ONTARIO RAILWAY BOARD JOLTS CITY'S CONTENTION OF OWNERSHIP OF STREETS

Declares Toronto Has Violated City May Take Appeal Agreement With Street Railway and Prevented Company From Exercising Right to Select Routes for Extensions.

"The board determine that the company have the right to select the aforementioned streets (for new routes), and so declare.

"We find that THE CITY has denied the company's right and has prevented the company from using the streets selected for their new lines, and HAS VIO-LATED AND COMMIT-TED A BREACH OF THE AGREEMENT which they made with the company.'

These extracts from the lengthy fermal award show the trend of it:

We propose to try the rights of the parties as they exist under the except alone. What the city was selling and  * * * was the exclusive right to operate surface street railways * * for a period of 20 years, with a right of renewal for a further period of 10 years in the event of legislation being obtained. The operation of the railway is a business enterprise. It is a joint account. The city are not required to furnish any capital. They furnish the right of way along their streets, subject to a joint use by the pedestrian and the vehicle. The company took all the financial risk.

It is quite clear that extensions lines were contemplated by

A company advancing all the capital, making themselves responsible for the success of the enterprise, taking all the risk of failure and loss, would require to have the right to select the streets where men most do congregate, where passengers could most readily and easily present themselves for car-riage, and where the traffic could be most remunerative.

The denial of this right to the company to thus manage their business would require to be stated in very clear and decisive language. While the city may requisition the company to extend its tracks * * * * the company cannot be com-pelled to build * * * * and the city may grant the right to some other person. To force the company to abandon and to grant the right to build on the abandoned streets to some other person or company, is the only remedy which the city has. This, however, does not pre-vent the company from picking and choosing the streets that they conwill fit in with the rest of their system. We determine again * * * * that new lines and more cars are absolutely necessary. The people are suffering, while the city are delaying the company by denying them streets they require for the Toronto Boy Lost for Thirteer Days in the Wilderness-A November Visit to the Silver Discoveries.

It is not often that one can paddie the length of Lake Gowganda in the closing days of November. On this occasion it was possible, and was the only advantage which the backward season afforded. In a fourteen foot canoe, with William Hewitt of Ottawa in the stern, myself in the centre and John Debeau, my guide and philosopher, in the bow we paddled the entire length of the west shore, stopping at every prospector's tent or cabin, and landing occasionally to follow a trail which might lead to prospects on the second or third tier of claims. It was a strange November day for the northland. The sun shone brightly the the air was crisp and cold. The snow and ice had entirely disappeared, and the lake lay like a great mirror of fantastic outline set in a deep frame of fantastic outline set in a deep frame of dark green forest. There was no sign of life. Not a bird fluttered above the tree line. The silence was so intense that it compelled wonder. The only sound was the gentle wash of the paddles as the canoe glided along. Away across by the headland a canoe covered with large white spots shot into view. There was a man in the bow and one in the stern and they paddled with the grace of aborigines. "That is Dumond's spotted canoe," said Mr. Hewitt, "It is known all over the north country."

the north country."

Now let me tell the story of Austen Dumond, a graduate of the Central Business College, Toronto, and who left the office stool for a life in the wild woods—for the life of a hunter and prospector.

Austen Dumond was lost, hopelessly lost, for thirteen days in the northern lost, for thirteen days in the northern forests. Only a few hundred feet from the blazed trail had he wandered and search as he would, hour after hour, he could not recover the white aximarks on the tree trunks which would lead him to safety.

Dumond had no compass and soon completely lost all sense of direction, He had matches, however, and a large Colt's magazine revolver with plenty of cartridges.

hope that some one might hear his voice, but often as he called he heard in answer only the echo and re-echo he communicated with his lawyer, J. G. O'Donoghue, that he was prepared to voluntarily give himself up. Mr. O'Donoghue immediately notified Crown Attorney Kerr at Cobourg that he would produce Reed whenever his presence is required.

Reed's explanation is that he was so appalled at the loss of life his mistake had caused that he fied. Afterwards he realized that it was his duty to return and face the consequences. His pleatist that he thought the main line was clear when he turned on the switch, as his train was to be sidetracked for the purpose of letting the one following it pass. He had no knowledge that another train was due from the opposite direction and returned to the forward caboose shortly before the oncoming train engine telescoped that to whith he helonged. ward caboose shortly before the on-coming train engine telescoped that to which he belonged.

On the last day of his wandering he emerged at Fort Mattachewan, one of the remote Hudson Police of the remote Hudson Bay posts on the frontier of Northern Ontario. During these strenuous days he ate squir-rels and Canadian jays, or "Whiskey Jacks" as they are called by men of the north. He had no sait, nothing to vary this savage diet, but it served to keep the young man alive until he burst forth joyfully at the fort clearing.

And one would naturally think that Dumond paddled down the lakes and alivers attribute to civilization and rivers straight to civilization and to an office stool in good old Toronto. He did nothing of the kind. Dumond and his spotted canoe are still por-

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—The Central Canada Racing Association will have the services of Starter F. A. Upton, of Charlotte, New York, again this season for the big ice race meet, and John King of Syracuse, N.Y.; will again be the presiding judge. This will be good news to horsemen, as both these officials gave satisfaction last year at the ice meet. Both have worked on the Grand Circuit tracks.

The association have elected officers for the season as follows:

President—P. H. Wall.
Vice-president — Ald. Walter Cunning-ham.

Secretary-treasurer—E. McMahon. Track manager—E. J. O'Neill.

Ellis said, in the course of a muchapplauded address, there was confidence in the regularity of the processes of nature. The suspension of judgment was a mental attitude which was nibblick 109 Aucassin 109 always the result of scientific studies. This suspension of judgment was absolutely abhorrent to the ologians, hence 104 men of science and theologians had been at war since the very earliest ages. Evolution, Dr. Ellis stated, had become a universally accepted fact. Only once in a while was the Darwinian theory questioned. Dr. Coleman, following, said that it was a mistake to suppose that there was a mistake to suppose that there was a conflict between religion and science. One was largely a matter of hard facts; the other, of generous, noble feelings. They appealed to different sides of a man. We were accustomed, from a religious standpoint, to look upon the Bible as a revelation; yet God's works and His thoughts were also explained in the world around us. In the research of scientists there was definite and actual revelation. The purpose of the tible was not to give an account of the greation of the world. The Bible was there for a very different purpose.

Matter of the Estate of James Watt the Elder, Late of the City of Toronto, in the County of York, De-ceased, Retired Gentleman.

Some reluctant admissions were wrung from Engineer Howard Kelly of the Grand Trunk Railway by Corporation Counsel Fullerton and County Crown Attorney Drayton, at the afternoon session of the railway commission yesterday.

Mr. Kelly's whole argument had been in favor of a system of overhead bridges as opposed to the city's viaduct scheme, but he had to confess to Mr. Fullerton that grade separation had grown considerably in its application to large cittes in the past 10 or 20 years, on account of changed municipal conditions.

He also admitted that the eleven odd at the city of Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Revised Statutes of Ontario, Chapter 129, and persons here the said statues of Ontario, Chapter 129, and persons to the said at the City of To-ornto on the 12th day of May, 1908, are required before the 24th day of December, 1908, to send by post, prepaid, to the undersigned, solicitors for the executors of the will of the said deceased, their names addresses and descriptions, full particulars of their claims, and the nature of the security (f any) held by them. Referring again to Philadelphia, Mr. Fullerton asked witness if he knew that a contract had recently been let for the construction of a viaduct on a certain line, laid at grade, which witness had said had adequately answered the city's purposes.

Mr. Kelly persisted he knew of no such contract, but later said he wou'dn't be surprised if a viaduct were constructed at this point.

To Mr. Drayton witness said he was not brought to Toronto, to examine the waterfront with a view to pronouncing against the viaduct scheme. He had not been made acquainted with the rallways' determination to kill the viedect of the reliance of opinion between the company and the city over the matter, and he had to admit that he 'result that he knew there was a difference of opinion between the company and the city over the matter, and he had to admit that he 'result that the 'result that the 'composed, and knew of no such decision. MERCHANTS SHOULD BE CAREFUL. The Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association are sending out a warning to the merchants and others to be careful in regard to extra Xmas lighting.

The notice says:
"Wherever any kind of a display is made, special care should be given to electrical installations, particularly those of a temporary nature. They should only be put in by competent electricians, and all fuse blocks and cut-outs should be located away from inflammable material, and what is known as "enclosed" or "cartridge" fuses only should be used. "Open" tuses are particularly dangerous. The fuses are particularly dangerous. The enclosing of incandescent lights with paper and other inflammable material is altogether too common a practice and is highly dangerous."

BIG MAN, NOT SMALL LAWYER.

Toronto Telegram: Ontario has reason to rejoice that the government of this province was headed by a big man, not a small lawyer. The colors of public rights have been nailed to the mast of public courage. The straight-forward strength, the clear-sighted sincerity of Sir James Whitney speak with no uncertain sound in a state paper that shows where the Ontario Government stood and withther it is moving on the cheap power issue.

Patriotic Milltary Service.

Before the Chamberlain Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire Col. Hamilton Merritt delivered quite a bright and breezy address on the subject "Patriotic Military Service" yesterday afternoon. The particular point emphasized in the lecture was the great advantage to be derived by a reorganization of British military institutions, or the militia, along the lines of compulsory service. In support of this contention the colonel quoted various authorities, showing that such service not only was a means for the developnot only was a means for the develop-ment of the manhood of the country, but formed an integral part of the growth of national education and improvement of the moral fibre of the country. Various nations were cited as successful operators of this system. As to Canada itself he thought it absolutely ridiculous to be depending on the strength of untrained military forces in the last hour. He therefore advocated a proper organization that would prove effective in case of war. Colonel Biscoe of England and Capt. Brown of Toronto also delivered short addresses along the same line and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Colonel Merritt, moved by the regent, Miss Constance Boulton, seconded by

Falkenburg and the Coal. One of the best stories I heard in the north country was that of Falken-burg and the coal. The man who says "coal" to Falkenburg to-day must be a bigger man than this well-known prospector, or take the consequences.

It all came about over seventy pounds of coal which Falkenburg car-ried on his back from Elk City to Gowganda, along with sixty other odd pounds of provisions, When getting his supplies at Elk perspiration falling now and then from his face. "That flour must be blankety-blank lead," he remarked as he moved one foot after the other up a hillside. It was with the expression of one who has done his work well that Falkenburg threw down the pack at Gowganda. Something in the sound of that pack as it fell on the rough floor of the cabin he did not like. The pack was carefully opened. The "bag of flour" grated ominously as it was lifted from the pack sack. Falkenburg tapped it with his fingers, then gave it a dig with his foot. His face grew long and purple as he loosened the string. He had a premonition that there was something in there besides "Snow Flake XXX No. 1." The neck of the bag was opened and Falkenburg stared. Then he went over and sat down on the bunk folding his hands and saying not a word. This was the first cargo of coal ever shipped into Gowganda. J. S. Crate.

Undertone of Wall Street Market Shows Improvement-Investment Demand for Bank Stocks at Toronto.

World Office, Wedesday Evening, Dec. 9. Operations at the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day showed little change. There was further evidence of the growing demand for bank shares and orders for these stocks had to be executed at higher prices. Bank stocks are at the present time away below normal levels of a few years ago. Unfortunate happenings in some of these institutions disturbed confidence in bank stocks for a time, but this is gradually losing its influence and investors who have shunned these issues for a while are again returning to them, now that the weak elements have been eliminated. The speculative side of the ex-change was duller than the transac-tions show. Nothing but a speculative debauch can interest outsiders in these sight. Brokers in the interests of at this exchange are gradually broad-

STRENGTH OF BANK STOCKS THE FEATURE.

World Office. Wednesday Evening, Dec. 9. The action of the Toronto market to-day fully verified what has already been repeated in these columns for several weeks, namely, the investment demand for shares which accord entirely with investors' ideas. The one feature of the Toronto Exchange to-day was the strength of the bank stocks. Traders advanced over three points, Commerce sold at a new recent high price, and Bank of Toronto was taken at a substantial advance beyond the last sale. The business in the speculative stocks was irregular. There was no great weakness apparent, but wherever realizing showed itself, owing to the absence of outside buying, insiders took these shares at as low a price as could be conveniently made. It was thus that Dominion Steel dropped to 191/2, and some of the other specialties lost a fraction on small sales.

THAT RUMPUS AT KINGSTON. Queen's Students Say the "Riot" Wasn't

KINGSTON, Dec. 9.-A fairly at tended mass meeting of the students of Queen's University was held to consider what action should be taken in view of the events of Saturday night. A resolution, was passed expressing complete disapproval of the disorderly conduct and sincere regret for the part in it for which the students were responsible. The students committee ask space for the following statement:

"Much indignation was expressed at the exaggerated reports of the affair appearing in the outside press. Not more than fifty students were directly concerned. No stones were used, nor were revolvers displayed by either police or students. The conflict was of short duration; personal injuries reshort duration; personal injuries re-ceived were slight and the damage to property was inconsiderable. For this damage the students are making full restitution. Kingston citizens offered bail for the students arrested. The magistrate was willing to accept, but was overruled by Mayor Ross and the students were forced to remain in the cells till Sunday morning. "It is not thought that this occur-ence will in any way permanently interfere with the good feeling which has always existed between Kingston citizens and students."

Wheat—There was a strong tone to the market most of the forenoon but there was a lack of support near the end, that enabled short sellers to get the upper hand, and they pushed their advantage to the extent it would bear. The closing weakness was despite the fact of small receipts, that, if, continued, will before long get the visible supply down to a point where it will no longer be a weapon in the hands of bears.

We advise conservatism in trading, confining operations to purchases on the weak places, and avoiding short side on breaks.

MR. RUST GAVE NO FAVORS IN PAVING CONTRACTS!

So Says City in Filing Statement of Defence Regarding Bowman Charges.

show any favoritism in letting con tracts to the Warren Bituminous Co. is stated in the city's reply to the allegations of James Bowman in his suit against the city, particulars of which were published some time ago. In the city's statement of defence filed yesterday, it is said that the only petitions for the laying of pavements are on forms to be obtained by anyone on application at the engineer's department, and that nothing has been done by any civic official or has been done by any civic official or employe to promote bitulithic pavement nor to induce rate ayers to sign petitions therfor; that Mr. Rust's only recommendations were on receipt of duly signed petitions, and that, by inserting in the specifications the requirement for the use of a patented preparation owned by the Warren Bros. Company of Boston, the defendant Rust is acting in compliance with the said petitions, and that he is bound to comply therewith. is bound to comply therewith.

As to the assertion that the city is not properly assessing local improvements, the city denies that the whole cost of such works is not levied; against the property benefited.
