"It would be premature to offer many remarks on what may be expected from it; but from what we already see of its materials, we are warranted in saying, that from the fact of the leaders of the factions which rendered the last leaders of the factions which rendered the last House so deservedly unpopular, being again re-turned, it may be expected that most of the new members will rank under their respective banners. Some acquisition, we think, will be made in the cause of reform, but it will be wanting in that union and energy, necessary to enable it to car ry any important measure. In talont, the s House will make no small acquisition in election of W. Young, and J. Howe, Esqua."

It is undeniable that the British Colonies in the Southern Hemisphere, far removed from any state possessing means or inclination to extend its dominions by foreign conquest, inaccessible to aggression from without, and having their population diffused over large and remote surfaces of territory, will continue for many years, if not for some centuries, dependencies of England.

A sense of this may have prompted the encouragement so pointedly extended to emigration and settlement there; whilst the superior advantages of the North American Colonies are overlooked by British statesmen, under an impression but too sedulously cultivated by interested or superficial men, that pectus of Ward's Miscellany, which uss the existing connection with England must speedily determine—that a change in our po- this month, will probably be as valuable in litical relations is gradually preparing—and matter as it is novel in its plan.
