The Dead Orator.

The Telegraph has received from the Canadian Club of New York a handsome booklet containing photographs of the men who spoke at the annual banquet and full reports of their speeches. The list includes Hon. Frank Oliver, George F. Foster, Sir James Grant, W. O. Seely M. P. and Hon. Francis W. Cushman. M. Cushman who was a conspicuous figure at the banquet died a short time afterwards, and the same booklet contains his eloquent speech on the Panama Canal and this reference to his death.

It is with feelings of deep regret we announce the death of the Hon. Francis W. Cushman who took such a conspicuous part in the banquet. The sad tidings of his death came to us as we go to press. Those who had the pleasure of being present at our annual dinner will recall the tender touches of wit and humor, the broad and keen insight, the commanding eloquence of this original man. The laughter and applause during his speech and at its finish, the great audience rising to their feet and cheering, are scenes that shall long be remembered.

He had the soul and sympathies of a great and good man.

Turning to the report of Mr. Cushman's speech one finds it embodied in American humor. Here is one of the lighter (?) passages.

I see sitting upon my left hand here an honored member of the Canadian Parliament, occupying in that great country a somewhat similar position to the one I occupy in my own country. I do not know how it is with my countrymen in general—some men have strange ambitions. I never had the political ambition that made me the desire to be a governor; but from my earliest boyhood I had a consuming desire to be a member of the great American House of Representatives. Down the vista of all my dreams I saw the great white dome of the Capitol of the only true republic on earth. (Applause) And I followed that vision from youth to manhood, through sick and sorrow and misfortune with an ambition that was as honorable as it seemed hopeless. And in the years of my young manhood, after pursuing it like a constable after an absconding debtor I overtook it. (Laughter and Applause) When I reached the Capitol of my country I guess my lines of elevation and specifications were not such as to mark me down to those who gained upon me as a congressman, but I felt all right. (Applause and laughter.) My hair was a trifle long and my coat not of the latest cut, but as I reached the Capitol of my country and started down that long corridor towards the door of the House of Representatives, looking in front of me I felt, sir, that God's elect were about to come into their own. (Laughter.) To be entirely frank with you I could feel the earth tremble, conscious of the importance of my tread. (Laughter.)

But, unfortunately, when I reached the Capitol, they had a couple of quarrels there to keep out the profane. One of these fellows grabbed hold of me and said, "Stand back, there! Stand back!" Keep this way clear. You can't go in there, nobody but members of congress are allowed in there." I said, "If you please, sir, I am a member." He said, "You are a what?" (Laughter.) "Why?" I said, "I am a member of congress; my name is Mr. Cushman from the state of Washington." He took out a long, printed list, ran down the list, and said, "Is your name Francis W. Cushman?" I said, "That is me." (Laughter.) The fellow bowed clear below his garters, and he said, "Pass right in, Mr. Cushman." As I went through the swinging doors he turned to the other guard and said, "Good heavens, Bill! Did you see that?" (Laughter.) And then he said, "I will never have the nerve to stop anything else that shows up!" (Laughter.)

High Wages for Harvest Hands.

LUCKYHOOD THAT 35,000 WILL BE EMPLOYED IN WEST AT $2.00 A DAY.

Winnipeg, Man., July 30.—"I can place 5,000 men at the present time ranging from $40 to $45 per month and board," said Joseph Burns, Provincial Superintendent of Immigration and Employment. "The demand is continually increasing and inside of one month I am afraid the number will reach as high as 15,000 for the province alone. I am getting reports from the farmers daily and in every case they are asking for more men than they require. I estimate that from 32,000 to 35,000 will be required for the three provinces. I imagine that the wages will be very high during the harvest, not less than $2 per day, and that is more than the farmers can afford in many cases, to say the least. I had one man who was desperate for help. He said he could not get in his hay supply."

Railroads are Ready for Crop.

Winnipeg, August 2.—"With the harvest less than three weeks away it is interesting to know just how the railroads are prepared as a whole to handle crop and to avoid any blockade, such as has been disastrous in some recent years. Three big roads will have in commission not less than 35,000 freight cars, 9,000 of which belong to the C. N. R., the G. T. P., S. O., and the C. P. R., and subsidiary lines about 2,000. The latter road also has 350 locomotives ready for action, so that it is an excellent position to handle the enormous traffic. There are 1,490 elevators in western Canada, including terminal and interior, and these have a total capacity of about 65,000,000 bushels. On the C. P. R. there is 1,001 elevators, the C. N. R. 398, the G. T. P. 47, the Alberta Railway & Irrigation Company 11, the Brandon, Saskatchewan and H. B. Railway 15, and the Midland Railway 8. During the present season it is estimated that 220 elevators were constructed in the west, which would bring the total up to 1,700, all told. On the G. T. P. alone there have been fifty-five new elevators erected."

The Youngest Cabinet.

In its present strenuous contest with powerful landed interests, the Asquith Ministry is more than fortunate in having youth on its side. It is the youngest Ministry which has ever conducted the affairs of State. The age of the members of the Cabinet are, in order of juniority:—Mr. Churchill, 35; Mr. Runciman, 39; Mr. Samuel, 39; Mr. Harcourt, 46; Mr. McKenna, 46; Mr. Lloyd George, 46; Sir Edward Grey, 47; Lord Pentland, 49; Lord Crewe, 51; Mr. Burns, 51; Mr. Haldane, 53; Mr. Gladstone, 55; Mr. Buxton, 56; Mr. Asquith, 57; Mr. Birrell, 59; Lord Carrington, 66; Lord Loreburn, 66; Lord Moreley, 71; and Lord Wolverhampton, 79. The average age of the members of the Cabinet is just under 57, while eight out of the nineteen are under 50. It has the happy circumstance of being the youngest and youngest men for war."

An Appropriate Monument.

It is not generally known that Earl Grey was the means of having Watts' magnificent statue, "Physical Energy," sent to South Africa. The late Cecil Rhodes was still engaged upon it, and was greatly struck with its beauty. After Rhodes died, Earl Grey approached the artist and asked him if a cast could be made of "Physical Energy" and sent up in South Africa as a memorial to the famous empire maker. "But," exclaimed the artist, "it is an unfinished work." "So is poor Rhodes," replied Earl Grey.

L. C. R. BOARD TO ISSUE BOOKLET.

Special Advantages of Maritime Provinces to be Carried Out.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The board of management of the Intercolonial Railway, following up the announcement made some time ago that an effort would be made through its publicity department to actively stimulate the industrial development of the Maritime Provinces, will shortly issue a comprehensive booklet giving an authoritative and detailed account of conditions effecting the establishment of industrial enterprises in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The special advantages which various points along the line of the railway can offer to attract industrial investment are carefully gone into and most valuable compensation of information is given with regard to transportation facilities, cost of labor, raw material, etc., in each locality. The publication, which has been in course of preparation for some weeks, will be widely distributed in Great Britain and elsewhere abroad, wherever it is likely to attract the attention of capitalists and manufacturers.

Good Sport in Utopia Region

Brown as a berry, healthy in mind and body as the result of living close to nature's heart at Lake Utopia for over a month and confident in the opinion that he has a base ball team that can take the measure of the Marathons, Dr. P. M. Seixas, of New York, arrived in the city Saturday night and spent yesterday here. He will leave this morning to return to Lake Utopia, where he is the main spring and most of the works of the summer boys' camp in which thirty-nine American boys are studying nature at first hand and accumulating a stock of health and vitality to last them through the winter months.

Answering the call of the wild as typified by summer life in the open, near a good fishing resort as an entrancing wooded district is not a new game with Dr. Seixas. He has been connected with the Rainbow Camp in the Adirondacks for the past twelve years, but this is the first season he has taken his charges to smell the balsam of the Canadian pine.

James B. Brine, of the big sporting goods firm of A. G. Spalding & Co., owns the Lake Utopia Camp. Dr. Seixas is, as he modestly says, "just with him," but in spite of his modesty he is, this year, the man on the spot as Mr. Brine's business detains him in Boston. Apparently Mr. Brine is something of a man of affairs for he has been selected by Mayor McLellan, of New York, as one of the citizen's committee for the Robert Fulton celebration on the Hudson.

Town Council

The regular meeting of the town council was held Monday evening, the only absentee being Ald. Bogue. Several bills were presented and ordered paid. The Marshal and Treasurer's salaries were recommended for payment. Aldermen Gearson and McKenzie were appointed revisors. That fruitful subject of discussion, the assessment, occupied the attention of the council a few minutes when the increase of taxes, in the case of widows, was severely denounced as being unfair and unequal for, in nearly every case. The committee appointed to meet the manager of the edge tool company made a verbal report, and stated that the matter was still under consideration. Another proposition would be made the company to establish their industry here, which if accepted would be submitted to the people for ratification. Another meeting of the council will be held when a report on this matter will probably be made and the council take such action as is necessary.

campers is a walk from Lake Utopia to St. John and Dr. Seixas expects to get near the city in one day's tramp. The party will camp for the night, come in to town the next day, hold a dinner at the Dufferin Hotel and walk back.

HAVE CRACK BASEBALL TEAM, HE SAYS

Speaking of base ball Dr. Seixas says his boys cleaned up the St. George team a few days ago and will play the Campobello on Thursday. Most of the boys have played ball in American schools and colleges and can put up a good game. He would like to try conclusions with the Marathons, so here is a chance for Manager Tilly's men.

THE FISHING AT LAKE UTOPIA IS DECLARED TO BE EXCELLENT.

Fifteen of the boys recently made a canoe trip from the camp under the leadership of Paul Brine, son of the owner. They visited Mill Lake, Crazy Lake and Sparks Lake and the result of a half day's fishing expedition taken by two of the number was forty-two trout, none of them less than half pound in weight.

So far Kirk Beistline, whose father is president of the Toledo Railway, holds the record for the most fish, while Geo. Gregory Smith, of New York, is "high line" for the bravest brook trout.

DR. SEIXAS CAME TO THE CITY WITH TWO OF HIS CHARGES, GEORGE AND CHARLES FORGES, OF THE NEW YORK MILITARY ACADEMY.

They were called home to New York to join their parents on a European trip, but even the trip in store for them did not console them for being obliged to leave Lake Utopia.

THIS WEEK WILL BE BUSY.

This week will be a busy one. On Tuesday the boys go to Blacks Harbor for sea fishing and on Thursday to Campobello to play ball. In addition they have cross country runs and water sports scheduled, to say nothing of the usual camp routine. It was intended to have pony polo on the list of sports this year but inability to secure grounds and horses prevented it. Next season grounds will be available near the camp and Mr. Brine will bring a dozen polo ponies from New York for the boys.

Generally, Dr. Seixas says the trip has been of vast benefit as well as a great pleasure to the boys. The free outdoor life has been of great value and when they return to their homes or colleges they will have a splendid physical equipment for a winter's hard study. When the boys arrived in camp twelve of them could not swim. Now there is only one who is not a proficient swimmer and his education along this line will be completed before the camp disbands. —Telegraph.

IT WAS REALLY DYSPEPSIA

Though They Thought She Had Heart and Lung Disease.

The case of Mrs. James Russell, of Armstrong, Brook, N.B., is typical of many really suffering from stomach trouble, who think the heart or some other organ is diseased.

She writes:—"Five years ago I suffered with pain in my heart which would leave me so weak I could scarcely walk; at night I would have to sit up in bed to keep from snoring. I was treated by doctors for heart disease. Then the pain moved to the shoulder and my left arm would be numb at times. Then the doctors treated me for lung disease, but the pain kept getting worse. At last a friend advised me to write Father Morrissy. I did, and the answer I got was I was suffering from dyspepsia. I got medicine, which consisted of a box of tablets. The tablets I took twice, when I was completely cured and have never been troubled since—two years now."

Curing the stomach puts the whole system right, and there is no quicker way to cure indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn and the other forms of stomach trouble than by taking Father Morrissy's "No. 11" Tablets, 50c. at your dealer's, or from Father Morrissy Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B.

THE MIRAGE OF THE PLAINS

The next day, when she was packing her books, her hair disheveled, her fingers dusty, the hallboy brought a card. There was some self-distrust in her frown; but she told the boy to bring up the caller, and went on packing.

Henry Dunay sat down uninvited.

"Are you moving?" he asked.

"Yes," she answered, with a sort of uncertain challenge in her voice; "yes I'm moving."

"I thought you liked these rooms."

He had an insistent way of making an indifferent remark. At the moment his eye swept the view from the window. She followed his glance with hers but made no explanation.

"If you will glance over the contract and sign it," he said, looking at her. "The places and dates are here. You are to open in the North this season."

The pallor that came to her cheek was noticeable, and she put her hands on the arms of her chair for a moment then leaned forward, a look of exultation shining in her black eyes.

"Henry," she said, "I am not going to sign any contract this year."

He was used to hesitation. "Well why not?"

"I am not going to sign any more in—public," she said, slowly.

He started back, aghast for a moment. Then a humorous look stole into his keen black eyes.

"Who is he?" he asked.

She parried because he was cold and not frantic. "It is all so artificial this life—striving for new phases of appreciation, for fresh honors. I want the real life."

"Ah!" there was contempt, a volume of it in her tone, "realities attract you?"

"Yes," she said sharply, because of his sarcasm; "I leave tomorrow for a real world, a place where love is, and home and freedom."

"For you," he answered, "that can be only a mirage. Your realities lie in your voice, in your power, in your surroundings. Keep the other for a vision, my lady."

She did not seem to hear him, and spoke quickly. "You see, I must surrender all that is mine to go into the other world. He must live on the plains, going where his work takes him. I cannot even take these books and pictures. But I am glad to go—I cannot wait to start! Today I am putting these things of the old world into their coffins." She pointed to the open boxes and laughed.

His face narrowed in its intensity. You are wild—a mystic with a dream!

"I am a primeval woman," she said. "I will not stay here longer! I love him!"

"Your logic is perfect, but I know that you will come back to your world. These things are a part of you," he looked about the room: "the noises in the street, the applause at night, the smell of wet pavements—" he rose and offered her his hand. "I don't envy him. If you love him, let him come into your world; enjoy your primeval visions where you can awake from them." His eyes lost their look of amusement, and he measured his prophecy against her faith. "You will not stay away many months. And I am always your friend, though I may have to fill your engagement for this year with some one else.

When he had gone she went back to the books and packed them as though they were hot things that scorched her fingers.

By sea, and racing across the Eastern States, watching the prairies roll away from the window, she recalled the prophecy. She drew a long breath of relief that she was free from the world of the prophet and out in the world of real things. She exulted in her freedom. Had she not surrendered all her things, all her friends and associates, her successes, with joyous content in her strength? Was she not stronger than most women, and was she not approaching love with triumph of soul?

She was vibrant as she sat there and remembered how the struggle had first begun; on board ship, when he had touched her hand as it lay on the rail, when they had looked into the darkness of the night over the darkness of the sea. She had swayed toward him and kissed him, and then caught snatches of his incoherent love words. She was a singer that had won, a woman whose name was before the people of two continents. He knew that, and had asked nothing of her beyond the moment. It would not be right to ask her love, he had said.

And the letters he had written from his field of duty asked nothing of her, though they were full of his loneliness. He wrote of the plains, of the silence out there, of his willingness to live alone if she would only let him hear from her now and then. In words he had never asked her to come to him; but she was sure of his desire.

Mountains and valleys and prairies she had seen before; the plains she had never seen. She waited for him impatiently, and in the morning, when she saw them luminous in the dawn, full of mystery, stretching away as far as a sea stretches, she lay quiet in her berth and watched the colors spread toward her from the horizon. All day she watched the colors—they made a song for her: they were full of motion. She saw herself riding horseback through the heliotrope haze toward the distant, dim lined mountains.

At sunset her breath came faster, she sang to herself in the rhythm of the wheels that rushed on to the destination. She pictured a morning ride to the camp, and the surprise of the man who had been so lonely. She planned that they should be married at sunset.

The beauty of the hotel, built like an old Spanish mission, surprised her. The Spanish colors of the sky hung beyond the other end of the piazza like a banner. Before she had left the train she had noticed these things. And when she had come down to the dining room, and the sky had become a purple curtain, she hastened her dinner so that she might sit out of doors and make for herself a new vision of the tent on the plains.

Just as the waiter put a salad before her she heard a voice outside the window which stopped her heart. It was his voice! It was the voice that had called her into a new life, the voice that had awakened the primeval woman in her and had seemed more to her than the music of applause or the sound of an orchestra. There was the same power in it that she had felt before.

To the surprise of the waiter, she started to rise from the table. But the words reached her—words of a question; and the answer came in a woman's low love laugh, a laugh with truth in it, of surprising contentment and belief. She might have doubted the question; the laugh with the girlish note in it—that she could not doubt. And all the long time when she was trying to eat her salad she had to hear his voice from behind the gently moving curtains.

When the waiter came with her coffee she looked into his eyes, a queer dumb look it was, that belied the richness of her voice. "When does the first train for the East leave?" she asked. "And where can I send a telegram?" Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Mother

"All that I am or hope to be," said Lincoln, after he had become President, "I owe to my angel mother."

"My mother was the making of me," said Thomas Edison, recently. "She was so true, so sure of me; and I felt that I had someone to live for; someone I must not disappoint."

"All that I have ever accomplished in life," declared Dwight L. Moody, the great evangelist, "I owe to my mother."

"To the man who has had a mother, all women are sacred for her sake," said Jean Paul Richter.

The testimonies of great men in acknowledgment of the boundless debt they owe to their mothers would make a record stretching from the dawn of history to today. Few men, indeed, become great who do not owe their greatness to a mother's love and inspiration.

How often we hear people in every walk of life say, "I never could have done this thing but for my mother. She believed in me, encouraged me, when others saw nothing in me."

"A kiss from my mother made me a painter," said Benjamin West.

A distinguished man of today says: "I would never have reached my present position had I not known that my mother expected me to reach it. From a child she made me feel that this was the position she expected me to fill, and her faith spurred me on and gave me the power to attain it."

It is a strange fact that our mothers, the moulders of the world, should get so little credit, and should be so seldom mentioned among the world's achievers. The world sees only the successful son; the mother is but a round in the ladder upon which he has climbed. Her name is never seen in the papers; only her son is lauded and held up to our admiration. Yet it was that sweet, pathetic figure in the background that made his success possible.

Many a man is enjoying a fame which is really due to a self-effacing, sacrificing mother. People hurray for the governor or mayor, or congressman, but the real secret of his success is often tucked away in that little unknown, unappreciated, unheralded mother. His education and his chance to rise may have been due to her sacrifices.

The very atmosphere that radiates from and surrounds the mother is the inspiration and constitutes the holy of holies of family life.

"In my mother's presence," said a prominent man, "I become for the time transformed into another person."

How many of us have felt the truth of his statement! How ashamed we feel when we meet her eyes, that we have ever harbored an unwholesome thought, or dishonorable suggestion! It seems impossible to do wrong while under that magic influence. What revengeful plans, what thoughts of hatred and jealousy, have been scattered to the four winds while in the mother's presence! Her children go out from communion with her resolved to be better men, nobler, women, truer citizens.

The greatest heroine in the world is the mother. No one else makes such sacrifices, or endures anything like the sufferings that she unconsciously endures for her children.—Orison Sweet Marden, in Success.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dread disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BLACK'S HARBOR, N. B.

Private Trains With Thirty Servants.

Mr. E. H. Harriman, the railway king known as "Harriman the Wrecker," in his own country, has gone to Europe for medical treatment. He was born in 1848, the son of a clergyman, and his youth was spent in comparative poverty. Now, when he travels in the United States, he uses a private train that surpasses in luxury those of either King Edward or the Czar, and carries a staff of thirty servants. One leading New York journal has referred to him as "perhaps the most powerful individual in the United States, not excepting the President," and power, rather than money, is what he has always striven to gain. In appearance Mr. Harriman is short, and of a nervous and fussy demeanor. Few men have been more criticized for callousness in business, but his fondness for his own family is said to almost amount to a passion. He has a strong liking for sport, and delights in reading the works of great orators and preachers. Once an eager reporter called on him, anxious to get his view on an important topic. The millionaire was seated in his library. "Young man," he said, "I suppose you want the truth? You do. Very well, listen to this," and from the book on his knee he read, for half an hour a dissertation on "Truth" by William Eliery Channing.

Bread-making in Other Lands

Bread has almost universal use, although various nations like different breadstuffs, and the style of baking depends upon the locality where it is eaten. The Scandinavians soak the unmoistened rye grains, pound them into a mash, and bake lightly in bread discs from one-tenth to one-seventh of an inch thick. There is a large hole in the centre of these cakes, and they are either suspended on strings or racked away on slender poles for future use.

Probably the most satisfactory and nutritious of all hardtack is the white ring bread of Siberia. No salt or yeast is used in making this bread, and it goes through a steaming process before the baking. While surveying the line of the trans-Siberian railroad the Russian engineers subsisted almost entirely upon this bread, and when the rings have been soaked in hot tallow and allowed to cool the "tallow bread" forms one of the finest heat producing foods that can be carried into the arctic regions. Such rings may be converted into lamps giving sufficient heat to warm a tent or boil coffee, by the simple expedient of inserting wicks into nail holes punched into the bread. These wicks will burn for about an hour, the only disadvantage being a strong odor of toasted bread.

In Italy bread-making is truly an art; some of the loaves for family use are of immense size, shaped like cast wheels, and retaining sufficient moisture to remain edible for a week or ten days. There are at least a dozen kinds of Italian hardtack which the natives consider very fine when eaten with wine or soup, but which the foreigner regards with aversion.

The "staff of life" is used for many purposes remote from the primary idea of sustenance. Worked into the form of dough, it becomes an excellent cleanser of the delicate parts of watches for which purpose no better substitute has ever been found.

The Honest Newsboy

A newsboy was passing along the street when he chanced to discover a Purse full of Greenbacks. He was at first inclined to conceal it; but, repelling the unworthy suggestion, he asked a Venerable Man if "it was his'n?" The Venerable man looked at it hurriedly, said yes patted him on the Head, gave him a quarter, and said he would yet be president. The Venerable man then hastened away, but was promptly arrested for having Counterfeited Bills in his possession; while the honest Newsboy played penny-ante with his humble Quarter, and ran it up to $2.62. Moral--Honesty is Sometimes the Best Policy.

Proverbs for the Week.

- SUNDAY.--There are none so wicked as they are represented, nor so good as they ought to be.
- MONDAY.--Treat cowardice as an enemy, and you will soon find courage your friend.
- TUESDAY.--A bad temper is an awkward thing to have, and yet it is extremely dangerous to lose it.
- WEDNESDAY.--A truthful enemy is better than a lying friend.
- THURSDAY.--A good heart is worth all the clever brains in the world.
- FRIDAY.--He who would eat the fruit must water the growing seed.
- SATURDAY.--Do not envy those who are better off than yourself, for probably they are no happier. Because a person has made a fortune it does not follow that he or she is fortunate.

NOTICE OF REAL ESTATE SALE

Pursuant to the authority of a license, to me for that purpose granted by the Probate Court for the County of Charlotte, on the seventeenth day of July A. D. 1909, there being a deficiency in the personal estate to pay the debts and costs of administration, in the estate of Janet Campbell, late of Saint George in the County of Charlotte, intestate deceased, I will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, at or near Youngs Bridge, so called in the Parish of Saint George in the County of Charlotte, at two o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday the twenty first day of August next, all the real estate of which the said Janet Campbell died seized and possessed, and which is described in the said license from the said Probate Court as follows:--An undivided half interest in that certain lot of land and premises situate in the Parish of Saint George in the County of Charlotte and bounded on the west by the river Maguadavic, on the north and east by land of Lewis Delman and on the south by lands of Fred Baldwin or John Thome and being the same premises upon which the said Janet Campbell resided at the time of her death, with all buildings and erections thereon being.

Such sale to be made for the purpose of paying the debts of the said Janet Campbell deceased.

Terms will be announced at the time of sale.

Dated this 19th day of July A. D. 1909.

P. McLAUGHLIN
Executor of the last will and testament of Janet Campbell deceased.

Household Hints.

TO CLEAN WHITE ENAMELED FURNITURE.

Remove all dirty marks with flannel dipped in methylated spirit. Then wash at once with tepid water, to which has been added a little fine oatmeal. Never use soap or soda.

SWEDISH PIE.

Grease a pie dish and sift bread-crumbs over. Then put a layer of cold roast beef cut into small dice, then a layer of tomato slices, and a sprinkling of chopped onion. Three parts fill the dish in this way, and then cover with parboiled potatoes cut in thick pieces. Pour a little highly-seasoned gravy in, and bake for an hour.

BACON FAT.

Should always be saved, as it is most useful in cooking. Put every scrap in a basin, and when you have a good quantity pour boiling water over it, and let it stand till cold. Then take off the fat, put it in a sauce pan, and simmer till all the water is evaporated. Pour into a basin. When cold it can be used for frying, basting and for plain cakes.

MARCAKONI A L'ITALIEN.

This is always popular and is really an easily made dish. Boil a quarter of a pound of macaroni in salted water for twenty minutes. Drain off and then put into a sauce pan, with one ounce of butter, one tablespoonful of cheese, two tablespoonfuls of tomato-purée (in bottles) pepper and salt. If necessary, put in also a little good stock. Stir well over the stove for a few minutes and serve.

WHEN CHOOSING EGGS.

Always select those that have a dull, opaque shell in preference to those with a shiny shell.

STRAW MATTING.

That has been laid some time is apt to get dull looking. Try washing it well with water. Add a handful of salt to three parts of a bucket of tepid water.

Unique Surgical Operation

The extraordinary operation of grafting a section of a bone of a lamb into the right leg of Doceral Townsend was performed with complete success in Chicago the other day.

Townsend, who is an elevator operator is reported to be "getting along well and with all appearances of progression toward recovery."

He was suffering from a compound fracture of the leg when taken to the hospital. The patient's leg is still in a cast.

There seems to be considerable interest among the citizens concerning the establishment of new industries in the town. The fact that the pulp company have intimated their desire to assist any industry, locating here by making a very reasonable price on power, has awakened an interest among the people, and steps have already been taken to interest one manufacturing concern in the possibilities of the town as a desirable location for the establishment of their plant. The Council have taken up the matter in a way that indicates their desire to improve the industrial situation, and it is to be hoped that all the citizens will approve of the efforts being made to improve present conditions.

POLLUTING THE RIVER

It is very gratifying to learn that instructions have been given to stop the evil of dumping all sorts of refuse in the "basin" and river. Lately the odor from the mud flats has been sickening, and often so bad that windows in the houses have to be closed. It would appear to be the height of nonsense to build fishways and have this pollution of the water continue, fish will never come while this condition exists. In addition to this, it is a serious menace to the health of the community. A rigid enforcement of the laws is absolutely necessary and it will soon be seen that natural wealth possessed in the creatures of the waters is worth caring for and maintaining. It is only carelessness on the part of those who are mainly responsible for present conditions, and it would be no expense or hardship to find other means of disposing of refuse.

THE OUTLOOK FOR PEARY

The departure of the Jeanie from St. John's, Newfoundland, carrying mail, food and coal to Commander Peary, naturally excites as to the measure of success which has attended the explorer's efforts this year. If the object of his expedition has already been accomplished, Peary will doubtless come back within the next few weeks. However as the Roosevelt, which took him to the Arctic regions last summer, could not force its way southward through the floating ice in the channel above Cape Sabine before July or August, and as he would probably need coal to continue his voyage home, he might be expected to wait for fuel at some convenient point East, on the Greenland coast, for instance--until the arrival of his relief ship. If, on the other hand, he is dissatisfied with the result of last spring's work, it is not likely that he will move the Roosevelt from the harbor in which he placed her a year ago--on the coast of Grant Land, if he was good luck--but return by sledge to Utah in order to exchange despatches with the Jeanie. In either contingency, therefore, definite news should be received from him by the middle of September, if not sooner. The despatch of a relief ship illustrates anew the thoroughness with which Peary's preparations are always made. He foresees and provides for every need. Arrangements were made for keeping in communication with home before his own departure. His caution stands out in sharp contrast with the imperfect plans of Dr. Cook, who seems to have left a great deal to luck or chance. The Brooklyn explorer secured transportation in one direction only, and if he is yet alive he may be indebted to his rival, Peary, for the means of reaching the United States once more. An effort was made recently to raise money enough to equip an expedition to search for and rescue Dr. Cook, but it seems to have failed. If he has been able to work his way back to Utah, as he proposed to do, Peary may allow him to sail on the Jeanie. Whatever Dr. Cook's fate may be, Peary's foresight and fine power of organizing a polar campaign justify the heartiest wishes for his success.--New York Tribune.

BY THE WAY

Dog Days!

We should all be eager and glad to welcome any movement that is for the welfare of the whole town.

It is useless to cry over spilt milk; far better to remember that in a few hours it would have soured anyway.

The strange conditions that prevail in many households are nowhere better illustrated than in the divorce court.

There ought to be a law providing that every boy should be taught to swim, and have the measles before he reaches the age of five years.

It is the duty of every citizen to assist in the up-building of his town, and not live in a state of apathy and carelessness as to what becomes of it.

"Do you always express your opinions to your constituents without reserve?" "No," answered Senator Sorghum. "I feel compelled to make allowance for certain prejudices. A man who expects people to believe all he says must be careful not to say all he believes."--Washington Star.

Two young Danes claim to have invented an apparatus by which persons using the telephone can see each other. If that would show who are listening on the line when others are using it it would bring about a great improvement in that respect, and subscribers would also like to look "Central" in the eye when she says line is busy.

Campbellton, N. B., Graphic--Making the wearing of long hats a crime in a German city is a precedent likely to be followed elsewhere. It is absurd to permit the requirements of fashion to endanger the sight and even the lives of people who have no means of protecting themselves.

The most remarkable gold discovery since the Klondike find is reported from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, which has received from the hinterland of the province quartz declared to carry from $20,000 to $30,000 to the ton. Where wheat lands have drawn one, these mines will doubtless attract scores. After the farmer the mining prospector, a less desirable addition.

Ament the potato-bug, the Des Moines Leader says: "Every man who has ever been a boy on a farm recalls with cruel vividness the overheated summer days through which he has been forced to plod sweatingly down interminable rows of potatoes." Not every boy. There are many among us still who were boys before the potato-bug took out naturalization papers.--Boston Transcript.

"Men as Trees Walking"

If I may not have my sight
Give me, then, a little light
Such as comes at early dawn
Or as waits when day has gone--
Just enough that men may seem
As the trees, of which I dream,
On the mountains, far away
From these street where I must stay.
So amid the multitudes
I shall walk in verdant woods;
If I may not have my sight,
Grant me, Lord, a little light,
--John Finley, in Scribners Magazine.

The Grand Trunk Pacific completed yesterday the laying of the last mile of steel between Edmonton and Winnipeg, and these two cities are now united by a third railway system. It is a matter of but a few weeks until Winnipeg will be linked up by another unbroken band of steel with Port William. Within four years of the turning of the first sod this great railway will be in operation and in active competition with the existing roads from the Great Lakes to the capital of Alberta. It will find ready and waiting for it all the business it can carry. Within three years the road will be in operation from ocean to ocean and its completion will open a new era in the rapid expansion of Canada. The sceptics who doubted the wisdom of the building of the road and the little Canadians who opposed the project outright do not care to be reminded of their 1903 and 1904 views.--Winnipeg Free Press.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Schooner Charles H. Sprague sailed Wednesday.

Miss Mary Russell has had her house painted a very attractive color.

With the repairs on the Manor road completed, the street work is over for the season.

Many uncomplimentary remarks are heard about the condition of Murphy's corner.

There will be only one harvesters excursion to the north west this year. This will leave on August 11th.

Ask the tenants what they are paying for rent in town, and their answer will convince you that it would be a good investment to build some houses.

The flies are here, and have a faculty for increasing rapidly where the conditions are favorable; which everybody should take pains to make as unfavorable as possible, by keeping no garbage around, or anything else that will encourage them.

The ice cream social in the basement of St. Marks church Wednesday evening was well patronized. The band was in attendance and everything passed off smoothly. Quite a neat sum was added to the building fund.

There was quite a bad smash-up a few days ago near the bridge, owing to a horse taking fright at some machinery that was started as the team was passing. A lady was driving at the time, and was thrown out and quite badly injured, the wagon and harness were considerably broken up.

Mr. Chester Martin of St. John, who was the first Rhodes scholar from New Brunswick has accepted the position of Professor of Modern History at the University of Manitoba. Mr. Martin will enter upon his duties at the opening of the fall term of the college in October.

John Hill and Bessie Wickerson, both of Blacks Harbor, were united in marriage Thursday 5th. Rev. Fr. I. F. Carson was the officiating clergyman.

An old time serenade was accorded the young couple in their arrival at the harbor.

Joseph Jackson received a bad injury to one of his eyes Saturday. He was cutting stone when a piece of steel, broken from a hammer, flying at great force, hit him in the eye cutting it badly.

Mr. J. J. J. was so serious that he went on the afternoon train to St. John to consult an eye specialist. Word has since been received that no permanent injury will result, although the eye is very badly hurt.

Work continues all the time on the railroad. The new tanks, that hold an immense quantity of water present a fine appearance. The building of bridges, culverts, new sidings and ballasting are improvements that are going on all over the road. Most people do not realize how much is going on, in improvements, and will not unless they go over the line.

The Camp Utopia base ball team will play the Campobello nine at Welchpool on the occasion of the picnic August 12th. This feature of the picnic should prove a good attraction, as the Utopias are made up of college players, who are familiar with all the fine points of the game, the Campobello nine have already, this season, demonstrated their ability to play the popular game, in a way that has greatly pleased their admirers. A full program of sports has been arranged, and the picnic will undoubtedly be a success in every respect.

There is some excitement in the towns of Calais and St. Stephen, owing to the strict enforcement of the immigration laws. The American officials have recently ordered the captains of American vessels, who were living in St. Stephen, to take up their residence in Calais. This move, with others about as foolish, has put the Canadians on their mettle, and they threaten to retaliate by making every employe in the St. Stephen and Milltown industries, take up their residence on the Canadian side. If this threat is carried out it means a hard blow for Calais, as most of the working population earn their living on the Canadian side. The simplest way to settle this matter, would be to put the officials responsible for this condition of affairs, back on their farms, they are not broad enough to administer the laws of any country.

The water in the river is very low.

That man you met got that well fitting suit at Frauley Bros.

The town has been full of strangers during the last two weeks.

The meetings of the fraternal societies are not well attended during the warm weather.

Farmers say that the hay is very light, and the yield will be little over half a crop.

Some correspondence from out of town places received too late for this issue will appear next week.

A good many strangers are met on the streets, visitors here or places near town.

The haymakers took advantage of the fine weather making hay while the sun shines. There is a lot more to be cut.

A new piece of pipe made by Grant & Morin, has been placed on the smoke stack at the saw mill with the idea of abating the smoke nuisance.

Miss Florence Farr, whose work in the emotional part of Agatha Renier, "Miss Petticoats," is said to possess more charm grace and magnetism than any other female star.

A vessel is expected very soon to load lumber from the immense pile now on the wharf. Shipments of pulp are now going on, and the water front presents the usual busy appearance.

Collector McDougall has sent out the tax notices, and everybody knows just how much his tax is. Those who are in the habit of paying promptly, realize a satisfied feeling, and those who haven't acquired the habit, are hustling now to get within the time limit.

During the discussion at the council Monday evening one of the Aldermen remarked that bringing an industry to town might result in a hotel being opened, for no town in the Dominion of Canada needed a hotel more than this one.

Since the price of herring dropped to four dollars a hoghead the packing houses have all opened and the sardine business is picking up. All the factories in Eastport and Lubec are in operation, and the supply of fish is pretty nearly sufficient to keep the large number of hands at work.

The committee having in charge the fishermen's picnic are working hard, and everything points to a most successful event to reward their labors. The land and water sports are receiving the attention of the committee, and a most attractive program will be offered to the thousands who will be in attendance. All roads will lead to Back Bay on the 25th.

Eggs have been high all the season, that is, considerably higher than usual at the corresponding season in past years. One of the reasons suggested for it is that more people are preserving them, as a good many have been packing them for future use. If that is a reason and enough are being packed to influence the price now, there ought to be enough of them to help keep the price down in the winter.

On Sunday after the morning service, in the Baptist church, the congregation assembled on the banks of the river at the public landing and witnessed the immersion of five candidates Rev. E. V. Buchanan officiated and the following were baptized:—Mr. Frederic Spinney, Mrs. Cassie Goodiel, Miss Susie Mahar, Mrs. Robert Wilcox and Miss Fannie Wilcox. At the evening service the right hand of fellowship was extended the new members.

A party of campers at Utopia had a very exciting experience during a violent wind and rain storm on Sunday. Their tent was blown down and torn to shreds, and all hands compelled to seek shelter under the trees. One young man selected a tree that offered especially good shelter and sprinted for it, but a blinding flash of lightning struck the tree, before his arrival, and fairly tore it in splinters. One young lady got entangled in a pile of brush and was taken out with much difficulty. While some amusing stunts were done, the party were for a time, in a dangerous predicament, and had good reason to be badly frightened.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific trouble. It was this fact that first convinced Dr. Shoop in the course of that now very well known course in the stomach nerves, along the digestive tract, and favor to Dr. Shoop's Restorative. With such lasting consequences were even to be had. For stomach ailments, bloating, biliousness, head-ache and slow completion, Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

Improve the Evenings.

With the return of the lengthened and pleasant and cool evenings comes the query to all, how shall we best improve them? There are a thousand pleasant ways of spending a fall or winter evening within the reach of those who have command of their own time; and prominent among those is indulgence in literary pursuits. How few of the young people, comparatively of the present day appreciate as they should the inestimable privileges they enjoy. Surrounded as are the young in all cities and most towns, with all the opportunities necessary for the cultivation of a literary taste, not one in a thousand appears to improve these golden chances. Occasionally it is true we meet with a young man or woman who firmly grasps the idea that "knowledge is power" but these unfortunately, are the exceptions, not the rule.

Thousands of young men who have comfortable homes—whose parents are willing to supply them with books and papers—instead of availing them of these advantages, spend their long evenings in idly lounging around corners, or in company with frivolous associates male or female. This winter after winter passes away, each one bringing them nearer to the age of manhood, but not fitting them for the proper discharge of the duties that a full manhood requires. They enter upon the busy stage of life with none of those safeguards which a cultivated intellect throws around its possessor. They start out laboring under a thousand disadvantages and confronted by innumerable obstacles, which disappear like shadows before a well-informed mind. The fact that they do not contemplate adopting a professional career, does not in any degree relieve them from the charge of being untrue to themselves, their friends and their country, while thus frittering away the most precious hours of their lives in idle indifference, and too frequently in the company of those associates whom to be with is contamination. How many of them will resolve in the fall of 1909 of the twentieth century to "turn over a new leaf" and improve the long even-ings of the fall and winter.

August time, tells on the nerves. But that spiritless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours after beginning to use the Restorative, improvement will be noticed. Of course, full health will not immediately return. The gain, however, will surely follow. And best of all, you will realize and feel your strength and ambition as it is returning. Outside influences depress first the "inside nerves" then the stomach, Heart and Kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by All Dealers.

Safe Economics

We believe there are some people who "size up" their customers as to their ability to pay and fix the price accordingly but we have never understood it to be considered a particularly hospitable proceeding. Neither is ability to pay a right or just basis of taxation. As in private transactions between man and man, the taxpayer in dealing with the community as represented by the tax collector should pay for what he gets, and the price as in the cost of private transactions should be the same to all. What does the community give to the owner of a fine set of buildings that it does not give to his neighbor who is content with a lot of rattlesnakes. The man who has sufficient ambition and industry to erect good buildings should not be asked after laying out his money in such commendable fashion, to pay part of the taxes of his indolent neighbor whose property is an eyesore to the community. ---Goderich Signal.

NOTICE OF REAL ESTATE SALE

Pursuant to the authority of a license, to me for that purpose, granted by the Probate Court for the County of Charlotte, on the Seventeenth Day of July A. D. 1909, there being a deficiency in the personal estate to pay the debts and costs of administration, in the estate of Daniel Campbell, late of Saint George in the County of Charlotte, intestate, deceased, I will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, at or near Youngs Bridge, so called, in the Parish of Saint George in the County of Charlotte, at two o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday the twenty first day of August next, in separate parcels, all the real estate of which the said Daniel Campbell died seized and possessed, and which is described as follows, in the said license from the said Probate Court:—(1) All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land lying and being in the said Parish of Saint George commencing on the north line of land owned by the late Hugh Matheson, commonly called the Daily lot, on the road leading from the late Israel Thorne to the Second Falls, thence easterly along the said Daily line to the west line of the Bay of Lady Company's Lands, thence following the said line north to the south line of land formerly owned by the late Robert Grey, thence westerly along said line and prolongation thereof to the south side of the Ash property thereof to the Magaguadavic River thence southerly along the east bank of the said River to the north line of the Taylor lot, so called near a gully on the interval, thence east along the said line to the afore-said road, thence south along the said road to the place of beginning and being a part of the land formerly in the occupation of Thomas Moreland.

(2) Also a lot described in a deed from Phoebe Kelley to Thomas Barry, registered in Charlotte County Records in book 12 pages 291 and 292 and therein described as follows:—Also a piece of land situated on the South side of the first above tract and lying between the river and the road leading to the Upper Falls, containing about two acres as, now fenced and occupied by Stephen Kelley in his life time, and which said lot is commonly known as the Kelley lot. (3) Also an undivided half interest in that certain lot of land and premises situated in the Parish of Saint George in the County of Charlotte and bounded on the west by the River Magaguadavic, on the north and east of lands of Lewis Delman and on the south by lands of Fred Baldwin or John Thorne and being the same premises upon which the said Daniel Campbell resided at the time of his death, with the buildings and erections thereon being.

Such sale to be made for the purpose of paying the debts of the said Daniel Campbell deceased.

Terms will be announced at the time of sale.

Dated this 19th Day of July A. 1909

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes
Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure
With "Nerviline"

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of socialized remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism
at all. I know many

Nerviline is kept-- it is so useful in

Beliefs About Babies

The peasantry of Greece firmly believe that the future of every child is determined by the three Fates, known by the name of the Moiri. In the popular mind this trio of Fates are supposed to be three old and wrinkled women whose habitation is a mountain cave. They come simultaneously to a house where a new baby has made its appearance.

When they are expected all furniture is set aside so that their aged and tottering feet may not be hindered, and refreshments in the shape of honey cakes, bread and wine, are placed ready for these important, though invisible guests.
Money too is placed for them as a bribe to get their favor for the baby, so that its future may be one long, sweet song-- the superstition being that all things good and bad are in the giving of the Fates.

On no account must the child's beauty
be alluded to when the Moiri are present as this will certainly make its good looks disappear--marks on a baby's skin are looked upon as sent by these harbingers
of weal or woe.

Ill luck is supposed to be the lot of the children who cut their upper teeth first.
There are one or two African tribes who so firmly believe this that they are said to kill all babies but those whose lower teeth appear first. Another race of people in the Dark Continent see all the signs of bad fortune in twins, and so they avoid it by slaying all of them.

Should a child grow up bad in China
the parents are said to have forgotten to bind its wrist--alluding thereby to a native superstition that if a red cord is tied around an infant's wrist it cannot fail to grow up quiet and obedient.

Coming back to Western civilization,
ill luck is supposed to hover around a baby if its finger nails are cut during the first six weeks of life, and there are many more omens connected with a baby's hands. Should the desire be that a babe should have riches in abundance when it is grown up, then on no account should it be forgotten that the binding of its right hand for a short period soon after birth will insure its coming in for wealth
beyond the dreams of avarice.

Good luck to the infant in the future is also supposed to be assured in other ways. The Spaniards sweep the children's faces with pine boughs for that reason, while to keep the Irish baby from harm, a lock of woman's hair is placed about it, and to achieve a similar object Roumanian mothers tie red ribbons around the ankles of their offspring.

A very old, but very pleasing custom prevails in Iceland when the first tooth makes its appearance, for then a lamb is presented to the child to be its "very own." In Holland garlic, salt, bread and steak are put in the cradle of the new arrival, while to protect their children the mothers of Wales place in the youngsters cosy beds a pair of tongs or a knife, and the latter weapon is utilized for a like purpose in some districts of England.

Champlain Celebration Re- calls the Fate of the Great Explorer, Henry Hudson.

To most Canadians Champlain seems much nearer the present than Henry Hudson. The former is a prominent figure in our history, his work in Canada has been recorded with great detail, and the extent of his explorations and the nobility of his character are known to every reader of Canadian history. On the other hand Hudson has been to most Canadians a rather shadowy personage, who years ago sailed the Arctic Ocean, and whose name is usually grouped with a dozen other navigators who tempted fate in their endeavors to find a northwest passage, and so open up a shorter route between Great Britain and the Orient.

And yet Champlain and Hudson were contemporaries, and, strange to say, the explorations they carried on just three hundred years ago brought them almost to the same spot. The waterway by which each penetrated
the wilderness bears the discoverer's name, and so it came about that there is a river named after Henry Hudson and there is a lake named after Samuel de Champlain. The two water systems linked together by a short canal, form one of the leading arteries of our international commerce, along which is carried the greater part of the Canadian lumber which finds a market in the United States. In earlier and darker times it played in war as important a part as now plays in peace. It has been associated with some of the most stirring events in our history, and while Champlain was making the first chapter of the lake's history three hundred years ago, Hudson was making the first chapter of the river to the south.

But it is not as the discoverer of the river that bears his name--the Rhine of America--that Henry Hudson is known in Canadian history.
The great inland sea of the north preserves his name, and holds the secret of his tragic end, and it is as the explorer of those regions that Henry Hudson is remembered here.

EARLY YEARS OF THE NAVIGATOR.

Of the early life of the man nothing is known, for he does not come into the light of the history until April, 1607, where he started in a small vessel with ten sailors on a voyage
in search of the northwest passage.
In his voyage of the following year he reached Nova Zembla, and in the third voyage undertaken in 1609, he first came to Davis Strait, southwest of Greenland. Then he steered southward, always on the lookout for a passage leading to the west, and which he hoped would enable him to reach China and India. He evidently missed the mouth of the St. Lawrence. Further south he came to a bay into which flowed a river from the north, and at whose mouth today stands the greatest city on the continent. He sailed up the river 150 miles, to where Albany N. Y., stands. At Albany Hudson was only about 75 miles south of the spot where, during the next summer, Champlain fought his first battle with the Iroquois. Champlain was then only at the threshold of his career on this continent; before Hudson there remained only two more years of life.

Sailing from Blackwall, London,
Hudson set out on his voyage in April 1610. His employer placed on his ship named the "Discoverie," of 70 tons burden, a man named Colburne to act as Hudson's assistant.
The latter resented this and adroitly got rid of Colburne. After the Dis-coverie had sailed, but while she was still in the river Kolburne was sent back in a boat with a letter to the employer. Hudson did not wait his return and proceeded on his voyage.
Perhaps it would have been better had Hudson kept Kolburne at his side, for as the voyage wore on he found himself in need of a trusty friend and assistant. As for Kolburne, he no doubt was thankful that the trick had been played on him when, more than a year later, he learned the tragic story of the voyage
from the wretched survivors who succeeded in reaching England.

IN MAY THEY REACHED ICELAND.

In May the Discoverie reached Iceland. A landing was made, and the crew was most hospitably entertained by the inhabitants. Here a mutinous spirit began to show itself
among the crew, but it was quelled although not extinguished, and the voyage was resumed.

Early in June Hudson sailed from Iceland, and on the 9th of the month
he was off Frobisher's Straits, and soon after he entered the Strait which bears his name. On August 3rd he entered the great sea known today as Hudson's Bay. Sailing across to the west shore he sailed southward and thoroughly explored it. In September trouble with the crew broke out again, the ringleader being the mate, Robert Trett, who was removed from his post. Cold weather was now coming on, and although his stock of provisions was getting low Hudson decided to winter in the Bay. A suitable harbor was found, and in November the Discoverie went into winter quarters there. The long months that separated them from spring were a time of great hardship and suffering for the crew; and the wonder is that they managed to survive.

PREPARATION FOR THE HOMEWARD VOYAGE.

When spring came preparations for the voyage home were being made when the mutinous spirit that had shown itself at Iceland during the preceding spring, and later after the dis-coverie had entered the bay, broke out stronger and more threatening than ever. The deposed mate Trett, was again the leader, but he was ably assisted by a man named Henry Green, a protege of Hudson's, and a most ungrateful scoundrel. Open mutiny now broke out and it was supported by a mutiny of the crew. The fate of Hudson was soon decided, and it was no less than condemnation to a most miserable death shared in by seven others. On the Discoverie was Hudson's young son, and of the crew five remained loyal to the commander. The father, the son and the five loyal sailors, and a Mr. Woodhouse, who had accompanied the expedition for scientific purposes--eight souls in all-- on a midsummer day in 1611 were cast adrift in a shallop. They were given a small quantity of provisions and set out in a little craft, thousands of miles from any civilized port. Their case was hopeless, and they were never heard of again.

Whether they perished from hunger,
or at the hands of savages, or whether the waves of the bay engulfed them the world never knew. Such was the end of one of the boldest explorers that ever sailed the northern seas.

Like the story of most mutineers the voyage home of the Discoverie was marked by other tragedies. The supply of food was small, the weather was tempestuous, and many of the men suffered from disease. Before reaching Davis Strait there was a fight with the natives,
which the false protege, Green was killed,
and later Ivelt fell ill and died before the Atlantic was crossed. And so the ringleaders of the mutiny, as well as the man whom they betrayed, never saw England again.

As the years passed other explorers
followed where Hudson had led the way
--such men as Button, Bylot, Baffin, Hawkrigge, Jones and Fox. And then came the overland explorers from Canada, Radisson and de Grossellier. Fifty nine years after the casting adrift of the Henry Hudson, King Charles II, granted to Prince Rupert and his associates a charter under which was organized the Hudson Bay Company, which, for the succeeding 200 years, ruled and practically owned the northland and the Central West of Canada, and which is still the greatest fur-trading company on this continent.

Does Not Color Hair

Ayer's Hair Vigor, as now made from our new improved formula, does not stain or color the hair even to the slightest degree. Gray hair, white hair, blonde hair is not made a shade darker. But it certainly does stop falling hair. No question about that.

Does not change the color of the hair. Persons with such troubles show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, than do so by any other means.

Indeed, we believe it will stop every case of falling hair unless there is some very unusual complication, something greatly affecting the general health. Then you should consult your physician. Also ask him about the new Ayer's Hair Vigor. Made by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

CORRESPONDENCE

Mr. Editor:—

Since the talk of the establishment of a new industry in the town has commenced, the usual criticism, from the usual critics, has come to the front. Has a remedy ever been suggested whereby a town could rid itself of these nuisances, that are eternally blocking every movement looking for the betterment of the community? I would suggest, in the absence of any other remedy, that they throw themselves into the falls, and the town will never worry over their fate. It is easy to count this body of fault finders, they are in evidence on all occasions when the public welfare is concerned, and lose no chance to advance their stale, worn-out stories to tired ears. They are no good, and never have been, and the sooner they are "no more" the better for all concerned.

Public Spirit.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Lost

On July 1st, a row boat belonging to C. H. Lee from mooring at Mt. Vernon. A reward is offered for correct information regarding it.

The footprints of Dyspepsia have been directly traced to the stomach nerves. When these "inside nerves" fail, indigestion and stomach distress must surely result. For this, druggists everywhere are supplying a prescription known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. First, these tiny inside Stomach, Heart, and Kidney nerves fail. Then gas belching, Heart palpitation, or failing Kidneys follow. Don't drug the Stomach, or stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It is the nerves, not the organs that are calling for help. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment, you will realize the gain. A test will tell. Sold by all dealers.

A Business Parable.

Once a farmer had 1800 bushels of wheat which he sold not to a single merchant but to 1800 different dealers a bus. each. A few of them paid him in cash but for the greater number said it was not convenient then—they would pay later.

A few months passed and the man's bank account ran low. "My 1800 bus. of grain should have kept me in affluence until another crop is raised, but I have parted with the grain and have instead a vast number of account small and scattered that I cannot get round and collect fast enough to pay expenses." So he posted-up a small notice and asked all all those who owed him to pay him quickly. But few came. The rest said "Mine is only a small matter and I will pay one of these days." forgetting that though each account was small when all were put together they meant a very large sum to the man. Things went on thus—The man got to feeling so badly that he fell out of bed and awoke, and running to his granary found his 1800 bushels of wheat still safe there—He had only been dreaming.

SORAL

The next day the man went to the publisher of this paper and said "Here" is the pay for your paper and when next next years subscription is due you can depend on me to pay it promptly—I stood in the position of an editor last night and know how it feel's to have one's honestly earned money scattered all over the country in small accounts—We read the business parable and hope all who take GREETINGS will do the same.
