A TALCUM OF RARE BEAUTY

Three Flowers Talcum is delightfully smooth and refined. It is of just the right "weight" and adds a touch of charm to midday's toilette. In Summer this dainty Talc is most useful and every lady who appreciates a distinctive powder should try the fragrant Three Flowers. The best is none too good for the woman who wishes to be well thought of socially.

STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER III.

Lady Fielden's school fete was attended by the elite of the neighbourhood, and was the very perfection of such an entertainment. The day was beautifully fine, and a bright, warm sun, a sweet, ororous wind, a deep blue sky, and the atmosphere so clear that the view all round the country was magnificent. Every detail of that day came back to Dolores. Her father was tired and not very well, and Madame de Ferras offered to take her with Lola. The carriage called at White-Chiff, Madame de Ferras looking very distinguished and aristocratic in her velvet costume and Lola very lovely in a dress of some rich silk material trimmed with lace. Her first, eager, breathless question was—

"Do you like my dress? Now, Dolores, do not speak hastily, but look at it, now tell me candidly if you like it."

It was impossible not to like it, for the costume with its rich hues was so admirably suited to the dark, glowing beauty of the wearer; and Dolores praised it highly. With an air of intense relief Lola sank back in the carriage.

"I am glad. I must own that I looked forward with some little anxiety to what you would say."

Her critical eyes noted every detail of Dolores's dress, which was white, with picturesque dashes of blue—quite different from her own splendid attire, but far more elegant and becoming.

"She evidently goes in for simplicity," said Lola, to herself—"the very opposite of myself. So much the better."

Dolores remembered how anxiously Madame de Ferras had looked at her daughter as she said to her—

"Ah, Lola, if you would but think and less of vain nonsense!"

To which Lola retorted with a charming smile that a lecture was hardly appropriate on such a day. Dolores recalled the pained expression on Madame's face.

"I would not have spoken to my mother in that fashion," she had said to herself.

Of all pretty scenes, a school-treat on a bright, summer day is perhaps one of the most charming; and Lady Fielden had spared neither expense nor trouble to make hers as pleasant as possible.

The two beauties attracted no small amount of attention. They were indeed the queens of the fete; and opinions were divided about them. Some of the men admired the fair Dolores, others the dark, glowing beauty of Lola de Ferras. All kinds of fancied names were given them. "The Rose and the Lily," "The York and the Lancaster Roses," were among the number. It was unanimously declared, however, that two more beautiful girls could not be seen.

They had been more than an hour before Sir Karl Allanmore appeared; and that hour had not been entirely satisfactory to Lola. It was true that she had been surrounded by admirers, but she was eminently practical—none of these were eligible men. She had been longing in her heart to see Lord Rhysworth or Sir Karl.

She was looking her handsomest and best when at length the baronet arrived. She was standing before a group of tall fuchsias, which with their crimson and purple bells formed a pleasing background for her. The rich dress of silk swept the ground, and every line of her graceful figure was shown to advantage by the well-fitting costume. On her dark, beautiful face there was the faintest shadow of fatigue, which softened it wonderfully. The weary look passed from it, and a light that made it dazzlingly lovely came into it when Lady Fielden advanced to her, walking by the side of the handsomest man she ever remembered to have seen.

"Miss de Ferras," she said, "Sir Karl Allanmore wishes for the pleasure of an introduction to you."

Lola looked up and saw a laughing, debonaire face, bright as a May morning, with keen blue eyes and a perfect mouth. The young baronet was tall and well made, with a head proudly carried, and something of a soldier's bearing, his whole appearance giving one the impression that he enjoyed life amazingly.

"Would you like to walk as far as the river?" he asked; and she answered that it would give her great pleasure to do so.

They went away together, and the world looked quite different to Lola de Ferras. It seemed brighter and better. Everything appeared couleur de rose while he was talking to her. She was saying to herself that she should not now take any trouble to cultivate Lord Rhysworth's acquaintance, that she was quite content with the attentions of one whom she had hitherto considered as second on the list.

"They walked down to the bank of the river."

"I am quite a stranger to this neighbourhood," said Sir Karl; "but I must say I admire it. It is picturesque, well wooded, with plenty of water. How beautiful this river is! Do you know my place at all, Miss de Ferras?"

"I know it well," she replied, secretly vowing to herself, if it were in any way possible, she would one day be mistress of Soaradale.

"I have not yet had time to see much of my neighbors," he continued; "but I shall hope to visit Beaulieu soon."

"I am sure mama will be pleased to see you."

She spoke demurely enough, but the flash of her dark eyes expressed more than any words could convey.

"May I hope for a welcome from you as well?" added Sir Karl, laughing with the gay, half assurance that suited him so well.

"I cannot promise that," she replied. "You will have to deserve it."

"I will do my best," he said, more gravely.

He was not that most despicable of all creatures—a male flirt; he was neither a coxcomb nor a dandy, he was neither inconstant nor insincere, but he could no more help admiring, liking and talking to pretty girls than a butterfly can help hovering around the sweetest flowers. He never talked of love, but there was a gallantry and deference in his manner which charmed every woman with whom he came in contact. It impressed the very susceptible nature of the beautiful French girl as nothing else had ever done.

"You speak English well," he remarked to her.

"I have been more in England than in France," she answered.

"Which country do you like the best?" he asked.

Her eyes flashed with a bright light, and her lips quivered with emotion. She was so completely transformed that he was startled by her loveliness.

"Which?" she said. "It shows what strangers we are that you should ask me such a question. Do you think there is any comparison between this cold, dreary, misty England, where you never see the sun except through a veil, and my beautiful, sunny, fair France? I love every inch of her soil. It seems to me the very home of poetry and romance."

"We have poetry and romance also in England," remarked Sir Karl.

"Yes, but your poetry is all sad, and your romances are tragedies," she replied. "Think of the grand, old cathedral cities of France; think of the fair rivers and the noble mountains; think of the azure skies, the vines and olive-trees! Who could compare this misty, gloomy land with bright, fair France?"

She spoke with such enthusiasm that Sir Karl was interested.

"You speak eloquently," he said.

"Because I love France," she answered. "As between the lands, so between the people—there seems to be no comparison. Here in England your people are dense, dull, phlegmatic, cold and proud. Your peasantry are poor; there is no politeness in the whole nation, unless it is among the higher classes. In France every man is more or less a gentleman; even the artisans and laborers are polite and courteous. If you happen to stumble against an Englishman on a narrow foot-path, he considers himself insulted, and revenges himself with an imprecation or a scowl; if the same thing happens to a Frenchman, he is so courteous, so polite, that you almost seem to have done him a favor."

"It may be so," he answered, plucked by her words. "But you cannot deny to the Englishmen two great virtues, honesty and bravery."

"I do not often read the newspapers," she said; "but I would judge best by the police reports. The little I have read has not given me an exalted idea of Englishmen."

"You are prejudiced," he remarked, smiling.

Married at Thirteen

STRANGE CUSTOMS OF AFRICAN TRIBES.

In certain African tribes girls are usually married between the ages of eight and thirteen, as the husbands like to do their own training! In the good old days before the white man interfered, a man might have a free wife, a slave wife, or an assortment of both.

Oddly enough the slave wife was the more expensive to buy, being worth several blankets, as well as a gun and a packet of gunpowder. The reason that the slave wife cost more was because she became the actual property of her husband; she could not divorce him, her children were his, or his family's (not his wife's family's), and, above all, she lived with him wherever she might choose to live.

In an ordinary tribal marriage the husband has to take up his abode in the village of his mother-in-law, and his children are considered to belong to his wife's people. Sometimes, when a man has worked well for his wife's tribe for several years, his mother-in-law will, at his request, kindly permit him to return to his own village. But in making such a request he runs the risk of losing wife and family, as they cannot be compelled to follow him.

These people are firm believers in spirit. No native does anything without being influenced by spirits, so all his life he is either propitiating good spirits or fighting bad ones. If a man is going to lay out a new garden, he must make offering to the spirits. He builds a tiny arch, puts food under it and says this prayer: "Ye who lived and died here long ago, ye spirits of these streams be propitious and let these gardens we are about to make be productive, and bring forth abundantly in due season."

So thoroughly do these people believe that the dead rule them, that they affirm that every new baby is but the emanation from the spirit of a dead person.

Therefore, when a baby reaches a certain age a wise man is called in who subjects the infant to certain tests; and then tells the waiting parties which of their ancestors is reincarnated in their child. This decides his name, for if he is really great-uncle John returned to earth in another form, it is obvious that he must again be called John.

Allies to Continue German Control

WILL WATCH MILITARY FORCES UNTIL DISARMAMENT DEMANDS EXECUTED.

LONDON, May 20.—(Associated Press).—The Allies intend to keep a firm hand on military control on Germany by maintaining the commission of control in full operation until the disarmament demands made in the Treaty of Versailles are fully executed, according to a long note from the Council of Ambassadors sent to Berlin from Paris to-day.

The Ambassadors' communication was in reply to the German note of March 21, in which the Berlin Government maintaining that it was time for the League of Nations to take Household Notes.

Serve mayonnaise with chicken salad mixed with an equal quantity of whipped cream.

Top strawberry tarts with sweetened whipped cream and garnish with whole strawberries.

Deviled ham, mixed with cold, boiled, diced potatoes and mayonnaise, makes a good salad.

Equal parts of rosin and beeswax melted together make an excellent wax for canning purposes.

When you are making jelly, use a few tiny wire glasses for the children's school lunches.

If you wish success in your canning, use fruits while still fresh in good condition.

Bright summer days are the best to bleach linens and laces. Wet them and spread them in the sun.

A combination of lead tea and lemonade makes a good punch. Add a few slices of orange.

If your children do not like plain milk, give it to them in the form of milkshakes, custards, etc.

Needed every day

For cuts, burns, wounds, scalds, sunburn and windburn. Also, for chapped hands and skin. Take it internally for coughs, colds and sore throats. It is tasteless and odorless and gives great relief.

Explosion in Turret of U.S. Battleship Mississippi Causes Forty Deaths

Coolidge Nominated as Republican Candidate—Death of Very Rev. Mons Driscoll in Halifax—Storm in Northern Saskatchewan and Illinois Leaves a Trail of Destruction.

EXPLOSION IN TURRET CAUSES FORTY DEATHS.

SAN PEDRO, June 12. Forty men were killed outright and many injured to-day when turret No. 1 of the battleship Mississippi, blew while the dreadnought was in practice on the San Clements grounds off here. The explosion occurred early in the afternoon. Dreadnought immediately after the explosion, wireless the hospital ship Relief, in the harbor to make ready and proceed at full speed, making a record for the 45 miles between the drill track and the harbour. Shortly after the Mississippi dropped anchor and an explosion occurred on board, near the harbour district. This was a 14-inch shell, the projectile of which plunged into the sea at the of the steamer Yale, leaving a port for San Francisco. The white hospital ship immediately proceeded to its berth to meet the dreadnought and the meeting was effected inside the breakwater.

COOLIDGE NOMINATED.

CLEVELAND, June 12. Calvin Coolidge was nominated for Presidency to-day in the Republican National Convention. The nomination was all but unanimous.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

CONVENTION HALL, Cleveland, June 12.—The Republican National Convention last night adopted its platform as reported by the Resolution

Committee and rejected the LaFollette planks. High spots in the platform include, adherence to the World Court, as recommended by President Coolidge; a demand for speedy prosecution of all wrongdoers in official positions and condemnation of those who "strive indiscriminately to besmirch the names of the innocent and undermine the confidence of the people in Government"; a declaration for the rigid enforcement of law but without specific mention of prohibition; scientific readjustment of railroad rate schedule with a view to the encouragement of agriculture and basic industries without impairment of their traffic; progressive reduction of taxes of all people as rapidly as may be on a sound peace time basis; settlement of foreign debts growing out of the war on the basis of the agreement concluded with Great Britain.

DESTRUCTIVE CYCLONE IN SASKATCHEWAN.

GRAVELSBURG, Sas., June 12. One killed, a house demolished, several graineries rolled about the fields in the district between here and La Flesche, and $50,000 damages to crops, was the toll of a cyclone and electric storm which occurred last evening. Edmond Demay, farmer, living six miles south of here, was instantly killed when a bolt of lightning struck him as he walked from his barn to his house carrying a pail of milk. About 6.15 a hail storm of cyclonic fury burst out and before stopping fully two inches of hail covered the area of about five miles wide and 21 miles long. One house was lifted from its foundation, carried to a height of fifty feet and dropped 400 yards away into a heap of splintered wood.

ILLINOIS FELT STORM ALSO.

GALESBURG, Ill., June 12. Damage estimated at nearly a million dollars was occasioned by a tornado and hail storm here early to-day. Considerable livestock was reported killed.

FLOODS IN OHIO.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 12. Two men are known to have been drowned in flood waters resulting from a heavy rainstorm which swept over sections of Northeastern Ohio Tuesday night, according to reports received here. Property damage is believed to exceed a million dollars.

CHARGES AGAINST MURDOCK DECLARED UNJUSTIFIABLE.

OTTAWA, June 12. By a vote of 14 to 8, the privileges and elections committee of the House, shortly after one o'clock this afternoon, adopted an amendment finding the charges against Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, were only not proved, but entirely disproved. The charges were made by Mr. Porter in the House, Mr. Murdock being accused of having used information obtained as a Cabinet Minister in withdrawing $4050 from the Ottawa branch of the Home Bank two days before the Bank failed.

WELL-KNOWN CAPTAIN PASSES AWAY.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 12. Captain Michael Barrett, aged 80, for many years engaged in Newfoundland and West Indies trading, and during late years master of the Dominion Government steamer J. L. Nelson, died here to-day in hospital, following injuries sustained five weeks ago when he was struck by an automobile.

MONSIGNOR DRISCOLL OF HALIFAX DEAD.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 12. Right Rev. Monsignor Michael Driscoll, aged 74, for many years attached to St. Mary's Cathedral staff, died here this afternoon following two months' illness.

DEPRESSION IN STEEL TRADE.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., June 12. The open hearth shops of the Algoma Steel Corporation finished making steel yesterday and closed down, following the closing down of the rail mill. The 18 inch and 12 inch mills will continue to operate for some time yet. It is likely that an additional 500 men will be laid off, making a total laid off in the last few days of 1,000.

DEPOSITORS' LOSSES SMALL.

OTTAWA, June 13. The rate of losses on deposits, in chartered banks during the last twenty years in Canada was one-twentieth of one per cent, stated Superintendent Finlayson of the Insurance Department in his evidence before the Commons Banking and Commerce Committee to-day. Mr. Finlayson said that during those twenty years there were thirteen bank failures. Nine of these banks had paid nothing yet, but liquidation was not complete. The Home Bank would probably pay 60 cents on the dollar.

Can a Woman Love Twice?

SEE THE RESULT AT NICKEL MONDAY.

What's in a name? The name of a photoplay generally indicates the nature of the plot contained therein. On Monday next the Nickel Theatre will screen Ethel Clayton's greatest achievement—"Can a Woman Love Twice?" The picture is brimful of real life drama and there is entertainment of an unusual nature.

As a cabaret entertainer in "Can a Woman Love Twice?" Ethel Clayton is enabled to show the struggle of a good, clean girl against an environment from which her whole being shrinks. Her emotional transitions from portraying the cabaret girl with a song on her lips and an ache in her heart to delineating the character of a young mother fighting for the future of her child is one of the finest bits of emotional acting ever seen on the screen. "Can a Woman Love Twice?" is an F. B. O. release written by Wyndham Gittens and directed by James W. Horn.

Watch for this great feature at the house of recognized attractions.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The regular weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Outerbridge, Vincomb, Collier, Ryan and Dowdon were present.

The meeting was a short one, very little business being brought before the Board for consideration. The Secretary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church wrote re need of repairs being made to the hill leading to the Church. This was referred to the City Engineer.

Castle to Let That a Great Ship May Live

In order that a great ship may live, Caldicot Castle, old grey and grim, crouched amid the hills of the Welsh marshes, asleep with knightly memories, in a land blazoned with legends of war, is "to let."

Seven hundred years of history have gone to make Caldicot what it is—an epitome of English history by land. And now its squire, Mr. Wheatley Cobb, will let it for $1,500 a year in order that he may save another lone relic of history—the 38-gun frigate Implacable, last of the Trafalgar prizes, and the oldest ship afloat. The Implacable lies now in Falmouth Harbor, where the Squire of Caldicot is lord high admiral of his own training centre for sea scouts.

Squire-Admiral Cobb loves old stones and ancient walls, machicolated towers and thin ghosts, stout ships and hale traditions.

Big Entertainment at the Crescent To-Night

AMATEUR CONTEST TO BE RUN AS EXTRA ATTRACTION.

The Crescent Theatre offers to-night its regular Friday night Amateur Contest, and judging from the names received so far, a big night's amusement is promised. This of course is an extra attraction as the regular programme will be shown.

The film entitled "The Last Moment" provides plenty of thrills and entertainment.

The story is very interesting as a character study and there are many good laughs in it. Henry Hull is exceedingly good and will gain many new admirers. Louis Wolheim is well cast in one of his usual brutal types—this time the captain of the ship. And Doris Kenyon's beauty and well presented role make a pleasing contrast to the burly captain.

A little touch of pathos and human appeal is added in the small boy "Nap" betwixt. Mickey Bennett is a small actor who will immediately gain sympathy.

Variety is added in the way of deep sea photography showing the light of Nap and the monster under water. The swim for the shore with the monster close upon them, and Nap's final claim to heroism when he fights the monster in the water to save Alice, will highly please the audience.

The Price of Power

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Now that the General Manager of the Electric Light Co. is in town from Montreal, wouldn't it be a good time to draw his attention to the price of electricity here.
In Montreal they sell it for 3 or 4 cents per Kilowatt, and make money.
How does he justify the local charge of 15 and 13 cents, and when is he going to reduce it to a third of the present rate? The motto of the late Company was "Save 'em." Is the present Company going to adopt the same motto, if so surely there must be some remedy or some tribunal to which the victims can appeal to go a fair deal in this matter? What does the People's Paper say?
Yours,
VICTIM.

Japanese Navy Superior to the American

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fisk Makes Comparison of the Two Fleets—
Does Not Think War Possible—
United States Navy in Deplorable Condition Because Lack of Trained Men as Well as Other Requisites.

New York, June 4.—Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fisk, retired, in a letter to Secretary of the Navy, Wilbur, calls attention to the present comparative strength of the United States and Japanese fleets for operations in Far Eastern waters which he said was gravely misunderstood by the public.

"Of course I do not mean to suggest," said the Rear Admiral, "that war is even possible but nevertheless it may be pointed out that the Japanese and the Americans have taken attitudes that are irreconcilable and that the Japanese have virtually broken off diplomatic relations by giving their Ambassador a 'vacation.'
Such attitude, and such acts have usually preceded wars, though they have not always been followed by wars.

Though the people of the United States imagine, he said, that as a result of the naval treaty the United States fleet is superior to the Japanese Navy in the ratio of five to three,
this is the reverse of the truth.

Even if the United States were superior in capital ships, he asserted, it is far from being superior in that ratio in active personnel, and it is far inferior in reserve. If Japan should go to the extreme of taking the Philippine Islands and thus force us into war, the letter added, we should find ourselves in a deplorable condition because of the lack of trained men as well as of other requisites.

OLD FRIENDS.

It always disappoints and grieves, to meet the friends of yesterday; they are afflicted with the h e a v e s, they're b r o k e n
down and halt and gray; "Our lives are full of falling l e a v e s, we are all in."

WALT MARCH seem to say. A comrade of the bygone time wrote to me thus, "I'll see you soon; I'm headed for your sunny clime where grow the lemon and the prune; to talk old days, in prose and rhyme, will surely be a precious boon." I pictured him as tall and straight, as I had known him long ago, with raven ringlets on his pate, and gleaming teeth as white as snow, as I stood waiting by my gate, to greet the friend I used to know. And while I scanned the dusty lane for signs of my old chum of yore, a delegate who groaned with pain, as though his every hinge were sore, stopped by my gate and made it plain that he was Billad Bungstart Bore. This was the friend with whom I'd planned to gossip of the locust's years, a relic who could scarcely stand, with wooden teeth and damaged ears; as mournfully I shook his hand, I wet his whiskers with my tears. As I surveyed the gloomy wreck, he sadly cried, "Can this be you? You are a total loss, by heck, Old Time has pulled you all askew;
you have a dromedary's neck, your feet are badly out of true."

A hint to the prospective home builder is to have the electric outlets in the laundry well above the floor level to avoid filling them with sweep-ings.

Britain's Depopulated Islands

With the large number of people of the Hebrides coming to Canada to settle, the dwindling population of what is known as Outer Britain will be further greatly reduced.

While the numbers on the mainland of Britain look like increasing for many years to come, what may be called the island population has been decreasing for a century or more. Except in the case of the Isle of Wight and of some of the islands, such as Shetland and Cony, that have a more or less practical connection with the mainland, the lesser Britains around the coast are fast becoming depopulated.

Just as the cities have attracted the people from the villages, so have the mainland and the Empire attracted the people from the islands.
The Hebrides were more populous at the beginning of the 19th century than they are to-day.

It may seem strange at first sight that somewhat inhospitable northern islands were ever peopled at all.
But they had their attraction for seafaring and independent races, and the island population of Scotland grew to well over 100,000.

Conditions have changed, and the islands, at the best none too rich in resources, now fail to support the population that they have gathered.
The Isle of Man is another little Britain which seems to have reached the number of people that it can support. Whatever the summer population may be, the resident population is not increasing. In 1871 it was 54, 000, in 1891 56,000, and in 1911 52,000.
It is much the same in Jersey. There the number of residents has hovered about 50,000 for many decades.

The islands seem to be full up.
Where agriculture is a fairly safe or even prosperous industry the population remains stationary; where, as in Cheating the Laundryman

One of the many good theatrical stories credited to that prince of mirth makers, Mr. Leslie Henson, concerns two actors who meet outside the Bodega, in Bedford Street, London.

"Hello," one of them said grimly,
"you're a fine fellow, you are! Why didn't you meet me here last Friday evening, as you promised?"
"My dear liddle," replied the other in mystified tones, "you are talking through your hat; I don't recollect having promised to meet you here."
"Of course you did," persisted the first indignantly; "you made the appointment with me a fortnight ago last Monday. You made a note of it on your cuff."

The bewildered actor glanced guiltily at his cuff, and then he held out his hand apologetically.

"Egad, you're right," he said humbly.
"I beg your pardon."

the northern islands, it is an uncertain industry the population is falling. While there is still room on the mainland, with its great manufacturing businesses, for more people, there is no room for more on the isles.

Britain has, in fact, over-peopled its islands first. The numbers grow apace around London and the big cities, where hundreds of thousands are already huddled together. But comparatively few thousands have proved enough for the quite roomy islands.

THE MANY.
Some go sailing out to sea.
For a glimpse of the thing called poetry.

And some may find this precious field
In a clump of woods or a clover field.

A few there are may ride the sky
And catch its thrill where the eagles fly.

Some in a soldier's camp may hear
The voices of mystery whispering near.

But oh, for the many there cannot be
The clover field of the changing; sea.

They must dream their dreams till the sun goes down
Mid the cold gray walls or the busy town.

Not for them are the calm retreats,
They must find their God on the city streets.

In the drab, dull tasks must the many find Beauty and Courage and peace of mind.

Yet I watch the throngs as they come and go,
And something is keeping them brave,
I know

And there's never a life so bleak and bare
But something lovely is cherished there.

Safety First

In the Province of Quebec and other parts of Canada Safety Leagues have been formed with a view to reducing the number of accidents caused by vehicular traffic. The movement has the strongest support of the police authorities and the motor associations, and already its beneficial effect is noticeable.

It cannot be gainsaid that by far the greatest number of accidents can be attributed to the actions of pedestrians themselves, either through ignorance of the ordinary traffic rules, or bravado, or because of sheer carelessness. Rules and regulations are laid down for wheeled vehicles, and for the most part they are respected. The pedestrian, however, often fails to realize that he too is expected to conform to the same regulations, and is inclined either to flout them or to take chances that cause even the most careful drivers considerable worry and annoyance. There are people who will stop in the middle of a highway to carry on a conversation, regardless of the fact that they are immediately in the way of vehicles suddenly appearing around a nearby corner. Others step off the pavement without first glancing to right or left in order to ascertain whether it is safe to cross the street. It is not unusual for passengers to alight from a moving train without first making certain that no vehicle is following behind. Again pedestrians will make the attempt to cross in front of an approaching car, and with the whole of their attention fixed on the one, they fail to see that they are hurrying themselves in front of the wheels of another coming from the opposite direction.

A hundred such instances might be quoted, and during any day of the week drivers of cars record many close shaves which but for their presence of mind might easily have been fatal accidents.

Possibly in the future penalties will be imposed on pedestrians who violate the traffic regulations, but our first duty is to impress all and sundry with the necessity for taking precautions. Undoubtedly the chief responsibility rests with the drivers of a vehicle, and he or she must be made to understand fully that the rights of the pedestrian must be respected. The case of the driver, however, will be dealt with in another article, and for the present we are concerned with the pedestrian's responsibility.

The practice of walking along the middle of the road is not conducive to safety, and in this connection the Council could render valuable assistance by giving attention to the condition of the sidewalks. This particularly applies to such thoroughfares as LeMarchant Road, and the streets which lead from the lower to the higher levels.

Among the chief offenders against the traffic regulations, unwittingly, no doubt, are the children. A word of warning by parents, systematic instruction on Safety First methods in the schools, and the use of placards in frequented places would help to improve matters in this respect.

The formation of a Safety League similar to that in other countries would prove effective not only in preventing accidents, but also in assisting the authorities in regulating the traffic.

The Price of Electric Power

The communication from "Victim" which appears in another column, deals with a subject over which householders generally are in common accord. There are many improvements that can be effected in our public utilities, but the one which most closely concerns the citizens of St. John's is the question of Light both both within our houses and in the streets.

To the corporation that will provide us with a current that can be relied upon, the thanks of a grateful people will be extended; and when such a service is combined with a reduction in the rates which at present obtain, that gratitude will be profuse.

Last year it was hoped that with the completion of the Seal Cove plant a competitive lighting system would have operated in St. John's, but the electric power generated by that plant was purchased by the Light and Power Company, and notification of their intentions are awaited with interest. We have their assurance that material reductions in the rates will be made as soon as their plans are completed, and in view of the high charges here as compared with those in other cities in the Dominion of Canada, it is only reasonable to conclude that these promises will be carried out.

A.F. & A.M.

The annual meeting of Avalon Lodge, A.F. & A.M., was held last night in the Masonic Temple when the accounts for the past year were presented, after which the election of officers took place, resulting as follows:

Bro. Edgar Dawe—W. Master.
 Bro. Robert Dawe—Treasurer.
 Bro. Geo. Morris—Tyler.

Confirmation Yesterday

At the R.C. Cathedral yesterday, the sacrament of confirmation was administered to about 500 girls of the city schools. Mrs. M. P. Tobin acted as Sponsor. His Grace was attended by Revs. P. and M. Kennedy, Father McGottigan and Dr. Carter.

Progress at the War Memorial

One of the busy spots in the city is the site of the War Memorial at the King's Beach. Work on the monument is going on apace and everything will be in readiness for July. Under the supervision of the Government Engineers Department, a retaining wall is now being built and the hill graded for vehicle traffic. The concrete steps that have been recently finished are a great improvement and their appearance is enhanced by a number of trees which are now being planted in the holes left for the purpose at each landing. The trees are Norwegian Maple.

The City's Milk Suppliers

During the past couple of days there has been quite a rush of applicants at the Board of Health office for permits to sell milk under regulations passed in 1918. A license must be obtained before and person can sell or exchange for sale in the District of St. John's any milk or cream. Failing which the person is liable to a fine of twenty-five dollars. There are nearly 500 people supplying milk in the District and over 200 shops engaged in the selling of it.

St. Barbe Count

The following message has been received from the Returning Officer in St. Barbe District:

BONNE BAY, June 12.
 Please contradict statement in your issue of 9th. St. Barbe's election reads, the number of votes polled, according to the official announcement, was 2171. This is an error. I gave no official report as to the number of votes polled only my report to Deputy Colonial Secretary which reads 2271.

RETURNING OFFICER.
 The figure published by the Telegram to which exception is taken was quoted from the bulletin issued by the General Post Office on Saturday night. Upon enquiry at the Colonial Secretary's Department we learn that in the first message from the Returning Officer on June 9th, it was stated that the total votes polled were 2260. In the final returns the following figures were given:
 Total votes polled 2271
 Total votes accepted when counting 2280
 Total votes rejected 11

FURTHER DETAILS OF THE MISSISSIPPI DISASTER.
WASHINGTON, June 12.
 The explosion on the battleship Mississippi occurred at one o'clock Thursday afternoon during battle practice, and is believed to have caused the deaths of 43 men and three officers. Vice Admiral Wiley commanding the battleship division reported tonight to the Navy Department that the disaster had occurred at the Secretary of the Navy, and Chief of Operations. "During battle practice of the Mississippi at 1 p.m. to-day, the powder bag of the two right guns of the second turret were ignited. Although the number is not yet fully known, it believed there were 43 men and three officers killed, also there were several men very badly burned. When further details are received they will be forwarded. The accident was caused by the 'sare back' that carried the terrific charge through the breach of the gun instead of out through the muzzle. The gun crew were preparing to fire as a unit the great sea fighters powerful broadside, when a sailor called for the electricity to be turned on for the charge. The switch was thrown on to ignite the powder. The turret was locked, and in another moment the interior of the turret was littered with dead and dying. Ensign H. D. Smith from the U. S. New Mexico was the first man to enter the turret No.2 following the explosion. Upon entering the turret Ensign Smith took with him an air hose which immediately caused flames from the burning turret to shoot forth. After flooding the turret with water Ensign Smith was able to enter. All the men were dead at that time, their faces swelled and puffed almost beyond recognition by the intense heat. Identification marks on the clothing however were still discernible. Three-quarters of an hour elapsed, after the fire in turret No. 2 was observed from the quarter master's deck before entrance to the turret chamber containing the charred bodies of the men could be made. Had the turret which was revolving at the time of the explosion on the battleship Mississippi occurred remained in the position in which it was at the time of the explosion, the fire from the left gun would have gone into the center of the City of San Pedro. Witnesses aboard the ship said when the gunners had gained the controls was wrenched away by the explosion the guns kept revolving and stopped as they pointed aft."

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

June 12th.—Up betimes and to the office where meeting Mr. Lowridge, he tells me he is just come from Labrador, and the weather there mighty mild this spring. "Little ice there all the year, and a good sign of salmon when he left. Comes Mr. Taylor and would like have me go with him to Colinet by motor coach, which would, methinks, be a most excellent trip, and I very sorry that I may not go with him. Talking awhile with Mr. Higginson, he discharges on certain phases of the election but says nothing of what he will do. To the Board of Trade, where Meeting Mr. Lake, to congratulate him on his success in Burin, and learn from him how the vote did go in his district. The House may not open until after the bye-elections, since supply continues automatically, and it is not necessary for the Assembly to meet and pass it before the fiscal year do end. At night to go with the C.L.B. to rehearse the parade for the unveiling of the Memorial. The march a long one, and the manoeuvring mighty difficult. The parade too long, I think, for the small girl guides, and would be far wiser if they remained at home.

Over 42 and 46 pouches of registered mail and sped away in the darkness. A few shots were fired, but the only casualty was a robber shot by his fellows, who mistook him for a trainman. The train carried more than seventy mail clerks and guards all armed, but only those in three of the cars were compelled to face the guns. The robbers forced their way into the cars by breaking the windows and throwing bombs, filled with chlorine gas. The clerks and guards were nearly overcome by fumes, and were forced to open the doors.

BRITISH ELECTION SUGGESTED.

LONDON, June 13.
 G. H. Wain, Jr., Lord of the Treasury, in a speech at Seghill, Northumberland, to-day, hinted at the probability of a general election in the approaching autumn. He said other parties had realized if labor had two or three years' experience in handling the country's affairs they would become so efficient there would be a poor chance of beating them at the polls, consequently the other parties would probably bring about an election for party purposes.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

June 12th.—Up betimes and to the office where meeting Mr. Lowridge, he tells me he is just come from Labrador, and the weather there mighty mild this spring. "Little ice there all the year, and a good sign of salmon when he left. Comes Mr. Taylor and would like have me go with him to Colinet by motor coach, which would, methinks, be a most excellent trip, and I very sorry that I may not go with him. Talking awhile with Mr. Higginson, he discharges on certain phases of the election but says nothing of what he will do. To the Board of Trade, where Meeting Mr. Lake, to congratulate him on his success in Burin, and learn from him how the vote did go in his district. The House may not open until after the bye-elections, since supply continues automatically, and it is not necessary for the Assembly to meet and pass it before the fiscal year do end. At night to go with the C.L.B. to rehearse the parade for the unveiling of the Memorial. The march a long one, and the manoeuvring mighty difficult. The parade too long, I think, for the small girl guides, and would be far wiser if they remained at home.

Hold heart Wednesday open for the Bellevue Garden Party. Every preparation made to give you an enjoyable afternoon.

Annual Collection

BELVEDERE AND MOUNT CARMEL CEMETERIES.

The time appointed for the Annual Collection for the upkeep of the cemeteries of Belvedere and Mount Carmel round, as announced from Altars in all the Roman Catholic Churches on Sunday last, and will be up at all the Masses on Sunday. It is needless for the Telegram to say that a liberal response will be given by the good people of the city of St. John's, who have always been ready for the care and attention which have been devoted to the sacred plots which are interred the remains of the departed. The energetic Committees are doing all in their power to beautify and improve the surroundings, and as time goes on their labors will be made more complete. As the grounds are taken up, walks have to be made, drainage to be extended along the walks, and numerous other things are repaired and numerous other things are attended to, which require an increase in expenditure. It is the duty of the Committees and the energetic and courteous caretakers of the cemeteries to bring the resting places of the departed up to a state of perfection equal to that of any other of its size in the provinces, and cannot be attained without the assistance of the Roman Catholic people whose liberality in the past has been proverbial, and which we are proud to see will be maintained in the future by making the collection of next a record one. The names of those who loved—what a list for meditation! The sorrow from which we refuse to be divorced. Every wound we seek to heal—other affliction to forget; but would we consider it a duty to open—this affliction we cherish in solitude. Where is brother who would willingly forsake the infant that perished like a gem from her arms, though every selection is a pang? Where is the father that would willingly forget the tender of parents, though to remember is but to lament? Who, even in the hour of agony, would forget the dear ones whom he mourns? Who, when the tomb is closing upon remains of her most loved, can she feel his heart as it was, and accept of consolation that must be sought by forgetfulness? No, the noblest attributes of the soul, which survives the tomb is one which has its woes, it has likewise its joys; and when the overwhelming grief is calmed into the gentleness of recollection—when the anguish and convulsive agony ever present ruins of all we most loved, faded away into pensive meditation all that it was in the days of happiness—who would root out the sorrow from the heart? There is a remembrance of the tomb sweeter than life. There is a remembrance of the tomb which we turn even from the joys of the living.

...place shall him restore. ...ill life can charm no more ...mourning till pity's self is dead. ...reference to the collection Sunday next for the Cities of St. John's and the United States that they have left behind them have forgotten that beautiful plot in the Cathedral, known as the Mount of the Holy Spirit, overlooking the historic water of Quill Vidi Lake, where few but some dearly loved relative, some fondly cherished friend, whose bones are now resting in beautiful peaceful seclusion.

Obituary
She passed peacefully away, on the 10th, Eliza Jane, wife of Mr. Geo. Sibley's Cove, T.B. Deane had been for a number of years suffering from Heart Disease, seven days previous to her death she was seized with a very severe attack from which she never recovered. Her illness she was never able to murmur or complain, but patiently for her end and when she was ready to obey the summons she was well known and highly respected in the little settlement in which she lived, and her sudden passing was felt by all who know her. She is laid to rest on Sunday, June 15th, at 10 o'clock, the funeral service being conducted by Rev. E. R. Anthony, who read his text Psalm 127, verse 2, "He giveth His beloved sleep." To mourn their sad loss are husband, son, two sisters and three nephews, besides a large number of friends to whom there is the deepest sympathy, especially to the husband, who is so deeply afflicted over her loss.

Rotary Club

The usual weekly Rotarian Luncheon was held at the West End Restaurant yesterday. Dr. Tim Mitchell acted as chairman, and Dr. Parsons gave a very interesting address on "Mental Disease."

The functions of the nervous system in relation to the organs of the body and their control of the individual in health and disease was explained. The causes of insanity were indicated and treatment from the time of the middle ages was discussed. Within recent years the greatest progress has been made and study and treatment of mental diseases have been progressing along rational lines, so that mental medicine has kept pace with general medicine, so much so that well equipped hospitals discharge 75 per cent. instead of 35 per cent.

A comparison was made of our institution with those abroad which reflected very much on the facilities for treatment in the former place. There is no place for the treatment of acute cases. The present accommodation was shown to be 40 years behind the times, poorly ventilated, cold and noisy and without any of the ordinary equipment for treatment.

The work of Doctors Draper and Cotton, of the New York State Hospital, was referred to, showing that a large contributing factor in those predisposed to mental diseases were local infections of which the teeth were the most common. The Board of Works was asked to appoint a dentist but stated that they could not see their way clear to do it and that they could not give authority for the employment when needed.

Physicians and surgeons in St. John's were just as efficient as any seen abroad and could give these cases the opportunity of treatment as similar cases get abroad if they were appointed and had the necessary equipment.

The interest of those in charge was shown by the fact that other than the Minister of Public Works and the Deputy Minister, members of the Board had not visited the institution since the appointment of the present superintendent nor had any members of the Executive.

The influence of Rotarians was requested to get something done to bring to these unfortunates the treatment that they require and that medical science of to-day was shown to be necessary.

Dr. Parsons was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. Among the guests were Mr. Bishop, Rev. A. Facey, Dr. Griev, H. J. Crowe, R. S. Oldford.

Obituary.

MRS. A. H. SEYMOUR.
(H. F. SHORTIS.)

The many friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Jessie E. Seymour, relict of the late A. H. Seymour for many years Stipendiary Magistrate at St. John's, will learn with profound regret of her demise, which occurred at the Church of England Rectory, Petty Harbor, at midnight Wednesday, after a somewhat protracted illness, borne with Christian resignation to the Divine Will.

Mrs. Seymour was born in Harbor Grace 67 years ago, and was the youngest daughter of the late Capt. John Spence, Sr. so well and favorably known, while master and owner of the schooners Sea Slipper and Pembina, which he ran with clock-like regularity, while freighting between St. John's and ports in Conception Bay. On the maternal side she was descended from the late Samuel Bennett, that grand old philanthropist and liberal benefactor of St. Paul's Anglican Church in Harbor Grace, as well as in every other good undertaking, and to whose memory a mural tablet was, many years ago, placed on the walls of the historic old Church, as a tribute to his memory.

She was a sincere Christian woman, visiting the sick, comforting the sorrowful and helping those who were in trouble. She was a woman of rare gifts and attainments, but she was loved for her beautiful personality, in which high principle, generosity and warmth of disposition, and charity and benevolence to all, were the outstanding traits. As a wife she was all that the finest attributes imply. Her ready interest and keen appreciation of humor, her never-failing charity, her loyalty to her religious faith, her loyalty to her religious faith, her friends who mourn her loss. Never was the beauty of her character more fully exemplified than during her last illness.

Of the many brothers and sisters only Mrs. Captain Noble, Mrs. William Mitchell, and Kenneth of Montreal survive—her brothers, Stephen, (a fluent Spanish scholar), Captain John, Eliot, Samuel and Walter, also one sister, Mrs. Charles Lewis, having predeceased her some years ago.

To the sisters, brothers, and relatives the sympathy of the community will be extended in their loss, in which the Telegram joins.

The Junior League Football have kindly consented to play at Belvedere Garden Party next Wednesday. Be sure to come and bring your friends.

London's Historic Mansion House

London's historic Mansion House is a subject of interest wherever the English language is spoken, and each occupying occupant has something to say about it.

At one time it is the Lady Mayoress, at another the Lord Mayor, and this is the story of her year of residence, as told by the Mayor.

I am sometimes asked when showing the Mansion House to my friends over the great halls and corridors of our official residence, "Is the Mansion House Haunted?" I reply that so far I have seen no sign of spirit or spook, no shadow of departed Lord Mayor or politician, and my friends express surprise.

Without ghosts, however, the Mansion House is a place of absorbing interest to a Lady Mayoress during the whole of her year of residence. My predecessors tell me that the Mansion House has been occupied for some months are over before they have grown quite accustomed to the beauties and eccentricities.

A recent historian has likened our Mansion House to the Doge's Palace at Venice, and alas! by reason of its beauty, externally at any rate, it cannot be much beyond a certain sombre dignity, but only because it is at once a palace, a court of justice, and a prison. It is not really a prison, of course, but the fact that there are cells in the building for the temporary accommodation of delinquents designed to appear at the Mansion House in court may, perhaps, be held to justify the phrase.

The Egyptian Hall, which impresses me most in the Mansion House is the stately pillared hall known as the Egyptian Hall. I can see little that is Egyptian about it except its name. It was, I am informed, designed by the Earl of Burlington, who also designed Burlington House and Devonshire House, and was modelled on an Egyptian temple described by Vitruvius.

The principal floor of the Mansion House is the saloon, where we receive our guests. It was originally a room of courtly, open to the sky, and was covered in somewhere about 1793, and the walls are now covered with modern tapestries depicting scenes in the city's history. There is an especially fine one showing the Earl of Crawford jousting on Leadenhall Fields, on April 23, 1390, with the Duke of Welfes, the Ambassador sent to Scotland by Richard II. Opening into the saloon are the Venetian rooms where my husband does all the work when he is not on the bench entertaining guests of honor, the parlor, which is used as a luncheon room, and the state drawing room and the famous hall.

Behind all these glories lies the kitchen, where an ox is roasted whole, and the banquet is prepared for as many as 500 guests at a time—a vast kitchen, dark and awkwardly built, capable, nevertheless, of wonderful feats of cookery.

A Dire Threat.

Over the fireplace in the servants' hall is an inscription: "Neither red nor white, neither old nor young, who covers cats with his hat shall forfeit sixpence or ride the wooden horse."

Now is the name of George Robert Porter to ye Right Hon Sir George Gascoyne, Lord Mayor, 1753." It seems to place the date of this warning. The "wooden horse" is a black staff which offenders are to be straddled and be carried to the room by two sturdy footmen, as I wander through the winding passages and stately halls of this historic building, I am reminded by virtue of my husband's words that we are privileged to reside for a short year. I think of our predecessors who graced the Mansion House in the days that are past, and in imagination, I see figures of bygone days fit across the steps of a ghostly house. And in that limited sense, it is haunted, after all.

Ocean Carpet of Oil

THREAT TO OUR FISH SUPPLY.

As stated by scientists that the discharge of oil and grease into the sea is working havoc with the fish supply. The great oceanic blanket is slowly but surely being stretched over the sea. Eventually this blanket may be so thick as to extinguish all life that exists in the sea. This was first called to this attention by Lord Kelvin some years ago and he warned marine companies of the danger of making the sea a vast dumping ground for oil and so on.

A simple experiment will show the effect of oil upon fish life. If a few drops of oil are dropped on the surface of a bowl containing goldfish, the creatures will die in a few hours. The creatures who live in the sea breathe oxygen with their gills, and fish, not being provided with gills, have to come up to the surface occasionally to replenish their supply of the life-giving gas. is the function of the gills to extract from the water the oxygen dissolved in it.

Oil On Troubled Waters.

Oil and water do not mix, and the spreading power of oil is so great that a single drop will form a film so thin and attenuated that it will cover as much as forty square feet of space. In doing this it naturally forms a screen, almost impervious to oxygen, and a carpet of death between the creatures in the water and the life-giving gas upon which they depend. Millions and millions of gallons of used grease and oil are thrown upon the surface of the seas, and this tremendous oil film is getting thicker and thicker.

The old practice of spreading oil upon the waters of a tempestuous sea is justified only to save loss of life, but the careless pouring out of oily matter which might just as well be got rid of in port is a habit that should be stopped.

Women's Secret Charm

In perfect health lies the secret of woman's charm which makes her radiate cheer and happiness wherever she goes. No one enjoys listening to the aches, pains and woes of an ailing, nervous irritable woman, and her condition is plainly stamped upon every feature. The most effective remedy for women's ailments ever discovered has proved to be Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women are soon restored to health by its use and acquire the charm that health alone can give.

Making Love— in the Future?

MATRIMONY AS SCIENTISTS MAY ARRANGE IT.

The average man or woman would give a lot to know beforehand if his or her respective married life is to be a success or a failure. Not many, however, would be inclined to go to the lengths suggested by a distinguished scientist who, declaring that marriage is a lottery, puts forward a method by which the element of chance can be eliminated.

He declares it would be a simple matter for each one of us to find out whether the person whom we would choose as a husband or wife would turn out to be a suitable mate.

"It seems impossible to predict beforehand how your prospective mate will turn out in the future," says the authority in question, Dr. Gernsback, the eminent scientist and editor of "Science and Invention," "but through certain fundamentals, which can be easily ascertained, one can be reasonably certain as to one's choice."

The Kiss Test.

Physical attraction, he declares, ranks first in a successful marriage. One of the tests, therefore, is aimed at finding out whether the first impressions between a couple will be lasting. Both candidates must be equipped with electrodes at the wrist for operating the sphygmograph—a scientific device which records the pulse beat—while a chain is secured round the chest and attached to another electrical contrivance. By this a record could be obtained as to the degree of emotion experienced by one or other when they embrace or kiss. If one of the pair recorded little muscular contractions which is another name for emotion, it would be presumed that physical attraction of a lasting nature is lacking.

A second test, which, thought it seems somewhat humorous, is put forward, as are the others, with complete seriousness, is called the sympathetic test. A doctor draws blood from the hand of a young man. His sweetheart is equipped with scientific devices somewhat similar to those used in the first test. Consequently, muscular contractions and sudden inhalations due to the excitement, with the attendant muscular relaxations for sympathy, are recorded on a tape. Unless a certain maximum is reached, it would show that the sympathetic reaction of the girl is not sufficient. The same test, of course, must be made with the man.

Nervous disorders having wrecked a large percentage of marriages, a third test is suggested. The two mating individuals should in no circumstances be nervous. If the man is calm or the woman very nervous, or vice-versa, no harm is done, as nature tends to equalize opposing forces. The mischief begins when both individuals are nervous. It can then be predicted with certainty that their married life will not be satisfactory.

This third test consists of checking, by means of other scientific devices, the nervous reaction of the two candidates when a sudden loud noise, such as the firing of a revolver, is made. If both show the same reactions, they should not marry.

The suggestions are put forward as a possible future means of making married people's lives happier, but it would seem as if, on the contrary, the result would be to add even more misery to matrimony. Certainly it would seem as if love-making in the future will be a trying ordeal!

Last Night's Rehearsal

Brigades Had Excellent Turn-Out.
A joint parade of the city Brigades, Scouts and Girl Guides, was held last night under command of their various O.C.s. The parade, numbering 1,300 strong, including the mounted police, mustered together at the C. L. B. Armoury, and attracted hundreds of citizens to the scene. Upon reforming ranks the grand parade, headed by the C. L. B. Band, moved off from the Armoury and proceeded west along LeMarchant Road, down Patrick Street, to Water Street, where a halt was made near the site of the War Memorial. Here the various companies took up the position which they were assigned to them during the official ceremony. Following the rehearsal the parade returned to Headquarters by way of Water, Cochrane Streets, and Military and Harvey Roads, where they were dismissed. A feature of the parade was the excellent marching of the Girl Guide troops. Stirring selections were rendered by the various bands along the line of march. The parade was the largest seen in the city for a number of years, and many were the praiseworthy comments passed by citizens as the different companies marched by.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—There is bitter irony in the above title as it applied to the few pathetic survivors of our once numerous caribou. Who in this country, who scoffed at the idea of the possibility of the extermination of the deer does not now realize how stupid the indifference of just a few years ago. To-day the scarcity of the deer is all too poignantly known it is almost to late to act. I hope your timely editorial of last evening may arouse such public interest that people will not rest till all that earnestness and intelligence can do shall have been done to preserve the deer from the melancholy fate of the Beothics and the Great Auk.
I fear Sir, that the insanity that had come so suddenly upon us in the name of big development schemes must if persisted in compel us to relinquish our one time title to being the owners of the finest hunting grounds in South America. Logging and hunting cannot be prosecuted in a country like ours of such restricted area. We can have one without the other, but not the two. Logging camps and not poachers have caused the decimation of the caribou, and I cannot see but further extension of hydro-electric developments, will do for the salmon what the lumber camps has done for the deer.
The great hindrance to the enactment of some laws respecting our material resources had been the cheerful optimism. The fellow who never could see that there might be a possibility that the caribou would become extinct. He laughed at the idea that there was danger, and being more aggressive had his way.
He is the same fellow who talks today about the inexhaustible forest wealth of Newfoundland. This optimism should be looked up for awhile, at least this type who without just reason or proper knowledge continues to talk of the wonders his foolish hopes conjure up. This fellow digs a hole in the ground and talks of his mine, and because of his optimism is not daunted but digs on blindly like the mole. He does more damage than his optimism can atone for. Optimism may get the starving man eventually out of the desert, optimism may work its magic on the shipwrecked mariner and get him at last to some friendly shore, but optimism never yet and never can find gold in barren rock or forest trees where none exist. Optimism is glorious in one case, it is superlative madness in the other. Only a couple of days ago you, sir, published without comment an article copied from the London Times. In that article was reported the folly that Newfoundland forests reproduce themselves in thirty years. I say, sir, that statements of that kind are pernicious folly and should not therefore go unchallenged by whomsoever made, and I expected that you, sir, intelligent man that you are, would call attention to it. Nature's laws are constant and she cannot be whimsical even to favor Newfoundland. Trees do not grow, develop over night like Jonah's gourd. They take time to grow, you cannot force them.

St. Mary's Garden Party Was Big Success

St. Mary's Garden Party, the first for the season, took place yesterday afternoon at Lester's Field. Although the weather conditions were not ideal for an event of its kind, nevertheless, a large number of people patronized the affair, and the results were very gratifying to all concerned. The grounds were early bedecked with flags and bunting for the occasion, while the tea tables, which looked neat and attractive, together with its many side shows, made the scene a very animated one. During the evening a great deal of pleasure was created out of the many side shows, while the various sporting events were watched with the closest attention. The tea tables were largely patronized, as were the other refreshment, fruit and candy tables. The arrangements made by the committee were perfect in every detail, not a single hitch was noticeable in the whole proceedings and despite the postponement a happy evening was spent by all. Before the close the prizes won at the sports were presented to the winners by Rev. Mr. Stirling. The affair was a phenomenal success from every standpoint and the committee and all concerned are to be congratulated on their efforts.

PRESENT ADDRESSES TO RETIRING INCUMBENT AND FAMILY.
To Rev. C. and Mrs. Jeffrey.
Dear Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey.—We have met together this evening to say good-bye to you and Mrs. Jeffrey. For the last seven years you have laboured amongst us, but now the time has come when we must say farewell. In going to your new home you will take with you the best wishes of the C.E.W.A. We would ask you both to accept this parting as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held by us all. We trust that the events of your lives may be calm and serene. Partings will come to us all some day, but if we never meet on earth again, our prayer is that Pastor and people will meet around God's throne in Heaven. Signed on behalf of the C.E.W.A.

Acknowledgment.
On the presentation of addresses and accompanying purse, Rev. C. Jeffrey briefly thanked the President and Sisters of the C.E.W.A. on behalf of himself and Mrs. Miss Jeffrey, expressing himself as touched and pleased by their kindly words and very acceptable purse and gift; it was a pleasant surprise to himself and family. He hoped every blessing, temporal and spiritual, would rest on the Association's work at Whitbourne and wished them all good-bye.

To the Organist.

To Miss M. E. Jeffery.
Dear Miss Jeffrey.—We take this opportunity of expressing our regret at having to say good-bye to you. For the last seven years you have been Organist in our Church, a work you have performed satisfactorily, not only to the C.E.W.A., but also to all members of our congregation. Your going from amongst us means a great loss to our church. We will miss your voice and cheery smile. Our new Member Organist will always bring forth pleasant thoughts of you. Knowing that you did your duty faithfully, we ask you to accept the accompanying gift as a token of goodwill, and we pray that in your walk through life you may often be reminded of our associations together. In saying good-bye we pray that God will guide you and that good luck may always attend you. Signed on behalf of the C.E.W.A.

Reply.

To the President and Sisters of the C.E.W.A.
My Dear Sisters.—How can I thank you all sufficiently for your very kind words of appreciation and cheer, and for your gift to me of this magnificent walking stick. I shall prize it very much and use it too. Please accept my heartfelt thanks for this totally unexpected address and gift. I feel I have done a little, really, to deserve it. With all best possible wishes for you and yours. Believe me, dear Sisters, Yours gratefully,

Belvedere Garden Party

A meeting of the Belvedere Orphanage Garden Party Committee was held last night in the B. I. S. rooms. The various working committees appointed at last meeting reported that excellent progress had been made. The support received was very encouraging indeed and everything now points to a successful day. All those who so kindly offered the Orphanage the use of their trucks last year are once again requested to remember the orphans. Messrs. Pigeon, Murphy and Payne have kindly offered the services of carpenters to erect the stalls and hand stand; while Mrs. Peddigrig is looking after the dance arrangements. The football fixtures, table holders, etc., will be announced in tomorrow's issue.

PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM.
NEW YORK, June 6.—It is understood that at Wednesday's meeting of directors of Pan American Petroleum and Transport Co., when the regular dividend was declared, question of a larger dividend was discussed. Proposed offer to exchange three shares of Pan American P for one of Mexican Petroleum, it was argued, would be encouraged by a larger dividend on Pan American especially in view of the fact that earnings are running far in excess of current dividend requirements. Current earnings are running at a rate better than a year ago. Price of fuel oil is substantially higher and is largely responsible for the better showing being made by Pan American. A larger dividend payment will be considered at the next meeting.

MERCANTILE MARINE CO.

Pres. F. A. S. Franklin Reviews Current Freight and Passenger Business.
BOSTON, June 6.—Until the foreign political situation is cleared up and exchanges improve materially there is no likelihood of a material improvement in the interchange of commodities between Europe and the United States, according to F. A. S. Franklin, president of International Mercantile Marine Co. "Of course we are getting our share of the freight traffic," he says to a Boston News Bureau representative, "but the business is not in such large volume as it was. This slow-down is purely seasonal, however, and should be corrected shortly."
The steamship business is the only one which government regulates, and then completes against, he points out. Mr. Franklin does not fear the tide tonnage of the shipping board, claiming that much of it has passed the stage of usefulness. International Mercantile Marine is the only company that has made a real bid for government ships in large quantities, he says.
Despite keen competition of the Government-owned United States Lines, tourist business of International Mercantile Marine is slightly ahead of last year. But first-class business is still but 75 per cent. of pre-war travel.
The further cut in west-bound passenger business due to the new Immigration bill which becomes effective June 30, will hurt, and President Franklin intimates that some upward revision in third-class rates may be necessary in consequence.
"A chaotic situation has been created by the new quota. Hundreds of immigrants have booked passage on ships which sail late this month and early in July and who had hoped to be admitted in the July quotas. These people do not want refunds on their passage. They want to come into this country. I believe the situation will right itself. The government will work out some plan with the steamship companies co-operating."

and before the flames were subdued the outfit was badly wrecked. A passerby noticing the blaze on the road ran to the nearest telephone and got in touch with the West End Fire Hall, who in turn sent one of their motor trucks to the scene. Before the truck arrived, however, the blaze had been quenched by buckets of water. Only the skeleton of the cycle and side car remained.

Disadvantages of Cooked Foods. It is well-known, for instance, that the prolonged eating of cooked, to the exclusion of uncooked, food impairs the health and strength of adults and is the cause of infantile scurvy, which causes intense suffering in children.

Cooking greatly changes the character of certain foods. A ripe apple is a pleasant mingling of sweet and acid. If the same apple is baked or stewed the sweetness disappears and the acid is so intensified that much sugar must be added to make it palatable.

While fruits are more or less acid to the taste, the advantage of eating them is that the acid is converted into an alkali by digestion, and this enables the blood to rid the body of certain substances which may be harmful.

The Lemon and Salad Cures. It is in this way, for instance, that the lemon cure acts. It is an exceedingly simple treatment for rheumatism and gout, but it should not be undertaken without medical advice.

Relay Race—(Past vs. Present)—Won by Past Pupils, W. Skinner, J. Canning, Gerald Halley.

Swedish Drill—Primary Race. Relay Race—(Preliminary A vs. Preliminary B)—Won by A. team, P. Thorburn, C. Strang, K. Blandford, L. Cantwell.

Quarter Mile Race—(Intermediate under 17)—Won by W. Cotter. Dumb Bell Exercises—Preparatory Class A.

Half Mile—L. J. Cotter; 2, V. Farrell. Egg and Spoon Race—Won by K. Malone. Sack Race—Won by D. White.

250 Yards—(Preliminary)—Won by P. Thorburn. Figure Marching—Senior Classes. Final Football Fives—Cadets, 1; Guards, 0. Winning team: R. Walsh, M. Maddigan, W. Callahan, R. Meany, M. Flynn.

GENEROUS OFFER.

Rev. Father Nangle has graciously offered a beautiful cup for the Belvedere Road Race, which will be run at a later date on the College Campus through the courtesy of the good Brothers of St. Bon's.

ST. MARY'S GARDEN PARTY.

Sports Programme. The sports programme in connection with the annual garden party of St. Mary's Parish, was highly successful. The three mile road race proved a most exciting event and was won by Ron O'Toole in 16min. 3 sec.; W. Linegar, 2nd; and G. Stone, 3rd.

The following are the prize winners in the sports programme: Quarter Mile (Open)—1st, C. Stone; 2nd, S. Parsons. Boat and Box Race—1st, W. Carson; 2nd, W. Redstone.

Cavalry Tournament—1st, C. Reid and R. Squires; 2nd, W. Gilliver Sr. and W. Gulliver Jr. Half Mile—1st, C. Stone; 2nd, C. Press.

Football Sixes—Cadets vs. Holy Cross. Won by Cadets, 2 corners to 1; Gaelic vs. Wesley, Won by Wesley, 2 goals to 1.

Tug of War—Won by St. Mary's team by default. 3 Mile Road Race—1st, R. O'Toole, 2nd, W. Linegar, 3rd, G. Stone. 1 Mile—1st, J. Ralph, 2nd, J. Thorne, 3rd, G. Stone.

Final Football Sixes—Cadets vs. Wesley. Won by Wesley, 1 goal to 0. The team was: B. Adey, J. Driscoll, A. Rooney, H. Haynes, F. Percard, H. Marshall.

close ally in composition to the red colouring matter of the blood, and that the former, may, therefore, readily be converted into the latter. Now, sunshine plays a vigorous part in producing colour. Bubs which are grown in the dark and whose young stems come up practically blanched, rapidly turn green when placed in the direct light of the sun; and anemic children recover rapidly when kept in the sunshine.

Everyone knows how depressed we get during the dark days of winter. This has been attributed to the fact that we are the victims of "light-hunger," because we have been starved of what should be our proper allowance of sunshine.

It has been discovered that cod liver oil, cream, and the fat of bacon and meat have qualities which correspond to a certain extent to sunlight. Realizing this, some authorities have recommended that, during the dark days, we should eat a lot of these fatty substances, which are, practically, transformed sunshine.

During the summer animals feed on foods growing in the sunshine. This they absorb into their tissues and store up in their fat, and we take it second-hand if we eat such fat. Those who habitually eat stored sunshine in fruit and raw vegetables declare that they are far healthier and happier than they were on the flesh diet most of us still use, that fish food prevents any possibility of over-eating, that it contains no waste matter in its purely in the body or to affect the delicate cells, and that it beautifies the complexion.

time Motion Picture Co. made the above spectacularly beautiful picture. The cast is one superlative value consisting of our old favourite actor Richard Travers of Essanay fame, supported by Ruth Dwyer, popular screen beauty; DeSadia Moore (better known as the blond vampire); Chas. Graham, famous character artist; James McDuff, impersonator of many roles; Louis Dean, another well known character man and Pat Hardigan noted screen villain. A short synopsis of the story is as follows:

Laddie Ferguson comes from Scotland to make a fresh start in Nova Scotia, where Donald MacGregor, a friend of his mother, has vast lumber interests which a syndicate is trying to wrest from him. MacGregor has a daughter, Mary, who is so charmed from the outside world that every man in MacGregor's employ is forbidden to speak to her. This order is sternly communicated to Ferguson by MacGregor, whereupon the young man is sent on a six-mile walk to the lumber camp. Mary lays eyes on him, however, and does her utmost to make him break his silence.

most to make him break his silence. Her further effort and Ferguson's resistance are lighter moments in a story that make the plot an absorbing one.

HOW LONG TO DEER LIVE?

It is claimed by many animalists that certain varieties of fish are allowed to live for centuries.

Some of our readers ever read the probable length of the life of our red deer?

Both stags carried the same ear-marks—three peculiar snips. This mark was traditionally well known to the oldest stalkers of Lochiel, Glengarry and Moidart, as that of Alasdair Mac Dhonachaidh Ruaidh, a famous forester of Lochiel.

PLEASE PAGE SOMEBODY.

"Somebody," said my neighbor indignantly, "ought to teach that girl a lesson. She has been spoiled by people letting her get by with things just because she is amusing and pretty and nice to have around."

"That girl" was a young friend of my neighbor's. Her cardinal sin is being late for appointments. She is always late and very blithely about it. She "really can't help it" at the last minute—always the plausible excuse. The kind of excuses that really do excuse when they happen once in 20 times, but not when they happen 19 out of the 20.

"That girl" is a young friend of my neighbor's. Her cardinal sin is being late for appointments. She is always late and very blithely about it. She "really can't help it" at the last minute—always the plausible excuse. The kind of excuses that really do excuse when they happen once in 20 times, but not when they happen 19 out of the 20.

"Why did you wait so long?" I asked. "Why didn't you go along?" "Oh, well," said my neighbor, "one hates to be as disagreeable as that. But somebody really ought to teach her a lesson by just driving off when she does that. Some day I'm going to do it."

My neighbor sounded very threatening but even as she talked I could feel her wrath evaporating. Some day will never come. I feel very sure.

She will always leave it to Somebody.

How often we rage because someone we know is spoiled in one way or another, when we are at the same time contributing our share to the spoiling! "Somebody ought to make Mabel do her share of the work on that committee," we say. "She is always skimming out one way or another. Somebody ought to tell her up and down that she is a shirk."

But when Mabel comes to us with one of her usual excuses for not doing what she promised we just look a little miffed and let it go at that.

And then we laugh. "Somebody ought to tell Jane she has no business to make fun of her husband's mother that way when she is so good to her," we say. And then when Jane starts mimicking her mother-in-law in that imitable way of hers we laugh and leave it to Somebody to do the dirty work.

Somebody could do an awful lot of good if he or she would go around teaching people all the lessons they need. Please page somebody. We need him badly.

How Should Girls Attract Men?

THE SECRET THAT MOST WOMEN WANT TO KNOW.

Over and over again girls ask me these questions—(writes Dorothy Dix) What is the charm? What is the secret of the attraction that some women have for men? Why do some girls always have hosts of admirers, while others, just as good looking, just as clever, just as anxious to please, never have a single sweetheart? To all of these questions I have to answer, sadly and disconsolately, that I do not know. I have to give up the conundrum, which is perhaps the riddle that the Sphinx, who is also a woman, has brooded over through the centuries in her desert solitude, without ever being able to solve it. What is this charm—this rabbit's foot that some lucky women carry, and others do not? To say that it is personality is to attempt to explain one mystery by another mystery, for we do not know in what personal magnetism consists, or by what power one individual draws us, while another repels us.

The womanly woman. We know that it isn't beauty, because the best-looking girls are seldom the most popular. Men who profess to worship beauty are generally content to admire it from a safe distance and show no disposition to marry it. It is notorious that beauties seldom make good matches. Nor does charm consist of intelligence. Even dancing, chief of accomplishments in these jazzy days, when it is of more profit for a woman to have her brains in her heels than in her head, is but a passing attraction, while amiability and a sweet nature are like sticking plaster, potent to hold a man after marriage, but of small value in luring him into it. Undoubtedly, charm in its perfection is a gift of the gods.

To the girl who wishes to acquire charm, and who especially wishes to attract men, I would say, be feminine. The more womanly a woman is, the gentler, the tenderer, the sweeter, the more she appeals to men. When a man speaks of the woman he loves, he usually calls her little, no matter if she is six feet high and weighs 200 pounds. What he means is that she gives him the reaction of depending upon him, of looking up to him, and that in some subtle way she flatters his vanity by giving him the sense of masculine superiority.

You never see an aggressive, double-listed woman, who fights her way like a man, get anywhere. And in his heart every man likes to see women in pretty frocks. That is why girls make a terrible mistake when they cultivate mannish ways and wear mannish clothes.

To the girl who wishes to acquire charm I would also whisper this secret: Make of yourself a mirror in which other people look upon themselves. Especially let them see a flattering reflection of themselves in your eyes. Listen with bated breath while other people tell you of their exploits, but never mention your own.

Marvel at their adventures. Sympathize with their disappointments. Be glad about their successes, and you will be regarded as a woman of perfect taste, wonderful insight, profound judgment, a brilliant talker, and a companion of whom one could never weary.

It is the tireless listeners, and not the endless talkers, whose society men seek.

Rhubarb relish is good. Use equal amounts of rhubarb, spiced onion, vinegar, season with peppers, and then sweeten with brown sugar. Add one teaspoonful of finely chopped mint leaves to one-quarter cup of unsalted butter, spread on thin wafers, and serve with fruit salad.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR TEMPER.

Washed Wealth

Evening Telegram
 Sir—From information supplied me to-day by a prominent St. John's, I gather that quantities of meat bones and are thrown away; literally dumped into the sea. Mr. Alexander, every time you pitch these bones into the ocean you with it a bunch of good dollars. These bones are of great value. You have within the of your island home the form of heat and energy in the world—to wit: the hydro-electric power—following on its heels electric-furnace. Those apparent bones should be burned in to an ash (bona-ash), which is chiefly of nearly pure calcium phosphate. This bone-ash, together with the requisite quantity of carbon is placed in the electric products that the world produces. Freely calcium carbide, from is obtained acetylene gas for station purposes. Secondly: carbon used in the manufacture of much needed article—a match. Alexander, wake up! Don't away your heritage.
 Yours faithfully,
 CHEMICUS.

That is Never Done

Shepherd gets very little time to waste.

Shepherd's work is never done, no what the time of year may be, he gets advances, his work gets more strenuous, till, in the big flock in a hilly part of the country, snatches of sleep for the dog and his dog are few and far between.

Sheep districts a flock will stray. Some are notorious wanderers. If one of the sheep takes it to the head to stray, the rest of the flock will follow. Then the long-legged creatures have not enough to keep with the rest but stray to their own.

They are continually being lost. The shepherd has hard work to do to get them to their mothers, though they explore a ravine or out of the way place and have strength or nerve to get out.

Constant Watching Needed.

With the ewes. They may lead the on the hills for days at a time. Along come the cartons in the feast, and the shepherd looking for a scattered cluster. Or they may get turned over to the backs and then be unable to return. Only constant patroling the moors and hills will keep them in touch with the flock. The hills he has built a fold, off-part of some field—and a time comes for selling or the flock are kept as near as possible.

Sheep clipping and branding. Many days for the shepherd. The flock seems to warn that they are to be washed. They probably feel the water coming and know it is time to get into their heads to go and sometimes it takes a long time to get them together.

Finding Lost Sheep.

It is also important, especially where there are numerous scattered all over the hills. If a dog does not brand his flock, any of the lost are taken and put in a fold, which is to be a great nuisance. He has to pay for the sheep out.
