DRIFTING.

Drifting, slowly drifting, to the great wide stretch of the sea;

Drifting, slowly drifting, on into God's eternity.

With broken rudder, sailless mast, and oars that lily slide.

From home and shore I drift upon the outward going tide:

Drifting, slowly drifting, though the vessels in the bay.

From those I love upon the shore, I drift and drift away.

Drifting, slowly drifting, to the great wide stretch of the sea;

The breezes fresh from Paradise blow softly over me.

My heart once filled with strange unrest, is grown so calm and still,

I look beyond the rolling sea to God's immortal Hill.

Drifting, slowly drifting, on with heart and lips that pray

For those I love upon the shore I drift and drift away.

Drifting, slowly drifting, where the first white streak of day

Grows white across the darkness spread over the landlocked bay;

I seem to see the gate unrolled, the crystal, eastern gate,

And drift from those I love on shore to those I love who wait.

Drifting, slowly drifting, with my earthly struggles done,

Alone, unloved, unloved, I drift to God's unsetting sun.

Drifting, slowly drifting, to the great wide stretch of the sea,

From earth's unrest I drift away into eternity.

No bitter sound of fray can reach across my vessel's side,

And so I drift in restful peace upon the outward tide.

Drifting, slowly drifting, through the boats that fill the bay

With love's warm kisses on my lips, I drift and drift away.

The Boys at Dr Murray's.

"An uncle—a real, genuine uncle! where he came from, or who he is, I don't know; but he's there—in Will's room!"

The boys hardly credited him; but someone, who had the advantage of having arrived a few hours earlier than the rest, came to the rescue with the desired information. Then arose a great hubbub of questions and replies, of remarks and conjectures, till Harris, for the sake of peace, drove them off to the play-room.

"Where's Grant?" asked Hawley North, when they had arrived there.

"I don't know!" said Ned Hall.

"I started to find him, but the news of Will's good fortune put everything out of my head! Who's seen Grant Westery?" he asked, raising his voice.

"I have," said Dick Welles, coming from the opposite side of the room. "I saw him the first thing after I arrived. Just before you came rushing down stairs like a madman. Harris brought him a letter, and he went out—to read it, I suppose.

"Then I know where he is," thought Ned, and making his way back to the hall, he went up stairs. Without waiting for the ceremony of rapping, he threw open the door, exclaiming in his impulsive way—

"My dear fellow! I'm delighted—" but stopped at the sight of Grant's face.

On the floor lay an open letter, and at the sight of his friend, Grant covered his face with his hands.

"Why, Westery!" said Ned, picking up the letter—"have you got bad news?—is any one dead? or what?"

His friend was silent.

"What has happened?" said Ned, in alarm; "you can't tell me?" and he opened the letter and hurriedly read—

HAVANA, April 28, 18—

MY DEAR BOY: I don't know how to break this bad news to you, but I feel that you may as well know all first as last. The sugar-mills were all burned to the ground a week ago, and I am a ruined man so far as property is concerned. There was barely insurance enough to enable me to settle my affairs creditably.

And now, at fifty, I'm without a penny in the world. But, my poor boy, there was barely insurance enough to enable me to settle my affairs creditably.

And now, at fifty, I'm without a penny in the world. But, my poor boy, there was barely insurance enough to enable me to settle my affairs creditably.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., JUNE 17, 1887

Our Queen.

Away over in England long about fifty years ago there was a great excitement one day about the accession of a new sovereign to the throne.

The young Princess Victoria, daughter of Edward Duke of Kent and niece of the late king, was the nearest connection to the throne, and to her the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chamberlain, and four other gentlemen, went post-haste to deliver their important message.

They wanted an audience with the Princess, they said, "on business of importance." The attendant objected to this, but she was Queen now and from henceforth her time must not be her own.

Thus commenced the reign of Victoria, our noble Queen, and we now celebrate the fiftieth year of that reign—the Jubilee year. No wonder we feel proud of our Queen, and feel like making some demonstration of our love and esteem to one who has proved herself so deserving of them.

During her reign progress has been predominant in everything; it has been the characteristic of the age. It would be impossible for us even to indicate here the progress which has been made during this period in every department of science, commerce, art, manufacture, and agriculture.

The reign of Victoria has truly been a glorious one, and we should consider ourselves lucky indeed living under her sovereignty. Long may she be spared to reign over us, and at last when the time has come for her to lay aside her earthly crown to receive in the regions above a heavenly one, the greatest hope that she may be succeeded by an good and noble sovereign as she has been.

Horton Landing Pier.

A few weeks previous to the last Dominion general election, public meetings were held by the Lower Horton people for the purpose of devising ways and means of procuring better wharf facilities at Horton Landing than the tumbledown affair which has done duty for many years that now exists.

with other items, $3,000 is in the estimate for Lower Horton. As it was generally supposed at the time that $1,500 was sufficient to carry out this undertaking and make a satisfactory job of the same, we presume that $3,000 mentioned in the estimate is intended for the projected pier or breakwater between Boat Island and Grand Pre dike, in addition to that of the Horton Landing pier.

Our Ottawa Letter.

OTTAWA, June 10.—A visit to the experimental farm under the supervision of Professor Saunders has now become one of the numerous attractions in and around the capital.

Hon. J. S. D. Thompson, Minister of Justice, has shown himself a practical Minister. He has in person the Supreme Court recently to argue the Queen vs. Farwell, involving the ownership of the lands in the railway belt in British Columbia.

The leading topic of conversation in matters political, the forthcoming Cabinet changes that have to be made shortly. It is reported that Hon. John A. Macdonald, Minister of Inland Revenue, will be shortly succeeded by J. J. Curran, M. P. for Montreal.

Several proposals and notices of motion have been made in connection with temperance legislation. Some want the Scotch Act repealed; others want the same act amended so as to allow also, beer, porter, and wines to be sold in counties which have adopted the Act; others want prohibition out and out; but the most sensible proposal is that of Mr. Guilford, M. P., who favors an amendment to the B. N. A. Act, so as to give the provinces the right of passing prohibitory laws. He contends it is an anomaly that, while license legislation, even to the verge of prohibition, is within the scope of Provincial Legislation, only the House of Commons, and not the Dominion Parliament, is empowered to legislate for the Dominion as a whole, for while adapted to the needs of the Dominion, it is a great deal easier to bring public opinion to bear on such a subject in one section than to have a general law, applicable to the Dominion as a whole, for which adapted to the needs of the Dominion, it is a great deal easier to bring public opinion to bear on such a subject in one section than to have a general law, applicable to the Dominion as a whole.

The Senate and Commons have been very loyal, since I last wrote, on Mr. John A. Macdonald moving the concurrence of the House to the address to Her Majesty the Queen, which had previously passed the Senate, much enthusiasm and devotion to her Majesty was expressed, by Government and Opposition members alike. When hearing the speeches made on this occasion, I was led to think that some of this enthusiasm would have come in very handy from some of the members at least a few weeks ago when Mr. Curran's and Imperial resolutions were passed; but you know the members of the House of Commons can flatter every one from the Queen down to her meanest subject provided they are only given time to do so. The address was seconded by Hon. Mr. Laurier in a brilliant speech, and passed by the House, which arose and sang "God Save the Queen."

Sir Charles Tupper has been in an amiable mood ever since the commencement of the session, but when the House went into committee of supply and was asked to vote $250,000 for immigration, Sir Richard Cartwright then over all his objections to this and the whole policy of the Conservatives, speaking in a doleful strain about Canada's future, which was ably seconded by several other Liberals of the Cartwright stamp. This was too much for Sir Charles, and his amiability for once was laced, and consequently he went for Cartwright and all others of the same stripe, and informed the House that he could not permit such statements so damaging to the country to pass without a reply. He vigorously attacked the systematic depreciation which the Opposition indulged in, and contended (and rightly so) that it prevented immigration and was highly injurious to the country. Why, is it that all over the Dominion the Grits cry down their country? You hear even from your "humble follower" when he is galavanting through the county on election tours that Canada is or has gone to the dogs; but you hear more from the "humble follower" down your way than we do up here in Ottawa. Dr. Borden has little to say, but he is here all the same, and always ready to vote when a division takes place, ruled as it were by Blake and his advisory board, which is run on the Syndicate principle this session for the first time.

The blue book literature of the present session has been noted for its bulkiness. Another volume has been added to the Fisheries literature in the shape of a blue book containing a concise history of the whole fisheries question from its inception in 1783 down to the present time. It is an important publication and one much sought after, and reviews the principal features of the treaties of Paris, Ghent, and 1818, the Reciprocity Treaty and the Washington Treaty. It shows how the period of quietness and good will which prevailed during the existence of the latter treaty was deliberately put an end to by the United States government, leaving no other option to the Canadian Government but to adopt stringent measures for the protection of its rights. The history of the fisheries of Canada consisted of two iron steamers and six schooners, having a tonnage of 205 tons. This force was employed until the close of the season cruising about the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the Magdalen Island, Bay de Chaleur, and about the coasts of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island. The present season the force will be larger, and with its last year's experience will be enabled to look after the rights of our fishermen better than ever.

Hon. J. S. D. Thompson, Minister of Justice, has shown himself a practical Minister. He has in person the Supreme Court recently to argue the Queen vs. Farwell, involving the ownership of the lands in the railway belt in British Columbia. Mr. Thompson's attendance personally is an unusual occurrence, and he is said to have been the first minister holding the office who has ever argued a case in the court. That is the kind of Minister to have and Nova Scotia must feel proud of her son.

The leading topic of conversation in matters political, the forthcoming Cabinet changes that have to be made shortly. It is reported that Hon. John A. Macdonald, Minister of Inland Revenue, will be shortly succeeded by J. J. Curran, M. P. for Montreal. This move would give Quebec five ministers in the Cabinet if Mr. Chapleau, who is now spoken of as the Governor of Quebec, stays in, viz., Langevin, Caron, Abbott, Curran, and Chapleau. If the latter gives up his post and goes to Quebec, the proposed vacancy in the Cabinet may be filled by Lindsay of Kent, N. B., and thus New Brunswick would be as well off as ever.

Your many readers remember that just previous to the last general election, surveys were down in King's County looking at and taking measurements of projected piers and breakwaters of the county. Nothing has come out of such surveys as yet, and of course what will be contained in the supplementary estimates are as yet unknown; but at any rate whether the county will be benefited by the surveyor's visit or not, Dr. Borden on Monday last asked for an order of the House for correspondence since the 1st of December last relating to the construction or repair of breakwaters of pier at Scott's Bay, Horton Landing, and Boat Island. Of course his request will be complied with. Sir John A. has been this session in the very best of humor, and would just as soon do a favor for your genial and clever representative as any other member.

Several proposals and notices of motion have been made in connection with temperance legislation. Some want the Scotch Act repealed; others want the same act amended so as to allow also, beer, porter, and wines to be sold in counties which have adopted the Act; others want prohibition out and out; but the most sensible proposal is that of Mr. Guilford, M. P., who favors an amendment to the B. N. A. Act, so as to give the provinces the right of passing prohibitory laws. The address was seconded by Hon. Mr. Laurier in a brilliant speech, and passed by the House, which arose and sang "God Save the Queen."

supported the main resolution was Mr. Freeman of Queen's. Your correspondent was disappointed in not having your representative, who has identified himself with the temperance movement in King's County, so I understand, not taking part in Mr. Jamieson's resolution; but there will be plenty of time yet for your representative to make his views publicly known in this all-important matter, and I know it must be the wish of the majority of his constituents for him to be out and to square on the side of temperance reform. Mr. Cargill moved an amendment to the amendment to repeal the Scotch Act, so that the temperance and anti-temperance movement is agitated; but right is bound to come out in the fight with flying colors sooner or later, and prohibition from the Atlantic to the Pacific in this Canada of ours will then be the order. May that time be soon at hand. Sir John A. Macdonald informed the House that this was a most important matter, and it must not be pushed on hurriedly, so the debate was adjourned until Monday next.

Peter Jones, Esq., manager of the W. & A. E., among others, was honored with an invitation to a dinner given by Sir Charles Tupper on Wednesday last. On the same evening, a dinner given by His Excellency the Governor General, your representative, Dr. Borden, also Mr. Baird, of Queens, N. B., with several Ontario and Quebec members were invited.

It is generally felt that the absence of Mr. Blake will have the effect of the session being somewhat shortened. He wishes his followers to elect another leader for this session at least, but the Liberals appear to be impressed with the idea that such a step would be an act of treason to their much-loved chief; but, nevertheless, it is a well understood fact that Mr. Laurier has taken the place of Mr. Blake and is leader of the Opposition into victory or defeat as the case may be, with the exception of it being the latter for some time to come.

Sir Charles Tupper will return to England after the House closes to complete negotiations with Spain which were in abeyance when he left, and also with reference to the Fishery negotiation now pending between the American and British Governments. It is not sure that he will resign his portfolio of Finance Minister or not.

The Government have resolved to allow all goods purchased in bona fide transactions before the 13th May past, to come into the Dominion of the old duty up till July 1st, prox. G. S. C.

White Bronze. YARMOUTH, MAINE, July 15, 1886. MR. THOS. MORRIS.—In answer to your enquiry about my White Bronze Monument, I would say that it stands on the sea shore ten feet above high water mark, it is twenty-five feet high, base four feet. It has been erected over ten years, and is as good now as when placed in position; it has not been effected in the least by either heat or cold; no moss or foreign substance gathers on it as do on marble; it is as clear and bright as when new, and (in my opinion) White Bronze is superior to either marble or granite for monumental purposes, and I have no hesitation in recommending it to others. Yours, Ac., JOHN P. CARWELL.

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JUNE 17, 1887

Local and Provincial.

LEADER.—The editor Harry and the Star arrived on Monday and are being looked after by Messrs J. P. Chipman & Co. for Boston.

Heavy Black Oats at O. W. TRENBOLM'S.

Big Fish.—Capt Jas. Eagles on Wednesday hooked the biggest cod fish which was ever brought into this place. It measured 4 ft. 10 in. in length, and was large in proportion, weighing 57 lbs.

New Engine.—Mr J. D. Martin has just put a new 35 horse-power engine into his factory at Gasperon. His business is getting to be quite an extensive one.

"Solihle Pacific Guard" is by far the best fertilizer in the market. Try it! R. PRAT, Agent. 36

W. & A. R.—The new time-table of W. & A. R. which went into effect on Monday last, will be found in another column. The changes are important and should be well noted.

Bishop & Porter's Groceries are all fresh, and are exchanged for all kinds of Farm Produce. Eggs wanted.

LITERARY.—An illustrated article on "Literary Life in Philadelphia," by Moses P. Handy, with sketches of leading celebrities, will be a feature of the American Magazine for July.

HYMENIAL.—In another column will be found the notice of the marriage of Mr P. P. Bishop and Miss Clara L. Eagles, which took place on Tuesday, the 13th ult. The ACADIAN joins with their other numerous friends in wishing the wedded couple much happiness.

Clear Post, at S. R. SLEEP'S.

ROAD WORK.—Work on the different road sections throughout the county has been going on during the past week, and none too soon, as in many places the roads are in a very bad condition. In this section the work begins to-day and we hope to be able to record much good work done in a future issue.

THE DOMINION EXHIBITION.—We have received a copy of the Prize List, just issued for the Dominion Exhibition, which is this year to be held at Toronto, in conjunction with the Annual Industrial Fair, from the 15th to the 17th, September next. Any of our readers who may desire a copy can obtain one by dropping a post card to Mr H. J. Hill, the Secretary, Toronto.

Incredible, but true, that B. G. Bishop is selling Reupapers cheaper than ever. 43

RAILWAY REMINDERS.—It will be 33 years next Monday (June 13th, 1854) since the first sod was turned on the Nova Scotia railway between Windsor and Halifax. The Windsor & Annapolis railway was opened for traffic from Grand Pre to Annapolis on August 10th, 1869, and from Windsor to Annapolis on December 18th of the same year.—H. Innes Tribune.

WOOL WANTED.—We want five tons of good wool in exchange for goods at highest prices given. We have on hand a very large stock of cloths from all the leading woolen mills in the Province which we guarantee to sell ten per cent cheaper than ever before. Samples and information cheerfully given on application. 34 CALDWELL & MURRAY.

CONCERT.—An appreciative audience assembled at Martin's Hall, Gasperon, on Monday evening to listen to Prof. Morris' concert. This consisted of vocal and instrumental music by the Professor and the Messrs David. Although some of the performers were unavoidably absent, a very enjoyable time was spent, the only drawback being a little disorder.

TARIFF CHANGES.—The Government has increased the duty on nails, hardware, etc., but B. G. Bishop will sell at the old prices. A big stock of nails for sale cheap. 43

EXCURSION.—About ninety excursionists came up from Tyrone on Tuesday, and all appeared to spend a very pleasant day. In the afternoon the college was thrown open to the visitors, and many visited the museum and library. It was expected that the number would be much larger, but owing to some misunderstanding a large number did not attend who were expected to. The Tyrone band are a fine looking lot of fellows. Their instruments and uniforms are first-class, and their music received very favorable comment.

Now is the time to paint. B. G. Bishop has a fine stock of Leads, Oils, Colors and Brushes. 43

ANOTHER JUBILEE NUMBER.—The Jubilee Edition, well printed on good paper, is to hand, price 10 cents, and with the great Jubilee Picture, 50 cents, also a cheaper edition, printed on ordinary paper, for five cents. The number contains twelve large pages, with over 200 portraits and other illustrations. There is a history of Her Majesty's reign; sketches of Canadian statesmen; a fully illustrated history of the Royal Arms; and other interesting articles; forming a work of reference with regard to the history of our times in Great Britain and Canada. For sale by all newsdealers.

"Common Sense."

We have just received another lot of Ladies' "Common Sense" Kid Boots manufactured by

"A. F. SMITH," Lynn, Mass.,

who is one of the most celebrated manufacturers of Ladies' Fine Shoes in the United States. Also, a new stock of Ladies' "Common Sense" Button and Strap Tie Newport Shoes, manufactured by

"J. PHELAN," Rochester, N. Y.

We have always made a specialty of these lines and find that they now have a reputation of their own.

Wolfville, June 3d, 1887

Local and Provincial.

LOST.—Between Wolfville and Grand Pre, on Saturday evening last, a double filled Paisley shawl, dark red in color. The finder, by leaving the same at this office, will be rewarded.

50 Bus Seed Oats, at S. R. SLEEP'S.

APPLE SHIPMENTS.—The shipments of green apples from this station commenced last year in July and there has been shipments in every month since, the last one up to date being on Monday of this week.

OATS.—Superior P. E. Island Oats for sale cheap for cash or prompt pay, at Robert W. Davidson's, near Hunter's Mill, Gasperon.

HORSE DIED.—A fine horse, belonging to Rev. M. P. Freeman died very suddenly on Wednesday last. It had been sick only a short time, and will be quite a severe loss to Mr Freeman.

PERSONAL.—Mr Howard Bars returned home from England on Monday evening. Rev. W. G. Lane and family will shortly pay a visit to the former home of Mrs. Lane in the Island of Cape Breton. Mrs. L. has not been home for over eight years.

WANTED.—One thousand dozen Eggs O. W. Trenholm's, Grand Pre, who has a choice lot of fresh family groceries always on hand. 42

GRAND PRE STATION.—The contractor Mr Clark, commenced operations on the Grand Pre station on Tuesday last, preparatory to removing it to its new site, a few rods to the west of where the station now stands. Mr Clark intends to push the work on to completion, and in a week or two Grand Pre station will be one of the toniest on the line.

Wool.—Burpee Wither will take Wool on account, and in exchange for Dry Goods, Ready Made Clothing, Boots and shoes, Yarn and Cotton Cloths.

AN ENORMOUS YIELD OF MAPLE SAP FROM ONE TREE.—An old subscriber at Bear River informs us that in 1882 he took thirty-nine American buckets full of maple sap, equal to ninety-seven wine gallons, from one tree. Of this quantity eighteen buckets full were taken within three days.—Digby Courier.

Highest price paid for wool, at S. R. SLEEP'S. 42

THE CHILDREN.—Our contemporary the Halifax Herald, suggests that the teachers and parents of all school districts assemble the children of either day or Sunday school at some public place on Jubilee Day, and celebrate the occasion by singing Jubilee songs. The Herald offers to supply to each section, free of cost, any number of leaflets, containing a short account of the progress that has marked the reign, with a number of Jubilee odes. Applications must be made not later than the 18th inst. We hope our people will take advantage of this generous offer.

TAKE NOTICE.—If your razor is dull, take it to J. M. Shaw's Barber Shop, and he will put it in first-class order for the small sum of 15c. 10

I. O. G. T.—The annual meeting of a King's Co. Lodge was held in the hall of Canning Lodge on Tuesday last. The report of the secretary showed the order in the county to be in a flourishing condition. R. R. Dunstan, Esq., W. G. C. T., was elected representative to Grand Lodge. Owing to the fact that there are two Lodges in the county under the other Grand Lodge, and not entitled to representation till after the union of the Grand Lodges, it was unanimously decided to defer election of officers and other important business till after the Grand Lodge meeting time and place of adjournment was to be decided upon by the executive committee.

To arrive at once, new Glassware and Crockery, latest designs and low prices. B. G. BISHOP. 43

Cambridge

The Rev. D. Price preached here last Sunday morning and evening with much acceptance. The church is all set to secure a parsonage. In the mean time Mr Price will visit his former pastorate at Paradise and attend the association at New Germany. The church is very fortunate in securing a highly cultured and popular pastor.

If you wish to color wool, cottons, silk or feathers, use the new Electric Dyes, Strongest and Best in the world. 10 cents at all dealers.

Horton Landing.

Extensive repairs are now being made to the underworks of the railway bridge over the river.

John S. Taylor has commenced the building of a new house on the site of his old one. C. F. Rathbun has the contract for its construction.

The apple-tree caterpillars have made sad havoc in some of the orchards in this locality. The canker worm is also doing some damage; otherwise the orchards are looking in splendid condition, with every prospect for a good crop. Evangelina Grange of Lower Horton, held their annual picnic on Wednesday last. The weather being propitious, quite a large number availed themselves of the drive. Sunken lake was the late Sawyer's Anderson, aged 18 months. WEBSTER.—At Cambridge, June 12th, Isaac Webster, aged 94 years.

Choice Miscellany.

Beautiful Things.

Beautiful faces are those that wear— It matters little if dark or fair— Whole-voiced honesty printed there.

Beautiful eyes are those that show, Like crystal panses where heart's fire glows, Beautiful thoughts that burn below.

Beautiful lips are those whose words Leap from the heart like songs of birds, Yet whose utterance is prudent words.

Beautiful hands are those that do Work that is earnest and brave and true Moment by moment the long day through.

Beautiful feet are those that go On kindly ministries to and fro, In ways that lead to God will it so.

Beautiful shoulders are those that bear Careless burdens of homely care, With patient grace and daily prayer.

Beautiful lives are those that bless— Sweet rivers of happiness, Whose hidden fountains but few may guess.

Bitter-Sweet.

Only a girl, blooming with all the freshness of eighteen years, sitting curled up in the bay-window, watching for the postman; the eyes full of dreams, the mouth smiling, the whole picture suggestive of youth, of happiness.

The postman gave the letter into the outstretched hands of a young girl in the morning of life and love.

The letter, opened and read, fell from the nervous hand of a woman, matured by sudden and awful horror. Only another man, another life, another life blighted. Only the old story.

MY DEAR BARBARA: I fear you will be somewhat surprised and pained at what I am compelled to write you. For weeks I have been conscious of a growing change in my sentiments to you. What I thought was love was only fancy—the result of association. Knowing this, I could never make you happy as my wife. Therefore, I trust you will give me my freedom as a gift yours, and always think of me as your friend.

Howard Snow. So the beautiful dream of a year that had filled a young life with the golden glory of a June sunrise was quenched in the blackness of a starless night.

And while she sat in the shadows struggling with her stricken young heart, that knew not how to entertain the stranger, pain, and striving vainly to pierce the impenetrable gloom that shrouded her, two hundred miles away Howard Snow looked in the sunlight of another woman's smile. It was not a cruel or heartless smile. But his better impulses, his sympathies, his regard for the feelings of others, were all lost in an infatuation for one of Cleopatra's descendants.

Howard Snow was only 23, and Helen Thompson was 30. One of those women mature years add only richer charms.

It was the old story of a young man's infatuation for a woman older than himself. It blinded his judgment, and blunted his sense of right and wrong, and made him conscious of but one desire in life—to be free. His hands to Barbara Walker grew lax, and she seemed to him a child, whose weakness would be a drag upon him always.

So he freed himself, and for a month was happy in a drunkard's happiness. Then his better nature woke with a sudden shock. He spoke of marriage to Helen Thompson, and she laughed in his face.

"Marriage," she said; why are you only a young boy! How can you think of such an absurd thing?

And her laughter had the ring of scorn in it. Then he went his way.

He thought of Barbara Walker with a strange tenderness but with no idea of consulting her with any attempt at a renewal of old ties. He felt no love for her, in truth, only he felt his loneliness and lack of stability.

He applied himself to his profession and made a success of it. He grew rich, prosperous, popular with men, but feared by the women, for his sarcasm was un-sparing, and his wit always two-edged.

Yet marriageable women sought after him, for his personal attractions added to his wealth and influence, he secured a desirable husband for an ambitious woman. But he reached the age of thirty-two and was still free. And then he met Barbara Walker again.

Through all these years he had lost touch of her and known nothing of her. Now they met suddenly, and to him, at least unexpectedly, at a formal dinner party, given by a prominent politician.

Howard Snow was presented to Miss Walker by the hostess and requested to lead her to the dinner. It was Barbara. There was no mistaking the face and form so well remembered, and yet what a change!

The nine years had but perfected the glistening grace that was pleasing of old and lent the charm of dignity and elegance to what was once sweetness and simplicity. The shy, modest manner had given place to perfect self-possession and rare conversational powers rendered her the star of the evening.

Howard Snow scarcely lifted her side all the evening. She claimed him with her description of scenery and bits of foreign life.

"I would be glad to call," he said, as they parted. "Where can I find you?" "In the house where we first met," she said, glancing up at him with her old shy look. "I am visiting the same friends."

He could not have described his sense. None as he rang the bell the next day and was ushered into the presence of that queerly woman who was once his betrothed wife. Admiration, reverence, respect, and, it seemed to him, love, stirred together in his heart.

It was only one of many calls. She was so kind, so cordial, so entertaining. Her soul was too large to treasure any resentment against him for that old wrong. Then by and by he grew to realize how he was loving this woman. Not the old love awakened, but a new love created—the one great passion of his life. Still he hesitated, not daring to speak. But so strong grew the emotion, it overpowered him at length.

"God knows I feel my unworthiness," he said, but I love you, Barbara, and I want you for my wife. I said these same words to you ten years ago but I failed you. I was only a weak boy then, awayed about by a designing woman. Now I am a man, knowing my own heart, and with all its pent-up passions it cries for you."

For a moment Barbara's face seemed glorified with light. Her cheeks glowed, her eyes enlarged, her heart leaved. She put both hands in his.

"I have never been content without you—not for one moment," she said. "Nothing has filled my life so full that I did not feel the need of you, Howard."

Their marriage was set for three months later. And they were to be married in the village church by the old family rector. The little church was crowded to the doors when the night came. All in a shew of white, Barbara stood before the altar and felt her hand taken by the man who had discarded her nine years before.

"With thee, Barbara, take this man to be thy wedded husband, for better, for worse, in sickness and in health, through good report and evil report, till death do you part."

The old rector waited for the response. It came like the report of a pistol. "Never!" As he once rejected me, so now do I reject him."

And she swept down the aisle, whiter than her robes, and left the pained crowd of people staring blankly after her. Very calmly and very coldly Howard Snow passed down and out of the church. Before midnight he was in raving delirium. The next morning they found him in a high fever, calling wildly on the name of Barbara, and cursing some woman he called Helen, who seemed pining him. "He cannot live," said the doctor the next evening. "Will some one go and ask the woman who has done this cruel deed to come here for a moment? The sight of her may quiet him, perhaps."

But while he spoke she came in, her bridal white exchanged for funeral black, her long hair falling loose about her. She glided to the bedside and put her hands on his face.

"Howard," she called in a trembling voice; "oh, my love, Howard, forgive me, ere you die."

But he fancied she was the woman Helen, and shrieked and cursed her, and grew so violent that they sent her from the room.

There was a week of wild delirium, and then a week of stupor and then—"He is dead!" they said, and then they carried the news to her. Like a pale wraith of her former self, she came slowly in and knelt beside him. She put her wasted cheek beside him on the pillow, and the tears that had refused to rise fell slowly down, as she said:

"Oh, I thought that revenge was sweet, but it is bitter, bitter, my love."

How long she knelt there she did not know, but suddenly she was startled by a sigh, a very ghost of a sigh, it seemed to her. She put her hand over the heart that had believed was stilled for ever. It fluttered feebly.

"Oh, thank God!" she cried, and fell unconscious.

An hour later she found herself in bed and kindly cared for, and smiling faces all about her. "He lives!" they said. Your touch brought him back from the very shores of death."

A few weeks later a pallid bride, and a still more pallid groom passed down the old church aisle and out into the great world.

Sometimes they dwell to-day—happy let us hope, since they both had suffered in the past.

"Having had the American Cyclopædia in my possession for the past ten months, and having carefully examined many portions of it, I hesitate not to state that it contains a wealth of scholarship, and a breadth, depth and accuracy which must command the highest respect. Its articles are comprehensive without being vague, and full of detail without being tedious. Upon many historical and scientific questions, it gives more solid and authentic information than could be gleaned from a whole library of more diffuse, but less valuable works. The splendid illustrations which illumine the pages of this great work need but to be seen to be admired. Its admirably arranged index enables the reader to turn immediately to the theme he wishes to investigate."

(Rev.) J. A. Rogers, Pastor Methodist church, Windsor, St. John, Feb 13, 1887.

A farmer who loafs around groceries and taverns, and don't get his wood ready through the winter, gets behind with his work. You can nearly always tell that a shiftless man is running from the farm, when the woman must run along the fence to gather bark and rail pieces to cook with. When there is no wood and no water, there will be a scolding wife, while if a man tends to everything well and in good time, she will make home pleasant.

PARSONS' PILLS Make New Rich Blood! Mowers and Rakes.

The "TORONTO" Mower is the finest and best, and has the most extensive sale of any Mower in the Dominion; and through the United States it stands ahead of all. The draft is light; and in operation it is noiseless; will work on rough ground with greater satisfaction than any other machine. The "MASSEY" Mower, a Favorite Machine, Strong! Powerful! Compact! Stands next to the "Toronto." No other Mowers can be controlled by the operator with such ease, a small boy being capable to do fine work with either. No stopping these Machines to kick it in or out of Gear, as in other Machines. In these, this is done with Hand Levers, and the knife runs perfectly in any angle.

"SHARP'S" HORSE HOE. It is now a well-known fact that these Rakes have no equal. It is only for a small boy to do good work with these rakes. They are acknowledged by all to be the best Horse Rake in existence. We will pay money to any one who will show us an equal. These Mowers and Rakes are as cheap as the cheapest and better than the best. It will pay you to examine them before buying elsewhere. D. MUMFORD, Agent. Railway Depot, Wolfville, June 17, 1887.

Appleton's American Cyclopædia. New Edition, complete in 28 Royal Octavo volumes, containing all information down to 1887.

The Latest, The Cheapest, and The Best. THE LATEST.—A corps of contributors who hold the foremost rank in Science and literature, both in Europe and America are employed on this work the year round. And a new volume is added annually, recording the progress in literature, in the arts, in science, and the social, political, religious, commercial and industrial developments to the latest possible date. It never becomes old. Hence it is the latest.

THE CHEAPEST.—It is a well selected library in itself, presenting a panoramic view of all human knowledge, from the earliest times to the present day. It is the only complete new and exhaustive cyclopædia in the English language. Its serial volumes keep it completely abreast of the times, and precludes the necessity of buying other books. Hence it is the cheapest.

THE BEST.—It is prepared by the ablest writers and scholars in every department of knowledge. It is impartial, doing justice to all men, all creeds, and all countries. Space is everywhere duly proportioned to the subjects. Its range of subjects embraces more than all other cyclopædias combined, and any point is instantly available by means of an elaborate analytical index. Hence it is the best.

Endorsed by Leading Thinkers Everywhere! Subscribers can receive the entire work at once, free of carriage, and pay for it on the instalment plan, at the rate of a volume a month. For terms and other information, address R. W. E. SOUTHWORTH, care of D. APPLETON & Co., Publishers, 1, 3, & 5 Bond St., NEW YORK.
