Standard Boiler Fluid.

This preparation was made a few years ago by our Soap Chemist to use in our own boiler.
It has given such good results that we confidently recommend it to all users of steam boilers.
It will remove old scale, prevent incrustation and almost instantly stop pitting and corrosion. 10 to 15 I.P. will require 1 to 2 pints per week; 50 H.P. and upwards, 2 or more pints per week, according to work done and conditions of feed water.
Put up in 1, 2 and 4 gallon tins. Made only by

SHE COULD NOT STAND OR WORK

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health and Stopped Her Pains.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it that at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my house-work, was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and now I am strong and well again and do my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the credit."

—Mrs. JOSEPHINE KIMBLE, 985 West Race St., Portland, Ind.

Thousands of American women give this famous root and herb remedy the credit for health restored as did Mrs. Kimble.

For helpful suggestions in regard to such ailments women are asked to write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience.

For Her Sake;

The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XXXIX.
"Yes; but you are telling me only half of it. You have not told me in plain words why you have set aside a noble man, a gentleman, a true knight, to marry—pardon the word—a fool."

Diana winced at this description of her future husband. Yet she felt that it was true.

"Oh, Royal!" she said.

"My dear, it is the truth. If no one else will tell it to you, I will. Lord Clanronald, with all his ancient descent, splendid title, and wealth, is but a fool. He has neither mind, manners, heart, nor intellect, and, if you marry him, you will repent it to the last day of your life."

"Oh, Royal, how severe you are—you, who used to be so kind and generous to me!"

"Kindness in this case is cruelty," he said. "Real kindness is to tell you the bare unvarnished truth; and that is, if you marry Lord Clanronald, your life will be one of wretchedness and bitter repentance."

Every word this faithful friend spoke went straight to Diana's heart. She knew there was no other so true, so loyal as he.

"Diana," said Sir Royal presently, "my sight has grown dim since I have suffered so terribly with my head; come closer to me, so that I may look into your face. Oh, child, what have you done to yourself? Why, the very freshness has gone from your beauty as from a faded flower! What is the matter with you?"

She had gone nearer to him, and stood with drooping head by his chair. She did not dare to tell him that she had done violence to her feelings. She dared not tell him that in her heart desire of vengeance reigned supreme, and that she was sacrificing all that was dearest in life for the sake of being revenged on Lady Cameron.

"Diana," went on Sir Royal, "once or twice in your life I have given you a friendly lecture; I shall give you one now. I do not know your secrets, but I am certain that pride is at the bottom of this marriage—wicked, stiff-necked pride."

For a moment she felt inclined to confess all to him. His great wisdom, his large experience, would soon put matters straight for her. But, no, no; she must have her revenge! The good impulse passed, and with it the last hope of earthly salvation.

"If it be as I think, my poor child, pause while there is time. I know that pride is your stumbling-block, Diana, and that for pride's sake you would suffer torture without complaining. Oh, Diana, be warned in time! If I could have but foreseen what was to happen to you, I would have persuaded you to marry me last year. Diana, take up arms against yourself! If you marry this man, unspeakable misery will follow. You will come back to me and weep tears that will break my heart. You will repent sorely, bitterly; but I shall not be able to assist you then—it will be too late. My darling Dian, let me help you now."

"I want no help, Royal," she said, in a low strained voice. "You could not help me; but you can love me, Royal—love me always, and think kindly of me. I—I am not happy!"

"Poor child!" he said, his hands caressing the fair hair; and then he asked, "Where is Sir Lisle?"

"He has gone away," she replied. "Has he left England?"

"Yes; he has gone abroad. He says he shall never return to England."

"Poor fellow!" said his noble rival. And at the sound of the kindly voice, the tender words, Diana's pride gave way, and she wept bitter, despairing tears. But neither tears, prayers, nor entreaties shook her resolution to marry Lord Clanronald.

CHAPTER XL.
Lady Cameron acted with the policy of a worldly-wise woman. She saw that nothing could be done at present to change the aspect of affairs. Lord Clanronald was infatuated; Sir Lisle had gone abroad, and they had heard nothing more of him; Evadne was miserable, Diana silent, haughty and cold. Lady Cameron considered that the best thing to be done was to fill her house with company, and so prevent the different members of the family from being thrown too much into one another's society.

The Christmas party at Ferness was a gay one. Peter Cameron's heart rejoiced over the long list of noble names that figured in the county paper. True, the great magnates, the Duke and Duchess, were not there—they had gone to the south of Italy for the winter—but there were others to take their place.

Lady Cameron was an accomplished hostess, and the festivities were something to be remembered. The dinners, balls, charade parties, and private theatricals delighted the whole county. There was such a succession of gayeties that there was no time for domestic warfare among the members of the Ferness household.

Sir Royal was repeatedly at Ferness, and he was the only one with whom Diana seemed happy or at ease. Nobody ever mentioned the marriage, for the subject was distasteful to all except Lord Clanronald, and was therefore tacitly avoided.

Lord Clanronald spent his time in traveling down to Ferness for a few days, and then rushing back to town to see his lawyers. When he came, Sir Royal never appeared at Ferness; he could not endure him.

In the meantime a great change had come over Thea. Richard had fallen deeply in love with her, and under the influence of this love her whole character changed. Richard was so honest and manly, so noble in himself, so frank and true, that his influence was always felt by those around him. They were both almost unconscious of the attraction they had for each other. Thea grew more gentle, more tractable, and learned to like Diana better. Honest Richard never ceased talking to his cousin—of her beauty, her grace, her daring wit, her nobility of character—and Thea learned to see her with Richard's eyes. The better she liked her, the more was Thea puzzled to account for her engagement with Lord Clanronald. Two persons of more opposite natures never lived.

What was best, noblest, and brightest in Diana was a dead letter to Lord Clanronald. He worshipped her beauty; but to her thoughts, feelings, and tastes he was supremely indifferent. He said to himself that he would have the loveliest wife in England, and he was content with that. Thea and Diana never became great friends; but they grew more tolerant of each other, and the bond between them was love for honest Richard.

So the winter passed. Lady Cameron heard once or twice from Sir Lisle; but she did not speak of his letters. She had refused to have anything to do with Diana's trousseau. She could not forgive what she considered her treachery. Lord Clanronald had paid such marked attention to her daughter Evadne that he ought to have made her an offer, and he would have done so but for Diana, she argued to herself. Diana had lured him away.

The hawthorn was in bloom, the birds had begun to build their nests, the clover was green in the meadows, and the wedding-day was close at hand. As it drew nearer, Diana grew more and more miserable and more haughty and reserved.

Sir Royal came to Ferness on the day previous to the marriage. He had at first declined to be present at the ceremony.

"Do not ask me, Diana," he said. "It is such a wretched marriage; do not ask me to witness a ceremony which is to make you miserable for life. If you were going to marry Sir Lisle I would come from the uttermost ends of the earth to be present; but this is a desecration; I would rather not be there."

"You must come, Royal, my dear old friend," said Diana, as she clung to him. "I shall not live through it unless I see your kindly face to gaze upon."

The wedding was fixed for Tuesday, the thirteenth of May, and everything was ready for the ceremony. There were six bridesmaids, Thea being one of the number. Evadne had refused to be present, and the Duchess had fortunately come to the rescue, and invited her to join herself and her husband in the south of France.

Her absence took some of the sweetness of her revenge from Diana. True, she was too warm-hearted to rejoice at the sight of the girl's sorrowful face—for Evadne felt the disappointment grievously—but she enjoyed the feeling of triumph and victory. Lady Cameron and her daughters had imbibed her life, and now it was their turn to suffer. "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth." They had wronged tears enough from her; let them weep now.

Lady Cameron went about with a pale, care-worn face; but she looked brighter when Evadne had left Ferness. Evadne had met Diana in the great hall when the carriage stood at the door.

"You will be pleased to find that I am going," she said. "My presence here must be a continual reproach to you—a reproach, because you have basely injured me."

"I am not aware of it," returned Diana, calmly.

"That is false! You know that by acts such as I would have scorned to use you lured Lord Clanronald from me. I am sure that we should have been very happy together but for you."

Healthy, Happy Boys and Girls

Is your child healthy? Is he or she up to standard weight, of good color, with plenty of rich, red blood to nourish the growing tissues?

For children who are thin, pale, anaemic, under weight, nervous, restless, sleepless, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is of the greatest benefit imaginable.

Being mild and gentle in action, and yet wonderfully potent as a restorative, it soon makes the blood rich and builds up the feeble nerves.

You have taken him from me; but you will repent it. I shall live to see your treachery punished, your pride humbled. When that time comes, remember my words, and seek no pity from me."

The girl's speech rang in Diana's ears long after Evadne had departed.

There had been a slight passage of arms between Mr. Cameron and his wife. She had declared her intention of having nothing whatever to do with the marriage. He said that he would not allow his daughter to be slighted, and that her wedding must and should be celebrated with all possible magnificence. At first Lady Cameron felt inclined to contest the question with her husband; but her better sense came to her aid. If she did so, it would only attract public attention to the family disputes. She therefore judiciously gave in, and a series of festivities were arranged. Lady Cameron tried her best to lose sight of the principal object of these elaborate entertainments, to forget that they were held in honor of Diana's marriage, and to remember only how they would redound to the glory of the house. The happy pair were to go after the marriage to Ronald's Court, a fine old English mansion, one of the country seats of Lord Clanronald. It was Diana's wish; she would not go abroad.

The wedding-presents were arranged in the white drawing-room—jewels, rich laces, superb ornaments, gifts of plate, and choice artistic treasures. But the bride hardly looked at them, or at the jewels presented by the enamored bridegroom, which were numerous and most costly.

A PRACTICAL SUIT FOR THE SMALL BOY.

2976—The blouse may be of cambric, Indian head, drill, linen, percale or madras, and the trousers of khaki, serge, flannel, corduroy or cheviot; or the entire suit may be of one kind of material. The trousers are finished with an inside waistband, which is buttoned to the band of the blouse; additional closing is effected by buttons sewed to the shaped part of the trousers, as illustrated.

This Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 3, 4, 5, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2 3/4 yards of 44-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or 1c. and 2c. stamps.

A NEW COAT FOR THE LITTLE MISS.

2979—A good feature of this model is the sleeve portion, which forms part of the front and back. Cheviot, serge, velvet, velveteen, plush, corduroy, velour, tricotee and Jersey cloth are nice for this design. The coat fronts may be rolled high or low.

The pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires 3 1/2 yards of 44-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or 1c. and 2c. stamps.

Lloyd George Optimistic

But Predicts Long Struggle in Russia--Soldiers Demonstrate Against Hughes--Prince of Wales Delivers Farewell Address.

LLOYD GEORGE SPEAKS AT MAYOR'S BANQUET.

LONDON, Nov. 8.

Premier Lloyd George speaking at the Lord Mayor's banquet to-night, referring to the Supreme Council's attempt at Russia's Peace early this year, said, "I hope the time is not distant when the powers will be able to renew that attempt with better prospects of success." The Premier recounted briefly the world's troubles, saying apart from Russia, the outlook is good. He spoke optimistically of the Adriatic and Turkish questions which with Russia he said constituted the world's chief problems. He recalled that exactly a year ago at the same Board, he announced the abdication of the German Emperor. He did not believe that the few well informed then expected the ensuing year would bring such progress toward a settlement as had been made. The Premier taking up the most difficult questions left for settlement the Adriatic, Turkey and Russia. He said the Adriatic question has gathered about it a deep passion, but I am confident a settlement will be found compatible with the interest and honor of our gallant Allies. I am certain that justice will be done the nations emancipated from the Austrian yoke. The Premier declared that there was a complete agreement between the Allies that Turkish domination of the Greeks, Arabs and Armenians should end and that the Black Sea should be free to all nations. The outlook in Russia is unpleasant he continued. A few weeks ago there was a promising prospect of an early issue but to-day's indications point to a more prolonged and sanguinary struggle.

SEIZURE OF ANARCHISTS' MATERIAL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.
Included among the matter and literature seized by Government agents in the recent raids on the anarchists' quarters were quantities of articles used in making bombs, a complete counterfeiting plant, a large supply of counterfeit bank notes, thousands of pieces of literature described as of the most inflammatory nature, and scores of red flags, rifles and revolvers.

HOT TIME IN AUSTRALIAN ELECTION.

LONDON, Nov. 8.
The Times' correspondent records lively doings in the election campaign in Sydney, Australia. Premier Hughes after declaring his policy, was demonstrated against by five hundred soldiers who demanded cash grants in cash, not bonds. The Premier's hotel was broken into, but the attackers were beaten off by the police who fought in showers of bottles and other missiles. The Ryan boom has abated owing to an official report that there has been a great increase in taxation under Ryan's Queensland Premiership who is an advocate of "cut the painter" policy and is in bad odor, as it is believed the Sinn Feiners are running him.

THE PRINCE FAREWELLS TO OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 9.
A sympathetic and responsive audience of two thousand odd men, comprised of members of parliament, professional and business men, heard the Prince of Wales make his penultimate speech to the present tour in Canada, to-day, at the end of the Canada Club luncheon in the Chateau Laurier. It was a friendly and intimate speech, in which gratitude for Canada's welcome and an earnest appeal for loyalty to the British ideals was punctuated with good-humoured rallies. The Prince emphasized again his fellowship with Canadian citizens in their loyalty to the British Throne, and the fact that he would go to the United States next week feeling that he belonged to Canada as much as to Great Britain.

FORCES RETREAT.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 9.
The forces of General Yudenitch have retreated to Wemair station according to a communication received Saturday morning by the Russian Northwest Army.

AMMUNITION DUMP BLEW UP.

NAMUR, Belgium, Nov. 9.
A large ammunition dump near Fort Dinau blew up early this morning, only four of the fourteen British sentries on duty answered for the roll call to-day. It is feared that the others were killed. Explosions are continually taking place among the remnants of the dump. The cause of the main explosion has not been ascertained.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.
Uncertainty prevails as to when Parliament will prorogue. This afternoon good headway was made with business in the House but as there are estimates aggregating upwards of sixty three million dollars still to be voted the probabilities are that it will not be possible to bring the session to a termination before Monday night.

DENIES HAVING AGREED TO INJUNCTION.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 9.
John L. Lewis, Actg. Pres. of United Mine-workers of America, to-night denied that he had agreed to comply with the order of the Federal Court here yesterday to call off the strike of bituminous coal miners of the country before 6 p.m. next Tuesday evening. Statements to the effect that I shall or shall not comply with the mandatory proceedings of the injunction writ are unauthorized and premature, he declared.

Want to Keep Warm?

Do you want to be warm this autumn and winter? Then read on.

Exercise is the thing! But it is not always possible to get it, or enough of it. Yet it can be noted that the warming effect of exercise is not something that passes quickly. It lasts some hours. A brisk walk from, say, six till seven, would find you warm at ten. And if you cannot, by stress of weather, get out for exercise, most houses have stairs!

Exercise, too, holds other than warming merits. It prevents chills.

And after exercise--or, better still, as its partner--comes food. Food is literally the body's fuel, and creates heat. But all food does not create the same amount of heat. Some lower it. In winter, the heat-producing foods, like porridge, fat meat, dripping, stews, butter, bacon, pork, and oily fish--salmon, muller, etc.--should be eaten. Slow mastication, plus exercise, will enable all these foods to digest easily and warm the body.

Clothes! We think that to get warmth we must have weight. That is a fallacy. True, weight makes us feel hot for the time, but what is happening is that we are surrendering our body heat. Presently we shall be very cold. Winter clothes should be loose, so that an air buffer can form. Two thin vests, not close-fitting, are infinitely better than one very thick one. Clothing, generally, should be of no heavier texture than will repel extra cold winds. All else is waste. The material should be wool, not because wool "makes you warm," but because it conserves the heat which radiates from your body.

Rising to the Occasion!

Although it is to be presumed that with most theatre-goers the incentive is the play as a whole, a particular scene or a mere "tag" will often materially influence the financial results by attracting patrons with a special rather than a general dramatic instinct.

The persistent demand of a French audience for a particular line in a play once had a curious effect. In the last scene the usual pair of guilty lovers are discovered by the husband, who, having unexpectedly returned to his home, according to French custom, tries to force admittance to the room

FOREIGN PRESS OPINION

AMERICAN.
Come to Stay.

There can be no doubt at all that commercial aviation is being accepted in England as a practical proposition when on the window of a fashionable milliner in Oxford Street, could be seen on September 4, prominently displayed, the announcement: "Madame—left for Paris to-day in a Handley-Page." The musical profession, too, has not been slow in making use of the way of the air to keep appointments in a minimum of time. A Paris singer had an important engagement to keep at La Havre and, having lost her train, she appealed to the Air Transport people and got carried to her destination for a relatively moderate sum. An Italian singer, also, in somewhat similar circumstances, took to the air in order to reach Paris at a given time. It is evident that the public, given the chance, will not need much urging to exchange packed, slow trains and uncertain boats for the swiftness of an air machine offering security and rapidity. — Christian Science Monitor.

CANADIAN.
A Good Scheme.

The French Association of Leather Merchants and Bootmakers has made an interesting proposal to M. Loucheur, Minister of Reconstruction, with a view to reducing the present high price of footwear. They propose that he shall hand over the commissariat stock of leather, which they say will be sufficient to make a million pairs of shoes, which they undertake to place on the market at eight dollars, as the equal of what is now held at the shops for twelve dollars. M. Loucheur has accepted the proposal. Why not try the plan here in Canada?—St. John Telegraph.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

The poems of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, whose death is announced at her home in Brantford, Conn., enjoyed great popularity for many years both on this continent and in England. Ten years ago T. P.'s Weekly noticed in a few days no less than seven quotations from her work in the London daily papers. Most of her poems, however, were essentially commonplace, and not destined to survive, and it is probably for this reason that her name appears in only two out of a dozen standard books of quotations. Among these quotations are the well-known lines from "Solitude":

"Laugh and the world laughs with you;
Weep and you weep alone;

rages. Especially emphatic is the refusal of the electors to return to the conditions which existed previous to the passage of the Ontario Temperance Act. In regard to the modified facilities suggested on the three questions placed on the ballot the pronouncements, though definite, are successively less emphatic. Next to the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act the proposal to permit the sale of two and a half per cent. beer in standard hotels in local municipalities comes in for the strongest condemnation, while the largest proportion of favorable votes goes to the proposal to sell spirituous and malt liquors through government agencies. But the majority adverse to any of the forms of distribution of liquor is in every case overwhelming. Prohibition sentiment is beyond all cavil in the ascendant in Ontario.

It is hardly to be doubted that a similar result would attend a referendum on the liquor question in all the dry provinces of the Dominion. Frequently it has been suggested that with the war over there would be a reaction against prohibition at least to the extent of permitting the sale of beer and light wines. For this there appears to be no real ground. It is natural that such a proposition should receive a larger measure of support than the more complete prohibition now obtaining. But it is evident that the reaction, if any, has not affected even the comparatively small number of electors required to create a majority in its favor. From the result of the Ontario referendum the liquor interests can derive no hope of any reversal of prohibition sentiment. On the contrary, the people are determined to maintain it; and this at a time when many other habits of thought have clearly been broken. It now remains for the Dominion Government to take such action as will secure that each province can make effective its desire in regard to prohibition or to such limited sale of intoxicants as may from time to time be permitted.—From the Manitoba Free Press.

ENGLISH.
The Passing of the Red Trousers.

The red trousers of the French army are to be no more. There is a political and economical tragedy about it with which very few people are familiar. The originator of the red trousers was Napoleon, who was prompted in his "reform" by a desire to help the native cultivation of madder root—that time and for many centuries previously the chief source of red color throughout the world—against the Dutch and Italian rivals. As a result the industry expanded considerably, and some fifty years ago was worth nearly £2,000,000 per annum. But then came the Graeher-Liebermann discovery of the alizarine dyes, and in less than ten years, between 1870 and 1878, the production of madder root in France shrunk from 25,000 to 500 tons, and then disappeared. This was a great German victory. Nevertheless the army trousers continued to be dyed red, only this time the dyes had to be imported from Germany. This was certainly a great humiliation for the French, but it evidently required a great war to put an end to it.—Manchester Guardian.

INDIGESTION CAN'T STAY

Stomach Pain, Sourness, Gases, and Acidity ended with "Pape's Diapepsin"

Out-of-order stomachs feel fine at once! When meals don't fit and you belch gas, acids and undigested food. When you feel indigestion, pain, lumps of distress in stomach, heartburn or headache. Here is instant relief.

Just as soon as you eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin all the dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach distress caused by acidity will end. These pleasant, harmless tablets of Pape's Diapepsin always put sick, upset, acid stomachs in order at once and they cost so little at drug stores.

Too Big for Her Boots!

HAS WAR-TIME LUXURY SPOILT THE ORDINARY GIRL?

At twenty-six John Henry has become a philosopher. He declares that the modern girl is the cause. John Henry doesn't like the modern girl.

"It's sickening," he says, "the way girls reckon up what they'll be able to get out of a fellow before they will even be pals. No, I shall never marry. The modern girl wouldn't have me. She's looking for too much. She's too big for her shoes."

Is she?

Edith was a quiet suburban girl before the war, content if she got a little tennis in the summer and a few dances in the winter. Father paid her dress bills, which were controlled by mother, and Edith felt passing rich on a weekly half-crown or so as pocket-money. The idea of settling down in a dear little house

Finds Tanlac to be Just What He Had Been Needing for Fifteen Years.

"Yes, Sir, I have gained twenty-six pounds since I commenced taking Tanlac, and I am in such fine condition that I can do as hard a day's work as any man," was the statement made to a Tanlac representative recently by Charles Allen, who lives at 301 Union Street, St. John, N.E.

"My health broke down while I was serving in the Boer War," continued Mr. Allen, "and since that time my condition has been getting worse all the time. For the last five years my stomach has been in an awful fix and no matter what I would eat I was sure to suffer agony afterwards. Every night that came was misery for me for I couldn't sleep but would roll and tumble till time to get up. I was so nervous that when I went on to the office I would almost jump out of my chair. Finally I could go no longer, so I gave up my work and started to the country to take a long rest.

"But before I left I decided to buy a bottle of Tanlac and take it with me, as I had heard and read so much about it. I went on to the country and began to take my Tanlac, and I want to tell you I felt so much better when I finished my first bottle that I was determined to have some more and I walked two miles and got it. It has been some time now since I finished my last bottle but I am feeling even finer to-day than I did then. I am heavier and stronger, and my work is a pleasure to me. My nerves are steady and every night that comes I can sleep as sound as a child and yet in the mornings feeling fine. My appetite is so good that I am almost ashamed of the way I eat, and everything I eat digests perfectly, and I never have the least pain in my stomach. Tanlac has proved to be just the thing I have been needing for over fifteen years, and a medicine that can do what it has done for me certainly deserves every bit of the praise I can give it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative.—advt.

with John Henry, who earned four pounds a week, and had a small income of one hundred a year as well, pleased Edith in these days. It doesn't please her now.

She has just told John Henry that would be existence, but nothing more. She says she wouldn't dream of contemplating it. And John Henry feels raw in consequences.

The war spoilt Edith, as it spoilt lots of girls. Officer friends took her about, she went to restaurants she'd never dreamed of entering, she sat in stalls at the theatre, travelled in first-class carriages, ate expensive chocolates, dashed about in taxis instead of the homely bus, went to smart dances "up West" instead of "local hops," and generally lived in a world above her station for a time.

Sometimes she did "war work," and used the salary in supplementing the things father paid for. Anyhow, she dressed very well, and looked the part she played.

But it has made her discontented. She hates the thought of poverty and making ends meet. She won't marry a poor man, she says. She has indeed become too big for her shoes.

And young men like John Henry are feeling very disgusted with her. A word in their ears. Leave Miss Too-Big-For-Her-Shoes alone. There are other girls. Let her wait for her millionaire—or "the shelf."

Deep Snow
on the Topsails.

Four feet of snow on the Topsails and vicinity has been reported by train hands who came across country on the express that arrived in the city yesterday morning. During Friday and Saturday a fierce N. E. snow storm raged along the Western section of the railway. Coming up so suddenly, the trains were caught without snow-plows, and as a result are making but slow progress, although as yet no reports of hold-ups have been reported. It was raining along the line last night and the snow was given a deep cutting.

SOME NEW WORDS

There are certain words I would like very much to see added to the English language.

Perhaps not having quite so many struggles with that medium of expression you do not feel so keenly as I the defects I am about to mention, but I am sure you must have nibbled your pen over some of them.

If a fairy godmother of language were to grant me three new words this would be my first wish. I want a word which means "he or she," another which means "his or her," and a third which means "him or her."

The Word We Need the Most.

I call these only one wish, but if the fairy godmother were mean enough to rank them as three, I think I should still want them. Again and again I have to restate a sentence in the attempt to get around the lack of a common pronoun. I can well sympathize with a fellow sufferer who writes in one of the contemporary magazines the following paragraph:

"If the gentle reader has ever called up a club and waited to have a member paged, it would be all too cruel to remind her him of tortures that (s)he would perhaps prefer to forget."

Some Synonyms For "Said."

Next, I would like some simple synonyms for "said." True, there are words that approximately take its place—"to utter," "to tell," "to declare"—but if you analyze these carefully, you will find that they have more color to them than "say" and cannot be fitted in where you want a perfectly colorless word. Don't you get deathly sick when you are reading a dialogue in a story, of the eternal repetition of "he said," "she said"? Well, the author gets quite as sick of it, for this is one of his worst problems in the mechanics of writing. Some authors solve it by leaving out the "he said" and "she said." That is good if not continued

SOME NEW WORDS I WANT.

There are certain words I would like very much to see added to the English language. Perhaps not having quite so many struggles with that medium of expression you do not feel so keenly as I the defects I am about to mention, but I am sure you must have nibbled your pen over some of them.

If a fairy godmother of language were to grant me three new words to be my first wish. I want a word which means "he or she," another which means "his or her," and a third which means "him or her."

The Word We Need the Most.

I call these only one wish, but if the fairy godmother were mean enough to rank them as three, I think I should still want them. Again and again I have to recast a sentence in the attempt to get around the lack of a common pronoun. I can well sympathize with a fellow sufferer who writes in one of the contemporary magazines the following paragraph: "If the gentle reader has ever called up a club and waited to have a member page, it would be all too cruel to remind her him of tortures that (she) would perhaps prefer to forget."

Some Synonyms For "Said."

Next I would like some simple synonyms for "said." True, there are words that approximately take its place—"to utter," "to tell," "to declare"—but if you analyze these carefully, you will find that they have more color to them than "say" and cannot be fitted in where you want a perfectly colorless word. Don't you get deathly sick when you are reading a dialogue in a story, of the eternal repetition of "he said," "she said," "Wife," the author gets quite as sick of it, for this is one of his worst problems in the mechanics of writing. Some authors solve it by leaving out the "he said" and "she said." That is good if not continued too long, but if it is, you find yourself going back to the beginning of the conversation and doing an en-meeny-myn-mo stunt to find out which said which. Others try to get away from the eternal "said" by inventing substitutes. There is one author who is so painfully adroit in this respect that I have given up reading her. I open a book of hers at random and this is what I read: "Take after her father," she beamed. "Well, good night," she beamed. "Eh, jumped the young doctor." "Madame" he bowed,—all consecutive.

Next I will have a word to use in place of the conjunction "then." "Therefore" is the only one word synonym advanced by the "sonny" but again I deny the idea. For instance, "Then you won't go." Does "Therefore you won't go" carry just the same feeling?

Open the House to a Back Door Visitor.

Last, I wish I could open the front door of our language to a word which has always been a back door visitor, welcomed by the children but driven sternly away by careful mothers—the little word "ain't." I think we need that word as the contraction of "Am I not." Surely, a people as busy as we cannot get along without contraction. Surely, anything so awkward as "amn't I" will never stand, and surely "ain't I" is better than the absolutely incorrect "aren't I." Why not let it in, then, to serve in this one capacity? Other languages have legitimized similar contractions. Why need we alone remain cold hearted to a word we really need just because it was outside the pale?

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

OTHER LOVES.
I've pledged my love to her entire. To her I pay complete devotion; Her happiness is my desire, And yet she calls it just a notion. "You still have other loves," says she, "Deep in your heart are little nooks Where I can never hope to be." And then she cites my love for books.

"I'm yours till life shall pass away!" Full many a time have I protested; "Your's only till my dying day!" And she has smiled and then suggested.

My violent vows are partly true. "Of brutal man you're just a type Says she, "for well you know that you Are still devoted to your pipe."

"My heart is wholly yours," I cry, "You rule it now and shall forever!" And then she tells me in reply, "That isn't so and will be never. To other loves you fondly cling Nor can I make you cast them off, I am not sill and everything!" And then she cites my love for golf.

Do We Smoke Too Much?

£ 188,758,100 Spent Last Year.

"Tobacco smoking by women is the great danger," says Mr. R. P. Moncrieff, a Fellow of the Statistical Society, in "The National Tobacco Bill for 1917 and 1918," prepared for the Anti-Tobacco and Anti-Narcotic League.

"If the women of the nation become habitual smokers, as they rapidly are doing, what effect will it have on the future generation?"

It is estimated by Mr. Moncrieff that we spent £188,753,100 in 1918 on tobacco and smoking accessories, an increase, mainly due to the heavy tax, of £34,340,000 over the cost in 1917. This sum is about £9 per family of five, sufficient to pay the rent of a cottage in the country.

Apart from Army and Navy consumption, Mr. Moncrieff says we smoked over 90 million pounds of cigarettes, or 1,000 cigarettes for every man, woman and child in the country. Only 20 per cent of the tobacco was smoked in pipes, and 77 per cent in cigarettes, and 3 per cent in cigars. Army and Navy consumption was 45,123,900 lb., valued duty free at £11,584,630.

The "Tobacco Bill" shows that in home and foreign manufactures we consumed:

- 4,190,057 lb. of cigars.
- 23,919,380 lb. pipe tobacco and snuff.
- 90,805,463 lb. cigarettes

in addition to 45,698,900 lb. consumed in the Army, Navy and Mercantile Service.

WEATHER.
All moods are due to weather, I often sadly think; when rain clouds get together they put me on the blink. They chafe my sunny spring, so you'd with me condescend; they freeze, or pretty near it, the current of my soul. Outdoors it's raining, raining, with steady beat and slow; the night wind is complaining of some uncharted woe. It tells of ghastly sorrows that long dead people knew, and hints that our tomorrows will all be lemons, too. And I have grim foreboding that evil is in store; disaster, stern, corroding, is waiting at the door. But now the dawn is breaking, the night has journeyed by; and I, from sleep awaking, behold a cloudless sky. And I am blithe and chipper, and happy as can be, as I pour down a dipper of fragrant wormwood tea. How could I be so silly, I ask, with great disdain; how could my feet grow chilly because of wind and rain? But when once more the torrent pours down from leaden skies, and when the winds abhorrent fill all the night with sighs, the fancies will come to me, as always they have come; and I'll be sad and gloomy, and sick and out of plumb.

A Pertinent Question

Now that the Squires-Coaker combination has been elected, it is pertinent to ask when the price of fish will be raised to the guaranteed figure of Mr. Coaker, viz., $14 and $12 for Shore and Labrador cure respectively? The fishery situation to-day in the foreign markets differs greatly from that of war and even pre-war days.

Another reason for this reduction in prices is the fact that the credit of the chief markets has been so severely crippled that the European countries are only buying in small quantities, and at the lowest possible prices.

Should Mr. Coaker do so it will prove a big boon to the majority of the fishermen, as the present period of rain storms has caused considerable delay in the shipment of fish products, and of course it goes without saying that those people, from whom Mr. Coaker has already bought fish this fall, will be beneficiaries of his proposed ruling re the regulating of the price of fish.

Bulgars Must Pay.

Coincident with the ratification of the Peace Treaty by Austria, is the receipt by the Bulgarian Government of a reply from the Allied Governments that the terms of the Treaty handed out to Bulgaria, must be fulfilled. The terms imposed upon Bulgaria by the Allies, although not nearly so drastic as those imposed upon Germany and Austria, were yet sufficient to teach the Bulgars that their actions in the war were such as to call forth stringent measures from those dictating the Treaty, in order to prevent a repetition of the scenes enacted by Bulgaria in her fight with and for Germany.

Marine Tragedy Feared.

The Intelligence Department yesterday received a message saying that the S. S. Polaris was 80 miles east of Sable Island and needed immediate assistance, the S. S. Straffan reported that she was 280 miles distant and proceeding to her assistance. The disabled ship was listed to about 60 degrees and the crew were compelled to take to open boats.

Steamer in Distress.

A message received to-day from a steamer, the H. F. Morst, gave her position as 598 miles N. E. of Cape Race, and asking for assistance as her boilers were out, and batteries were weak. The message was sent at 1:30 Greenwich mean time.

Telegraph Lines Interrupted.

Both the Reid Co. and Government telegraph lines were interrupted yesterday and Saturday, by the severe storm of the past few days, and business was practically demoralized. Until the lines are again in working order, it will be impossible to ascertain the exact amount of damage done by the elements.

Glencoe Delayed By Storm.

As a result of the greatest gale of many years sweeping over Cape Breton, during the last forty-eight hours, all the shipping there had all anchors out, and full steam on engines, ready for an emergency. The seas were breaking from Cranberry Head to Low Point, making it impossible for anything in the shipping line to leave or enter Sydney Harbor.

Cartwright Mission Entertainment.

This evening at the Canon Wood Hall a number of little girls interested in the Cartwright (Labrador) Mission are holding an entertainment and will serve afternoon teas to all who attend. Rev. Mr. Gordon, who is now in the city, on his way to England will deliver an address.

"Ferm" Enquiry.

The case for the Crown in the Ferm enquiry was finished Saturday afternoon before Judge Morris. The enquiry will be continued this evening, when Mr. Howley, K.C. for the underwriters, and Mr. Gibbs for the Captain, will be heard.

Running Match Postponed.

In order to give the competitors more time for practice, the running exhibition which was to have taken place on Nov. 12, has been postponed till Nov. 25th. Apart from the relay race, there will also be a five-mile race for the championship of Newfoundland, also an amateur race for boys 17 years and under. Entries will be received at Miss Malone's, King's Bridge, up till Nov. 15th.

Train Movements.

Saturday's west bound express arrived at Bishop's Falls at 5:50 a.m. yesterday.
Yesterday's west bound express left Benton at 7:35 a.m.
Yesterday's east bound express left Bishop's Falls at 9:35 a.m.

Church Lads' Brigade.

This Brigade was founded in London, England, by the late Lieut. Col. Geo. on the 11th November, 1891, and organized in Newfoundland in the year 1892 by the Rector of the Cathedral, Rev. J. I. Thompson, with the following officers as the first staff: Captain Melville, A.D.C. to His Excellency the Governor; Capt. C. Wearling Hayward (who is at present here from British Columbia on a visit to his mother, Mrs. A. O. Hayward); and Lieut. Col. Franklin, D.S.O., who joined up later. Lieut. Col. Franklin is now British Trade Commissioner for East Africa. The first Private, No. 1, was Pte. Harold Blackler and amongst those on the active list to-day is No. 13, Lance Corporal Williams, who now holds the rank of Major and Battalion Quartermaster. The 1st Battalion held its first meeting in the basement of the Mission Church, now Springdale Street School. The Brigade during the 27 years of its existence in Newfoundland, has had its ups and downs—but mostly "ups." It made great progress under Lieut. Col. Sir Joseph Outerbridge, the Brigade's first Colonel, nobly backed up by Lieut. Col. Franklin, who did all the pioneer work of establishing the institution on a lasting foundation. When Lieut. Col. G. Rendell C.B.E., succeeded Lieut. Col. Outerbridge, the Brigade occupied the building lately used by the Highlanders, King's Road, as their armoury—the building being formerly used as a rink. After a few years Colonel Rendell decided to sell out and build the present magnificent Armoury occupied by the Brigade on Harvey Road, the largest and best equipped Church Lads' Brigade Armoury in the world. The wisdom of Col. Rendell's action has been proved. He rallied his friends around him and aided nobly by the late Mrs. R. G. Rendell and other kind friends who worked hard in organizing bazaars and other means of raising money till sufficient funds were in sight. Col. Rendell "put his hand to the plough and never looked back" until the Armoury was completed and paid for in full, handing over to the Brigade after his twelve years' work, an Armoury which is valued at thirty thousand dollars, which has not only done its part as a home for the Brigade, but under its roof trained men "Better than the Best," whose records on the fields in France will never be obliterated in the history of our country. Yesterday morning a special Thanksgiving Communion Service was held in the Cathedral at 8 o'clock, Lieut. Col. Goodridge, Col. Rendell, officers and lads attending. At 3 p.m., a choral service was also given. The Battalion Chaplain, Rev. J. Brinton, Rev. Canon Smith and Rev. E. R. Nicholls, of Brooklyn, B.B., took the service. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. Brinton from the text, 4th Chapter Philippians part of the 1st verse: "Stand fast in the Lord." The Chaplain admonished all ranks to "stand fast" always in everything that stands for true Christian manliness, to be of good courage, always remembering the Brigade motto, "Fight the Good Fight." Yesterday's parade was one of the largest ever seen. Many "Old Comrades" were present under Sergt. J. Wiseman.

At the Majestic.

A splendid exhibition will be screened at the Majestic Theatre this evening, when the show will be made up of three pictures. The Artcraft picture, "Under the Top," featuring the world-famous Fred Stone, who will take the lead, while a scenic and a comedy will be put on. The feature story is a circus one, and deals with life under canvas. Fred Stone loves a circus much as other boys do and he falls in love with the daughter of a circus-owner. He stays in love, as other boys don't. The owner dies and the girl is placed in the care of a retired equestrienne by the men who take charge of the show. The latter plan to marry the girl, but find that they are "up against" Jimmy, the hero of the story. The story is very interesting right through and will be sure to hold every one from start to finish.

Shipping Notes.

No word has been received yet of the S. S. Lake Ellenora. She was reported on Saturday as having in tow the S. S. Avondale and was making for this port. The vessel Senator, bound from Gloucester to this port with a cargo of general freight and oil, was caught for 4 days in a severe storm, had to put into Shelburne, to await favourable weather. The S. S. Fausdale left port this morning for New York. The S. S. General Morison is taking bunker coal at A. J. Harvey & Co's. The S. S. Sachem sailed at 3 o'clock Sunday for this port. She is due to-morrow night. It is expected she will leave here for Liverpool on Friday next.

Schooner Founders.

CREW AND PASSENGERS TAKEN OFF. Sydney, Nov. 4.—Seven seamen and four passengers from the foundered Newfoundland schooner Nerette, of Bonavista, were landed here this morning by the steamer Germanicus, en route from Holland for Montreal.

The Nerette, dismantled in Thursday's gale, sprang a leak and was drifting with decks awash on the Grand Banks, when sighted by the steamer Monday morning. The Germanicus with great difficulty lowered a boat and rescued all on board, including one woman. The crew of the Nerette, which is owned by Bonavista, lost all their personal effects, including their money. The names of those picked up are: W. Carter, master; H. Carter, first mate; E. Carter, seaman; L. Carter, seaman; A. Pond, seaman; R. Keats, seaman; I. Akerman, seaman; Passengers—E. Crocker, Mrs. Carter, captain's wife; Q. Carter, captain's son, and A. Carter, captain's nephew. Captain J. Olive is master of the Germanicus.

At the Majestic.

A splendid exhibition will be screened at the Majestic Theatre this evening, when the show will be made up of three pictures. The Artcraft picture, "Under the Top," featuring the world-famous Fred Stone, who will take the lead, while a scenic and a comedy will be put on. The feature story is a circus one, and deals with life under canvas. Fred Stone loves a circus much as other boys do and he falls in love with the daughter of a circus-owner. He stays in love, as other boys don't. The owner dies and the girl is placed in the care of a retired equestrienne by the men who take charge of the show. The latter plan to marry the girl, but find that they are "up against" Jimmy, the hero of the story. The story is very interesting right through and will be sure to hold every one from start to finish.

Shipping Notes.

No word has been received yet of the S. S. Lake Ellenora. She was reported on Saturday as having in tow the S. S. Avondale and was making for this port. The vessel Senator, bound from Gloucester to this port with a cargo of general freight and oil, was caught for 4 days in a severe storm, had to put into Shelburne, to await favourable weather. The S. S. Fausdale left port this morning for New York. The S. S. General Morison is taking bunker coal at A. J. Harvey & Co's. The S. S. Sachem sailed at 3 o'clock Sunday for this port. She is due to-morrow night. It is expected she will leave here for Liverpool on Friday next.

Not What the Hun Intended.

No vestige of the damage, slight though it was, inflicted by the bomb from a German aeroplane on the two lions which guard Cleopatra's Needle has been suffered to remain. The Needle and her majestic attendants are as whole and sound as they were before 1914; but the same cannot be said of the peaceful retired Lincoln's Inn. Scars are still to be seen on its walls, and the sight is incongruous in a place of such dignity and calm.

Getting Its Own Back.

Evidently the motor vehicle is not to have things all its way in persuading farmers and manufacturers that horses are comparatively useless relics of a past stage of civilization. An advertising campaign, it is said, impends in favor of the horse; and it is boldly stated by the New York State Hay & Grain Dealers' Association, conscious no doubt that motors eat no hay and grain, that 80 per cent of commercial hauling can be done 50 per cent cheaper with horses than with motor trucks. Such a campaign, say its projectors, is necessary because already the misleading propaganda of automobile, truck, and tractor manufacturers is having an undesirable effect, and where there used to be at least one colt a year gambolling on long legs about the pasture of the average American farm, two farms out of three nowadays have no colts. There is danger, as things are going, suggest these friends of the four-footed motor, that some day the farmers, like Richard in the play, will want a horse and be unable to get one.

Notice!

To Patrons of the Blue Puttee, RAWLINS' CROSS. The Blue Puttee has been sold to Miss Power, who takes the business over on Monday, November 10th. REPORTING UNDESIRABLES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. Deportation of all aliens, engaged in "Reds" activities, has been determined upon by the Department of Justice so Attorney General Palmer announced to-day. Details of a wide-spread clean up of radicals, last night and to-day, show that more than two hundred were arrested in Eastern cities.

INJUNCTION WILL BE PRESSED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. Injunction proceedings against officials of the united mine workers of America will be pressed at Indianapolis to-day, Attorney General Palmer announced. John L. Lewis, acting president of the miners union, having refused to accede to the Governments demand that the strike order be recalled, pending mediation of controllers.

SCENE OF ACTION SHIFTED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. Scene of action in soft coal strike controversy was shifted to-day to Indianapolis, where the Government and miners representatives will meet in the Federal Court, to fight out their issues on a temporary injunction, resorbable at ten o'clock this morning, restraining strike leaders from further activity. Although no statement concerning such move was made, it was believed probable that Samuel Campers, President of the American Federation of Labor, would seek another conference to-day with Attorney General Palmer, in an effort to settle the strike prior to the opening of injunction proceedings in Indianapolis. Numerous conferences already have been held but so far apparently they have been devoid of results. The material side of the strike, as shown by available reports, was not altered noticeably, both sides claiming gains.

WHOLESALE ARRESTS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. About 500 men and women, suspected of being implicated in anarchist riot, were seized late last night in series of swift raids, conducted in fourteen cities.

INDUSTRIAL BARBARISM.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. Characterizing all strikes as "Industrial Barbarism," and declaring that there is not the place in this country, either for industrial despotism or labor sepphorim, the Senate Committee authorized to investigate the steel strike, presented reports to-day covering its hearings, both in Washington and in Pittsburgh, and criticizing both workers and the employees in the controversy, which resulted in at least a partial disruption of the steel industry. The committee's main conclusion concerned in by all the members, was expressed in a statement that "the public has a right to demand that capital shall not arrogate to itself the right to determine, in its own way, this industrial question and it is the same as to labor, and a duty is upon congress to provide some way of adjusting these difficulties." It is recommended that congress authorize the establishment of some such mediation agency, with well defined powers, as the recently desecrated War Labor Board.

POINCARÉ FOR ENGLAND.

PARIS, Nov. 8. (Havas)—President Poincaré, accompanied by Madame Poincaré and Foreign Minister Pichon, left Paris tonight for London to return the visit of King George to France.

AUTOCRATIC PROCEEDINGS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. Holding that the action of the Governments injunction proceedings against striking bituminous coal miners to be "so autocratic as to stagger the human mind," the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor declared in a statement issued after a four hour meeting, that the miners walkout was justified and proposed for the strike the entire support of organized labor, and asked aid and endorsement for it from the public. The Lever Act, under which the Government acted in the court proceeding, was never enacted to apply against the miners was classed as "an injustice, not only to workers but to all liberty loving Americans." The action was taken without the participation of William Green, Secy. of the mine workers, who is a member, and all the remaining principal officers are present.

NO CASUALTIES.

NAMUR, Belgium, Nov. 10. There were no casualties in the explosion of a large ammunition dump at Fort Diave, on Saturday. Only 14 of fourteen British sentries on duty had answered for roll call during the day, and it was feared others had been killed. Later, however, the missing men were reported.

ANTICRATIC PROCEEDINGS.

Holding that the action of the Government's injunction proceedings against striking bituminous coal miners to be "so autocratic as to stagger the human mind," the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor declared in a statement issued after a four hour meeting, that the miners' walkout was justified and promised for the strike the entire support of organized labor, and asked aid and endorsement for it from the public. MINERS OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. In a statement issued this evening, regarding the cause of the strike of Bituminous Coal Miners, the Council of the American Federation of Labor declares that officials of United Mine Workers did everything in their power to avert this great industrial struggle. The statement characterized the Government's injunction action as "an invasion of the rights of the miners," intended to starve miners into submission by cutting off their strike benefits, and demanded the withdrawal of the injunction secured Saturday at Indianapolis, "to restore confidence in the institutions of our country and respect to our courts." The statement concludes, "by all the facts in the case the miners strike is justified. We are convinced of the justice of the miners case, and we pledge to the miners the full support of the American Federation of Labor, and appeal to workers and citizens of our country to give like endorsement and aid to men engaged in this tremendous struggle."

GOTHAM'S PREPARATIONS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. A program of entertainment for the Prince of Wales, who will arrive in New York on November 12, was outlined to-day, which was reminiscent of the welcome given nearly sixty years ago to the Prince's grandfather, King Edward the Seventh. Among the more important features will be a special gala performance at the Metropolitan Opera House, visit to West Point and reception, which the Prince will give on board the Renown to thousand school children. Secretary of State Lansing to-day telegraphed Mayor Hylan, official notification of Prince's plan to visit New York.

JELICOE IN CANADA.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 9. The battle cruiser New Zealand arrived at Esquimalt at 2.30 Saturday afternoon, beginning Admiral Viscount Jellicoe's Canadian lap of his Empire tour. In an interview Viscount Jellicoe took exception to cabled despatches from Australia, which intimated that he had mapped out a plan for naval co-operation between Great Britain and the Dominions in the Far East. He had been invited by several Dominions to consult with them on the question of naval defence, and it was far from his purpose to lay down any hard and fast rule whereby that would be accomplished.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER.

LONDON, Nov. 10. Mustapha Kamal Pasha, head of the nationalist Turkish Government set up in Asia Minor, has proposed an Alliance with Nikolai Lenin, Russian Bolshevik Premier, according to an exchange telegraphic despatch from Copenhagen.

WILL ARRIVE THIS EVENING.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. The Prince of Wales and his party will arrive in the United States at Rouses point, Monday evening, Nov. 10, and reach Washington at noon Tuesday, Nov. 11. Secretary Lansing left Washington this afternoon to meet the Prince at Rouses Point, and will accompany the party to Washington, Tuesday, Nov. 11. Secretary Lansing shall will meet them on arrival here as the representative of President Wilson.

Editing a Newspaper.

Editing a newspaper is a pleasant business—if you can stand it. If it contains any advertisements the subscribers claim they take too much space. If there is a scarcity of advertising, it is unpopular, and the people won't have it. If we attend church regularly, they say we do it for effect. If we stay away from church they say we are monstrous heathenish. If we accept an invitation to a wedding, they say we are invited to "write it up." If we are on the street much, they say we neglect our business. If we avoid going on the street, they say we don't hustle around after the news. If we reject a long-winded communication, its author becomes furiously enraged and discontinues his paper. If we publish lengthy communications, our subscribers say we lack discretion and put it in to fill up. If we omit to decorate our office on National Days they say we lack enterprise and there isn't a drop of patriotic blood in our degenerated carcass. If we omit jokes, they say we are poor, miserable fossils. If we are single they say we are too helpless to get married. If we are married, they say it's a pity for our wives. We are liable to receive these raps and any more, and we are always ready to receive visitors. Of course we do not claim there is any work in running a newspaper. Everybody knows it's a snap.—Ex.

New Chinese Paper.

A new weekly newspaper has made its appearance in Paris. A new paper is no event in the French capital, but the new weekly is something quite out of the ordinary. It is, in fact, the first Chinese paper to be printed in France. Mr. Fu is responsible for its publication, which, he considers, meets a real need at the present time, since some 30,000 of his fellow countrymen live and work in France. Some difficulty has been experienced in getting the paper started, owing to the total absence of Chinese characters in the printing establishments of Paris. The text of the paper has to be hand-written, then photographed, then clichés are taken. From 8,000 to 10,000 copies are circulated at 10 cents apiece.

Jonah and the Whale.

Recently a correspondent of Robert Page Lincoln asked the well known angler his view of Jonah and the whale. Not feeling quite capable of answering this particular question Mr. Lincoln asked Dr. David Starr Jordan his opinion. Dr. Jordan wrote to Mr. Lincoln as follows: "I believe that it is commonly thought that the story of Jonah, like the story of Job and ancient tales in the Bible is of the nature of poetic fable, and valued, not for its literal truth but for the lesson it may teach. "One of the most unfortunate things in religious history is the literalizing of words of men who talked with Oriental figures of speech. "In comparing religious truth to the shade of the great rock in a weary land," it was not meant that the details of the phenomenon should correspond to those of a shade in a desert. This is the explanation which was given by the well known Israelite, Rabbi Voorzanger. "The ordinary whale of the various species has only a narrow throat and feeds on smaller organisms. The sperm whale, which does not enter the Mediterranean so far as I know, has a much larger throat and jaws with strong teeth. "According to Linnaeus the whale that swallowed Jonah was a great white shark (Carcharodon carcharias) which has been known to swallow men—but usually in pieces. "I secured one at one time at Soquel, California, thirty feet long with a partly grown sea lion of 100 pounds which it had swallowed whole. But the sea lion, though a tough animal, did not escape, and was in a rather poor condition when I found him. "I believe that it is unfortunate that the great and noble parts of the Bible should be obscured by insistence on literalism in Oriental poetry."—New York "Sun."

Llewellyn Club.

The members of the Llewellyn Club will meet at Canon Wood Hall at 8 o'clock this evening when the Executive Committee for the year will be elected. Mr. Dunbar, a prominent Canadian lawyer and business man will be present and will give a Lecture on "Newfoundland's Greatest Need and How to Meet It." Mr. Dunbar is visiting the city in connection with a movement of vital importance to the whole of the Dominion, and it is hoped that every member of the Club will make an effort to attend and bring a friend with him. A cordial invitation is extended to all men of the city to hear this lecture.

A Suggestion.

Now that the political air has been cleared in the city we offer the suggestion that the APPEARANCE thereof be improved as much as is compatible with maintenance of expenditure, and that a couple of Municipal Council employees be delegated to remove wire if not all of the posters and other signs from the telegraph poles and fences. As it will be seen upon any thought the best time to accomplish that, is while the posters are wet, which would be during a rain shower or immediately following. However, the officials of the Council need not be reminded of their duty nor of the method to be adopted in its execution. We merely mention the matter in passing.

What People Are Saying About the Great Problems of the Day.

OUR DUTY. "Can we sum up our duty as Christian citizens in the face of the present crisis?" asks the Church Times. "First, there must be plain living; giving no handle for the accusation of luxury. It is difficult to estimate the harm that is done by selfish luxury and a vulgar display of wealth. Secondly, there must be hard work, setting an example of unrelenting industry. But, thirdly, and chiefly, there must be a heightened religious emphasis."

BLESS HIS INNOCENCE. "The City Editor of the Times is much annoyed with the Government for failing to produce the accounts of the railways. Bless his innocence!" says Mr. Sidney Webb in the Daily Herald. "Does he think that any department is anxious to expose the extraordinary blunders of its chiefs; or to reveal why it is that Sir Eric Geddes has never been able to substantiate his wild myths of 'subsidies out of the taxes' to the extent of 60 or 100 millions?"

"TYRANNY OF A MINORITY." "The present British Government, if it represents anything at all, represents the British nation," says the New York Sun. "But the railway unions demand that the Government should represent them above all people. Their strike is a war waged against the whole nation by a highly organized and closely centralized minority of power which fights its war exactly as a highly organized and closely centralized German Power fought its war against Europe, regardless of the terrible cost to men, women, and children."

A RAILWAY PRESERVE? "Is Great Britain a nation, or is it the preserve of railwaymen, miners, and transport workers?" asks the New York Times. It says: "There is a British nation as well as a Union of Railwaymen, who have forgotten that they have any duties, that they have anything but 'rights,' that is, the power of their numbers."

A SERVICE TO OTHER COUNTRIES. "The way in which the British Government handled the railway strike, which threatened such disastrous consequences to the country, deserves to be cited as an example," says the Figaro. "The British Government has done an inestimable service, not only to Great Britain, but to neighboring countries where similar difficulties may arise to-morrow."

A CERTAIN CONFUSION. "When a Prime Minister says he will never negotiate until the men go back to work and does in substance negotiate before they go back to work; when he begins by describing the organizers of the strike as anarchists conspiring against society, and ends by lurching with them; when terms are described as definite which are afterwards extended, there is certainly excuse for a certain confusion in the public mind," says the Morning Post. "We might call it a draw. As to the concessions themselves, we believe that the men had a reasonable ground of apprehension to which these concessions give reasonable satisfaction."

"WORK, PRODUCE, CO-OPERATE." "Work, produce, co-operate, save," is the exhortation issued to-day to the people of the United States by the Secretaries of War, the Navy, and Commerce, composing the Council of National Defence.

OUR WISE ANCESTORS. "In all industrial disputes—as in international disputes—the great force that makes for peace is instructed Public Opinion—and it is the chief function of Parliament to bring out the essential facts and arguments upon which such Public Opinion depends," says Lord Robert Cecil. "In a word, our ancestors were wise when they adopted parliamentary institutions." PUBLIC OPINION AND THE KINEMA. "A new 'organ of public opinion' has arrived in these latter days," says the Manchester Guardian. "The cinema has begun to play a good second fiddle to the newspaper, both as a means of announcing the latest events and as a medium for blazing forth the arguments of both sides in the great quarrel."

AUSTRALIA'S LIVING WAGE. In the New South Wales House of Assembly, on October 1, Mr. Holman, the Premier, announced that the Board of Trade had decided to increase the living wage from 60s. to 77s. 6d. a week. The Premier explained that the burden on New South Wales industry would be thereby increased by 6 1/2 millions sterling.

LIFT OFF CORNS! Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers—No pain!

Magic! Just drop a little Frezzone on that touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug! Try Frezzone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Frezzone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.

Obituary. MRS. MARGARET DRYSDALE. There passed peacefully away at Carbonear on Saturday last, a greatly esteemed and venerable lady, in the person of Mrs. Margaret Drysdale, relict of the late Andrew Drysdale, so well known as the Postmaster of Hr. Grace. Mrs. Drysdale was one of the elder of the seven daughters of the late John McCarthy of Carbonear and since her husband's death has been residing with her sisters, the Misses McCarthy at Mae Villa. For many years an invalid, she was the recipient of the most devoted care and attention from her sisters, while her cousin the late Mrs. Drysdale is survived by three sisters and one brother to whom the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.

Obituary. There passed away at Shoal Harbor, on Oct. 28th, Dinah, the beloved wife of William Miller. Deceased had been a great sufferer for more than three years from tuberculosis with other severe complications, and death was a happy release to her. She leaves to mourn their loss her husband, one little boy, Lawrence, three years old, one brother and three sisters, beside her many friends. She died in the hope of a better resurrection, and a few days before her death expressed a hope that she would soon be released from her suffering which was intense. The funeral service at the home was conducted by Mr. Caleb Tuck, J.P.

Storm-Tossed Prospero Makes Port.

The Government coastal boat Prospero, Capt. Wes. Kean, made port at seven o'clock Saturday evening, after the most stormy trip of the season. She brought a small quantity of freight and these passengers: Messrs. Peyton, A. G. Luther, Bartlett, Bolton, A. Luther, Penney, Hill, Richards, Green, Crocker, Rev. Godden, Brothers, Stuckless, Tobin, Blackmore, Hogan, Mursell, Bradley, Heath, Tobin, Warford, Osmond, Bignell, Humphries, Barbour, Kean, Jacobs, J. C. Curtis, Chaytor, W. Clements, Wight, Dr. Kean, Capt. Edgewood, Capt. Amussen, Jacobs, Messdames Penney, Bussey, Hillier, Phillip, Bradbury, Bignell; Misses Pilgrim, Stone, Mursell, Oake, Vatcher, Barbour, Clements, White and 40 in steage.

It Is Style That Costs Money.

"According to the notice of Attorney-General Palmer, of the United States, who is in charge of the highest of living enquiry and its remedial measures, a woman, when she buys a ready-made coat or frock, pays from 8 to 15 per cent. for 'style.' This is an intangible thing, or else a very tangible one," says the Ottawa Citizen. "It is cut in general distinction, which, while not represented in material, is, nevertheless, a very essential part of the garment in feminine eyes, which are all that count in the circumstances. Paul Poiret, the famous French designer, was an unsuccessful artist until he found a fortune in designing clothes. It would be unfair to say that Poiret does not earn his money; he supplies the brains while other people execute his ideas, just as an architect designs a house, while others do the actual work of construction. Most women, in any event, prefer cheaper material to being without style in their clothes. Every fresh creation is duplicated in less expensive material and there is no copyright to be violated. And it is scarcely likely that standardisation of women's clothes will ever become the law in countries where individuality is not intererred with. With men, it is, different. The silk hat, for example, survives wars and floods and rules supreme with the 'Prince Albert.' Our dinner clothes remain unchanged through generations; indeed, they become simpler, if we recall the time when the ruffled shirt front gave us a sheet-iron front of the present day. As for shoes we have a sort of Hobson's choice, and only in the street car advs. do such collars encircle the shapely necks of determined looking young men.

The whole thing appears to be a reversal of the natural process. In nature the male bird has the most gorgeous plumage in order to attract the admiration of the lady bird. Not that feminine dress has always or even been usual for that motive, for some male bipeds have that art down to a far more scientific basis, but modern conditions demand that a woman look her best on all occasions, while it is often an advantage to the 'old man' to look as seedy as possible. Perhaps that is the true explanation, and, if so, it is worse than useless to attempt to induce women to forego style. As well ask the average man to wear a plush hat instead of the battered covering which he affects for the 'old bean.'"

Personal Mention. Dr. Levisconte is at present in the city from King's Cove. He is a guest at the Crossbie. Mr. R. Grouchy arrived in town from Grand Falls Saturday last. ### Published by Authority

His Excellency the Governor has received the cablegram, as under, from the Rt. Hon. the Secretary of State for the Colonies. It is desired that the people of Newfoundland shall,
at 11 a.m. on Tuesday next, 11th November, suspend all normal activities for the space of TWO MINUTES, during which time all thoughts will be concentrated on reverent remembrance of the Glorious Dead. In St. John's
the gun at Cabot Tower will be fired at the hour above named,
as a signal.

Colonial Secretary.

Col. Secretary's Department,
Nov. 7th, 1919.

Code Telegram from Secretary of State:

(Received 7th November, 1919.)

I am commanded by H. M. the King to send you for immediate publication the following message which is addressed to all the peoples of the Empire.

"TO ALL MY PEOPLE.—

"Tuesday next, November 11th, is the first anniversary of the armistice which staved the world wide carnage of the four preceding years and marked the victory of right and freedom. I believe that my people in every part of the Empire fervently wish to perpetuate the memory of that great deliverance and of those who laid down their lives to achieve it.

"To afford an opportunity for the universal expression of this feeling, it is my desire and hope that at the hour when the armistice came into force, the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, there might be for the brief space of two minutes a complete suspension of all our normal activities. During that time, except in the rare cases where this might be impracticable, all work, all sound and all locomotion should cease so that in perfect stillness the thoughts of everyone may be concentrated on reverent remembrance of the glorious dead.

"No elaborate organisation appears to be necessary. At a given signal, which could easily be arranged to suit the circumstances of each locality, I believe that we shall all gladly interrupt our business and pleasure, whatever it may be, and unite in this simple service of silence and remembrance.

GEORGE R.I."

This will be published in the press here to-morrow morning.
Arrangements are being made for the general observance of the two minutes' silence at eleven o'clock next Tuesday.
Trains will be stopped on the railways, traffic on the streets, ships as far as possible at sea,
and every effort will be made to get work suspended everywhere, in schools, shops, mines and factories and to ensure complete silence. His Majesty hopes that your Ministers may be willing to arrange for a similar observance.

It is, of course, impracticable owing to distance, that the ceremony should synchronise throughout the Empire. It is therefore suggested that eleven a.m. local time should be adopted everywhere. Similar message is being sent to India and to every Dominion and Colony in the Empire.

MILNER.

Drama in Parliament.

The drama in the House of Commons is nearly always the drama of the unexpected. Many a time, in the afternoon question hour, in the calm evening, or in the pale hours of approaching dawn, have I seen the House of Commons at one moment as placid as the surface of a mill-pond, and the next moment roaring with the fiercest storms.

It was a quiet afternoon, with a dead calm in the House, when suddenly I saw Victor Grayson jump up, break the rules, and go out, inch by inch, in a dramatic scene which was ended by Victor Grayson standing by the exit, turning on the Labour Members, with curling lip and blazing eyes, and shouting "Murderers!"

Nothing could have been calmer than that evening, when the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, was standing at the table making a long, involved statement of some intricate financial problems, when suddenly something whizzed past his head which just missed killing him. It was a bag of four, or other white substance, flung the whole length of the chamber with amazing force, and I shall never forget my sight of it as it whizzed past Mr. Asquith's head, fortunately missing him, and smashed at the foot of the Speaker's chair.

Bonar Law's Quick Whiff.

A little while ago, in the throes of this session, the House became vehement and excited, and there was a threat to hold up the Government, or bring about a bad defeat in the Dis-vision Lobbies over some matter on which the House felt strongly.

It was on the Transport Bill. What would happen? The place was tense with questioning excitement. Would they endanger the Transport Bill, one of the greatest reconstructive measures of all time? In dramatic silence, the Attorney General and the massive pink-faced figure of Sir Eric Geddes stole out through the shadows behind the Speaker's chair towards the private rooms of Ministers, and in a few minutes they brought in Mr. Bonar Law, who weighed up the House, gave them what looked like a concession—which did not hurt the power of the Bill at all—and in five minutes, just after midnight, the whole thundercloud had been lifted away.

George Lansbury was a heavy-voiced, big-stated, wild-eyed M.P. some years ago. One day he grew so pas-ionate over the Women's Suffrage question that he sprang from his place, ran up the House, stood over the sitting form of the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, and, shouting himself almost hoarse, he shook his big fist in the face of the Prime Minister. Mr. Asquith, of course, took no
notice.

"Sind for the Guar-r-rs!"
There have been many moments of drama with Mr. Philip Snowden, raising his injured form by clasping the bench before him with his hands, and hissing out scorns and sarcasms from his pallid face, thin lips, and blazing eyes. There have been many dramas when the big, boy Michael Flavin, of Kerry, enjoying the excitement with true Irish relish, has shouted out:
"Sind for the police. Sind for the Horse Guar-r-rs!"

Such wild scenes were usually made still more picturesque by the wild, joyous, and soaring skirl of Mr.
Reddy, who loved to haunt one of the back benches of the Irish Party and voice Gaelic feelings with a mighty note that had in it the power of a steam-siren and the weird, haunting call of a Connemara spirit.

Drama in Parliament has many sorts and many causes. I have seen two sprites of the back benches—two then little-known men—leading a tremendous attack on Mr. Balfour's Government, in which the House, a cauldron of noise, had Mr. Alfred Lyttelton standing at the table for a solid hour without being able to get one complete sentence.

Who were those two disorderly back-bench sprites? One has since been Home Secretary, Minister of Munitions, and Secretary of State for War, in the person of Mr. Winston Churchill, and the other was a Welshman who has lived to become the present Prime Minister.

A Short Cut to Fame.

One day, when the House was quietly droning along, I saw a man climb over from the Strangers' Gallery to the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery.
He climbed over the front of the gallery near the clock, and, clutching the carved woodwork with his hands, he hung full length downward over the floor of the House.

Several M. P.'s were standing below his feet, blissfully ignorant of the man sword of Damocles that hung over their heads. I saw the man quiver in the air for a moment.

"Look out!" cried many members to those standing a few feet below the intruder's boots.

They jumped aside, the man dropped, fell on his feet, doubled up, and lay in a heap on the floor. Several attendants walked him out of the place, and I believe he afterwards attempted the more usual way of entering the House of Commons—namely, trying to get the electors to vote for him. But it proved as unavailing as the other attempt.

Nothing could be more still and drowsy than the moment chosen by the Suffragettes to chain themselves to the grille, so that the attendants could not move them until they had made a shouting demonstration.

For some strange reason they chose eight-thirty, when nearly every M.P.
was at dinner and some lone member was drearily monotonizing to empty benches. It was the worst time to try to impress the House. Portions of the metal grille had to be cut away, and I went along with the women, with bits of grille hanging to them, to a committee-room, where their waist fastenings were cut off. The women chattered gaily all the time!

When Pemberton Billing was turned out of the House it was a mixture of drama and farce, members laughing and enjoying it heartily.

One night Mr. Balfour and a large body of Unionists walked out of the House in dramatic indignation to show their feelings towards the Government of that day.

Another night, in the middle of a tussle over the eternal Irish question, Sir Edward Carson swung round to John Redmond, and made an offer to try and settle the apparently everlasting political puzzle of the happy and prosperous Emerald Isle.

"C. B." on the War-path.

For a moment it looked as if the opposing Irish leaders were going to advance towards each other and shake hands in view of the whole thronged assembly. Heads craned forward eagerly along all the close-packed benches. There was a good deal of pious expression of desire for settlement, but the time was not yet.

"Enough of this foolery!" shouted
dear old Campbell-Bannerman, then Prime Minister, on one occasion when he was vehement against the

A Contrast.

In Birmingham, the London & North Western goods manager and the railway's local horse superintendent fed, watered, and attended to the whole stud of 600 horses on the first day of the strike. Since, obviously, it was impossible for these two men alone to continue doing the whole work, an appeal was made at one of the local churches on Sunday morning, with the result that the minister and thirty men of the congregation went straight off and attended to the animals. This appears to have awakened some of the strikers to the realities of the situation, and they there and then went to their own depots.

Soulless Strikers.

The British have, as a rule, a reputation for kindness to animals, but it would certainly be hard to beat the heartlessness which left horses in their stables and sheep and fowl on the railways untended and un-watered for two whole days. No individual man among the whole of the railway workers, acting on his own device, would have been guilty, of such cruelty, but corporate action appears at times to blunt the higher feelings and to make men, who would not willingly hurt a child, give their assent to a policy which endangers the welfare of whole populations.

Whistling Spiders.

Australia, it is said, can boast of whistling spiders, whistling snakes, and whistling moths. But has anybody ever heard of the "whistling" language?

It is recorded that in the Canary Islands the natives are expert whistlers, and hold conversations with each other through this medium. Travellers who have been to these islands tell how they have learnt the strange language, and also of how long and complicated conversations have been held by whistling with a neighbour a mile away.

The New Guinea whistling snake is very dangerous, and many deaths have been reported. It rushes to an intruder with a whistling noise, and the bite causes almost instantaneous death.

The United States has "whistling" and "squeaking" sands. A whistling well in Kansas has been known to give notice of coming storms, the rushing wind over it causing a loud shrill warning of approaching squalls. Singing sands are well known in U.S.A., but in South Colorado "squeaking" ones are found. The cause remains a mystery, but the sand only "squeaks" in dry weather.

Plants, caves, and trees are recorded, amongst the "whistlers" of the earth, and it is interesting to find that in Nubia and the Sudan there grows a species of acacia which the natives call the "whistling" tree. Its "whistle" is not that of an ordinary blowing of the wind through its branches, but it arises from the air playing on some holes of a bladder-like formation, being the work of insects.

From Everywhere.

The cost of Admiral Jellicoe's mission to the Dominions is estimated at $9,225 pounds.

One of every five doctors who completed their training in England this year was a woman, and authorities declare that next year the proportion will be larger. In May, 1918, there were 2,250 women doctors in the kingdom, several times more than for the corresponding date of 1914.

Consumers of coal are advised to take warning from the case of Adam Williams, a farmer in Kansas. The case was reported by a physician in Wichita. Williams went to a coal dealer and asked what it would cost to heat his home for the winter. The coal dealer told him, and Williams fell dead. Physicians said his death was due to heart failure.

"Say, Judge, only 10 minutes left to get a drink," spoke up a juror in Circuit Judge Taylor's court at 3.30 p.m. recently, at St. Louis. "Court recessed," decreed the judge. There was a scurrying for the elevators. The jurymen raced across the street, set a foot on the old brass rail and bade John Barleycorn good-by. Then they went back to continue hearing the evidence in a forgery case.

Twenty-five year old Michael Stark was recently ordered by a Brooklyn police court to sell the automobile he had bought with his "earnings" as a street beggar, and donate the proceeds of the sale to the Red Cross. Then he was put under $250 bond to keep the peace for a year. His young wife of two months informed the court that Stark had never told her how he made his money.

George de Sonna, a white slave, whose recent conviction for the murder of Frank Cunningham, at Peekskill, N. Y., in 1916, was recently affirmed by the Court of Appeals, and who requested that his execution be postponed until after he had his Thanksgiving dinner, will have his wish granted. Under an order filed with District Attorney Davis, at White Plains, N. Y., de Sonna will be electrocuted during the week of December 5th.

A discharged soldier in England took a hint from Suffragists in order to bring his grievances before the Prime Minister. The man, who was said to represent a discharged soldier's and sailors' organization, appeared at the official residence of Lloyd George in Downing Street, manacled with chains on both his head and feet. He delivered a letter to the Premier protesting against the unemployment of ex-service men and then left quietly.

"How many men will give $100 each toward paying for the Ohio Glad Girl's education?" the question was asked at Columbus, O., and instantly in response 20 men jumped to their feet. "Fine," said the speaker, his face aglow with pleasure. Then some of the men started sheepishly to resume their seats, but again they arose suddenly. It was impossible to sit. It was found later that some one had wired the benches in front of the speaker's stand with electric needles. When a button was pressed a million reasons for jumping up made themselves felt.

Henry Johnson, 19, arrived at Stamford, Conn., Wednesday, from Sweden, and his first act at the house of relatives was to write a letter to his mother. Henry got postage stamps from his uncle, and was told to post the letter in a box near by. Henry picked out a fire alarm box, and presently the firemen arrived with their apparatus. Henry stepped toward Captain Velt, a smile wreathing his face, and handed the letter to him. He thanked the firemen in broken English for their quick service, and started for his uncle's house. Capt. Velt grabbed him by the collar, and took him to police headquarters, where he remained until his uncle arrived and explained the situation.

Announcement from McCook Aviation Field, Dayton, Ohio, recently, that successful tests have been made with a reversible airplane propeller means, according to officials, that the day of the "backyard" airplane is here. With the new propeller, airplanes can land and be brought to a stop within 50 feet by actual test, officials said. The new device will also increase the climbing speed of an airplane 40 per cent, and permit of higher altitude flying, 50,000 feet being a possible limit. Seth Hart of Los Angeles is the inventor of the propeller.

A French Woman Revolutionist.

The Egeria of the Girondist party, Madame Roland, who was guillotined on Nov. 8, 1793, occupied a notable place in the history of the French Revolution. Born in the Rue de la Lanterne, later de la Cité, Paris, she was the daughter of an engraver, Philillon by name, whose extravagance and loose habits involved him in difficulties and made home far from happy, so that his daughter, Marie Jeanne, ultimately was glad to escape from it by marrying Roland, a precise and austere functionary much her senior. When the Revolution opened, Madame Roland eagerly seized the opportunity to force him and herself to the front, and Roland got so far as to become Minister of the Interior twice, the first time during the period of the September massacre. Soon, by virtue of his wife, he was regarded as a leader of the Girondists, and when Robespierre and Danton combined to destroy them, he was marked for death, and fled to the south, where later he committed suicide on hearing of his wife's execution. She, remaining in Paris, was arrested, confined for many weeks, tried before the Revolutionary Tribunal, and (of course!) condemned. She died with serenity, encouraging on the last journey her companion Lamerche, sentenced as a forger of assignats. It was customary in such cases to execute the woman first, but Madame Roland, observing that Lamerche had lost his firmness, begged that he might be spared the sight of her execution, adding, "Will you refuse a woman's last request?" And the executioner, who had demurred, yielded. It is said that she wished for a pen wherewith to write down the strange thoughts with which she was inspired, and her last audible words were, "Oh, Liberty! what crimes are wrought in thy name," or (they are variously reported) "how thou art cheated!" As a girl she was both accomplished and beautiful, and imbibed from "Plutarch's Lives" such a longing for fame, that she is said, when only fourteen years of age, to have cried bitterly because she was not a Roman or a Spartan woman. After her marriage she visited England and other countries, acquiring a taste for many liberal institutions and usages which were denied to France, and when in 1789, the outbreak came, and with it the French struggle for liberty—which merged so soon into ruthless anarchy—the Rolands accepted the new order of things with avidity.

In a Nutshell.

Like the sun, the modern gas fire warms solid objects—such as the furniture of a room or its occupants—without appreciably raising the temperature of the intervening air. At the same time the products of combustion in their passage up the chimney fuse keep the atmosphere in healthy motion.

That is gas fire science and gas fire hygiene in a nutshell.

That Tantalizing "Cup."

"Will the cup ever come South again?" is a question which thousands of enthusiastic footballers must have asked themselves many a time. For thirty-six long years it has remained almost as obstinately in the Midlands and North, as that other most elusive trophy, the American Cup, remains on the wrong side of the Atlantic.

And yet, within the memory of many men, who by no means consider themselves old, the Northerners sighed in vain, as we are sighing now, for the possession of the great prize. For sixteen years the Southern clubs proved invincible, and year after year the Cup was left in their hands.

The long sequence of victories began in the very first year of the Cup's existence, 1871-2, when the Wanderers, those wonderful football players, long since disbanded, beat the Royal Engineers. Five times in the first seven years the trophy fell to them, and in 1878, when they had captured it in three successive seasons, it became their own absolutely, but they generously returned it to the Association, on condition that it should never be won outright.

For ten years, no team north of Oxford figured at all in the Final; the Southerners had matters all their own way, until, in 1881-2, the Blackburn Rovers nearly wrested the prize from the Old Etonians.

Next year the Lancashire lads made a supreme effort; the Blackburn Olympic gave the Old Etonians a beating after a stubborn fight and an extra half-hour's play, and from that day in 1883, the Southern teams, with one exception, have had to content themselves with playing second fiddle.—Daily Mail.

Scientific Experiments.

The steamer Albatross, of the Bureau of Fisheries, is now being equipped with apparatus for operating a large otter trawl, which it is hoped will make possible fishery experiments on a scale not hitherto attempted in American waters. The vessel is now fitting out at Baltimore, Md., for a cruise in Southern waters. Trawling experiments will be carried on along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts during the fall and winter, in the effort to throw new light on the life histories of important food fishes, and if possible to develop new fisheries at a season when the whereabouts of many valuable species are unknown. In addition to fishery experiments, oceanographic work will be carried on.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

REAL CURE FOR

Thoughtful and Fair-minded persons are today searching for the Solution of the Problem of the Industrial Unrest that has beset the world. All such will do well to read the following article with care and understanding, for it may well be that our Contributor has found a Path Leading out of the Wood of Worry to the Open Sunshine of Mutual Trust.

Publicity and Propaganda are the means by which much of the industrial unrest can be quieted, if not altogether removed. What is the present situation? Strike follows strike. Precarious settlements are entered into. They are promptly torpedoed. More strikes come. And so on. Meantime, industry is dislocated, trade is lost, the national prosperity is undermined, and becomes poorer, relatively, actual and prospectively.

This is all wrong. It is a wrong-headed and roundabout method of solving the industrial peace, and its fruits are failure and embitterment. Bridging the Gap.

A policy of enlightenment furnishes the best hope of calming the passions that rage in the industrial world—a policy of publicity and propaganda conducted in the interests of the national industry. Not a Government department, if you please. We have an "excellent sufficiency" of these bodies nowadays, and no sane man wants to add to the vast and costly bureaucracy which, in reality, governs the British Empire.

To this end, the industrial concerns serious gap exists between the worker and the employer or the dictator, as the case may be. The worker scarcely knows for what sort of a man he is working, what the business policy of the house may be, where the principal markets of his particular contribution are found, what are the fluctuations and the risks of trade.

Very Thoughtful and Fabrics made Person is Today. Searching for the Solution of the Problem of Unrest. All Such Will do Well to Read the Following Article With Care and Understanding, for it May Well be that our Contributor Has Found a Path Leading Out of the Wood of Worry to the Open Sunshine of Mutual Trust.

Publicity and Propaganda are the agents by means of which much of the industrial unrest can be quietened, if not altogether removed. What is the present situation? Strikes follow a strike. Precarious settlements are entered into. They are promptly torpedoed. More strikes ensue. And so on. Meantime, industry is dislocated, trade is lost, the national prosperity is undermined. It becomes poorer, relatively, actual-ly and prospectively.

This is all wrong. It is a wrong-headed and roundabout method of keeping the industrial peace, and its fruits are failure and embitterment.

Bridging the Gap.

A policy of enlightenment furnishes the best hope of calming the passions that rage in the industrial world—a policy of publicity and propaganda conducted in the interests of the national industry. Not a Government department, if you please. We have an "excellent sufficiency" of these bodies nowadays, and no sane man wants to add to the vast and costly bureaucracy which, in reality, governs the British Empire.

Publicity and propaganda should be left to the great corporations of industry, to the large business houses, and that both measures have become mutually necessary adjuncts of prosperity will be shown.

In the larger industrial concerns a serious gap exists between the worker and the employer or the proprietor, as the case may be. The worker scarcely knows for what sort of a man he is working, what the business policy of the house may be, where the principal markets of a particular contribution are found, or what are the fluctuations and the risks of trade.

Rouse His Interest.

He is, as it were, an ant among a mass of ants doing a particular form of routine work. He is feeling the completed product for which he is a contributor. He is, to use another simile, a piece of unfeeling and un-moving mechanism in a great, dumb machine.

In daily practice the worker goes from his home, which is rarely in a rural environment, to a large workshop, where he does something for somebody, for somewhere.

Surely the results can be easily guessed. The worker is little interested in this unsatisfactory state of affairs. His stock of sympathy, enthusiasm, and loyalty quickly evaporates, and where it is not succeeded by irritation and unrest, it is followed by a deadening indifference and inertia.

And in this psychological state he is easily persuaded to "run off" at tangents, to resort to the strike. The excitement of the strike furnishes him with a stimulant and an interest in life. To some minds a strike is a tonic, although costly in the end.

The Cinematograph Would Help.

Deplorable? Undoubtedly! But very understandable, and very human.

The radically bad state of things disclosed can be profoundly altered by the employment of businesslike propaganda.

It will be necessary first of all to interest the workers in the business, engage their lively concern for its success, and establish friendly relationships all round.

To this end, manufacturers and the great captains of industry ought to set up departments—they need only be small if efficient—to present, interestingly, facts concerning the business to the workers. This is an important work, and needs to be done skilfully. Accuracy is necessary; otherwise the suspicion of unreliability will attach to the whole product.

The workers should be shown, by means of photographs, where their work goes. If abroad, then they will be interested to see it photographed. When any contract is successfully "pulled off," the workers should be immediately acquainted with all the facts that can be disclosed without giving secrets away to defeated rivals.

The position of the business at any time in relation to world affairs should be stated to the workers; further, the efforts of rivals to advance their trade should be carefully collected and communicated.

This Department of Publicity would have, therefore, as its first care, the re-interesting of workers in the products of their hands or their machines, and the instruction of all employees in the detail of the commercial battle in which they are participants.

Those who have had experience of Propaganda departments in the war can estimate the beneficial effects which would flow immediately after the adoption of this propagandist policy. As Mr. Boyd Cable relates, progressive firms found that it paid during the war to knock off work, shut down the factory for one or one and a half hours, and pay workers as well as lose the output, in order that a speaker could relate interesting things about the war in which the workers were interested as workers.

Don't Rely on Newspapers.

Propaganda in peace can be as effectively employed as in war, in stimulating enthusiasm without which industry can only drag itself along wearily. Realize the intelligence of the worker, tell him the why and the wherefore, and half the battle is won.

Assuming the maintenance of a constant stream of information through the factory and workshop, a mental state favourable to the team-spirit will be always in existence, and it will be the means of preventing half the strikes which continually take place.

Supplement this effort by the dissemination of articles bearing upon the general labour situation, and more of the weapons of offence have been struck from the hands of the Bolshevik. Employers leave too much to newspapers. But there are all sorts of newspapers, and those which foment strikes are not likely to be scrupulous in the presentation of their "facts." Calls to passion should be countered by a recital of hard facts.

Finally, if all these devices fail, the method of prompt publicity should be employed. The employers should state their case to the public through the newspapers. They should give all the material facts at once, before the threatened strike is called.

Public opinion is generally the deciding voice, and to the public all the information should be speedily conveyed.

The Hour is Grave.

In none of these recommendations is the interest of labour affected adversely. The labourer is mostly worthy of his hire; all that is sought is the prevention of strikes owing to the stupid methods of secrecy practised by most of even the biggest firms to-day.

Britain's great fabric of trade is threatened. America threatens it. Japan threatens it. Neutrals who have developed their own productive resources in the war threaten it. The hour is grave, and there must be an end to methods of secrecy—the methods of antiquity—if Great Britain is to maintain a place in the coming great rivalry for trade.

It is essential that strikes be elim-

TESTIMONIAL!

The White Clothing Mfg. Co., Ltd. Oct. 15th, 1915.
GENTLEMEN—We received your bill and the 55 Suits O.K. and let me congratulate you and the working people on the workmanship of the clothes.
I inspected the Suits and they were done to the "point." You can show this letter to your workmen as they deserve it. I just came from the States and I consider the style and fit wonderful, and we can assure you that as long as we receive work as good as these you can be assured of our trade.
Hoping you will do all of our work like this, and thanking you very much,
I am, respectfully yours,

We received the above testimonial from one of our most particular outport merchants. We value his opinion and pass it on to our many customers.

Testimonies like the above have helped us to overcome the many difficulties essential to the starting of a new industry.
