officer in the Navy who had his face burned off at the battle of Jutland. He has had a new face built, is back in the Navy, and recently passed his gunnery tests. There have been other cases as remarkable who are back in civil life again."
"Are the results permanent?" Major Gillies was asked.
"They are," he replied.

North Pole Flight.

Captain Roald Amundsen has sailed on the first lap of his attempt to cross the North Pole by aeroplane. He is proceeding to Point Barrow, Alaska, whence he will commence the air portion of his journey. It is his intention to land either on Spitzbergen or at some point in Northern Greenland. Captain Amundsen is accompanied by Elmer Fullerton, a former member of the British Air Force, who will act as pilot of the monoplane. He declared it was to make the trip in 24 hours. The machine carries 350 gallons of petrol and it is equipped with special gear for landing on the ice.

THE JOYS OF SHEDS.

It is my ambition to own an old house some day because I love old houses. I love their quaintness and their unexpectedness, I love their old gardens and the big trees that grow with them and which all the money you may put into imitating an old house will not buy for you. And I believe in the fine saying "An old house harbors peace better than a new one."

The author, on the other hand, one of those people who claim that it is better to produce the old lines in the lumber. He claims that old houses are likely to be musty and that they are always calling out for the services of a plumber or a mason or carpenter when you need the money for something important—as for instance, a new car.

Ten Get So Many Sheds.

But on one count he does lean slightly toward the old house idea. You would never guess what it is, because you are likely to get ten sheds thrown in with an old house. The author loves sheds. He says they fascinate him. I think it is partly because he has had so much experience in building one or two small buildings. The present price of lumber and the cost of all these little buildings that will cost so much now being thrown in with the house appeals to his joy in a bargain. And then he probably remembers the sheds of his youth, and has a sentimental tenderness for them because of the memories of old games and good times that cluster around the shed.

Sheds and Attics Are Disappearing. "Even as you and I,"—that is if you are old enough to have lived in a house with a real shed. Along with the attic of our childhood the shed has rapidly been disappearing, sacrificed on the altar of the God of Expensive Building and Scarcity of Space.

We had a most fascinating shed on the house where I was brought up, and just because it was falling to pieces and the family council decided it would be less expensive to tear it down than to have it repaired, it was done away with. I can remember how badly I felt though. It was almost grown up at the time. It was not a large shed, but large enough to have two doors, a small cobwebby window and many shelves littered with tools and other more valuable odds and ends.

The Usages of Sheds.

It is a wonderful place to use when playing hide and seek—one shot out one door when the hunter looked in the opposite. When Constance de Beverly, my cat (acquired as you may gather while studying "Marmion" at school) had kittens, they were always kept in the shed. When one of those cream ones sat on the steps that led down to the shed and sang "John Brown's Body" (four more verses before I change hands) and turned the crank. When one was given a bicycle the shed became its stable. When one played old witch, the old witch always lived in the shed, when one plotted any specially thrilling mischief, the shed was the scene of the plot. Of course if we had had a barn that would have been an even more appropriate setting for most of these joys. But we were town children and for town children the shed was the nearest substitute for a barn. And now the average child knows neither barn nor shed nor attic. No wonder they get bored and sophisticated so soon.

I hope I shall find that old house some day and that it will have not one but three or four sheds.

French Predictions

of War.

Many friends of France are asking why that country which suffered so much and fought so bravely in the war, should be in bad odor in English speaking countries at the present time. The answer was unambiguously given the other day in a newspaper interview with Count Jacques de Lesseps, who is at present in Canada and whose connections with his country are well known. Count Lesseps' words were undoubtedly representative of a large mass of French opinion, and as such justify criticism to which France is being subjected in Great Britain and the United States. He speaks of war as a possibility of the near future, as though it would not be undesirable, and holds that the Armistice of 1918, which put an abrupt stop to a weekly toll in dead and wounded running far into thousands, was a mistake.

Such convictions reveal a cleavage between English thought and French thought that cannot be bridged. British imperial opinion and such American opinion as takes international questions under consideration, are daily and overwhelmingly resolved that there shall be no more war with itself. The deeply rooted conviction of all men of real intellectual capacity in the Anglo-Saxon tradition is that war as a solution of international disputes is the greatest human failure; and that aspirations toward military grandeur constitute a disease which brings disaster to the nation which cherishes them. If the war did not teach France that, then the case of France is hopeless and her ultimate doom certain. The nations which continued to fight in the war for a half year after the armistice since the armistice are those which stand lowest in the scale of average intelligence.

Russia, Turkey and Greece. China's civil war, arising from a bogus republicanism, may be left out of the question, for nobody in Europe can be blamed for that conflict. Even Russia is discerning the error of her ways; and Greece has lost her appetite for war since the Allies left her to stew in her own juice.

It is quite unlikely that there is going to be another war, although the surest way to produce one is to constantly predict it as Frenchmen are doing. But one truth is absolutely certain: If it happens it will be a war in which neither Great Britain nor the United States will take part or willingly countenance. With the greatest Empire and the greatest Republic that the world has ever known equally resolved on a course of abstention, the chances are small that France will deliberately precipitate a conflict; and it is pretty obvious that Germany has no such desire. So long as the English speaking peoples are for peace, the peace of the world is relatively safe, even without the Anglo-American Alliance. The present friction with France is due to the fact that her military leaders and demagogic politicians insist on preaching solutions that the late war has shown to be pernicious folly,—the blind leading the blind.—Saturday Night, Toronto.

Massive Star.

30,000 TIMES BRIGHTER THAN THE SUN.

Professor Plaskett, the director of the new observatory in British Columbia, has made an interesting communication on a star that he has been observing. It is in the constellation Monoceros, the Unicorn, just to the left of the well-known Orion, and lies in the middle of the Milky Way. It is a sixth magnitude star, which means that it is just visible to the acute eye.

Nothing remarkable was noticed about it till the spectroscopic was applied; this instrument spreads out the light of the sun and stars into a long rainbow-tinted ribbon crossed by dark lines due to absorption of light by the gases in the solar or stellar atmospheres. The spectrum of this star showed the various lines double, whereas in the sun they are single; this is known to indicate that the star consists of two components in rapid motion round each other. In the present case Professor Plaskett finds that the two stars are 56 million miles apart, while they round each other in a fortnight, body going round the sun at the same distance would require six months for the circuit, and it is calculated that the two components of the Plaskett star are respectively ninety and seventy times the mass of the sun, making the pair the most massive star system known.

So far the results are pretty certain; what follows is more speculative. The diameters of the two stars are given as 18 million and 16 million miles, and each square mile of their surface is estimated to give 40 times

Strengthen the Muscles and Physique You've Always Admired in Others

It is easy to have strong muscles, a keen eye and a well-defined figure now. All you need to do is to apply your body to the flesh-build, strength-build, stamina-build, and endurance-build which are lacking in modern life. The most remarkable strength-builder known to date is the yeast that produces the energy of the muscles. It is called "Ironized Yeast Tablets" and it is the only yeast that is completely ironized. It is the only yeast that is completely ironized. It is the only yeast that is completely ironized.

Some Special Summer Savouries.

(By "Betty" in Glasgow Weekly Herald.)

Although their work of catering for the family table is all important, housekeepers are naturally desirous in the summertime of being relieved, as far as possible, of the heavier kinds of cooking. To this end attention should be directed to the making of savouries. These savouries, both cold and hot, are an excellent change from the meat dishes ordinarily in use. To help my readers a number of suitable recipes are dealt with which will be found most tempting in hot weather. Some of these can be prepared beforehand, and, although light, are very nourishing and satisfying.

Eggs in Tomatoes.

Allow one egg and one tomato for each person. Cut a thick slice off the top of each tomato, and remove most of the pulp. Sprinkle each tomato shell with a grating of cheese and pepper and salt. Break an egg into a wadded cup, and gently pour it into the hollowed tomato, and sprinkle with a little more seasoning and a grating of cheese. Put a tiny pat of butter on each, set into a roasting tin, and bake in rather a quick oven until the whites of the eggs are just set. Place each tomato on hot buttered toast and serve very hot.

Tomato Custard.

To use the pulp of the tomatoes following makes an excellent tit-bit.—Mix the pulp with two beaten eggs, adding a teaspoonful of finely-chopped parsley, a teaspoonful of butter, pepper and salt to season, and a breakfastcupful of boiling milk. Pour the custard into a pie-dish, and bake in a gentle oven for one hour. Before serving sprinkle with some grated cheese.

Summer Breakfast.

Slice some nicely-cooked cold boiled ham, and arrange nicely in the centre of an ashet. Around this place a border of sliced hard-boiled eggs, and outside of that a border of sliced tomatoes, and a final border of shredded lettuce or watercress.

Sardine Eggs.

After hard-boiling four eggs, cut these across in halves and remove the yolks. Pound the yolks with a piece of butter, also half a dozen of sardines, which have been scraped and boned. Pepper and salt and add a few drops of lemon juice. Cut a little piece off the foot of each white, so that it will stand nicely on toast. Fill each shell with the pounded mixture. The savoury should be served with a pretty border of shredded lettuce or watercress.

Hallbut in Custard.

Take a slice of hallbut, and dry it and dust with flour, pepper, salt and place in a buttered pie-dish. Beat an egg, and add to it a teaspoonful of milk, pepper and salt. Pour the custard over the hallbut, and bake in a very moderate oven for three-quarters of an hour until the custard sets. Serve hot.

Threat That Failed.

Sam had a quiet, easy-going disposition, and had worked on the same farm for several years without a single grumble. But his friend Buddy had more progressive ideas, and one day he passed them on to Sam.

"Say, Sam, you sure am some fool to work for the same money all this time. You go to your boss and say:—"

"Look here, boss. You got to raise my wages, or else—"

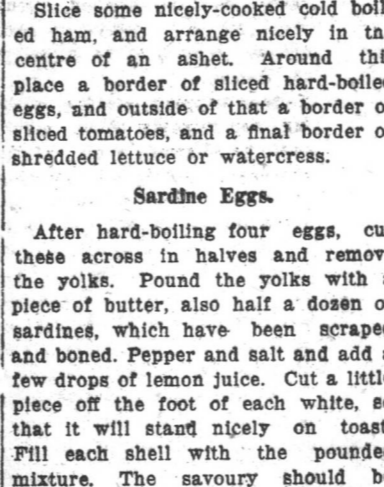

"Or else what?" said his boss, looking fierce.

Sam glanced at him, and then said:—

"Or—or else I'll work for the same money!"

Mr. and Mrs. Phelps had come to that all-important part of naming their new-born baby.

Mr. Phelps, who, by the way, detested work, and liked nothing better than to sit in front of the fire and watch other people do it, wanted the baby named plain "Bill."

"How did your coat escape?"

"I shall name the baby William Oliver Robert Kenneth," she asserted.

"But why all these names?" asked her husband.

"Because," replied Mrs. Phelps bitterly, "if you look at the initials you will find that they spell W.O.R.K.—so perhaps when baby grows up he will take to it better than his father."

The Competition of Government.

At the luncheon given on the S.S. Silvia, the new ship of the Red Cross Line, at Halifax recently, one of the speakers, Hon. A. K. McLean M.P., expressed the hope that before long the Canadian Government as a ship operator would retire from business. His remark, we observe, was warmly applauded, and by none we suspect more warmly than those connected with the Red Cross steamers, for they as well as other privately operated steamship lines in Canada, have greatly suffered from the injustice of the Government's competition.

The Red Cross Line has been in service a long time and its record is a good one. It provides a direct connection between St. John's Nfld., Halifax, and New York, which is satisfactory to importers and exporters both in Canada and Newfoundland, whether traffic is at the peak or in the depression. It carries on to the great benefit of both St. John's and Halifax.

Now it might have been thought that a line such as this, which received no Canadian subsidy and which in normal times was not burdened with an excess of either freight or passenger traffic, would have been immune from the competition of the Government ships, for obviously the services rendered being beneficial to Canada seem to be unfair to do anything which might be regarded as an interference with its profits. But not so. The C.G.M.M., having ships to employ, a freight to Newfoundland looked just as good to it as freight to any other place. For the past two years then, or longer, the direct line of steamers from Halifax to St. John's, Newfoundland, has been a sufferer from the roads made by its traffic by the com-

Man Who Fought the Germs.

WONDERFUL LIFE-WORK OF A GREAT SCIENTIST.
The son of a humble tanner who became one of mankind's greatest benefactors—such was Louis Pasteur, the French scientist, whose genius led to the discovery and cure of many diseases which, before his day, had baffled science. Born nearly a hundred years ago, he lived the beginning of his life in comparative poverty. It was by reason of his indomitable will that his genius bore fruit. He was quite an ordinary student at school, but when he embarked upon his serious studies he started on a line of discovery that was to end in fame. At that time there was general belief in "spontaneous generation"—that is, that germs can come to life without antecedents similar to themselves. Pasteur took up the study and showed that all germs have germparents, and that the germs in dust, in particular, played a large part in bringing to life the organisms that cause disease.

Working Against Odds. This latter was an important point. In those days surgeons were appalled by the death-rate among patients who had come under the knife, but the results of Pasteur's experiments led them successfully to guard the wounds against these germs. An even more important result was that without Pasteur's theory of germs, Joseph Lister, the great British surgeon, might never have perfected his system of antiseptic surgery which ranks to-day among the greatest blessings known to man. In the meantime, Pasteur had been devoting his genius to many other subjects. He discovered the method

Thrills On the High Seas.

STIRRING STORY OF BRITAIN'S DECAY SHIPS.

It is only recently that the full and dramatic story of the work of the mysterious "Q" boats against the German submarines has been made public. One of the earliest successes of the "Q" ships—which, as a rule, were either old tramp or small sailing ships armed with hidden guns—was that achieved by the collier S.S. Prince Charles, commanded by Lieut. Mark Wardlow, R.N.

On July 24th, 1915, the vessel sighted a U-boat about three miles off. The collier had hoisted her colours, and soon a German shell came whizzing across. It fell about 1,000 yards short. Lieutenant Wardlow, in order to simulate the movements of an ordinary merchant ship in the presence of an attacking submarine, stopped the engines and ordered the crew to get the boats out. The gun-crew, of course, was left behind in the ship.

Attempted Treachery. The enemy was approaching rapidly, and fired a second shot, which passed between the funnel and the forecast, but landed fifty yards away. When the range was only 600 yards, the enemy turned her broadside on the collier. Lieutenant Wardlow, seeing that the enemy could not be outwitted any nearer, opened fire with his port gun. The effect on the German vessel was remarkable and instantaneous; for her gun's crew immediately darted down into the conning-tower. While they were doing so one of the Prince Charles's shells struck the submarine. Still the British fire continued, and when the submarine's bows were a long way out of the water she took a sudden plunge and disappeared. Another vessel, the S.S. Baralong, a typical tramp steamer fitted up as a "Q" ship, had been cruising about for six months without encountering the enemy. Then one day, about one hundred miles south of Queenstown, she came upon a submarine shelling a Leyland liner. The Baralong struck the American colours she was showing, hoisted the White Ensign, and trained her guns ready for the moment when the submarine should show herself ahead of the liner's bows. In a few seconds the submarine came along. The range was only 600 yards, and the Baralong opened fire, penetrating the U-boat on the water-line before she could reply. The conning-tower went up in the air, panic-stricken Germans jumped into the sea, and in a moment the submarine went down.

Not Beauty Only

These whiter teeth mean safer teeth as well

No doubt the great reason why millions use Pepsodent is to get prettier teeth. It removes the dingy film.
But science has more important objects. Pepsodent brings five effects, and all of them mean better tooth protection.

The ruinous film
Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Old methods of brushing do not effectively combat it. So it often lingers long.
Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look cloudy. Countless teeth are thus made dingy.
Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substances which ferment and form acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.
Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles. Most of the tooth and gum attacks are now traced to that film.

Must combat it daily
After diligent research science has found two ways to combat that film. Many careful tests have proved them. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.
Both are embodied in a modern tooth paste—Pepsodent. Every use attacks the film in two effective ways. It also brings three other results which have proved essential.

Fights starch and acid
Pepsodent does what fruit acids do. It multiplies the salivary flow. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.
Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Every use of Pepsodent multiplies their powers.

Effects are apparent
Millions now know the delightful effects. Anyone who will can quickly see and feel them.
Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Then read the reasons in the book we send.
A week may bring a life-long change in your teeth cleaning methods. Cut out the coupon now.

LETTER FROM MR. J. T. MEANEY.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—In this evening's issue under heading "Offering Employment," you publish the following news item:—
"Efforts are being made to induce the unemployed around Conception Bay to go to the lumber woods for the summer and fall, but so far the idea has not taken on." A meeting was called at Holyrood yesterday, "and at 4 p.m. Magistrate O'Toole, Messrs. George Kennedy and J. T. Meaney addressed a gathering advising the men to go to the lumber camps where $2.00 per cord was being offered for cutting pit props."

Your reporter's informant did not get a correct report of the matter. May I trespass on your space to give the facts as the question of employment at present for labouring men is one of public interest. The Aerial Survey Co., under the management of Major Cotton and his associates have entered upon lumbering operations at Hawke's Bay, Northwest Coast, and have advertised for men to go there to cut pit props for export to Great Britain.

They offer $2.00 per cord piled where cut, or $4.00 per cord piled at the shore of Hawke's Bay. The company will arrange transportation for any men needing it from their nearest railway station to destination, the amount advanced to be deducted from their earnings, but not all at one time. The men will obtain supplies from the company's store at Hawke's Bay as they require such. These are the conditions as stated to me by Major Cotton for the information of men desirous of availing of the opportunity they offer.

My visit to Hr. Main on Sunday was for the purpose of making these conditions known to the people there, and to remove an erroneous impression that was abroad regarding the Hawke's Bay labor giving enterprise. I spoke to the men of Conception Hr., Avondale, Hr. Main, and Holyrood giving them the particulars as stated above. Neither Magistrate O'Toole nor George Kennedy spoke at either of these gatherings. That the men are now convinced that they can earn good wages at Hawke's Bay is evidenced by the fact that to-day I have received the names of thirty men who are prepared to proceed there as soon as transportation can be arranged, and I have reason to believe there will be at least one hundred more applying before the end of this month.

Yours truly,
J. T. MEANEY.

Greeks Master-piece Discovered.

Discovery of first class import for the study of Greek art has been made in Athens. The western block of marble which was the ancient city wall can be seen running down the hill of Philopappas, past the Pnyx, and down the Acropolis to the Cerameicus. The foundations are visible on the surface for the greater part of the wall from the Observatory to the Piraeus road and is, for the most part, built in a small yard just behind a hat factory a large portion of all emerges.

Corner of the ground, in the west of clearing the earth a few feet from near the wall, uncovered a block of marble which was in the lower courses. On removing the block it proved to be a rectangular base with reliefs carved on the sides and a socket at the upper face for the insertion of a statue. It measures about a square and two feet high. Except a slightly damaged corner the reliefs are in perfect condition, and are in two of the three background in two of the three reliefs is still colored a brilliant.

Subject of all three reliefs is from the daily life of the young of Athens, and the style is that of the sixth century B.C. relief on the left side represents a scene of young men playing at ball. Each team is of and the two teams are seen each other. The three youths on the left have just received the ball advancing as though to throw it to the other three are stepping back ready to catch the ball.

The elegance and delicacy of composition are quite unparalleled in archaic sculpture. The second relief on the front shows two youths wrestling with their arms locked and each others shoulders. Behind stands a friend, the one on the right holding a measuring stick as though to see that fair play is done. The third relief on the side shows four figures. Two are seated in chairs facing each other. One, on the left, holds a which is straining on a leash to a cat which the other youth is holding, also on a leash. Behind of the seated youths stands another, looking at the game. All the figures are cut in extremely high relief with a delicacy that is seldom met in the archaic Greek art, except in the works of the Attic school, and is remarkable in which it is cut in Pen-

Varieties of Lies.

Some people cannot tell a lie. George Washington could not. Such people have no choice but to tell the truth.

There are two kinds of lies, black and white. Some people are colour-blind, and cannot tell the difference.

The great merit of lies is that they should be ready for instant use. A lie which is late is only half a success. As he which is blank when it is told about you may be white when it is told about the other fellow.

Lies are much quicker off the mark than truths; but they have not as much staying-power. For short sprints they are bad to beat.

THE GENTLE SEX.

If you want a tale that's gory, get a woman to write the same; to compound a gentle story I'd appoint a gentle dame. Man at times seems rather sparing, dabbling in the scarlet tones, but a woman, greatly daring, fills her narrative with bones. When her inspiration's wrapped her she has blood and bones to spare with a corpse in every chapter, and an inquest here and there. Woman writes detective stories by the bushel. In these times, and we can't deny the glories of her plots, and sleuths and crimes. And the reader murmurs sadly, "What a dragon she must be, she who writes so blithely, gladly, of red carnage in a sea!" Then some day the reader sees her, and he cries aloud, "Gad-zooks!" And a most astonished guesser is that reader of her books. For she's quiet and retiring she is of a queenly grace; and if bloodshed she's desiring, there's no symptom in her face. Nearly all this season's thrillers are by female authors; write; thru their pages wild-eyed killers like a movie phantom fits. And the gentle authors render all their fury in their books; in their private lives they're tender, drinking tea in quiet nooks.

Heroic Sailors Honored.

SAVED CREW OF SCHOONER WRECKED IN MID-OCEAN.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Captain W. H. Fralic, former master of the American freighter Stonewall, and Michael Johnson, his former first officer, today received awards from the Canadian and British governments for acts of heroism performed at sea. Two sailors of the Stonewall also were to have been honored but could not be found. In the winter of 1921 the schooner Donald T., a Canadian fisherman, in distress off the Grand Banks, a boat was lowered in command of Johnson and named by O. H. Peterson and A. Karlson, the two sailors, and the crew of the schooner was saved. A loving cup was given to Captain Fralic, and a pair of binoculars and a medal was presented to Johnson. Binoculars and medals await the sailors when located.

The Birth of Cricket.

Pessimists have been prophesying the decay of cricket for years, and it was confidently asserted that it would never be the same after the war. The fact is that it never was the same to these prophets of woe; always on its last legs; yet "lunch scores" are as eagerly scanned to-day as they ever were, and a new comer who promises to be a great trundler or a mighty smiter is still hailed as a hero to be worshipped.

The old inn still stands, much as it did in the old days, where the first rules of cricket were framed by Lord Tankerville, Sir Horace Mann, Lord Winchelsea, Noah Mann, and other celebrities. It is still called the Bat and Ball, too, and it is in the village of Hambledon in Hampshire.

It was in this village in the year 1750, that the very first cricket club was formed, and it was from its rules, drawn up in the Bat and Ball, that the Marylebone Cricket Club drew up the code of rules which governs cricket in every quarter of the globe to-day.

The inventor of "round arm" and "over arm" bowling was a professional of the old Hambledon Club named Tom Walker, but this innovation was "squashed" by the legislators of the day, and it was forty years later that it came into general use.

The old underhand bowlers could do wonders with their style, and bowl a fast delivery too. The Hambledon Club, when in its zenith, frequently took on "All-England" and beat them, and matches between single players for high stakes were common enough on the old Hambledon playing fields, Broad Half-Penny, and Windmill Downs.

BROKEN PLATES REPAIRED.

Well equipped Dental Offices can now repair plates. A broken tooth is no reason why a plate should be discarded. A new tooth, or several of them, can be vulcanized onto the old plate and make the service absolutely as good as ever. If you meet with an accident that injures your plate in any way, consult your dentist about repairs before you discard it for a new one. You can often prevent a needless expense. jnc27,tu,ts,tf

Tang, Sung, Ming

These three dynasties of the Flowery Kingdom mark three distinct stages in human progress, signified in the form of beverages by the different ways in which they prepared tea.

During the Tang period, tea came in cakes and was boiled. During the Sung, it was powdered and whipped during preparation. During the Ming it was steeped. Perfection in process being attained, the world was ready for perfection in the tea itself. Hence comes:
