WILL APPEAL TO ELECTORS.

That Sir Wilfrid Laurier will appeal to the people next fall appears to be accepted by a great many well-informed politicians, and, in fact, it is stated here that during the prime minister's recent visit to Quebec he intimated to a close friend that this would be the last session of the present parliament. Sir Wilfrid is of the opinion that while he may lose, and lose heavily, he will be able to make up for this defection in the Englishspeaking provinces.

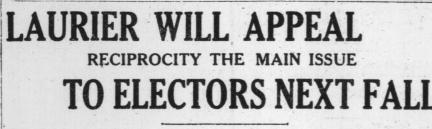

A world-wide search for the lieuenant, instituted soon after his disappearance, failed to discover any clue as to his whereabouts. He is 28 years of age and was educated at the Royal Military College at Sandhurst and and Trinity College, Cambridge. He is described as a handsome man and of a pleasing personality. MONTREAL, Feb. 4 .- There is a rapidly growing feeling here that the Ottawa government will appeal to the people early in November next, and that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will stand or fall, on the Washington arrangement. It will make the people here in Quebec forget the Bourassa incident, and, in fact, the Nationalist leader has so far written more in . favor than against the reciprocity agreement reached with the Americans by Hon. Messrs. Fielding and Paterson.

STRONG ADVERSE SENTIMENT.

Be this as it may, the sentiment here is running very high against any form of reciprocity, and even The Montreal Star has come down from its studied neutral position, and publishes a front-page appeal to Sir Wilfrid Laurier to save the nationality of the country, save the confederation from being split in two, and, in fact, save the west from becoming American.

It is he'd here that the days of the tail Canadian chimneys are over should the thin edge of the wedge be allowed to enter. All of the Conservative members who atrived here to-day to pass Sunday are unanimous against the arrangement, and they declare that there will be a movement all along the line; that Premiers Roblin and McBride will soon be in Ottawa in order to strengthen the hands of the federal opposition, and that a blast from the western statesmen may be expected at any moment.

It is an easy matter to find out the opinions of the big contractors in and out of Toronto and take their word instead of the cheap rowdies that talk about honest, hard working Italians. Furthermore, they do not work on a cheap scale. The bosses, contractors, etc., pay them more money because they work, and further, they do not bave to pay the bosses five dollars to get a job. They are hired because they work hard and stick to a job until it is finished not a lazy lot of bums. X ISUNDAY MORNING

It were customary to drink champagne out of DRESDEN CHINA TEA-CUPS, some people would imagine that tea-cups were the only thing for wine. SUCH IS CUSTOM.

Many smokers "IMAGINED" imported cigars were the only thing to smoke, but the intro-duction of the DAVIS "NOBLEMEN" CIGAR creates a new STANDARD, and marks a new epoch in the cigar world.

THE "NOBLEMEN" CIGAR

is made from the cream of the CUBAN CROP by skilled CUBAN workmen, that is why it is equal to the high grade imported.

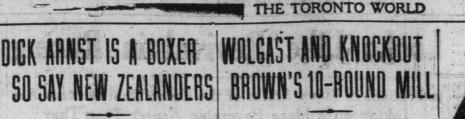

Lord Macaulav says "Get off the beaten track."

The smoker who follows the advice and gives "NOBLEMEN" a trial will save himself 50 per cent. because "NOBLEMEN" are sold at half the price of imported brands, viz:-2 for a quarter

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 4 .- The SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.-Reverting to the almost countless "hopes of the white most important sporting event since race" that appear like flashes of summer the memorable battle at Reno last July, lightning and then are neither seen nor will be pulled off in this town on heard of again, "quien sabe" wants to February 8, when lightweight chamknow if they should not be listed as plon Adolph Wolgast meets Knockout 'blasted hopes." Brown, of New York, in a ten round Certainly "quien," any kind of a word battle to take place before the memplay you want. You might, for that matter, liken them to Shakspere's "Tender bers of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien's which on the "third new boxing club. This will mark the day" had their shoots nipped by "a kill- first ring appearance of the dilatory ing frost." Only the average "hope of the champ since he broke his arm in the white race" doesn't last until the third course of a bout before a Milwaukee, day as a rule. He is the creature of a Wis., audience last June and will give day as a rule. He is the creature of a day and the creation of some manager or booster who wants to see his name in print. He is born between dusk and dawn and he is entombed between dawn and dusk. America is not the only place where the perennial "hope" springs up. They are saying now that Richard Arnst, the champion oarsman of the world, and a native resident of far-off New Zealand, is the latest to volunteer for service as a "hope." fight Bat Nelson for the lightweight. championship on Feb. 22, 1910.

The story of that battle with its decision in the fortieth round has gone down in puglistic history. There is no doubt that Nelson was fairly and squarely whipped and that the action of Referee Smith in awarding the bout to Wolgast was all that saved the Bat-tler from a knockout, but when the excitement attendant to the mill had died away and statistics of Wolgast's ring career were compiled and compar-ed with those of other fighters it was seen that there were several men in the lightweight ranks whose records were quite as good as his, and it was not long before the sporting public de-manded that the champion defend his title

After a period of some four months spent in basking in the bright light of popular favor, Wolgast decided to satisfy the demands of the public by harvesting the "lemon" crop. On June 14, 1910, he made his first appearance since the Nelson episode before a Milwaukee club with a fighteer named Jack Redmond-and broke his arm. He promptly retired to the seclusion of his home in Cadillac, Mich., and assiduously nursed the injured fin. Months rolled by and again the public demanded a match between himself and some of the more promising lightweights, but his injured arm always made such a meeting impossible. Owen Moran knocked out Bat Nelson-Ad's arm got worse. Then when every sporting writer in the country was openly accusing him of side-stepping matches in an effort to hold his grip on the lightweight honors, he accepted an offer from Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and was matched with Brown for a ten round heat.

What the outcome of the battle will be only the future can disclose. The dope, however, points to Brown as a winner. He is the younger man, he is stronger, he beat Murphy after that fighter had all but knocked out Ad, and most important of all he has been fighting all the time. On the other side of the puglistic fence we have a lightweight champion of acknowledged ability, fighting over a short route, in a state where no decision, even in the event of a cold knockout can officially be rendered. The probability is the be rendered. The probability is that the mill will go the limit, but whether it terminates with a tap of the gong at the close of round ten, or winds up with one of the principals stretched upon the floor, it is certain to prove a hummer while it lasts.

Practice Beats Precept. My friend expresses the hope-that will handle this side of the questior justly and with vigor. My theory always is that practice has precept heater peaten to a standstill and as he pre minently knows by experience what he is talking about, there for the present his views will be left. When the; have been well taken in, it will time for me to revert to the fact that in Toronto alone the horse-trading business amounts to at least seven o eight million dollars per annum. Shal we let well enough alone, or shall we risk this great. thriving and growing business? There were twenty thou-sand horses imported into Canada from the United States last year. If we mage it a hundred thousand, will our farmers be profited will our breed. ng interests be benefitted?

Our Position in International Affairs If by any chance dealers on the other side found their business being interfered with, it would be easy enough for them to trump up or in-vent some case of contagious disease and demand that an embargo be plac ed on our cattle, the same as is don in Britain, much to our injury and loss of live stock reputation. Of course it of hye stock reputation. Of course it would be open to us to crate interna-tional trouble by doing the same thing, but possibly we are not so "cute" and ready with our restrictions as our neighbors. Possibly too, we have a re-gard for imperial interposts and have gard for imperial interests and have gard for imperial interests and have some hesitation in faming interna-tional difficulties and creating en-tanglements because of respect for the old gentleman across the seas. In in-ternational matters it should never be forgothen that we are only one of a forgotten that we are only one of large family, while the United States is solid unto litself. POP.

This experiment will always interest the chil-dren, and will provoke a good deal of thinking. The explanation, of course, is, that the lighted piece of paper which is inserted into the inverted glass drives out most of the air, so that when the mouth of the glass is quickly put down into the water there is very little air, and, conse-quently, very little pressure above the water within the glass. Hence, the weight or pressure of the air on the water outside the glass drives the water up into the glass to occupy the space from whence the air was driven by the burn-ing paper. the water from when ing paper.

A practical demonstration of this kind is always more convincing than any mere statement. This is particularly true of medical remedies.

The effect of the anti-toxin treatment for diphtheria is noticeable within a few hours, so that everyone must believe in its virtue. In a similar way, the treatment known as ORANGE LILY gives a practical proof of the progress it is making in curing women's disorders, and that, too. within a few days after commencing its use.

curing women's disorders, and that, too. within a few days after commencing its use. All authorities agree that in every case of women's disorders there exists a congested condition of the womanly organs. The circulation in these parts is slug-gish or stagnant, and the result is that the broken-down tissue or waste matter which should be carried off if the blood was circulating freely, remains in these parts, causing inflammation, irritation, oppression of the nerves, etc. ORANGE LILY is not taken internally, but is applied direct to the suffering organs. It is matter referred to above. The consequence is that this waste matter, which is causing the inflammation, ulcrs, nervous troubles, etc., begins to be discharged, and it continues to be discharged until all the foreign matter is romoved from the circulation. At the same time the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strength-ened, the nervous trouble disappears, the circulation is restored and good health follows.

Toronto, Ont., June 2, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—I wish to tell you that Orange Lily is doing me a great deal of good. Those ulcers come away one or two every week, and I have less pain and fewer headaches. I feel sure I will be perfectly cured in a little longer time. MRS. D. S. T.

MRS. D. S. T. The explanation of the wonderful cures performed by ORANGE LILY is very simple. It is a scientific remedy, based on the discoveries of Pasteur and Lister. The conditions existing in all female troubles are alike in character, differing in degree and development only, so that a positive remedy, as ORANGE LILY is, acts with all the certainty of a chemical experiment. In order to convince every suffer-ing woman that ORANGE LILY will cure her. I make the following

Frozen to Death in Shack

MATHESON, Feb. 4.-(Special.)-A settler named Dunlop was found fro-zen to death in a shack about four miles east of Matheson yesterday. The body was discovered by a party of settlers, who broke into the house, and then notifed the chief of police here of the tragedy. From the condition of the body it is thought that the man had been frozen about a month ago.

Its Real Value. A representative of a western state at Washington, who does not value science except so far as it may be capable of utilitarian application, was lately looking at an invention by a mechanic, who explained its working. You paid a couple of dollars for two good seats at one of the leading theatres, and wishing to get there before the curtain rose, you were in your seats at five minutes or ten minutes past eight o'clock. Passing in you prob-ably disturbed some early birds who got there at 8 o'clock, but they did not mind that, as anything that relieves the tedium of waiting is welcome and the orchestre was only tuning up. No. seats at five minutes or ten minutes the orchestra was only tuning up. No theatre in the world, perhaps, is so arranged that patrons can be dropped into their seats without disturbing someone. But the overture has been played and the signal is given for the play to begin. If the author has contrived to give you an impressive open-ing you strain your eyes and open your consideration.

WORK FOR THE SENATE

Government Bill to Deal With Terminal Elevators.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 .- (Special.)-It is understood that the government's bill to deal with the terminal elevator question will be introduced early the coming week in the senate. There is a two-fold object in this. In the first place it will give the sen-ate something to do, while the house of commons is debating on tariff matters; and, in the second, it will implement some of the legislation in order that the sessiion may not be protracted unduly, and questons of importance rushed thru without proper discussion. The Canada Grain Act is a large measure of legislation. It comprises some 460 clauses, and provides for a commission to regulate the operation of

The Naked Truth. The old friends had had three days

together. "You have a pretty place here,

John," remarked the guest on the morning of his departure. "But it looks a bit bare vet." "Oh, that's because the trees are so young," answered the host comfortably. "I hope they'll have grown to a good size before you come again."-Metropo. Idan Magazine.

Another class of theatre nuisance is the man who invites a young lady to the play and refuses to get interested in the bill of fare. Never looking to-wards the stage, but always into the eyes or the profile of the lady by his side, his conversation and his grotesque behavior generally are such as to entirely upset the equanimity of those who attended to see the play and to follow the lines of the actors. What can you do in this case? A difficult question to answer, as it would be hard for the management of a theatre to

for the management of a theatre to prevent such conduct. The writer sat in front of a couple in a theatre two weeks ago, who spent the early part of the evening eating large, rosy apples. They did enjoy them, but were probably insensible to the annoyance they caused those around them. Apple-eating should be encouraged, but not in a place where the noise of the teeth crunching the stout skin can be heard ten yards stout skin can be heard ten yards away

Doubtless many theatregoers could tell of other nuisances who frequent theatres. These are only a few of the breed. The management of a big playhouse might mitigate the trouble in some degree if they would refuse to escort ticket holders to their seats till the end of the act. This is the prac-tice in Massey Hall. Surely patrons of the theatres are entitled to the same consideration.

bid homely quality as we used to, there is no human virtue more needed in our modern life. Backbone has been a characteristic of every man who ever did anything worth while. Backbone enabled Abraham to leave Urr of Chaldee to seek a land where he might live in honor and roar his family in decency. Backbone enabled Nehemiah to abandon the easy but use-less life in the Persian court for the building his ruined native city and of breathing lofty courage into the hearts of his fellow countrymen. Backbone made Oliver Cromwell and his runside the victors of Naseby fight, and thru their triumping save freedom a new signi-fileance. Backbone swed his union and taught Americans the ideal states.

The great lack is the backbone to dot what we know. We know we will learn to do bet-tr. The great lack is the backbone to dot what we know. Our statesmen need this characteristic to enable them to sourd a brite and to be great enough to sustain a defeat the great enough to sustain a defeat to enable them to scorn a bribe and to be great enough to sustain a defeat rather than to lower their standard of public service or to sacrifice the ma fich's good. Judges need it to fortify them to hold even the scales wherewith they weigh the causes of rich and poor. Churches need backbone to protect themselves against truckling to the rich and influential while the poor remain untaught and unbefriended. The upright requires backbone lest he lose his virility and becomes a cipher and unfit to do the work of a man." The Georgian Bay Canal is just as A WOMAN AND A CHRISTIAN.

Historic Aprons.

The apron dates far back. The Greek and Romans were famous for their rice and Romans were famous for their rice ly embroidered aprons. In the time Queen Charlotte Beau Brummel shows his dislike to them by dolberately remov-ing the apron of a duchess and flinging behind a sofa at a ball given at the asse bly room at Bath. Mary. Queen of Soo left nearly a hundred aprones of various hues and fashions.

HENEVER a man gains the confidence, the esteem and the admiration of the public, it will invariably be found that his prominence is in direct ratio to his self-devotion to public interests, his fidelity to some great principle involving the public welfare, his ability as the agent of its realization, and the possession of such personal qualities of character and charm as enliven the public imagination.

What is true of a man in this respect is equally true of a government, and the Province of Ontario has an example in the present period of her history which will never be forgotten. The principle of public ownership is destined one day to work a miracle for humanity by transmitting the passion for property rights from a fortification of selfishness into the bulwark of a generous interest in the commonwealth. It has already begun to work a miracle by uniting a large number of municipalities and a multitude of reople, irrespective of party and other interests, in its application to the provincial water-powers. The government of Sir James Whitney has derived a solidity in the esteem of the people almost phenomenal on account of its adoption of this policy and its aptness in the administration of it, and Hon. Adam Beck has become a personification of the advantages of the measure and the popular hero of the contest by which the hardfought victory of the people has been won. Mr. Beck's whole-souled sacrifices to the public ownership of electric power are but partially understood, but the people appreciate his loyalty to their interests, his talent and persistent endeavor, while his daily intercourse with the people in arousing their zeal captured also their trust and affection. While many others have labored faithfully in the cause, Hon. Adam Beck has become specially identified with it as the man best fitted to be its advocate. This principle begot the movement, and the movement begot the man.

D. B. Detweiler of Berlin has received credit as the first to propose the public distribution of Niagara power, and like many others he has done splendid service in his own municipality. The splendid meeting and the celebration of the inauguration of the power service at Berlin last November, when Sir James Whitney and his cabinet were present, was the best tribute to Mr. Detweiler's foresight.

REN IN SLEIGHS

INVERHOLME

It was in 1902 that the idea was first broached. In 1903, the legislature, under Premier Ross, passed an act "to provide for the construction of municipal power works and the transmission, distribution and supply of electrical and other power and energy." The act also authorized the appointment of a commission to enquire into the feasibility and desirability of the project. Under this act, the united municipalities of Toronto, London, Brantford, Stratford, Woodstock, Ingersoll and Guelph appointed E. W. B. Snider, St. Jacob's; P. W. Ellis, Toronto; W. F. Cockshutt, Brantford; Adam Beck, London, and R. A. Fessenden, electrical engineer, Washington, D.C., as the first commission. An exhaustive report was brought in on March 28, 1906, but in the previous week, Friday, March 23, a conference of municipalities was held at Galt, when Guelph, London, Bridgeport, Tillsonburg, St. Thomas, St. Mary's, Berlin, Wilmot Township, Waterloo, St. George, Ayr, Galt, Georgetown, Paris and Preston were represented. J. S. Fryer, Galt; George E. Goldie, Ayr and Mr. Detweiler, Berlin, conceived the Galt convention, and subsequently a monster deputation waited upon Premier Whitney at Toronto to impress upon him the urgence of the popular demand. A new commission was organized, consisting of Mr. Beck, George Pattinson, Preston, and John Milne, Hamilton. The commission brought in extensive reports on the possibilities and cost of power for Ontario municipalities in the five great districts into which Ontario was divided. P. W. Sothman, a Danish engineer of wide European experience and singular executive ability, had been chosen to take charge of the technical department of the work, and there has never been a hitch from controllable causes in carrying out the plans conceived.

Mr. Beck was appointed chairman of the new commission as reorganized June 7. Centinued on Pass 2-Column 1. TIMARYS WAMBURD OR 55

The Edison Storage Battery

TY7 E told you last week about the phenomenal capacity or mileage of the electric carriage when equipped with the new EDISON STORAGE BAT-TERY. In the summer time, when everything is warm, and roads are dry, and little wind, runs as high as 150 miles and over have been made on one charge of battery.

We want to tell you now of a most remarkable performance, made right here in Toronto, on Wednesday, Feb. 1st, one of the coldest and stormiest days we have had this winter. We set out on a trial run our heaviest carriage, a four-passenger brougham-"DETROIT ELECTRIC," equipped with an EDISON BATTERY.

It fought the storm, wind and snow for over four hours, and at the finish the odometer showed over fifty-two miles. This performance, under such conditions, is one of the most remarkable we have ever known.

This same heavy brougham in the summer will do a hundred miles or better. The lighter carriages, Victorias and Roadsters, will do 150 miles or better when equipped with EDISON BATTERIES.

Let us show you our line at Garage, 519 Church St. (Old Granite Rink). Look for us at coming automobile show at Armory, Feb. 25-March 4.

The EDISON STORAGE BATTERY may be used for other purposes than propelling vehicles, such as automobile and motor boat lighting and ignition;' the telephone and telegraph; all classes railroad work; the lighting of homes far removed from central station, or hydro-electric circuits, etc., etc.

'Agencies will be established in all important cities throughout the Dominion.

recently given the Edison storage bat- Exhibition of Power Craft to be Held in Gotham Will be a Record Breaker.

From all indications the National Motor Boat Show, which will open in Madison Square Garden on February 21 and remain open until March 5, will be the most striking object lesson of the growth in the prosperity of the power boat that New York has ever seen. There are over three hundred exhibitors on the list, and if the predictions of the manufacturers are realized the present number of motor boats now in use will be nearly doubled before the

in use will be nearly doubled before the summer season is over. The exhibit will demonstrate the great progress that has been made in the development of the marine gas engine, and of late years hulls have been designed which are better suited to this type of engine, so that comfort can be had in boats of comparatively shall size and high speed obtained in craft which a year or two ago could travel along only very slowly. One of the notable features of the show will be the number of high-speed launches shown.

shown. Cruising yachts capable of accommo-dating parties of from ten to twelve are to be exhibited. Engines varying from one-half horse-power, two-cycle motors, to motors of 300 horse-power, will be shown working. There will be all sorts of accessories, including pro-pellers of many designs, reverse gears, engine carburetors, hardware, electric outfits and electric light plants. A Bright Future. shown

A Bright Future. Never before in the history of the country has the outlook of the future of motor boating, both in a sporting and business sense, been so bright, as now. The wave of returning prosperity is rolling high, and on its crest is car-ried the welfare of those who are in-terested, either for pleasure or business reasons, in the success of the power craft. The development of the power has been so marked during the past two years that one who has not kept abreast of the improvement will find cause for surprise. Not only has the boat itself changed for the better, but the gasoline engines also show a marked superiority over the product of only a few years ago. With the increasing popularity of the power boat the many different types which are to be exhibited will appeal to the lovers of this sport. The exhibits of motors will not sport. The exhibits of motors will not only be complete, but of surprising in-terest. Like the finished boats, they will be seen in all types and at all prices. There will be serviceable boats from $200 up, while the highly reliable, single and two cylinder motors, which can be easily fitted to an auxiliary, a cathoat, or any other small boat, can be bought for from $50 to $150. Thousands of light engines of this type have been installed in New England fishing

The play consists of four acts, and the action transpires in New York City. The story concerns Maggie Pepper, a self-made business woman who has been endowed with enough wit and shewdness to rise from a cash girl in a big department store, to the position of secretary and confi-dential adviser to the head of the firm. She is so consulted on practically every move by her employer, a young fellow who has inherited the store, and who possesses very little knowledge of the practical part of the business, that the ealousy of his fiancee is aroused. The lines are epigrammatical, witty and corsent The arrement of viewload cogent. The argument is vigorous, daring, but has the reverential touch the subject calls for. Porter Emerson Browne, the author, has conceived very effective characters and drawn them faithfully. Richard Ward, the part played by Robert T. Halnes, is the husband of a pampered wife. He is a strong man, a keen business man, a man who has dreamed of a cozy little home and children. His wife is a selfish, silly, foolish and pampered society woman. She wants a big house, with lots of servants, company, glitter, show, dress and galety. For these she wheedles lies, cheats and upbraids her husband who, knowing he is a fool, sinks him-self into bankruptcy to satisfy the whims of his wife, whom he loves, tho actually aware of his folly. One of the touches that makes this play a masterplece is that despite the sel-fish extravagance of this petted, in-dolent society matron who wants all sacrifices laid at her feet, and to give none, she is lovable throut. Miss Thais Magrane, as Mrs. Ward, is ex-ceedingly would be on of the best int ceptionally clever in the part.

The stage of the Royal Alexandra will be occupied by Margaret Illington for the entire week with mat-inees on Wednesday and Saturday, be-

The play is the story of strong emo-tions, the story of the political defeat of a French politician, with a setting in the vicinity of Paris. Underlying this, and the portion which forms the real plot of the play, is the story of the unfaithfulness of the politician's wife and the love which Adrien Ser-val, the politican, and Camille De Lancay, a widow, hold for each other. Camile De Lancay is the cousin of Serval's wife and visits the latter to obtain the professional services of her husband. In the daily contact between the politican and his wife's cousin, they learn the bitter-sweet suffer-ings of true love. By accident, Camilin D Lancay discovers the faithless-ness of Serval's wife, but thru a sense of right, fails to tell her secret until thru the unjust accusations of Serval's wife, she defends herself to the extent of telling of her discovery. The affair ends with a thoro understanding between all parties and as happily as could be expected.

The Bible speaking of that says: "The grass will wither, the flower thereof will fade away, but the word of the Lord will endure for ever, and this is the word by which the gospel is preached unto you." What will you do with these words then when He says: "He that believeth and is baptised shall be saved but he that believeth not shall be damned." For of course the man that refuses to believe certainly will not be uses to believe certainly will not be tized. The promise is made only to man that believes and is baptized. BATTLE of everybody against everybody. That is how New York impressed me as I saw it on my arrival from Germany. In gigantic buildings of iron men fight one another for gold. Nowhere in the world have I seen such a thirst for gold. Every man is fighting for gold.

Posters, signs and advertisements give the keynote to New York. Every man has as large a sign as he can, advertising his business and his wares. They are all made of iron—iron, the weapon with which the New Yorker wages his battle for gold.

When the New York men have won their gold, what do they do with it? They give it to their women, as a rule. They hardly know what to do with it themselves. The women are the leisure class.

The New York girl is wonderfully dressed, and has an elegance of her own, without the help of Paquin, Poiret or Drecoll. American taste in dress is distinct and supreme. The women I saw were all attractive. graceful and chic.

Above all,¹ I admired the feet of the New York women. They have the most dainty little feet, shod with the most beautiful little shoes.

Like the Paris midinette, the New York working girl has a chic of her own. She is always neat, well-dressed, smart, alert and ready for all the emergencies of life.

The American girl has the manners of a princess. From her childhood she is taught that the world is made for her. The college girl is a dominant figure in an American crowd. You recognize her by her handsome but severe features, her strong physique and her elegant but nractical costume.

New Yorkers are satiated with luxury The hotels and the stores of New York are incomparable for elegance and luxury.

The New York man is a marvel of correct dress. He looks as if he had been poured into his clothes and then petrified. He sits in a restaurant with a beautiful companion and watches her eat with hardly concealed sadness. The New York Man is a Marvel of Correct Dress."

The Open Road Towards Democracy By Flora MacD. Denison

Editorial.

Under the Pines was a name given by me to the first of a series of Indian stories which were written under four splendid pine trees in the Bald Mountains of the Highlands of Ontario, and published in The Sunday World a few years ago. These trees formed a sheltered room and it was here that Weeta my Indian heroine, used to visit me.

When I undertook to write this department it was thought best to keep away from names so general as the woman's page or "Of Interest to Women," etc., so I retained the name of my first Indian story.

These columns have been devoted almost exclusively to arguments in favor of the woman's suffrage movement and news of it from all quarters of the globe, together with special advertising of our local work.

Suffragists not only have to thank The Sunday World for much valuable space, but also for editorially championing our cause.

At last the day has come when this movement has attained such proportions that its latest happenings are just as good news as the latest happenings of any other world-wide organization, and so a special department is no longer the pressing necessity that it was, since all daily papers eagerly look for and publish what is interesting news to so many people.

It is not, therefore, because of any deminished interest I take in the suffrage movement that the character of this department is bting changed, but rather that I shall have an opportunity to write about anything that may be of human interest.

I shall make it a point to study the

It would seem that before long our ublic schools will not only be much inproved, but that Toronto will have improved, but that Toronto will have the honor of doing a philanthropic work for other cities, as Miss Rogers has undertaken to have a post-gradu-ate course of one month for other nurses to train for public school nurs-ing inspectors in other fields. This will be the first city in the world to do what now sceme such an obviously necessary work. Many and pitiful are the tales told of children with defective sight and hearing, with growth in throat and nose, and who, if neglected, might lose both speech and hearing. Peter Cadogan, with his servant, Terry Creagh, aboard the schooner Colleen, are making for New Orleans to pick up Lomax prior to cruise in the Caribbean Sea. Cadogan sees, half a mile astern, a dory, to which they row, and find Jane Todd, unconscious from excadogan explains that he heard cries for help. She replies that she did not call. They sail for Cedar bighthouse on which is Island, the lighthouse on which is tended by Jane's father. They run thru a gale, during which Jane rescues both men and sails the schooner safely into the harbor, where they are met by Willing, the assistant tender.

At the other end of the island mysterious lights in a deserted and, according to Willing, haunted house arouse Cadogan's curiosity and he makes a midnight excursion there. From a sign he learns that Francois Lestrange, a New Orleans lawyer, is the real estate agent. He is knocked down by an uncanny creature, and does not come to his full senses until he finds himself, the next morning, on board the Col-leen, in a bayou of the Delta, the Colleen's cable having been mysteriously cut in the night. Reaching New Orleans Cadogan, yielding a temporary impulse and with his head full of buried treasure, buys Cedar Island at auction for $35,000. A suspicious character nam-ed Cochrane bids against him, but, thru the assistance of Lestrange. Cadogan wins out.

Cadogan is filled with remorse at the thought that he had paid seveneighths of his fortune for a barren island.

Cochrane offers to buy back the island, but Cadogan refuses to sell. After receiving a letter that convinces him that old Francois Lestrange is "dippy," Cadogan sets out for Cedar Island.

Cadogan learns that the old lighthouse keeper is Colonel Tope-lius and Jane Todd is his daughter.

In a moment, however, he looked up casting swift glances to right and left, eyes dilated, nostrils quivering, temples flushed. At the same time he hastily reloaded his weapon and last survey.

Satisfied with this arrangement, the young man made the round of the rooms before nightfall, locking and bolting all shutters on the ground floor save those to the main hail, and thoroughly exploring the upper floor and attic, with no other result than to assure himself that he and Creagh were the sole tenants of the house. Then he sat down to an emergency supper, regretting keenly that his sense of the occasion's importance had made him refuse an urgent invitation to dine with Topelius and his daughter at the lighthouse. As it was, only Creagh's rock-ribbed refusai to be left alone in the big house after night had closed in prevented Cadogan from making an excuse to stroll over to the other end of the island and make inquiries after the health of, say, Willing. he failed to surprise any moving shape --saw nothing whatever beyond the wide sweep of the sea-girt horizon, the waving tops of trees, and, imme-diately below, the expanse of sun-smitten verdue, intensely green, inten-

The Genius of the Place would have a heavy reckoning to foot when the time came to pay the piper, Cadogan vowed. By Mme. Lina Cavalieri O you know that cold weather is one of the chief causes of wrinkles? A little thought will convince you that this is true, for the smooth, wrinkless face is the one in which the skin is drawn taut over well fed tissues. Now cold weather causes these muscles to contract, by withdrawing from them their usual supply of oil. That deficiency must be remedied by the plentiful use of creams and oils in the Winter. In other words, the skin must be more plentifully fed in the Winter than in the Summer. I should keep myself well supplied with a good cold cream during the Winter, but by being well supplied I do not mean to buy it by the

No.110. COLD WEATHER REMEDIES By Mme. Line Cavalieri, the Most Famous Living Beauty.

SOME parts of the United States, often on the Atlantic coast, the latter part of the Winter is most severe. In these localities, and even in those in which there are signs of Winter taking its farewell, a farewell that will be pro-tracted for several weeks. Mme. Cavalieri's "Cold Weather Hints" will be seasonable and welcome.

The famous beauty gives here advice on how to prevent cold weather wrinkles; how to prevent the cold weather breaking of nails; how to prevent that dry, broken condition of the hair caused by the cold; how to avoid painful earache; how to cure chilblains; how to maintain the brightness and clearness of eyes that have been taxed by many hours of artificial light.

This should be rubbed into the scalp every night until the hair regains its lustre.

The nails are often sufferers during the Winter. Nails that are well behaved at all other seasons may become brittle. Two remedies for this would better both be used. One is to keep the broken nails cut a little closer while they are gaining strength. The other is to grease them well with vaseline, lard, tallow or cold cream. Any clean grease will do, for the purpose is to soften the nail. It is the hard, poorly nourished nail that breaks.

Should the skin about the nail be ragged, this rubbing the nails with grease or thrusting the fingers into it will help to cure and soften it. A half dozen drops of peroxide in the water in which they are washed will purify them if the skin is deeply torn, but I prefer using the same number of drops of carbolic acid in the bottle of vaseline with which the nails are treated, for carbolic acid is softening as well as purifying, and too much peroxide on the cuticle makes it hard and bonelike. An article on cold weather cures would be incomplete without some consideration of that topic of painful memories, earache. A good preventive is keeping the ear free from wax by cleansing it twice a week of all accumulations of wax. This must be done with the utmost care, for the tympanum or eardrum is a most Ivory earspoons are prepared for this purpose. I have seen 'them made with tiny silk sponges at one end. The sponge can be dipped into pure olive oil and inserted gently into the .ar to soften the wax before attempting to remove it with the spoon.

A wire hairpin is the common instrument for this use, but it should never be used unless it is wrapped round with cotton or muslin and dipped into oil. Hardened wax often causes earache, and if the wax has been permitted to grow hard it will be necessary to have it removed by a physician.

Strain the mixture well through a piece of muslin, for if a particle of the borax remains undissolved and gets into the eye it will irritate the tender eyeball.

Shake the latter well before using. A request comes from Buffalo for a formula for henna paste for the hair. This is one of the safest methods of mixing it:

Acetic acid 4 drams. White honey 4 drams, Enough hot water to form a paste.

The simplest form of paste is henna in any amount needed, a larger quantity, of course, being needed for thick, heavy hair than thin, and enough warm water to make a thin paste. It is applied with a cloth or brush. Persians employ the rather severe method of first applying the pure henna paste described, leaving it on the hair to dry for from two to three hours, then applying a paste made in the same way of indigo. This is followed by washing off the indigo paste and oiling the hair. The result is a ravenlike black-

To secure a brown shade the paste is made in the proportions of: Henna powder 1 part. Indigo 3 parts. Should the skin be discolored by the application the stains can be washed off with water without removing the dye from the bair.

Queer I deas of the Multiplication Table

OMEWHERE in Worcestershire (England) there is, or used to be, a tombstone stating the age of the tenant of the tomb below to be 304. The mason apparently had the crudest notions of the mysteries of arithmetical notation.

Oddly enough, to the present day we would find in Burma 1000 900 10 0 used for the year 1910, this being a case of an admixture of an old notation with modern symbols. The same kind of admixture of new and old is taught in the indigenous monastic schools of Thibet, and is prevalent all over India among the Hindoo astrologers. In the purely native schools Indian children are said to learn their multiplication tables up to 100 times 100.

Teachers in our own elementary schools may bless their stars that they are not called upon to listen to such a nerve-ending drone from "twice two are four," up to the num-bers just mentioned. Even in the Government schools of the United Provinces the children had to learn up to 40 times 40 until a few years back

An inspector has found that the children also have to learn tables of squares, and he discovered a quite small boy who could repeat without

It is usually stated that our written numeration comes to us from the Arabs—or, rather, from the Hindoos. Europe was barely famil-iar with it even at the end of the twelfth century, and it was not until the sixteenth century that the digits assumed the form in which we use them to-day. It was deduced from the numeration of speech, but we know not, says M. Andre, how, when, or where. All we are certain of is its superiority to its forerun-

A shadow of doubt has of late been thrown on our supposed in-debtedness to the Hindoos in this matter of numeration. Mr. Kaye, a couple of years ago, brought for-ward evidence to show that current conceptions as to the origin of our modern arithmetical notation have not very secure foundations. Finding, then, that a foreign origin of the modern notation is extremely probable, he thinks the time has come for a restatement of the Indian

One-Sidedness in Music

Why is it that one finds so many beople engaged in the musical profession who are ardent admirers of some particular "school" of music, and have no ear for aught else? For one man there is nothing but Wagner; for an other, French opera is the only thing; a third does not care for opera any-way, and wants oratorio, in which he disagrees with a fourth, who prefers chamber music and orchestral concerts. Musical taste is apparently honeycombed with thousands of little cells, in which each separate musician sits in icy isolation from his neighbors. This does not exist in any other art-or at least not to anything like the same pin? Birds in their nests should agree.

In fact, we are very sensible nowadays, and pay far more attention to the sattability of our attire than formerly. out of place, there are some charming and close-fitting creations made in straw as soft and supple as satin and even more uncrushing! One such turban-like model is in black, widely plaited straw, lined throughout, you must know, with the same rather blue satin, which is, eventually, brought into outward evidence as a broad, encircling border.

The only other addition in the way of trimming is a large square ornament, affixed at the extreme left side and fashioned of alternate cordings of black silk and blue satin, while in the centre comes a circlet of black silk embroidered with old pink roses and equally diminutive forget-me-nots. There is a final bordering, too, of deeply knotted silken fringe, which, because the turban is set on the head at a downward angle on this same left side, hangs far down over the ear, and indeed almost touches the neck. The whole thing is piquant and pretty to a degree, and, while quite smart enough to crown a skating costume (and this has to be a very attractive affair in all its details, see ing that it comes in for much close, not to say scathing, criticism), is also sufficiently sensible and protecting to be worn for a long motor drive, only then requiring the addition of an enveloping vell of soft blue

Enough of hats. Now, how do you begin your days? I think every one should begin the day by thinking the rosiest and pinkies of thoughts, and to think these one ought to be dressed accordingly. And so here is a photograph and a description of a rosecolored wrapper which can be used equally to start in the day or to end it. It is kimono equally shaped, of satin, and is both ease-giving and elegant. It is always wise to view the world as rose-colored in the morning. It helps the whole day. So, why not be wise, one and all of you, and arrange to become the pos-sessor of such a wrap? For, although being of satin, it may sound somewhat extrava gant, this same fabric is not necessarily costly, even to begin with, and is, moreover. capable of quite good and lengthy wear.

The trimming, too, is quite simple-just a bordering silken cord and a softening touch of lace beyond this, while then to catch the robe together in front there are loops of this same cord, entwined with little silken roses and buds. A knot of pale-blue ribbon is also added to catch the embroidered stalks together, and just a couple of buds and flowers similarly bound together are caught lightly in the undersleeves of fine net and lace, which are decorative, though not absolutely necessary additions.

I would have you know, too, that the nightdress beneath is also of kimono modelling, this being a shape which I can assure you is ideal for the garment in which you want to take your nightly rest. For there are no seams and no tight armholes to cramp your movements, and how uncomfortable a tight sleeve can be many of you must know. Such restriction, too, being all the more irritating at night, seeing that all day you will surely have been wearing and enjoying the ease of kimono-shaped and seamless bodices.

There is no opening, and consequently no fastening in these kimono nightdresses, which are just slipped on over the head, the neck being cut in a deep square, and, like the sleeves, being made dainty, with insertion of lace and threadings of ribbons, while hanging from the central bow into which the ribbon is drawn is a tiny bunch of the weest pink roses and blue forget-menots.

For, remember, you can never be too dainty in the details of any of your garments, and must by no means reserve all your attention for those which are destined for absolutely public display.

By Lady Duff-Gordon (Lucile).

H ERE I am showing you the very newest Spring hats from Paris—weeks, I hope, before even your most exclusive shops exhibit them. They are the dernier cri in smart millinery—the "partial eclipse hats" which you must wear over your right eye with the rest of your face emerging from the gigantic brim just like the girl in the moon when the earth shadow is vanishing from her countenance. That is why they are called the "eclipse." They remind one so irresistibly of one.

They are all straws, these "eclipses," and for those who want both eyes free there come other gigantic confections with the big brims tilted to back like aureoles; or with brims curved up in horns or sprayed gigantically like a fountain with feathers. But always there must be the long sweep and roll of the brim which is the distinctive mark of the true "eclipse."

Of all hats this coming season it may be said that the big ones are bigger than ever and the small ones smaller. After having retired with considerable dignity into the background for several months, while headgear of the cap and turban variety pushed its piquancy into prominence, the large hat quite unexpectedly and at this moment has asserted itself, and to such extent, too, that its survival and indeed supremacy is assured throughout the coming Spring and Summer. For another thing the silhouette gown, with its slender and unbroken effect, has been decided upon as the ruling mode for the season and so these far extending and softly shadowing brims will give their full influence of beauty to this graceful but slightly severe side makes up for this repression by breakfashion.

The "eclipse" proper, will be the most popular no doubt, for it gives one's eyes and hair a chance; one's eyes were totally eclipsed by the peach basket and its varieties, and so was one's hair. But in the new hats there is a whole coquettish opportunity for the play of the first and a chance to be purely natural without the use of puffs or rolls for the latter.

Another new model of the same family a couple of which I show you here—is distinguished by a brim which pursues a straight and comparatively narrow course in the front and again at the back but which on either ing out into a positively amazing expanse. One and all mark the passing of the "extinguisher" hat as the peach basket family were called.

Here are two little sketches of very exclusive models which the Paris houses have that yet even photographed. I had them sketched especially for you. One, of white Tagal, has its brim outwardly covered . ith a black velvet which combines its creaseless career midway on to the slightly domed crown, and is left quite unadorned. save for an encircling band of narrow, leaf-green revere ribbon, which is held at one end in a fancy little bow, whose ends are then passed through the brim, so that they may be looped about the hat in the distinctly piquant fashion, which you can study for yourself in the sketch. And then set rather forward on one side or at the back of the crown are a dozen or more Fall stalked roses in soft shades of pink, upgrowing or sturdily and sweetly waving as if they were safely planted in Nature"s soil, instead of more or less precariously affixed to millinery straw. Needless to say, too, that in this case both modelling and coloring follow Nature's own lead with faithful and indeed amazing closeness. There is a renewed vogue for the realistic looking blooms, prim little blossoms-of obvious and even accentuated artificiality-whose petals are formed of closely folded silk, or short tissues.

These are, however, still to be seen in a few of the new Spring models, a spray of roses and leaves, fashioned of old-gold silk and so flatly laid against the straw as to give almost the effect of an applique design, being laid at the left side of a black Tagal hat, while upstanding high against the crown of the other side is a gigantic white aigrette. For the rest there is just an encircling band formed of plaited black sateen, these same plaits being indeed often in evidence, for they are certainly and completely in keeping with the simplicity, which is to be the distinctive hall-mark of the best of the new season's productions.

Anyway, I think you will quite fall in love with the new hedge-like arrangement of roses, for it is lovely to look upon, always supposing, of course, that you are not seated immediately behind it at concert or theatre. However, any such fears, as to either public or personal inconvenience will not in the least affect feminine admiration for the acquisition of these new hats, on which gardens of roses are all "a-growing and ablowing," so, make up your mind that you will be numbered among the first to own such a garden.

On another white Tagal straw hat such a generous and decoratively grouped array of pink roses looks lovely, especially when, to contrast charmingly with the rose shadings and the fresh green of the foliage there is an encircling band of broad old blue velvet, which at the back is drawn with a longlooped bow. Furthermore, a beaver lining of black Tagal is telling to a degree. Its sweeping curves, providing a perfect background for a pretty profile, for which purpose indeed, all wide brims and black-lined ones in particular can always be recommended.

But in the new models, there is a most pleasing variety, and if you do not want to increase your own height—and obstruct your neighbor's view—do not wear one of the aforementioned hedges of roses. You can give just as convincing and charming proof of your up-to-dateness by means, for example, of a wide-brimmed and low-crowned hat of black crinoline which is girdled round with little roses. Their soft, pure shadings being almost hidden beneath another encircling wreath formed of closely clustered and delicately green foliage.

And then at the right side the brim is positively and most prettily weighted down by the burden of a closely massed cluster of hyacinth and fuchsia blossoms, deeper blues and purples, from which fall a remarkable cascade of long-stalked buds and halfopened blossoms. A pretty idea, is it not? While then another absolute contrast this—imagine next a dark-blue Tagal straw hat, whose rather higher and rounded crown is banded about with one of those plaited cords, the material used this time, however, being black velvet. The wide brim is turned up all along the left side, where there is practically no trimming to conceal and nothing at all to break its lovely sweeping lines, but on the other side there is an unobstructed view of an enormously high plume or algrette, formed entirely of closely clustered flowers.

That they were distinctly and decoratively beautiful was obvious at the first glance, but even after close study I was unable to "place" them in the category of Nature's blooms! Anyway, they were deeply, brightly blue in coloring and of silken texture, too, and caught in between them here and there were a few pink roses, whose contrasting shade was of admirable effectiveness.

A white crinoline, on the other hand, bears a light and lovely burden of Parma violets and dainty little pink roses, ar ranged in alternate circlets and bouquets and well guarded, too, by green leaves. A companion model, showing deeply purple violets were allied round the crown, and la France roses, massed high at one side, it seeming likely in fact—and fashion—that it will during the next few months be a case of "roses, roses, all the way."

For verily "the queen of flowers" is going to prove worthy of her name and reign over all rivals. The ostrich feather is also going to be very much in evidence, though being of great length and most beautiful shadings. It is likely, I warn you to be a particularly expensive possession, and therefore not to be afforded by every one. And always I would say to you, do without ostrich feathers altogether, unless you can have them of the best. The same advice of course also applying to algrettes, which, unless they are of the bushlest, miss their THE M Don't ious end In oth and kee It is t everythi It is a line, let But th

Still the fact remains that the doctor's rélationships with sundry prominent people o'er yonder are very intimate, and reading between the lines intimate, and reading between the lines of his vociferous statement, one would think that his "proressional services" had been pretty well paid for by his American friends. Indeed, it would not be difficult to believe that his in-terests and sympathies were as much intimate, and reading between the lines terests and sympathies were as much with one country as with the other. Either, that or his dream of a universal brotherhood is fantastically real.

Mr. H. W. Hodge, of New York, has been called in to settle an engineering difficulty regarding the Quebec bridge. Isn't it a pity that our own people are not strong enough to settle their own troubles without calling in an allen? We prate of independence, but in any difficulty we fly to our American friends as eagerly as' a whining baby to its mother. There is altogether too much looking to Washington and go-ing to New York. Reading some Aus-tralian papers the other day I could not avoid the thought that there was a native character about them that is entirely foreign to the press of this country. Not a little of English history is written into the titles of English sovnot territorial, but national. Thus Egsot territorial, but national. Thus Egbert was "King of the West Saxons." and Alfred employed the title of "King of the Saxons.' Edward the Elder called himself "King of the Anglo-Saxons." Athelstan was first to adopt the title "King of the English," and this was the title borne by the Norman sovereigns.

Edward I. dropped the title derived from Normandy; but Edward III. added that of "King of France," which was not dropped until 1801. The title" Defender of the Faith" The utle" Defender of the Faith" was conferred upon Henry VIII., who was also first to describe himself as "King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland." After the Scotlish Act of Union, Anne took the title. "Queen of Great Britain, France, and Ireland." After the Irish Act of Union the title read "Of the United Kingdom of Great read, "Of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland." On January I, 1877, Victoria was pro-claimed "Empress of India." The imperial titles assumed by Eng-lish monarchs within recent times are not the innovation one might suppose, inasmuch as there is a Latin docu-ment in the British Museum, signed by Athelstan, in which he is described not only as "Rex." but as "Caesar Totius Britanniae," or "Emperor of all Britain." In a statute of Henry VIII.'s time that sovereign is designated as "King and Emperor of the realm of England and of the Land of Ireland." Dynastically, the present King, like his illustrious father, belongs to the Hanoverian line, or, according to one of the authority, became the royal line of England when George I. son of Princess Sophia, grandöaughter of JamesI., and of Ernest Augustus, Elector of Hanover, ascended the Eng-lish throne in 1714. vorking. any damage. "In my battles I have always resorted to this style of fighting when in the clinches. I have found that if kept up it will weaken an opponent considerably and still its use requires a great amount of cleverness. The only time I ever really felt the effect of a blow on the kidney was during my training for the Reno fight at Frisco. This time I fell down stairs and the injury was more or less bother-some, for I was forced to let up in my active training, and this ex-plains the stories printed at the time to the effect that I had guit

Gans dld a great amount of work on this line, Nelson never did much of any line, Nelson never did much of any account with it and Langford and Attell have tried to use it in most of their battles, but I never noticed that they had much success. By the way, when I fought Langford I bothered him a great deal with this punch." A man who uses the kidney punch will of course argue in its favor, the same as he would contend if it was left to him that a foul was either fair or undelivered. The plea put forward by such a man is valueless. Johnson, indeed, talks as if the avocation of a latter-day fighter was to slaughter, to gain a victory by cruelty and not by science. Such "boxing" should be peremptorily prohibited for it is not what it claims to be but brutal scrapping-worse than prize-fighting out, and out and on a level with street scuffling. Such tactics as Johnson daughter succeeds. The same system of succession prevails in Spain and Portugal. The system is known as the Cognate or Castile system. The address itself does no earthly good; it is merely a statement, very badly read by the governor, of what the ministry pro-poses to do, and a circular handed to each member would convey the in-formation quite as well. The address-in-reply is a silly jest. It says noth-ing save that the house is much oblig-ed to the governor for the remarks he made to it, just as if they were his own remarks: and when the committee the sub-marked concerning him. Communication Be

Thousands of people to-day embark daily in New York as securely confident that they will arrive safely at the other side of the ocean as passengers in the subway are sure of reaching the station for which they set out.

Human ingenuity has evolved from the caravel of Columbus ships like the great Mauretania, fitted with wireless telegraph with which to call for assistance in case of accident, with a submarine device that warns of dangerous derelicts, with instruments that give unfailing indications of the proximity of icebergs.

Travel by sea and land has been made as safe as remaining at home. Fireproof buildings make it possible to live or to work free. from the frightful peril of destruction by fire.

Mountain ranges that were once crossed. 'only at dreadful risk of life are now pierced by tunnels, and comfortable railroad trains glide quietly and safely under the icy passes that formerly the traveller had to scale.

Everywhere earnest, ingenious minds are at work trying to eliminate the danger of accident. Humanity demands that everything possible be done to prevent destruction of life or injury to the creatures that people the earth.

Yet has there ever been established a means of communication that really serves to convey messages of distress from the greatest sufferers to those who might help them?

Along the streets of a great city passes a prosperous, kindly, comfortably fed and clothed man.

Beside him walks another man, hungry, miserable, fighting with all his strength against the habit of drink that has brought him as low as he is.

Could he make the other man really understand his situation he would be reasonably sure of help-for no man is so bad that he would not be willing to assist a fellow being in distress.

The man who is so brutal as not to care whether his fellow beings suffer is, fortunately, not common.

It is likely that Captain Kidd, could he have walked about the East Side of New York, would have spent some of his ill-gotten dubloons to buy ice for the sick babies he saw drooping on the doorsteps in Summer time

Hard-hearted as are some of the men whose avarice is responsible for the misery we find on all sides, a direct appeal to them for assistance in some specific case would probably meet with response.

The difficulty is in making one-half of the world understand that the other half is really in trouble.

The woman who lives in comfort in a brownstone house on the avenue, who has a limousine in which to drive whither she wills and a $1,000 lap dog to cheer her loneliness, cannot be made to realize that the woman she sees sitting on the curb with a handful of lead pencils to sell is in actual want or L isery.

The appeal that is sent from the poor peddler's eyes is lost in transmission. If it is received at all by the grand dame in the limousine, it is unintelligible. She has never suffered herself; she cannot believe that suffering exists.

Even dumb animals are more successful in making their misery known than are the articulate animals, who suffer far more terribly. Men are often moved to pity by the appealing look in the eyes of an injured dog or cat. while a poor, starving horse turned out to shift for himself by a heartless master will almost invariably find some one to bring him a handful of oats or to give him shelter till a humane society can put him beyond his troubles.

But partly because of pride, partly because of fear, the human derelict cannot get into actual communication with those who would be able and willing to give him assistance.

In factories in many parts of the country children are worked like slaves, their little bodies stunted and worn out by work they were never meant to do; their minds denied all opportunity to develop because all their energies are sapped by the cruel daily drudgery.

The cry of these children, could it be heard by the people of the whole nation, would be instantly heeded. All mothers and all fathers who possess any of the instincts of humanity would insist that child labor be stopped, could they be made to appreciate what this horror really means.

But although child labor has been widely discussed, although its abolition has beeen urged in Congress, although countless columns have been written about it in the newspapers, it is doubtful if one man in ten realizes how terrible a thing it is, while fully half of the people of this nation are persuaded that the outcry against it is mostly sentimental nonsense.

There is another message that has been sent but not delivered, and in the failure to deliver it lies endless tragedy.

When the minds of men shall be more developed-when they come to understand one another better-the messages from the weak to the strong, from the derelicts to the successful, will not go astray.

The man who has never been the victim of an evil habit will learn that the helpless drunkard is in distress as real as is the ship that sends out its C Q D across the ocean, and will be as ready to come to his relief as the ships that receive the message are eager to hurry to the distressed vessel which sends it

He who brought to the world the faith which bears His name heard every cry of distress that was uttered, whether by the rich or poor, by the Magdalen or the innocent child. He was ready to minister to the sick and the suffering; eagerly ready to comfort the sorrowing and the fallen.

Man and Man

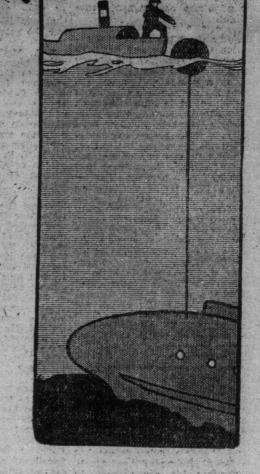

He could forgive every weakness and sin, and because He was a man He could understand and help His fellow men.

The world progresses slowly. Great men with great thoughts bring about temporary advancement; then they pass on, and much of what they gained for their fellow men is lost.

In more than 1910 years we have progressed marvellously in many things; yet we are still far from the sympathy and the helpfulness that was taught in the Sermon on the Mount. But the day is coming when we shall be able to communicate with the wrecks of humanity as welf as we can with the wrecks that sink, like the disabled submarine, beneath the Waves

It may be far off-yet we believe that it will not be. Men are thinking to-day-thinking deeply-not only about problems that directly concern their own comfort, but about those which concern the comfort of their fellow beings. Every great public movement for betterment and decency is a hopeful sign that, as well as advancing mentally, the race is advancing morally, and that the root of almost every evil-selfishness-will soon be reached and destroyed.

The man we pass by on the street, dumb because he fears to speak; the swarming sufferers in the tenements, who speak an alien tongue; the deaf, the blind; perhaps even the most pitiable of all, the afflicted in mind, will be able to send their messages, and we to understand and respond to them.

As now, there will be men busy with the mechanical inventions, which are intended to increase the usefulness of the man who toils and to add to his comfort when his labors are over.

A.

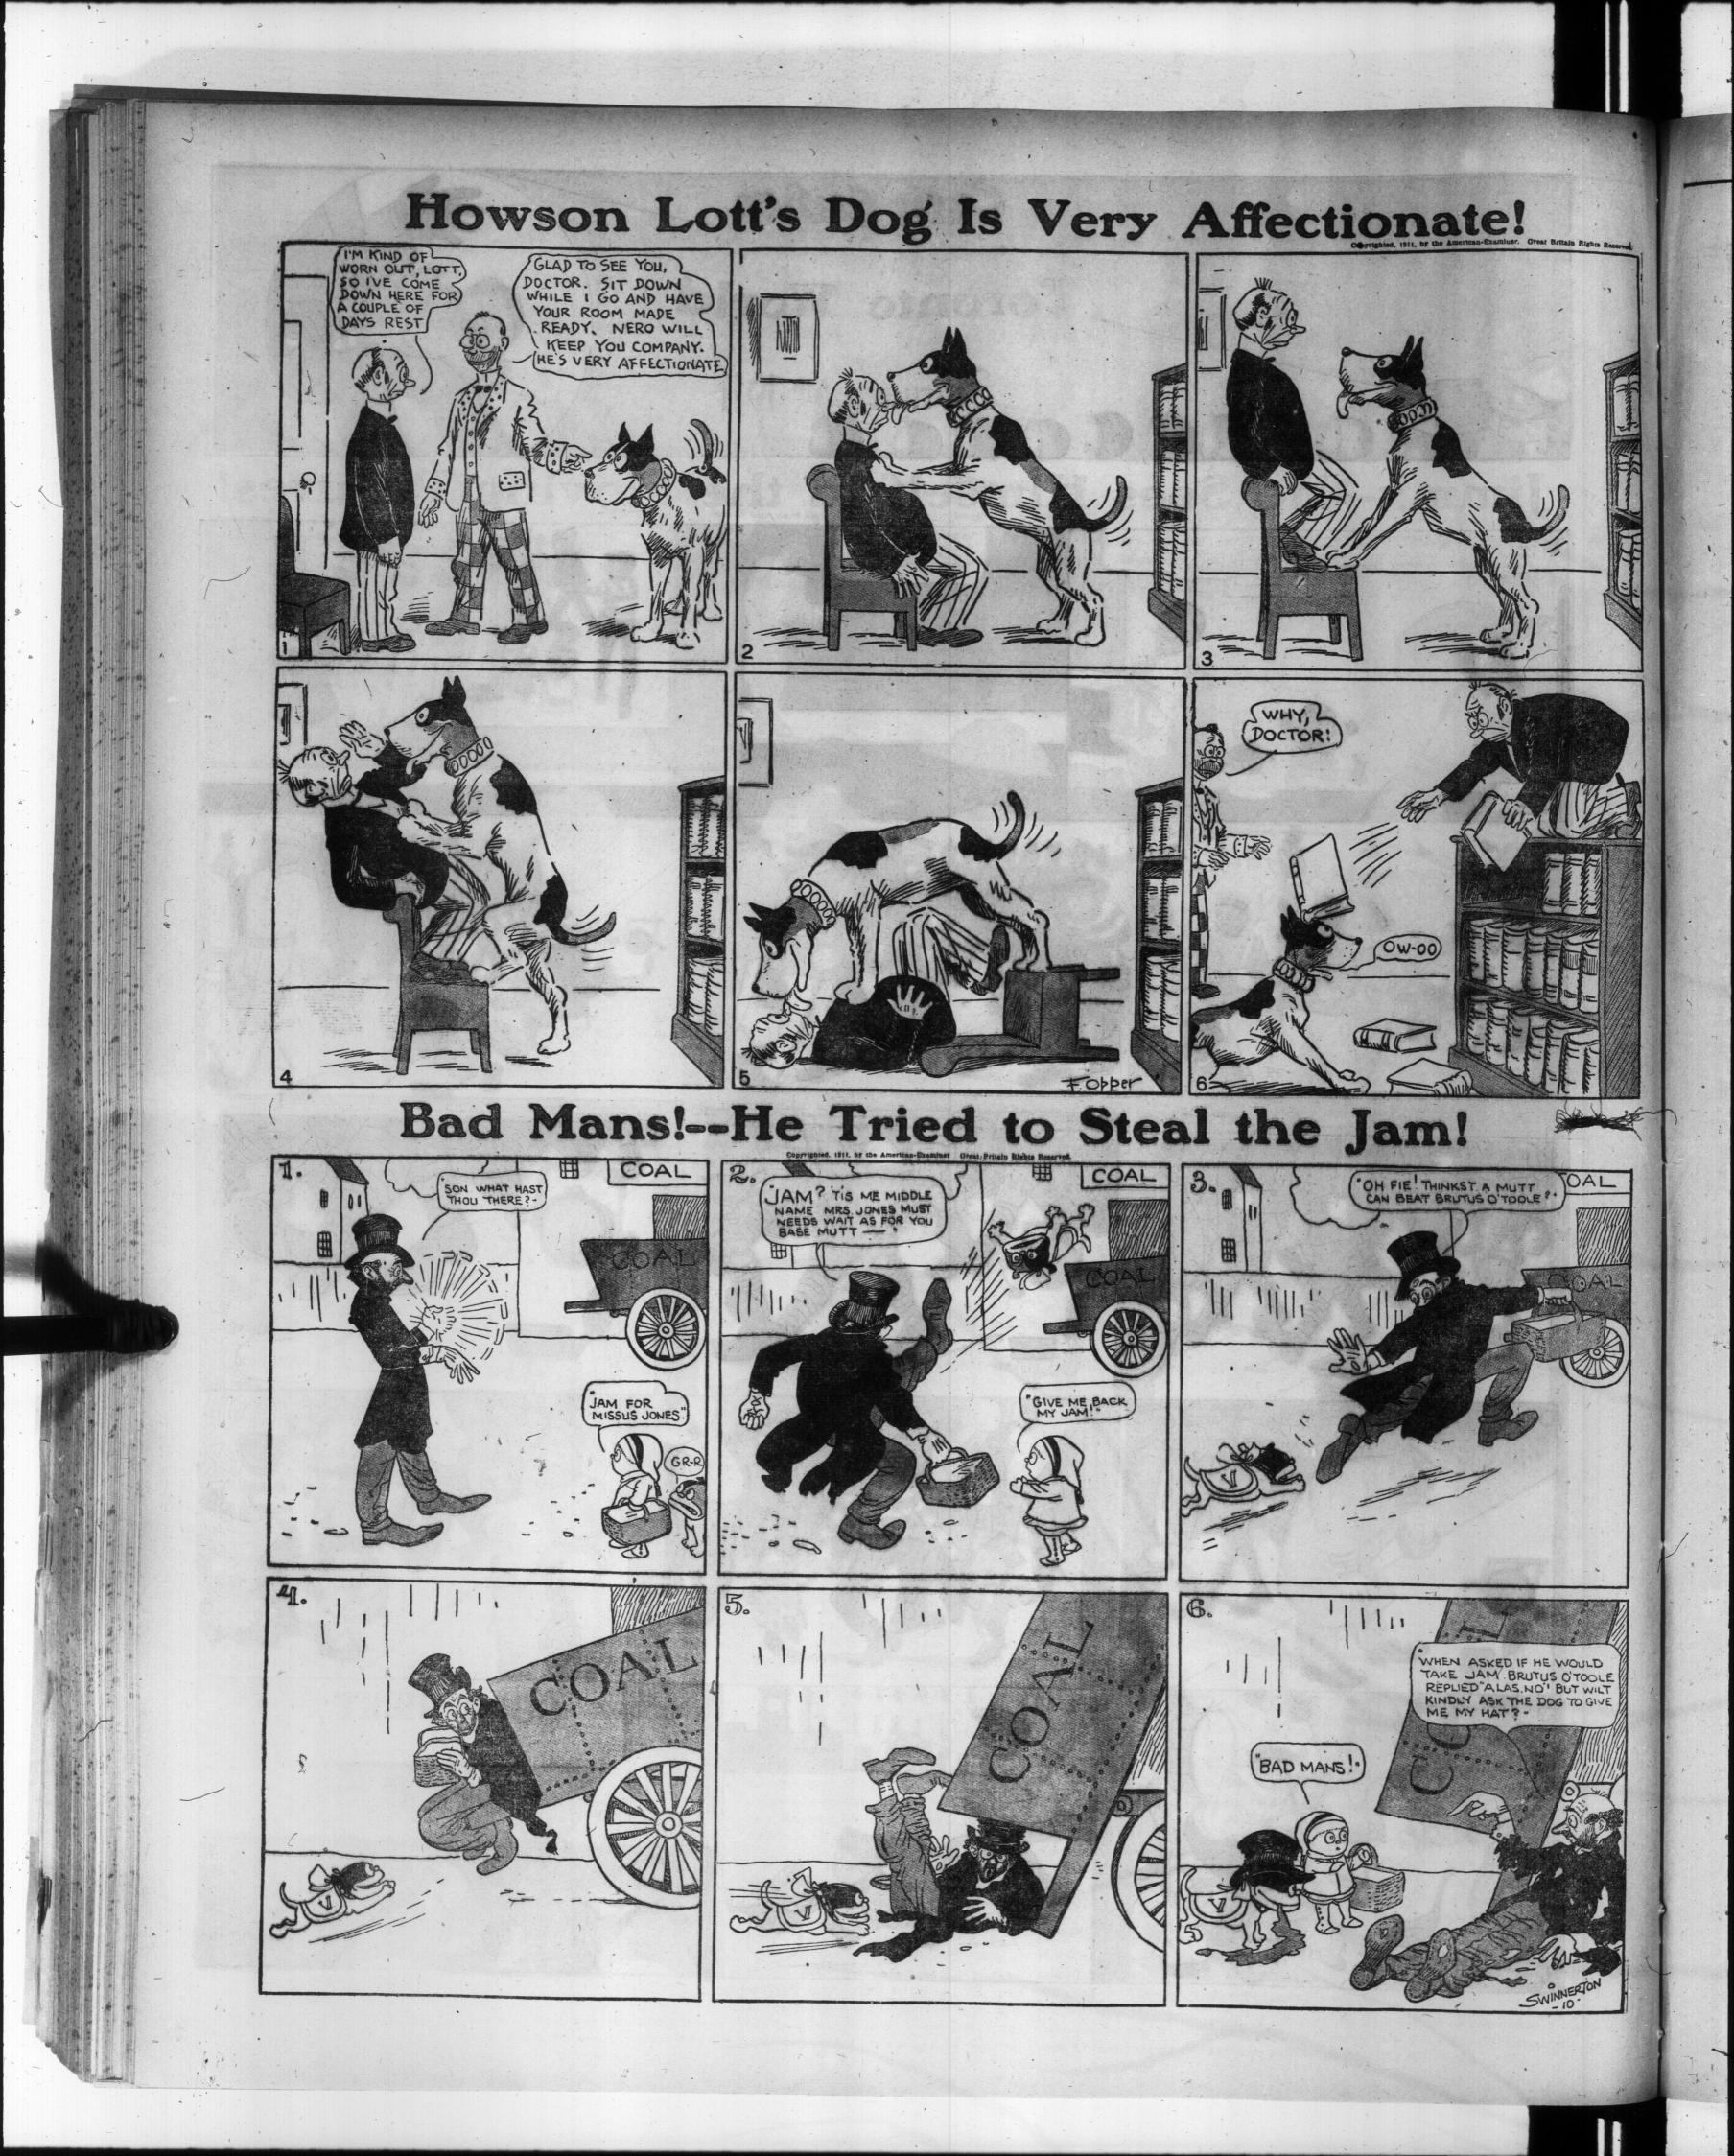

But more minds will be engaged in the grave problem of rescuing the perishing, of seeking new ways to hear the cry of the helpless and to bring aid when the cry is heard. Progress not in what we understand by the word charity, but in human sympathy, will follow scientific methods, and will be much more rapid.

The best minds of the race will be given, not, as they are now, to settling the quarrels of others, but in teaching them a philosophy that will make quarrels impossible.

In short, helpfulness and sympathy will be made a science, and the really important work of humanity will begin.

even the mind, will we to unwith the ended to who toils labors are ed in the ishing of the helpheard. id by the thy, will be much be given, quarrels
