The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER XVII.

"There is no damage," cried the earl, getting into the carriage again—"at least, none to us. You are not hurt!"

His tone was intensely eager. "No, no," Margery answered, quickly; "but Lady Enid—"

"Is all right. She told me so herself, with a smile, just this minute." "Then she deceived you," she said, hurriedly, looking up with blanched cheeks; "for she has fainted."

The clock on the mantelpiece struck eight in clear, silvery chimes; Margery paused in her walk to and fro in the boudoir, and looked at it. Three hours since they had returned, and carried Enid's poor, fragile form to the bedroom, her face as white as death, itself. The agony of Margery's suspense was unbearable; she had been alone, listening for, yet, she scarcely knew why, dreading to hear Dr. Pothergill's step on the stairs. All thought of self was banished now; she could think only of the sweet angel-woman who had been a spirit of goodness to her, and of the look of speechless grief on the earl's face as he carried his sister into the house.

Downstairs, in another room, a man was sitting, with head bent forward as with age. It was the Earl of Court. He had returned from his sister's couch, after placing her there, and, dropping into the chair beside the fire, had never moved during the three weary hours that passed. He heard the doctor slowly descend the stairs; yet he, like Margery, dared not approach him because of the unspeakable dread that was in his heart, and he heard the street door close with a slight shudder at the fears that possessed him.

It was not till the door was gently opened that he roused himself from his trance of despair; then, raising his head, he saw Margery, pale and agitated, standing before him. "Enid wishes for you," she said, faintly.

He started to his feet in an instant. "You have seen her?" he murmured.

"No," Margery shook her head. "I will come after you; she has asked for us both and—"

"She is so good—ah, Nugent, you do not know how good! I have grown to love her as a sister. She will watch over you for my sake—when I am gone!"

She lay back silent for a minute, then turned her eyes on her maid. "Ask Miss Daw to come now."

"You must live and keep your promise," Lady Enid whispered; then she closed her eyes for a minute, and, in despair he beckoned to the maid to moisten the pale lips.

The heavy lashes were raised, and the girl's eyes smiled again. "I have one great, great wish," she murmured, faintly.

"It is granted. What would I not do for you, Enid?"

"Make Margery Daw your wife!"

"If she consents," he answered, after a moment's pause, "I will."

"She is so good—ah, Nugent, you do not know how good! I have grown to love her as a sister. She will watch over you for my sake—when I am gone!"

His Mirror Told Him of Exhausted Condition

Mr. R. Paulin, Tontoute Aides, Man., writes: "I became so run down and weak that my heart became affected, and I would sometimes have to remain in bed for several days."

Some one advised me to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I did, and soon began to gain in weight and feel better. I have taken a great many boxes of these wonderful pills, and am feeling ten years younger. Dr. Chase's Medicines, as well as his Receipt Book, are a great help to us, for we live 40 miles from doctors and railroads."

GERALD S. DOYLE, Distributor.

The earl moved away and buried his face in his folded arms on the mantelpiece. Margery came in softly, then, with one deep sigh, crouched beside the bed and put her lips to the thin hands.

"Margery," whispered Lady Enid—"my dear Margery!"

"You are better—oh, tell me you are better, Enid!" faltered Margery.

"Darling, listen to me. I am dying. My poor Margery, be brave. I have known it a long time; the shock to-day has—has—only hastened it. But I want you to do something for me. Margery, do not promise till you have heard what it is. Nugent!"

The earl came to her with slow steps. "You shall not be left alone, Margery, when I am gone. Margery, you have loved me—you know all; I want you to be my brother's wife!"

Margery drew back for an instant, and stood with her hands pressed against her bosom, her mind distracted, the words just uttered ringing in her ears.

Could she link herself to one whom she could never love, though she deeply respected him? Could she give herself to another while she believed herself pledged to Stuart Crosbie forever? Her eyes met the sweet brown ones, already dim with pain, turned wistfully upon her. A flood of pity filled her; she dropped upon her knees, and breathed:

"I will."

Lady Enid waited a moment; then, grasping Margery's hand, she held it toward the earl, and across her bed the compact was sealed.

"There is one—thing more," she whispered, with difficulty; "the—she may be soon. I could die—happier if—if you were made man and wife now."

The earl was silent; but Margery raised her head, her cheeks as pale as those lying on the pillow.

"It shall be so," she said, clearly; "be comforted."

The earl stopped, and pressed his lips to his sister's; a sigh burst from his overcharged heart.

"As Margery says, I say; we will be married here in the morning. I will arrange it."

Then, without another word, he passed out of the room.

Margery hardly moved all through the long, terrible night that followed. Lady Enid held her hand within her own, and, fearful of disturbing her few moments of slumber, Margery did not stir, though she grew faint and stiff as the hours passed. What were her thoughts during the interval? She could not have told; but the dominant feelings was one of bitter grief, an agony of regret and sorrow as she looked at the pale young face with the seal of death already upon it. The promise she had given did not come home to her in those silent moments; she was striving to gauge the depths of Enid's great and noble nature. How brave, how strong she had been, with the knowledge that she was doomed, ever present in her breast? What courage had fitted that poor, fragile frame, what an infinity of love that feebly-beating heart! Ah, what a lesson was it to the girl crouching in that sickroom to bury self and live for others!

Toward early dawn—the girl was worn out with fatigue and sorrow—Margery's eyes closed; and, with her wealth of red-gold curls spread over the covert, she slumbered peacefully. Lady Enid woke early. She was faint, even weaker than the night had left her; yet, as she saw the daylight creep into the room, her heart almost leaped with joy—her mind was at rest. Her eyes lingered with tenderness on Margery's tired head; and, as the first rays of the morning sun touched the luxuriant tresses of hair, making them as a ruddy, golden halo she murmured: "Nugent will be content by and by," and lay back, waiting till her maid or Margery should awake.

The sun was well up before Margery raised her heavily-fringed eyelids; but, once aroused, she was angry with herself for sleeping.

"My sweet Margery," whispered Lady Enid, "my poor, tired darling!"

"Forgive me," murmured Margery. "Forgive me! You were worn out. Listen, darling! Nugent will be here soon. Go to your room and put on a white gown."

"I—I wish it; you shall have no bad omens at your wedding, Margery. Pauline, attend mademoiselle."

Margery hesitated, and then obeyed silently.

SULLIVAN, Ind., Feb. 20. An explosion of gas that wrought the greatest mine disaster in history of the Indiana coal fields, fifty-one men are believed to have been killed almost instantly at 10.45 o'clock this morning in the City Coal Company's mine on the outskirts of this city.

FRENCH BISHOP'S PASTORAL LETTER.

MARSEILLES, France, Feb. 20. Bishop Champagnere has written a pastoral letter to be read from the pulpit in every church in the Diocese of Marseilles, calling upon all Catholics to stand in loyal but vigorous action against persecution. Referring to the recent riots here in which three Catholics were killed and hundreds injured, the letter states, "we are not blind but we do not want to become blind. We demand the same treatment that is accorded all other citizens."

BRITAIN WILL REJECT PROTOCOL.
LONDON, Feb. 20. Something in the nature of rejection of the Geneva world peace and disarmament protocol in its present form is inevitable by the British Cabinet, it is informed. The Cabinet cannot decide as to the policy until the views of all the members are heard, but some radical modification in the scheme will be necessary.

DEFERRED.

D. D. D. for Eczema

The Standard Remedy

with thousands of endorsements from all over Canada to recommend it

A trial bottle only is required to stop the pain—the sleepless nights—the agony of itching.

We publish just one letter that tells the story in a few words. It is written by Mr. J. W. Corra, 33 Melbourne Ave., Toronto, one of the prominent business men of that city. "A letter from you would have been a great help to me. I have been a sufferer for two years with eczema on the face and neck. I tried three or four different doctors. I went to a skin specialist. All of no use. I used one bottle of D. D. D.—that is all. Today I am perfectly well."

D. D. D. is a soothing, cooling fluid directly applied to the skin. This powerful agent instantly acts on the inflamed and tortured cells. The itching disappears at once. The pain is soothed. Under continued treatment the rough unsightly surfaces assume the healthy normal look you have perhaps not seen for years.

Perhaps there is someone in your home who is suffering with some skin disease, a case of rash, a chronic eczema of long standing. Perhaps you have a friend, know a growing child, a tiny baby, who have tried other ways of relief without success.

Why not try D. D. D.? Thousands of people in every walk of life have used it. It gives results in the worst cases, yet is mild enough to use on infants' tender skins.

A trial bottle will prove to you that D. D. D. is the REAL REMEDY, YOUR REMEDY. Do not make the mistake of neglecting to try this great medical discovery.

JAPS TO MAKE AIR FLIGHT.
OTTAWA, Feb. 20. Japanese airmen will attempt to fly overland from Tokyo to London in May or June this year, according to a cable received at the Japanese Embassy here. A newspaper man will accompany the planes making the flight, which will be under the auspices of the newspaper Asahi Shimbun.

FRANCE CONSIDERING CAPITAL LEVY.
PARIS, Feb. 20. Official circles conceded to-day that a capital levy in some form was among the plans the Government was studying for the solution of France's financial troubles. This was admitted in those circles to be a proper interpretation of the declaration made in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday by Finance Minister Clementel which first came to notice when printed sheets on the finance debate were distributed to the press. The discovery caused a sensation in the press gallery. Deputies of the majority when consulted appeared somewhat alarmed at the blunt way in which the Finance Minister announced that a "capital levy will doubtless become necessary." The proofs for the journal were consequently modified the phrase being made to read "special contribution" instead of "capital levy."

LIQUOR STOLEN.
HALIFAX, Feb. 20. Fourteen cases of liquors valued at $425 were stolen from a bonded warehouse here sometime between December 20th and February 2nd, according to a statement made to-day by William R. Makely, Chairman of the Board of Vendors Commission.

CANADA NOT LETTING DOWN BARS.
There will be no letting down the bars on continental newcomers in the near future, stated W. J. Egan, Deputy Minister of Immigration this morning, when he referred to a report to this effect emanating from Montreal. He said 4000 immigrants were expected, however, from Central and Scandinavian Europe this year.

FOREIGN LOAN THE KEYSTONE TO STABILITY.

PARIS, Feb. 19. The Finance Minister, M. Clemenceau, closed the general discussion of the Finance Bill of the budget by a speech in the Chamber of Deputies to-day breathing confidence in France's ability to overcome the difficulties of her financial situation. "It is clearly understood," he said, "that the very corner stone of the restoration of the treasury to a healthy condition is a foreign loan. Conversations have begun on this subject and I have a semi-official promise that as soon as the budget is voted an issue of $100,000,000 will be possible in America. This loan, and one which will be raised for the devastated regions, will supply our coffers with fresh money and we shall be able to bring pressure on the Exchange."

PRIZE CREW ACCUSED OF BEING DRUNK.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 20. Witnesses for the defense testified to-day that the prize crew from the United States Coast Guard Cutter Tampa, which captured the British runner Marjorie E. Bachman, 21 miles at sea last October, were all drunk when they were aboard, in the hearing in the United States District Court on the Government's libel asking forfeiture of the vessel and cargo. Charges of looting and of liquor sales over the schooner's side by the pirate crew were also made. Ensign Harold Connor in charge of the crew declared that his men were intoxicated or that any looting had occurred. At the conclusion of the hearing Judge James M. Morton took the case under advisement. Connor admitted selling liquor over the side of the captured vessel, but declared that this was done under orders of his superior. The purchasers of the liquor so disposed of were then placed under arrest.

Derailment Cleaned Up.

EXPRESS DUE 9 P.M.
The plow, engine and freight car which became derailed near Main Dam on Thursday were placed on the rails by the wrecking crew last evening and continued on to Humbermouth. Thursday's west bound train got up to the scene of the derailment at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the work of exchanging mails and passengers with the east bound train was at once begun. The trains then started for Port aux Basques and St. John's. The express going west left Humbermouth at 1.35 a.m., and the east bound train left Kitty's Brook at 1.30. The latter is due to reach the city about 9 o'clock to-night.

Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory

Photographer Crane had a beautiful place. Where he took a good picture of any one's face. And as soon as a rabbit had bought a new tie. He twinkled his nose and wrinkled a smile. And hopped down to see Photographer Crane. But not if it looked the least bit like rain.

Dear me, no. Unless Mr. Merry Sun were shining in the sky the picture wouldn't turn out well.

One morning, after Little Jack Rabbit had eaten his Clover Cereal and drank a glass of milk, he polished the front door knob, fed the canary and brought in the kindling wood for his pretty bunny mother. Then, kissing her on both cheeks, right where the roses bloomed, he put on his little khaki cap and throwing his knapsack over his back, picked up his red striped candy cane and set out.

"Will you have your picture taken to-day for Mother?" asked Lady Love, as she stood in the kitchen doorway. "It's such a lovely sunny morning."

"On the way home from school," answered the bunny boy, and away he hopped, clipped clip, lipperty lip, down the winding path through the bushes out to the Sunny Meadow and up the Old Cow Path until he came to the Shady Forest. On and on he went, keeping time with his hopper feet to the old bell's music ringing sweet.

"Hurry up and come to school. Bring a pencil and a ruler. Better early be than late. Never make the teacher wait."

sang Charlie Chickadee from a bush in which this little winter bird had spent the night.

"I'll try to remember," cried the little rabbit; "but I must hurry on to school." And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES
Feb. 20th—My wife this day approaches me about the monies which she says I did promise her, and which she would lay out in clothes for Easter. I do not remember the promise yet must give her what little I may afford, albeit did warn her that she must not wear any of the new short dresses, since I do not think them becoming to a woman of her age.

The Milk Business

Considerable comment has been caused by an article which appeared in the Telegram on Thursday on MILK. In his criticism of the methods adopted in the procuring, distribution, and in the inspection of milk, the writer spoke plainly and forcibly, and, we may add, he is in a position to speak with authority. In addition to criticizing, he also made several valuable suggestions which would, if adopted, materially help to prevent contamination of this important article of food.

The writer suggests that although milk is submitted to chemical tests from time to time, little if any attention is given to the far more important work of analyzing it to ascertain its bacteria content. This is certainly a matter which calls for early attention. A large quantity of milk is sold over the counter in small shops, and in some cases the methods of storing and distributing it leave much to be desired, nor is it an uncommon sight to see a milkman decant the milk from one receptacle to another on the street, thereby exposing it to the dust laden winds and the poisons arising from the drains and sewers.

Many of the farmers take every precaution in the handling of this commodity, and in their interest as well as in the interest of the public, it is essential that the whole system of distribution and inspection should be revised.

The Repeal of the Income Tax

In referring to the Income Tax yesterday in the Legislative Council, Hon. A. B. Morine stated that it was the intention of the Government not merely to suspend the Act, but to repeal it.

This explanation was given because of the wording of the paragraph in the Speech from the Throne, which had given the impression that the relief promised was only temporary, and that the Act might again be enforced at a later date.

By the few who conformed to the terms of the Act (one speaker has placed the number at 1100), its disappearance from the Statute Book will be hailed with delight, and by the many who either evaded their obligations or were treated as privileged individuals, the repeal will be as balm to their consciences (?). The difficulty experienced in collecting the tax again illustrates the futility of continuing in operation a measure to which public sentiment is antagonistic, and in ringing its death knell the Government have shown that they are acting in conformity with the will of the people of the community.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Feb. 20th—My wife this day approaches me about the monies which she says I did promise her, and which she would lay out in clothes for Easter. I do not remember the promise yet must give her what little I may afford, albeit did warn her that she must not wear any of the new short dresses, since I do not think them becoming to a woman of her age. This morning till three in the afternoon I spent abroad doing of many and very considerable businesses. Anon talking to Savill who is but lately come from the South Coast, he tells me how this is like to be the best fishing there these four years past, being that there are some new fish firms operating, and more men engaged in fishing. So to the Legislative Council, where Mr. Gibbs, discoursing on the motion to adopt the Address in Reply, do vigorously attack the Government for all they did and much they did not do. Divers other members speaking to the motion, Mr. Morine did make reply, and explained certain of the legislation to come forward this session. Among other things, talking of the Redistribution Bill, he did say how there would be one representative for every 6,500 of the population, and it is on this basis that the Bill has been prepared. This might be taken with a great deal of my head, do make me think I am sickening with flu, and so to bed, after a hot toddy, which would be the most to my liking if the rum in it were better.

Two labourers of the West End, well known in police circles, were arrested under warrant by the police last night and charged this morning with stealing a part sack of bran, one horse's collar and driver's reins, valued at $15.00, from the stable of the Orange Crush Co. on the 19th inst. The accused confessed. His Honor then addressed the prisoners at some length, and as they were old offenders, sentenced each to a term of three months imprisonment with hard labour.

Kearney, Wm. Nichols, Jerry Savage, J. Blundon, W. Blake, and P. Blundon, Umpire. Of the team only three are alive, viz., Messrs. Bates, Maloney and Savage. CHILD WELFARE

Good Teeth—There are very few people in the world to-day who have and keep a really good set of teeth. How can we have good teeth? We will begin with baby. It is the kind of food he has that first influences his teeth, and therefore never change his food unless a Dr. orders a change. Remember "Breast-Milk is best Milk." Give him a few drops of Cod Oil each day—that will help his teeth. Before baby's teeth come we are so tempted to keep his mouth clean by rubbing a finger round it. It is better to leave this alone—a teaspoon of water to drink will wash out his mouth. We are so apt to hurt the delicate covering of the mouth, and sometimes through this cleaning we give baby Thrush.

As soon as the teeth show above the gum give him hard things to suck. This circulates the blood in the gums, and the teeth are nourished by the blood just as the rest of the body. Hard tack is a good thing to give him to rub his gums upon. Don't let him suck his thumb or finger. It alters the shape of his mouth, and teeth become overcrowded when they come through.

Clean his teeth with a little brush from the very beginning, when his first teeth comes through. C.W.A. February 21st, 1925.

Impressive Lecture on Trip to the Holy Land.

Rev. Charles Lench, of Brigus, paid a visit to town during the week, and gave a lecture in Coughlan Hall on Tuesday night, Feb. 17th. The subject of the evening being one of paramount interest: "My trip to the Holy Land." A crowded hall greeted the Rev. lecturer, whose ability as such is well known, and who was by no means a stranger to the majority of the audience. Rev. W. R. J. Higgit, Rector of St. Paul's, occupied the chair, and there was also on the platform Rev. Mr. Harris, Pastor of the Methodist Church. After the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name", had been sung, and prayer offered, Rev. Mr. Harris made some opening remarks, after which the chairman briefly addressed the gathering, expressing much pleasure at being invited by his sister denomination to take the reins on this unique occasion—and forthwith introduced the lecturer, Rev. Charles Lench, Pastor of the Methodist Church, at Brigus.

Soon all present found themselves carried by the power of imagination on a pilgrimage to the Far East—to the land of hallowed memory, which centres around the greatest event the world has ever known—the Birth, Life, Crucifixion and Resurrection of the King of Kings.

Very vividly did the talented speaker depict the scenes—some sacred, impressive; others humorous—as the journey continued, at times over land and then on board ship. The various places of interest, such as the Pyramids, the Sphinx, etc., ancient and historical museum exhibits—among these being King Tut's tomb, and Pharaoh's Mummy, which were taken in by the visiting company, were commented on and little anecdotes related that had happened by the way. And so Palestine is eventually reached, and as the lecturer recalled the City of Jerusalem, he very impressively sang the hymn "Jerusalem, my happy home".

His listeners could catch something of the thrill experienced by those who were thus privileged to visit what is believed to be the actual spot which marked the "Nativity," and the "green hill far away", as the Hymnists write.

But it was no easy matter for the Rev. Lench to outline the whole trip in the short space of time at his disposal. Yet he succeeded in making the audience conscious of a deeper realism with regard to the incidents narrated in the "Book of Books", which has brought a message of hope and immortality down through the ages.

At the conclusion of the lecture, a vote of thanks to the Rev. Mr. Lench was proposed by Mr. E. Simmons and seconded by Mr. H. Hinton, and accorded by acclamation.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman, was proposed by Mr. R. French, on behalf of the Methodist congregation and seconded by Mr. John Trappnell, J.P., I.S.M., each speaker in turn eulogizing the Rev. Lecturer and the worthy Chairman for the valuable service rendered. This vote was accorded by standing.

Misses Gladys Parsons and Flora Parsons presided at the piano and candy was sold during the interval. The proceeds of the evening amounting to a very fine sum. And with the singing of the National Anthem, the large gathering dispersed, with the feeling that they had heard something instructive, educating and "worth Rev. Mr. Lench will deliver a similar lecture in Cochrane Street, Lecture Room, St. John's, on Monday next, the 23rd inst.

The death of Mr. Lawrence O'Keefe occurred this morning at his home in the East End. He had been suffering from neuritis for some time past, and was at the hospital in St. John's for treatment during last year, but it did not prove beneficial. He had been a great sufferer in the latter stage of his illness, and the end has come at a comparatively early age in life. Left to mourn his passing are a wife and three children, one son, William and two daughters, Sadie and Susie. Mr. Michael O'Keefe of Bear's Cove is a brother. To the sorrowing family we extend sincere sympathy. The funeral will be held to-morrow and interment made in the R. C. Cemetery.

Cadet Greenham, of the S. Army, St. John's, was here for the week-end and took charge of the services at the Citadel on Sunday. He was stationed here a short while ago and made many friends, who were glad to see him again in town.

Mr. Eric Hinton, who had been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hinton, the past week, left by train on Thursday for Howley, on his return to work with the Armstrong-Whitworth Co.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Mann left town on Monday last on a trip to Canada and will be absent about six weeks. They will visit their children at Toronto. Miss Muriel, who is attending college there, and Mr. Fred Mann, who is working in that city. Their many friends wish them a most enjoyable trip.

Mr. Bishop, of Messrs. Sparkes and Bindon, St. John's, has been in town recently in the interests of his firm.

Notes for Women

Crookedness and corruption in our public life let us hope have had their day. The night is over and Newfoundland, bruised and robbed, bravely raises her head to see the sunrise. A long, prosperous, sunny day to her! She is fortunate in the knights who have come to her rescue. Mr. Monroe and Mr. Hickman are men above petty quarrelling, self-seeking and graft. They are only anxious for the welfare of their native land, and when the brains of successful business men are bent upon economic problems the outcome is sure to be sane and beneficial. Both these Leaders favour Woman Suffrage, and rightly so.

The International Woman Suffrage News, speaking of America says: "As a result of the new interest of women in State Government, the Governments of many States are being simplified and made more efficient. It is not so many years ago that a law was passed in England forbidding the custom of using little boys to sweep out chimneys. Hundreds of these small terrified miseries often stolen, brutally treated by master sweeps, were forced to climb and clean the great winding chimneys. It took welfare workers one hundred years to have this law passed. How long would it take in a country where Woman Suffrage is in force?"

The London Daily Mirror in a recent number, has a paragraph headed: "Liberal Party Changes. Wider Scope for Women" and continues: "The chief reform advocated in the interim report of the committee appointed by Mr. Asquith, after the last election, to inquire into the organization of the Liberal Party is the inclusion of more women and young Liberals among the officers and committees of local associations. Among the recommendations are: (a) At least one executive committee should be women. (b) The National Liberal Federation should co-operate on its executive not fewer than three women and two young Liberals, in addition to those elected under the present procedure. (c) At least 25 chief women organisers should be appointed during this year. (d) All pacts with other parties should be avoided, and all past differences between Liberals should be sunk in real unity. (e) A "whole-time political officer of high ability, experience and status" should be appointed at Liberal headquarters.

Brand Whitlock in his book "Abraham Lincoln", quotes the great Statesman as follows: "I go for all sharing the privileges of the Government who assist in bearing its burdens—Consequently I go for admitting all to the right of suffrage who pay taxes or bear arms (by no means excluding females). If elected, I shall consider the whole people my constituents, as well as those that oppose as those that support me. While acting as their representative I shall be governed by their will on all subjects upon which I have the means of knowing what their will is; and upon all others I shall do what my own judgment teaches me will best advance their interests."

The whole theory of representative government was never more clearly understood, never more clearly expressed. Even then he had an occult sense of public opinion, knew what the general mind was thinking. Always fundamentally democratic, he was so close to the heart of humanity that intuitively he measured its mighty pulsations, and believed that the public mind was not for from the belief in the people's judgment, as the one authority in affairs, he asked: "Is there any better or equal hope?"

In all the English-speaking countries in the world, Newfoundlanders and the Boers are the only ones who have not yet given their women the right to vote.

Wesley Young Men's Literary Class

"Wembley" with its collection of exhibits from all over the British Empire, was most vividly described in a lecture before the above mentioned class on Tuesday last, Feb. 17th. The lecturer was Reginald Hearder, who for nearly two hours held the closest attention of all present while he described the various Pavilions and their contents at Wembley. The lecture was most interesting and instructive, and as a descriptive lecturer, Mr. Hearder excelled himself. Mr. E. Bursey proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer, which was seconded by A. K. Snow. The motion being put to the audience was carried unanimously. During the evening songs were rendered by A. K. Snow which were much appreciated and enjoyed by all. Miss Jean Joyce presided at the piano. The duties of Chairman were ably carried out by the President, W. S. Sparkes. The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close a lecture which will long be remembered by those who were privileged to hear it. B.S.

A New Scheme

The German Government is now consulting bankers regarding a new scheme for revaluation of loans, according to the Berlin Correspondent of the Investment House of C. M. Cosgasco & Company writing in the Feb. number of their Foreign Exchange Bulletin.
The chief feature of the proposal is that instead of benefiting only original subscribers the new scheme will benefit present holders of the loans.
There is one plan before the Reichstag to issue gold marks of a new loan for every 10,000 marks nominal of the old loan, the new loan bearing 5% interest from the beginning. The Government, however, states that this plan has not been definitely accepted. It is considered in financial circles in Berlin almost beyond doubt that the new government will radically revise the Third Taxation Decree of February, 1924, which proposed to regulate this matter definitely. This expectation is well-founded since the Nationalist Party holding the balance of power in the new Government made revaluation of loans an important plank in its election platform.
Advices from Amsterdam indicate that the purchase of German state and municipal securities by the German Government is steadily increasing. It

Child Welfare Association

HOSPITAL REPORT, WATERFORD HALL.

During the latter part of the summer months information showing that fifty of the City children had succumbed to an epidemic of Cholera Infantum in five weeks, was brought to the notice of the Child Welfare Association, with the result that an Executive Meeting was called September 1st, augmented by a small body of men, out of which was organized the Emergency Hospital at Waterford Hall. This venture was made possibly by the generosity of Sir Edgar Bowring in lending the building for the occasion, and with strenuous work on the part of the working committees, was made ready for habitation in two days. This hospital ran from September 3rd, to November 21st, and during that time 37 children were admitted, out of which 6 deaths occurred, but of these fatalities, all were practically hopeless on entrance. With the splendid care and attention given to the babies who were brought in, in a state of extreme illness, great benefit was sustained, and on their discharge November 21st, nearly all were in a normal state of health. Four cases only too ill to return to their homes were sent to the Grace Maternity Hospital, these beds being maintained by our Association.

HOSPITAL STAFF.
The services of visiting Doctor was very generously given free of charge by Dr. Fraser. The nursing staff consisted of Miss Edgar as matron, one of the Community Nurses lent from the Child Welfare Centre for the occasion, 3 Graduate day nurses and one night nurse. The remainder of the services necessary for maintenance was capably given by continued supplies of voluntary labour in the nature of cooks, house-maids and V. A. D's. These were unremitting in service and by their response the cost of the Hospital was considerably lessened. Of the voluntary assistance, a very important part was played by the many people who ceaselessly lent their cars to aid in transportation. This was of extreme value to us and we take this opportunity of thanking all who served so willingly during this period.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.
Out of the Emergency Meeting called to organize this Hospital a men's Finance Committee was formed with the objective of raising $2500 to maintain this project for 6 or 8 weeks. The Secretary Treasurer of this body was Mr. C. U. Henderson, and we are extremely indebted to him for the splendid management of all financial affairs in connection with Waterford Hall. By the large response of a generous public in over-subscribing the necessary sum, there was a balance when the Hospital closed. This sum was passed over to the Child Welfare Association by Mr. Henderson and has been placed in a separate account for the purpose of forming a Medical Fund and so far we have maintained from 3 to 4 cots at the Grace Hospital for nutrition cases. The following is a complete statement of all expenditure entailed at Waterford Hall and the subsequent expenses of the beds at the Grace Maternity Hospital.

It was the hope of the Executive of the C. W. A. when Waterford Hall closed that this would be but a step leading forward to something more staple and permanent in a Children's Hospital. So far for the lack of funds we have been unable to progress, but we are carrying on with the faith and hope that, with co-operation from the public and Government we may at some future date see a building erected and equipped that will bring relief to suffering children, and stand ready to meet an emergency such as occurred during the autumn of the past year.

Mrs. Nellie Bagan found no relief in her Hospital treatment, but Dodd's Kidney Pills brought speedy relief. Gilbert Plains, Man., Feb. 20—(Special)—"I have been using Dodd's Kidney Pills at different times and must say that they are the best for those who suffer from kidney trouble. I had a lot of trouble for 7 years and I was in hospital for quite a while, but it did not do me much good. I feel quite different now since I have been taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. I would advise every man and woman who has a trouble from head to knee to try them." This statement comes from Mrs. N. Bagan, a well known resident here.

Dodd's Kidney Pills as a tonic and family medicine are without an equal. When you feel tired and run down the chances are ten to one that your kidneys are at fault.
When the kidneys become clogged or out of order, the circulation becomes sluggish, the impurities are not strained out of the blood and the result is weariness and lack of energy all over the body. Give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial and see for yourself.

Our Dumb Animals

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING FEB. 20TH.

The case against Mr. M. Druken for overdriving his horse with a load was tried in the Magistrate's Court on the 19th. He was fined $5 and costs. I received several reports of dogs without owners. A young dog was taken in by Mr. M. Spurrell, owner of the Presbyterian Hall. Later he found an owner for it in the person of Mr. W. J. Browne, B.A. I humanely put to death two cats. I attended to the general traffic of the city, paying particular attention to the teams of Mr. Lester hauling very heavy machinery. I would like to congratulate Mr. Lester for the splendid way the work was done, also for the condition of the horses and the way they were cared for by the teamsters. A lady reported seeing a horse of Lester's in a lame condition; the lameness was due to natural causes. They have harness makers, wheelwrights and blacksmiths on the premises to care for all their requirements. It has been a very expensive week on cabmen and truckmen keeping their horses sharp, which they have had done when necessary, and they deserve credit for doing the same, protecting mutual interests. I sent in three horses on account of lameness.

All friends of dumb animals who know of any cruelty to them, or of animals ill-fed and not being cared for regularly, are requested to phone all complaints to me for investigation. All reports are considered confidential. Phone 655, Mundy Pond Road.

IN THE REALMS OF SPORT

G. W. V. A. ICE SPORTS. RICE WINNER OF ONE AND THREE MILE EVENTS.

The G. W. V. A. annual ice sports meet was held in the Prince's Rink last night before a fair attendance of spectators, and proved very successful. The programme opened up with a hockey match between A. Harvey & Co., and Harvey & Co., of the Mercantile League. The exhibition on the whole was very good, and ended in a victory for A. Harvey's team by 5 goals to two. The Committee in charge of the racing events then took up their positions. The one mile race, over a course of 16 laps, saw four competitors in action. Rice took the lead and maintained that position throughout, closely followed by Hall. In the final lap Rice displayed a pretty burst of speed and crossed over a half lap to the good, in the creditable time of 3 min. and 23 seconds.

The inter collegiate relay race was competed for by St. Bon's and Methodist College. Monahan and the Graham brothers represented St. Bon's, and Whelan, McLeod and Bages, for the Collegians. The race proved to be very closely contested and was won by St. Bon's by a narrow margin. Terra Novas and St. Bon's entered the Club Relay Race. The Terras teamed up with Peters, Churchill and Barrett; St. Bon's, Kent, Howlett and Monahan. This race was also a hard fought one, and was won by the Terra Novas.

In the three mile race there were four entries. Rice opened up a commanding lead from the start, and his speedy skating gradually increased his lead over his opponents. He tipped the second man, Hall, on two occasions, and the others several times. Rice was still going strong in the last lap and completed the course in the quick time of 10 min. 46 2-5 seconds. Rice's time for the first mile was 3 min. 27 seconds, and for the second 7 min. and 4 seconds.

Rice, who is now acclaimed the city champion, gave a splendid performance of his skating abilities, and he richly deserved the double victory last night. It was announced that the prizes will be presented to the winners at a later date.

General skating then followed until 10.30 p.m., to the music of the C. L. D. Band. A large number of spectators indulged in the invigorating pastime.

CONFIDENCE

When did you start to build your fame
 And carve that boasted honored name
 Of yours upon the business world?
 How did it all commence?
 Look back across the years, old man,
 And find the minute you began
 To prove your worth to business men
 And win their confidence.

Did you put off from day to day
 The kindly words which you could say?
 Did you devote your yearly years
 To selfishness and crime?
 Did you go out and pay the cheat
 And lie to men you chanced to meet,
 Expecting you could right it all
 At some less trying time?

Or was it your experience
 You won your fellow's confidence
 By earning it in little things?
 You sought it from the start
 You did not jolt their faith, and say,
 I'll make this right some future day;
 You kept your reputation clean,
 And proved that you were smart.

Well, how about the little lad,
 Who looks to you and calls you dad?
 And how about his confidence?
 Of course the boy is small,
 But if you do not now begin
 His utmost faith in you to win,
 If you are not his best friend now
 You'll never be at all!

You cannot lose his love to-day
 And call it back when you are gray,
 You cannot break his faith in you
 And mend it later on;
 You've got to find the time somehow
 To be that youngster's father now.
 For once you lose his confidence
 It is forever gone.

WHEN DOES MIDDLE AGE BEGIN?

When does middle age begin?
 That is a eternal question came up the other day.

And, of course, we all set different limits according to our point of view.

A 15-year-old fapper was inclined to think that 30 was middle aged. The 60-year-old grandma placidly said 55.

The lady who does not tell her age wears smart young clothes and dances and goes to the opera and is very much younger than she is. She is somewhere between 30 and 40, though 35 is probably the right age.

But Doubtless They Feel The Same.

If we come back to the town where we were brought up and see our old friends, we are almost always astonished by the fact that they look so much older. And we think it is because they have always stayed in the same place instead of going out into the world the way we have. But if we happen to be the person who has stayed behind we probably think that it is because the visitor has been rushing around instead of staying peacefully in the old home town that he has grown so old looking.

Arnold Bennett has a passage in one of his books which marvellously describes this common state of mind.

"His interest in life and in his own existence had not diminished during the enormous length of time which had elapsed since he first came to Riceyman Steps as a young man. In his heart, he felt no older than on that first night. He did not feel a middle aged man. He did not feel that he was as old as other men whom he knew to be about his own age. He thought that he alone has mysteriously remained young among his generation."

Even as you and I.

These Electric Light Bills

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—As almost every person one meets is complaining of the cost of Electricity for lighting purposes, a few figures from an ordinary consumer may be of interest.

On Nov. 12 I was charged for 12 hours; Dec. 9, 16 hrs.; Jan. 13, 15 hrs.; Feb. 2, 19 hrs.; Feb. 18, 20 hrs.

What is wrong here? Doesn't it strike you as strange, Mr. Editor, that as the days grow longer one's light bill gets heavier? I have heard it said that the Eclipse of the Sun in January is responsible for the mild weather we have been experiencing in February, but for goodness sake don't tell me that that phenomena is responsible for the unusual flow of "juice" that electric light users have had to pay for since the hours of daylight have been increasing.

HONEST PRIDE.

The fairest pride a man can know is that he feels when he can say: Oh, not a kopeck do I owe, to any living human being! And I can journey to and fro, and dodge no halloos on my way." One man is proud that he can trace his pedigree a thousand years; the scion of a princely race, he talks of dukes and belted peers; yet I have seen collectors chase this man and speak his name with tears. One boasts of honors he has won in halls where statesmen most prevail; he's gathered laurels by the ton and also copped his share of kake; yet I have seen him on the run, with bill collectors on his trail. One boasts a high and great reputation that to the world's far corners goes, yet when he's in the Old Home Town but little deference he knows; the grocers have to run him down when they'd collect the coin he owes. I buy a trouser or a shoe, and hand the merchant prince his pay; I buy a keg of liquid glue and spring the rubles right away; I pay my bills when they are due, and ask no man to wait a day. No man can halt my stately stride, and say: "You owe me for a drink;" no man, in all the village wide, can say I owe him any chink; so I am filled with honest pride, the sort that doesn't fade or shrink.

"Turn to the Right" a Beautiful Play

ARLIE MARKS PLAYERS GIVE BRILLIANT PERFORMANCE.

A play that contains plenty of good wholesome humor and a plentiful supply of heart interest is "Turn to the Right" which was so excellently interpreted by the Arlie Marks Players, in the Casino last night. Miss Marks has a splendid role in this bill which shows that she is surely an artist of versatility. No matter what the part is, whether it is rollicking comedy or deep emotions, she is capable of giving a flawless performance. Mr. Perrin is seen in an entirely different character in this bill than any of the previous performances. His performance of Gilly had the audience in roars of laughter. Miss Agnes Stutz gives a beautiful performance of Mrs. Bascomb, a lovable old lady. The others in the cast are:—Moses A. Paul D'Mathot; Joe Bascomb, Paul Brady; Muggs, Ray Wasmund; Betty Bascomb, Merdle Scott; Deacon Tillinger, W. L. Phillips; Sammy, Clarence Kane; Mr. Callahan, Paul D'Mathot; Gessie Green, Peggy Logan; Mr. Morgan, Mel Thompson.

The story concerns the adventures of Joe Bascomb who, after serving an unjust prison sentence, returns to his mother, keeps the truth from her, and learns that she is about to be swindled out of her home and peach orchard. With the aid of his two prison pals he saves the property and is the means of bringing romance into the lives of his pals and himself.

Very recently the motoring world has been given new and convincing proof of the truth that "When Better Automobiles are Built Buick Will Build Them."

The appearance on the market of the Coach built by Buick has shown once again that Buick means every word it says when it declares that: "When better automobiles are built, Buick will build them."

The Coach, as built by Buick, is truly a "Better automobile." It is a real closed car. Its body is substantially built by Fisher, the largest and most noted of body builders in the world. It is sturdy and durable, and its lines are smart and graceful with no harsh right angles. It is mounted on the famous Buick chassis. It has the new Fisher V.V. one-piece ventilating windshield, Buick four-wheel brakes, parking lights, automatic windshield wiper, rear vision mirror, dome light. In short it is a "Better automobile" from every standpoint of coach design.

The Coach, built by Buick, created a sensation. It would have created a still greater sensation if it were something rare for Buick to introduce a surprising motor car value to the motoring public.

But it is not a rare thing for Buick to do this. In fact everybody who knows anything about the motor car field at all expects that Buick from time to time will produce an automobile that sets a new "Standard of Comparison" for the field. And they are never disappointed.

To motorists each new Buick model has seemed the ultimate in automobile construction. It has seemed that it was impossible to build better cars. But Buick by constant, painstaking experiment and research has always shown that better cars could be built, and Buick builds them.

When better Automobiles are built, Buick will build them.

Proceedings at the Legislative Council

OFFICIAL REPORT.

FRIDAY, Feb. 20.
The Council met at 4.05 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MR. MORINE tabled copies of American and British Claims, Arbitration Fishing Claims, Memorial of the United States and answer of Great Britain thereto.

In answer to Hon. Mr. Gibbs' question as to the amount of subsidy paid by Canada in respect of steamship service maintained by the Government of Newfoundland between Port aux Basques and Sydney, Hon. Mr. Morine replied that nothing had been paid by Canada since March, 1924. Correspondence had taken place and the Canadian Government interviewed by delegates, but the matter had not been concluded.

HON. MR. MORINE in reply to second question of Hon. Mr. Gibbs concerning able-bodied relief in St. John's, stated that the matter was under consideration.

With reference to the third question addressed to the Hon. the Leader of the Government, Mr. Morine placed upon the Table of the House a book containing the necessary information sought, relative to the licenses and fees collected by the Government of Newfoundland from fishing vessels of the United States.

Second reading of Bill respecting Oaths. On motion of Hon. Mr. Morine this Bill was discharged from the Order Paper.

HON. MR. GIBBS speaking on motion for Address in reply, congratulated the Hon. President on his appointment to that office, and felt assured that it would be filled creditably by him. He further congratulated him on being able to hold the political truncheon over the head of the Government, as they had not appointed him for the love they had for him, but because of his well stored mind full of knowledge of their misdoings and their fear of such an intelligent and vigorous debater. Mr. Gibbs also congratulated and welcomed the new members, Hon. Dr. Robinson, Mr. Ayre and Mr. Alderidge. Their ripe experience and knowledge would prove of great value. Hon. Mr. Gibbs thought the Bill dealing with the Redistribution of Seats an important one, and when it came before the House would be dealt with as its importance demanded. He was opposed, however, to the increase of members, for he considered we were over-represented already. It would not bring forth greater talent or ability, rather the opposite, and would increase expenses. The burden of taxation borne by men for some years past made it very difficult to finance

For Baby's Cold Take Barnes' Road Mother's Advice

St. John's Families are Delighted With New "Outside" Method Which Avoids Dosing the Stomach. You Just "Rub It On."

Mrs. A. J. Symonds of No. 102 Barnes' Road, St. John's, is another mother who has learned that it is no longer necessary to "dose" children who have colds. She says: "Since trying a couple of Vicks I have been a constant user and find it a wonderful remedy. My four months old baby had a bad head and chest cold, and after these applications, he was completely cured."

"Vicks is just the right home remedy I cannot say too much in favor of it and will advise everyone to use it."

A Boon to Mothers.

Millions of modern mothers now get all cold troubles, "externally" with Vicks Vapo-Rub. In the States, where Vicks originated, over 17 million jars are now used annually.

For a head cold you just melt a little Vicks in a spoon or tin cup and inhale the penetrating vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Thyme, Eucalyptus, etc. Also a little may be sniffed up each nostril.

For deep chest colds, croup or bronchitis, Vicks is rubbed over throat and chest and covered with warm blanket. When so applied it has a two-fold action, both direct: It is absorbed like a liniment and, at the same time, inhaled as a vapor.

Byno's Hypophosphites A General Tonic

An excellent tonic which quickly restores strength and energy to the system when run down, or suffering from the after effects of illness. It stimulates the digestion and enables those who suffer from loss of appetite to enjoy their meals thoroughly and derive full benefit from them. When feeling weak or easily becoming tired after slight exertion, 'Byno' Hypophosphites is invaluable.

see that the Government had placed pork on the free list, but the analogy was, that the sales tax exceeded the duty formerly collected. The higher the cost the bigger the sales tax, and for that reason a great difficulty was created among business men to carry on. The profits are smaller here than in Canada, and when he hears of local profiteers it makes him think of what little knowledge the people have of the high taxes, the keenness of competition and the small profits.

The Hon. Leader of the Government had informed the House that the Dominion Government had paid no subsidy for carrying mail across the Gulf since March 30th, 1924. He said he was at a loss to know how it was that someone was responsible. Before the Reid concern was taken over by the Newfoundland Government, Canada paid a subsidy of $35,000, then it was decreased to $25,000 and finally it was cancelled altogether. The late Minister, Mr. Hawco, had taken the matter up with the Canadian Government, but negotiations have since been apparently discontinued. The Government ought to charge either by cubic measure, or per letter, for carrying Canadian mail at a rate that would equal the subsidy. Canada at the present time was not paying a copper for carrying its mail. He agreed with Hon. Dr. Robinson, regarding the Post Office, that matters were not as they used to be in that department, and that some of the happenings there of the last seven or eight months should have been avoided. He admitted the present condition of the Postal Service was not brought about to-day or yesterday, but was the result of years. He hoped the Commission and Government on making reforms would take into consideration efficiency and service, and not promote understrappers over the heads of others of longer and better service. Competitive examination was the proper solution, and efficient service should demand remunerative wages. Another matter that called for consideration was the proposed closed season for catching lobsters. He was in hearty accord with any measure that would tend to conserve this valuable industry, but the fact that the close season was being sprung on the catchers who had money invested one way and the other in traps, pots, shore plants, etc., was a hardship. He advocated that some compensation be made these men who were deprived of a means of living through no fault of their own, by the Government. At least something should be done to offset the loss.

HON. MR. McNAMARA wished to congratulate Hon. Sir P. T.McGrath on his re-appointment as President, and Hon. Dr. Robinson, C. P. Ayre, and F. C. Alderidge on their appointments to the Council. He said it was pleasing to know that the good cashing of 1924 and the prices obtained were mainly instrumental in bringing about present conditions, and with reduced cost of foods, a better exchange and a contented people, there were excellent prospects for the coming year. Speaking of the Bell Island troubles, Hon. Mr. McNamara said he was at a loss to know how it was that Newfoundland miners working on the Island were paid 27 cents per hour and that the same miners transported over 90 miles of water to Cape Breton, were paid 32 cents an hour by the same employers. He hoped when the Government was considering the Bell Island question the wages and small pay which were really at the bottom of the whole trouble would receive the fullest consideration. He did not wish to discuss the Labrador Boundary dispute but thought that with it neatly settled and the French Shore question solved that our international affairs were over. Now we had the Washington trouble ahead of us, but he hoped that the question would be settled favourably to the country. He regretted that the building of the new steamer for the Cabot Strait had gone to foreign contractors but where delay in delivery and a saving of $50,000 were involved the Government could not have done otherwise. He was aware that it took a great deal of independence to bring about reforms, and he was glad the Government was making the attempt. It appeared to him that the whole of the pensions granted civil servants should not be borne by the taxpayers of the country. Civil servants should be made contribute toward their own pensions as in Canada and elsewhere. If nothing else were accomplished it would prevent the finger of scorn being pointed at the recipient. Every man outside the Govt. has to provide for his own pension. He would not like to see the whole pension scheme as it stands wiped out altogether, but statistics showed that in 1920 the pension role totalled $24,000, and at present the vote stood at $115,000. The pension list was growing rapidly; there is an army of pensioners, and in fact no crop was growing so well in the country. It represents $23,000 a year and in ten years that means a quarter of a million dollars added to the country obligations. Something should be done to cut down expenditure, and a good idea would be to take the profits from the Controller's Department and apply them towards a sinking fund to go against the heavy loans raised from time to time. It is gratifying to know that the Income Tax is to be removed, but it is a pity the Government did not make it retroactive for 1924, as it will be very difficult to collect the tax for that year now that it is to be removed. In 1907, although subjected to a severe criticism, he supported the Business Profits Tax considering it only fair that out of the abnormal profits made, at least one dollar out of five should be contributed towards the cost of the war.

As regards the tourist traffic an aggressive advertising campaign should be undertaken. In the United States and Canada there is a practice of showing in all the theatres some pictures of the country. This plan, which has the advantage of costing very little might bring good results if tried. The Hon. gentleman was in favour of Municipal government for the Outports. He hoped it would bring beneficial results.

HOS. MR. BISHOP—Mr. President, I have pleasure in welcoming you back to the Presidential Chair. Your former occupancy of it was of sufficient duration to assure the members of your eminent fitness for the position, and I feel sure, Sir, that equal harmony between the President and the members will prevail during the present and succeeding sessions. I am sure, Mr. President, we all welcome most heartily the gentlemen who have been appointed to fill up our ranks and have taken their seats with us as members of this Council. The Hon. Dr. Robinson brings back what the Council was very sorry to have lost in 1917. Dr. Robinson's return to membership in the Legislative Council, with his increased experience and more fully ripened judgment, cannot fail to prove of great value to the Council, and to the country also. The Hon. Charles P. Ayre brings to us a name familiar to us all, his father, the late Hon. C. R. Ayre, having been an honoured member first of the House of Assembly and afterwards, for many years prior, and up to the time of his death, a member of this Council. Mr. Ayre's eldest brother, John B. Ayre, one of the best known and most popular of Newfoundland's sons—the friend of everybody who knew him—and I am glad that I knew him intimately—succeeded his father as a member of this Council for many years also. The new member of the Ayre family, therefore, whom we now welcome here has a high standard to emulate. But knowing Mr. C. P. Ayre as we all do, not one of us has any doubt Sir, but that he will maintain an equally worthy record, and that he will take an active part in the framing of wise and useful legislation for the betterment of this country and its people. Mr. Fred Alderidge is new to the Legislature, but has had a long experience of the country's trade. He comes of good stock, being the nephew of the late Justice Monroe of Dublin—father of our Prime Minister, and nephew also of the late Hon. Moses Monroe, of honoured memory, a prominent member of this House for many years. Mr. Alderidge, I am convinced, will bring nothing but credit to himself and to the Council during his term of membership. The peculiar fitness of the three members who have now joined us, leads me to hope that a new and greatly increased interest will be manifested by the members of this House in all matters of legislation that will come before us. I have extreme pleasure, Mr. President, as senior member of the Council, in welcoming these three gentlemen to membership in the Legislative Council.

The Speech, with which His Excellency has been pleased to open the present session, impresses me as a comprehensive and in some respects

He hoped it would bring beneficial results.

British Consols Were a Good Investment Because the British People Were the British People

German Consols Are a Good Investment Because the German People Are the German People

Rothschild bought British Consols at the beginning of the nineteenth century, when they were selling far below their intrinsic value. Why? Because he believed in the British people. Today, thousands of Rothschilds, in every walk of life, throughout Canada, and the United States, are buying German Consols while they are selling at a fraction of their gold value. Why? Because they believe in the German people.

Many of these far-sighted investors have already reaped handsome profits.

It is more than half a century since the investing public has been offered the opportunity that the facts set below, taken collectively, constitute. It may be another fifty years before the opportunity will occur again.

They not only merit your careful consideration and judgment, but you owe it to yourself to decide and act at once.

The Precedents

England Prior to, and during the Napoleonic Wars, British Consols (as England's Consolidated Annuities are best known) sank steadily in value. Great Britain, at the end of these protracted wars, found herself the position of a victor who had pulled up a huge debt. For a while, confidence was shaken in her ultimate financial recovery.

Following the example of the house of Rothschild, many investors confident that England's recovery was only a matter of time, purchased British Consols at a fraction of their intrinsic value. Within a comparatively few years these astute investors were able to sell at top prices and thousands made fortunes.

The United States The period before and after the war witnessed a similar performance on the part of government securities. The French people had loaned large sums to the Americans. The United States was using a depreciated paper currency, which had little gold value, in payment of these debts. Holders of American Government Bonds strongly protested this action.

In 1786, M. Otis, Charge d'Affaires of France, wrote to John Jay, then Secretary for Foreign Affairs: "These loans represented the labor, the watchings and fortunes of a great number of individuals who had come to the assistance of the United States in the most tempestuous times. Ancient commercial houses in France had themselves reduced to beggary from having placed too much confidence in paper money and loan offices certificates. His Majesty cannot see with indifference the losses sustained by his subjects."

John Adams, Commissioner to France, supported the contention that the use of depreciated paper money to wipe out debts was inequitable. On July 11th, 1789, he wrote to Robert Morris that "Every hesitation, every uncertainty about paying or receiving a just debt, diminishes that sense of moral obligation of public justice which ought to be kept in every American mind. Creditors have an inalienable right to be satisfied, and that by the fundamental principles of society. Can there be industry or decency without it? To talk of a sponge to wipe out a debt or reducing or diminishing it below its real value, in a country would betray a total ignorance of the first principles of national duty and interest."

The whole question had become of national importance. Alexander Hamilton's conception of financial integrity and the sanctity of public obligations of a monetary nature is well set forth in an extract from his report to the Secretary of the Treasury in 1789. He said: "The public engagements, he wrote, whether from choice or necessity, is in different degrees hurtful to public credit. And a year later George Washington, President of the United States, in his address to Congress, January 8th, 1790, said: "I saw with peculiar pleasure at the close of the last session the resolution entered into by you expressive of your opinion that an adequate provision for the support of the public credit is a matter of highest importance to the national honor and prosperity. In this sentiment I concur."

Soon after, the American Government made an equitable disbursement to the holders of its bonds. Those who had purchased these securities when they had been in the hands of those nations with whom she was at war—many had pronounced them worthless—made fortunes.

France French Government securities passed through a similar experience at the time of the war with Prussia. In 1870, declaration of war against Prussia caused a heavy fall in quotations for French Government securities. In spite of the fact that France went through the heaviest strain of war since the days of Napoleon, and two funding operations which reduced the interest rate to 3%, the payments made by the Government at the end of the war were steadily recovered in price until they reached the level of the original value. Thousands of investors, in France and out of it, who had purchased her government securities when they were selling at 75% of their normal value were thus made comparatively wealthy.

Germany lost the War, but the inherent wealth of her mines and industries, the skill and inventive ability of her people still remained. In 1923, Frank Harris, one of America's foremost political writers in his Travel Notes wrote in part: "To talk of Germany as bankrupt is absolutely idiotic... this German people is very proud... no beggars here as in Russia, and no stark stolid silence as it did after the Thirty-Years War." Further on he says: "The farming classes are very well off, and it must always be remembered that nearly one-third of Germany lives by the land and off it."

A nation of 70,000,000 people of the character and ability of the Germans, could not be stifled; their inventive courage and their business ability could not be killed. Reason Plays a Part England and the United States Germany meant trade depression the world over. They returned to the elementary economic conception that what was good for Germany was good for the world. The British, American and Canadian prospered, nations of the world prosper together, as well as suffer together. The outcome of this was the setting up of the Dawes Plan, which comprised financial experts from every country of any importance, in the world. This commission eventually submitted the Plan that was hailed as the panacea for Europe's ills and this it has almost proved itself to be.

For five years Europe had been at a standstill. Many believed that she was slipping backward, but the final acceptance by the Allies and Germany lifted like a curtain, the veil of uncertainty that had hid progress and rehabilitation. German Bonds Rise Almost overnight, German Government securities were in demand. They had been neglected for so long that they were almost forgotten. Their present level, some went higher and suffered a reaction; the great majority showed a stupendous rise. We have answered the first question, let us now look to the second.

Germany and the Dawes Plan The aim of the Dawes Plan is to obtain from Germany reparations for territorial damage, and financial losses by those nations with whom she was at war. The plan is therefore a virtual first lien on all Germany property and industry. Germany cannot escape her obligations; before all else reparations payments must be met. Anyone who for a moment doubts her ability to discharge these obligations even sooner than she is expected to do so, betrays a great ignorance of the economic and financial conditions in the Germany of today.

Total Indebtedness It has been estimated that under the Dawes Plan total indebtedness of Germany would be reduced to about $10 billion dollars. Now, this amount represents what Germany owes to the outside world for the war. The present gold value of her total internal obligations has not been estimated. The amount, of course, is large, for Germany raised every cent of war cost at home.

All the figures used in these estimates, and elsewhere, when not obtained from our personal records, are taken from sources which we believe to be reliable. The cost of the war to Allies The war cost England, in round figures, $4 billion dollars. It cost France $3 billion dollars. And it cost the United States about $7 billion dollars. The ability of these last-mentioned countries to pay their obligations is indisputable. Germany cannot pay her interest payments and redemption proceedings on her internal obligations until she has paid her war debt to England to pay. We believe she can shoulder both burdens at the same time. Moreover, we confidently expect that it will not be long now before pressure on the various political parties by every German citizen owning a political bond, will be irresistible. It must be so, we suppose, that investors in German Government securities today must wait until reparations are paid before they will have opportunities of buying their holdings at substantial profits. The performance of German bonds during 1924 is sufficient proof that such is not the case.

Germany's Progress The press daily carries incontrovertible proof that Germany is financially and economically, as well as politically, on the upward grade. Her budget has been balanced, and not only balanced, but she is showing a surplus each month. Her favorable commercial treaties have been almost all being negotiated. Gold exports to Germany, made possible by the recent flotation of the loan under the Dawes Plan, have increased the holdings of the Reichsbank and furnished it with the legally required reserves for the issue of additional currency, assuring the stabilization of the new Gold Mark, and precluding any possibility of renewed inflation.

Germany's Potential Prosperity Germany's potential wealth is common knowledge. We shall, therefore, burden the prospective purchaser of her Government's bonds with figures enumerating her mines, factories, shipping tonnage and the like. Instead, we append the opinions of four famous Americans whose symposium on Germany today appeared in a recent issue of the Berliner Tagblatt. Secretary of the Treasury, said in part: "One of the first effects of the Dawes Plan has been the growth of a new mental attitude and outlook on the part of the people of Germany and of all Europe. A new spirit of unity and a sincere desire for peaceful and amicable adjustment is apparent. The people are thinking in terms of co-operation rather than conflict; peace is indispensable as a condition precedent to economic progress upon the German people themselves. The acute burden of reparations is not so great or so disheartening as the uncertainty under which they have labored."

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, in his contribution, said: "There is no animosity in this country, and I doubt whether there is in any other country towards the new constructive spirit which is manifesting itself in the German States and which, with hope, establish itself for a long time to come in control of the internal policies and the foreign relations of the German people."

We regard the so-called Dawes Plan as intelligent, businesslike and practical. We look forward to its fair and just administration and to the steady rehabilitation of German industry and commerce. It is inconceivable that the German people, with their amazing contribution to the world's scholarship, the world's literature, the world's science, the world's art and the world's economic life, should resume a leading place among civilized nations, as soon as the liberal spirit dispels and puts underfoot the remnants of militaristic autocracy."

The ease with which the recent German loan was floated emphasizes the confidence which the investing public and the world has in Germany's credit, and the integrity of her intentions on the order created by the Dawes Plan.

Our Service to Investors

IT IS reason for gratification to this investment house that it has been instrumental in bringing handsome profits to investors throughout Canada, the United States and Newfoundland. Apart from the fortunes that were made by investors in selected German Government and Municipal Bonds, we were successful in proving a source of profit to those of our clients who bought British, French and Italian Government Bonds during the years that their respective currencies tottered.

"So far as the United States is concerned, there are extremely good prospects of placing Germany on a most favorable commercial treaty basis."—President of the Bankers' Trust Corporation, New York City, said:—"The feeling is great in America that Germany, under the Dawes Plan, is a very different Germany from that which prevailed subsequent to the Armistice. An English Banker's View Montagu C. Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, when negotiations for the loan to Germany under the Dawes Plan were in progress in October, 1924, said:—"In my opinion, an amount as small as it were a series of international loans devised with the object of stabilizing conditions in Central Europe and of helping to begin to restore the credit of the various nations. I believe that the security provided for the bondholders not only has the approval of the Reparations Commission but should have the approval of the investors in all countries. Over and above the question of security I see in this meeting a sign of the future. I believe that the uncertainty and lack of co-operation which may seem to have prevailed in Europe for the last few years are at an end. I believe that the issue which has been made in New York, as well as in London, of the leading capitals of Europe, will mark the turning point in the reconstruction of Europe. Hereafter, we have looked back; henceforth, we shall look forward. The occasion is unique. The loan is safe, constructive, re-constructive and democratic. It is greatly to be recommended and should appeal to all."

These opinions but confirm the sound logic of the old belief that as a rule, although wars and revolutions may retard civilization, they have the immediate effect of stimulating human thought and endeavor. Thus in the case of wars usually follows a period of expansion and invention in the defeated as well as in the victorious country. Our Own Forecast Even as long ago as 1921, we ourselves, in a forecast on Europe's future, at a time when we were offering Austrian internal bonds, said:—"The Nations of Europe are not going bankrupt; they are not going to repudiate their debts. On the contrary, they are steadily coming back to normal, and to us to them. We expect to see an expansion of material wealth during the next few years which will make existing conditions look ridiculously poor. The war has awakened Europe to many things; from now on, machinery and production will play quite as big a part in her development as will agriculture. This will result in an increase in her capita output, and correspondingly increase wages and purchasing power of the individual. The nations of Europe will not be busy, because incomes will be higher. Every day which passes brings home more clearly and more forcibly the fact that Europe is on the main, is steadily coming back to normal, and that the unparalleled conditions caused by the great war will not long prevail. When millions of men and millions of women are busy, their collective efforts to the task, nothing is impossible. Austria will come back to normal, and all of Central Europe will be restored to normal. After Effects of War The opening of the Western Hemisphere of the Southern States after the American Civil War, the stimulation of manufacture and agriculture in both France and Germany as a result of the Franco-Prussian War; the industrial and political awakening of Australia and the stimulation of agriculture and commerce in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines following the Spanish-American War and the beginning of industrial expansion in Russia resulting from the Russo-Japanese War. All these may be regarded as after-effects of war. Germany has entered this period of expansion. It is this transitional period through which she is now passing that offers such unprecedented opportunities to the investor. Political observers believe that a more stable form of government has come into being in the principal nations of the world. This government has been accompanied by more just and sound economic conditions; and these lead to a better society, better habits, better standards of living.

The last war was absolutely without precedent in its scope, methods and destruction. If we take past wars as a precedent, then since the Great War was the most destructive in its results, the results of this war will be larger, the depth greater, but the expansion and stimulation of energies that are beginning to follow will also be greater.

What To Purchase A meticulous study of the markets has convinced us that German Government (Prussian) 3 1/2% Consols constitute the most attractive opportunity for profit, along the lines we have already described, on these same markets today. Prussian 3 1/2% Consols formerly formed part of the consolidated debt of Prussia having an issue date of maturity, but reducible by purchase, have been added to, replaced by new issues, but their interest, prior to the developments mentioned before, had always been promptly and fully paid.

In 1920, they were transferred to the central government of Germany and thus are now direct obligations of the Reich, backed by the entire resources of the German Republic. Gold Value When Issued The gold value of German Government (Prussian) 3 1/2% Bonds is based on the gold value of the old German Mark. The mark had a gold value of 23.80 in 1914 when the majority of the bonds under Prussia's Consolidated Debt were issued. A bond of 10,000 marks denomination had a gold value, therefore, of $2,380.00 in 1914. Prussian citizens who bought these bonds paid approximately that amount for Consols when they were issued.

The fact that the bonds have been transferred to the central government in no way affects their true gold value. The German government under its new constitution, obligation, to honor these bonds as was the Prussian Government. Study the Table A glance at the table, showing prices and profit possibilities, will show that these bonds can today be bought for $44.00 per 10,000 marks. When they are honored by the German Government, they should be worth approximately $2,380.00. Increased buying by European investors. Determined buying by the German Government. Marketability As they are quoted on the Berlin and London leading German Stock Exchanges, these securities are traded in throughout the financial centres of the world for spot cash. The investor can dispose of his bonds at any time, anywhere, for cash at current quotations. The desirability of the freedom of action is important. In Conclusion It may seem hard to believe that the profits shown by the table are possible, but those who are familiar with the profits that have already been made during 1924 are far from skeptical. Government 3 1/2% (1914-1918) Bonds reached a level of $3,000.00 after having sold as low as $10.00 per million marks, and all in twelve months time. We would not be at all surprised if the German Government (Prussian) 3 1/2% Consols duplicate this performance. Can you afford to ignore this opportunity?
