The Old Love.
(By Dr. William J. Fischer.)
"It is vain to speak to the old Love,
Aster in her shroud of snow,
She was true, she was true, she was true,
Then away with the pain and the grief,
Of parting, that e'er heart knew!
Let us then for the sake of the old Love,
O'er long in their position with us,
You are true and know and the nature
Of anxious, bright, amethyst skies
That now lie in the lap of the morning.
To greet the sad world's precious price,
O poor heart! We are done with the old Love,
And, on the fresh wind's mighty breath,
Come a whirler of life that is new,
And now a food by ingreth—
She has passed, through the portals of midnight,
Pursuing the cold valley of death."

CHAPTER XII.
JOHNNY SPENCER TURNS UP HIS COOPER.

THE next day at evening found Gilbert Rutherford back at the house in dingy Vale Street. It was blazing with light. A handsome coat with a coronet on the panel stood at the door. Another, with or without the coronet, had just driven away. The maid-servant who opened the door had been unseemly the night before. She said Mrs. Lester Rutherford had received before had uttered his murmur of inquiry.

In a moment he found himself in the brilliantly lighted room where the frayed velvet was—and the other things. There were a number of men within, and all making a great noise. The room was thick with cigar smoke, and the atmosphere feverish and hot. Glasses were clinking and silver flashing. She that had been his son's wife sat at the head of the table. She had now shining red gold hair, which curled in knots about her forehead, and was in magnificent attire. She talked to half a dozen men at once, who each tried to attract her attention.

There was a chair at the table end, and Gilbert Rutherford dropped into it without having attracted any notice. He looked about him. Mrs. Lester Rutherford was in evening dress, and at intervals she lifted a pair of glasses mounted upon a stick to her eyes and looked haughtily down the table.

There was a foolish youth with a rabbit mouth next to him. Then came a crowd of men in evening dress, audibly glib in Gilbert Rutherford as sheep of a flock. At the further side of the table his eye caught that of Johnny Spencer, who nodded to him and motioned to him with his hand to keep his seat.

Presently My Lord of the Rabbit Mouth caught sight of Gilbert Rutherford. He gazed at him with an air of bewilderment. Then he caught fortively at his eye glass, fixed it on his eye, and looked at the minister. "Ah," he said aloud, "we have a clergy at the table. Who may our venerable friend be?"

"A friend of my sister's," said Mrs. Lester Rutherford, without looking at him. "Yet she had seen him enter, and remembered who he was. 'That pretty fellow!' said My Lord. The person knows what he is about. Johnny Spencer's eye flashed, but he said nothing.

The noble lord rapped on the table. There was a partial assent. Those who had been the loudest turned and called to the peer to ask what he was making the noise for. "We have made a mistake, brethren," he went on, in a whining voice, "this is a prayer meeting. I call upon brother Stiggins to engage in prayer. He is a friend of Miss Grace St. Vincent, late of Siddons Theatre."

A few of the men laughed—those who were in the train of my Lord. Others, and they were not a few, looked about them as if ashamed, and moved their hands, leaning forward on the table. He had a father with white hair like Gilbert Rutherford, and he, too, was a son of the manse. My son had our little daughter, the child of this woman. She would have brought her up like herself—hard for the first time that night! For he remembered the little girl who had sold at his knee—

Think Lester observed, here on. His daughter-in-law threw up her arms, trembled like a dead leaf being blown by a gossamer on a still, winter day. "Oh, my child," "not to be like this—Oh, my child!"

The Great Deceiver went on: "A sight of light brought me that little girl to rear up and keep, leaving her own heart in the giving of her up."

He looked at the clock on the mantelpiece. "At this moment the little maid is praying for her mother, and for the best and purest woman in the world—a little child's guardian angel—for 'Bessie Upton, God bless her!' said Johnny Spencer, gruffly, from the door, that there might be no mistake.

And more than one man said 'Amen' to that prayer of Johnny Spencer. Only a word more gentlemen, said Gilbert Rutherford, "I served with the little girl who loves her as her life. I asked her to come and help my sister to rear her. But she wished to remain to guard her own sister—to work for the woman through whom she was last night discharged from her engagement. Contentment by the love ye beat the good women who are your mothers and sisters, will ye help me to help this woman who is better than I? For that am by profession a servant of God beaught this girl to forsake her sister for her own sake. She chose to remain for another's sake that she might save. Will you help Bessie Upton in her sacrifice or will you hinder?"

It is a strange thing that the men who had no sisters, and whose mothers had long been dead, were the most moved by this appeal. A tall man stood up, and going up to Dr. Gilbert Rutherford, he paused as if he would speak. But instead he held out his hand and shook that of the preacher. Johnny Spencer opened the door, and the tall man went out with bowed head. One by one the men shook hands and passed out to the night. At the front door one of them said to Johnny Spencer—

"I say, how dared you to do that? There were some of the wickedest men in London there to-night!" Johnny Spencer laughed. "I had heard the old one talk," he said. "I knew what he would do. He was taught to talk them, and I was taught to use my fists by Tom Jackson himself—no 'Pol' boxing classes for us."

When Johnny went in again, he found the minister holding his daughter-in-law in his arms. Her face was drawn and haggard. She seemed intensely eager to explain something, yet his anger could not give utterance to the words. So hard did she strive to speak that the tears rolled down her cheeks, making pitiful furrows through the enamel.

They were so standing when Bessie Upton came in, followed by Aunt Rebecca. She was in better spirits, for the manager had apologized and asked her to withdraw her resignation. As she entered she saw her sister greeted by Gilbert Rutherford, and Johnny Spencer holding something to her lips. She ran forward with a little gasp of terror. There was a yellowish foam about her sister's mouth.

"Bessie," he said. "The eyes of her sister looked full upon her, and ran with tears. She struggled hard to say something, but no word could she speak. Her mouth was drawn down at one side. 'Run for the doctor!' Bessie said, and Johnny Spencer sprang away. He had no idea where a doctor lived, so he hurried along the street like a dog from side to side, glancing at the brass plates. In a very few minutes he was ringing at the door of 112, Bedford, a young man recently established, a late house surgeon at 114,burgh Infirmary.

The two men came into the Vale Street house together. Bessie Rutherford was in bed. Her face was haggard, for Aunt Rebecca had washed off the cosmetics, and the lines of suffering and age showed plainly. Johnny Spencer stayed at the door. "Run on ahead if I am wanted!" he said. So he spoke and talked to Tommy the Shaver, who had been

The Man Who Never Drank.

When Gen. Grant was in command of the army before Vicksburg, several officers were once gathered at his headquarters. One of the number invited the others to a social glass. All accepted except one. He asked to be excused remarking, 'I never drink.' A few days afterwards this total abstainer received a note from Gen. Grant requesting him to report at headquarters. Upon his doing so, Grant said, 'You are the officer, I believe, who said the other day that you never drank?' The young man replied modestly, that he was. 'Then,' continued the general, 'you are the man I have been looking for to take charge of the commissary department, and I order you to be detailed for that duty.' All through the remainder of the war he served in that capacity, and after Gen. Grant became president the young man who never drank was again in command. The president, needing a very trustworthy man for some important position, gave him the appointment.

How is a Cold to be Cured?
When it has reached the chest, it develops into bronchitis and threatens to become pneumonia. It is gradually and steadily does a cold pass from its simpler form of a cold in the head into inflammation of the bronchial tubes, and then on to the lungs that may do no realize their condition until pneumonia is upon them. Unluckily, of course, the cold is thrown off, but with the system run down and weakened there is every reason to expect serious trouble. Why should not every cold be taken seriously and Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine used before a severe illness is upon you. There are many reasons why you should use Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It is more thorough and far-reaching in its effects on the system than any more cough medicine can possibly be. It keeps the cough quiet and relieves the throat, and always the inflammation. It does more than this. It cures the cold in the head in its effects on the system and almost specific in action. PURITY FLOUR
And Its Keeping Qualities
SOME people find it necessary to buy a considerable quantity of flour at one time—sufficient to last for a long period. Naturally they are anxious to procure a flour of the kind best adapted to lengthy storage.

There are two important reasons why PURITY FLOUR possesses these qualities. One is that it is made entirely from Manitoba Hard Wheat. The other lies in the fact that the careful milling necessary to produce "Purity" absolutely excludes all low-grade particles of the wheat berry. It's the high grade of the Manitoba Hard Wheat that makes "Purity" flour.

"Purity" flour may cost a little more, but is more than worth the difference. Try it. Watch results both for quality and yield.

Eczema Cured Through the Blood.

By the Aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—That Wonderful Tonic Medicine.
Eczema or salt rheum is a disease of the skin which shows itself in small, red, watery blisters—these blisters break and leave a scale which may be rubbed off by the hand. The affected parts are intensely itchy and the victim cannot bear the touch of any article of clothing over the parts. The disease is caused by bad blood and must be cured through the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many cases of eczema simply because they are the one medicine that acts wholly on the blood—the seat of the trouble. Among those cured by these Pills is Mrs. Chas. Davidson, of Amherst, N. S., who says:—I suffered greatly from salt rheum or eczema and my hands were badly cracked. I tried several ointments but they did me no good whatever. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and had only used them for a few weeks when the trouble disappeared and my hands were entirely healed. I am very grateful for what the Pills have done for me and would advise other sufferers from this trouble to try them.

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do for Mrs. Davidson, they have done for many others—not only in cases of eczema and salt rheum but for eruptions and pimples, chronic erysipelas, scrofula and all other maladies which arise from poor blood. They banish these troubles simply because they clear the blood of all impurities and leave it rich, red and health-giving. The Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or direct by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Why People Live Longer Now.
Unquestionably, under modern conditions, despite the added stress of existence, we live longer than our forefathers did. All who read this paragraph who are of average physique have a reasonable expectation of life, something like ten years in excess of their grandparents. The annual death rate for the whole of Great Britain, is about nineteen in each thousand women. In 1871 it was twenty three for men, and twenty-two for women. This improvement is not shown so much among old people, however, as among the young. These interesting figures are chiefly important because they show what the opening of hospitals and the great advances in medicine and surgery have done for humanity. We live longer because advancing science has shown us the way.

Sufferers from rheumatism find instant relief in 'The D. & L.' Menthol Plaster. Be sure and get the genuine. Made by Davis & Lawrence Co.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JAN. 14, 1910.

It has been suggested to THE ACADIAN that this year in Wolfville it would be well if the vacancies in the town government could be filled without the expense and worry of an election. THE ACADIAN approves of the suggestion. If we have men who will honestly and faithfully administer the affairs of the town who are willing to accept office, it certainly ought not to be necessary for them to be put to the trouble of running an election. We would suggest that a public meeting of the citizens might make a selection which would be satisfactory to all concerned, while the harmony of the community would not be interfered with by an election contest.

The sixty-first annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science was held in Boston during the week between Christmas and New Year's. The meetings continued for five days, about two thousand members being present from the various science societies and universities of the continent. The provincial colleges were represented at the Physics division by Prof. A. S. MacKenzie, of Dalhousie, and Prof. Haley, of Acadia. Among those attending the Mathematical division were Dr. E. Gordon Bill, of the Yale University staff, and Dr. Roland G. Richardson, now of Brown University. The latter read an important paper before the Mathematical division.

The proposition to form a branch of the S. F. C. in Wolfville ought to receive the support of every citizen. This organization is one which is doing a great amount of good work and there is no doubt room for its operation in this vicinity. Mrs. Eagen, the provincial agent, who visited Wolfville this week in connection with her work, is exceptionally well qualified for her position, and won the respect and admiration of all with whom she came in contact. She is certainly not lacking in courage or tact, and at the same time is a womanly woman.

It was Dr. Clifford, the celebrated non-conformist divine of England, who has been stumping for the Radicals since the campaign began, who made the somewhat unchristian statement that the Lords should be all driven into the sea, and drowned with the water in our fountains' time. He is now out flat footed as a blushing socialist and advocates the dividing up of the land and a pooling of properties as outlined in St. Matthew Canadians are being incited by several papers to indignation against the House of Lords as a political institution. Like other human works, the House of Lords is full of imperfections, but consider compels us to admit that it is both an abler and a more conscientious legislative body than the senate of Canada or the Senate of the United States. In practice, also, it is more democratic than either of these chambers.

It is to be hoped that the college professors from the United States who occasionally appear in Canadian cities to enlighten us on various phases of American affairs are more accurate than those Canadian professors who lecture in the United States. There is no reason that we know of why college professors should have a genius for misleading audiences.

On Saturday there will be polling in sixty-eight English constituencies, twelve London and fifty-six provincial. Of these seats forty-three are held by Liberals, eight by Laborites and seventeen by Unionists. The probabilities are for a return of the Liberal Government.

The question of the disposal of the liquor seized under the Canada Temperance Act by the Yarmouth Inspector some months ago has been settled by their destruction as authorized by the town council after much discussion.

A. E. CORNWALL, Town Clerk.

The Reviewer.

KING LEOPOLD.

One of the great American daily papers said of the late king of Belgium, "He is the man on account of whom millions mourned when living and for whom no one will mourn now that he is dead." This is true with the exception of the Catholic church in general and Cardinal Gibbons in particular. That church has celebrated masses for the repose of his soul. This king's life had all the drama of the days of the Borias, the butchery of the dethroned Abdul Hamid and the heartless cruelty of the maddened Nero. Yet the well paid priests of his own and friendly countries will continue their masses as if their singing, praying and fasting would make the Almighty forget his righteousness and take to his bosom the man who was steeped in debauchery while he lived and who died with hatred of his own children in his unforgetting heart.

Leopold was such a thoroughgoing old reproducer that an indignation or reproach ever disturbed him. Indeed he seemed to take a positive delight in affronting the sense of public decency. One of his favorites, a former bar-maid, established in a Royal Villa at Ostend where she was referred to as the Queen of the Congo. This act did much to estrange his daughters from him. At another time his infatuation for Cleo de Meroche was a joke in the Paris newspaper where he was referred to as Cleopold. Nor were these scandals hidden from his own people, for only last year there were no fewer than three theatres in Brussels where the king was held up nightly to obloquy much to the satisfaction of the audience. Attacks on his moral character were common and even more bitter in the Belgian press than in the newspapers of foreign countries.

He was considered as one of the ablest of European monarchs of the nineteenth century and one of the most dissolute. Baroness Vangban, who at the command of Belgian government was compelled to leave the country, was the last of a long line of favorites and she appeared to have more influence with her aged lover than any of her predecessors. Her two sons were dearer to Leopold than his legitimate children and his extraordinary action in selling by auction in London and Paris his almost priceless art collection was due to his anxiety to provide for them. This sale was bitterly resented by the Belgian people who felt that the king should have left these treasures to the nation at his death.

It is recalled that since his accession to the throne King Edward has refrained from visiting Leopold and also cannot recall a single European sovereign who has paid a formal visit to Brussels in the past ten or fifteen years. Yet he was once a favorite of Queen Victoria and for years a trusted business adviser. His father was the Queen's uncle. At his father's death Leopold kept up the friendly relations between the two courts for at this period of his career he was either a man of respectable moral character or he successfully concealed his real tendencies. It remained for W. T. Stead to detect him and to expose him to the people of England. He wrote a series of sensational articles entitled 'The Maiden Tribute' for the Pall Mall Gazette and did not hesitate to name Leopold among the guilty parties.

Not long afterwards the notorious Mrs. Jeffrey was arrested in London by a zealous police inspector. She informed the magistrate in open court that she proposed to call King Leopold, who was at the time in London incog, as an old friend and patron who would vouch for her own high character and the blameless nature of the establishment she maintained. The announcement was reported in the London papers and created a sensation. The hearing of the case was resumed in private and Mrs. Jeffrey was let off with a nominal fine. This scandal ended all the relations save those of formality between the two Courts.

Childhood Indigestion Means Sickly Babies.

The baby who suffers from indigestion is simply starving to death. If it takes food it does the child no good, and it is cross, restless and sleepless, and the mother is worn out caring for it. Baby's Own Tablets always cure indigestion, and give the little one healthy and natural sleep. Mrs. A. P. Daigle, Lower Basin, N. B., says: "For severe cases of indigestion I think Baby's Own Tablets are worth their weight in gold. My little one suffered terribly from this trouble and the Tablets was the only thing that removed the trouble. Both everywhere at 25c a box or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

Gen. Booth Pessimistic.

Gen. Booth, head of the Salvation Army, speaking at Chelton recently, expressed the fact that, notwithstanding all appeals, warnings and opportunities for contrition, past, present and future were still steeped in wickedness. In the course of his remarks he said: "To-day all nations of the earth seem to be banded together in rebellion and transgression, until some think, and I believe with a considerable degree of probability, that we may be approaching rapidly the end of all things and the world and its inhabitants will be destroyed by fire."

Rink Notes.

The first game of the Western Hockey League was played in Ryan's rink on Monday evening between Wolfville and D. B. C. A. (Dartmouth), the former winning by a score of 10 to 5. Shortly after 8 o'clock the referee, Mr. Robert Murray, Acadia (73 line) the teams up as follows:

The Dartmouth boys started in with a rush and put in three goals in succession, after that Wolfville got to work and held them down and after a time tied the score. Before the bell rang for half time the visiting team succeeded in scoring another goal. During the first half one of the D. B. C. A. players received a cut in the head but he did not stop playing. In the second half Wolfville tied the score and took the lead, Dartmouth only scoring once more. The game was fast throughout and was a display of good hockey on the part of both teams. The Dartmouth players were a little too light for the home team, Fraser, for Wolfville, and J. Pattison, for D. B. C. A., made many sensational rushes. The visiting team took their defeat in good part and plan to come to Wolfville again during the winter. On account of the bad state of the weather only a few turned out to see the game, about 250 being present.

A fast and close game of hockey was played on Tuesday evening when the Victorias defeated Casard by a score of 4 to 2.

Don't forget the Fancy Dress Carnival next Wednesday evening, Jan. 19th.

The rink managers have insisted on another prosperous season. The ice has been in fine condition ever since the rink was opened and has been well patronized. Another gallery has been built on the north side of the building and the rink will now hold between 1500 and 1600 persons so that all may have a good view of a hockey game.

The annual business meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's church was held on Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance, and the proceedings passed off most satisfactorily and harmoniously. Mr. J. D. Chambers presided and Mr. Albert Chase was secretary of the meeting. The reports of the various branches of the church, which were presented, were most encouraging. All the current expenses of the church had been met during the year and Mr. E. H. Archibald, the secretary of the managing board, was able to report a small balance on hand. A liberal amount had also been contributed to the work of the denomination, and the debt on the church property had been considerably decreased. Mr. J. Elliot Smith was elected a trustee in place of the late Capt. Gillmore, whose death was fittingly referred to in a resolution recognizing his worth and the loss sustained by the church in his death was passed.

There will be a demand for years to come for the beautiful picture 'The Soul's Awakening,' issued by The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. There will also be many sorely disappointed when they see they are told that not another copy can be had. It is a wonderfully charming picture. It touches the heart of mankind. If placed in a show window almost every passer-by will stop at first sight of it, study it and go away feeling better for having seen it. But there is no reason for being without a copy in your own home. The publishers positively guarantee that for some weeks yet they will mail a copy to every person who returns a dollar for a year's subscription to The Family Herald and Weekly Star. Those who have already subscribed are sure of it. Those who have not should do so now, and be sure, for they will certainly want a copy if they ever see it.

The terrible storm which prevailed on Tuesday of last week, wrought havoc among sea-faring men, and for awhile great anxiety was felt concerning the eight boats and their crews of forty-two brave fellows, belonging to Dover and Whitehead, Guysboro Co., who were caught in the gale. Wonderful to relate, after encountering terrible hardships and damage to their vessels (some of them wrecked) each day brought news of men being rescued in various ways, until on Friday last Hazel Masud, the smallest boat of the Dover fleet, drifted into her home port through fog and rain, with her crew exhausted and frozen and the boat a wreck. Surely the return of all these men to their homes after being given up for lost, is most miraculous and has turned mourning into rejoicing and thankfulness in the localities where the fishermen belong. The rescued men tell thrilling stories of suffering and exposure.

The Gadfly.

One could not but be impressed with one plain fact in connection with the observance of the week of prayer among the churches this year and that was the lack of interest by the ordinary church member both as to attendance and participation. This fact not only was painfully evident in Wolfville but it was so true in St. John as to cause their discontinuance. A singular spirit seems to prevail throughout the maritime provinces. Crops were exceedingly abundant in 1909. Prices have been quite up to the average. People are uncritically comfortable at the present time financially and religion don't seem to be necessary. In some countries and among certain worshippers this might possibly have a tendency towards a closer relationship with their gods, but not so in a atmosphere of abundance as the so-called Christians here and hereabouts.

The year past has been one of many marvels and one that might very properly cause an outflow of adoration and praise it not of petition. But its greatest wonder to us is the way in which the few who remained true to God and his word have been honored in his service. The world over it has been a year of revival, for hundreds of thousands have been brought to Christ by evangelists at home and by missionaries in heathen lands, and the giving amongst the so-called laymen has increased more than thirty per cent. One would imagine this fact an encouraging and thankful one. One would also feel that Christians would rejoice and be grateful that the signs of the soon coming of our Lord were increasing with startling rapidity. Not one of the signs or promises of his book have yet proved false.

We often wonder how it is that our ministers, pastors if you please, are so faithful and do not become thoroughly discouraged. The people of this land are in a state of rebellion, a large majority traitors against the king in a sure bondage to Satan as the Israelites were to Pharaoh; in perfect love with sin and opposed to God. A semblance of commercial religion is pulled out for use on the Sabbath. They talk about the advancement of social conditions or seeming good government which is a 'by product' of the gospel. The people are so faithfully proclaiming Nations, small or great, citizens, good or bad, social conditions, appreciative or helpful; ideals, high or low, and public morals, pure or putrid; the apple core, good or bad; London market reports, high or low, in fact nothing can begin to rise in importance to the greatness and glory of God's great purpose in the gospel as preached to us all by our faithful, tireless pastors, and as soon as this message of the gospel is delivered to all the world the Lord will come again and assume his place as the omnipotent king.

Dr. Constand Myers, while addressing a large meeting in Boston, declared that the work of missions in foreign lands depended on the kind of men sent out from the home land, and the kind of men depended on the kind of colleges from which they came. He called upon the laymen of America to see to it that money given to maintain colleges should be used to destroy the faith of students in the word of God. Let the professors be true or have the honesty to step down and out, said the eloquent pastor of Tremont Temple.

Not long ago they were having a strenuous time at McMaster University, Toronto, over some of the teachings of one of the professors, Professor Matthew. Senator McMaster gave a million dollars to found a school especially to fit men for the ministry, and he took pretty sound precautions to guard against unscrupulous teaching. But for a while the provocations of this young man from Chicago had been teaching things that are now repudiated by the best scholars in Germany and America. Prof. Matthew had been trained in the school where men so juggle with words that they can say what they please and crawl out through the hole of being misunderstood. He is probably a specimen of a third rate man and the authorities are unwilling to gratify the ambition of a man of such feeble calibre to become a martyr. He has asphyxiated into a hole and pulled the hole after him.

While the steamer Boston was on her trip from Boston to Yarmouth on Friday last, Frederick C. Ryerson, aged 35, a Yarmouth business man, jumped overboard and was not seen afterward, although a boat was launched immediately. When Ryerson boarded the steamer at Yarmouth he told the American inspector that he was going to see one of the officers, but instead of returning to the wharf he sailed with the ship. The American authorities in Boston would not permit him to land. He was disappointed when leaving Yarmouth, and his friends feared some desperate act.

'As a Man Thinketh.'

'As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he.' You cannot get away from your own thoughts, try as you may.

If you start out with a fine project, but also take with you the feeling that try as you may, the project is likely to fail, you have already arranged for your future!

The victories that we gain and the defeats that we sustain are all arranged for in the silent hours before we come to the conflict.

Thoughts are all powerful. The tendency of each thought is either upward or downward.

Your thoughts of success would carry you to success if you would not let them mingle with those undesirable citizens of the under thought.

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidney are weak, try at least a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

The Force of Habit.

'Habits are hard to break,' said Walter Princhard last the other day. 'Perhaps you've heard of the automobile enthusiast who brought a motor boat?'

'He took a day's instructions in the art of managing it and keeping the machinery in running order, and then started out on his trip alone. It was late in the afternoon when he returned home. He came in by the back way. His clothes were wet and his hair was hanging over his eyes in strings.'

'John!' exclaimed his wife. 'What on earth!' 'It's all right, Mary,' he hastened to assure her. 'No, I didn't upset. Everything's all right. But when I had been out on the water a couple of hours something went wrong with the motor and—'

'Yes—?' 'Well, before I—realized it I was over the side and trying to get under the blade thing to fix it.'
