AN English writer has amused himself in figuring on the price of a journey to the nearest star. Assuming that it would be possible to travel at a speed of five hundred miles an hour, and that the fare would be as low as two cents a hundred miles, he figures that the traveller would have to pay $5,600,000 for his ticket, and that he would reach his destination in 5,839,440 years. He says he knows nothing about the cost of meals and sleeping quarters, and what is of greater importance, tips.

MR. AND MRS. P. J. DODDS entertained the choir of Trinity church at their home on Friday evening last. A pleasant time was spent in social converse and games and a dainty lunch served by the hostess. During the evening a presentation was made by the choir of a handsome club bag to Mr. Harry Lea, he being about to sever his connection with the choir. Mr. and Mrs. Lea left Watford on Monday for New York, and from there proceed to London, England, where Mr. Lea will resume the position he occupied previous to his coming to Canada some 18 months ago. While in Watford Mr. and Mrs. Lea made many friends, who are sorry to see them return to the Old Country.

MR. H. A. MACDONNELL, Director of Immigration for Ontario, is of the opinion that next spring there will be a larger demand for farm labor than was ever known in the Province, and that it will be to the advantage of farmers to secure help at the present time. Owing to the fact that immigration from the old country has been practically brought to a standstill, and that so many farm hands have gone with the Canadian contingent, a shortage of labor will be experienced when the spring comes. There is no reason, Mr. Macdonnell thinks, why farmers can not make new arrangements now by hiring help on a yearly engagement. In response to the circulars which have been sent out to the farmers it is stated that a good many applications are being received each day for help.

Little Chunk of Truth

Don't waste your coin on posters, man, The rain will wash them from the fence, But in the papers put your ads— They'll bring you in returns immense, For papers are all read at home; Your ads will get attention there, While no one reads a poster, man, While seated in an easy chair.

Daughters of the Empire

On Oct. 29th, Tecumseh Chapter met at the home of Mrs. T. C. Mitchell, Mrs. C. Howden assisting hostess. The Regent presided. Meeting opened in the usual way. $164.45 was reported in the treasury for patriotic purposes. A portion of that sum was to be used immediately for the Belgians. A committee was appointed to purchase materials for garments, which were to be made up this week.

The program consisted of the Maple Leaf, sung by the chapter, two well rendered solos by Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Kelly and a humorous piece on John Bull by Miss Sarah Howden. Mrs. Geddes, of Strathroy, who was in Europe when the war broke out, gave a very entertaining and instructive address. She said that she had often heard from her forefathers of the beauty of the British Isles but that the half had not been told her. They were in Belgium when war was declared and it was with some difficulty and danger they travelled on the continent. When they left it they were on the last train and boat going to London. They were very glad to be safe on British soil, beneath the Union Jack. Few people who travel can give such a vivid description of what they have seen like Mrs. Geddes did. "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" was sung by the Chapter. The ladies were reminded that it was near Hallowe'en when hunting for their places at the tea table. A dainty luncheon and the singing of the National Anthem brought a very interesting meeting to a close. Next place of meeting at Mrs. Tanner.

St. Andrew's Supper

The St. Andrew's supper given by the ladies of the Presbyterian Church on Monday last was a decided success. An excellent supper was provided and a glance at the bountifully spread table was enough to convince anyone that ours is a land of plenty. After all had been in the church, with Rev. J. C. Forster, the pastor, presiding. The address of the evening was by Rev. W. R. MacIntosh, M.A., B.D., of London, and was broadminded and patriotic, the speaker reminding his hearers that respect is due to every flag, remembering what the flag of any country represents to the people of that country. Miss MacIntosh, of Wyoming, gave three selections on the violin and responded generously to the encores. Mrs. McGregor, Miss Pearl Luckham, Mrs. (Dr.) Kelly, Miss Lottie Cameron and Mr. Frank Elliot supplied the musical part of the program and every number was excellent. The ladies are to be congratulated upon the success of their entertainment. Proceeds $107.

Sudden Death of C. B. Matthews

(From the Tilsonburg Liberal.) Death came with startling suddenness to Mr. C. B. Matthews, a well-known and highly-respected resident of Houghton on Tuesday morning last.

Mr. Matthews had driven from Kinglake early Monday morning to Fairground on business, and on his way home stopped at M. S. Williams'. He left there about six o'clock, and a few minutes afterwards, noticing the buggy still standing in the road, Mr. Williams went out to investigate and found Mr. Matthews lying over the dashboard unconscious. He was removed to John Hazel's, where deceased had been living since July, and passed away early Tuesday morning, the cause of death being apoplexy. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon to Kinglake cemetery.

Deceased had been a life-long resident of Kinglake, where for many years he conducted a successful business. Three years ago he purchased a mill at Watford and removed there, but the business not proving remunerative, he closed the mill last July and returned to Kinglake, and at the time of his death was preparing for the return of his family to the old home, which has been occupied by Mr. Hazel. The late Mr. Matthews had always been active in public life, and for ten years was the reeve of Houghton. He was also the township treasurer until his removal to Watford. He also took an interest in military matters, and for over 26 years was captain of No. 4 company of the 39th regiment, being the proud possessor of a long-service medal. He was a member of the trustee board of the Methodist church, Kinglake. He was also a member of Guysboro Orange Lodge and of the Chosen Friends. He was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him and his death will be sincerely mourned by a large circle of warm friends.

Besides his widow he is survived by one son, Frank, of Watford, and his father, who also resides in Watford. Mrs. Ed. Kelly, of Glen Meyer, and Mrs. C. M. Brown, of Corinth, are sisters.

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing me letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont. - "I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." - Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont. - "I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated.

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." - Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

WATFORD, NOVEMBER 6, 1914.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A prominent New York banker says that a casual observer would gain the impression that the United States is at war and not England, for conditions in America are more unsettled than in England.

An estimate on the basis of the British losses, which are the only ones that have been definitely reported, makes the losses of all the armies since the war began 1,300,000. The true figures are very likely to be still larger.

Hamilton Herald: Knitting socks and winter things for our boys who have gone to war ought to become one of the most fashionable of female pastimes. It's a good old-fashioned occupation, anyway, it's knitting things to wear, and one worth reviving on its merits.

If Canada does not rouse herself and her young men do not prepare themselves there is trouble in the future. I cannot see how any Canadian can stand idle and not be roused to a spirit of pugnacity, if only in defence at the sight of the intense struggle that the motherland is maintaining for liberty in Europe. - Gen. Sir Wm. Otter.

Germany cannot afford to sit still, whereas sitting still helps the cause of the allies. Great Britain's armies will be ready in the Spring. By spring, too the full force of the Russian attack will have to be met in the East. It will be of relatively little value to Germany, therefore merely to have occupied Belgium and a small portion of France if she has to remain in that territory all winter reduced to the defensive. - New York Times.

The Kaiser has made good in respect to one of his promises. He said that if the great war came he would stagger humanity. He has. The ravished women, the murdered children, ruined cities left in the wake of his brutal and barbarous soldiery demonstrate that this is so. War was never less than an atrocity. But no war for centuries has been quite so inhuman as the Germans stand convicted of making this one. - Simcoe Reformer.

We know no better method of encouraging the boys and girls of to-day to stay upon the farm than to educate them along the lines of public school fairs. Real knowledge of the soil can only be obtained by accurate investigation and verifying theories by experiments. The school fair catches the child in his most plastic age, and creates an interest which has a tendency to stick to him through life. Farmers should encourage by every means possible these school fairs. They will do more good than any argument in determining the boys to follow farming, one of the most dignified and profitable occupations in the world. In 1913 only sixty-nine school fairs were held; this year there will be one hundred and forty-five. - Glencoe Transcript.

The British Board of Agriculture has advised the householders of Great Britain to utilize every foot of spare land in the planting of gardens for next year, to supply as far as possible their own garden produce. In this way they can assist in relieving any shortage which may develop on account of war conditions. This suggestion is of equal importance to Canadians. Attached to nearly every home are pieces of ground which at present are merely waste land. With little effort these may be converted into productive gardens. It requires very little space for a garden that, with ordinary care, will supply an average household with vegetables. By cultivating the available ground many Canadian families can reduce their living expenses, and, at the same time, secure vegetables which are absolutely fresh.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A Red Cross Story

Here is a close glimpse of the battle-fields: "My Dearest Heart."

The French Red Cross had found the body of a dead German soldier. The victim's tunic was already open, as is the habit with our own brave "Tommys." I unfastened some more buttons. Must I spoil this story? Let me out with it all in truth—a greasy rasher of bacon fell from his breast, and as we raised his shoulders there fluttered out a letter—greasy with bacon and rapidly taking on another color from his willing wound. "May we look at the letter?" The doctor gives consent. Just an ordinary letter. It ran thus: -

"My dearest Heart,—When the little ones have said their prayers and prayed for their dear father and have gone to bed I sit and think of thee, my love. I think of all the old days when we were betrothed, and I think of all our happy married life. Oh! Ludwig, beloved of my soul, why should people fight each other? I cannot think that God would wish it. "I do not think you need read any more," said the doctor. "Nor do I," was my reply. You will not believe it, but, hardened to war from my youth, I could only toy with my rough meal at night, and in my slumbers I kept hearing the simple words, "My dearest heart, when the little ones have said their prayers and prayed for their dear father and have gone to bed I sit and think of thee, my love." I wonder whether the great Lord has been troubled in this way recently.

Dad's Dope

The Germans are being driven from trench to trench, but the last ditch has not been reached.

Labor returns from Ottawa report cabinet makers busy but quite a number of jobbers looking for jobs.

In order to preserve a strict neutrality Spain proposes to dispense with bullfighting until the war is over.

The statement that the British government permitted the export of wool during the war is denounced as an idle yarn.

Grafted apples are superior to the natural fruit, but there should be no grafting between the grower and consumer.

To comply with the letter of international law a Boston paper claims that German dyes admitted to that country should be confined to neutral colors.

The girls are naving their own troubles in this war. Nancy, Lou Vain and Antwerp have been captured, and the Japanese are now after the Carolines.

The bank clerks of Toronto gave a concert in aid of the patriotic fund the other night. The case with which they negotiated the highest notes discounted anything heard in local musical circles for years.

The woman passengers on the Atlantic liners relieve the monotony of the voyage by engaging in the highly commendable exercise of knitting socks and making garments for the patients in the war hospitals. Ladies of the biggest social prominence take part in the work. In fact, it is a real society.

Peru's Sugar Cane.

Heavy production of sugar cane to the acre is one of the surprises of Peru. Where it is grown the land is fertile and planting is an easy matter. When the cane reaches the height of two feet further attention in regard to cultivation is said to be unnecessary, and in from eighteen to twenty-four months maturity is reached. That the growth is luxurious may be known from the fact that an average crop of forty tons an acre is obtained, while sixty and even seventy tons is not uncommon. In other sugar-growing countries, including Cuba, twenty-five tons per acre are considered a good average, according to sugar experts.

"One Eye Open."

Some years ago in London a Frenchman stepped into a hansom and was asked:

"Where do you wish to go?"

"One eye open," he replied.

"Right," said the cabby, who understood nothing and drove off. After a time, same question, same answer. Finally the driver descended and demanded further information.

"One eye open," still was the answer. Cabby furious. A crowd assembled, a policeman appeared on the scene and demanded the whole story. Then the mystery was solved. The fare wanted to be driven to 1 High Holborn.

Honest Answer.

The stories told of Snetzler, a famous Swiss organ builder, prove that he was a man of rare and incorruptible honesty. At one time the parish officers of a country church applied to Snetzler to examine their organ and make improvements in it.

"Gentlemen," said Snetzler after a careful examination of the instrument in question, "your organ is worth 1000 just now. Well, I will spend you $500 on it, and it shall den be worth $250!"

Instinctively.

"Our civilization demands a greater or less degree of mendacity," remarked the abstrus person. "We are constantly encountering some empty phrase, some conventional remark, which is absolutely devoid of sincerity."

"That's right," answered the book agent. "That's perfectly true. I am reminded of it every time I walk up to the front step where there is a doormat with the word 'welcome' on it."

The Voice of Experience.

"So you want to marry my daughter?" said Mr. Cummo.

"Yes," replied the young man. "I am sure she loves me."

"That isn't the consideration that most affects your prospect of future happiness. What you want to do is to find out whether her mother likes you."

Would Enjoy the Job.

One day Tommy accompanied his mother on a shopping expedition and, seeing a large candy man in a confectioner's window, he paused in front of it with a wistful look; then, turning away regretfully, said: "Mamma, I could lick that fellow with both hands tied behind me."

Are You Suffering From Auto-Intoxication?

The dictionary says that Auto-Intoxication is poisoning, or the state of being poisoned, from toxic substances produced within the body. This is probably why you are suffering from nervousness, headaches, loss of appetite, lack of ambition, and many other symptoms produced by Auto-Intoxication. Your whole system needs stirring up.

Chicago Boy Scouts of America Enact an Old Indian Legend, the Story of Chief Owassitpee—Origin of the Name Cowboy.

At Narragansett Pier, R. I., the little children of the rich find much to amuse and interest them. During the summer season their time is mostly occupied in swimming, sailing and other water sports, though they are kept under close supervision by their parents and attendants. Many of the little ones are smart swimmers and in the quiet waters of Narragansett bay find a safe place to show their skill. A particularly fearless little lady in the water is Miss Katharine Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Chase of New York. The camera man induced her to pose for her picture, and she very obligingly consented. The photograph here reproduced shows her to be a very sweet and winsome little girl.

Boy Scouts Act a Legend.

Chicago boy scouts, who are camping at Crystal lake, near Muskegon, Mich., recently provided a novel diversion for themselves and for other vacationists who make visits to the camp from nearby resorts. The boys re-enacted one of the old Indian scenes, which, according to the legends of the locality, occurred at the site of the camp during the early days of western invasion by the white race.

The pathetic story of Chief Owassitpee of the Ottawa Indians of Oceana county, who refused to leave the shores of the White river when his people were forced north by the white invasion, because he hoped that his two sons who mysteriously disappeared while lads some day might return to him, was the subject. It was written in play form by the Chicago boy scouts and was produced amid the original sylvan scenes at the camp.

The story of the old chief recently, was recalled by the finding of two skeletons and the remains of a canoe in the shifting river bed. It is believed in the locality that the skeletons are those of the missing sons. The camp of the scouts has been named

"Camp Owassitpee" in honor of the dead chieftain.

Origin of the Cowboy.

A cowboy, to our modern minds, means a man who herds cattle. Yet the original "cowboys" instead of herding cattle stole them, says the American Boy. The name seems first to have been applied to a band of horsemen, part soldiers and part bandits, who fought on the British side during the Revolution. Westchester county, N. Y., was the scene of their operations, and the most of them were Tories. Because they drove away many cattle on their raids they were called cowboys. Opposed to the cowboys in their raids through the section of New York which lay between the British and American lines were the Skinners, a somewhat similar band of marauders, who espoused the Continental cause.

Boy Scout His Own Surgeon.

But for the fact that he was a boy scout himself and was accompanied by other members of that organization George Cowan, fourteen years old, of Sharon Hill, Pa., might have bled to death recently when he cut one of his great toes nearly off while chopping down a tree with a scout ax. The blade of the ax rebounded and cut him through the shoe. Calling one of his companions, Cowan directed him how to stop the flow of blood, after which he was carried to the hospital.

white cloth. The design is repeated at the hem. The frock is of black nocturne satin. The hat is of white huckle plumage. Buttoned dancing boots with tops of cloth are worn.

FOR SUN PARLORS.

The Chaise Lounge Convenient For an Afternoon Nap.

For the sun parlor there is no more appropriate and comfortable piece of furniture than a chaise lounge, where the afternoon nap can be taken in peace.

Chaises can be had at many prices. Sometimes their wide arms are supplied with rings just big enough to hold a glass of lemonade or iced tea. Sometimes they are in the form of baskets for magazines and books.

Sometimes they are wide to support your arms and hands. They are always comfortable. One of very good workmanship and material costs about $28.50, stained and fitted with cretonne cushions. This chair is made of willow.

A much cheaper chair is one of bamboo poles, bound with varnished split willow. This sort of chair costs only about $10 and is by no means so durable as the other. But it is comfortable and attractive.

IN MANY STYLES.

Attractive New Bags For Special Occasions.
Tan or bronze green crocheted silk square bags for opera or calling are drawn with silk cord and have thin bow silk long tassels at either side. They are lined with a soft satin to blend with the tassels.

White velvet bags hand painted with flowers in pastel colorings and with the background shaded to blend are new and are for opera or work bag use. They are drawn with gold cords for the former use and with ribbons to match the flowers for the latter purpose.

A Genius For Friendship.

In the Woman's Home Companion a writer presents as a character in her story a botanist who gives the following advice to a young woman who is an amateur painter of ordinary ability:

"There are thousands of young women who can paint as well or better, but you are the one out of a thousand who has the gift of inspiring other people. You lift work from drudgery and vivify with your enthusiasm. The gift belongs only to a nature that is genuine, unspoiled and altogether unselfish. Stay yourself, child. Make the life work of many gladder and saner and truer because of their contact with you. You have a genius for friendship. Trust me, it is rarer than a genius for literature or art."

Odors in the Icebox.

The question of odors is a difficult one to deal with. So many housekeepers complain that, no matter how careful they may be, there is always a little odor in the refrigerator. Be careful of the food you put in. For instance, cucumbers have a very decided and penetrating odor, and there is nothing worse than a cantaloupe to "smell up" an icebox. If there is no cool closet or window box available, put the odorous foods into cracked ice for a short time before serving and they may be made deliciously cold.

Glass Covered Dollies.

Very attractive are the stands made of two thin rounds of glass with a lace dolly between and bound together with gold galloon. They are designed to put under the flower vase, so if it sweats it will not damage the polished table beneath. They are dainty in appearance and may be had in two sizes.

BALSAM OF PERU.

It Comes From a Tree That Will Grow Only in Salvador.

Naturally, one would expect balsam of Peru to come from Peru, but it does not.

Peruvian balsam comes from Salvador, and the little Central American republic has something of a corner on the market, for it seems to be the only country able to produce this valuable pharmaceutical resin in commercial quantities.

The balsam tree flourishes only along the western Pacific slope of Salvador, between the ports of Acapulca and La Libertad, a distance of not over forty miles, and covering an area of not more than 750 square miles. It is one of the most beautiful trees of the tropical forest and grows rather isolated from its kind. At full development it measures about forty inches in diameter and reaches a height of 80 to 115 feet.

The balsam or sap is gathered during the dry season and in the following manner: A hole is made in the outer bark either by pounding the surface with a blunt instrument or stone, thus separating the outer from the inner layers, or is cut with a sharp knife to form an opening six or seven inches long. From this portion of the tree then exudes, after a period of from five to eight days, the mature sap, which is collected by means of tying pieces of absolutely clean cloth over the wound, which absorb the liquid. When the flow ceases it is again stimulated by heating the tree by means of burning torches.

The cloths in which the sap has been collected are subsequently boiled, and this sap expressed mechanically forms the crude balsam. This is again boiled, foreign substances removed and the liquid poured into rectangular tins containing about fifty-five pounds each, and thus shipped to its final destination. A good balsam tree will yield from four to five pounds of sap a year, and if properly cared for will live to be a hundred years old.

A Mild Accusation.

Uncle Henry Barnes was one of the mildest of men. No one had ever seen him angry or impatient, but when his old time neighbor and supposed friend, John Ragland, deliberately cheated him out of $900 even his kindly, patient spirit was ruffled. "Some time," he remarked to his wife, "I'm going to tell that man what I think of him."

One day he came home highly disatisfied with himself. "I saw John Ragland to-day, and I told him straight out what I thought of him," he said.

"What did you say?" asked his wife. "I told him I thought he was a very unreasonable man."

Regularity

of the bowels is an absolute necessity for good health. Unless the waste matter from the bowels, which collects there is got rid of at least once a day, it decays and poisons the whole body, causing biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches. Salts and other harsh mineral purgatives irritate the delicate lining of the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills—entirely vegetable—regulate the bowels effectively without weakening, sickening or griping.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Rubber and Gasoline

Modern warfare imperatively demands the use of countless auto trucks, which in turn require supplies of gasoline and rubber, neither of which can be found in Germany. Of these, gasoline is the most important. There are some oil wells in Galicia, but they are in that part of Russia which is occupied by the Russians. Scandinavia has no petroleum fields, nor has Denmark or Holland. Unless they can import in some clandestine way, Germany and Austria have to fight entirely on the supply which they at present possess. It would be surprising if they had enough of this commodity laid by to supply their huge war requirements for a whole year. Should it give out, the collapse of their field transport would be ruinous. Their armies invading France and Poland would have to be called home to shorten the distance between them and their base of supplies. Rubber seems like a minor commodity until its uses are considered in detail. For the wheels of automobiles and motor trucks, it has no effective substitute. Without it these vehicles would wear themselves out in very short order. It is also essential to the construction of balloons and Zeppelins for observation. Again it is essential for rubber sheets to protect the soldiers when sleeping. There is quite a number of minor commodities which appear of small moment, but the exhaustion of any of which would cause the breakdown of the army.

War Summary

Theodosia, Crimea, Oct. 29.—From 9.30 o'clock to 10.30 this morning a Turkish cruiser with three funnels bombarded the station and city, damaging the cathedral, the Greek church, a pier and some sheds. One soldier was wounded. A branch of the Russian Bank of Foreign Commerce caught fire. At the conclusion of the bombardment the cruiser left in a south-westerly direction.

Novorossysk, Caucasus, Oct. 29.—The Turkish cruiser Hamiyeh which arrived here to-day, demanded the surrender of the city and the government properties, threatening in case of refusal to bombard the town. The Turkish consul and officials were arrested. The cruiser withdrew.

London, Oct. 30.—The official press bureau issued the following statement:—"Severe fighting continues with little intermission along the British line, especially towards the north. The German resistance is stubborn and fierce counter attacks are being made by them frequently. Nevertheless, the British are steadily gaining ground. In a counter attack one brigade delivered a brilliant bayonet charge, accounting for many of the enemy, whose losses throughout the fighting are heavy."

Paris, Oct. 30.—"In Belgium, according to the latest advices, there is nothing to report in the region of Nieuport or Dixmude. On our left wing the enemy has directed violent attacks against the front of the British troops and on the two banks of the La Basse Canal without obtaining any success. There has been a recrudescence of activity in the region of Rheims and along the heights of the Meuse at the south of Fresnes-on-Woevre."

London, Nov. 1.—Turkey has definitely thrown in her lot with Austria and Germany and Portugal has declared she now as all powers at war, with prospects of three more—Greece, Bulgaria and Roumania—being drawn in soon and Italy making in all 15.

Turkey, allied with the Teutons, is now at war with Great Britain, France and Russia, and the world is watching intently the Balkans, where the smoke of their own warfare has scarcely been dissipated, in anticipation of the states there aligning themselves with one or the other of the contending factions. Turkey claims that Russia, by firing on her ships while they were manoeuvring in the Black Sea, opened the hostilities between the two countries. Russia, however, denies this statement.

In the zone of warfare in Belgium and France fierce encounters continue at various points. While the French say there is nothing to report on the north end of the line in Belgium except that all the fierce attacks of the Germans have been repulsed, the Germans report progress toward their prospective—Calais. They also say they have taken a number of prisoners. The Belgians say they have defeated the Germans on the railroad between Nieuport and Dixmude.

A battle is raging in the forest of Argonne and engagements continue near the eastern end of the line around the fortresses of Verdun and Toul.

The Russians claim victories on the east Prussian front and along the entire line beyond the Vistula. The Austrians, however, say they have gained a complete victory over the Russians in Galicia.

The storming of the German stronghold at Tsing Tau continues.

Great Britain has ordered that all enemy aeroplanes on neutral ships shall be treated as prizes of war.

Vienna, Nov. 2.—The following official announcement was made public here to-day:—"On the Russian-Turkish frontier near Treozoud, battles have commenced between Russian and Turkish troops."

Paris, Nov. 2.—The following official communication was issued by the French war office:—"Between the North Sea and the Oise the attacks made to-day by the Germans have been less violent than those of yesterday. In Belgium we have progressed at the north of Dixmude and at the south of Chelvet and we have maintained nearly all our other positions. In the region of the Aisne a violent German offensive between Brayen-Lannois and Vailly has completely failed. The afternoon statement announced that in the Aisne district "we made slight progress in the direction of Tracy-le-val, to the north of the forest of Algie, as well as at certain points on the right bank of the Aisne between the forest and Soissons," and that "in the Vosges, in addition to the fact that we have recaptured the heights which dominate Mount Sainte Marie, we have made progress in the region of Ban de Sapt, where we occupy the positions from which the artillery of the enemy has been bombarding the town of St. Die."

London, Nov. 2.—The Grand Vizier of Turkey has apologized for recent events in the Black Sea. The apology does not satisfy the allies.

London, Nov. 2.—The entire North Sea has been declared a military area and merchant vessels entering it will be exposed to the gravest dangers from the mines which it has been necessary to lay, and from the warships which are searching vigilantly by night and by day for suspicious craft.

Nov. 4.—For the first time in an actual battle the Germans have sunk a British cruiser. The engagement reported off the coast of Chili resulted, it is said, in the loss of two British cruisers. It was an uneven battle—five Germans against three British—and when all is heard it will undoubtedly be shown that all that the British pluck could do was done.

The indications that Turkey would withdraw from the war has not proven true. The allies, probably on learning that there would be no uprising of Mohammedans, are well content. Other nations will probably come in on the side of the allies to more than counterbalance the Turkish aid. In addition, with Turkey's ports blocked, another avenue of food resources for the Austrians and Germans is cut off. So far, indications are that the Mohammedans of India will remain loyal to Britain.

The action of James B. Herrington vs. John M. Cochran and William Cochran was tried in London last Thursday and Friday at the Middlesex assizes, before the Hon. Mr. Justice Lennox. The learned trial judge reserved judgment as to the amount of damages to be awarded the plaintiff. W. E. Fitzgerald, Watford, P. H. Bartlett, London, appeared for plaintiff; Cowan & Towers, Sarnia, for defendant.

Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Receipts at the Union stockyards to-day were 61 cars, with 858 cattle, 303 calves, 806 hogs and 1,042 sheep and lambs. Trade was quiet and dull, with only a light run and no choice butcher cattle offering. Prices for good butcher only just steady. Stocker trade was quiet and prices in this class are, if anything, easier owing, in part, to the belief that the quarantine regulations now in effect at Chicago may be extended at Buffalo. Shippers, in fact, were advised by wire not to ship any more stockers to Buffalo for the present. Lambs were a shade firmer, some black-faced choice lambs selling at $7.85. Hogs weak but changed from yesterday's quotations.

DEATH OF FORMER WARWICK MAN

Robert Morris loses his life under Engine Wheels

(From the Redfield, South Dakota, Journal Observer, Oct. 22nd)

Struck down to his death by a North-western passenger engine was the fate last Saturday of Robert Morris, of Redfield, for many years a highly respected employe of the Geo. C. Christian Roller Mill. Morris had just finished his duties as teamster for the forenoon and was on his way home to dinner when he paused while crossing the main line track of the Northwestern at the Franklin avenue crossing. It is thought that he stood there, forgetful of his position, viewing the finishing work on the new depot nearby. The engine of "No. 9," the passenger train just in from the east, had been uncoupled from the train as usual and had been taking coal and water. It was backing down from the coal chutes, which are now north of the depot. Morris, being hard of hearing, did not realize the proximity of the engine until too late. He was struck down and though the wheels did not lacerate him his body was so crushed that death was almost instantaneous.

Morris and his team of great blacks, which showed in their glossy looks and high spirits with what careful and loving hands they were cared for, were almost an institution in this town. For years seemingly every resident in Redfield and community has known "Bob and the mill team." Also they have known just the same fashion what a faithful workman Morris was and of his unwavering adherence to duty. Richard R. Morris was born May 16, 1858, in Warwick township. He came to Dakota April 4, 1884, and for 15 years lived in Hand county. He then removed to Spink county and has been a resident of Redfield for 14 years. He married Mrs. Laura Crosby June 5, 1899. He leaves a wife and step-son, mother, four brothers and a sister to mourn his loss. He died October 17, 1914.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in St. George's Episcopal church, which was filled to overflowing with friends, relatives and acquaintances of the deceased. The floral gifts were many and beautiful. Among the relatives present were the father and three sisters of Mrs. Morris of Castlewood, S. D., the son Earl Crosby of Huron, Rev. P. W. H. Hornibrook read the last services and interment took place in Green-lawn Cemetery, the six pall-bearers being drawn from his fellow workers at the mill.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

GIFTS TO GIVE THE INVALID

A canary would chirrup many a weary hour away.

A pretty, lacy boudoir cap would be appreciated by a woman.

A pine or rose petal pillow would afford refreshing fragrance.

An electric flashlight within reach at night is almost indispensable.

A tea wagon to wheel up beside the bed would vary the meal service pleasantly.

A food warming plate such as is used for babies would keep a cup of bouillon warm.

An Indian blanket would keep off many a draft and make a varying temperature unnoticeable.

An attractive rose bowl or long stemmed vase would lend its charm to the invalid's bouquets.

The sick person appreciates many changes of cheery bath robes, negligees and dainty fancy slippers.

A night bottle with a glass tipped over it and a spoonful of cordial in the stopper would be handy in case of a chill.

A prettily lined and ribbon bedecked box, filled with the patient's favored toilet preparations, is practical, dainty and very acceptable.

One of the new cache nightgowns of chiffon would be very convenient to slip into to take a meal or when an unexpected guest arrives.

A vacuum bottle would bring comfort, and some hot water bags have such beautiful covers that they are pleasing as well as useful.

HER FIRST EXPERIENCE.

Mistress—Dinner won't be ready for two hours! Good gracious, Norah, what's the delay?

Norah—Why, mum, you said you wanted split pea soup, and, faith, it's taken me two hours and twenty minutes to split 300 peas, and there are 470 to split yet. Oi counted 'em myself.

Asking Time

A Case of Perseverance

By ELIZABETH GAINES WILCOXSON
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Valor McGehee, the boss of the light-erage business, a tenth owner in the Crown mine and owner of the little sawmill up the creek, was a stalwart person of easy manners and the scars of fair fights.

Every day at the same hour he came sauntering in and straddled the bench not far from the sandwich board where Mrs. Taylor was always busy slicing bread and butter.

Her long, oddly slanting, light gray, wise eyes gave him a look of impersonal friendliness as she nodded good morning and briskly lifted two thick sandwiches to a crockery plate and without losing a motion poured a cup of coffee. These she placed before him. He breakfasted leisurely. As he ate he talked with the cook.

"D'you know what day this is?" he asked one morning.

She flicked an inquiring glance at him, drove her knife through the loaf and repeated:

"Do I know what day it is? Sure, it's Friday." And she smiled. She had a battling, secretive smile.

The man smiled, too, watching her face.

"D'you know why I call you Mona Lisa?" he drawled banteringly.

"Friend of yours I remind you of?" she offered, another smile lurking in the corners of her mouth.

"You've guessed it. She had a smile like yours. It was a ticklish proposition, that smile of Mona's. You could never tell whether it was with you or on you. But what particular Friday is this?"

"The day of the month? The 10th."

"Correct," said the man. "Which 10th?"

She caught up a big wooden bowl and began piling up the sandwiches into it with the automatic speed of machinery.

She shook her head at his question. "Which 10th would you say?"

"Two months ago today you arrived to open up this haven for the hungry. That's what happened to turn the 10th into a special red letter day," he explained.

"So I did."

"And I was your first customer," he reminded.

"So you were."

"And I've never learned what your name is," he pursued.

"No!" She favored him with a tall eye glance, her hands flying with the motion of closing two slices of bread and butter over one slice of meat.

"After my saying it to you so often—Mrs. Harry Lane Taylor—just like that!"

She threw out her hands in a jaunty, spread eagle gesture and whisked around to the stove to replenish the fire and readjust the jars of baking beans.

The man smiled after her. He had said the same thing sixty times—once every day for sixty days.

In a minute she was back at the sandwich board, her naturally pale face flushed.

"And I am going to ask you something else."

"Something new?" she queried and laughed. She had a frank, clear laugh at variance with her veiled expression and secretive smile.

"Are you a widow?"

"Seems to me I remember you asked me that once."

"Thirty times," he corrected. "I've a reason for wanting to know."

Her long, slanting gray eyes rested upon him for a moment while she answered with mock seriousness:

"Have you? Well, I'll tell you how to get out of telling if anybody asks you if I'm a widow. You just say you don't know."

He grinned.

"All right for you! I'm going to keep on asking till you answer. I'm coming once an hour and ask till you answer."

"Now, I call that downright persecution," she protested, turning to hang up the sandwich board.

McGehee slipped a coin, the price of his breakfast, under his cup, swung his feet over the bench and stood up.

"I'll be back in an hour," he promised.

More than half an hour after he was gone a stranger entered, letting the door blow backward and charging the room with an icy wind.

He was ragged and dirty and gave evidence not only of poverty, but of dissipation. His hair was mixed with gray, and he wore a sandy mustache and a stubble beard. If ever there was a disreputable character it was he. And yet there was about him something that gave evidence of a better past.

He seemed rigid with cold and stopped a minute as if he needed to relax to breathe, then slipped over the bench, hugging his hands together.

Turning with her customary alertness, Mrs. Taylor mechanically picked up a cup. As her eyes fell upon the newcomer her face whitened, and she went taut from head to foot. She automatically put down the cup. A merciless smile twisted the man's mouth.

"I've got the money to pay for it," he said.

His voice was a mixture of growling, pleading and sullen defiance.

"Did you come here on purpose?" she asked savagely, stepping toward him.

"Don't be hard on me, Joyce," he begged conciliatingly. "I own I hadn't ought to have left you when I did, but what else could I do? Under the circumstances I thought folks would do more for you if I was gone than—"

"Under the circumstances I accepted charity until I was able to work. The child was buried by charity. I afterward repaid the money, but it was none the less taking charity."

He picked at the edge of the board in front of him.

"I'm going to turn over a new leaf, Joyce," he whined.

"Not in this shack," she retorted decisively. She was getting composed after her shaken moment. "I wish lightning had struck you before you found out where I was. I was a fool not to get a legal separation at the time, but I learned you'd been sent to prison, and I knew you were out of the way, and I came off up here without doing it. You were given a ten year term, I heard. What you're doing out in four years I don't know."

He stared at her, and she read his cowering fear with hard eyes.

"This country's big, and I want you to move on. This is my place. It's not big enough for us both. You understand? If you'll keep in mind we're perfect strangers and get out of here on the next boat."

The fear oozed out of his face. A sort of whimpering hope took its place.

"You are hard, Joyce," he snivelled.

"God knows, I've always loved you! I never thought of anybody but you."

"Leave God out of it," ordered the woman contemptuously. "You never thought of anybody but yourself in your life."

"I knew you'd be mad at me, Joyce, as soon as I came in. I'm going right up to the mine and get a job. I'll show you I can work. I won't ever leave you again."

"Oh, yes, you will," she said grimly, "and that right away. Just look at my hands!" she cried suddenly, throwing them out before her with a fierce gesture. They were calloused and rough and stiff. "I suppose you remember what they looked like once!"

The man blinked and licked his lips.

"I remember, Joyce," he said humbly. "I thought maybe you'd teach me. You could play right well."

"I tried it for a year and stayed."

"If you'll just give me one more chance—"

"You can have all the chance in the world—away from this place. I shall not molest you, though I suspect you've got no right to your freedom. But you just get this once for all: You are to move on at once. And meanwhile we are strangers. I don't know you. You are—"

McGehee entered, and she turned abruptly and poured a cup of coffee, which with food she placed before the man already seated, naming as she did so the price of the meal.

As he passed, McGehee bestowed upon the presence a glance of curiosity and dislike, then sauntered on to his accustomed place. With deliberation that savored of malice Mrs. Taylor filled a cup and plate and set them before him.

He looked at the food with mingled amusement and protest.

"Do I have to eat every hour?"

"Folks don't come in here except to eat," she pointed out.

"Oh, very well," drawled McGehee and began to stir in his cup.

He stirred slowly and sipped the coffee and nibbled the sandwich, but he did not attempt conversation until the presence at the far end of the room was gone.

As the man went out Valor gave him another scrutiny and looked inquiringly at Mrs. Taylor. It struck him when he came in that she and the man were having words, and the thought came back to him.

But the morning was now growing late, and she was getting ready for the noon rush, and somehow, though he could not have told why, the atmosphere seemed subtly against any more half earnest jesting.

So he moodily formed a big interrogation point in the center of his place with breadcrumbs, put a coin, the price of the meal, under his cup, swung his legs over the bench and went out.

He did not come back the next hour, for the next, as he had promised. The camp was suddenly in a turmoil over the disaster at the Crown mine. McGehee, with others, gave the rest of the day to caring for the five men wounded by the explosion and burying the three who were killed.

"He claimed he was an expert powder man, just what they were looking for. He lied. He hadn't been there twenty minutes before—oh, well, he got his foot. But that didn't make it any easier for the rest of 'em. It was that fellow who was eating here yesterday morning when I came in for my second breakfast. You remember him?"

He had entirely forgotten his impression of the day before.

"I remember him. It's those he left wounded I pity the most. The others are dead."

Her face looked inexpressibly weary. He noticed her unusual expression.

"You aren't sick, are you?" he asked, with sudden perplexity.

She shook her head.

"No. Thinking of the mine accident keeps me awake. That's all," she said.

Valor McGehee took occasion to observe:

"Since I wasted so much time yesterday I guess I'll just stay right here till you tell me your name and if you are a widow."

His eyes met his, and never had her smile been so enigmatic.

"There's a time to ask and a time to answer. My name is Joyce, and—I am a widow," she said.

Trust Kitchener
[The Daily Sketch.]

Do we trust Lord Kitchener? Of course we do. Then if we trust Lord Kitchener we shall be willing to accept loyally even the hard discipline of silence. But think of the reward, and remember Britain's old story! How Nelson searched for the French fleet from July to October, how it lured him far into the Atlantic, escaped him, and threatened England with invasion—and yet, and yet, Trafalgar followed. And think of Wellington, retreating, pursued, in that winter of 1810, behind the lines of Torres Vedras, held helpless there for long months—with victory on victory at the end. Yes, we can afford to be patient—to trust Kitchener.

Cured Both Stomach Troubles and Headaches

PALMERSTON, ONT., JUNE 20th, 1914.

"I really believe that I owe my life to 'Fruit-a-tives'. Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctor's bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old Stomach Trouble and distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Sometime ago, I got a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street noticed my improved appearance and asked the reason. I replied, 'I am taking Fruit-a-tives'. He said, 'Well, if Fruit-a-tives are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can'."

A TRIP TO THE NORTH-WEST

By Mr. Peter Anderson

CONTINUED.

We reached Edmonton Saturday evening and our train did not start for Sawridge till the following Tuesday morning. I asked the little Scotchman at the transfer office if he could give me a check right through to Grouard for our trunks. He said, "I will not give you a check at all, sir. You will have to look after your own luggage and see that it is on." The E.D. & B.C. station is about five miles out from the transfer office. We started shortly after seven in a motor bus. The street was paved most of the way but the last part was mud and the recent rains made it very slippery. Near the station we had to get down and push behind. The station is quite small surrounded with mud and water. We noticed several places where they were taking out coal as we proceeded. Sloughs and small lakes were numerous. The roadbed lay right through some of them and as we rooked and creaked along the track was often under water while we were passing. During the afternoon we passed a box car lying on its side by the track. Two horses in it were drowned before they could be liberated. We passed several sawmills with quite a supply of logs and along the track such a lot of ties. As night came on we arranged such things as we had for pillows and slept a little. We reached Smith about one in the morning, having covered a distance of one hundred and thirty-one miles. As the bridge over the Athabasca had been swept away by the spring flood, in the morning we had our baggage taken down to the water in a wagon, across the river in a gasoline launch, up the bank on the other side in a wagon, for all of which we paid hold-up prices. The new steel bridge was completed about two-thirds of the way across the river. There had been a landslide right across the track in the cut on the north-west bank and the train could not get through. We loaded our trunks on the mud car with which they were clearing the track and pushed it as near our train as we could. We still had to carry them about ten rods. Rubber boots were very desirable just then. Our train consisted of a box car and a donkey engine. The car was loaded with barrels, boxes, sacks, shovels and wheelbarrows. We packed our stuff in as best we could. As they had not steam up we started ahead on foot along the track as it was mucky most of the way. We walked two or three miles and then rested a long time and at last we saw our small conveyance coming. On the way we took on a flat car loaded with bridge timber. When the bridge was reached the timber was thrown off and a lot of the bags, boxes and all the wheelbarrows were transferred to the flat car. In moving the stuff my rubber boots were placed too near the window and as we jolted along one of them fell out. "Two blankets and one top boot."

The roadbed was sadly in need of ballasting and at last the front pair of trucks jumped the track. They got out the apparatus and put things in readiness and tried to start but the little donkey was not able to pull it up. Then we all pushed behind but our efforts were fruitless. We piled all our belongings on the flat car, got on top and started on, leaving our coach stuck on the track. When their water supply gave out they threw their hose into the ditch and pumped it up by hand. From the top of the flat car we could see the track and it certainly was in a wretched condition. In some places the track was buried right down in the muskeg. The engineer stood all the time with his hand on the lever and a man sat out on front with a little bell in his hand warning him when to move cautiously and when to let out. Some time on towards evening the proprietor of "The Lily of the Lake" came on board and sold us tickets for the lake trip. A little before sundown as we thus joggled along we came to where there were a couple of tents by the side of the track and a lot of men standing and over in what looked like a big slough we saw a gasoline launch. It was our boat and our journey by rail was ended. We soon had our stuff transferred to the boat and were moving at a rapid rate up Lesser Slave River toward Sawridge. The banks are very low, only a few inches above water. We had supper at Sawridge and about ten started for Grouard at the other end of Lesser Slave Lake, reaching that point about four next morning. The wind had gone down but the lake was still rough but we enjoyed the ride. I sat up all night because there was no place to lie down. It never was, dark at all. The twilight moved around further north and east and after a while the sun came up.

Mr. Armstrong was there to meet us. We visited the land office and I signed up for my quarter. We secured a horse from the Anglican Church clergyman and a saddle from the Methodist preacher. The horse was to be left fifteen miles above the Crossing, where the parson would need it shortly to bring home his bride. We provided such things as would be necessary for the journey and at night lay down to rest, still haunted by the thought, "the worst is yet to come."

The law costs in the several phases of the case will run into something between $15,000 and $20,000 for the both sides.

A PLEA FOR FATHER.

A Well Known Writer Presents His Case Tellingly.

Albert Payson Tethune makes a plea for the much-abused father of the family in his article in the Pictorial Review, entitled "A Halo For Father."

It was at a vaudeville show. Vaudeville shows reflect the soul of the man in the street; not his brain—his soul—the thing he feels with. A damsel with a furry voice was singing a sobful ditty. Its refrain ran much like this: Take good care of mother, lad, when I'm dead and gone! Be good to her and shield her from all pain. Reverse her silver head, For after she is dead You will never know a mother's love again.

From the gallery arose audible sniffs, amid the whirlwind of applause. Even in the self contained orchestra section more than one white handkerchief frisked.

Every one there had had a mother, strangely enough.

The next act was a comedy sketch, during which two weirdly appareled men sang in unison a song with the ensuing refrain:

Dad, dad, dad,
The poor old worthless geezer!
The fuss we've had
With that old patience teaser.
He jacks the spirit of a mouse.
Most any one can down him.
We let him hang around the house—
It's cheaper than to drown him.

Again emotion swept the gallery, this time in the form of unextinguishable laughter—the laugh on dad.

"I wonder," suggested a born fool after the show, "what would have happened if they'd switched the sentiment on those two deathless lyrics, if they'd sung sobbily about father's silver head and the angels whispering blessings to him and then if they'd called mother a 'worthless geezer' and said they let her hang around the house because it was cheaper than to drown her?"

No one answered the born fool, not even according to his folly, largely because every one knew just what would have happened in such an impossible case as the shifting of the two songs.

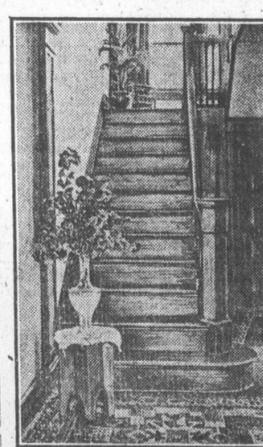

The audience at first mention of father in the transposed lyric would have begun to chuckle. And before two lines of the denatured mother song could have been delivered the hissing would have led to something like a riot. That is the answer.

Why in vaudeville, which is a mirror, distorted if you like, of life and of life's opinions, is mother a signal for handkerchiefs and father for howls? Why in plays, in books, in real life, is there a halo around mother's head, while father goes haloless to the grave? Audiences, book and theatrical, are prepared to accept willingly and naturally the cruel father, the demon father, the clown father. He is part of their daily literary and dramatic diet. They swallow him with ease. He is predestined.

What would they do if the cruel mother, the demon mother, the comic mother, were served to them? There is no need to think up a reply, for she is never served to them. And until an era of yet unborn originality and honesty arrives she never will be.

The Hallway Beautiful.

On the wall are simple pictures in narrow wooden frames.

Nothing Too Good for the Irish

Here's an interesting item regarding the New Ontario cabinet. Every member of it is Irish or of Irish descent, except Mr. MacDermid, the new minister of public works, who is of Scotch descent. Hon. W. H. Hearst, the new premier, is Irish, a Methodist, and 50 years of age. Hon. J. J. Foy is Irish, a Roman Catholic, and 67 years of age. Hon. R. A. Pyne is Irish, an Anglican, and 59 years of age. Hon. W. J. Hanna is Irish, a Methodist, and 42 years of age. Hon. F. G. MacDermid is Scotch, a Presbyterian, and 45 years of age. Hon. R. F. Preston is Irish, an Anglican, and 47 years of age. Hon. I. B. Ducais is Irish, an Anglican, and 47 years of age. Hon. James S. Duff is Irish, a Presbyterian, and 68 years of age. It will thus be seen the cabinet is composed of three Anglicans, two Methodists, two Presbyterians, and one Roman Catholic. There's nothing too good for the Irish.

The increase in acreage devoted to fall wheat in Lambton this year is estimated by G. G. Bramhill, B.A., to be twenty-five per cent. Last year nearly 37,000 acres were settled to fall wheat, which produced a yield of 719,000 bushels. With dollar and a half wheat starting them in the face, prospects are encouraging for the farmer.

Lambton Fruit and Vegetable Show

The first annual convention and exhibition of the Lambton County Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association opened at St. Andrew's Arena, Sarnia, on Wednesday of last week, and was fairly well attended by Sarnia citizens. The display of fruit, vegetables, honey and goods manufactured in Canada proved a revelation to all. In fact, it had to be seen to be appreciated. The fruit display was a most extensive one, and occupied the entire east side of the arena and a portion of the floor space in the centre. The vegetable display was at the north end of the arena. Both displays do credit to Lambton county as a producing district.

During the evening several interesting talks were given. Dr. Grant, of Theford, president of the Lambton Fruit Growers' Association, acted as chairman, and gave an interesting resume of the inception of the Association and its aims and objects. The objects of the Association are to foster, promote and advance every department of the fruit and vegetable industry, by holding an annual exhibition and convention, distributing suitable literature, making exhibits, and in all other ways, to aid in bringing the orchards and gardens of Lambton county to the highest state of production, efficiency and profit. In the absence of Mayor Joseph B. Degan, Dr. Henderson gave an address of welcome to the members of the Association, and complimented them on the success attending their exhibition. Mayor H. J. Pettypiece, of Forest, replied to the address of welcome, and gave a most interesting talk on the productive ability of Lambton county in the vicinity of Forest. Among other things Mr. Pettypiece informed the audience that in the Forest district in the last few years 500,000 trees had been planted, mostly peaches. The show would be held at Forest next year, he hoped, and it would then be a peach show as distinguished from this year's exhibition, which is marked by an excellent apple display. Dr. C. O. Fairbank, of Petrolia, war-den of Lambton county, also gave a short address, as did also Daniel Johnson, Dominion fruit commissioner. In the course of his remarks Mr. Johnson stated that, in 15,000 miles of travel since his appointment, he had not seen anywhere in the Dominion such a valuable fruit region as Lambton county. The east side of the arena was devoted to "Made in Canada" displays of a most interesting character.

SEVERE PAINS AROUND THE HEART

Are Nearly Always Caused by Stomach Trouble

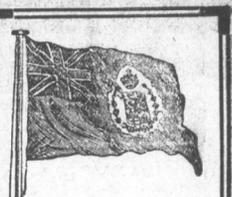

Don't let a pain in the region of the heart frighten you into thinking you have heart disease. Just as a pain in the back seldom indicates kidney trouble, so pain near the heart is scarcely ever present in organic heart disease. The pain is nearly always caused by stomach trouble for the stomach and heart are connected by many nerves, and gas on the stomach causes pressure on the heart.

The alarming pains will disappear if you tone up the stomach, eat the right things and don't worry. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best stomach tonic. One or two pills after each meal soon produces a healthy appetite, the food does not distress you, you are no longer troubled with gas, sour risings in the throat, and those mis-leading pains around the heart. Strength and energy return, and the rich, red blood, carries renewed vitality to every part of the body. Mrs. Henry Connolly, Brookvale, P. E. I., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from indigestion which, despite all the treatment I took, was gradually growing worse. I would sometimes feel as though I was smothering, and when the trouble came on I would suffer from violent palpitation and pains around the heart which greatly alarmed me. I was under doctor's treatment for a long time, but with no benefit. A friend suggested Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. In about a month I felt much better and by the time I had taken another four boxes I was in the best of health and able to eat all kinds of nourishing food. It is now several years since I was cured and I have never felt a symptom of indigestion since. I take every opportunity of recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to friends who are ailing."

If your dealer does not keep these Pills you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
