WILLIAM ST. PAVEMENT BY-LAW FINALLY PASSED LAST NIGHT

Vitrified Brick Will be Used—Good Street Assured—Railroad Hog Pen Nuisance Referred to Committee—A New Industry Coming

Hilliard St. is to have a sewer, and tenders will be advertised for at once.

R. J. Brown, night watchman at Gray's factory, was appointed a constable.

R. S. Dunlop and others petitioned for an electric light on Park avenue, between Queen and West Sts.

Mayor Sulman was commissioned to attend the meeting of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, which meets in Montreal this year on Sept. 15, 16 and 17.

The walk on Grey St., built last year by Contractor Seymour, was so defective that it had to be torn up and replaced. The work has been done, and cost $467.28.

The Council last evening passed by-laws taking the initiative in a number of sidewalk. Quite a number of the walks where the Council proposed to take the initiative were petitioned against.

Mahler Bros. have purchased the Tighe evaporating property on Park St. The Council granted remission of taxes for five years, provided Mahler Bros. spend $5,000 per annum for labor and for fruit.

Byram & Murphy offered to remove their bent wood works from Blenheim, in consideration of free water and exemption from taxes for 10 years. The Council granted their request.

The petition against the vitrified brick pavement on William St. was not sufficiently signed, and the contract was let to the Dominion Paving Co. William St. will soon be the finest street in the city.

W. S. Richards, Chas. Hadley and Dr. Cornell, members of the Board of Health, waited on the Council re the cattle yards nuisance. A committee, composed of the Finance committee and Ald. E. A. Mounteer and Taylor, was appointed a committee to investigate the matter and report to the Council.

It was decided to cut out every other tree on the Park along William St. James S. Waugh was given the contract, he being willing to do the work for the wood. The Mayor objected to the cutting of the trees, but a majority of the Council favored it.

The Mayor and all the members attended the special meeting of the City Council last evening. The meeting was called to deal with the hog-pen nuisance at the G. T. R., and other matters.

The resolution passed by the Board of Health in regard to their attempt to do away with the hog-pen nuisance was read. W. S. Richards, chairman of the Board of Health, was heard within the bar. He said that at a special meeting of the Board of Health, held Tuesday morning, a resolution had been passed empowering the City Solicitor to take steps to have the hog-pens removed. Mr. Wilson advised that the Council join with the Board of Health in their effort to do away with the nuisance. Everybody in the immediate vicinity and all who had had a taste of the odor wanted the hog-pens removed. The railroads had been notified 30 days ago to remove the hog-pens, but they had not done so. Two of the railroads were violating the Health by-law and the third was within two feet of violating it. Chas. Hadley also addressed the Council. He endorsed W. S. Richards' remarks and said that he would like to see something done.

Mayor Sulman said that the City Solicitor had advised that the Council, Board of Health and private citizens all be made parties to the suit to show that the different civic bodies and the citizens were all interested and that the hog-pens were a public nuisance. Ald. McKeough suggested that, if it were the intention of the Council to carry this matter into court, that it would be better to take proceedings against one railroad and make a test case.

Ald. Cowan said that he was in accord with the resolution of the Board of Health, but he thought that a committee should be appointed to investigate first. The Council knew that if the City Solicitor were given unlimited scope that it would be easy to run up into law costs. Before anything were done it might be advisable for the Council to look into the matter. The City Solicitor was given unlimited scope in the Erie & Huron contract and that meant $500 in law costs.

Ald. McKeough said that he thought that the matter would involve a lawsuit and he thought that the railroads would be found guilty, but it was just as well to investigate first. It was a great nuisance and the sooner it was got rid of the better.

Ald. Marshall moved that a committee, composed of the Finance committee and Ald. E. A. Mounteer and Taylor be appointed to meet the C. P. R. and G. T. R. officials, and then decide what was to be done. This motion carried.

Chas. Hadley stated that it was the feeding of the hogs in the pens that caused the nuisance. Hogs were brought in from outside points by rail, unloaded and fed in the cattle yards. Ald. Fleming asked why the railroad hadn't been prosecuted in the Police Court.

The Mayor explained that there was nobody to prosecute. Proceedings could not be taken against a company.

A request from John Gerber to trim trees was referred to the Chief of Police.

John Kime wrote that he was fitting up new premises on the market, and he asked that an approach over the gutter be built. Referred to Board of Works.

John Milner wrote, asking for a crossing on Robertson Ave. Referred to Board of Works.

An account of R. Pritchard, $450, was referred to the Property committee with power.

The account of Quinn & Patterson, $273, was referred to the Property committee.

NEW SEWER.

Ald. McKeough presented a petition for a sewer on Hilliard St., from Sal Kirk to Hilliard St. thence to St. Clair street. The City Clerk had investigated it and found it sufficiently signed. The petition was referred to the City Engineer to report on.

COST OF GREY ST. WALK.

The bill of Blight & Fiedler for 80 per cent of the walk on Grey street, amounting to $373.83, was ordered paid and charged to Contractor Seymour. This is the walk which was built last year, and was so poor that it was torn up this year and rebuilt. The bill for the walk on Grey St. amounts to $135.50, was referred to the Board of Works.

The account of J. & J. Oldershaw amounting to $32 was referred to the Board of Works, with power.

The account of John H. Oldershaw, $45.68, was ordered paid.

Ald. McKeough asked why the materials enumerated in the bill had not been purchased from the contractor at the contract price.

Engineer MacNab said that the contractor didn't have what was wanted and the city had to get them at the next best place. They couldn't keep a hole in the street open for two weeks, waiting.

The account of Quinn & Patterson for $55.80 for supplies for the Board of Works was referred to that Committee with power.

THOSE ORDERS AGAIN.

Ald. McKeough asked why orders had been issued for the materials enumerated in the bill.

The city engineer replied that Mr. Quinn had telephoned that by an oversight, the orders were not attached. His book-keeper was out of the city and the orders would be attached in the morning, if necessary.

The civic pay sheets for the past two weeks, amounting to $479 were presented.

Ald. McKeough asked that the individual items be read that the Council might vote on them intelligently.

Ald. McKeough did so. He explained that the reason they were so large was due to the hauling of earth for the cement walks. This was paid for under the frontage system.

The account of Quinn & Patterson, $6.25, was referred to Property committee with power.

The Bell Telephone Co.'s account, $5, was referred to the Property committee with power.

S. T. Martin wrote calling attention to the dangerous condition of the walk on the W. S. Victoria avenue. Ald. McKeough explained that this walk was already in course of construction.

INITIATIVE PROCEEDINGS.

The city clerk reported in regard to the initiative proceedings as follows—

I beg to report the initiative proceedings taken as per notice dated July 4th and 11th, 1902, as follows: That petitions were received against the following works and the said petitions were sufficiently signed—

Cement walks, e. s. Victoria avenue, from Head street to Grant street; e. s. Centre street, from Park to C. P. R.; v. s. Centre street, from Park to A. McKay's property; n. s. Forest street, from Joseph street to St. Clair street; e. s. Lacroix street, from Wellington street to Lorne avenue; w. s. Chatham street, from Thames street to Grant street; e. s. Chatham street, from Thames street to Grant street.

This report was received.

WILLIAM STREET PAVEMENT.

The City Clerk further reported as follows: I beg to report to your honorable body that I received a registered envelope through the post office on August 11, 1902, and supposing the same to contain a tender for brick pavements which were due at my office by noon, August 11, I did not open said envelope but handed the same to the committee with the other tenders on August 12 at one p. m., when it was afterwards opened by them and then handed to me, and it contained a petition against a brick pavement on William street from the C. P. R. to Wade street, but there was no letter to indicate by whom or for whom the petition was signed.

The City Clerk said that the petition had advised me that such is not the legal way to deposit petitions against initiative works and it did not comply with the statute and by-law and might be wholly disregarded.

I must therefore report against the petition. I, however, also report that I have received withdrawals from said petition from the following persons: Margaret McNaughton, Mary E. Smith, John A. Sisson, J. G. Kingmill, James Baskerville, and James Gemmill. I find the number of owners on said street entitled to sign for and against the said work to be 28, and the number which have signed against the same according to the said petition after such withdrawals to be 12. I therefore report that the said petition against the brick pavement on William street from the C. P. R. to Wade street is not sufficiently signed.

This report was also received.

SOLICITOR'S OPINION.

City Solicitor Wilson gave it as his opinion that the petition against the pavement was illegal because it hadn't been filed with the City Clerk by some one on behalf of the petitioners. In consequence, the petition was opened on the day after the last day for receiving petitions. However, this made no difference, as sufficient number had withdrawn their names from the petition to make it invalid.

THE OBJECTORS.

A delegation from those opposed to the construction of the pavement was heard. Messrs. A. R. Coltart, Alister McKay and Jno. Whalen composed the delegation. John Whalen was the first speaker. He asked if the petition for the William street pavement had been sufficiently signed or had the council taken the initiative on their own responsibility. Ald. McKeough said that the petition for the work required two-thirds of those entitled to sign. Twenty-eight were entitled to sign and all the petitioners could secure was about half. At the request of the half, the council took initiative proceedings. Mr. Coltart asked when the withdrawals from the petition against were made. The Clerk said that the withdrawals were made on the 18th, and the city solicitor gave it as his opinion that any on the petition were entitled to withdraw any time before the petition was presented to the council.

MR. MCKAY'S OPINION.

Alister McKay said that in his opinion there had been a large amount wasted in road beds in Chatham. The trouble had been that the men in charge were not practical men. The William street pavement had been laid 15 years ago. Look of care was responsible for its present condition. The foundation, however, was still excellent. In Mr. McKay's opinion there was no better method nor any as cheap or as good for making a road as crushed stone. Had William street been repaired as it ought to have been it wouldn't be in the condition that it was today.

The council then passed the by-law requisite for the construction of the William street pavement. The contract will probably be signed today.

CONTRACT LET.

Ald. McKeough reported on the opening of the tenders on Tuesday, August 12, for the vitrified brick pavement on William street. The tender of the Dominion Paving Co. was the lowest, and Ald. McKeough moved that it be accepted. His motion carried.

The contractors will be notified to come on at once so as to get the work done before winter sets in.

BORAD OF WORKS REPORT.

The chairman of the Board of Works reported that John A. Tilt had been given the contract for the street signs at 10 cents each.

The report was adopted. There will be 850 signs needed. Manager Laurie of the Bell Telephone Co., said that he thought that permission could be got to put up the signs on their poles, and P. S. Coate, manager of the Gas Co., had already granted the permission as to the Gas Co's poles.

When the by-law for the initiative in regard to the walk on the e. s. of Centre street came up, Ald. McKeough stated that Alister McKay had already done the filling in front of his property and had commenced to lay his sidewalk. He asked that he be allowed for the work done.

Mayor Sulman said that it couldn't be done. If the council did, the whole proceedings would have to be started over again.

Ald. McKeough asked if there was any way in which Mr. McKay could be allowed for the filling.

The Mayor said that that was a matter to be settled between Mr. McKay and the Board of Works.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

In reply to the query of Ald. Cowan, Ald. McKeough said that the Board of Works intended raising the granite lithic walk on the e. s. of the C. P. R. hotel, as soon as possible.

In reply to a query of Ald. Cowan, Ald. McKeough said that the stone crusher had been left out of doors since it was purchased.

Ald. Cowan said that he had passed the stone crusher several times and it was rusting away. It should be put under cover.

Ald. McKeough replied that if Ald. Cowan had notified the Board of Works, when he saw it two weeks ago, it would have been removed two weeks earlier.

Ald. Mounteer said that the matter called to his mind the necessity for shelter for all the city's machinery. Chatham owned some $7000 worth of machinery, and the shelter was inadequate.

The Mayor advised Ald. Mounteer to investigate and report to the council.

BYRAM & MURPHY COMING.

A resolution was read that was passed by the Board of Trade. The motion had been moved by G. P. Scholfield and seconded by Hugh Malcolmson. It advised that Byram & Murphy, manufacturers of bent goods at Blenheim, be granted remission of taxes for ten years and free water, provided they didn't manufacture articles that would conflict with articles manufactured by factories already established here. They were at present employing 25 or 30 men and they would invest about $20,000 in the plant to be erected here.

Ald. McKeough said that if the privileges were granted that an agreement should be drawn up the same as had been done with the other factories.

Ald. Cowan said that the council were taking for granted that the Board of Trade had investigated the matter. He thought that the council should have some information on the subject.

Ald. Waddell moved that W. R. Landon, secretary of the Board of Trade, be heard.

Mr. Landon said that the Board of Trade had corresponded with Messrs. Byram & Murphy and also himself and Mr. Robert Gray had visited Blenheim and called on the gentlemen. They wanted to decide at once where they would locate. They are favorably impressed with Chatham as it would offer better freight rates. At Blenheim they were told that the freight rates were better than at Chatham.

CONDUCT OF THE BOER GENERALS.

The firm and dignified refusal of the Boers generals, Botha, De Wet and De La Ray, to allow themselves to be made social lions in England is a tribute to their modesty and good sense, points out the Toronto News. These men of the veldt, more accustomed to the strenuous work of a desperate struggle than to the social amenities which follow, willingly paid their respects to the King, whose rule they have cheerfully accepted, but refused to become the objects of a curious though well-disposed admiration. It is natural that the people of England should wish to show due honor to a worthy foe for whom they have a genuine admiration, but it is equally natural that the men who fought so long and so well, for a country which was to them life itself, should refuse to become the central figures in what, to them at least, would appear as the triumphal jubilation of the conquerors.

The South African Boers have apparently submitted to the inevitable with good grace, and the best proof of it is that their generals now in England find it impossible to accept the enthusiastic hospitality of their conquerors. If they had, there might be room for doubt as to their sincerity, for men who fight as they did don't forget so easily.

THE COMING STRUGGLE.

The premier of Ontario is on his way home, and upon his arrival will, no doubt, begin the serious work of increasing the present precarious majority of one which his government now has in the legislature. The constituency of North Renfrew will be the first battlefield in which the Ross government will either lose its present majority or add another to its voting power.

This fight will be a most important one, for its result will have a great influence upon the struggle in the constituencies later opened up by the unsating of members-elect by the courts in contested election cases. In the fight the government will have behind it all the power and influence of the governmental machinery, a great advantage in an important contest. There is also another machine, which will get in its work, unless closely watched, and the efficiency of the work of that machine is only too well known.

The contest in North Renfrew will be the first battle in a bitter struggle for power. Upon its results will in a large measure depend the results of the bye-elections which will follow, and the fate of a government which has held power for a good many years through the efficiency of the most corrupt election machine this province has ever known.

The Conservative party owe it to themselves and to the honest electors of this province, that this machine shall be closely watched in North Renfrew, so that it will be unable to get in its usual dirty work.—Toronto News.

A BILLION BUSHEL HARVEST.

The American newspapers are turning their attention to our Canadian Northwest and exploiting it with an enthusiasm that is bound to cause a tremendous influx of immigrants during the next twelve months, comments the Ottawa Citizen. The Buffalo News has a special correspondent touring the wheat belt and on Saturday it devoted over a page to a description of the country with handsome illustrations. The keynote of the article is a prophecy that men now living will see a billion bushel harvest in the Canadian Northwest. The writer has abundance of facts and figures gathered on the spot to back up the probability of the prophecy coming true. He points out that the wheat belt consists of 230,823,040 acres, and of this 75,000,000 acres is good wheat land divided as follows: Manitoba 23,000,000; Assiniboia, 19,000,000; Saskatchewan, 17,000,000; Alberta, 16,000,000 acres. He says:

This land belonged originally to the Dominion Government and the railway companies, and 30,000,000 of the 23,000,000 acres in Manitoba have already passed out of the hands of the first owners and become the property of settlers either as purchasers or homestead claimants.

The land of the territories did not find such a ready market until recently, but it is now going very fast. Only 10,000,000 of the desirable and available total of 92,000,000 acres in the Territories have been settled upon. During the last fiscal year which ended June 30th, the records show that there were nearly 15,000 homestead entries, representing a total area of 2,373,120 acres, and during the same period the amount of railway land disposed of to immigrants was 2,136,000 acres, making a grand total for the year of 4,509,000 acres. If the transfers continue at this rate it is an easy example in arithmetic to determine that the land will all be disposed of inside of ten years.

The possibilities are indicated by the fact that only 3,189,000 acres in Manitoba and 1,000,000 acres in the Territories are yet under cultivation. The writer estimates that 40,000 farmers from the States came into our Northwest this season. Wheat land in the States now costs $25 to $40 an acre whereas with us it is only from $3 to $15 per acre. He anticipates that the farming population alone will increase to 3,500,000 within a very few years, and he adds: "The entire Dominion is undergoing a general awakening to its commercial interests. The forward movement is not confined to any one district, but prevails from ocean to ocean. The advance is stronger and more marked in portions, but the whole country is coming to participate in the spirit of progress."

ONLY A COD.

Toronto News.

Fish stories are all the style at present, and anglers who return from the abodes of the funny family are generally expected to stretch their imagination. A good story is reported from Cooke's Bay, Lake Simcoe, to the effect that a member of the cod family had been caught in those waters and that it was the first catch of that nature that had ever taken place in Lake Simcoe. The fish has been brought to Toronto and is at present at the Fisheries Department. One expert said that it is undoubtedly of the cod family, while another gentleman contends that it is a cross between a ling and a catfish. Lings are generally salt water fish, but there are a large number of fresh water lings in the Rideau lakes. The fish is about two feet long and weighs about eight pounds.

WHAT TO WEAR IN BELTS.

The Shaped Kind Are Most Becoming to the Average Person.

High belts are still popular, but experience teaches that they must be made with care if they are to be worn with the straight front corset. The prettiest belts are made high at the back. The material is cut on the cross and is mounted on the bodice. The belt slopes gradually toward the front. Often the belt does not meet in front by a couple of inches, the intervening space being hidden by a tie of lace or a portion of the vest. For wearing with shirt waists a useful belt is made of crosscut glass or soft satin matching the color of the skirt. It is folded and stitched to a bone about four inches long at the back, and thence on either side the material slopes away to a point. The belt may be tied in a knot and the ends plumed up to the blouse, or it may be fixed with a buckle.

The shaped belt is far more becoming to the figure than the ordinary straight kind. The object of employing crosscut material rather than ribbons is that the former when pulled tight fits so much closer to the figure.

The three-quarter driving cloak shown is of pongee, with a double caped collar and rounded revers of red silk outlined with ermine applique. The cuffs are of the crimson silk, also outlined with the applique.

THE CRAZE FOR WHITE.

Even Heavy Gowns Are Made of It. Some Novel Ideas.

The fondness for white this season extends even to tennis and outing suits. The white mohair ones are extremely smart and are accompanied by white shoes and white straw or taffeta hats. White storm serge is a favorite material with yachswomen and trims up well with gold or silver braid and marine buttons. Anchors embroidered on the cuffs or collars add a bit to the jauntyness.

Tonches of black velvet to set off a hat or gown are becoming almost indispensable. A bow tied loosely and set on the side of a hat of the palest blue or pink, with the ends hanging slightly over the brim, is extremely effective. Another pretty and novel idea is to wear one of these velvet knots at the nape of the neck on the slightly low neck dresses used for day wear.

A smart costume of white glaze linen which is shown in the picture is made with an Eton jacket and a plain skirt trimmed with bands of pale blue linen. This is worn with a white muslin and insertion blouse and an outing hat of white linen stitched and trimmed with a bow and band of blue ribbon.

K. T.'S. CELEBRATE
Provincial Commandery K. T. held a celebration here yesterday, which was a big success in every particular.

A brother lodge from Detroit, accompanied by the Detroit city band, accompanied the Detroit members to Chatham.

In the evening a grand cake walk was given in the drill-shed. A very large crowd attended and everyone had a most enjoyable time.

The committee who had in charge were Henry Weaver, secretary; W. Powell, M. Robertson, G. W. Tarrill, W. H. Boz, James Lightfoot, of Hamilton, and George Smith, of Windsor. These men deserve great credit for the manner in which the affair was handled.

Two prizes were given for the best dressed couple on the floor. The first prize was won by Miss Emma Simmons and David Lee, and the second by Miss Burnie Stone and Mr. Wells, of Windsor.

HEAVY HAIL STORM
A heavy hail storm passed over Bothwell last evening. The engine driver on the 8.15, westbound, G. T. R. express brought with him to Chatham this morning a parrot of the hail that had fallen. When they got here after a journey of over 20 miles in a heated engine cabin, they were as large as goose eggs.

The engine driver, who was with the hail, said that storm seemed to come in a belt about two miles wide, and Bothwell seemed to be the centre. All of the fields around Bothwell this morning looked like middle in the middle of winter. They were completely covered by the hail. It was the worst hail storm that has been seen in Western Ontario for some time. The corn is completely stripped and some of the stock was also injured. A brakeman on the train said that a person could not realize how big a storm it was without seeing the result.

LACROSSE
Rodney and Wallaceburg crossed sticks in a scheduled game of lacrosse at the latter place yesterday afternoon, the home team winning out by a score of 3-0.

The Wallaceburg team have been considerably strengthened lately owing to the disbanding of the London team. Rose, Tierney and Mooney now hold permanent positions on the Wallaceburg team. Fetterly, Jahne, Sheldon and Angus, of the Chatham team, played for Rodney. The game was very much one-sided, Wallaceburg having by far the stronger team.

Rose and Tierney on the Burg home played well and succeeded in keeping the ball down near the Rodney goal for the most part of the time. Only three of their shots, however, passed through the Rodney flags, as Fetterly and the Rodney goal keeper were always in their places and made some clever stops. It was a very good game from the spectator's standpoint. The three London players made themselves solid with the Wallaceburg rooters by making some clever but unnecessary grand stand plays. Home and home games have been arranged for between Chatham and Wallaceburg. The Chatham team will go to Wallaceburg on the 29th of August, and Wallaceburg will come here on Labor Day. The local lovers of Canada's national game may be assured that the game here on Labor Day will be a fast and interesting one.

MUNICIPALITY OF RALEIGH

A BIG TIME

"We are going to have a great time in Chatham on the 29th of August," said John Johnson this morning. "We had such a big success at our Emancipation celebration that we have decided to hold a barbeque on the 29th. It will be a great thing and the Scotch Picnic at the Eau to-day won't be a circumstance."

PIONEER TAKEN

After an illness of hardly two weeks, John McKay, a highly respected resident of Chatham Township for half a century, succumbed to a severe attack of asthma this morning, in his 70th year. The deceased was born in Campbelltown, Scotland, and came to Canada in 1840. In 1861 he married Miss Catharine McKerrall, and from then up to the time of his death he has resided in the township. He served only one year in the Council, but took an active interest in the success of Chalmers' Church, having been one of the elders for many years, and in politics he was an ardent Conservative.

The widow survives him, and the children are, Mrs. Wm. McNeillage, Chatham Township; Miss Catherine, Chatham Township; Mrs. Jas. Gray, City, and John D. and James, Chatham Township.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at 2 o'clock, to the McVicar Cemetery.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING
A very sudden death occurred yesterday afternoon near Dresden during the heavy rain storm which passed over there.

Matthew Graham and his son were engaged in drawing in grain when the storm came up. They had just got on a load of grain and were hurrying to get into the barn. The team had just entered the barn door when a heavy bolt of lightning struck the building and set it on fire. Mr. Graham and his son were both on the load when the shock came. Mr. Graham, Sr., was instantly killed by the lightning and his son was so badly burned that it is likely he will not recover.

The barns and outbuildings, with everything in them, were completely destroyed by the fire. Mr. Graham was one of the best men in the township and his death is deeply regretted.

A Chatham resident who was in Dresden at the time stated that it was one of the worst storms he has ever seen. The hail stones which fell were as large as hickory nuts.

The Wrong Roll.
Immediately after a wedding which took place in Washington the best man started for South Africa, where he remained more than a year. On his return, says a writer in Harper's Magazine, he was given a dinner and wore evening clothes for the first time since the wedding.

In the midst of the evening, fumbling in his waistcoat pocket, he astonished himself and his friends by pulling out a hundred dollar bill. Where had it come from? A sudden thought flashed across his mind.

The next morning he went to the clergyman who had married his friends.

"Do you remember marrying Mr. Armitage and Miss Bently about a year ago?"

"Oh, perfectly," replied the clergyman. "I see them constantly at my church."

"Well, will you pardon me if I ask you a delicate question in strict confidence. How much did you receive as your fee?"

"I will return frankness with frankness," returned the clergyman, smiling whimsically. "It was the strangest fee that ever came my way. After the ceremony the best man, with a profusion of thanks, slipped into my hand a small silver of fine tobacco wrapped in a wad of paraffin paper!"

A Sight For Sarah.
Of a certain bishop, famous as about the plainest man in England, the Liverpool Post tells this pleasing tale: One day as this homely parson sat in an omnibus he was amazed by the persistent staring of a fellow passenger who presently unburdened himself as follows:

"You're a parson, ain't you?"

"Well, yes; that is so."

"Look 'ere, parson, would you mind comin' home with me to see my wife?"

Imagining the wife was sick and needing assistance, the clergyman at great inconvenience to himself went with the man. On arriving at the house the man shouted to his wife to come downstairs, and, pointing to the astonished parson, said, with a grin of delight:

"Look 'ere, Sairy. Yer said this mornin' as I wur the hughest chap in England. Now, just yer look at this bloke!"

GAVE JOY TO HIS FRIENDS.
New York Times.

The genial John S. King, mathematician, linguist, Egyptologist, and man of many accomplishments, was one day dining with some of his business associates. He gave the waiter his order for a portion of calf's head vinaigrette. This started a discussion, most of those present asserting that the gelatinous stuff which usually came from the carving table with a cannibalistic suggestion of one eye and part of a nostril was not to their liking.

"Well," said King, to the great and enduring joy of his companions, "I did not like it much myself at first, but now I find that calf's head is growing on me."

ROYAL MUSKOKA NOW OPEN

Guests Are Arriving Daily at the New Summer Resort.

The opening of the new Royal Muskoka Hotel on Lake Rosseau, Muskoka Lakes district, for the season of 1902, has been a source of satisfaction to the proprietors, and the reservations that have been made up to the present for accommodation at this resort assure the success of the venture.

Guests are arriving daily, and by next week, hundreds of people will be enjoying the beauties of Muskoka with the advantage of sojourning in one of the best summer hotels in America.

Among the guests at the hotel now are prominent people from Buffalo, Chicago, New York, and other American cities, as well as many Canadians.

The Ontario Government, in conjunction with the Grand Trunk Railway system, is continuing the policy inaugurated last year of restoring the Muskoka lakes with parent bass. The first carload was deposited in lake Rosseau, June 20, and a finer lot of bass have seldom been seen. Last year 10,000 fish were transplanted into the Northern Lakes with much success. The fishing this year in the Muskoka Lakes is good, some excellent catches having been made, the bass weighing from two to four pounds, and pickerel from two to eight pounds.

TURNERVILLE.
Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins, of the 3rd Con. Chatham township, were the guests of Thomas Shaw on Sunday.

The annual picnic of the Lindsay Road Sunday school was held in F. Shaw's grove on Thursday afternoon.

In the evening a concert was held in the Church, where a large number of people gathered to listen to an interesting program which had been provided by the school. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $21.50.

It is out painful duty to record the death of James Shaw, who passed away on Friday morning, Aug. 8th. The deceased gentleman had a host of friends and was universally respected.

The funeral service was held in the Lindsay Road Church on Sunday, conducted by Rev. Mr. Snell, of Dawn Mills, who, in the course of his address, paid a fitting tribute to the departed. At the conclusion of the services the congregation took a last look at deceased. When the procession, which was very large, reformed and started for the Dresden cemetery, the casket, which was a very handsome one, was in charge of Mr. Harris, undertaker, of Dresden.

THE BLACK WATCH

Jack Watt tells a funny story about his little son, who, to all appearances will grow up a sturdy Scotchman. The little fellow has been taking a keen interest lately, in the Scotch picnic which is being held at Erieau to-day and for the last few weeks has been talking incessantly about Scotch games and Scotch soldiers.

"He was standing on King street with me yesterday morning," said Mr. Watt, "when the colored lodge from Detroit, in uniform, were parading to the lodge room, over Turner's drug store. All at once he pulled at my coat tail and enquired—

"Say, papa, is that the 'Black Watch,' that they talk so much about?"

HEALTH RESORTS AND ATTRACTIONS

There is no region in America richer in mineral springs than Colorado, while throughout the state there are pleasure resorts and splendid places of attraction of various kinds in great numbers. It has been truly said that all of Colorado is a health resort, and this statement is sustained by the most eminent physicians of the country.

What with its beautiful cities on the plains, its gorgeous mountain peaks and lovely valleys, its awful canyons and their rushing torrents, its forests and streams, its broad green parks, and charming crystalline lakes amid the mountains, what more could nature provide or man desire for his welfare or his delights.

Not only the health-giving mineral and thermal springs, which gush spontaneously from the mountain sides invite the invalid and he weary, but in all the rest of these charms of nature is found a panacea for the ills and cares of body and mind diseased.

To enable persons to reach these favored localities without unnecessary expenditure of time or money, the Union Pacific has put in effect very low rates and splendid train service, three trains leaving Missouri River daily for Denver, one of which is "The Colorado Special," which is the finest train in the West. Accommodations are provided for all classes of passengers, the equipment including free reclining chair cars, dining cars, buffet, smoking cars, drawing room sleepers and day coaches.

WORLD OF SPORT

CRICKET

The local cricket team went to Detroit to-day to do battle with the Athletic club's team of that city. The Detroit team is a game ahead in the series on account of winning the last game here. To-day's game, if Chatham wins, will make them a tie again. The Chatham team was Aitken, Kenny, Mercer, Reg. Miller, Roy Miller, Richards, Wells, Richardson, F. Dowdsley and Robert.

LACROSSE

The juniors of Thamesville showed up to play the locals this afternoon and the youngsters are at it now.

A game with the Blenheim juniors was arranged in the near future.

The lacrosse club's excursion to Cleveland on the first of September has been "called off." Other parties, however, are negotiating for the same date and it is likely that an excursion will be run to Cleveland on Labor Day.

BASEBALL

The Aberdeens didn't go to Tilbury to-day as a number of their players couldn't get off. The game will likely come off later.

NOT A BACK NUMBER.

"I am still in the ring," says Pete McAuley, manager of the C. M. C. baseball team, "you can't shake the old sport and you will hear from the C. M. C. soon, as I am arranging games. We have won five and lost only one so far, and I will make it better. Don't lose sight of me, as I'm in town to stay."

SOAP FOR HOSPITALS.

Messrs. Pugsley, Dingman & Co., manufacturers of Comfort Soap, through their representative, have given a box of Comfort Soap to Chief Priests of the fire department, to be played for between the firemen and grocery clerks. The winners to donate the soap to the hospitals.

The Aberdeens and Bankers have a game arranged for Monday or Wednesday of next week.

The firemen lost to the grocers yesterday, but are, nevertheless, not disheartened and will go against them again Monday, Sept. 1, Labor Day.

The game yesterday, although one-sided, up till the last innings, was exciting, and some good playing and heavy hitting was indulged in.

Chief Fritchard played the third bag and was probably the firemen's star fielder, as he accepted all chances.

He also caught a man napping off third base and chased him up and touched him before he crossed the rubber. Immediately after he gathered in a sky-scraper that the spectators thought would never come down.

Oldershaw, for the grocers, played like a fiend, taking in all chances and making a hit every time he went to bat, one of his hits being a clean home run.

Made for the grocers and big Frank Ryall for the firemen, each made home runs, Ryall's hit being the longest drive seen on Tecumseh park this season.

Rain stopped the game for a while as did unspiral disputes. Robert, who did the umpiring at first, did not seem to suit the fire fighters, and after a good deal of kicking Robert quit and the game went on again.

The firemen took a sport in the

A GIRL OF THE PEOPLE

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

"The invalid raised himself on his elbow and stared."

"What did Roger tell?"
"Only that the little boy died in some very sad and painful way," he did not say how. I always thought that he was my little brother, who died years before I was born. But after my mother—I mean, after Lady Cope—died, Roger told me that I was not her daughter. That she had only adopted me because she had lost first her little boy, whom she adored, then her husband, and had no one in the world to love."

"No one in the world to love!" he drearily repeated. "Yes, that's true, that's true. And to think that it was all through me. O Heaven! The horror of it! No wonder if these years of remorse have driven me to the verge of madness."

He was babbling on, with broken, inarticulate self-accusations, while I asked myself: "Is this the secret? Am I shut up not only with a madman but a murderer?"

"Is it possible that you killed the child?" The thought spoke itself.

"She thought that," he said, chokingly. "She thought so—until that night."

"Until the night of her death?" He bowed his head for answer.

"And then—then she knew that it was not so?"

"She knew that it was not so. But the truth—it was the truth that struck her down. Shall I ever forget the look in her eyes when she cried out that what I had done was worse than murder—that she could forgive me sooner if I had killed the child in my passion for revenge? Heaven! How the look has haunted me! It's driving me mad. I can see her now as she rushed to the fireplace and held the poker among the coals till it was red-hot, then, tearing away her sleeve she burnt out the scar, the one link that was left to bind us together. I can see her now, as if—she stood there!" and he pointed, shaking hand towards the empty fireplace.

Involuntarily my eyes followed its direction. So strangely had his words and the horror in his eyes moved me that I half expected to see my adopted mother's spirit there, pale, beautiful, dressed as her body had been on the night of "The Bell."

As the vision came to me, growing in my brain as it grew in his, I did indeed seem to see her, exactly as she had been at the theater. I could see her eyes, black as wells of darkness, and hear her murmur: "I wish we had chosen another play for your birthday. The face of Mathias reminds me of someone I used to know."

I had only to look at this man's face to be certain who that someone must have been. I shuddered. She herself had burnt out the scar, if I could believe his word, burnt it out that the last link might be destroyed between her and a man she deemed to have sinned beyond murder and beyond pardon.

Once again he turned to me as the vision passed. "Did she speak of me when she was dying?" he implored.

"You forget," I said. "I am not even sure that I know your name. How, then, can I tell—"

"My name is Walter Leigh," he interrupted. "Did you hear it—from her?"

So desperate was he in his eagerness that I said "No," sadly. "When she was dying?" I went on, "she only stammered a few broken words I could not piece together into meaning, though I have never forgotten, and I have often felt that she was dying, that there was something that she wished me to do; that was all of which I could be sure."

The man's eyes lightened in their deep hollows. "Since you haven't forgotten, tell me," he said, anxiously, "and it may be that I can help you to understand, even now."

Slowly I began to repeat the words that Lady Cope's dying lips had spoken. "That scar—the scar!" After all these years. "And afterwards: 'She'll save—find—you must find—' Then silence, and nothing more."

"It was the boy she was trying to tell you to find and save," the man explained, excitedly. "She must have felt that she was dying, that there was nothing she could do. You were left, she still had hope; but even if she had lived what more could have been done?"

"Ah, what more," I echoed, "when the boy was dead so many, many years ago. Nothing could change that."

"The boy was not dead!" he exclaimed; and I started, in fear and surprise, for I thought that he must be mad indeed.

"Not—dead?" I stammered.
And I began to ask myself how I could soothe his excitement; for though I was still only on the threshold of the secret I was woman enough to shrink from the knowledge that I was imprisoned with a madman.

"No, no," he answered, almost fiercely. "Did I not tell you how she might have pardoned me if I had killed the child in the heat of passion? For she had sinned deeply against me, and so had Vincent, but she would not forgive when she knew the thing that Sintra and I had really done."

"What—did you do?" I whispered, dry-lipped.

"Did Roger Cope tell you nothing of the old story?"

"No. Nothing at all."

"The sick man's eyes fastened once more on mine and held them, so that I could not remove my gaze. For an instant he was silent, then he spoke in a low, changed voice, a calmer tone than he had been able to command before."

"Ermytrude begged you to save and find the boy," he said, thoughtfully, and with deep sadness. "Strange if it should be given to you to do so, even yet! Perhaps if I tell you the whole story from the beginning—"

"I beg that you will tell it," I pleaded, when he paused.

"Sit down," he said, abruptly. "There, in that chair by the side of the bed where Sintra always sits."

I had been standing until now, but I obeyed him.

"Sintra and I were half-brother and sister to Vincent Cope," he said at last. "We were twins. Our mother had gypsy blood in her veins. She was beautiful—famous for her beauty and her careless voices. But people were wend-to-do; but because of that wild strain in her nature, which showed itself strongly after sleeping a generation of an ordinary, middle-class English girl. She went on the stage and became an opera-singer. She was but eighteen, your age to-day, and in the first company which she joined was a man whose father had been a gypsy. He was the leading tenor, and he was as handsome as she was beautiful, though a wild, worthless fellow. They married secretly. Then a time came when the marriage had to be announced. Our mother left the opera troupe, but our father stayed. Sintra and I were born. The husband and wife never saw each other again. He was killed in a railway accident, and as our mother had been disowned by her parents she was never allowed to see him. We were left with an old nurse while she went back to the stage, and for two or three years we were neglected, growing up like weeds in an uncared-for garden.

"Meanwhile, our mother met a young baronet, named Henry Cope, who fell in love with her beauty, and they were married. We were brought to this house as our home; this very room was our nursery, and we were happy enough until Vincent Cope, our half-brother, was born."

"With his birth everything was changed. Our step-father, who had never liked us, turned against us almost with hatred; even our mother took her love away from the poor gypsy twins, who recalled the sordid past, and gave it to the child who was born to good fortune. Sintra and I were devoted to each other; she perhaps caring more for me than I for her—as is the way sometimes with a brother and sister; and she hated the new baby as only a gypsy child can hate. One day, when Vincent was about two years old, she struck him, so that he fell and cut his forehead. And this act sealed our fate."

"Our step-father pronounced life unendurable while we remained under his roof, and we were to be sent away. The question was, where, for we were almost too young to go to a boarding-school; besides, we were so inseparable that it would have been cruel to part us; and neither our mother nor her husband had the active wish, I think, to be cruel."

"A circumstance trifling in itself decided our whole future. A child, Ermytrude D'Este, a cousin of the Copes, who had been brought here on a visit by her parents, had taken a great fancy to the two gypsy children. When her father and mother, whose home was at Arrish Mell Court (which you must know well) heard that we were in disgrace with our step-father, they invited us to pay them a visit and share the teachings of their daughter's governess. We managed to win our way, somehow, into the hearts of our protectors; instead of paying a mere visit we continued to live at Arrish Mell Court, and were as much children of the house as Ermytrude herself."

"So we grew up together. I was not a strong boy, and instead of being sent to a public school I had a tutor. Ermytrude and Sintra and I were never an hour apart; and not a cloud arose between us until Sintra and I were seventeen, Ermytrude thirteen. Then, mature beyond my years, I knew that I loved Ermytrude, not with the brother-love I calmly gave Sintra, but a feeling very different. At last I was going to travel with my tutor and before leaving I told Ermytrude what was in my heart for her. She vowed that she loved me, too, and promised that when she grew up she would not marry anyone but me. I wanted her to prove this promise. I wanted to be sure that she belonged to me; and I persuaded her to let me tattoo on her arm the mark of a heart, which was to be the fac-simile of one on mine."

"She was afraid and unwilling, but consented at last; and I made the hearts as best I knew how, in my amateurish way, with a purple ink which I bought from a man I knew."

"While I was fashioning the heart on Ermytrude's arm, copying each detail from my own, with my sleeve rolled up that I might have the model ever before my eyes, Sintra looked in upon us. She was furious with jealousy that Ermytrude should share something with me that was denied to her. From that moment I believe that she hated Ermytrude."

"When I had gone away on my travels, Sintra made a heart on her own arm, and told Ermytrude that it had been done by my desire, but that was not true. I knew nothing of its existence until Ermytrude wrote me that, since Sintra now wore the symbol, she had ceased to value hers as before."

"For years, though the two families lived in Dorsetshire, not fifty miles distant from each other, we saw little of Vincent Cope, for our mother died, and the boy and his father went abroad together. It was while I was traveling with my tutor, on Oxford Street, that I met my father and I. Only the day after the meeting, which took place in Switzerland, Sir Henry Cope had an accident in climbing. He lay ill for a few weeks, and finally died, so that Vincent became Sir Vincent, though he was but a boy."

"My tutor, who was a good fellow, made himself very useful to Vincent. He and I went back to England together, taking the body of the dead baronet with us. After this Vincent and I remained friends, though Sintra's continued dislike of him kept us from accepting his invitation to share his home. Arrish Mell was the home of our hearts, and our friends there seemed no more desirous of sending us away than we were of going. But Vincent and I went on together, and in those days he had our three portraits painted, to be hung in the library in this house, where you may have seen them."

"Vincent was sent down from Oxford on account of an audacious prank. I left at about the same time because of a severe accident at football. He went abroad with friends; I back to be nursed into health at Arrish Mell Court."

"By this time I showed signs of latent talent as an artist. Ermytrude's people, who were simple and unassuming, believed that I might make my way in the world, and when they found out that we had loved each other for years they consented to our engagement."

"Then, as Ermytrude and I both longed for Italy, and she would have plenty of money for us both, it was arranged that we should be married without delay. Ermytrude was twenty, I twenty-four."

"I was perfectly happy, despite Sintra's jealous depression. My heart was full of good feeling for all the world. I was delighted when Vincent wrote that he would come and be best man at the wedding."

"Well, he came, and arrived at Arrish Mell Court, where he was to pay a visit, only a week before the day set for the marriage. He was a handsome and brilliant young fellow, not much older than Ermytrude. They had not met for some time, and I might have seen a danger signal in their eyes when they looked at each other. But I loved Ermytrude so passionately that I did not dream her feeling for me might be anything stronger than the affectionate habit of years, which I had thought her to misunderstand."

"When Vincent had been in the house for three days she begged me to release her from her engagement, eleven hours though it was, alleging no reason except that she did not care for me as she had thought. I was half-mad, and I refused to give her that freedom she asked for. She seemed as much mine as if she were already my wife; she had been mine ever since I put my heart on her arm, hers on mine."

"On the morning of the day that should have given her to me for ever she was gone—she and Vincent together. They went to Scotland, and were married almost before we had time to guess what had happened."

WHEN THE NUTS TURNED BROWN

By WINTHROP ALLEN

Copyright, 1901, by A. S. Richardson

Walton Ford sprang forward as he caught the flash of a bright autumn costume through the trees. Then he shrank back. It was too late, however, for the swift, graceful figure stepped forward among the rustling leaves.

It was the woman's turn to be embarrassed. She recovered quickly and with a haughty inclination of the head remarked:

"Pray, don't imagine I was following you. I supposed you would remain with the rest of the party, and I wanted to be alone."

"Precisely my predicament, and I've managed to get lost."

They stood silently regarding each other. It is not the most pleasant situation imaginable to find yourself alone in the bare autumnal woods with the man whom you are quite sure you have ceased to love and from whom you are about to secure a divorce. Yet that was Eugene Ford's position. The trouble had started with a trifle, and the breach had widened steadily until their being together at the Van Order house party was rapidly developing into a heart sickening shame. Even the women had commenced to gossip about the affair over their tea-cups in her darkened room.

"WE'RE PLAYING HOUSE," RESPONDED THE CHILD.

From the distance came faintly the sound of children's voices. The strain was relieved. Ford pushed aside the overhanging branches and said:

"If you will come with me, perhaps these children can point out a path."

Without answering she followed him through the rustling leaves to a clearing, where two children, a lad of ten, a manly little chap, and a pretty girl of perhaps eight, were busily sorting their afternoon's harvest of brown nuts.

Both stood gazing shyly at the "city folks."

In response to the desired information, given with remarkable clearness by the bright eyed boy, Ford tossed him a coin and turned on his heel. His wife paused and smiled into the uplifted face of the little girl.

"What are you children doing here?" she asked, pointing to elaborate diagrams formed of small stones.

"We're playing house," responded the child, encouraged by Eugene's evident interest in the game. "That's the parlor you're standing in. The man's in our dining room. This is the kitchen, and over there is our room. The sticks are doors, and you push 'em open. Didn't you ever play you were married like that?"

The woman laughed bitterly.

"Matrimony is something more binding than rows of stones. One is bound in by walls of conventionality."

The child straightened up.

"Does that make as nice houses as ours—those walls of—of—"

"They make a prison, a place from which you must break out if you would see the light of day."

Her heart was hot within her, and Eugene did not realize that she was talking to the child. She thought only of the man watching her curiously in the mellow autumn light.

The girl's face fell.

"Oh, I thought it was some new game you know."

"No, it's as old as the hills. Are you, too, tired of your boy husband and married life, and so soon?"

"Of course we're not," protested the child. "Are we, Willie?" The boy shook his head and dug the ground with his copper toed shoe. "You see, we like new games once in a while, but we never get tired of playing we're married. Why, when we get big enough we're really going to be married for all the time. Now we can only keep house on Saturdays and after school."

"Don't you ever quarrel?" Eugene was becoming interested, and she forgot the man at her side.

"Why, yes," admitted the child frankly. "It's part of the play, and it's such fun to make up. Yesterday Charlie Norris gave me a pencil, and my Willie was just awful mad, but this morning we kissed and made it up. Didn't we, Willie?"

Willie flushed and nodded his bowed head.

But their interlocutor was not laughing at them.

"But suppose you got real angry and Willie was angry, too, and wouldn't make up. What then?"

"Oh, but you mustn't!" exclaimed the little one in shocked surprise. "It's wicked to get really mad. You have to humor a husband some. I heard my tell Miss Fiedick so. You see, when you're married it's different from the ordinary mad, because you're together all the time and you've got to stay together, and if you are mad—the child looked helplessly at Willie—"well, it would be dreadful, don't you see?"

"But suppose you wanted to do something that wasn't wrong and Willie wouldn't let you. What then?"

"Willie wouldn't stop me from doing anything that I wanted to do if it wasn't wrong, but sometimes I don't know what is wrong. Now, I let Artie kiss me one day, and Willie was awful mad, and I just laughed because he was mad. I didn't care about Artie, you know; only it was fun to see Willie's eyes snap little bits of fire. But then we talked it all over, and now—well, I ain't going to let Artie kiss me again, not if he gives me two candied apples. I'm not going to make Willie feel bad any more, 'cause if you really love people you don't like to make 'em feel bad, do you?"

Eugene turned abruptly.

"Which way are we to go, did you say?"

Amazed at the sudden change in her demeanor, the little girl pointed silently toward the woodland path.

When Eugene had taken half a dozen steps, she stopped suddenly and hurried back to the children, who stood watching this odd city lady who had taken such strange interest in their make believe house. She knelt beside the small figures and, drawing them gently toward her, murmured:

"Always give in to one another—always. It's so much easier."

Then she kissed them both and, rising, followed her husband down the leaf strewn pathway toward the Van Order estate.

Before them spread the gorgeousness of the setting sun. The red gold sky, framed by the forest vista, shone like the gates of glory. Neither spoke, but the face of each seemed to have caught the reflection of the brilliant west.

Just beyond flowed a small brook, making tinkling music as it leaped over the moss covered stones. Ford crossed first, then offered his hand to his wife, who hesitated when she stepped on the first stone of the natural bridge.

As she reached the other side she still held his hand, and, seeing that she made no effort to withdraw from his protecting attitude, Ford drew her closer.

"Shall we let the children's lesson pass unheeded, Walton, or shall we, like they, kiss and make up?"

He knew the cost of those words to her proud spirit, and as he bent to kiss her he said:

"I have wanted to ask you for days and days, but somehow you never gave me the chance. I know I've been unreasonable. It's hard for a girl who's queened it over fellows for several seasons to yield always to just one insignificant man."

"You're not insignificant. You're just splendid. I've been selfish and silly." The words came now without effort and were sealed with a pensive kiss.

That night the Van Order house party drove over to the dance at the Cross Country club house.

"By Jove, it looks like the old cotton days to see Ford dancing four numbers out of five with Eugene, doesn't it?" exclaimed a confirmed bachelor, thoughtfully stroking his iron gray mustache.

And so it happened that a little child led them away from the portals of the divorce court.

Life in the Country.

In the country every morning of the year brings with it a new aspect of springing or fading nature, a new duty to be fulfilled upon earth and a new promise or warning in heaven. No day is without its innocent hope, its special prudence, its kindly gift and its sublime danger, and in every process of wise husbandry and every effort of contending or remedial courage the wholesome passions, pride and bodily power of the laborer, are excited and exerted in happiest union. The companionship of domestic and the care of serviceable animals soften and enlarge his life with lowly charities and discipline him in familiar wisdom and unobtrusive fortitudes, while the divine laws of seedtime, which cannot be recalled, harvest, which cannot be hastened, and winter, in which no man can work, compel the impatience and coveting of his heart to labor too submissively to be anxious and rest too sweet to be wanton.—John Ruskin.

Where He Came From.

It was in a mission Sunday school far over on the east side, and the brisk young clergyman from Chicago was about to make a brief address. His smile was as complacent as ingratiating, and he began with a schoolboyish as he supposed, of exordium which would have left Quintilian speechless with wonder and envy:

"Well, children, I guess none of you knows where I come from."

His own ingenuity warmed his heart as he saw visions of his stockyards stories to come. But he promptly got a cold douche. "Oh, yes, we do!" spoke up shiny faced—preternaturally so—Joe Dugan in the front row. An orator must follow his lead even if it isn't the one he desired. So the youthful minister, a slight shade of disappointment now on his unwrinkled front, asked:

"Well, where do you think, then?"

"From the country!"—New York Evening Post.

"FOOT ELM" KEEPS THE FEET COOL

Nothing Like it to Keep the Feet Cool, Sweet and Comfortable During the Hot Weather.

Every summer plenty of people are puzzled to know what to do to keep their feet cool. They suffer so much from hot, burning, aching, sweating feet that walking is absolute misery.

A "Foot Elm" powder in each shoe will transform a pair of bothersome burning feet into cool, comfortable feet, and make walking a pleasure. Try it, and see if it won't.

Would Give Him a Lesson.

A reporter who is the father of a year old youngster met his pastor on Sunday afternoon.

"Why weren't you at church this morning?" was the first question of the spiritual adviser.

"I couldn't come," was the answer. "I had to stop at home and mind the baby. Our nurse is ill."

"That's no excuse," said the pastor. "It isn't! Well, next Sunday I'll bring him to church with me and see how you like it."

A Union That is Strength

Malt Breakfast Food

is a Delicious Combination of Pure Malt and the choicest Wheat.

A Breakfast Relish For the Strong and Weak.

Thousands of people dare not use oatmeal in any form, as they find it has a tendency to irritate the stomach, excite heat and redness of the skin and produce eruptions. Then again, cracked wheat and other cereals contain too much insoluble starch which retards digestion. Malt Breakfast Food is the king of foods for weak and strong stomachs. It does not contain a particle of insoluble starch, it is partially predigested, therefore does not tax the powers of digestion. Malt Breakfast Food contains a much greater amount of body and brain nutriment than other foods. It is the most delicious of all foods. It pleases every palate and becomes a fast favorite in homes where it is tried. Ask your grocer for it; take no other.

The Canadian Railway Conductor's Association at Montreal passed a resolution refusing to work for any organization which used coal mined by non-union men.

Advice to Mothers

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerve-Liniment. Don't be afraid to use Nerve-Liniment freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water into which 30 drops of Nerve-Liniment has previously been stirred. This is a sure, pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

That action is best that procures the greatest happiness for the greatest numbers.

HIS POSITION STATED.

To the Editor of The Planet.

Apparently Mr. Houston misunderstood my objection to the police court procedure.

Personally I raised no objection to Mr. Smith or Mr. Houston, but I do object to any system which requires or even permits the magistrate trying the case to examine witnesses and occupy the position of prosecutor. Any case of sufficient importance to require public prosecution with a penalty of $50 fine or three months imprisonment is sufficiently important for most people to require that the imposer of the penalty should not be biased or prejudiced by being forced to take the position of examining witnesses and taking questions with a view to securing a conviction.

Notwithstanding Mr. Houston's opinion, I still insist that such a system is unfit for our civilization. In fact, the present system of administration of criminal justice needs a thorough cleansing as in many ways it is a disgrace to any enlightened country.

them they have to ship all their stuff away. Here, however, they would have one or two customers right in the city. They expected to sell some stock in the company in Chatham and there are people here willing to invest. Mr. Landon didn't see why the factory shouldn't be here this fall.

Ald. McKee moved, seconded by Ald. Fleming, that the remission of taxes and free water for ten years be granted.

Ald. Fleming said he had known Byram and Murphy for years and he had spoken to them about coming here. They said they had been thinking about it, as they could secure better freight rates.

EXEMPTION FROM TAXES.

Mahler Bros. reported that they had purchased the Tighe plant, and asked that the agreement with the city be transferred to them. Ald. Cowan said that he had looked up this agreement. It was exemption from taxes for five years provided not less than $5,000 was paid out for fruit and labor. The same terms were granted to Mahler Bros. on motion.

TREES TO BE CUT.

Ald. Mounter said that there had been many complaints about William Street being too much shaded between Stanley Avenue and Colborne Street. The heavy growth of Maple trees shut out the sunlight from the road and made it bad.

Last week the Parks and Cemetery committee and the Board of Works met and decided that it was necessary to have every other tree removed. The highest tender was $17 and the lowest was that of Jas. S. Waugh, who was willing to remove the trees for the wood. On motion this tender was accepted.

Mayor Sulman asked if the two committees had considered the advisability of trimming the trees. Ald. McKee said that the taking out of every other tree would give a chance to the other trees to develop. The Mayor said he doubted it, and didn't think that as good results would be obtained as would be accomplished by trimming every other tree. On motion it was decided to advertise for tenders for the Hilliard street drain.

A by-law was passed appointing R. J. Brown night watchman at Gray's factory, a constable.

A circular was received from the Union of Canadian Municipalities, of which Chatham is a member, calling attention to the council meeting in Montreal. The subjects to be discussed are the following—

Provincial Rights in municipal legislation, municipal home rule, proposal for a financial union to facilitate loans at a lower rate, the new telephone, public ownership, compulsory arbitration, power to expropriate property outside city limits, level railway crossings, sinking fund investment.

On motion of Ald. Taylor, seconded by Ald. O'Brien, the Mayor was commissioned to represent the city at the meeting.

The following accounts were passed: Waterworks department, $251.61; Planter, $45.84; Birmer, $10.65; Francis Rogers, $18; George Thomas, $26.50; Albert Trato, $15; Quinn & Patterson, $5.55; Charles Baxter, $12; Bright & Fielder, $143.47; Bright & Fielder, $4.50; Bright & Fielder, $108.78; Bright & Fielder, $120.64; Bright & Fielder, $494; Bell Telephone Co., $11.51; G. ## Men's

Working Clothes

Every working garment sold in the store is our own make. When you buy a smock here please remember that T. & D. are responsible for every thread of it, and give them credit for all the looks and wear and comfort that you find stitched in.

When we first set out to make these goods we started from the standpoint of the man who wears them—which is not the usual way with manufacturers. We planned each garment about as a man's wife would, supposing her to be an expert. Made them ample, comfortable, extra strong where extra strength is needed—did everything to postpone the day of the first patch. Results were so satisfactory that we have kept right on making them that way.

We are content with the maker's profit on these garments. You pay at our counters about what we should have to pay at wholesale if we bought them from another maker.
