CHAPTER XXXVII.

"You'd do it if you'd keep to that," she responds, dolefully; "but you know as well as I do that you and yours have been the ruin of the Dormers. Would to Heaven they'd never seen you! Poor uncle was always such a one for trying to run after people with handles to their names. He'd had enough of his ears and spectacles by this time. I don't want to blame you for other people's faults," Mrs. Sarjent goes on, using her handkerchief energetically until her rosy face is beefy in hue; "but it's near sickened me of aristocrats and grand relations, forsooth, that that poor, foolish old man made so much of—and poor Aunt Keren and Yolande, for the matter of that—squandering money like water on fripperies and jiperies," Mrs. Sarjent says, using a scornful word, "because she was 'my lady,' I suppose, or because she was your mother! Goodness help her, poor little, soft-hearted goose, with a bill enough to make an honest woman's hair stand up on her head sent in this very morning."

"Whose?" Mrs. Sarjent asks, with a confused belief that he was going to a description of some pathological curiosity.

"Your mother—my lady Nora, who else?" Mrs. Sarjent replies, scathingly. "Fifty pounds for some dressings and under-linen and things with French names, all got now for her wedding, though Yolande herself told me—I made her tell me and show me her check-book—that lady Nora had nearly four hundred pounds for new clothes since spring, and goodness knows how much before that!"

"Mrs. Sarjent," Dallas says, looking at her as if he doubts her sanity, "whose wedding?"

"Why, your mother's—Lady Nora's!" Mrs. Sarjent answers, and then bursts into a loud laugh. "Law bless my soul, don't you know you've got a stepfather?"

Dallas' face is crimson, and he is trembling from head to foot, but he recovers himself with a desperate effort.

"No," he replies, composedly, with a slight smile, "I was not aware of it. I have not seen my mother for some time. She was at liberty to please herself, of course; but I am naturally a little surprised."

"I should think you were," Mrs. Sarjent says, chuckling; but Captain Glynn's face and manner check her from saying what she longs to say.

"He's a Mr. Carter—a very wealthy man and a most respectable man," she begins, cautiously, but Dallas checks her again.

"I am glad to hear it," he says; "but I can't be expected to take much interest in hearing of a person whom I do not know in the least. If you will excuse me now, Mrs. Sarjent, I will say good-by to you," he adds, smiling pleasantly and taking her hand; "and I hope to see you soon again—in happier circumstances."

"Indeed you'll not so without a glass of wine!" Mrs. Sarjent says, positively. "Will not!"

"Thank you, I would rather not," he assures her; but she insists; and when Wilnot brings in the wine himself, he drinks about a half-glass of sherry, and bids them good-by.

"About that bill you mentioned just now," he says, hurriedly, flushing before them—"will you please let me have it?"

"Indeed I won't," Mrs. Sarjent replies, coolly—"neither you nor Yolande. I suppose what's hers is yours and yours is hers now, if you're going to be as you ought to be. Well, neither of you shall pay one penny of Lady Nora Carter's debts for fine clothes—not a penny—so you needn't ask for it, for you can't get it!"

"I'll talk to you again when you're in a better temper with me, Mrs. Sarjent," Dallas says, faintly smiling, and is going out, when she runs after him to the very doorstep.

"Captain Glynn, I needn't ask where you are going now?" And there is such desperate anxiety to ask evident in her face that Dallas laughs a little maliciously.

"No, you needn't," he says, coolly, raising his hat, and marching off at a swing pace.

When he is quite out of sight, Mrs. Sarjent turns round from the window, and sits down suddenly with a dismayed face.

"There," she says—"I've never asked him a question about his position or prospects, or what he's doing, or what he's going to do, or whether he's going to drag that poor child down into poverty with him, or whether he's going to take her away from those two poor old folk who want some one to look after them, or one single question I meant to have asked him."

"Never mind, mother," Wilnot says, consolingly; "maybe Yolande will ask him all those questions herself."

"Not she!" Mrs. Sarjent rejoins, with bitter compassionateness. "She'll ask nothing but to put her arms around his neck and cry for joy over him. Poor little fool! She's too soft for this world, anyhow!"

mer, with a childish, unreasoning fear of debt and poverty suddenly overwhelming her, has obstinately refused to listen to advice or logical arguments from any one concerning her brother's position or future income, and at once, on her return home, has begun a wholesale work of cutting down expenses by dismissing her good cook and excellent housemaid, selling their useful and martyr-like heroisms, that she can no longer afford to pay them such wages as she has been giving, and so has inflicted a good deal of unnecessary discomfort and privation on herself and every one around her.

Once Yolande attempts to remonstrate earnestly with her; but she never attempts it again.

Trouble and anxiety have soured the old lady's once genial temper, and she has not only sharply refused to allow herself for one moment to calculate on Yolande's money for any necessary expenses, but is even unjust enough and illogical enough to hint obliquely at the extravagance and the grand acquaintances and the titled connections and the "trash, ill-advised marriages" which have brought about the present deplorable results.

"It was enough to bring down a judgment on us to see how money was stung here and there," Miss Dormer says, wrathfully. "If I'd kept things in my own hands as I ought, I wouldn't have been as I am now."

"You need not repeat Mrs. Sarjent's spiteful speeches, Aunt Keren," Yolande says, with a heaving breast; "and you need not speak before poor uncle," she adds, reproachfully, as Mr. Dormer goes feebly out of the room, "about your money being stung away."

"Thank you, Yolande, for reminding me to be considerate of my poor brother's feelings," Miss Dormer rejoins, very prettily, stiffening her neck and making her cap tremble very much. "I don't think you have ever found me neglected or reckless about my brother's interests or his feelings—I think no one can lay that to my charge!"

And so the old lady, who has no genius for household management under these painfully changed conditions, assumes the reins of government very despotically, and all the more that she is secretly aware that she is managing badly, and that every one is revolting under her "niggling" despotism.

On this quiet, sunless autumn afternoon "the poor little fool" is certainly feeling that the world is too hard for her.

Down at Fair View, in the fading gardens and in the air of the silent, shadowy, dying day; the soft, melancholy of the spirit of autumn pervades the over-blown flowers, the over-ripe herbs and vegetables, and the harvest fields getting reaped and bare.

More than the silence and melancholy of autumn for the summer of wealth and luxury that has gone forever pervades the silent household, narrowed down to five individuals now, whereof one is broken down to five individuals now, whereof one is broken down to a state of almost childish weakness of body and mind, one is querulous, fretful, and eccentric through age and trouble, and one is young, with a breaking heart and a spirit well-nigh crushed.

There are only two servants now, and neither of them is properly trained or efficient; but poor old Miss Dor-

Growth of Radicalism

From some of the committee reports it would seem that the American Bar Association is getting alarmed over the growth of radicalism in America and that considerable attention will be given to the subject at the Minneapolis convention.

Some persons in this country hold the view that nothing is more provocative of radicalism than juggling of the law by lawyers. This is the most law ridden country on earth. About five years ago a compilation showed there were 1,078,000 laws and ordinances in this country. About 1 out of 2,000 is enforced. There is, according to the official records, more crime in one American city than in all England.

What America urgently needs is less law, fewer lawyers, more common sense and simple justice—Richard Gillman, in Forbes Magazine (N.Y.).

Just the Trouble.

Here is a good story—of one man told by Mr. Harry Green, the famous Hebrew comedian.

An old gentleman, observing a Jew thrashing his son, remonstrated with him, and asked what the boy had done to cause the parent's anger.

"Not has he done?" exclaimed the parent. "Not has he done, indeed? Well, he has let all my towels out and they've all flown away."

"Well," said the old gentleman, "you need not thrash your boy for that. Don't you know that hens always go back to their own home to roost?"

"Yes," replied the Jew, as he renewed the thrashing, "that's just the trouble."

Separatist Disorders in Duesseldorf Terminate in Massacre.

Imperial Conference of Premiers Opens in London To-day--Tornado Causes Death and Destruction in Omaha--Sir Louis Newton, London's New Lord Mayor.

OUTBREAK AT DUESSELDORF.

DUESSELDORF, Sept. 29. A great separatist demonstration terminated in a veritable massacre. A score of persons are known to have been killed and the wounded believed to be numbered in hundreds. Duesseldorf is still seething with excitement and more trouble is feared to-night. The French occupation authorities hold the German Military or Security Police responsible for the outbreak, declaring they started the shooting. The French authorities late this evening sent out troops to round up the Security Police. The city awoke early today with excitement. Thousands were abroad in spite of an appeal to remain indoors. Street cars, automobiles and other vehicles were absent from the streets and hotels and stores had all lowered from and steel gratings. Soon after noon all the manifestants from points in the "Rhine and Republic" had reached the city and processions filed past the Bismarck Statue to the number of about ten thousand. Republicans, but with curiosity-seekers the assembly probably totalled forty thousand. It was while this crowd was gathered here the Separatist leader, Joseph Hees, that the shooting in some way began resulting in the casualties.

THE CASUALTIES.

DUESSELDORF, Sept. 29. It is variously estimated that from ten to fifteen persons were killed and between two and three hundred, injured.

The overseas representatives will be in session five or six weeks, and the Empire Economic Conference will be held concurrently. The Prime Ministers of Canada, Newfoundland, New Zealand, South Africa and the Indian delegation and economic experts of the Crown Colonies are here, but no important decisions are likely to be reached until after Thursday, when the Australian Premier, Stanley M. Bruce, will arrive.

ORGANIZED IN RUSSIA.

SOPIA, Sept. 29. Documents found on Communist prisoners taken in the capture of Fernando afford reliable proof, says a Government statement, that the recent uprising in Bulgaria was organized and executed with the active assistance of the Moscow Soviets. A locomotive that fell into the hands of the Government troops at Berkowitz was adorned with large pictures of Lenin and Trotsky and the legend "Bulgarian State Railways," has been erased and "Soviet Republic of Bulgaria," substituted.

WILL EMPLOY THIRTY THOUSAND GERMAN.

MAYENCE, Sept. 29. The Franco-Belgian authorities operating railroads in the Rhineland and Ruhr, opened recruiting offices here to-day with the object of engaging thirty thousand German railroad employees for these lines. All men engaged will be obliged to take an oath to obey the Allied civil and military authorities.

HUNTING THE COYOTE.

CALGARY, Sept. 29. Fox hunting over the English fields offers no more exciting sport than coyote hunting in the foothills of Alberta in the opinion of Lord Rentfrew and party, who participated in a hard race after coyotes on the ranch yesterday. Three of the pets were caught. Cool wind and a clear sky made the ride a glorious one and the party returned to the ranch in high spirits.

LINERS IN COLLISION.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 29. The White Star liner Cedric and the Cunard liner Scythia have been in collision in a dense fog, according to a wireless despatch from the Scythia which is returning to Liverpool. It is believed there were no casualties.

WOULD NOT PROSECUTE.

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 29. The case against Carl Voss, charged with attempting to kill as the result of an attack upon the Nova Scotia schooner J. Scott Hankinson, off Cape Ann, last month, was dismissed in the District Court to-day, when the Court was informed that Capt. Arthur Moore of the Hankinson did not desire to prosecute. Lena Ashwell Shot

NARROW ESCAPE OF CTRESS ON MOTOR TRIP. Whilst motoring from Birchington to Canterbury, Miss Lena Ashwell, the well-known actress, was struck by a shot fired by a member of a shooting party, between Sturry and Upstreet. The shot struck her an inch beneath the left eye, so that although the wound was not a serious one she had a narrow escape. She was promptly attended by Dr. Ince, of Sturry, and was able to return to Birchington, where she is staying with her husband, Dr. Henry Simson, the well-known obstetric physician, who attended Princess Mary.

THE FLAPPER MOTHER.

I have just finished reading a very unreal and very improbable story. Entitled "The Flapper Mother." The story is told by a clever illustration I skinned on to the merit to see what would it could have to win the approval of the editor of a leading magazine. I am still wondering!

In the beginning the story dealt with the quarrelsome, disagreeable relations existing between a boy and his mother, a rapid, poorly drawn character whose one aim in life was to appear as young as her children. In an impossible finale the boy mistook his mother for a flapper in a swimming race and upon discovering her identity, "grabbed her in his arms and kissed her on the mouth" in a wild burst of admiration, shouting, "When a fella has a cassy girl like you for a mother, the blue sky's the limit! See?"

Not His Ideal of Motherhood.

I think that story is based on an entirely false premise. There is an instinct in the youthful breast that demands a dignity and reserve in his parents which shall command respect. Beauty, graciousness, fresh sympathies, and youthful spirits he does admire in his mother but he does not expect her to compete with him in his own field. A "classy girl" with a blue sky limit is not his ideal of motherhood. However much the modern youth may admire pep and sportiness and a certain flip insolence in his companion, it disgusts him in his mother. Of this I have had repeated proof.

He Wanted a Real Mother.

There is a woman of this type in our summer colony, a petite creature with curly bobbed hair and the wrinkles of 40 massaged and painted into a semblance of the dimples of 20. She has a son, a handsome, rather diffident boy of 14. "What do you suppose William said to me to-day?" she coquettedly asked of a group on the beach. "He said, 'I wish I had a real mother, and when I asked him what's the matter with me, he said, 'You're more of a flapper than a mother.'"

COINAGE CURIOS

TOKENS BY OLD-TIME TRADESMEN.

At one time tokens formed part of our recognized currency. During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries there was a scarcity of small change, and the Government allowed tradesmen to issue their own coins, the issuers being responsible for the tokens and having to provide goods or ordinary currency in exchange when required to do so. The Government coined only gold and silver money and halfpennies and farthings and it was not until 1797 that copper pennies were issued.

When the Government started to issue these, the tokens became out of date. Present-Day Penalty. On one seventeenth-century token is the inscription, "Edmund Walker, his halfe Penny," and on the other side are the words, "In Huthersfield, 1666." The only local issuer of tokens as late as the eighteenth century was John Downing, a grocer and tea-dealer. Some of these tokens had "London, Bristol, and Liverpool" on the sides. They are very rare now. The woollen industry is often referred to in the designs on tokens. On one may be seen a spinning-wheel, on another a hand-comb, and on others croppers' shares or the hanging fleece. A weaver and a loom appear on a Barnsley Penny. The hanging fleece can be seen on tokens of Bath, and also of Staverton. The arms of Leeds as shown by the suspended fleece, on tokens issued by the tradesmen of Leeds, are also to be seen in the museum. Some of these specimens are exceedingly rare, while others are quite common. Nowadays, no person is allowed to coin any token to pass for, or as representing, bronze or other money, under a penalty of £20. ### How Earthquakes are Measured

DETECTING SHOCKS TEN THOUSAND MILES AWAY.

The awful cataclysm that plunged the Japanese Empire into mourning has roused scientists all over the world to their endeavors to foretell, with some degree of accuracy, the coming of great earthquakes.

These terrible volcanic upheavals are already recorded, measured, and tabulated by amazingly delicate instruments, but all the devices possessed by science have not as yet been able to predict when and where the overwhelming forces of Nature will next break loose.

Seismology, or the science of earthquakes, is one of the oldest of known sciences, for when the Romans were subduing ancient Britain the Chinese completed an instrument designed to record the shocks that so constantly harass the Eastern Empire.

Traced by Treacle. This took the form of a copper sphere, about twenty-five feet round, with a long pillar at the top which was suspended so that it could swing in any one of eight directions.

The sphere contained eight dragon heads, in the mouth of each of these was placed a ball, so that when the pillar was moved by any trembling of the earth it would knock a ball down, thus showing in which direction the earthquake had occurred.

The first British seismograph was simply a basin full of treacle. When the earth shook the treacle moved, and left a mark on the side of the basin that indicated from which direction the shock had come.

The instruments are much more complicated now, and shocks can be recorded and measured in observatories fully 10,000 miles away from the scene of the disturbance, by means of the sensitive Milne-Shaw seismograph.

This consists of an upright column supporting without friction a horizontal boom which sways according to the earth tremors. A needle at the end of the boom is silt to allow a spot of light to fall upon sensitized paper, and this shows a straight line when the instrument is at rest. When there is any movement, however, the light shows it, and a clockwork attachment records the exact time of each "tremble."

The place of origin of the shock is located by the time taken for the shock to be recorded, for there are three types of earth "waves," which rush outwards at varying speeds. The observer knows that if, say, 100 seconds elapse between the first and second shocks, the earthquake is 1,000 miles distant, and so on.

By means of records taken at two or three different points, it is possible to determine almost exactly where the trouble lies and the area over which it operates.

At the West Bromwich Observatory about 4,000 distinct shocks are recorded every year, although, of course, nearly all of these are very slight, most of them being the result of disturbances beneath the ocean bed.

According to the most up-to-date authorities, earthquakes are caused by the solid outer "crust" of the earth gradually "creeping" northward. This movement, however slow, causes an enormous strain in places, and when the strain becomes too great the earth cracks.

In order to increase their knowledge of earthquakes, some of the world's greatest scientists have ex-

A Revenue-Producing Pulpwood Policy

"No country on earth can get rich shipping raw materials." So declares the editor of the Manufacturers' Record, one of the best edited and influential business publications in the United States, thereby supplying Canada with a fitting slogan for a national policy in the development of our vast natural resources and particularly timely with regard to the proposed pulpwood embargo.

The Manufacturers' Record has stood aggressively for the development of the resources of the United States with American capital and American labor and the export of finished products and it commends a similar policy for Canada.

On the other hand there is something to be said by way of consideration for American capital which has been invested in Canada for the purpose of creating supplies of pulp or pulp wood for American mills, nor should it be overlooked that there is a rather important home industry interested in catering to these same mills. That this is the case is unfortunate. The policy of manufacturing our own materials and shipping the finished product is one which should have been adopted much earlier in our history. Its adoption now is highly important as a national policy but the manner of its application is worthy of careful consideration.

In view of the established industries under the prevailing conditions it might not be the course of wisdom to enforce a complete embargo at one fell swoop. THE FINANCIAL POST believes that the best interests of the country could be served by the imposition of an export duty on pulpwood and also on wood pulp. This could be gradually increased until it became an actual embargo. Thus there would at once be given an impetus to the raw materials manufactured at home and an opportunity would be provided for an adjustment by which manufacturing activities could be transferred to this country without disrupting an established industry. In the meantime the revenue to be derived from an export tariff on pulp and pulpwood would not find an unwelcome place in the federal budget.

No Wonder it Stopped

A Swede was working for a farmer who demanded punctuality above everything else. The farmer told him he must be at work every morning at four o'clock sharp.

The man failed to get up in time, and the farmer threatened to discharge him. Then the man bought an alarm clock, and for some time everything went along smoothly. But one morning he reached the field fifteen minutes late. The farmer discharged him, in spite of his protestations that his alarm clock was to blame.

Returning to his room, the discharged employe determined to find out the cause of his downfall. He took the clock to pieces and discovered a dead cockroach among the works.

"Well," he said, "Ah tank it bane no wonder the clock wouldn't run—the engineer bane daid."

When the Sleepers Did Not Wake. Dr. William R. Alexander did not take kindly to drowsy auditors and dull incidents sometimes occurred.

"One day he gravely warned a lady who had dropped her hymn-book or umbrella to take care, lest she should waken the sleepers around her. On another occasion, at the beginning of the afternoon service, he said he would feel obliged if sticks and umbrellas would be carefully placed, so that in case of slumber, there would be no repetition of the morning's noise. Once, after bringing his discourse to an end, he closed the pulpit Bible with more force than usual, stood quite still long enough to arrest attention, and then said, 'I have made these remarks for the profit of those who have heard them; the others may profit by their dreams if they can.'"

BRITISH WOMEN WIN PARIS ATHLETIC MEET.

PARIS—British women in Pershing stadium defeated French women in a series of athletic events. The visitors scored sixty points against 37 for the local athletes. A French girl, Violette Gouraud Moris, set the world record for throwing a weight, making 11.01 metres. Miss Palmer, England, lowered the women's record for the 250 metres, covering the distance in 35 4-5 seconds. Miss Thompson, England, halled the record for 100 yards in 25 seconds. The British women won the hurdles, the high jump, the 250 metres, the broad jump, the 100 yards dash, the relay race, while the French women were victorious only in throwing the javelin and the weight event.

WON TWO MILE RACE.

NEW YORK—While Riola, crack distance runner of the Finnish-American A. C., captured the National A.A.U. steeplechase championship for a two mile course, the annual all games of the New York Athletic Club, Marvin Rick, of New York A. C., finished second, 25 yards behind. Riola's time was 10 minutes 45 3-5 seconds.

THE CUP FINAL WEDNESDAY.

By mutual consent the Guards and Scots have decided to defer the play-off for the Tie-Cup until Wednesday evening. This is made necessary by the fact that members of both teams are suffering from injuries as the result of their last clash—but none of them are happy serious.

ITALIAN HEAVYWEIGHT DEFEATS MARCEL NILLES.

ROME—Mariane Barbarelli, the Italian heavyweight pugilist defeated the French heavyweight, Marcel Nilles, scoring a technical knockout in the first round of what was to have been a fifteen round battle. The end came after two minutes of fighting. Barbarelli at the sound of the gong, drove a number of rights into Nilles' body, twice forcing the Frenchman to his knees. Then he landed a left to the jaw which toppled over Nilles and the referee intervened and stopped the fight to save the Frenchman from further punishment.

MAX MARSTON WINS NATIONAL AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

FLOESMOOR, Illinois—Max Marston, of Philadelphia carried Jess Sweetser, New York defending champion, to the 38th hole and won the national amateur golf championship at Floesmoor. Sweetser weakened on the last eighteen and Marston tightened his game materially on the first nine and took a lead at the twenty-fifth hole where he had a birdie two. He went two upon on the twenty-sixth, but Sweetser squared the match, three times thereafter and going into extra holes, played poorly, barely halving the 37th and finally losing the 38th when his tee shot was wild and Marston stymied his long try for a half. Sweetser came in one over par with 38 somewhat better than he played the first half, while Marston with two sixes, took 42 in for a 78, the same total returned by Sweetser.

RODGERS ENTERED.

Alf Rodgers, twice winner of the Halifax Herald Marathon, is again entered in this year. Though over forty years of age, he still clings to the running game and his friends are hoping that he can make a comeback.

SUIT IS BROUGHT AGAINST LUIS FIRPO.

NEW YORK—Luis Angel Firpo, climbed from a $125 third rate to a $128,000 championship contender in a year and a half of pugilistic enterprise in the United States, according to papers filed in the suit brought by Andrew D. McCormick of Long Beach, N.Y., against the Argentine boxer, for $24,206.24. McCormick, who obtained an attachment against Firpo's share of the purse for his title bout with Jack Dempsey at the Polo Grounds, recently charges this amount is due him under an alleged contract with the South American by the terms of which he was to receive 25 per cent. of the fighter's earnings, plus $3,200, for expenses.

VILLA GETS AWARD OVER NEW BEDFORD FLYWEIGHT.

BOSTON—Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion was given the decision over Tony Thomas of New Bedford, in a ten-round bout here. Villa weighed 112 pounds and Thomas 114. The bout was disappointing to supporters of both boxers who had looked for rapid action. For the first four rounds, Villa and Thomas contented themselves with sparring, apparently feeling each other out. Then the flyweight champion gave a demonstration of boxing that was too much for the New Bedford boy. Villa won every round on points up to the tenth, according to ringside opinion. In the final round, Thomas went after his opponent, landing three solid smashes and carrying off the honors of the round.

GRAND FINALE.

Two dusky soldiers, who had learned the manly art in the A.E.F., were putting on a farewell bout at the demobilization camp. As they advanced to the centre for the preliminary handshakes one said: "Yo' bettah git ready 'o' de mawnin', mah, 'cause when dey blows reveille yo' ain't gwine be 'round 'o' breakfast!" "Huh!" retorted the other scornfully. "Dey is gwine play reveille all right, but yo' ain't gwine hear it. De as' moosic yo' hears is de taps Ah's gwine serenade yo' with."

Great Programme of Music at Nickel To-Day

VOCALISTS RENDERING MOST POPULAR AND FAMOUS HITS.

The musicale which has been arranged for the week-opening at the Nickel commencing to-day is one of superior excellence. Among the numbers are such selections as "The Rosary" and "When You and I Were Young Maggie." Wherever Miss Armstrong has appeared she has always been requested to render this song. It seems to be a part of her appearance on all programs. Every Mae Murray picture is a guarantee of a beautiful and lavish production, gorgeously gowned with the best creations of Paris and New York. In "Faction" which is the attraction at the Nickel to-day, this famous star is again seen in a picture which is said to excel all her previous efforts. As the impulsive daughter of a Spanish-American marriage who becomes fascinated by a handsome toreador, she creates a lovely new character, and brings to the screen a dramatic story which far surpasses. The story is told with all the romance and favour of old Spain.

Warrant of Commitment Served

On Saturday night a warrant of commitment was served on the proprietor of a New Gower Street store who had been fined $500 for a breach of the Prohibition Act. It appears that only $100 in cash was paid into court following the conviction. Saturday afternoon, a bond for $200 was taken for the balance with a promise that it would be redeemed within a few hours. After due time had elapsed the court officials issued a warrant for the arrest of the delinquent. On the appearance of the police the amount of the bond was paid.

Three Dead in Feud Over Strayed Pig

Innocent Spectator Latest Victim of Fjery Southern Hate.

Holden, Miss., Sept. 24.—A feud between farmers over an unruly pig which strayed from its pen to a neighbor's corn-field, claimed its third life when Lowell McCormick, 17, shot and killed Allan Shean, wealthy farmer. Guy Knight was wounded by the feud-fat. McCormick said Guy Knight, his brother Benjamin and Shean had vicited the McCormick place several times. The last time Guy reached toward his hip pocket. Lowell grabbed a loaded shotgun resting near and fired. Shean was killed and Guy Knight wounded.

The feud started when a hog owned by Benjamin Knight, senior, ran on the McCormick property. George McCormick, Lowell's father, shot and killed the hog. Knight, accompanied by two sons and two friends, drove to the McCormick place and during a fight the elder McCormick was struck on the head and killed. Lowell then shot and killed the elder Knight. Trial of Guy and Harry Knight and the two friends, Chester Kerr and Frank Carey, on charges of murder was scheduled to start this week.

An attractive way to serve cabbage salad is in a cabbage shell. Charged water should be added to fruit punch just before serving. Add noodles to the gravy of pot roast and serve as a separate dish. Serve creamed shrimps in timbale cases with diminutive hot biscuits. Serve an orange sauce, thickened with cornstarch, with hot orange puddings. Fried oyster sandwiches are quite appropriate for a Halloween menu.

Dr. W. J. Mayo

EXACT STATEMENT ON CURE OF CANCER.

Chester, Minn., Sept. 29.—(A.P.) A meeting of the general staff of Mayo clinic, held a few days ago, W. J. Mayo referred to recent newspaper comments on his remarks with regard to the present state of the cancer problem, quoting him as declaring, in substance, that there is no cure for cancer. In the case of a lecture in London in July, Mayo said, "There is no medical cure for cancer." In other words, no medicine taken internally will cure disease. Continuing, he said that the real deal of experimental work in research in all parts of the world, all of which gradually was accumulating knowledge concerning serious disease, but, unfortunately, these investigations, which have been made on animals, have not, as any direct application to human beings.

Dr. Mayo, in his talk to his staff, said that the cure of cancer depends on diagnosis and removal at the earliest possible time. In some manner, fairly must be taught to understand these truths. Experiments in the clinic have been made, that 71.8 per cent. of patients operated on for cancer when the disease is still localized, is, has not extended beyond the primary focus, are cured by operation, and the large majority of the remainder greatly benefited, and many have been cured even when the disease had extended beyond the primary focus.

Surgical operation is the only method of removal to be seriously considered. Dr. Mayo continued, because permits removal, with the growing, surrounding tissues, and glands may have become involved in the disease. The X-ray, radium, and other agents have a field of usefulness in connection with surgery, but patient should not be subjected to any, radium or other similar treatment without careful surgical consultation, since, if such agents are used to cure the resultant tissue changes delay dependable surgical operation and may, perhaps, prevent Radiotherapy and other treatment.

Iceland's Drawbacks.

Iceland has its drawbacks, incidental to climate and its adjacency to the North Pole, but it reflects modern progress to learn that Havn, the capital, is to have water piped from the geysers into the town, to heat the buildings, to supply the laundries and to serve hygienic purposes. Even in Summer the mean temperature is 53, so that the pleasure of finding hot water from the geysers rushing from the top in the hotel bathroom—if the progress in plumbing goes that length—will bring cheer to the chilly tourist. Already the town has cable connection with Britain and Denmark, and the radio and the movie have made further inroads on its isolation.

Lord Bryce, on his visit in 1872, found a town of 1,800 forlorn and primitive. Outside were "snow mountains, glaciers, hot springs, volcanoes, earthquakes, northern lights, ravines, mbrasses and, above all, deserts." By 1909 there were 10,300 people, with two hotels, two bookshops, photographic studios, and shops selling jewelry and antiques. Most of the houses were of wood, painted grey and white. Lord Bryce found only two stone buildings, the Governor's residence and the jail, and the latter, empty, looked so stately that Lord Bryce said that if he ever returned he would apply for quarters there.

To add to Havn's attractions, it is only necessary to say that living is cheap, for it is recorded that a clergyman on 8 pounds a year lived to the age of 113.

Life on Ellis Island

THE TRUE STORY OF A VERY BITTER EXPERIENCE.

(Told by an Emigrant.) I had emigrated to the United States of America with high hopes. True, I had very little money in my pocket; but I had youth, strength, and the will to get on. These, I said to myself, are assets that are going to carry me a long way in my new home.

Possibly they might have done. I do not know, for I never had the chance to test them. The "Land of the Free" was not made free to me, at all events. For no particular reason that I could discover—for my papers were all in order—and I had the best of credentials from a former employer in England—I was refused permission to land, and dumped, with several other "undesirables," on Ellis Island.

Ellis Island, the New York Immigration Depot, is primarily a market divided into pens for the reception of human cattle. It is also a prison, where those held for deportation are confined under conditions that are a standing disgrace to a nation pretending to call itself civilized.

All day long smart uniformed doctors are engaged with their force-fingers and thumbs turning back eyelids or examining heads for traces of infectious diseases.

I got a fleeting glimpse of all this on my arrival, when I had to carry my two heavy portmanteaux, one on each shoulder, along some half-mile of corridors and passages, before reaching a big bare room where were detained emigrants, mostly the scum of southern Europe, with a sprinkling of Asiatics.

I spent a day and a night in there, then I demanded to see the Commissioner. As a result of my complaint I was transferred to what is known as the second-class detention room. Except that it was not quite so overcrowded, and possibly a little less insanitary, it was exactly like the third-class.

But I had to make the best of it for there was no other except the first-class, and one had to pay and pay heavily, there.

We had nothing to do, no tasks to occupy our minds, and for twenty-three hours out of each twenty-four we were penned within the one bare, filthy room. We were forced into daily and hourly contact with the off-scourings of the world. Our food was coarse as to quality and deficient as regards quantity.

Our one-hour's exercise was taken, not in the garden, but on the flat roof of our prison. From it we would gaze wistfully over New York Harbor, with its great Statue of Liberty dominating the entrance. The statue stands with its back to Ellis Island, an altogether apt position, although I take it that the Americans had no intention of being funny when they set it up.

Our blankets were terrible; so much so that after the third night of sleeplessness I made a strong complaint to the Commissioner. The next day all the three hundred and odd blankets were taken away and baked. This mended matters a bit for a while, but in three or four days the nuisance was as bad as ever, for no attempts were made to compel the emigrants to rid their garments of the vermin with which they were infested.

Cleanliness, in fact, was not considered, in the least by the authorities. True, there was a shower bath in the abolition room, but it was only used by us Britishers, of whom there were eight or ten altogether in the second-class detention room.

After a stay of exactly twelve days on the island I was sent for one morning to the office and informed that my turn for deportation had come, and that I could hold myself in readiness to embark within twenty-four hours.

"Thank God!" I ejaculated fervently.

The official eyed me quizzically. "Think you've been hard done by, do you?" he queried.

"Yes," I said stoutly, "I do."

"So do I," he replied, and shut the register with a bang.

Of course he knew all about my case, or rather, I should say, all about the official version of it, for he had the record before him at the time. Yet he was constrained to acknowledge the unjustness of it. Surely no further comment is needed on a system the results of which are condemned by the very officials appointed to administer it.

How to Cross the Street.

It is being urged by the Canadian Safety League that there should be devoted a few minutes each day in the public schools of this and other Canadian cities to instructing children in the very great need of exercising greater care when crossing streets. Since the automobile has become such an important factor in our streets, all efforts to lessen accidents there cannot but have public approval. It is to be sincerely hoped that the League will get the hearty co-operation of school principals in its commendable campaign. Street fatalities have now become so numerous, in practically all cities, as to create profound concern. Undoubtedly the problem of lessening these accidents is a complex one. It would be unjust to put all the blame for accidents on the shoulders of drivers. On the other hand, when the duty certainly devolves on pedestrians to "stop, look and listen" before venturing to cross streets, they should not be in danger of their lives if they chance to be off their guard for a moment. It is astonishing, however, when the peril of the streets is taken into consideration, to note the lack of care with which so many people leave their sidewalks and plunge into congested traffic.

Into the matter of reckless driving, it is to the credit of the Automobile Association of this city that it most vigorously assails it; but there are always the uncontrollable ones. It is such drivers and the thoughtless pedestrian, who supply the bulk of the street accidents. The most convincing proof is to hand that numerous accidents could be prevented if proper foresight was observed on the part of the man of the street and the man at the wheel.—Montreal Star.

Germany Severe on Traitors.

Leipzig, Sept. 26, (A.P.)—Germany's highest court shows little mercy for men arraigned before it for treason in the great war. Gerhard Strey was recently given a life sentence for having betrayed his command in March, 1922. The evidence showed that he deserted the German army and went over to the French. A short time later concentrated French artillery fire against the entrenchments where Strey had been serving showed that he had revealed all details of the positions to the enemy.

Strey returned to Germany in 1920, and was arrested at his home in Magdeburg and charged with high treason, which he admitted. His defence was that he was badly treated by superiors, and could not endure further military service.

An Episcopal Repartee

I heard the Hon. and Rev. Canon Adderley tell some good stories recently concerning Wilberforce, Bishop of Oxford, whose official designation was "Samuel Oxon," made up of his baptismal name, followed by the Latin name of his see.

Wilberforce was one day addressing a meeting—said Mr. Adderley—and I suppose he coughed or cleared his throat in the midst of his speech.

"Try Brown's food for cattle," said a voice.

"Thank you," said the bishop, "it may be good for asses, but it does not suit Samuel Oxon."

Something Wrong

Within the memory of the writer, hucksters used to drive through the residential sections of the Southern city singing, "Here's your water-melon fresh and fine; one for a nickel and two for a dime." The melons were of the best. Chicago women have established a boycott on watermelons because house-to-house dealers, who handle the bulk of the retailing of them, demand $1 a melon. ### Squashing a Heckler

During a certain political meeting, the speaker was constantly interrupted by a demand that he should give one of his audience a direct "yes" or "no" to a certain question. "Not every question can be plainly or lucidly answered by a mere 'yes' or 'no,'" said the speaker. "Yes, it can, except by liars like you!" shouted the interrupter. "Can you answer two questions I will put to you by a plain 'yes' or 'no'?" asked the speaker. "Of course I can, like any other honest man, who has not come here to tell lies and throw dust in the eyes of the voters," was the answer. "Very well," said the speaker. "Here is my first question: What is the time?" The interrupter looked uneasy and said nothing, writes Coulson Kernahan in "Celebrities." Then came the second question: "How long have you been out of quod?"

This finished the treacherous heckler, and he left the hall amid roars of laughter from the rest of the audience.

A Wee Drop

Here is a tale of Edburgh:—"In Edinburgh, on a hot afternoon in the beginning of June, soon after the close of the forenoon seditant of the General Assembly, a well-known Doctor of Divinity belonging to one of the Highland Synods overtook an elder from beyond the Grampians, whose face he knew quite well, at the east end of Princes' Street, and not far from the Registrar Office. The latter was gazing about him inquiringly. "My good friend," remarked the reverend Doctor, who thought that he ought to make a friendly remark, "I see you are looking for your train." "Yes," was the reply. "I see that after such a long day in the Assembly, I will be the better of a wee drop!"

S. A. Sunday School Service

The Salvation Army Sunday School Rally Day Service, held in the Adelaide Street Citadel yesterday afternoon was a splendid success, and showed unmistakably the healthy condition of this branch of the work. Adjutant Stickland, the Corps officer, was in charge of the proceedings and heartily congratulated the young people's workers on the success of their efforts during the past year. Young Peoples' Sergt. Major Howell, gave a short description of the work done in the Sunday School and urged the parents present to co-operate with the teachers in imparting religious instruction to the children. Several solos and recitations were given by members of the young people's corps, all of which were well rendered. The life saving guards were present on the platform in full uniform and their leader, Miss Catherine Cave gave a very interesting address in which she dealt with the aims of the organization and also outlined some of the difficulties met by the young people's workers and showed how they could be overcome. Mrs. Adjutant Stickland spoke from the parents' standpoint and offered some good advice to the parents present. Adjutant Stickland then prayed for God's blessing on the service.

Obituary.

On August 31st, there passed peacefully and quietly away, at the Sacred Heart Academy, Hallettville, Texas, U.S.A., Sister Mary Rose Clowe (Angela), daughter of Henry and Johannah Clowe of Ferryland. The deceased left home just one year ago to join the religious order in Texas. About three or four months ago her parents received the sad intelligence of her rapidly failing health, and small hopes were entertained for her recovery. Sister Mary Rose was in her twenty-first year, and the calmness and patient resignation with which she met death are characteristic of the zeal and trust in her divine spouse, and a source of solace and comfort to her grief-stricken parents. She was of a tender and gentle disposition, which won the affection of all who knew her. She leaves to mourn their sad loss a father, mother, two brothers and four sisters, together with a large circle of friends and relatives. A precious one from us is gone. A voice we loved is still'd. A place is vacant in our home That never can be filled. But yet we know that one found rest Beyond all human care; And dwells with God's own Holy blest In that Heavenly palace fair. —Inserted by her Sister, Eda Clowe.

Belvedere Orphanage

COLLECTION TOTALLED $4,655.54.

The annual collection for Belvedere Orphanage taken up yesterday netted $4,655.54 being made up as follows:

Cathedral	.....	$3,264.15
St. Patrick's	.....	1,076.00
St. Joseph's	.....	170.19
St. Casel	.....	65.00
		$4,655.34

The total, about $40 short of last year's receipts, will be augmented by donations which did not reach the collectors yesterday. After last mass the gentlemen who took up the collection repaired to the Orphanage where Mr. John Pippy of the Cathedral Parish formally handed over the collection to the Rev. Superiores. Mr. Pippy thanking those who assisted so splendidly made a plea for a united effort from the men for the annual Garden Party. Rev. Dr. Carter, Chaplain of the orphanage responded thanking all for the very material assistance rendered after which Mr. J. J. Lacey endorsed the Chairman's remarks with reference to an active participation by the men in the coming Garden Party and closed with a vote of thanks to the press for many courtesies extended, which being seconded by Mr. T. P. Hickey was unanimously carried.

"Who Are My Parents" FOX BIG SPECIAL, APPEALS STRONGLY TO WOMEN.

"Who are my parents?" is another of those heart stories that William Fox is producing with such conspicuous success. Booked for the Majestic Theatre beginning to-day, it is written by a mysterious author who prefers to be known as "Mr. X." The writer has demonstrated very clearly that he knows human nature and understand the value of appealing to the highest instincts of patrons of the screen.

The story has to do with a stern and uncompromising father attempting to rule the life of his young daughter. By so doing he brings her and himself unhappiness. Betty Lewis, yielding to her father's will, does not tell the man whose wife she becomes of an earlier marriage. This omission leads to serious consequences and there are many bitter tears shed by a broken-hearted mother until she and her daughter are united. The production was directed by J. Searle Dawey. A finely balanced cast, in which a new comer to the screen, Miss Peggy Shaw, a former Ziegfeld Follies beauty, has a leading part. Roger Lytton, at Colonel Lewis, Florence Billings, as Barbara Draper, Miles Welch as Ken Tyler and Adelaide Prince as his mother are others in the cast. Florence Haas and Jimmy Lapeley, a pair of precocious and delightful youngsters, have an important share of the acting honors.

MONTHLY MEETING.

House visits, 779; special treatment 64; number of children at present visiting clinic, 39.

A donation of six gross lb. tins of "Reolax", reconstructed milk powder, is gratefully acknowledged from Messrs. Mead, Johnson & Co., Indiana, U.S.A. clothes from Mrs. Angus Reid and 1 dozen eggs from Mrs. Gosling.

For the expansion and development of this important work in the city friends are urgently needed and other donations "in kind" are invited. Two rooms in the east end district and two rooms in the west end district are wanted at once for Boarding. The present quarters are now the not large enough to cope with the amount of work there is waiting to be done in this city. Will someone give us practical help in this matter?

Seventy-five per cent of the babies seen during the health week conference were found to be suffering from malnutrition, due to irregular and improper feeding and insufficient care often the result of ignorance or neglect or both. It is our work to help these mothers and their children to teach them health habits, and child care, both at the clinics and in their homes. Support our cause and you are educating those less fortunate to a healthier, happier life, and you are giving the children a better start.

The nation moves forward on the feet of the little children. If there is a time in life when the golden rule may be applied, and the baby needs a square deal, it is when the mother's milk is taken prematurely from him. The possibilities of saving life with breast milk in both well and sick infants, far outweigh any other one thing in the whole medical art.

MOTHERS call at the Child Welfare Department with your baby so that we may advise you how to maintain breast feeding or establish a proper artificial feeding if breast milk is insufficient.

BUSINESS MEN! Without good, strong, healthy babies there can be no strong citizens for our country. While you are thinking of this, why not send us a small contribution, and give one more child a proper start.

Nfld. Government Railway.
To All Concerned!

The Newfoundland Government Railway will endeavour, as far as possible, to forward all freight via North Sydney and Port aux Basques, but reserves the right, whenever circumstances in the opinion of the Management, require it, to forward freight, originally billed via North Sydney and Port aux Basques and designated steamers.

VIA HALIFAX or VIA LOUISBURG, collecting extra charges over connecting lines, between North Sydney and Louisburg, and also the right to forward same by any steamer owned or chartered by the Railway from North Sydney or Louisburg, or Halifax, direct to St. John's, or Newfoundland ports other than Port aux Basques.

Shippers or Consignees, when effecting Marine Insurance, should bear this in mind, and have their policies covered accordingly.

Your Doctor's Bill
may be anything from $50.00 up for a severe illness or injury lasting, say a fortnight. Add to that, special dieting, medicines, a nurse's fee, and maybe worse than all these the loss of your earnings (and this applies particularly to agents, salesmen, professional men, etc).
The cost may be amazing, and not one reader right now can say whose turn it will be next.
Why not let us foot the bills? A few cents a day paid to us twice a year will take all this worry from you. Better call 1154 TO-DAY and get all the details.
