HUNTING TROUBLE

What good can come from the resolution of Mr. J. S. Woodsworth, the Labor M. P. for Winnipeg, declaring that Canada should refuse to accept any responsibility for complications arising from the foreign policy of the United Kingdom?

In expressing such views as those contained in his speech yesterday, yet it is very difficult to believe that the Woodsworths are good for Canada, or for the Empire, or for the cause of world peace.

J. WALTER HOLLY.

During the last year or two death has made heavy inroads upon Saint John's leading citizens, and now another prominent figure passes with the death of Mr. J. Walter Holly.

Mr. Holly was the only son of Shadrach Holly, who was the first Mayor of the old town of Portland, and father and son were associated in the lumber trade until 1900, when, upon the death of the elder Holly, his son became associated with Mr. F. E. Sayre and they formed the Sayre & Holly Lumber Company, Limited, with headquarters at Chipman, and later organized in this city the firm of F. E. Sayre & Company, Ltd.

Any such declaration by the Parliament of Canada would be hailed with delight—by whom? By the enemies of the British Empire, who would naturally welcome this proof of Woodsworth's weakening of the bonds of Imperial sentiment, of the ties of blood and of common interest which make the Empire what it is.

Mr. Holly was prominent both in this city and at Rothesay, where of late years he made his home. He was an ardent fisherman and devoted to hunting also, and he was one of the early members of the old Saint John Golf Club.

This debate is unfinished. Perhaps before it runs its course members of the House will ask Mr. Woodsworth some pointed questions. He might well be asked—since he is so fond of this doctrine of limited liability—what he thinks would happen in the long run if Australia adopted the very principle he is advocating, and if that principle were accepted by Great Britain, as it would be if Australia insisted. In that event, how long does he think Australia's vacant spaces would be safe from the teeming millions of Japan?

His death at a comparatively early age removes a citizen of high standing and usefulness. The bereaved family will have the sincere sympathy of this community and of many friends throughout the Maritime Provinces.

Coming nearer home, should Canada follow Mr. Woodsworth's advice, declare itself free from all Empire commitments, and insist upon releasing its partners in the Empire from any responsibility so far as we are concerned, how long does Mr. Woodsworth believe the present gentleman's agreement between this country and Japan, with respect to limiting the number of Japanese immigrants to British Columbia, would continue to work satisfactorily?

The Children's Aid Society of Winnipeg is caring for forty feeble-minded children, and the city claims that should be a charge on the province. The contention is well-founded. No Children's Aid Society can hope to find a foster home for a feeble-minded child. The Saint John Society has learned that fact. The care of these unfortunate should be a charge on the province.

The Foreign Secretary included in the chief part of his speech the Dominion would not be bound by Britain's action unless they elected to be so bound and so declared through their Parliaments. But Canada already has set its hand and seal to certain obligations as a member of the League of Nations, and the duties and responsibilities it has so accepted differ little in principle from those involved in the Locarno agreement. Is Mr. Woodsworth proposing that Canada shall seek to escape from its commitments with respect to the League? Judging by the tenor of his speech, the wind sits in that quarter.

Parliament would do grave injury to the interests of the Empire and to the cause of world peace should it go on record as taking the first step to break up the family circle. This country—a vital point which Mr. Woodsworth prefers to ignore—cannot be compelled to present troops to any theatre of war beyond its own boundaries. Should Great Britain become involved in a struggle in Europe or Asia tomorrow, no troops would leave this country, however grave the issue, unless Parliament had been assembled and had decided that they should go. Hon. Mr. Meighen has even gone so far as to say that no troops would leave the country under any circumstances until the question of participation had been decided by the people of Canada at a general election—a declaration which is today the subject of a very lively discussion throughout the country.

But Mr. Woodsworth, while he prefers to be blind to Canada's complete powers of self-government in this respect, overlooks another circumstance which must always be considered. While Canada, conceivably, might declare its neutrality should Britain or one of the other Dominions become involved in war tomorrow, the enemy would be in no sense bound to respect that declaration, or would only respect it should Canada refuse to permit Imperial troops to pass through its territory or through its ports, refuse to allow British ships to outfit in its harbors, and refuse to permit its citizens to furnish Britain with any form of aid.

An instant more and he was upon us. We hastily folded up our legs and said, "What ho, old thing?" (You see, we've lived here nearly nine years and are privileged to have our greetings semi-English.)

After such a greeting, we should be imagined the bootlegger quite uncertain as to whether he was experiencing something in real life or "morning after" delusion. But this bootlegger was of a type that might have done ample justice to a role in a court novel of the Middle Ages, for when he was departing, he made another bow, and said: "Many thanks, lady, and kind air."

Why is it so many bad businesses have such irresistible fascination? They always go on and on. There's a lure in outwitting the other fellow, even in risking forbidden things. I had been told it was excellent when laden down with dutiable stuff to declare a couple of small things in port and on which to pay the duty. Bull! I did select

Dinner Stories TOMMY, a city lad had moved to the country and was raising chickens. "How is he doing?" a friend asked his mother. "Splendidly! The little fellow is always reminding his father to feed them or clean out the coop. Every now and then the lad collects a dozen eggs and takes them into town and sells them to the grocer."

"Where do you get your eggs then?" the friend persisted. "Oh, I buy them from the grocer," was the mother's response. "I'm so much more used to getting them that way than direct from the hen."

He bowed, tipped his new derby and smiled: "Are you afraid of animals?" "No, sweetie," she smiled jolly at the embryo Don Juan. "I feel perfectly safe with you."

HE: "BEFORE we were married you used to say there wasn't another man like me in the world." SHE: "Yes, and now I'd hate to think that there was."

"HOW do I stand with you?" said the youth to his dancing teacher.

D. Thomas Curtin, Journalist And Traveler, Speaks Here On "What's Matter With Europe"

Says Feeling Along Frontier Zones Between Germany and France is Another War Coming Between These Countries; Gives Some Interesting Information

FRANCE'S fear of invasion by Germany is the basis of her foreign policy today, D. Thomas Curtin, journalist and traveler, said last evening in an address to a luncheon given by the Women's Canadian Club with the Men's Club and the Saint John branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Mr. Curtin held the audience of more than 250 enthralled with his description of present and past conditions in the countries of western and central Europe. The luncheon was held in the Georgian ballroom of the Admiral Beatty.

PREVAILING FEELING Mr. Curtin said that the prevailing feeling in the frontier zones between France and Germany was that another war would be fought between those countries in the lifetime of the present generation.

countries were. They retained a sort of insurance of arms. The premium was high. It was likely to remain high. Disarmament was not being discussed, although limitation of armament was.

The spirit of Locarno was an excellent thing, he thought, but it was not the entire result of sudden good feeling. The speaker knew him well, he said, and had been in touch with his office when British armies were pressing forward on the Somme.

Stresman had planned to hold the iron fields of northern France for all time and to keep the port of Antwerp. The speaker was rather in favor of scattering the peace prizes to Canadian and other troops who had changed Stresman's mind.

In closing, he reiterated that Germany wanted her territory back from Poland and also wanted a union with Germany. This union might be a good thing but would not take place on account of opposition from France and the Italy of Mussolini.

The speaker did not expect to see a big war in Europe for many years to come but problems, he said, would continue to arise.

Baby Eczema Soon Disappears with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment

Only mothers who have witnessed the suffering of their babies when tortured by eczema fully appreciate the remarkable soothing, healing effects of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Most babies at one time or another fall victims to skin irritations, chafing of the skin or eczema. For this reason it is a safe habit to always have at hand when bathing baby a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. You never know when roughness and redness of the skin is going to develop into something more serious. A touch of Dr. Chase's Ointment keeps the skin smooth and velvety and prevents serious skin afflictions.

Flapper Answers the Question Why Men Don't Marry Nowadays—How Much Can a Woman Influence a Man?—The Schoolboy of 18 Who Wants to Take a Wife to College.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Why is it that boys who cannot keep a wife in love, much less support them, are asking girls to marry them? I am 19 years old, very attractive looking and make a good salary. Now, this is my argument—and I suppose that of the rest of the girls, too!

I am used to nice things and I won't marry anyone poorer than I am because I have seen how my mother has had to take and scrape to get along, and I am not going to follow in her footsteps, dragging for a husband and children. I won't live at home or with any in-laws, and the average fellow would have to save about ten years to make the first payment on a home, as he has to spend so much taking you around during courtship. And he has got to do that, because no girl wants to stay at home and have other girls giggling at her because her sweetie is too cheap to take her out.

Most women think that a girl should be so tickled to get a husband that she would be willing to sacrifice everything for his little sake alone. But it is time now for the man to start the sacrificing and give the girl a rest.

It seems as if some girls could hardly wait until they get married, but the poor boob doesn't know what they are getting into. Love soon dies, and there is Friend Husband just as he really is, and you can't live on love. Too many have tried it. Don't you think I am right?

DOROTHY DIX.

ANSWER: Why, I think that you supply the best answer that has yet been given to the question, Why men don't marry? They can't, under all of the conditions you impose.

Let us begin with that matter of how to which you so feelingly refer in the first paragraph of your letter. It is, without doubt, true that love's young dream has been throttled in many a youth's heart by the price of silk stockings. For figure as he would, he could not make his salary provide bread and butter and chiffon hose and silk undies and all the other luxuries without which life is not worth living to many a modern girl.

Therefore the man stifles his yearning for a wife, as he does for a sports model car or a yacht or some other extravagance that is beyond his reach, and he doesn't pop the question, or if he does the girl turns him down because she has no notion, as you say, of slaving as her mother did.

You further discourage matrimony by making the high cost of loving so great that the man can never save up enough to get married upon. And perhaps you cool off the man's ardor for domesticity a degree or two more by letting him know that you don't intend to be one of the meek, patient wives who find their greatest happiness in making a home and are content to stay put in it.

It seems to me that it is rather a hard bargain that you want to make with men. You demand a husband who shall be able to support you in splendor, to indulge you in extravagance, and you don't seem to offer him much in return.

Believe me, my dear, you are all wrong about this. The women who get the most out of matrimony are not those who take, but those who give. Riches and luxuries do not make happiness, and I have heard many a millionaire say that her best days were those when she wore cotton stockings and made her own clothes and cooked and washed and helped her ambitious husband get a start in the world.

Don't pity your mother, who has had the full life of bringing up a family and making it comfortable by the work of her own hands. And don't believe that love always dies, or that poverty kills love.

But happily, you will change all of your opinions on these subjects when the right man comes along and you fall in love with him. Then chiffon stockings won't seem so necessary to you. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—How much influence, good or bad, do women have over men? How much can a wife influence her husband? To what extent should a husband permit his wife's influence to govern him in his business affairs, and in his support and respect for parents? CONFUSED.

ANSWER: Nobody is wise enough to answer these questions. Certainly they are far beyond my poor ability, but I think that woman's influence over men is very much overrated.

Woman's power over men is mainly as an exhilarator. She can speed him up and hurry him on the way he is going, but she can seldom stop him or make him go in a different direction. If a man is good, a woman's influence can make him better. If he is ambitious, she can stimulate him to greater efforts. If he is bad, she can make him worse, and if he is lazy and shiftless, she can take away from him even what little initiative he has.

But I have never known a woman who could make a bad man good, or put pep into a peepless one, or make a loafer go to work.

Probably, because it is easier to go downhill than to climb up, the influence of bad women seems far greater than that of good women.

The influence of wives runs along these same lines. A wife can influence her husband to make the most of his powers, and to develop his good qualities or his bad to their fullest extent, but there are very few wives whose influence has ever been great enough to reform a drunkard or a roue.

There are many women with positive financial genius, who are far-seeing and shrewd, and whose advice their husbands would always be wise to take, but a man is foolish to let his wife influence him to go into wild speculation because she wants more money, or to give up some wise move because she doesn't want to leave her family or friends.

A man is a weakling who lets his wife influence him against his family. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a boy 18 years old, graduating from high school. I would like to go to college, if I could take the sweetest girl in the world with me. But my family are very much opposed to this. If I should go without her, life would be empty, and I couldn't fix my mind on my studies. What would you do if you were in my place? JOE?

ANSWER: I should pray God to give me a little sense, and to save me from doing a fool thing that would wreck my life.

A schoolboy has no business with a wife. He would be a figure of fun that would excite the derision of all sensible people. What you feel, Joe, is just puppy love that you will get over in six months if you will give yourself a chance. Just try to realize that, and put all crazy thoughts of marriage out of your head.

If you really love this girl, don't marry her while you are still a kid. Go to college and study hard, and make a man of yourself who it worth some woman's marrying. Make her proud to marry you five years hence, instead of sorry she did marry you, as she certainly will be if she marries you now. DOROTHY DIX.

"Out Where West Begins" Is Blackwood, N.J.

Scenes on the Weber ranch near Blackwood, N. J.

By MARGERY PICKARD BLACKWOOD—N. J., March 23—Rodeo in this locality will be dusty this summer with New Yorkers discovering where the west begins. For within sight of New York's misty towers a little bit of the old west is flourishing.

Louis J. Weber, Jr., is conducting a ranch near here in the manner of the great open spaces, with cattle ranges, cowboys, bronchos, bison and all the other trappings of the Bill Hart and Tom Mix movies.

Genuine cowhands from western ranches are the hired men on this unique country estate, broncho-busting is one of their avocations, the live stock includes many breeds of horses, deer, elk, buffalo, etc., and there are corral and cook shacks, cowboy laments, round-ups.

The "ranch" is Weber's hobby. He wanted to be a cowboy and couldn't go west to do it, so he brought enough "background" east to be able to realize his ambition right at his doorstep.

The Weber estate is a show-place for the countryside. More than one New Yorker has discovered here that milk comes from cows and not from cans.

IN NEW YORK SEE SAWING UP and down BROADWAY

"LIKE mother used to make" is a phrase that Broadway cannot entirely hard-hat from one-time children of the hinterland.

Be they ever so Broadway, there comes a time when a yearning for the "old home dishes" comes upon them.

Now there's George M. Cohan, for instance. To many he has become almost a symbol for Broadway. As a matter of fact he is a son of Rhode Island—Providence, to be exact.

The other night the Rhode Island Society held its annual get-together at the Astor. Cohan presides over this organization. In arranging the menu "he saw it that the Rhode Island folk could go on a veritable debauch of Squantum clam chowder from the Squantum Indians."

WHICH reminds me that the lot of the chef in a big hotel is not an easy one. Thus F. Guillet, the Astor chef, was expected to be able to drag the Squantum powder from his steve and have it served in a manner to be immediately recognizable.

Higher Amusement Levy Opposed and Saint John Bill Will Be Fought

By JOHN J. DUNLOP
Staff-Correspondent of The Times-Star
FREDERICTON, N. B., March 22—Hearing three important delegations, conclusion of the throne speech debate and the introduction of the budget on Thursday is the government's rather heavy program this week. Determined opposition to the bill which is being promoted by the Retail Merchants' Association to place a special tax on mail order houses doing business in New Brunswick is expected to show at the hearing to be given this matter before the government tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The sponsors of the bill will be represented in large numbers and will seek to impress upon the government the necessity for such legislation. Not only is there provincial interest in such a bill, but in other provinces of Canada the move is being closely watched to see what action New Brunswick takes in this matter.

PIMPLES GO SKIN CLEARS— EASY WAY

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings quick, permanent relief from constipation.

Constipation leaves its marks upon the face. Its terrible poisons, which lead to over forty serious diseases, cause pimples, hollow cheeks, sallow skin, circles under the eyes, poor circulation, cold hands and feet. It causes unpleasant breath too.

Rid your body of this frightful disease. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has brought health to thousands when all else has failed. The reason—it is ALL BRAN—100% bran! That is why doctors recommend it. It takes ALL-BRAN to be wholly effective.

WHY MARCH IS THE MOST DANGEROUS MONTH

March is the month of sudden weather changes. One day, warm and sunny; the next, chill and dreary; one day, dry; the next, wet and blistery. Only the strongest systems can stand the strain. Too often it is true that the sick "only until the spring."

APPOINTMENTS ARE DEFERRED

Vocational School Committee Will Meet Again On Thursday

Two to Be Made—Matter of Taking Over Building Referred to

The appointment of an engineer and janitor for the new vocational school was considered at the meeting of the Vocational Committee held last night. It was pointed out that, if possible, both of these appointments should be able to give instruction in their own line of work as there were good opportunities in both fields of endeavor. It might be desirable, it was said, to train pupils for these vocations.

CONSIDER 2 APPOINTMENTS.

With reference to the appointment of an engineer and a janitor, Dr. Carter pointed out how necessary it was to have a good man as engineer at the school, as the right man might be able to cut down materially the cost of fuel which would be a big item. He thought it might be advisable to employ a heating expert for a time to make recommendations.

CHANGES REPORTED ON.

As some change in the sinks in the cafeteria of the new school was desired, Mr. Carter reported that he had interviewed the contractors and the change had been made on a cost basis. It is practically certain now that A. A. Dymart, opposition member for Kent, will not speak in the crown speech debate, and that the only speaker tomorrow will be Premier Baxter, who will wind up the debate.

IMPERIAL HAS ONE OF BEST IN RECENT FILMS

"His People" Gripping Tale of Life in New York Ghetto

Imperial Theatre patrons who took advantage of the spring-like weather yesterday afternoon and last night for picnicking, enjoyed something quite unusual in photoplays in seeing "His People," an intensely emotional story of life among just plain family folks in a tenement district, the chief characters being Jewish and Irish.

Imperial's program included an splendid budget of Pathé News which, beginning this week, will be six weeks earlier than usual; one of those ludicrous "Asop's Fable" cartoons, an artistic orchestral overture and the usual fine music by the orchestra and Wuritzer organ.

How far should a man go to further his career? Should he sacrifice his own desires and ambitions for his family? Is he justified in denying passage as a stepping stone to future success? These questions and more are answered in the photoplay "His People."

It is a story of hearts and emotions, the keynote being sounded in a father's love for his erring son, Rudolph Schildkraut, one of the greatest living character stars, who has appeared by command before royalty, makes his first appearance in this picture, playing the difficult role of Rabbi Cominsky.

CLIMAX UPON CLIMAX. Climax follows climax in this tale. The stern father's resentment at his younger son's following a pugilistic career, the older son's disavowal of his parents, the graphic reproduction of life in New York's Ghetto, make a picture of thrilling interest.

There is a realistic snowstorm, a championship prizefight, a sumptuous dinner scene, faithful reproduction of the New York subway and elevated railroad, and a host of other interesting backgrounds.

J. W. HOLLY OF ROTHESEY DEAD

Well Known Lumber Dealer Succumbs After Illness of Months

Esteemed Citizen Was Member of Prominent North Saint John Family

THE death of J. Walter Holly occurred at an early hour this morning at his home, "Hollyholme," Rothesay, and will be learned with regret by a very large circle of friends in the city and province.

Mr. Holly was a son of the late Shadrach Holly and Hannah Tapley, the only male child of a large family of children, born of a union of two prominent families engaged in lumbering and lumber rafting operations in and about Saint John at that time and for years after.

OF SAYRE & HOLLY Educated in the public schools of Saint John and later in the Baptist Academy in Wolfville, N. S.

He was prepared to join his father in the timber mercantile trade which partnership existed until Shadrach Holly's death in 1900.

THE FAMILY In 1908, Mr. Holly was married to Regina M. Murphy, daughter of Captain Murphy of Yarmouth, N. S.

THE HAPPY HOME The social side of J. Walter Holly with the life of the community since the family moved from their Yarmouth home to this city in 1897, when Mr. Holly purchased the splendid Furion property in Coburg street, now absorbed by the Saint John Infirmary group of buildings.

HIS ASSOCIATIONS For a number of years Mr. Holly was an active member of the Union Club until his absence from the city prevented local associations.
