(From the Fergus Express.) by Mendez and Negrete. Trevino is Our contemporary of the North Wel- holding his forces awaiting the attack of lington Times has a happy knack of dis- Cevallos. The latter is in Reynosa with covering what are frequently termed his infantry and cavalry at Came mare's nests. Scarcely a week passes A correspondent of the Herald has inwithout the commission of a blunder by terviewed ex-Secretary Seward on the bright luminary of old fogyism.

In his last number appears a long rigmarole story about the assumed ill-treatment of Mr. Brodie, employed some time as a valuator of Crown Lands, in the County of Wellington, which, in its misrepresentation of facts, far outstretches the herodian efforts of our down stream friend. Its asserts that the gentleman in question was dismissed from his position as land valuator by the present Ontario Government, and fiercely exclains that this is a case of oppression equal in enormity to the sending about his business of Mr. Peachie, the frozen out Brantford gardener. Mr. Brodie was never dismissed by the Blake Government, simply because he was never in their emford gardener. Mr. Brodie was never dismissed by the Blake Government, simply because he was never in their employment. At the commencement of winter he sent in his books, and then, upon the advent of the new Government, made written application for re-appointment. By his own acknowledgement, by the very fact of this application—he was aware that the office was vagant. The Government, exercising discretion in the matter, and for reasons best known to themselves, when they determined on proceeding with the valuation of lands this spring—months after Mr. Brodie's services had ceased—selected Mr. Molloy, P.L.S.; formerly of the township of Eramosa, as valuator for this County.

That Mr. Molloy is as well fitted for the position as Mr. Brodie, there can be no doubt whatever, and that he will fairly and impartially discharge the duties of his office, without endeavoring to influence the voters politically, one way othe other, no man who knows him can doubt.

Brodie thinks, we are doing him an injustice he can have a look at the letter any time he chooses.

If Mr. Hanson agreed to this socialled retraction which Mr. Brodie sent to members of the Legislature and to us, is it not strange that he did not acknowledge its genuineness and request us to publish it when we wrote him asking for an explicit denial to it direct from himself?

And it is stranger still that he should afterwards personally disayow, the statements made in that-letter, and in a subsequent letter to us say that he held the party who wrote it responsible for such statements it contained.

Mr. Brodie denies having attempted to frighten Mr. Hanson into making a retraction. We accept the denial but at the same time cannot but think it stranger that Mr. Hanson should admit that he had been threatened with all sorts of law suits &c , if he did not make the required retraction. We are mable to reconcile the two statements, and musleave that task to Mr. Brodie and Mr. Hanson.

We should not have taken so much but think its tranger that Mr. Hanson into make ing a retraction. We are mable to reconcile the two statements, and musleave that task to Mr. Brodie and Mr. Hanson.

We should not have taken so much but think its tranger that Mr. Brodie and Mr. Hanson.

We should not have taken so much but the lead to the contained without further notice.

We should not have taken so much notice of this matter but for the imprudence of Mr.Brodie and his friends, who have tried to make out "a case of oppression" against the Ontario Government, but have signally failed. As regards our own share in the transaction, we feel that we have done right, and that, under the circumstances, we could not have acted otherwise than we have done. It rests with Mr. Brodie and Mr. Hanson to reconcile their contradictory statements, and we recommend them to do so—if such a thing is possible—before any more is said on the matter.

THE Committee of Privileges have postponed further proceedings in regard to the Marquette election for six weeks, thus practically evading a decision during the session. Had not Sir George E. Cartier obsilinately refused to allow action to be taken last session, this act of injustice to the electors of Marquette and the candidates would have been avoided. Both the gentlemen interested are at Ottawa, and each asserts his readiness to defend his claim to the seat, if time be allowed; but it is obvious that no proceedings could result in a satisfactory decision being arrived at before the prorogation of the House.

The Brodie Case Once More.

Mr. Brodie, the late Crown Lands Valuator for the North Riding, publishes a letter in the Elora Times, in answer to our remarks on his case last week. He denies having tried to influence Mr. Hanson to vote for Mr. Drew at the next election, which he says he can prove by gentlemen who were present, but whose names he does not give. The question of veracity must now be settled between Mr. Brodie and Mr. Hanson. The latter made the deliberate statement to us and to others that Mr Brodie had tried to influence him in favour of Mr. Drew. Had Mr. Hanson sent us a letter retracting this statement to us and to others that Mr Brodie had tried to influence him in favour of Mr. Drew. A TALE OF THE CLYDE. CHAPTER XXXII.

Do you understand my meaning in a sked Edwin of Exchire as they "Do you understand my meaning in thiss" asked Edwin of Elichia as they moved forward.

"Brawly,", answered Ritchie with an emphatic nod of approval. It may be oor only chance o' gettin' the information we want. He'll no live," he went on to say "but he may live lang eneuch tae be prevailed on tae tell us where they are."

"Just so. That is my hope; and with a view to the softening of his vindictive nature, we shall nurse him with the utmost solicitude, give him every. comfort, and tend him with as much care as if love for himself instead of for them prompted us. If he remain proof again this kindness, then he is altogether a fiend and destitute of one spark of humanity.

"We'll dae oor best tae kindle the spark if it's there,' remarked Ritchie." Hech, sirs, but this is anither sair day o' feehtin'. I declare the very earth is shakin' wi' the firin'.

They had left the elevated plain, and could no longer survey the scene of the battle that was then, raging, but the incessant roll of small arms, the unintermittent thunder of the mitralleuse, and crash of cannon, told how fierce and desperate was the character of the fight, and caused apprehensive thoughts to arise within them for the safety of Hermann, for they knew that the 8th Army Corpawas in the hottest of the engagement, on the edge of the ravine towards the right.

But, occupied now with Jaquin and was in the hottest of the engagement, on the edge of the ravine towards the right.

But, occupied now with Jaquin and with the important purpose connected with his restoration to consciousness, their fears for the soldier at his post were rendered less concentrated, and divided anxieties are always easier to bear.

Under the sheet, which covered him Jaquin lay stil as a stone the whole way to Gorse, and it was not till they were bearily himm their arms up the stair, to the lodgings above the wine shop of Voisey, that partial consciousness came to him. But in the ascent he opened his eyes and grouned heavily, and when borne into the little attic room and laid on the bed, he cast an inquiring look around and on the faces of those present, his glance falling last and lingering longest on Edwin a.d. Ritchie, the sight of whom seemed to calla few faint struggling menories, for the windietive smile appeared for a moment or two on his face, and faded away as he aggin saw into a semi-uneouscious stripor.

One of the bearers was deepnehed to the hospital for a surgeon, who, when he came, began to examine the nature and extent of Jaquin's wound. For this purpose the latter had to be undressed, an operation of which he was not cognisant till his under yest was being removed, when he suddenly woke up to nervous energy and clutched it with vigor.

"Let go," he whispered, with a glare in his eyes; "I won't part with that—no, no, not with that."

Just then they saw that a packet of papers was sown within the inside lining, and they understood that this was the cause of Jaquin's anxiety.

"Don't be alarmed," said the doctor.
"If you want to retain this in your prossession it will be put under your pillow."

"Yes, yes; put it there—put it there," grasped Jaquin, and the moment it was far and should be required by a sentially and should be required by a sentially and should be required by a sentially and should be required by a strip of the color. "Yes, yes; put it there—put it there," grasped Jaquin, and the moment it was removed he grasped it with his claw-like fingers, glaring wild at Edwin while he did so, as if fearfulthat he should get hold of it. When it was safely deposited under his pillow he appeared to be satisfied, and, exhansted by the energy he had put forth, he passed again into a self-unconscious state.

The wound was now laid bare—a wide.

scious state.

The wound was now laid bare—a wide, ngly, ragged gash, indicted by a fragment of an exploded shell, which had torn away a large portion of flesh, and done grievous internal injury.

The doctor looked at it for a very little; then shook his head.

"This is mortal," he mattered. "A few hours or a few days at the most will settle it. All we can do for him is to make it as comfortable as possible by dressing, and do everything to give him case till the end."

it. All we can do for him is to make it as comfortable as possible by dressing and do everything to give him case till the end."

This was done; and, after giving a few simple directions, the doctor left, saying to Edwin as he departed that it was needless for him to return, as he could do nothing more for the wounded man; and he hurried away to resume his relieving at the hospital, where wounded men were being carried every moment, and where doctors and volunteer nurses were engaged in doing their atmost to alleviate the pain of sufferers, minister with tender assiduity to their wants, and smooth with gentle hand their dying pillow.

REMARKABLE GENEROSITY.—As an evidence that the men now at the head of affairs at Ottawa do not feel at all certain hat the country will emborse their policy at the coming elections, a cotemporary points out the significant fact, that they are holding out material inducements to doubtful constituencies, to lead them to return men as their representatives who

REMARKABLE GENEROSITY.—As an evidence that the men now at the head of affairst Ottawa do not feel at all certain hat the coming elections, a cotemporary points out the significant hact, that they are holding out material inducements to doubtful constituencies, to lead them to return mengas their representatives who will vote to maintain the present Government in power. Usually constituencies have to ask, and ask again, for appropriations for public purposes; but with a generosity without a parallel, the present Ottawa Government have placed a large sum in the estimates for the improvement of the navigation of the St. Lawrence, for the special benefit of Montreal, though no grant for that purpose was sent to the Toronto City Council a few days ago, conveying the information that if that body would grant$200,000 from the City funds for the improvement of the manner, a despatch was sent to the Toronto City Council a few days ago, conveying the information that if that body would grant$200,000 from the City funds for the improvement of the purpose; "Straws show which way the wind blows," and these straws indicate pretty clearly that the Government feel the necessity of courting the support of these important constituencies which they usually could reckon onwithout any 'special inducements. And if they feel their position to be ticklish in such places as Montreal and Toronto, what can the prospect be in the rural constituencies, where the electors are neither to be bought nor sold "like beasts in the shambles," but are guided by principle, and will spure those who would attempt to cheat them out of the ribitripht, by material compensation of any description!—

Shocking Occurrence.—On Monday last an old woman, the wife of Thomas Swartwout, in the 5th Concession of North Norwich, having been deranged for some time, and labouring under the hallucination that she was doomed to eternal fire, it is said she 'told her relatives she would make short work of it, and accordingly took some matches out of doors and set her clothes on fire on day mentioned, but when the flames began to take effect on her bodysheran screaming.

Premises, a few door Tr is predicted that Lake Eric, now the pathway of a mighty commerce, will in time dry up and become the home of a teeming population. Careful surveys have shown that Lake Michigan has an average depth of 1,800 feet, Lake Superior of 900 feet and Lake Ontario of 500 feet. Lake Eric has an average depth of 120 feet, which is said to be constantly decreasing. The bottom of the lake is quite level, and composed of soft clay. This clay is constantly accumulating, from sediment carried down by tributary streams. The south shore is composed of easily disintegrating blue, gray and olive shoals and grey sandstone. The western and northern coasts are made up of limestone of the Helderbeg group, which quickly yields to the action of the waves. Consequently both shores constantly are contributing to fill up the bed of the lake. The work is not rapid, but it is said to be as sure as fate.
