R. A. SQUIRES,
Colonial Secretary.

ST. JOHN'S, SURE!

It is understood that at a meeting of the Executive Government held Monday night the Flour Mill Project passed with some slight alterations from the original draft of the agreement. The site of the flour mill, has not yet been decided upon, but it is not unlikely that a suitable site will be found in St. John's. According to Mr. Palmer here is the most logical place to erect the mill. The most important feature is the selection of a suitable foundation, and for this purpose it is learned that an engineer with equipment to make bedrock tests will arrive shortly from Canada.—Telegram.

FISHING BANK DISCOVERED OFF LABRADOR

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—The discovery of a new fishing bank 200 by 90 miles off the coast of Labrador is reported at the Department of Marine and Fisheries. This fishing ground, which it is stated abounds in cod and halibut, is expected to prove a valuable addition to the already known fishing banks. The depth of the waters is 76 fathoms, and the same soundings, varying but little, were prevalent over a large part of the bank. The exact location has not yet been made known.

The roads were scarce during the latter part of last week and over the weekend. On Saturday it was almost impossible to procure meat of any kind. There was also a scarcity of fish.

To all our Readers

There is no doubt that a Typesetting Machine is an improvement on the old-fashioned equipment of a newspaper office, as it replaces the obsolete method of hand composition. The machine we purchased last fall was equipped with a Gasolene Burner. We have proven this to be very unsatisfactory. We are now negotiating for an Electric Metal Pot and need $300.00 for this additional equipment. The appeal we made for assistance last fall met with fair response, but it did not by any means cover all our expectations nor requirements. Hundreds of families residing in Bay Roberts and vicinity who could have responded to our appeal, with benefit to themselves as well as to us, failed to do so. The result is that we have not been able to do that which we intended to do. Will you who read these lines help us now? Send along your subscription. This is YOUR PAPER as well as ours. A newspaper is the mouthpiece or organ of the entire community. It records the local happenings from week to week. It deals with the needs of the community. It gives information re employment and other matters. It deserves and should have the support of every family.

We are planning to add a special feature shortly, and later, if we can get sufficient encouragement, we plan to add some very special features.

LUCY GRAHAM'S SECRET

George was very pale but perfectly tranquil—if anything, indeed more cheerful than usual.

He shook Robert by the hand with something of that hearty manner for which he had been distinguished before the one affliction of his life overtook and shipwrecked him.

"Forgive me, Bob," he said frankly, "for my surly temper of last night. You were quite correct in your assertion; the thunderstorm did upset me. It always had the same effect upon me in my youth."

"Poor old boy! Shall we go up by the express, or shall we stop here and dine with my uncle to-night?" asked Robert.

"To tell the truth, Bob, I would rather do neither. It's a glorious morning. Suppose we stroll about all day, take another turn with the rod and line, and go up to town by the train that leaves here at 6.15 in the evening?"

Robert Audley would have assented to a far more disagreeable proposition than this, rather than have taken the trouble to oppose his friend so the matter was immediately agreed upon; and after they had finished their breakfast, and ordered a four o'clock dinner, George Talboys took the fishing rod across his broad shoulders and strode out of the house with his friend and companion.

But if the equable temperament of Mr. Robert Audley had been undisturbed by the crackling peals of thunder that shook the very foundations of the Sun Inn, it had not been so with the delicate sensibilities of his uncle's young wife, Lady Audley her bested wheeled into a corner of the room, and with the heavy curtains drawn tightly round her, she lay with her face buried in the pillow, shuddering convulsively at every sound of the tempest without. Sir Michael, whose stout heart had never known a fear, almost trembled for this fragile creature, whom it was his happy privilege to protect and defend. My lady would not consent to undress till nearly three o'clock in the morning, when the last lingering peal of thunder had died away among the distant hills. Until that hour she lay in the handsome silk dress in which she had traveled huddled together among the bedclothes only looking up now and then with a scared face to ask if the storm was over.

Toward four o'clock her husband who spent the night in watching by her bedside, saw her drop off into a deep sleep, from which she did not awake for nearly five hours.

But she came into the breakfast-room, at half-past nine o'clock singing a little Scotch melody, her cheeks tinged with as delicate a pink as the pale hue of her muslin morning dress. Like the birds and flowers, she seemed to recover her beauty and joyousness in the morning sunshine. She tripped lightly onto the lawn gathering a last lingering rosebud here and there, and a sprig or two of geranium, and returning through the dewy grass, warbling long cadences for very happiness of heart, and looking as fresh and radiant as the flowers in

Stall's Books

Rev. T. Albert Moore, D. D., General Secretary of the Dept. of Social Service and Evangelism of the Meth. Church of Canada, who visited Newfoundland in Sept., 1917, in connection with the Social Congress, says:

"Stall's Books on Avoided Subjects have been standard works for such a long time that it seems almost unnecessary to say a word in their behalf. I believe they have accomplished great good, and are written with care and delicacy, at the same time with sufficient frankness or the modest discussion of these delicate subjects. They are safe books for general reading, especially if from the various books there is proper selection for the youth or adult, man or woman, as the case may be."

her hands. The baronet caught her in his strong arms as she came in through the open window.

"My pretty one," he said, "my darling, what happiness to see you your own merry self again! Do you know, Lucy, that once last night, when you looked out through the dark-green bed-curtains, with your poor, white face, and the purple rims round your hollow eyes, I had almost a difficulty to recognise my little wife in that terrified agonized-looking creature crying out about the storm. Thank God for the morning sun which has brought back the rosy cheeks and bright smile! I hope to Heaven, Lucy, I shall never see you look as you did last night."

She stood on tiptoe to kiss him, and then was only tall enough to reach his white beard. She told him laughing, that she had always been a silly frightened creature—frightened of cattle, frightened of a thunder-storm, frightened of a rough sea. "Frightened of everything and every body but my dear, noble, handsome husband," she said.

She had found the carpet in her dressing room disarranged and had inquired into the mystery of the secret passage. She chid Miss Alicia in a playful laughing way, for her boldness in introducing two great men into my lady's rooms.

"And they had" the audacity to look at my picture, Alicia," she said, with mock indignation. "I found the baize thrown on the ground, and a great man's glove on the carpet. Look!"

She held up a thick driving glove as she spoke. It was George's, which he had dropped looking at the picture.

"I shall go up to the Sun, and ask those boys-to dinner," Sir Michael said, as he left the court upon his morning walk around the farm.

Lady Audley flitted from room to room in the bright September sunshine—now sitting down to the piano to play a ballad, or the first page of a bravura, or running through a brilliant overture, or hovering about a stand of house flowers, doing amateur sewing with a pair of fairy-like silver mounted embroidery scissors—now strolling into her dressing-room to talk to Thoebe Marks, and have her curls rearranged for the third or fourth time; for the ringlets were always getting into disorder, and gave no little trouble to Lady Audley's maid.

My dear lady seemed, on this particular September day, restless from very joyousness of spirit, and unable to stay long in one place, or occupy herself with one thing.

While Lady Audley amused herself in her own frivolous fashion, the two young men strolled slowly along the margin of the stream until they reached a shady corner, where the water was deep and still and the long branches of the willows trailed into the brook.

George Talboys took the fishing-rod, while Robert stretched himself at full length on a railway rug and balancing his hat upon his nose as a screen from the sunshine, fell fast asleep.

Those were happy fish in the stream on the banks of which Mr. Talboys was seated. They might have amused themselves to their heart's content with timid nibbles at this gentleman's bait without in any manner endangering their safety; for George only stared vacantly in the water, holding his rod in a loose, listless hand and with a strange far-away look in his eyes. As the church clock struck two he threw down his rod, and, striding away along the bank, left Robert Audley to enjoy a nap which, according to that gentleman's habits was by no means unlikely to last for two or three hours. About a quarter of a mile further on George crossed a rustic bridge, and struck into the meadows which led to Audley Court.

CARTWRIGHT, LABRADOR

Friday, Jan. 24th.

Left Otter Bay with Joe Green, going quite good. Cape Bluff Pond better than I have ever seen it. Reached Gilbert's Neck at 2.30, putting up for the night with Fred Burden. There wasn't much room indoors! Evensong 7.30. I had a very unusual treat in the food line, my first meal of rabbit this year.

Saturday, Jan. 25th.

A sudden change in the weather. Snow, hail, and finally heavy rain. Tommy Burden had agreed to carry me right up the shore to Battle Harbor, but he was not yet ready, so we hung on at his home for the day. The good folk made me as comfortable as they could.

Sunday, Jan. 26th.

Still raining this morning, but felt it my duty to get on to Georges' Cove for the day. Literally waded out there. Put up at John Kippenhook's. Visited the settlement and had service in the school chapel. After service I baptised and received a couple of babies. One feels really glad that one came on the trip just for the sake of the little babies. Tommy's team is almost beyond words! It gets along after a long time and that is about all there is to

THE SHIELD'S REVERSE

The intellect of man has achieved, in the realms especially of the physical science, marvels of which the most renowned of the ancients never dreamed. The wonders of the starry heavens, the secrets of the buried pages of the earth's long-hidden records, have yielded to man's patient study tales more wonderful than any fiction has produced. The discovery of once unknown forces and the subjugating of them to the control of man—all that has resulted in the accumulation of wealth and power from the researches of man in the sphere of material nature—fill us with deepening amazement.

The discredit science as a benefactor of the race in its search for truth and fact would be to rank oneself with the ignorant and the fanatic. The truth, every honest man must follow let it lead where it may. It can never contradict itself.

But science, too, has made possible many an instrument for evil. On its anvils have been forged weapons for destruction that our most savage ancestors would have disdained to use. In many an instance its influence over the mind of its devotee has been to blind him to truths of greater worth to mankind than any exact science has ever discovered. It may be possible to measure and weigh the stars of heaven and yet catch no glimpse of eternal spiritual values beside which the shining stars grow pale.

It is when one looks upon the shield's reverse side, when he confronts the cold crass materialism into which scientific studies have so often led its votaries, that he scarcely wonders that one who had seen both sides should have written years before this last unpeachable war, which drew its engines of destruction from the laboratories of Science:

"I hate and fear Science" because of my conviction that for long to come, if not forever, it will be the remorseless enemy of mankind. I see it destroying all gentleness and simplicity of life; I see it restoring barbarism under the mask of civilization; I see it darkening men's minds and hardening their hearts; I see it bringing a time of vast conflicts which will pale into insignificance the thousand wars of old, and, as likely as not, overwhelm all the laborious advances of mankind in blood-drenched chaos."—Ex.

Hard Work Means Success

There never was a goal worth getting but you must work to attain. You must suffer and bleed for it, cling to your creed for it. Fail and go at it again.

Success is no whim of the moment, no crown for the indolent brow. You must battle and try for it, offer to die for it. Lose it yet win it somehow.

The Pathway to glory is rugged, and many the heart-aches you'll know. He who seeks to be master must rise from disaster. Must take as he giveth the blow.

There's no royal highway to splendour, no short cut to fortune or fame. You must fearlessly fight for it, dare to be right for it. Failing, yet playing the game.

The test of man's merit is trouble, the proof of his work is distress. Much as you long for it, man must be strong for it. Work is the door to success.

HEALTH is the greatest blessing in the world

If you are HEALTHY you can work hard but not other wise. HARD WORK means SUCCESS but you will NEVER be able to work very hard without HEALTH and STRENGTH. If you require HEALTH and STRENGTH use

RULES FOR Making Cod Liver Oil For the Guidance of Manufacturers

- 1st. The manager in charge of factory must see that the livers are fresh; that all brown or poor livers are thrown out; that there is no gall bladder attached to any livers.
  - 2nd. The good livers must then be washed in a tub of clean fresh water.
  - 3rd. The pan in which the livers are boiled must be perfectly clean inside, before any livers are placed in it.
  - 4th. Before you start to boil any livers, you must have sufficient steam.
  - 5th. Turn on the steam, and use as much as you need to have for the quantity of livers you have in your pan. Boil until the white scum floats off (which will take about thirty minutes.) Don't forget to stir the livers, and see that those in the bottom and those around the sides are brought into direct contact with the steam all the time.
  - 6th. Turn the steam off, and allow all to settle, not exceeding five minutes, according to capacity of liver boiler.
  - 7th. Then you dip all the oil you can get, which is the finest white oil. Put this oil in a cooling tank made of galvanized iron, and let the oil remain there till next morning. Don't forget to put a straining cloth over the cooling tank before you put any oil in, so that it will catch any bits of blubber; allow to remain 12 or 14 hours, or longer if possible, then dip from cooling tank and strain through double calico bag, inside bag to be one inch smaller all around; then strain into a tin shut under the bags, the cask to be at the end of the shut with a funnel, to lead oil into casks, which funnel to be covered with cheese-cloth.
  - 8th. When you have dipped the finest oil from the top of the liver boiler pan, take all the blubber from the pan while it is warm. The oil from this blubber is not fit for medicinal purposes.
  - 9th. Then clean your liver pan with warm water and washing powder. Have it bright and clean for the next boiling.
  - 10th. Every bag, cloth, tank, funnel and pan, must be washed only with warm water, soap and water. Soda must not be used.
- The best results for medical oil can only be obtained by the use of tin barrels. Wooden packages generally make the oil dark, and destroy its fine flavor. Keep all oil in barrels in a cool place, and covered from the sun.

REGULATIONS For Salting Scotch Pack Herring

One barrel salt to five and a half barrels herring—Large Fulls
One barrel salt to six barrels herring—Medium Fulls.
One barrel salt to six and a half barrels herring—Matt Fulls.
This amount of salt is for dredging and laying on rows only. It does not take into account that put on the herring before gibbing.

All salt falling off herring in rousing tubs is put on rows as you pack, unless very dirty or scaly; in that case, you have to make good the same amount, or otherwise you could not have any fixed rule on salt.

Matt Fulls..... 10 1/2 inches long..... Milt or roe
Medium Fulls.... 11 1/2 inches long..... Milt or roe
Large Fulls..... 12 1/2 inches long and upwards. Milt or roe
Medium Filling... 11 1/2 inches long and upward
Large Filling... 12 1/2 inches long and upwards
Filling Fish may be branded as Scotch Cure without the Crown Brand

No drowned, stale, or scaleless herring can be used as Scotch Pack, nor herring in half frozen state.

The root cause of light salting is to come as near as possible to the pleasing of the palate of the consumer; and if we bear in mind that over three-fourths of all Scotch-Pack Herring are consumed as a tonic before the mid-day meal, just as they come out of the barrel, without any fire cooking, we can see the reason at a glance for the right salting. The herring is dressed by the head and the tail being cut off, the main bone taken out. It is then cut into squares of about one inch, and is served with vinegar and other condiments. This gives power to the stomach to digest the following meal and keeps the consumer in the best of health.

People with bad stomachs please note that the art of cooking and eating right is just as essential as the art of curing; and based on the best medical directions, and with the chemical analysis of the constituent parts of herring as a food ever kept before the consumer, we need not be surprised that the people who eat most herring are the most healthy and efficient.

say about it. Poor old Turk hauls too hard for my liking. He will get played out, unless I can get him more feed than he is getting. The Southerners do not look after their dogs like the Northerners.

Monday, Jan. 27th.

Left Georges' Cove early, just before dawn. The frost has suddenly returned and the going was as good as could be. Called in at Williams' Harbour for a short time then on again. Our pace is slow and sure. Reached Franky's Cove 10 p.m. Meet the Paulo family with, I think mutual pleasure. Went on to Fox Harbour for the night. This is a bigish settlement and took some time to visit. Some eleven houses in all. Evensong at George Holley's at 7.30.

Tuesday, Jan. 28th.

Snowing and blowing. No time for crossing Lewis' Bay, so after holding on for the morning at Fox Harbour, we ran back a few miles to Deepwater Creek, where I made acquaintance with the Curl family. VPisited some five houses. Had Evensong at 7.30. Though possessed of one of the best and largest houses on the coast my good hosts were under the power of the "pestilence which moveth in the darkness." With perfect courtesy and candour, I was asked, "Do the bugs like you?" A very insecure night in prospect.

Wednesday, Jan. 29th.

Lots of snow down but a fine day. Set off after breakfast, calling at Franky's Cove to try for a pilot across the bay. Falling in this we tackled it alone, and soon after starting away from the alnd, sighted a komatik out in the middle of the bay. This was evidently Billy Murphy, the mail-man. We soon took his track, and reached Battle Harbour about 3.0. This is my furthest south on komatik. I was glad to renew acquaintance with Jerry Thoms, and Mark Penny. I also made the acquaintance of Mr. Brazil, the Marconi operator, who gave me the latest news. To be in touch with the outside world, even by such a slight means as wireless, seemed a great treat. Jerry Thoms, my host, was full of kindness to me.

Thursday, Jan. 30th.

A busy day's visiting under the guidance of Mark Penny. In the morning, we got through Trap Cove and Matthew's Cove, in the course of which I baptised two babies, and churched several mothers. On return to dinner, my nose was greeted with the aroma of fresh pork, the gift of Mrs. Murphy across the harbour. After dinner, visited Battle Harbour proper, and on the way, inspected the school, where twenty-two children were assembled under and excellent teacher. Paid 20 visits in the course of the day. Evensong in the school at 6.30. A fine crowd attended. Sat up late, chatting with some of the men who came in after service. As long as it does not degenerate into gossip, the evening yarn is one of the most pleasant of my occupations. It was midnight before we turned in.

Friday, Jan. 31st.

Considerably alarmed to be aroused with the news that a big sea was rapidly breaking up the harbour ice, and that I would have to hurry if I wanted to get away. Got ready in haste and crossed the harbour on the cracked pans of ice. Fro mthe top of the hills on Caribou Island, we could see the water broken far into the bay, and the spray dashing up in clouds on the edge of the old ice. We could also see Belle Isle out to sea. As far as Indian Cove, we had a pilot. After this, we had to make the best way we could round the bay. It was very disappointing to have to go all the way round, when it was only seven miles across the mouth. The snow was too deep for our team to make any pace, so I put on my snow-shoes as soon as we left Indian Cove. Walked steadily on till midday when we got as far as Mary's Harbour. Here we discovered the very unwelcome fact that we had no axe, which meant no drink! We also had no food. Taking to the ice here, we could feel it rising and falling under our feet, and here it groaning and squeaking as it heaved. A wearisome tramp ensued, in and out along the shore, until at last about 5.0, we reached Franky's Cove, just as dark came on. Saturday, Feb. 1st.

Fine morning. Made an early start, and soon found it necessary to repeat yesterday's performance. I ruminated on the absurdity of hiring a team and then having to walk. It made my heart ache to see poor old Turk practically hauling the whole concern himself. He is getting very thin and worn. From dawn to sunset we went without a stop for food or drink, until we arrived at Barnes' Cove. A big crowd was gathered here to see a wedding which was to come off on my arrival. Evensong rather an ordeal. Where will everybody sleep?

THE MAN WITH THE MUCKRAKE

This symbol of the man who sells his divine birthright for a mess of pottage is as apt to-day as it was when, nearly three centuries ago, it came fresh from the brain of its creator in Bedford jail.

"A man that could look no way but downwards, with a muckrake in his hand. There stood also one over his head, with a celestial crown in his hand, and proffered to give him that crown for his muckrake; but the man did neither look up, nor regard, but raked to himself the straws, the small sticks and dust of the floor."

Everywhere we see this figure of the worldly-minded man, who is so engrossed in material things that he never looks up to the higher things of the spirit, those things that make life really worth living; that fill it with joy, harmony, peace, love, good will, real happiness.

The chief aim of his existence—he doesn't really live—seems to be the catering to the animal man, to his physical wants, his appetites, his enjoyments. Instead of developing the higher man, unfolding the upper brain, where the finer sentiments, the nobler qualities, the higher ideals dwell, his desires, his passions, bring into play the lower man, the animal propensities, the instincts.

His life motto, which is the motto of the fool, "Eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow we die"—plunges him into all sorts of coarse sensual dissipations, which have no more to do with real enjoyment and happiness than filth hand defilement have with cleanliness and purity.

Take, for instance, men to whom the pleasures of the table are everything. They fancy they enjoy gourmandizing, and, of course, tickled, but they pay for their fleeting sensation afterward in all sorts of pain and discomfort, excessive fat, indigestion, biliousness, rheumatism, gout in befogged, clouded mental faculties, dullness of intellect, lethargy, inertia, and a host of other evils which make life a burden, for any fancied pleasure it may give. Over-indulgence in eating and drinking evicts a fearful

The man who indulges in yet grasser pleasures than those of the hog at his trough pays a still heavier price for his indulgence. We have all seen the sensualist, the devotee of dissipation, when, after a night's debauch, he returns next day with downcast eye, with a look of guilt written all over him, which tells us that he is suffering from a wounded self-respect, that he is despising himself for his departure from what he knew to be right. We have seen him running into the saloons—now he goes to the bootleggers—to get a bracer several times in the forenoon before he can get up sufficient mental stimulus to attend to business. We have seen him smoking incessantly, resorting to drugs and doing all sorts of things to try to counteract the vicious influence of his dissipation.

But no stimulant or drug could restore what he had lost the night before, or wipe out the smirch upon his manhood, and he would not have his wife or his little child, his mother or his sister know where he had been for anything in the world. He sneaked into the place where he expected to enjoy himself under cover of the dark, when he thought there was no one about who would know him. He felt mean even before he had allowed his lower nature to get the upper hand of him, and afterward he hated himself for wallowing in filth, for catering to the brute in him. He knew that such conduct was unbecoming a gentleman, to say nothing of being unbecoming in one who bears the stamp of divinity, who is a son of the King of kings.

When a youth, Hugh Miller, the great geologist, got in bad company one time and was induced to drink two glasses of whiskey. On reaching home tried to read Bacon, who was his favorite author, but the letters all ran together and lost their meaning. Speaking of the occasion, he said: "The condition into which I had brought myself was one of degradation. In that hour I determined that I would never again sacrifice my intellectual enjoyment to drink, and with God's help I was able to hold to the 'determination.'"

If more of our youth had the wisdom and strength of character of Hugh Miller, there would be fewer ruined lives, fewer men with the muckrake in middle life, and later, disappointed and disgusted with the result of their muckraking.

To-day, more than ever, it is necessary for the ambitious youth who would handicap his progress. For, while the opportunities are magnificent and manifold, there never was a time in the history of the world when competition was so sharp, when there was such an insistent call for the clear brain, the unclouded mind, the clean-cut intellect, the keen, alert faculties.

From whatever angle we look at it, muckraking, low animal living, is a pretty poor business for a man. To go about with a muckrake in your hand; to live like a brute when you are made in God's image, with god-like possibilities, is a pretty poor choice; to swap your divine birthright for a mess of pottage is a fools bargain, that gives you neither happiness nor success.—Orison Sweet Marden in Success.

A REMARKABLE FEAT

Lion's Head, Ont. Oct. 8.—During a performance at a local theatre on Friday night a clairvoyant, claiming to be the seventh son of a seventh son was asked by the audience where the bodies of Capt. William Corson and Robert Parker, missing Lion's Head fishermen could be found. The clairvoyant said he believed he could locate the bodies and on Sunday visited the lake where the men were lost and located the bodies in a brief time. Parker's body was taken out half an hour after the attempt started and Corson's body was located but not raised. His procedure was unique. He removed the centres from nine loaves of bread and filled the cavities with line. The loaves were then set afloat in a circle over the area where the bodies were believed to lie. The clairvoyant said when a loaf floating over the resting place of a human body the fact would be indicated by a movement of the loaf. The clairvoyant claims these made 119 bodies located by his method.

HE MUST DIG

He wanted a job, and, like everyone else,
He wanted a good one, you know;
Where his clothes would not soil and his hands would keep clean,
And the salary mustn't be low.
He asked for a pen, but they gave him a spade,
And he half turned away with a shrug,
But altered his mind, and, seizing the spade—
He—dug!

He worked with a will that is bound to succeed,
And the months and the years went along.
The way it was rough and the labor was hard,
But his heart he kept filled with a song.
Some jeered him and sneered at the task, but he plugged
Just as hard as he ever could plug;
Their words never seemed to disturb him a bit—
As he dug.

The day came at last when they called for the spade,
And gave him a pen in its place.
The joy of achievement was sweet to his taste,
And victory shone in his face.
We can't always get what we hope for at first—
Success cuts many queer jigs—
But one thing is sure—a man will succeed—
If he digs.

Flour Mill for Harbor Grace

Some of the citizens of Harbour Grace are making an effort to secure the proposed Flour Mill for that town. The Standard has been dealing editorially with the matter and letters have been published in the St. John's press pointing out the advantages Harbor Grace has to offer for an industry of this kind.

Several times during recent years the old and historic town has had some promising industries established within its borders only to find them short-lived. Several times it was thought the commercial status of the place would be raised to its former proud position, but something unforeseen would happen, and the promised industrial or commercial venture would disappear, leaving the citizens disappointed and discouraged.

Now another industry appears on the industrial horizon, and we are glad to see that local interest is being manifested in the matter. The Guardian is a great believer in that citizenship which is active and engaged in stimulating trade and industry. We have no use for that citizenship which is indolent, fatalistic and visionless. One of the chief causes of our backwardness is a lack of intelligent and active citizenship.

The original location for the Flour Mill was intended to be Shoal Harbor in Trinity Bay. Port Union was also mentioned, but after the Board of Trade held a meeting in St. John's it was urged by some of the speakers, and later by the press, that Saint John's was the ideal location, because—because it was St. John's. Because it was said the laborer would be without employment, and as a large number went to St. John's from the outports to reside, and in doing so sold their property, it would be inconvenient for them if labor was diverted elsewhere. The whole tendency in this country runs in the direction of building up St. John's alone, not alone in the matter of trade and commerce but other things as well. Hence the comparatively little development in the outports. The motto of this country should be "Let the whole front advance." Let every part of the county be developed.

And so we would join with the citizens of our sister town in their efforts to have the proposed Flour Mill established in Harbor Grace. The location is a splendid and central one for such an industry. The site of the shipbuilding company could no doubt be secured at a reasonable figure. The site is all ready for building upon. Piers and buildings are already erected. Water, sewerage, electric power and light is obtainable at cheap rates.

We presume all these advantages have been laid before Mr. Palmer and his associates. Enthusiastic endeavor combined with unity of purpose are some of the essential things required in the matter of persuading an industry to locate in a given place. Harbor Grace has several industries already located within its borders, viz., Archibald Bros. Boot and Shoe Factory; the Hr. Grace Boot and Shoe Factory; the Marine Railway Docks and an Overall Factory. The business people and the community in general must find great good from these industries. In the efforts which its citizens are now wputting forth toward securing the proposed Flour Mill we wish Harbor Grace success.

Miss Maud Butt, of Hr. Grace, who has been here visiting Mrs. Robert Dawe, returned home on Monday last.

A REVIEW

Did you ever take a good square serious look at yourself? If you have done this you will have discovered a lot of things about yourself that other people have noticed. "Seeing ourselves as others see us" is a pretty difficult thing to accomplish, and it is quite possible we may never be able to do this fully. But it will pay us well if every now and again we may review our individual lives. We want to be careful though, not to allow other people's opinions of us to be the guide of our actions. They may not really see us as we are. Their view is a superficial one. We should develop our own individuality along lines that will tend to develop true manhood and character.

As we have said before in these columns, the individual should never sacrifice Principle for Expediency. One of the biggest evils existing in the world today, an evil that has a strong tendency toward decay in the development of true manhood and character, is the evil of self-protection at the sacrifice of principle.

The weak and helpless need help and protection. We see our duty to such but we are not prepared to make the necessary sacrifice. A stand is necessary on a certain question, but we stop and consider what it will cost us in customers, in clients, in good-will, in patronage, in votes—and if we realize the balance is going to be against us we hesitate to do the thing we know we should do or take the stand we know we should take.

We are ready to admit that this country affords poor opportunity for men to exercise their gifts. Rather does the reward go in many cases to men who are prepared to do anything and everything—if it pays. For this the people are largely to blame, either deliberately or ignorantly. We fear that the latter can be said to be the cause. If any improvement comes it will be because we have discovered ourselves, and added to our virtues we may possess—knowledge.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH

Word of a burning tragedy was received recently from Mr. A. E. Batsone, sub-collector of Little Bay Islands. The victim is the five-year-old daughter of James Chapman. It appears that the little girl was burned to death in the fire which burned the house and all its contents on Oct. 10th.

ITEMS OF NEWS.

Mr. W. J. Blenheim, Traffic Manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co., arrived here on Friday.

Rev. H. C. Turtle arrived home from Little Bay Islands on Sunday last.

Mr. A. Fradsham and Miss Ella Fradsham left by Friday morning's train for St. John's.

Messrs. Jos. and Willis Snow returned home from Boston by Monday night's express.

Mr. Ed. Dawe arrived here from Western Arm, White Bay, via Avondale and motor car on Sunday last.

We wish to thank the publishers for an advance number of "The Newfoundland Quarterly." This number is certainly a credit with many special features including a picture of the C. L. B. camp grounds at Topsail.

The schr. Maxwell Roy, Capt. George Richards, master, arrived from Holton, Labrador, this (Friday) afternoon.

The publicity we have been giving to the fact that the men of this District have not been getting their share of labor in connection with the Hummer operations, has produced some effect. A number of men left this week for the scene of operations, and we hope to see many more go soon. We also hope they will find suitable and profitable employment.

Prof. Samuel Mercer, a native of Bay Roberts, has just recently taken up his duties as Professor of Oriental Languages in Trinity University, Toronto. Bay Roberts and other parts of this District have sent out during the last few years men and women who have become leaders in education, in medicine, in law, in journalism, in public life, in literature in preaching, in commerce and in industrial activities. Shall the youth who now gather from day to day in the same schools which produced such men and women not measure up to the standards of those who have gone just a little ahead of them? We believe they will.

We do therefore, declare to all Our loving subjects in Our said Colony, that it is Our will and pleasure to direct and appoint that Our Supreme Court on Circuit for the Northern District of Our said Colony shall be opened and holden—

At Brigus, on Tuesday, the twentieth, and Wednesday, the twenty-first, days of November next.

At Harbour Grace, on Thursday, the twenty-second, Friday, the twenty-third, Saturday, the twenty-fourth, and Monday, the twenty-sixth, days of November next.

At Carbonear, on Tuesday, the twenty-seventh, and Wednesday, the twenty-eighth, days of November next.

And the said Court shall be kept open for the periods hereinbefore prescribed, at each of the respective places as aforesaid, provided the presiding Judge may extend the term at any of the said places for a period not exceeding two days, and until the determination of the trial of any case then proceeding.

And We do, by these presents, further order and direct that, in the event of the Judge who may preside in the said Court in the Northern District of Our said Colony, being prevented by unforeseen circumstances, from opening Our said Court on any of the days hereinbefore appointed, or if the said Judge should arrive at any of the places hereinbefore named for holding Our said Court before the time stated for the opening thereof, and should deem it proper to open the same without delay, the said Judge may, and he is hereby authorized, to open and hold Our said Court on any other day or days than those hereinbefore specified, and to keep the same open for the respective periods hereinbefore stated, as aforesaid, if he should find it necessary for the despatch of business to do so.

GREAT DISCOVERY.

Dr. F. G. Banting has made a discovery which will be even of greater importance than his diabetes cure. Dr. Banting is a real genius, and now has something better than insulin to offer the world. It is a marvellous discovery and an announcement will be made very soon.

PASSENGER RATES REDUCED

Now that the tourist traffic is over for the season, the Red Cross Line have gone back to winter rates on both steamers and a minimum of $65.00 is charged for New York and $35.00 for Halifax, first class. The steamers were very popular during the season and many availed of the opportunity to make the round trip.

Nurse Myra Taylor, Supt. of the General Hospital, St. John's, is here visiting her sister, Mrs. George Bursell.

The schooners Cavalier, 76 tons, owned by E. M. Hollett, Great Burin which left that port on Sunday, Sept. 30th, for Sydney, with nine men, and Lucy Dibbin of Port au Bras, which left St. John's on Sunday morning for Burin, with four men and one boy, has been the cause of great anxiety when, following the storms on these dates, no news was heard from them. We are glad to report that word has been received to say that both vessels have reached their destination in safety.

NEW CUSTOMS CIRCULAR

LLOYD GEORGE'S MESSAGE

In a message of Empire delivered Oct. 10th by David Lloyd George, during his visit to Toronto, he made a plea for unity within the Empire and among all its parts that Great Britain might be strong to face critical times. Conditions in Europe were such that he feared unless some thing intervened there might be another catastrophe. "I want, said he, "to see the British Empire strong and mighty, so that when the cry of war goes up, the British Empire will say halt and then the cry of war will stop!"
