STEWART'S Home Made Bread,
THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.
Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.
The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

CHAPTER XXIX.
SYMPATHIC CONFIDANTE.

"Yes, grandmother!" he says, mockingly. "But boys have their feelings. If you mean do I love her, why, yes, I do. What next?"

"Have you seen her to-day? When did you see her last?" asked Jeanne.

"Three days ago, and then only to how to I fancy—mind, it is only fancy—that her people perhaps the count, don't approve of our acquaintance for she has not taken her usual ride, nor been down by the stream, and the last time I saw her she looked pale and strange, and her companion stuck close by her side, and walked on so that she couldn't stop. Perhaps I have seen the last of the Princess Verona, and the best thing, too, under the circumstances."

He speaks lightly, but Jeanne's loving eyes are sharp, and she sees the twitch of pain which passes over his handsome young face.

"Hal—Hal!" she says, with a sigh. "I am sorry, very sorry; I wish you had never met her."

"That do not!" she says, with a sigh. "As Tenyson says:

"This letter to have loved and lost, Than never to have loved at all."

"That's not," says Hal, with calm ingenuity. "It's all very well for you to quote poetry of that description, you who have loved and won, and are lucky in every way."

Jeanne looks up with a sudden quiver of the delicate lips.

"Do you think so?" she says, with a sudden yearning to tell him all; another moment and she would have told him, and how much would have been spared to her and others!

But before Hal can invite confidence, an interruption comes in the shape of a low pony-carriage, which approaches them around the bend of the road. A lady is driving with another by her side, and Jeanne, whose eyes are sharp, utters a low exclamation.

"Hal, what a beautiful girl! Who are they? Do you know?"

Hal looks up and starts; then he controls himself.

"It is she—the princess," he whispers, hurriedly, "and that confounded companion!"

Jeanne's sympathetic heart beats almost as fast as his.

"I don't wonder, then, Hal," she says, earnestly. "She is perfectly lovely."

CHAPTER XXX.
A VISIT FROM THE PRINCESS.

There is no time for more; the princess raises her face, an exquisite carnation, and bows with a little smile that goes straight to Jeanne's heart. With a sudden impulse, she leans back and pulls up the great bay. Verona hesitates a moment, then brings the ponies to a standstill, and Hal, nervous, embarrassed, fighting for self-possession, leaps from the phaeton, and goes up, hat in hand.

The princess holds out her hand shyly—where is the old childish frankness?—and smiles.

"Good-morning," she says, in her musical, hesitating English; "are you going to Baden?"

"Yes," says Hal. "This is my sister."

"I should have known that," murmurs the princess.

"Jeanne, the Princess Verona, Senora Tielia."

Then Bell is introduced. Jeanne nods and smiles.

"Help me down, Hal," she says, and Hal lifts her from her high perch. "Don't get out," she says, as the princess, courtesying, offers to do so. "I couldn't shake hands all that way up. I am so glad to see you! My brother was talking of you last night."

A smile, soft and shy, creeps over the princess' face, and she glances at Hal.

"I was coming to pay my respects this afternoon," she says, "Senora Tielia and I."

Jeanne smiles graciously at the pale faced companion.

"Will you come?" she says to Verona. "We shall be at home."

"Then I will come," says the princess, simply.

"Is there anything I can do for you at Baden?" asks Hal, going around to the companion. "Any books, music, ribbons? I'm good at matching ribbons," he adds, forgetting that she is not likely to carry her wardrobe or work in the pony-carriage.

The companion smiles coldly.

"I do not speak English," she says.

"That's a lie, I'll be sworn!" thinks Hal, but, of course, he only bows and smiles, and backs around to the other side again, where Jeanne is saying adieu.

"You will come? Be sure!" she adds, in a lower tone. "May I say what I feel?—that we shall be friends!"

"I hope—I am certain," says Verona, with such a sweet, confiding look in her dark eyes that, as Jeanne says afterward, she can scarcely help kissing her.

Then, just giving her tiny hand to Hal for a half-moment, the princess gathers her reins together, and, waiting till Jeanne climbs to her perch again, drives on.

Hardly is she out of hearing before Jeanne, with her face all aglow, and her eyes sparkling, exclaims:

"Hal, she is the loveliest, sweetest little creature I ever saw in my life!"

"That's exactly what I think, unfortunately!" says poor Hal.

"And it is a shame and a disgraceful piece of cruelty!" says Jeanne. "A girl with such a school-fellow, and now she is shy and reserved. Watches her, you think?"

"I am sure of it," says Jeanne, decidedly.

"Certainly, she is very different—the princess, I mean," says Hal, musing. "She used to laugh and talk like—like a girl to a school-fellow, and now she is shy and reserved. Watches her, you think?"

"I am certain," says Jeanne. "Did you notice how the woman looked when the princess said she would call? I saw her thin lips compress, and her eyes go down."

"But she can't understand English," says Hal.

Jeanne shakes her head.

"I don't believe it."

Hal nods assentingly.

"You are getting sharp, Jeanne," he says, approvingly. "I don't believe it either, but what does it all matter? He adds, with a sigh. "You know what is to happen. Besides—a princess!"

For the first time, Jeanne remembers her title.

"You are a Bertram," she says, with a slow hauteur. "And the brother of an English marchioness!"

"And as poor as a church mouse," says Hal. "Don't talk about it, Jeanne. I can see only too plainly that what I want, and you would help me to, can't be. But you are a good girl to think about me in the midst of your own happiness. Isn't there an old proverb in our family that no Bertram can be happy in his love? I suppose fate is satisfied with disproving it. In one instance you are happy enough for all the family put together!"

"Hal," says Jeanne, trembling.

"Hal," also says Bell, leaning forward, "there's Baden!"

And once more Jeanne's confidence is nipped in the bud.

"Bertram give me the reins," says Hal; and he changes places. "Now for the herds and flocks. Have you arranged where to stop? No? Then we'd better go to the principal hotel. Let's see, you have been polishing up your German, haven't you? If not, we shall have to shove old Bell forward."

Jeanne laughs remorsefully; they have both forgotten that faithful, devoted friend, as faithful, devoted friends are forgotten until they are needed!

At the principal hotel, the appearance of an elegantly-appointed carriage and the beautiful young English militarily create an excitement which is raised to fever heat when it is learned that other carriages are to follow, and both Jeanne and Bell are required to explain that all they need is some light refreshment for themselves and horses.

"Call for some beer and Johannisberg," says Hal; "they're sure to have 'em. And mind, if you ask for anything to eat, they'll bring you real. It is the only meat they go in for; that's the reason why you don't see any cows or bullocks about—they kill them when they are calves!"

Great tankards of beer and a bottle of wine are brought; a glass of the latter Jeanne just sips, and, leaving word that they are gone to the celebrated gardens, they start for a walk.

"Here's a fine opportunity for you to moralize, Bell," says Hal, as they enter what used to be the gaming-house. "Now, then, for a sermon on the evils of gambling."

But Bell merely expresses his admiration for the magnificent apartment in which so many thousands have met their ruin, and they go into the gardens.

"Evening is the time," says Hal; "there's a band and a regular promenade concert, and the whole place is lit up with lamps, and—hallo, what's the row?" he breaks off to inquire, for as they walk down one of the grand paths, lined with tables, they hear voices raised in dispute.

A group of persons is seated around a table at a little distance, and a confabulation is hovering to and fro, laboring to explain something which some one of the party will not allow of explanation.

"English," says Hal, sententiously. "I pity the poor waiter," and he turns 'pon his heel."

But food-natured Bell hesitates.

"Perhaps we can help them; let us

Forty-Two Years in the Public Service--- The Evening Telegram

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a cream; bubbly suds form instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

Packets (two sizes) may be obtained everywhere.

B.I.S. MEETING.

The adjourned annual meeting of the B.I.S. takes place to-morrow morning after last Mass.

MRS. W. F. BAKER, of Milwaukie, Oregon, who says she has been restored to perfect health by Tanlac after having suffered for twenty years. Her statement is remarkable.

"For the last twenty years I have suffered from stomach trouble in its worst form. I was in misery all the time. If I took a drink of coffee or milk or even water, it would cause belching and gas. In fact, absolutely nothing would digest in my stomach, always had an awful burning sensation in the pit of my stomach. I believe I have taken almost a wagon load of soda for stomach trouble. I would have to take it night and day. Gas would blast me up so badly I couldn't fasten my clothes. At times my heart would flutter and I would feel as if I would nearly smother and I would have to gasp for breath. In fact, I thought I had heart trouble. I was very fond of cheese and the least bite would throw me right into spasms. I was also very fond of onions, but they would upset me terribly.

"My whole system was out of shape and I was also bothered with rheumatism and neuritis. Pains in my arms and other joints were almost unbearable. I had to carry one of my arms in a sling and couldn't raise it up to my head. My hands would swell up and for a long time I was in just an awful condition.

"I told my husband I guessed I would have to give up and die, as the doctors' medicines and other things I took didn't do me any good. Then he got me some Tanlac and said I had to take it. Well, before I finished one bottle, I found the things I would eat did not bother me so much. I kept gradually getting better and finally after taking five bottles, my trouble was entirely relieved. I can now eat onions, cheese or anything I want. In fact, I am in perfect health in every way. My neuritis and rheumatism have also left me. I know that five dollars' worth of Tanlac has done me more good than a hundred dollars' worth of other medicines. I will sing the praise of Tanlac as long as I live.

The above remarkable statement was made by Mrs. W. F. Baker, whose address is Milwaukie, Oregon, R. F. No. 7.

Rosalind Reaches Port.

Experienced Stormy Passage.

The following passengers came on the Rosalind which arrived here at 7 p.m. yesterday after a 50 hours run from Halifax:—Miss Cecil Hayward, Miss Mary Duncan, Mrs. K. Coffey, T. and Mrs. Godden, Miss Emmie Godden, Master C. Godden, B. and Mrs. Powell, H. M. Dickson, C. F. Watson, F. Horwood, C. A. Hubley, Dr. and Mrs. Farrell and 21 in all class. The Rosalind had a very stormy passage and was further delayed through encountering heavy slob ice in the vicinity of St. Pierre and which she did not clear until Cape Race had been passed. Capt. Mitchell states that the ice was exceptionally heavy but fortunately no damage was suffered by the ship in coming through it. The Rosalind will probably sail for New York via Halifax on Wednesday next.

Where The Money Goes.

We suggest to the people of Harbor Main, when the Government toutsers visit the different settlements during the next fortnight, seeking votes for their nominees, to ask these toutsers what service is being given the country for the money spent on an army of so-called fishery inspectors engaged in enforcing the regulations that have resulted in destroying our main industry for this year, and perhaps losing us valuable markets in Europe for all time to come. No man in St. John's knows, except a few in the inner circles of the Government, how many of these inspectors there are, what salaries they are getting, and what services they are giving. It is notorious, however, that the fish that is being sent to the foreign markets is declared to be much worse than it ought to be in the matter of grade and quality, and samples have been sent back here and exhibited in the Board of Trade Rooms in St. John's which had been branded as Number One fish, but which was not fit to be classed with the worst West India. It is said that there is a whole army of these inspectors, but how large that army is cannot be told until the House meets, and information is sought by the Opposition members. What they are paid is equally a mystery. What they do can be very simply told. They do little or nothing, and the stories told about the way in which this Inspection Service is carried out would be past belief, only that nothing of a blundering or incapable character, which those now in power can do, will surprise the people who have been watching their whole suicidal policy since they started to put it into effect. The only thing that seems to be certain about this fishery scheme is that an employee at a well-known waterside premises and already receiving a salary from his employers, is the Chief Inspector, and is getting a sum of $2,400 a year for his work in that capacity, and that a whole lot of political heeleders, some of them without any qualification for the job whatever, have been appointed by the Government to act as cullers or inspectors and go around the country to watch the fish as loaded into the vessels for market. The public might be disposed to make allowance for this shameful waste of the monies of the taxpayers if any good result was coming from the policy which these people were carrying on. But when everybody knows that this policy has been disastrous in the extreme and that it is bringing the country to the verge of bankruptcy, the manner in which vast sums are being squandered on this service is enough to make one's blood boil. For over a year now this sort of thing has been going on. This mob of leeches, sucking the blood from the body politic, have been getting this money and the condition of our foreign markets to-day is worse than ever in the country's history.

Then, again, the people of Harbor Main should ask the Government toutsers how many Trade Commissioners there are in foreign countries to-day drawing large salaries and utterly extravagant allowances for expenses, and existing solely for the preposterous purpose of helping to carry out the Coaker scheme of selling our fish. As far as can be learned, there are twelve of these Commissioners paid a salary of $5,000 each and getting another $5,000 apiece for expenses, but doing absolutely nothing so far as can be shown, to earn the money they are being paid. As we have remarked already with regard to the cullers or inspectors, the country might be prepared to excuse a certain lavishness or extravagance on the pay and allowances of these officials, if it could be shown that the country was getting any benefit from their services, that fish prices were increased, that new markets were being opened, and that the great staple industry of the country was profiting in a large way; but no such showing can be made. The actual condition is that things are worse than ever they were, and that the bottom has fallen out of the fish markets, that we can make no sales, and that these Commissioners are helping to make things worse instead of better. People might be disposed also to view this policy favorably if the men who were appointed were at all suited for the positions they occupy, and by their experience, capacity, and general fitness had proved that they were giving good service to the country in the various areas where they are in control, but some of them are most unanything like the experience requisite for positions, so important as these could be made, in the hands of men capable of properly serving the purposes for which they are appointed. Political heeleders, hangers-on of the Government, defeated candidates and other persons, to whom the Party now in power are under obligations for services in the General Election, have been given these large amounts of public money and have been entrusted with the responsibilities of the most serious character; responsibilities with which they have proved themselves utterly incapable of coping, so that, partly as a result of their unfitness, and partly of the general craziness of the Coaker fishery policy, the produce of last season's operations by our fishermen all round the Island are to-day unsealable in the markets of Europe and South America, and all engaged in the fishing industry are faced with a condition of collapse, which, bad as it is at present, is destined, we fear, to be much worse before the country sees the end of it.

The Harbor Main electors should also ask the Government toutsers who one amongst them what services are being given by the army of School Inspectors, and other officials, created under the new Education Bill, put through the Legislature last Session, and what benefit the children of Harbor Main, or any other outport district, are going to derive from the establishing of an Education Department with a Minister, a Deputy Minister, and a staff of officials in St. John's, and a host of Inspectors and Supervisors, a dozen of whom are now being trained up in the United States at a cost of about $3,000 apiece. On the purely ornamental side of this new Education Department, the creation of this mob of new officials, the expenditure will be about $60,000, or nearly ten per cent. of the entire School Grant of the Island. And this money is being spent, a good deal of it, on people who will do no service whatever—like the Minister and his staff in St. John's—and the balance on a lot of others who could be more beneficially employed in conducting the schools from which they were taken to be so expensively trained. The utter shamefulness of this whole new Education expenditure for a department, and an army of officials, is proved by the fact that the work that most of these people are to do, including the Minister, the Deputy Minister, the Assistant Deputy Ministers and officials generally, was done by a single clerk and stenographer in the Colonial Secretary's office at a cost to the Colony of only $3,000 a year, and now that cost is multiplied twenty times, and no increased benefit whatever is ensured to the country in return for it.

Electors of Harbor Main, ask the Government toutsers then for an explanation of the enormous sum represented by these three armies of new officials, appointed by a Government which pledged itself to economy, retrenchment, and the cutting down of the number of Government employees already in existence, and what excuse the Government can make for breaking the promise made by Premier Squires and adding to the already large number of public officials the hundred or more represented by these three extra contingents.

In the matter of the alleged insolvency of Walter Gosse, St. John's, grocer, Mr. Halley moves for the confirmation of a deed of arrangement. Gibbs, K.C., appeared for the petitioner. The further hearing was adjourned until Monday, the 28th, at 11 a.m.

Hockey Notes.
Ice conditions permitting, the St. Bon's and Terras will play their postponed game on Monday night.
News is being anxiously awaited in connection with the trip to Boston by a local team. A message was received recently, which contained the information that one of the teams our team would play if they went up has been suspended owing to their having played a professional on their side. If the manager of the Boston Arena were to offer at least 50 per cent. of the gate receipts the trip would probably be undertaken, but up to the present he has not consented to do this. It would take about $2,500 to pay the expenses of the trip and with a fair average attendance at the games, 20 per cent. of the gross receipts would just about cover the cost.
Mr. J. B. Orr, who was in Boston trying to finalize arrangements, has left that city and his son, Mr. W. Laird Orr, is now trying to fix things up. From present appearances it does not seem very likely that the proposed trip will materialize, but there is still a chance of it coming off. If it is decided to send a team it does not seem very likely that they will go on the Rosalind, as that ship leaves here on Tuesday.

"The Other Fellow's Point of View."

Have you ever had a photograph taken when the camera was too near? Have you ever tried on somebody else's spectacles? Have you ever tried to use your friends' opera glasses without first consulting them? The great thing—the important thing—in life is perspective. Without it—that is without focus—everything is out of proportion, seems distorted, impossible and ugly. And the right focus for you may be the wrong focus for your friend, and to a certain extent he is right. Life is short, but it is long enough and big enough for two things which the Frenchman forgot. And they are EFFORT and ACHIEVEMENT. Plenty of people put in a great deal of effort yet achieve little or nothing, because their efforts are misdirected. Still these people should not be discouraged. Something—perhaps it is only a little thing—is out of focus; dreams "go west." Work is a tedious, life deprives into an automatic round of joyless duties. The power of initiative, of a modicum of self-discipline, reserves of courage ooze away, energy is dissipated. It is probably a case of the "wrong man for the job or the wrong job for the man. At any rate it is certain that the fault lies entirely in perspective. No man is a telescope. From the right end you see Big Things. Viewed through the wrong end of view and pleasure and everything else seems insipid and trivial. What, then, is the chief secret of successful work? It is concentration, which is only another way of describing focus. And the success of a modern athlete, firm like the individual, depends on exactly the same thing.
Two men who are not in agreement cannot successfully work a partnership. They must first find a common ground of agreement and then focus down to that point. A man who has an automatic pistol when he really wants a revolver; it is bad "business" to persuade a woman that green "suits her" when she knows jolly well it doesn't.
The Royal Stores, as a modern successful store should, believe in partnership with the public. It thoroughly understands the true value of focus and consequently always bears in mind "The other fellow's point of view."

A Sidelight on the Price of Foodstuffs.

Recently a prominent citizen of the town, and one conversant with the prices of staples, etc., told the North Sydney Herald that choice cow beef was selling in Sydney at 11 cents the pound, and steer beef 13 1/2 cents. And he would like to know why a workman in North Sydney is compelled to pay from 25 to 35 cents a pound for the same kind of meat. Lard, according to the same authority, can be bought in Sydney for 18 cents a pound, while one must pay as high as 30 to 35 cents for it in North Sydney. Another very interesting item of news furnished the Herald by the same source, and which will create widespread interest, was the purchase in the United States by a P. E. Island (presumably Charlottetown) of a carload of dressed hogs at a price that allows the shrewd concern after paying all freights, including exchange, etc., to sell the shipment at 18 cents a pound. And pork in North Sydney at 30 to 35 cents per pound! There's something rotten in Denmark—North Sydney Herald.

Duke of Brunswick's Sweeping Demands.
The Duke of Brunswick, husband of the ex-Kaiser's only daughter, recently submitted to the present rulers of the dukedom a programme of sweeping demands, including grants of money and land, which he thought ought to be handed over to him for the loss of his throne.
His throne had been a wedding gift. His assumption of the throne was a feud between the Hohenzollerns and the Guelphs that started in 1866. He has formed an alliance with Victoria Louise, which, although it lost him the rights to his father's domain in Hanover, has brought him into power in Brunswick.
His new realm was only about the size of two Canadian counties, but when he lost it and was forced to flee, along with other royalists, to the seclusion of Dutch soil, he did not give up his property rights.
The bill he presented to the Brunswick legislature was rejected with a vote of 10 to 1. The duke and his wife were multimillionaires in their own right before their marriage. At any rate, his initial request, which was for cash compensation of 250,000,000 marks, was considered far too much for one tiny group of tax-burdened Brunswickers to pay.
Wanted Forests, Castles and Farms.
The duke's demand, which he did not get, included: three state forests given to the duke as a reward for his services; one-tenth of the state's total forest lands; an eighth part of the large landed estates, including one-fifth of all farming lands in the state; the castle in the Harz mountains, with all the property that appertains to it; the ducal breeding farm at Harzburg, including all the horses and carriages there; the furniture in all the ducal palaces, and the replacement at their gold value of what has been lost or stolen; the Wolfenbuttel library; the ducal museum in Brunswick; the profits that the state's forests, mines and forest lands have brought in since the 1918 revolution; and a promise that the duke will bear the expense of transferring these various articles to his name.
The ministry of the duke told the duke's negotiators to carry word to him at his retreat at the Hague that the settlement he wanted was wholly out of the question. The duke's counsel replied that it might be necessary for the duke to bring suit against the state to recover his property.

Schooner Caught in Ice.
The Deputy Minister of Customs has received the following message from the Sub-Collector at Trepassay: "Schooner Elson salt laden from Gibraltar bound to St. John's, is caught in ice about 150 yards from land at Portuguese Cove Point, near Portuguese Cove, Trepassay Bay."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Great Britain.

It is interesting to turn to a short article on Sir Wilfrid Laurier, contributed to the current issue of the Quarterly Review by Mr. Edward Porritt. The Laurier Government lasted from 1896 till October, 1911, and the writer shows how greatly, through his fiscal and trade policy, Laurier, and indirectly influenced the trade relations of all the Dominions, except Newfoundland, with Great Britain, and also the commercial diplomacy of the Mother Country. This influence—which was, we are assured, a greater influence than has ever been exercised by a premier of Canada or by a premier of any other Dominion—developed out of the British preferential tariff of 1897. The act, which accorded preferential terms to imports from the United Kingdom, was a surprise both to Canada and Great Britain, for the writer declares that it can now be stated on authority that the Colonial Office had been given no intimation of the concession, and the act, thus framed had rather after the fact, brought about the immediate denunciation of the older commercial treaties under which the parties to them could have claimed, as Germany actually did, the right to the same concessions as were given to the Mother Country. Laurier's name must consequently be declared Porritt, "always have a place in the history of the commercial diplomacy of Great Britain; for it was by the stand he took in April, 1911, that a clean sweep was made of a score or more treaties that had fettered the action of the self-governing colonies from the time fiscal freedom accrued to them as a result of the free trade legislation at Westminster of 1845." To Laurier also the British Dominions owe the right to make their own commercial treaties. Mr. Porritt therefore concludes that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was, in place as a Canadian statesman who greatly and beneficially influenced the Empire as a whole, is assured.
"The above is from the London, G.B. Tablet." And yet Sir Wilfrid's government was defeated and the present Tory "House" says regarding the latter, "No hope of progress can be entertained."—Acadian Recorder.

Judas Maccabeus.

Judas Maccabeus, born about 138 B.C., was the son of the priest Mattathias and next to Joshua, is supposed to have been the greatest military genius that the Jewish race has ever produced.

In the days of Mattathias, Hellenic culture, which Alexander's conquests had diffused over the then civilized world, began to show an aggressive influence over the Jews. But in Judaea it had to face a strong and antagonistic element, the Hasidians constituting themselves the champions of the law.

The Greek party won the priestly nobility to their side and then attempted to revolutionize the religious life of the Jews. This led to riots and disturbances which so alarmed the King of Syria, upon his return from Egypt in 170 B.C., that he plundered the Temple, at Jerusalem, and killed many of the inhabitants. Two years later, the Syrian general, the Roman-trained Apollonius, destroyed the city of Jerusalem and placed a Syrian garrison in the fortress. And an attempt was made to extirpate Jewish rites and establish pagan customs by force.

Circumcision and Sabbath observance were forbidden; an idol altar was erected in the temple and sacrifices were offered there to the heathen god Zeus. All copies of the law that could be found were destroyed and all those who refused to give up Jewish in favor of heathen practices were put to death. Rather than fight on the Sabbath, more than a thousand Jews allowed themselves to be slain. But naturally, unless the Jews wished to be exterminated such a policy had to be abandoned and a fierce religious war arose among the Jews themselves.

This revolt for Jewish independence against the enemies of Jehovah was led by Mattathias, the aged priest who with his five sons was joined by all who were ready to fight on the Sabbath, if necessary, for their ancestral faith. This little band began at once, aggressively to stamp out heathenism from the land.

At his death, in 166 B.C., shortly after this war had broken out Mattathias bequeathed the leadership to his son Judas, surnamed Maccabeus "the Hammer."

The enemies of Judas Maccabeus were the enemies of Jehovah, both Jews and heathen alike, and he fought them against tremendous odds, those odds usually being about ten to one in favor of the enemy. Like his father, Judas entered into battle only after prayer, and singing psalms to God.

His first efforts were made against Antiochus, and were in the nature of night skirmishes and sudden attacks. Spurred on by his victories, Judas with an army of only three thousand men attacked and managed to whip Apollonius at Emmanus, who had an army of forty thousand.

A little later Judas defeated Seron at Beth Horon.

This last victory opened the eyes of the Syrians, who sent Lysias, their Roman Commander-in-Chief, himself with an army of sixty thousand foot and ten thousand cavalry, upon the scene.

Judas, with an army of ten thousand men completely routed Lysias and his men and captured much valuable material.

This conquest gave Jerusalem to Judas and his followers—all except the "Tower"—and they, at once began to clean up the city and strengthen its fortifications.

Inflated, Lysias with an army of one hundred and twenty thousand men, returned to the attack and the historian informs us that the mighty host in radiant armor, "spread over the hills and valleys so that the mountains glistened like lamps of fire." But the city resisted all assaults, and finally the troops withdrew.

Just at this time Demetrius succeeded to the Syrian-Roman throne, and he sent his greatest general Nicanor, with a large army against the Jewish forces, but Judas and his valiant men were again victorious. Nicanor was defeated and this defeat should have decided the question of Jewish independence. However, just as the patriot cause seemed to be thoroughly established a great reverse came in the form of an invasion, under Bacchides.

In a battle fought at Eleasa, Judas was killed and his small army defeated, and as there was no one to take the dead leader's place, the cause for which Judas had fought, so valiantly, was lost.

Eventually, the Jewish nationalists were compelled to seek the alliance of Rome itself, which step paved the way for the intervention of Pompey and the extinction of the Jewish nationality.

NEWFOUNDLAND FOR THE GENERAL COLLECTOR.

THE CORONATION ISSUE.—In 1911 the Newfoundland postal authorities decided to issue a series of stamps to commemorate the coronation of King George the Fifth. The order for these stamps was placed in the hands of Whitehead, Morris and Company. Whether this firm engraved and printed the stamps themselves or had them done elsewhere I have been unable to find out, but I do know that the stamps were received from them, and that so far as the Newfoundland Government knows, the stamps were done by them.

As, however, Messrs. Gibbons state that the Coronation issue was the work of De LaRue's, it is quite possible that Messrs. Whitehead, Morris employed Messrs. De LaRue & Co. to engrave and print the stamps for them. The issue was first put on sale on June 13th, 1911, the quantities on hand at that time being as follows: 50,000 of the 1c. and 2c., 10,000 of the 3c. and 10c., 25,000 of the 4c., 2,000 each of the 6, 8, 9, 12 and 15c., and 100,000 of the 5c. As may be seen by the above, the first supplies were very small, but further lots were soon forthcoming. There is nothing worthy of note about this issue except that some of the stamps were perforated 13½ x 14 and the remainder 14. The high values became obsolete soon after they were issued, but the 1, 2 and 5c. stamps were current until January, 1919.

The only varieties to be found amongst the stamps of this issue are the 3c. aniline-blue and the 15c. imperforate. In 1917 a 2c. printed by the process of lithography, was issued and is now quite scarce. The designs consisted of portraits of members of the Royal Family, the 15c. being the only exception, this stamp bearing on it the arms of the Colony with the inscription, "Hæc in dona ferat".

Of the 1c. and 2c. there are two main shade varieties. I have placed the quantities printed after each value in the check list. Unfortunately there is no record of the number of lithographed 2c. stamps supplied, so that the figures after the engraving description of this interesting variety next week.

I noticed some new shade varieties of the 2c. and 3c. Caribou stamps recently. Already numerous shade varieties have made their appearance and one may be excused for asking if they will ever end. So far, although the Caribou issue was only a temporary issue, no preparations have been made for a new set of stamps. The Government is probably awaiting the results of the Postal Union Congress at Madrid before making arrangements for a new issue.

WHELAN'S WAILING.—"At ho time were we without sugar-tea," says James Whelan, in Thursday night's Advocate. Well, James, it is evident that you are in very comfortable circumstances if you can afford to pay 25 cents per pound for your sugar without bewailing your lot. Then the aforesaid Mr. James Whelan goes on to say that he "was never so much disappointed in any man he heard speak on a public platform, showing the weakness of his position," in connection with Sir M. P. Cashin's speech. Of course, James was disappointed if he expected to see any weakness in Sir Michael's position. Possibly James had more than sugar in his tea that night.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Mr. Forsey's Concert which was to have been held some time ago, but had to be postponed owing to the stormy weather, came off on Thursday night last at St. Paul's Hall, and was very successful, although there were not a large number present. It being difficult to get about town on account of the heavy snow falls. The programme consisted of:—

Song—Miss Chafe.

Duet—Miss Joy and Mr. E. L. Oke.

Song—Mrs. Jones.

Recitation—Miss M. Jones.

Song—Mr. W. H. Kennedy.

Song—Mrs. W. L. Ross.

Song—Mr. E. L. Oke.

Song—Miss Joy, and two two-ree pictures, one at the first of the above mentioned program, and the second at the end. Mrs. Anonson and Mrs. C. L. Kennedy were the accompanists and Mrs. Anonson and Mrs. Jones presided at the piano while the pictures were being shown. Each item was well rendered and it was a very pleasant evening for all who attended.

We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Whiteman on the arrival of a young son on Wednesday last, 16th inst.

We are indebted to the members of St. Paul's Bible Class and some other men of St. Paul's congregation who shovelled a great portion of the main road last week. This was done for the passing of the funeral of the late Rev. Canon Noel, which was to have taken place on Wednesday, but that day being stormy, filled up the cuts again, necessitating the men shovelling again Thursday morning. They certainly did good work and deserve much praise for their undertaking in order to show the love and esteem they held for their late Canon.

THE WEEK'S FIGHTING.

DUBLIN, Feb. 25.

The casualties to the Crown forces during the week ending February 19, were the lowest recorded in any week thus far this year, only two being killed and nine wounded, says an official review issued here to-day. The review records ten ambushes, of which three were on trains. A feature of the ambushes was the absence of casualties to the forces of the Crown and the serious casualties inflicted on attacking parties. Four attacks were made on occupied barracks and there was one assassination and one attempted assassination.

TO DEFINE ATTITUDE.

PARIS, Feb. 25.

In acting on the disarmament question, the Council of the League of Nations to-day decided to ask the Government of various members of the League what their attitude was toward compliance with the Geneva recommendations for a limitation of military expenditures.

DIFFERENT OPINIONS.

PARIS, Feb. 25.

The first attempt to Sovietize a large plant in France, when the red flag was raised to-day over a big electrical works under construction at Gennevilliers, ended in a dismal failure, according to the police and military authorities. On the other hand, leaders of the Communists claim that it was a complete success. Police and military draw their conclusions from the fact that no single man is at work in the plant, while leaders in the Soviet movement point out that the red flag is flying over the buildings as a token of victory. The trouble had its beginning, when workmen refused to quit the place in spite of a lockout declared by the company, which has reduced wages because employees had slackened up in their work.

Four hundred poets, writers and literati met at the tomb of John Keats here yesterday to commemorate the centennial of the poet's funeral.

GEDDES AS MEDIATOR.

RELIEF FOR CHINA.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.

One and a half million dollars were voted yesterday by the Senate to defray the cost of moving to China grain donated by farmers for famine sufferers. Senator Kepson said the official reports indicated that fourteen million Chinese were facing starvation, and the daily death toll was seven thousand. The United States Shipping Board is to furnish vessels.

EAGER TO FIGHT.

PANAMA, Feb. 25.

Extra editions of papers here, yesterday, asserted that Panama had declared war on Costa Rica last night. The National Assembly has not acted in this respect, however, but thousands of Panamanians presented themselves for the purpose of enrolling for military service yesterday.

Whelan also seemed very fond of the word "done" in that letter of his. The fact that the Government's day is "done" has evidently been preying upon his nerves to such an extent that he has become "done in" from thinking of the way the Government is going to be "done" brown in Harbor Main on March 12th.

OUT OF HIS DEPTH.

"True Blue" in the same issue says that he saw a pair of boots in a Water Street shop marked down from $16.70 to $9 and he wants to know if "this bare faced acknowledgment of over charging is nothing more or less than unlicensed plundering of the purchasing public." What do you think of that for nerve! Perhaps "True Blue" will tell us what has become of the Consumer's League and the Coaker-Squires anti-profiteering Law.

FOOLS RUSH IN.

It does seem laughable for a Cokerette to talk about the country facing bankruptcy when everyone with the smallest proportion of reasoning power well knows that if we do go to the wall we must thank Coker for it. Try again, "True Blue." You will be a great deal "beter" after March 12th.

Constipation is the chief cause of piles. By an entirely new principle Nujol softens the food, it wastes without forcing or irritating. This prevents straining and enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Side Talks

THE FEAR DIDN'T "SCATTER" BUT—

I wish to ask if you "scattered" out of your mind stayed out and did not bob up and bother you again. I fear you would be much happier. Don't you think your physical well-being, or the lack of it, has been a source of fearfulness?

The Cat Game Back.

The whole thing is a circle, mind affecting body, and body affecting mind. If you need improvement don't try to make it at just one point. Begin everywhere. The older I grow the more firmly I am becoming convinced of the wisdom and this. Find out what the body needs—more or less food, more fresh air, more water, more exercise—and give it what it lacks. Then find out what the mind needs—more courage, more optimism, less self-pity—and try to get that.

The road to Weiville is not built on any single track, and the sooner we realize and act on that fact the better for all of us.

With clockwork detonators had been deposited in the clockrooms of Victoria, Paddington, Charing Cross, and Ludgate Hill railway stations. Excitement, not unmixed with alarm, reached its height, and it would not have been well with O'Donovan Rossa and "patrons" of a similar calibre who sought to right political wrongs by jeopardising the lives of innocent people, if they had fallen into the hands of the London mob at that period. Victoria station was partly blown up, two men were hurt, and a great deal of property was destroyed; a portmanteau full of dynamite with an American clockwork arrangement for its explosion, was found at Charing Cross, and another, in all respects similar, at Paddington. An atmosphere of suspicion in consequence of these attempted outrages, was breathed for a long time—peaceable citizens were denied entrance to the Courts of Justice, persons carrying black bags were shadowed by emissaries of Scotland Yard, and the public generally gave a sigh of relief when Fitzgerald, Daly, Egan and Hogan were arrested, tried, and convicted with perpetrating these dastardly outrages. Gradually this branch of miscreants who advocated dynamite as a means of fighting wrongs, were either exterminated or else mature consideration afforded them proof of the folly and wickedness of such reprehensible "propaganda by deed" in a free and constitutional country.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—The impulse which prompted "Give us a rest" to write that letter dated February 22nd and which appeared in to-night's Telegram, was a dirty one. You would expect nothing better from one who would like to hurt another, but who is too cowardly to show himself for fear he might get what he deserves. He is of the class that stabs in the dark or shoots from behind a hedge. He is an assassin of character. What I cannot understand is why the Editors of our papers permit such scoundrels the use of their columns to belittle and vilify others, and sir, I try it very unfair of you to permit anyone to say anything disparaging of me, who always writes a letter of this kind over my own name, unless the person so doing does likewise, for then I have a chance to answer him. Our papers are filled with this vilification and the Editors are to blame for it because, if they would not publish anything written of a scurrilous and scandalous nature unless the person so writing wrote under his own signature, there would not appear a single article reflecting on another's character. It is only because his identity is hidden that such a coward dares write as he does. He is afraid of the individual about whom he writes or the friends of that individual. His own record would not stand the light because a coward, as he shows himself to be, has had a despicable career or he would not have been a coward. The Editors are responsible for the tone of their papers. They have the remedy, which is simply compelling anyone disparaging another to sign his letter. Then see how quickly he will be asked not to publish it. (We are simply overwhelmed—Editor.)

connection with my last (as he says) "splendid philanthropic enterprise." The enterprise to which he refers was the renting by me of the British Hall at a yearly rental of one silver dollar to the Church of England College, which about two years ago I had intended to do. The Church of England schools were and are a disgrace to any denomination. That is admitted by their own clergymen. Much to my surprise I, one day, saw in the papers, that I had been appointed one of the Governors of the British Hall. I saw why the Colleges were as they were and said so. I was informed by the late Hon. John Harvey that during the late Mr. Donald Browning's secretaryship the Board had discussed very fully and carefully some similar proposals to those which I was making, and had come to the conclusion that nothing could be done. I said something must be done and we must do it. Inside of the four years I was on that Board, the Bishop Field College school accommodation was doubled. The Church of England Orphanage taken over as a boarding house for the Bishop Field College boys. Spencer Lodge was re-opened, the Bishop Spencer College removed from the Synod Hall to the British Hall, all this in spite of the statement of the late Mr. Harvey, one of the best and most useful members of the Board, and one of our most estimable citizens, that nothing could be done, which he had made in reply to my remarks. It was my suggestion that the British Hall be taken over as a school for the Bishop Spencer College girls. I, the year before, had suggested that it should be acquired by the Board of Governors so that, it might be used as a temporary school for the Bishop Field College boys, but the suggestion was not acted upon. Terrible Weeping Eczema.

For the year 1920, I suffered with weeping eczema on my hands which caused me very much pain and worry for I could not use my hands for but very few things. I tried many remedies but they all failed to give me any relief and I was obliged to give up my work and came South, at the same time continuing to use any preparation recommended to me, but my hands continued to get worse until I was told to try D.D.D. Prescription, also Soap, which I at once did, and the first two or three applications gave me the greatest relief, and when I had used but half a dollar bottle my hands were healed. I am indeed very thankful for your splendid prescription and may many more people be made wide, is the wish of

The Lotion for Skin Diseases

At the meeting I heard the most severe criticism of the Colleges. I believed I saw why the Colleges were as they were and said so. I was informed by the late Hon. John Harvey that during the late Mr. Donald Browning's secretaryship the Board had discussed very fully and carefully some similar proposals to those which I was making, and had come to the conclusion that nothing could be done. I said something must be done and we must do it. Inside of the four years I was on that Board, the Bishop Field College school accommodation was doubled. The Church of England Orphanage taken over as a boarding house for the Bishop Field College boys. Spencer Lodge was re-opened, the Bishop Spencer College removed from the Synod Hall to the British Hall, all this in spite of the statement of the late Mr. Harvey, one of the best and most useful members of the Board, and one of our most estimable citizens, that nothing could be done, which he had made in reply to my remarks. It was my suggestion that the British Hall be taken over as a school for the Bishop Spencer College girls. I, the year before, had suggested that it should be acquired by the Board of Governors so that, it might be used as a temporary school for the Bishop Field College boys, but the suggestion was not acted upon. After the Board had decided that the British Hall would be suitable as a school for the Bishop Spencer College, I decided to purchase the building myself and rent it to the Board at a nominal rental. I did so. I had the interior reconstructed to suit the requirements of the College. This was carried out under the direction of Miss Stirling, the then Principal of the College, and Mr. Blackall, the Church of England Superintendent of Education and the former head master of Bishop Field College. Messrs. Davey Brothers did the carpentering and Mr. George Nottall the painting, and Mr. Ryan the plumbing. These improvements cost about six or seven thousand dollars. The purchase price of the building was eighteen thousand dollars. I had made arrangements for the laying out of the grounds along modern lines and intended to fully equip them and to more fully equip the interior of the building. That is the "splendid philanthropic enterprise" which I saw why the Colleges were as they were and I met with a very sudden severe financial reverse and I was unable to carry out what I had undertaken. When everything was completed and the College transferred from the Synod Hall to the British Hall I saw some of the leading gentlemen of the Board, told them my position and asked their advice and they advised me not to attempt to go through with it. They then financed what I was unable to do. The Church of England denomination to-day owns the property which I gave them at what it cost me. The property is valued without the improvements to the school at nearly forty thousand dollars. Besides the British Hall there is connected with it a lot of freehold land on which houses are built. The denomination has acquired for nothing property of great value and is most valuable. It is true, that I did not finance it as I had hoped to do, but the denomination has it, so it has benefited to the extent of the value of the property whatever that may be. When the second two years term of my being one of the Governors of the College was up I was quietly dropped from the Board, and surely that ought to be sufficient punishment without "Give us a rest" exposing in the public press my misfortune, and to drag into the discussion the name of a defenceless gentleman, like Mr. Prowse, in keeping with the whole dastardly outrage. Contemptible does not describe this act's conduct. It is beyond my poor powers to do so.

I have taken a long time to answer the first question. The second will not take so long. I wish to say right here, once and for all, that I require no advertising. From the time I was six years old, till to-day, my name has been in the papers for some reason or other. I have lived practically all my life and I wish to say that I was as well advertised in Halifax during my three years stay there as I have been here. It is quite true that during the past month I have figured in the press, but like this letter, it has been forced on me. I am not one of the kind who, when receiving a blow, turns the other cheek. Even now I am hitting in the dark, but I guess I shall get no other chance to see this gallant fighter who shoots beyond the pale of anonymity. My time is valuable, but my silence might be misconstrued and so, much against my will, I am forced into the limelight, but I can stand it. I have no false hair, false teeth nor false ideas and I can bear inspection. I have faced the public in more cities than I can count, and I can stand it where my father conducted a successful business for nearly fifty years, and in which I was born, brought up, played and worked, we will not say too much about the last item. Why does this anonymous contributor take exception to the Editors giving me space? Surely they know their business. I might charge a fee for my contributions to the papers, but I do not do so. Elsewhere writers are paid for their matter. It has evidently been irritating to "Give us a rest" for he has to get a little of the filth out of his system. In what does he object? Does he object to the formation of the St. George's Society or does he object to the putting of the sports of Newfoundland on a sound financial basis? Surely there can be no objection to either of these projects, or does he object to my doing it? If he does, and can assure me that he or any other individual will carry through these enterprises, I shall gladly let him take my end of it, let him have all the notoriety, fame, kudos, or whatever it may be, and retire into the shell I so long have desired and which for so long I have occupied, but he will have to come out into the light, he will have to show himself and that is the last thing a creature such as he desires or wants. If he wants to knock the St. George's Society or the Sports, let him do so, if he wants to knock me let him do so, but before he or anyone else is again allowed the use of the Telegram or other paper let him come out under his own name, and let the public see the crawler that attempts to wound but is afraid to take his medicine. Don't you, Mr. Editor, or the other Editors help him or any one like him, in his dirty work.

Yours sincerely,

An Anglo-French Scuffle in the Strand.

In 1626, Blainville, the French Ambassador's lodgings, were in Durham House, one of the mansions which in those days stood between the Strand and the river. It was the house where Raleigh had lived in the days of his splendour, and which was so extensive that the Bishop of Durham contented himself with occupying only a small portion of it, the larger part being given over to the French Embassy. Blainville had his private chapel, and the Mass, when celebrated there, was attended by throngs of the Catholics of London. To this abuse—as he considered it to be—Charles I. was determined to put an end. He gave orders to the Council to see that it was no longer tolerated, and on the morning of Sunday, February 25, a strong body of constables was stationed at the gates, after Mass had begun, with directions to seize all English subjects as they came out. When the arrests began it was impossible for the French gentlemen of the Ambassador's suite to restrain their impatience, so charging upon the constables sword in hand they rushed to the succour of their English friends. In the scuffle which ensued, two men were injured, and one was dragged into the courtyard and borne in triumph before the window at which the Ambassador was standing. By this time the noise of the tumult had attracted attention outside, and the population of the neighbourhood hurried up to take part in the fray. Fortunately, the Bishop of Durham arrived in time to part the combatants before further mischief was done. As a matter of law Charles was plainly within his rights, but his prudence in raising so irritating a question was not so certain. For Blainville was furious. "I wish," he said, to the Bishop of Durham, as soon as he caught sight of him, "that my followers had killed the officers. The king my master, will require reason for that which has been done against the law of nations."

Last Open Slave Market.

According to the statement of a French officer, recently arrived in London from Fez, the last open slave market exists at Wazzan, in Morocco, which was recently occupied by the French.

The slaves are brought to Wazzan by caravan from parts of the country still unexplored. The market is held annually during the pilgrimage season, when pious Moslems pour into the city from all parts of Morocco to ask for the Shereef's blessing. At this time negro and negress slaves are grouped together by their different owners on an open piece of ground. The buyers then crowd around and ask questions about their age, health, and in the case of a woman slave, if she is married. The owners always say that his women slaves are still unmarried, as single women usually fetch higher prices than married ones.

Of course, there is always haggling over the price, especially if there is some physical defect, which is invariably the case. The teeth are inspected, arms are pinched and a male slave is often asked to lift heavy loads.

Contrary to the general belief, the lot of a slave in Morocco is a comparatively happy one. All they have to do is to escort visitors through the gardens which form part of the rich Moor's estate.

Another duty is to keep watch from a minaret for indiscreet strangers who pry into that part of the garden reserved for the women of the household. Indoors there are often as many as fifteen slaves all occupied, say, in preparing tea for their master's guests.

In Fez and Marrakesh women slaves are taught to dance, and their entertainments remind an onlooker of the Arabian Nights.

As a result of the thaw and rain of Thursday and yesterday morning a number of houses on the higher levels were practically flooded, and several families had to abandon their basements. Unfortunately very few of the city drains are open to allow the water to run clear, which is to a very large extent the cause of the trouble. Allan's River on the Carpasian Road has become choked up and yesterday evening overflowed. HOW JOHN BOWERS SINGS THE PRAISES OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Severn Bridge Man Looks on the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, as a Blessing Sent From Above.

Severn Bridge, Ont., Feb. 25th.—(Special)—Sincere indeed is the tribute Mr. John Bowers, a well-known resident here, pays to the benefit he has received from the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I had been suffering for a year with a bad back," Mr. Bowers states. "Sometimes I could not work with the pain. Six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills took the pain all out and I feel like a new man."

"I highly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to everyone suffering with pain in the back and I say that the pills are a blessing from God sent into the world."

One of the earliest symptoms of kidney trouble is pain in the back. It is itself the cause of a great deal of suffering. But kidney trouble, unless given prompt attention, frequently develops into much more serious forms such as urinary troubles, rheumatism, dropsy, lumbago, diabetes and heart disease.

To be assured of good health the kidneys must be kept in good working order all the time. At the first sign of trouble use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy for sick kidneys.

The Sealing Fleet.

Eight Ships Only This Season.

Eight ships will prosecute the seal fishery this year, the Terra Nova, Eagle, Ranger, Viking, Diana, Seal, Thor's and Neptune. It is probable that all the sealing fleet will clear for the seal fishery from this port this spring, the idea of clearing from the Northward having been abandoned. Some very old ships will be amongst those going to the ice-fields this year, for it will be the 51st consecutive year for the Diana whilst S.S. Ranger celebrates her golden jubilee at the seal fishery. The following is a list of the older sealing steamers with some particulars concerning them:

- Diana—Built 1870; gross tonnage 405, net tonnage 275; Master, John Parsons.
- Ranger—Built 1871; gross tonnage 493, net tonnage 354; Master, Weston Kean.

Salvation Army Free Soup Kitchen.

As previously announced the Salvation Army, to help out the very needy during the next five or six weeks, has opened up a free soup kitchen at their George Street, Metropole, and to all possible cases who will call there between the hours of four to six, Adjutant French, the manager, will be pleased to give them a good dish of soup to be taken away to their homes. Accompanying the soup will be a loaf of bread.

It has only been in operation a couple of days and it is surprising to see the many who have taken advantage of it. Any assistance from the public will be greatly appreciated.
