A GREAT INDUSTRY.

If there is one native industry more than another which has made gigantic progress in development during the last few years, the manufacturing of cigars may surely be pointed to as a typical instance. From a comparatively small matter it has grown to be one of the most important, engaging thousands of skilled workers and producing millions annually of the fragrant article. Not very many years (and it is so yet to a small extent) ago a thing but an imported cigar would be smoked,—to talk about "domestic" among the better-to-do people meant being laughed at.

Now, however, the tables are turned, thanks to such a firm as that of Messrs. DAVIS & SONS of Montreal, who, by going direct into the markets, order the best tobacco grown, by judiciously buying only the finest stocks, by the introduction of the latest improvements in manufacture, by unwearied patience, and a nergy and determination which never faltered, and which casts a ray of lustre on their indomitable enterprise, they have abundantly succeeded in placing their various high class brands on a far higher plane of merit than the imported article, have so thoroughly established their manufacture among the growing connoisseurs, as well as among the general public, that they are esteemed over all competitors, foreign or domestic, and highly are they appreciated that though their factory is by far the largest in Canada (see the cut on opposite page), the demand is so incessant that it is almost hopeless to compete with it. To do this more effectually, further important additions are to be shortly made, and more hands will be taken on with the hope of "catching up."

As a further testimony to the genuine merits of Messrs. Davis & Sons' Cigars, they point with pride to the score of gold and silver medals awarded, the highest prizes being given them wherever they have competed, including even the great Centennial gold medal in competition against the world. Whilst in recognition, provincial and local mementoes of success over Canadian manufacturers, they have enough to decorate an emperor.

Such a record deserves more than a passing exordium of commendation, and it is therefore with peculiar pleasure that in this year's issue of the Gazette Almanac we are enabled to draw attention to the proud achievements of a Canadian house whose productions are known and valued from one end of Confederation to the other, and at the same time affords such a brilliant success among our industries.

POLITICAL HISTORY OF 1889.

Parliament opened for the session of 1889 on the 31st of January, the Liberal opposition coming to its duties with more heart than usual, from the fact that since the year opened they had by successes in the bye-elections won two seats (Haldimand and Joliette) from the Government party. Within a fortnight, on February 13, the first division was had, and resulted in a Government majority of 30. Mr. Mulock moved, on February 11, that it was expedient to remove the duty on artificial fertilizers and place them on the free list. He claimed that this was necessary to the prosperity of the agriculture of the country, which was suffering generally from the dearthness of these fertilizers caused by the protective duty. This brought up, in a general way, the wisdom of the whole protective policy which, it became evident during the session, it was the intention of the Opposition to attack piecemeal. The unfairness of this was pointed out by the Government speakers, who held that the system of duties adopted with the intention of promoting the industries of the country, and in the benefits of which the farmers share, should not be judged of as it might bear hardly in one direction or on one section—these disadvantages being more than made up for by benefits secured by the operation in other directions of other parts of the one policy—but should be regarded as a whole as it affected the whole industry of the country in all its parts. Hon. Mr. Haggart pointed out that Canada contained large deposits of the materials from which artificial fertilizers were made, phosphates and sulphuric acid bases, and that as a result of the tariff there had been established in the Eastern Townships of Quebec, manufactories of sulphuric acid, thus rendering it possible to make the best fertilizers in the world in this country. It was also shown that a prominent firm had it in contemplation at an early day to undertake the work, they having already obtained control of valuable copper and phosphate lands with that object in view. The vote was 101 to 71.

The next party division in the House of Commons was of a similar nature. Dr. Landerkin introduced a resolution declaring it right that farmers and stock raisers (as was the case with distillers) who import corn to feed cattle or other stock for export should receive a rebate on the duty they paid on the stock being sent out of the country. The debate drew out a number of remarks favourable to the free admission of corn and corn meal, chiefly among Maritime Province members. For the Government it was pointed out that it was an impossibility to judge the amount of imported corn entering into the composition of a fat bullock presented at the Customs House for export. Hon. Mr. Bowell, however, pledged his word that when an application was made to his department for a rebate of duty "on corn or any other imported grain which is fed to cattle to be subsequently exported," he would deal with the matter as he had with others of a like character. No such occasion has arisen. The House, moved by the same motives, decided this on the same lines as on the fertilizers' resolution, 111 to 71.

Sir Richard Cartwright came to the fore in the next contest, which was provoked by his resolution declaring "That it has become a matter of extreme importance to the well-being of the people of this Dominion that the Government and Parliament of Canada should acquire the power of negotiating commercial treaties with foreign states." The debate was short and not very interesting, the mover admitting of his proposal that it was a great step and that "grave consequences are involved or may be involved in it." Sir Richard made it evident that his object was to make easy the way for commercial union or unrestricted reciprocity with the United States. He was replied to by Hon. Mr. Foster, who claimed that Canada was and could continue prosperous without surrendering her commercial autonomy to the keeping of her big neighbour. He further pointed out that Canada's present position enabled her to avail herself of Great Britain's assistance, which was an important advantage, in negotiating with foreign countries, and that the right had been accorded us of accepting for ourselves or rejecting the provisions of any trade treaty Great Britain might negotiate in her own behalf and that of her colonies. There voted for Sir Richard Cartwright's resolution 66 members and against it 94.

The trade question was again the subject of a long discussion, begun on February 26, on a motion by Mr. Laurier, in favor of the beginning of negotiations for the satisfactory adjustment of the unfortunate and regrettable differences existing between Canada and the United States, and unrestricted freedom in the trade relations of the two countries, and that as a preliminary to such negotiations being favorably entered on, and to promote good feeling, the modus vivendi in connection with the Washington Fishery Treaty (which the Senate of the United States rejected) should be continued in operation during the ensuing fishing season. Little that was new was said in this debate; little that is new can be said for or against unrestricted reciprocity in Canada. Mr. Laurier and his friends urged the importance to this country of good political and commercial relations with the United States. Sir John Macdonald and the conservatives pointed to this country's repeated offers to negotiate a fair reciprocity treaty with our neighbours, which had always failed of acceptance, and claimed that the United States, after rejecting the Fishery Treaty, had no right to expect a continuance of the modus vivendi, which was only drawn up for the purpose of avoiding disputes while the treaty itself was under consideration. The vote was 108 to 65 against Mr. Laurier's proposal. The Government, later, however, decided to extend the operation of the modus vivendi till the end of the year.

The Budget speech was delivered on the 5th March. Hon. Mr. Foster stated the revenue of the past year (1887-88) at $35,908,463. The expenditure amounted to $36,718,484, leaving a deficit of $810,000. Sir Charles Tupper, in the Budget speech of 1888, had anticipated a deficit of a round million, but better results were obtained mainly through a curtailment of expenditure. The revenue for the year 1888-89, Mr. Foster calculated, would reach $38,500,000, and the expenditure $36,600,000, leaving a surplus of $1,900,000. This has been fully borne out, the surplus for the twelve months ending with June being now put at $1,927,514. For the current year (1889-90) the receipts were estimated at $39,175,000, and the outgo at $36,500,000, which would leave a surplus of about $2,675,000, liable to be reduced, however, by unforeseen and supplementary expenditure. All this is without there being any increase in the rate of taxation. Mr. Foster also estimated that up to the end of June, 1892, there would be no occasion for any increase of the debt, though there would during this time be a continuous and heavy expenditure on canal enlargement, assistance to railways and public works. The showing of the finances in the Budget speech was considered a very satisfactory one.

In amendment to Mr. Foster's Budget motion, Sir Richard Cartwright moved that it was expedient to take steps to ascertain on what terms and conditions arrangements can be effected with the United States for the purpose of securing full and unrestricted reciprocity of trade therewith. This gave occasion for a debate which lasted to the 19th of March, and brought out nothing very novel or very important bearing upon the issue, whether Canada would be most prosperous continuing as she is or by adopting such a measure of free trade as is implied by abolishing the customs duties on all goods imported from the United States, a country with a tariff higher than that enforced in the Dominion. The arguments were those that have been used time and again, and the result as usual, a vote of 121 to 77, for a majority of 44 for the Government. A motion by Mr. Holton, censuring the customs administration, and another by Sir Richard Cartwright, condemning the last loan negotiated in London, were voted down by about the same majorities, and the opposition rested from its labors till another session is called.

The event of the session which attracted the most intense popular attention was the debate on the Quebec Jesuits' Estates Settlement Act. On the 26th of March, Mr. O'Brien, the Conservative member for Muskoka, moved:—

"That an address be presented to the Governor-General setting forth that this House regards the power of disallowing the acts of the Legislative Assemblies of the provinces vested in His Excellency-in-Council as a prerogative essential to the national existence of the Dominion;

"That this great power, while it should never be wantonly exercised, should be fearlessly used for the protection of the rights of a minority, for the preservation of the fundamental principles of the constitution and for safeguarding the general interests of the people;

"That in the opinion of this House, the passage by the Legislature of the province of Quebec, of the act entitled 'An act respecting the settlement of the Jesuits' estates' is beyond the power of that Legislature, firstly, because it endows from public funds a religious organization, thereby violating the undoubted constitutional principle of the complete separation of church and state and of the absolute equality of all denominations before the law; secondly, because it recognizes the usurpation of a right by a foreign authority; namely, His Holiness the Pope of Rome, to claim that his consent was necessary to empower the provincial Legislature to dispose of a portion of the public domain, and also because the act is made to depend on the will and the appropriation of the grant thereby made is subject to the control of the same authority; and thirdly, because the endowment of the Society of Jesus, an alien, secret and politico-religious body, the expulsion of which from every Christian community wherein it has had a footing has been rendered necessary by its intolerant and mischievous intermeddling with the functions of civil government, is fraught with danger to the civil and religious liberties of the people of Canada;

"Therefore, this House prays that His Excellency will be graciously pleased to disallow the act."

During the debate, the history and teaching of the Jesuits was gone into at length and fiercely condemned, the order being described as one dangerous to every state in which it takes up a residence, having been repeatedly expelled from Roman Catholic countries, and even suppressed by the Pope as a dangerous and immoral organization, inimical alike to social, civil and religious peace. It was contended that the Legislature of Quebec had no right to recognize what was admittedly only a moral and not a legal claim on behalf of the order or the church of which it is a section; that the order was illegal in Great Britain, where it exists only on sufferance, and that it could not legally be incorporated in Canada; that the indemnity voted by the Quebec act was practically an endowment of the Roman Catholic Church, and contrary to the policy and well-being of the Dominion; and, finally, that the clause which made the law effective only on the Pope signifying his acceptance thereof was derogatory to the Queen and a setting up of a foreign potentate as superior in authority to her in her own realm. It was also alleged that the destruction of the Jesuits' estates superior education trust, created by the Imperial Government when the property was handed over to the Canadian authorities, was an infringement on the educational rights of the Protestant minority of Quebec, which it was the duty of the Dominion Government, as the constitutional guardian of that minority, to prevent. Mr. Dalton McCarthy made the most powerful speech in support of the anti-Jesuit view, and was at once elevated to the position of oratorical champion of the ultra-Protestant cause. He was replied to by Sir John Thompson, the Minister of Justice, on whose advice the Government had decided that the bill was not one with which it could interfere. He admitted that the preamble of the Jesuits' Estates Act was badly drawn up, and that it seemed to recognize in the Pope an authority he did not possess. But, he held, this was seeming more than real, and in the enacting causes the Pope was only recognized as an arbitrator or representative of the whole Roman Catholic Church, having power to bind the Jesuits and all other divisions of that church to acceptance of the terms proposed in the act. He also held that within the constitutional limits, the provincial legislatures have the power to pass any act that pleases them, and that in this case the exercise of this power had been made in a manner in which it was not wise for the Dominion Government to interfere. Mr. Colby, representing a Quebec Protestant constituency, pointed out that when the Jesuits' Incorporation and Jesuits' Estates Acts were being discussed in the Quebec Legislature there was no agitation against them among the Protestants, and claimed that the majority of the Protestants of Quebec, though they did not approve of the measure, were prepared to quiesce in it rather than provoke a religious conflict that would be greatly to their disadvantage. The House of Commons voted on Mr. O'Brien's resolution on 28th of March—137 in favour and 188 against. The thirteen were Messrs. Barron, of North Victoria; Bell, of Addington; Charlton, of Norfolk; Cockburn and Denison of Toronto; Macdonald, of Huron; McCarthy, of Simcoe; McNeill, of Bruce; O'Brien, of Muskoka; Scriver, of Antigonish; Sutherland, of Oxford; Tyrwhitt, of Simcoe; and Wallace, of York.

The decision of the House of Commons, however, did not quench the feeling in the country, especially in Ontario. Large meetings were held in Toronto and Montreal, and petitions prepared for presentation to the Governor-General asking him, within the year within which the Quebec act might be disallowed as yet unexpired, to exercise his authority and annul it. At Toronto, on the 11th of June, one of the greatest demonstrations ever seen in the province was held, when many hundred delegates were in attendance. The Quebec act was vigorously denounced, the danger it created in the Dominion pointed out, and the Government was called upon to reconsider its action and to disallow the measure. The Equal Rights Association was constituted, its aims being to prevent legislation giving one religious sect privileges not enjoyed by all, and to secure the maintenance of the principles of British Government and religious equality throughout the federation. Branches of the association were formed throughout the province, and in Montreal and other places in Quebec. Numerous meetings were also held and petitions signed for presentation to the Governor-General, setting forth the grievances felt by the signatories. These petitions were presented to Lord Stanley, at Quebec, on the 2nd of August, six days before the expiry of the legal time within which disallowance could be announced. His Excellency received the delegation in the Citadel, accepted their petition, and pointed out to them in his speech that he must act on the advice of his constitutional advisers, which was contrary to the prayer of the petition. Lord Stanley also intimated that his personal views were in agreement with those of his ministers. The delegation withdrew somewhat crestfallen, though it was evident to all constitutional students that, in face of the former resolve of the Government and of the vote of Parliament, but one reply could be expected. On the 2nd September, the views of the Dominion Government were endorsed by Sir Richard Webster and Sir Edward Clark, Attorney-General and Solicitor-General of the Imperial Government, who gave it as their opinion that the Jesuits' Estates Act was within the competency of the Quebec Legislature, and contained nothing calling for a reference to the Privy Council. This opinion, in keeping with the votes of the best lawyers and parliamentarians in Canada—Sir John Macdonald, Mr. Blake, Sir John Thompson, Mr. Alex. Mackenzie, Sir Richard Cartwright, etc., was naturally held to remove the legal doubts that had surrounded the measure, and the question now to be decided by the country is: Did the Dominion Government, in declining to disallow the Quebec Jesuits' Estates Settlement Act, as a matter of policy, do what was best in the interests of the whole Dominion?

The Papal decision as to the distribution of the $400,000 was received early in the year, and on the 5th of November, at the Provincial Government Buildings in Montreal, with considerable official ceremony, Hon. Mr. Mercier, as premier of the province, handed to Rev. Father Turgeon, S.J., as the Pope's representative, cheques for the following sums:—One hundred and sixty thousand dollars for the Jesuits; One hundred thousand dollars for the Laval University, Quebec; Forty thousand dollars for Laval University, Montreal; Twenty thousand dollars for the Apostolic Prefecture of the Gulf of St. Lawrence; Ten thousand dollars for the Quebec Archdiocese; Ten thousand dollars for the Montreal Archdiocese; Ten thousand dollars for the Chicoutimi Diocese; Ten thousand dollars for the Diocese of Rimouski; Ten thousand dollars for the Diocese of Nicolet; Ten thousand dollars for the Diocese of Three Rivers; Ten thousand dollars for the Diocese of St. Hyacinthe; Ten thousand dollars for the Diocese of Sherbrooke; Five thousand two hundred and sixty dollars and fifteen cents—the interest due to the Jesuit Fathers. At the same time Mr. Mercier announced that the $60,000 granted to Protestant superior educational institutions as compensation for the $400,000 grant to the Roman Catholics, would be paid over, with such addition as was necessary to bring it up to a sum based on the relative proportion of Protestants and Roman Catholics, with interest, so soon as the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction was prepared to receive it, which readiness was signified the following day by formal resolutions.

Prohibition was brought up by Mr. Jamieson, on a direct resolution that it was expedient to prohibit the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors, except for sacramental, medicinal, scientific and mechanical purposes. Mr. Wood (Brockville) moved in amendment, the addition of the clause "when the public sentiment of the country is ripe for the reception and enforcement of such a measure of prohibition." Mr. Wood's amendment was carried on a vote of 99 to 59, on February 21st.

The close of the session was marked by an unusual event. The Senate threw out the bill providing for the construction of the Harvey-Salisbury short line railway, a line to connect the Canadian Pacific Maine extension with the Intercolonial, and which was regarded by the people of Nova Scotia, and Halifax especially, as necessary to enable them to benefit in the fullest extent from the Canadian Pacific connection.

An event which called forth many expressions of sorrow was the death, on the 1st of April, of Hca. John Henry Pope, Minister of Railways and Canals, the somewhat homely, but clear-headed, enterprising and patriotic representative of the Eastern Townships of Quebec, a man whose own ability and force of will had raised him from the humblest of beginnings to a chief post in the government of his country.

During the year a series of rebuffs were sustained by the Scott Act, which, on April 4, was repealed by the popular vote in the cities of St. Thomas and Guelph, and the counties of Wellington, Brant, Kent, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, Victoria, Northumberland and Durham, Lanark, Peterboro, Carleton, Ontario, and Lincoln in Ontario, and in Colchester, N.S. The same result was had in Lambton, Oxford and Middlesex, on May 8, and in Elgin on July 3. This was the last county in Ontario in which the Act was in force. The one success for the measure was obtained in Drummond county, Quebec, which, on June 27th, defeated the repeal petition.

The year, in the province of Quebec, as far as legislation was concerned, was a dull one. The Legislature was called together, on January 9. Though the Government's majority was larger than during the previous session, it was not so well under control, and several times, instead of fourteen, the Ministry found itself with a majority of only six or eight. The session was marked by a number of unpleasant incidents. One of these was a violent attack, on the 22nd January, by Mr. Gagnon, the provincial secretary, upon Hon. Mr. Lynch and the English people of the province, in connection with the administration of the crown lands. For this, however, Mr. Gagnon later apologised. Another was the refusal of the Legislature, on motion of the Government, to give the details of the $10,000 expenditure on the Interprovincial conference. One more was in connection with the Lockwood claim of $10,000 over certain mining rights interfered with by the Government, which had been rejected repeatedly during the past ten years, and which, the evidence indicated (the witnesses either refusing or not being permitted to answer direct questions) was only paid by instruction of the Government after an arrangement had been come to with some of the Premier's prominent supporters outside the Legislature, by which from $5000 to $7000 was to be paid to unmentioned parties, preliminary to the claim being admitted. The Budget speech of Hon. Mr. Shehyn was not a satisfactory one. Though the rate of taxation has been raised $300,000 a year, he had to admit that the revenue was still short of the province's requirements as understood by the Government. He announced a deficit of $148,784 on the 31st of December, which was liable to be increased by the end of the fiscal year. For 1889-90, he thought there might be a difference in favor of the revenue as compared with the expenditure of $50,000. The public accounts showed that the last $3,500,000 loan was gone, and that the treasury depended on trust funds deposited as security for provincial railway bondholders for meeting the drafts upon it.

Among the acts passed during the session was one, at the instance of the Dominion Minister of Justice, abrogating the compulsory conversion clause in the debt consolidation bill of the previous session; one to disfranchise federal and provincial office-holders in elections to the Legislature, and one to enable the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to charter railway companies on the advice of the Attorney-General. The measures dropped included a promised bill to regulate exemptions from taxation, a measure to improve the care of lunatics in the asylums aided by the province, and a consolidated mining bill introduced by Hon. Mr. Duhamel, which was so full of mistakes that its withdrawal was seen to be necessary the moment it was discussed. The ministry's own friends were pronounced in their opposition to many of its measures, and frequently spoke and voted against them. The session closed with a general feeling that the Government had lost ground both in the House of Assembly and in the province, and had decidedly advanced the moment of its dissolution.

In Ontario there was little to attract attention in the political field, - outside the Jesuit agitation, which, taking on an anti-

French, anti-Catholic phase, became an issue in provincial affairs in the shape of a demand for the abolition of the French public schools which exist in several parts of the province, and especially in the counties of Prescott and Russell. Mr. Mowat's Government so far recognized the force of this as to appoint a commission to visit and inspect the schools. The result was the publication of a report, which, while not so serious as was expected, indicated that a number of schools, supported by taxation, either did not teach the language of the province at all, or only in a very indifferent way. Recommendations were made, which have already been partially acted upon, calculated to bring about an improvement and secure that all pupils passing through the public schools will be able to speak and write the language of the province in which they live.

Manitoba also felt the effect of the anti-Jesuit agitation, and there the result promises to be most sweeping. When the province was established in 1871, the population was about equally divided between English and French, Catholic and Protestant. The two languages were put on an equal footing by the constitutional act, which also provided for separate schools. The increase in the population has been so largely English-speaking and Protestant, that from being 50 per cent., the French-speaking and Catholic element has declined to about 11 per cent. In the present Legislature there are only six French-speaking members out of 38. It is claimed that the use of French in the Legislature and the courts has ceased to be a necessity, and should therefore cease to be obligatory. Hon. Mr. Martin, the Attorney-General, and the most prominent man in the Cabinet, in a speech at Portage-la-Prairie, early in August, declared in favor of the abolition of the privileges the French language has hitherto enjoyed in Manitoba, and that separate schools should be done away with. Soon after, Hon. Mr. Prendergast, Provincial Secretary, the French-speaking member of the Cabinet, resigned. He was succeeded by Mr. David McLean, M.P.P. for Dennis, who was re-elected by acclamation. On September 7th, the first step in the ministerial programme was taken and the Official Gazette made its appearance printed in English only. Indications are that the general sentiment of the province favors the Government in its presumed intentions both as regards the French language and the schools. The death, on July 7th, of Hon. John Norquay, who had been Premier from 1878 to 1887, was an event that called forth almost universal expressions of regret from friend and foe. Col. McMillan was appointed Provincial Treasurer, and elected for Central Winnipeg, on the 18th May, by acclamation.

In the other provinces, little of special interest has occurred. In New Brunswick, the Premier, Hon. Mr. Blair, signified the intention of the Government, as a measure of economy, to abolish Government House, the residence of the Lieutenant-Governor, which the province has hertofore maintained. In May, Hon. Wm. Pugsley was called to the Government as Solicitor-General. In Prince Edward Island, Lieutenant-Governor Macdonald's term expired, and Senator Carvell was called on to fill the vacant post. In British Columbia, the Premier, Hon. E. B. Davie, died, and was succeeded by Hon. John Robson.

THE REVISED, TRUTHFUL EDITION.

Oh, the snow! The miserable snow!
Which the wild winds of winter will pretty soon blow
Over the housetops and over the streets
Till a man feels like kicking each person he meets.

Blowing,

Drifting.

Sweeping around.

Till the eye would be charmed with a sight of the ground.
And we'll make up our minds that next winter we'll go
To a land where they never see beautiful snow.

Nothing so pleases the beautiful snow
As to drift in a place where it knows you must go,
It hunts all around with a far reaching sweep
Till it banks up your doorway a dozen feet deep.

Blankety,

Blankety,

Blank you will stay,

As you work with a will and you clean it away,
And you feel quite relieved till the next morning, when
You find that your doorway is loaded again.

Once a young poet praised beautiful snow,
But the people rose up and they told him to go,
So he wandered away on a bleak, drifted track,
And was terribly snow-bound and never got back,

Sighing,

Dying,

Crying alone,

He died by a miserable plot of his own,
As any one should who will venture to blow
Of the charms and the graces of beautiful snow.
