Billiard Hall!
SHARKEY'S BUILDING,
OPP. OFFICERS' BARRACKS, QUEEN ST.,
FREDERICTON, N. B.

I. R. FOSTER, Proprietor
THIS HALL has been newly fitted up, and handomely furnished, and for room, light, ventilation and neatness, compares most favorably with any Billiard Hall in the Dominion. The Billiard and Pool Tables are pronounced by players to be superior to any now in use in this Province. They are the BRILLIANT NOVELTY, size, 9 x 3 feet.

The main object in the construction of the Billiard Novelty, and the one most noticeable, is that it embodies all the most salient or most important features that have rendered popular all the other styles of tables of the J. M. Freeman & B. Co.
Co's make. The Brilliant Novelty has all the advantages and good points, including the respective inlays claimed by the "Nonpareil" and "Exposition" Novelties, "Ames" and "American" Tables. The Brilliant Novelty is a happy combination of all those celebrated tables, and has rapidly taken the foremost place in the estimation of all players of Billiard and Pool Tables. The Novelty is finished and handomely inlaid in many different colors, made up from California Laurel, Burl Ash, Briar, Walnut, Hard Eye Maple, Mahogany,
Rose Wood, Tulip Wood and Ebony. It is supplied with the finest Vermont Slate bed, Simons Cloth, and a first-class outfit of everything necessary.

A call is respectfully solicited from lovers of the game.
Boys under sixteen not allowed in the Hall.
Temperance drinks of all kinds, Cigars, etc.

to account for the practice, and that is the increased rate of rent. In former times the item of rent was not so great as it is now, and the druggist could make a good living by confining himself to drugs proper. Now the expense for rent is a matter for serious financial consideration. It is true that the business yields a large percentage of profit, but the total sales are comparatively small. At one time, when the calling was confined to its legitimate sphere, the profit was fifty per cent. Now the average rate of profit is probably twenty-five or thirty per cent.—From "Ready for Business—A Retail Drug Store," by George J. Manson, in St. Nicholas for November.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1884.

VISIT OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL.

His Excellency the Governor General has received a cordial welcome to Fredericton, and has made a very favorable impression upon the people. While our citizens as a rule are thoroughly democratic they recognize in the Marquis of Lansdowne a gentleman deserving of their respect by reason of the position which he very worthily fills in the government of Canada. His Excellency has seen in Fredericton a people who feel a warm attachment to the mother land and the highest esteem for the Sovereign whose representative he is. At the same time it is right that he should know that this loyalty is not that of colonists or dependents, but that of citizens of the British Empire. If to-morrow the Queen's government should call upon those who enjoy its protection to rally to its support, from no quarter of the Empire would there come a more ready response than from this, the Metropolitan County of New Brunswick, the population of which is largely composed of those in whose veins runs the blood of the men who gained for the meteor flag of England its imperishable renown; yet our people regard the relations between the Mother Country and Canada as a legitimate subject of discussion, esteeming them all the more highly, perhaps, because of the knowledge that they are open to such modifications as the interests of either party to the alliance may demand. We believe that the large majority of our people earnestly desire to see the union between the various parts of the Empire continued in some form. Although it is no part of the duty of the Marquis to formulate the policy of his government, it may interest him to know that the people in this section of Canada do not feel satisfied with their experience in the Confederation, and while no disposition exists to agitate for a dissolution of the tie with the other Provinces, there is a general feeling that some steps ought to be taken whereby a greater community of interest could be established between the several sections of the Dominion and the material prosperity of the Maritime Province receive some of the impetus which the people were led to expect would result from their new relations.

THE CENSUS AGAIN.

It would be interesting if some one would tell the public something the third volume of the Canadian census of 1881 is good for. A lot of statistics in gross and detail are spread over five hundred and odd pages; but the blunders are so manifest in some particulars that one hesitates in accepting as reliable anything contained in the book. Let us give a few illustrations in addition to those given on former occasions, illustrations of a kind which show this volume of the census to be absolutely useless for purposes of comparison. In 1851 according to the census of that year there were in New Brunswick 584 saw mills. In 1881 the number had decreased to 478, a falling off of 106 in thirty years. In 1851 there were stated to be 126 tanneries in New Brunswick, and the number is alleged to have fallen off to 84 in 1881, a reduction of 42. In 1851 there were according to the census 52 carding mills, and only 35 in 1881, a falling off of 17, of grist mills in 1851 the number was stated at 261, employing 366 men, which in 1881 the number of mills had fallen off to 166 and the number of men employed to 280, a reduction of 95 mills and 86 men. We think we state what cannot be controverted when we say that one or the other of these returns cannot be correct, and when we find that the census of 1881 returns such startling information that there is only one watch maker or jeweller in St. John, and only six in the whole Province, and that there are only four painters and glaziers in New Brunswick, all of whom live in York County, we cannot accept that census as correct, and are not forced to the conclusion that in four such important industries as the manufacture of lumber, the weaving of cloth, the tanning of leather and the grinding of grain there was such an enormous falling off in thirty years. As the area of cultivated land doubled in these same years, and the population of the country increased nearly seventy per cent; it cannot be possible that the alleged decrease took place in the number of grist mills when by the same returns the quantity of wheat to be ground increased during the same from 107,000 bushels to 521,000, and the quantity of buckwheat to be ground increased from about 600,000 bushels to over 1,587,000 bushels. This glaring discrepancy is not explainable on the supposition that the mills are larger now than in 1851, because the number of men employed is stated to be much less than in 1851. Try these returns of 1881 by another test. We have of wheat raised that year 821,000 bushels worth $634,800, of buckwheat, 1,587,000 bushels worth $634,800 and barley, rye and Indian corn worth at least $1,000,000, or grain aggregating in value $1,255,000, yet of this only $560,814 worth found its way to the gristmills, according to the census.

We claim that these returns besides being erroneous are mischievous in the highest degree. At a time when people are looking for information about the country to put such statistics forward in a work, which not only bears official sanction but has been defended as correct by the Minister of Agriculture, notwithstanding the innumerable and inexcusable blunders it contains, is to do the Province a very serious injury. It would seem almost absolutely necessary for the Local Government to have correct agricultural and industrial statistics of the Province compiled.

ENGLAND IN INDIA.

One of the most difficult problems to be solved by England is that presented by India. There is no precedent for the conquest of a nation of 250,000,000 people—a people possessing a history of the greatest antiquity, a system of religion and philosophy most profound, a literature of almost infinite extent and variety, and a civilization which, if not as advanced in a material sense as that of the Caucasian race, was in its own way complete and sufficiently adapted to the peculiarities of the country to permit of a vast development of population and wealth—we say that history furnishes no precedent for the conquest of such a people by what in comparison was a mere handful of adventurers. It is as though Canada should undertake the conquest of Central Africa with its teeming millions. But if the conquest of the country was wonderful, its subsequent control and government, first by the East India Company and afterwards by the British government, has been phenomenal; and as there is nothing analogous to it in the past, so it is impossible for any one to attempt comparison or contrast to determine what the future of the Indian Empire will be, but indications are many that a new phase in its social and political status is at hand.

In attempting to form an opinion of the Indian problem it is necessary to bear in mind that there is a large class of intelligent, cultivated and refined natives in India, men who have had a training superior in some respects to that obtainable in European colleges. The affected superiority of the Englishmen has no real existence, a large proportion of the dominant race being far inferior to the men whom they govern, and the overbearing and insolent tone which the civil service officers assume towards the natives is calculated to cause serious irritation. We think, however, that one must look deeper than this for the causes underlying the acknowledged uneasiness of the people of India, nor do we think that much of it is due to Russian intrigue, although this is doubtless more or less active at all times. When the power of the East India Company ended, an era of political emancipation began in India, and though the process may be slow, it will be more or less sure. The processes of the Hindu mind are not rapid, nor is the Hindu character energetic. The climatic conditions of the country are unfavorable to the development of those traits which distinguish Caucasian races. Consequently the inhabitants of the fertile plains of the Peninsula of Hindustan have been the prey of repeated invasions from the north, and though the successive conquerors have succeeded in establishing their dominion over the domestic population, they in their turn have been vanquished by the invincible physical and mental conditions with which they had to contend. The mere passive resistance of two hundred millions of people must in the long run be more than any invading force can overcome and it is likely that the English invaders of Hindustan would have become Hinduized, as completely as the various tribes were now long past, if there had not been a constant infusion of new English blood, and if residence by Englishmen in the Presidencies had not been as a general rule, merely temporary. Not having been able to absorb the local conquerors, these men from the far north, who set all precedents at defiance by an invasion from the sea, India an agonized them. Conquerors who refuse to assimilate with the native population, are something new on the soil of Hindustan. The inevitable conflict between native and long established systems of religion, philosophy, law and society, and the imported and newer systems brought from Europe has begun, and its termination no man can foresee. It is an open question which has learned the most from the other, England or India. At first the acquisition of knowledge was all on the part of the latter. It was knowledge of a material kind, beginning with a demonstration of the superiority of British firearms and reaching at present the proof of the advantages of railways, telegraphs and last but not least the printing press. Lately England has begun to learn from India, and as scholars unlock the mysteries of Vedic literature it is as though a wind had blown away the clouds which obscured a universe of thought begettered with a thousand diamond points of truth. Where we once prided ourselves at knowing all we now stand amazed at the profundity of our ignorance. Without following this thought further we may say that the man who sees in the events, which are shaping themselves in India, only the hand of Russian diplomatists intriguing for the overthrow of British power, sees only the surface of things, and that not clearly. The impending conflict is between the passiveness of India and the aggressiveness of England, between the old philosophy of inaction and the new philosophy of effort, between the civilization founded on the precepts of Christ and that resting on the teachings of Buddha, and like many an other conflict it may end in a close alliance.

The St. John Sun referring to what the Local Government has done for immigration says:—"They have done very little, and nothing that can be deemed adequate to the opportunity and demand which have been open and plain before them. And this little it is doubtful if they would have done had it not been for the initiative steps taken by the New Brunswick land company." This reference is to the representation at the Forestry Exhibition and it is so entirely incorrect that it ought not to be allowed to pass without contradiction. The facts of the case are that Mr. Lugin, then editor of the Telegraph, having received by mail the first circular of the event to the Exhibition Commission and appreciating the importance of the event to the Province, if a good representation of our woods were sent on, called at once upon the Hon. Isaac Burpee, Vice President of the New Brunswick Land and Lumber Company, and showed him the circular. Mr. Burpee said he thought it would be an excellent thing for the Company to send an exhibit. On the same day, or within a day or two, Mr. Lugin wrote to the Attorney General, calling his attention to the circular, the substance of which had been published in the Telegraph. The Attorney General at once replied that his attention had been directed to the matter by the published circular, and that he would bring it before the Government at its next meeting and he said he believed steps would be taken to secure an adequate representation of the forest resources of the Province. Instead therefore of the Government being prompted by the Land and Lumber Company, both bodies took the matter into their consideration at the same time.

LANDSDOWNE.

The Governor General's Visit to Fredericton.

The Civic Address—What the Party Saw at Marysville.

His Excellency the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Marchioness of Lansdowne and suite left St. John shortly after two o'clock yesterday on a special train for Fredericton. The train consisted of the Directors' car from the Maine Central Railway, an ordinary first-class car and a locomotive, the latter bedecked with flags and evergreens. The train was in charge of Conductor McLellan, with William Smith as driver. Mr. Greathead of the New Brunswick Railway was on board. The run to Fredericton Junction was made in an hour and ten minutes. Here the Vice-Regal Party were met by the Members of the Local Government, who had gone down on the 2.30 train. The run to Fredericton, 22 miles, was made in twenty-eight minutes, thus giving one hundred and thirty-eight minutes as the total running time from St. John. This is one of the fastest trips.

Ever Ready for this Road. A Guard of Honor from the Military School, commanded by Major Gordon, headed by the Infantry School Band, had marched out to the station and taken their position on the street directly opposite the end of the Station. About five o'clock a number of the University students, in academic costume, marched up and took a position on the left and opposite the Guard of Honor. Owing to the uncertainty, which prevailed, as to the time the train might be looked for, the attendance of the public was not large. At 4.15 p.m. the train announced its arrival by a prolonged whistle. The crowd gathered round the royal car to get a glimpse of the Marquis and Marchioness. As their Excellencies stepped from the car they presented much the same appearance as any ordinary lady and gentleman would.

They were Plainly Dressed and neither of them can be said to be of distinguished appearance. Neither is above the medium height and both are somewhat spare. They would pass anywhere for a prosperous business man and his wife. The Marchioness looked as though she were somewhat fatigued. The party walked through the station to the York street entrance, stood upon the steps while a general salute was given by the guard. They then entered the Government House barouche and were driven rapidly to Government House, being accompanied by the members of the Government and Deputy Adjutant General Maunsell. The members of the Government did not alight from their carriages but drove at once to the city. By a singular omission there was no cheering at the station, no doubt for the reason that no one made it his business to lead off. As the carriage in which His Excellency sat, drove away a number of gentlemen in the crowd lifted their hats, and His Excellency bowed in return, but this was the only Remembrance of a Demonstration of welcome on the part of the public. When it was too late to mend the matter expression of regret at the omission were very general.

Official Dinner. At 7 o'clock the official dinner was held at Government House. The list of invitations was small and consisted only of the members of the Government the Supreme Court bench and other Dominion and Provincial officials. The guests commenced to assemble a few minutes before 7 o'clock and shortly after that hour sat down to an excellent dinner. The table was beautifully decorated with handsome flowers from the Governor's conservatory made into bouquets and displayed 3rd displayed in large vases. The whole arrangement of the flowers and plate was in excellent good taste and creditable to the caterer.

Appended is the list of those who had in relations to the official dinner given at Government House:—

To His Excellency the Most Honorable Henry Charles Keith Petty Fitzmaurice Marquis of Lansdowne and Earl of Kerry and Shelburne, &c., &c., Governor General of Canada.

My it Please Your Excellency. The presence of Your Excellency and the Marchioness of Lansdowne among us this day, is hailed with pleasure by the citizens of Fredericton, of whom the Mayor and City Council are the representatives, and have the honor of presenting to you this address. The appointment of your Excellency to the office of Governor General of this Dominion was, at the time, regarded by the older inhabitants and politicians as an earnest of the liberal disposition of Her Majesty's Government towards the subjects of the Queen in this part of Her Empire.

Although nearly half a century has passed away, there are still many among us who have a vivid and pleasant recollection of the great services rendered to the State by Your Excellency's illustrious ancestor, the late Marquis of Lansdowne, who for many years filled one of the highest offices in Her Majesty's Government, and whose name and fame must forever be inseparably linked with those of other statesmen—the Greys and the Russells—to all of whom these British North American Provinces owe a large debt of gratitude for the firm institutions which we this day so abundantly enjoy.

We are pleased to find that the mantle of the ancestor has fallen upon a worthy descendant for we are reminded that your Excellency at a very early age gave promise of a brilliant future. The highest official gift at Her Majesty's disposal in British America is an assurance that your appointment to the distinguished post of Governor General was the result of merit and not mere political preference, and that your administration of the government will fully sustain the confidence of the Sovereign and give universal satisfaction to the people.

We beg to inform Your Excellency that in another year we hope to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the foundation of this city. Here and in the vicinity one hundred years ago, a large number of Loyalists from the old colonies came and pitched their tents on the wilderness amidst great privations and sufferings, and it may be added that the same loyal devotion to the Crown which marked that period remains undiminished to this day in the descendants of that heroic band—many of whom, living among and near us, occupy high social and official positions; and, as of old will always, should occasion demand it, be found ready to go forth in defence of their Queen and country.

Every street in our little Metropolitan City bears a historic name—in remembrance of the Mother's brave pioneers of former times, Queens, British Statesmen and Provincial Governors, and during the last summer we opened and made another street which we called "Lansdowne." Royalty has honored us with visits on four several occasions and each successive Governor-General since Confederation has looked in upon us; a hearty welcome was accorded and in return the people were commended by the kind acknowledgments made and the pleasant impressions left on the minds of all on the departure of their Excellencies, and it is our earnest hope that the visit of your Excellency and the Marchioness of Lansdowne though brief, and at an unfavorable season, will prove as enjoyable to you as it is satisfactory to ourselves. In conclusion, we beg to add that it is our earnest prayer that a kind Providence will ever keep your Excellencies from all evil and harm, and that wherever your lot is cast—at home or abroad—peace and happiness may attend you throughout life.

In behalf of the City Council and citizens of Fredericton I have the honor to present to you this address.

(Signed) G. E. FENETY, Mayor.

C. W. Beckwith, City Clerk. Fredericton, Oct. 24th, 1884.

To this address His Excellency replied to the following effect:—

The Governor General's Reply. Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen of the City Council—I have the greatest pleasure in accepting this loyal address and I thank you for your assurances of devotion to the Crown and your attachment to the Union with the Mother Country, and I join with you in the hope that it may continue and prove of advantage to both parties. I can assure you that there is in the Old Country a strong desire to see the connection consolidated and made more lasting rather than broken or in any way impaired.

There are allusions in your kind address, which, as they touch me personally, I cannot pass over without notice. It is a source of profound satisfaction to me that a memory of that Old Liberal statesman, whose name I have the honor to bear, has not been forgotten. Those who watch the struggles in England in the early part of the last half century for civil and religious liberty, are familiar with his name and record; and I know that in no part of the British Empire are civil and religious liberty more honored than they are in the Province of New Brunswick.

This address could not have been presented to me under more opportune circumstances, as this is my birthday, and on this day you are to-day we came to Canada as strangers, and looking back over the past twelve months while I very much enjoyed myself upon having done very much, I am tempted to persuade myself that we have at least laid the foundation of a friendly acquaintance with the people of the Dominion. And, Sir, the reception we have met at your hands leads me to feel sure that we can count upon your support and countenance.

Speaking of one anniversary reminds me of another. In another year you tell me that you will celebrate the founding of Fredericton, and I am also told that you might, if you wished, well celebrate this year the establishment of New Brunswick as a separate province. In the hundred years which have passed since then, although there have been periods of depression in the progress of our country, it has been remarkable. While this no doubt is due in part to the national advantages of the Province, to your abundant mineral wealth, to the fisheries which abound upon your coasts, to the forest which clothes your hillsides and to your fertile soil, it is more due to the qualities of the people, inherited from those ancestors of whom you have spoken—men who have handed down to their descendants those characteristics which make good settlers, good citizens and good subjects of the Crown.

It is a source of the greatest pleasure to me to have been able to visit Fredericton before the close of my first year's residence in Canada. I desire especially to convey my thanks for the kindly reference to Lady Lansdowne. Much of the success of a Governor General depends upon his personal acquaintance with the people of the Dominion, and I am glad to say that I have been able to discharge her duties because on her mother's side she is a Russell. We will carry away pleasant recollections of our visit to Fredericton and trust that we will have such a pleasant impression behind us that you will not feel called upon to re-haricize that throughfare which you have so kindly named after us.

Presentation. At the close of this address the Mayor presented to the City Clerk, the City Treasurer, and the members of the Council. The following ladies and gentlemen were also presented:—

- Mrs. Fenety. Miss Fenety. Mrs. C. W. Beckwith. Mrs. George Bliss. Hon. Mr. Turner. Mr. T. C. Allen. Mr. H. B. Rainford. Mrs. Dr. Bailey. Mrs. C. H. Laurin. Miss Mabel Jack. Prof. Bridges. Mr. G. F. Fisher. Mr. John Richards. Dr. Coburn. Master Burton Beckwith. Master Westworth Winslow.

The Marquis called Westworth Winslow up to him after Beckwith had been presented, and greeted him very pleasantly. From the House of Assembly the Vice Regal party went to

The Cathedral. They were met at the main entrance by the Metropolitan and the Rev. Mr. Alexander and were escorted through the building in the various portions of which they took much interest, expressing their admiration of its chaste and quiet beauty. From the Cathedral they drove to the Gibson Ferry and were conveyed across the river.

The Attorney General and the Chief Commissioner of Public Works crossed in the ferry and pointed out the bridge in course of construction. (By the way this is the paper bridge). The Solicitor General, the President of the Council and Hon. Mr. Turner accompanied the party to Marysville.

On arriving at the village the party drove at once to Mr. Gibson's residence. They were met at the door by Mr. Gibson, who proceeded then to the cotton mill, which they entered at the northern door.

They were escorted through the mill, visiting all the apartments, and taking the greatest interest in everything which was being done. Mr. Lightham, who is putting in the spinning machinery, gave a full explanation of the different processes. His great experience in this work enabled him to make the subject very interesting. After looking through the mill the party went up to the church, which they spent a short time in examining. From the church they proceeded to Mr. Gibson's residence again, where the Marquis and Lady Lansdowne alighted and entering the house were received by Mrs. Gibson. They remained for a few minutes and then returned to the city where they arrived at 2 o'clock. The Marquis expressed the greatest satisfaction at what he had seen at Marysville, and the evidence of the extraordinary business talent of Mr. Gibson.

Immediately on the return to the city the Vice Regal party drove to The University where they were received by Drs. Jack and Bailey. Only a few of the students were present, the majority of them having left before the arrival of the Marquis, who had been expected at an earlier hour. After inspecting the University Building the party returned to the city and drove to Government House to lunch. They leave this city this afternoon.

The Tea Meeting in the Peniac Methodist Church on Thursday last was very largely attended. Among those present were many from Marysville, including the Church Choir, under the leadership of Mr. Sterne, who by their enjoyable concert in the evening added very greatly to the success of the entertainment. The large gathering were much pleased at the efforts made by the Peniac ladies to set before them a tempting array of good things. One feature of the evening's entertainment was speech making. Rev. Messrs. Lucas and Sellar and Mr. Rowley addressed the meeting. Mr. Gibson was present and as usual contributed to the success and pleasure of the day. The total receipts were $112.65.

Municipal Elections. The following are the returns of the Municipal elections held in York County yesterday:—

In Kingsclear, Messrs. Everett and Murray were re-elected. In all the other places Bird and Colter were returned without an election owing to an alleged irregularity in the nomination papers of Mr. Burt. A protest has been filed against Mr. Colter's property qualification.

Names marked * are old Councillors.

Trouble at the University. A difficulty has arisen at the University. On one day last week one of the students in the Junior Class, while in the mathematical lecture room, threw a slipper which struck struck Dr. Jack on the head. An investigation was held before the Board of Discipline and the students all denied having done so. They were then suspended from lectures until further orders. On Monday last the other classes sent in a representation to the faculty stating that they would not attend lectures unless the Junior Class was allowed to attend as usual. The faculty agreed to comply with this demand, and there have been no lectures this week. The matter will be dealt with at a meeting of the Senate on Tuesday next.

A Lively One. Mr. S. H. McKee's black mare after performing a faithful service during the winter was taken out to the track for a sport the other evening for the first time this season and she stepped off a half mile at a 2:30 clip and waltzed back to work again, where she will remain until some of the foreign flyers can get up speed enough and go on the same track and beat this record.

The Curling Club. The Curling Club have greatly added to the convenience and appearance of their rink by the recent improvements. The rink will hereafter be flooded by means of a service pipe laid from the main pipe on Brunswick street. The inner walls of the dressing rooms have been sealed, and a row of hooks has been placed around the wall for the hanging of wraps, and a commodious stand has been erected for the band in the gallery just over the entrance door. Outside, the end of the building fronting the street, has been clappedboard and painted, and a handsome flag staff has been added. On the front gable is inscribed, in semicircular form, the words "Fredericton Curling Club." With these improvements the rink is now equal, if not superior, to any in the Maritime Provinces, and affords excellent facilities both for curling and skating purposes.

Fire at Lake George. Jas. Kelly's house was totally destroyed by fire at Lake George yesterday morning. The fire originated under the house.

Run Over. A drunken man lay between the rails and was run over by the construction train on the Miramichi Valley Railway yesterday. His head was somewhat cut. He said he wanted to throw the train off the track.

Switch Tracked. A misplaced switch caused the down train on the N. B. Railway, to run off the track near the Gibson station, last night. No damage was done.

Had his Thumb Cut Off. Mr. James Crawford had his thumb cut off in a trimmer in Etey's mill, on Tuesday night last.

General Notes and News from all Parts of the World.

The Queen's Speech. Special to Gleaner. LONDON, Oct. 23rd.—Parliament reassembled to-day. The following is the Queen's Speech opening the session. My Lords and Gentlemen: I have brought you together to enable you to further consider the great subject of the representation of people.

I continue to maintain relations of amity with all foreign powers. My information from Sudan includes painful uncertainties, but the energy, courage and resource conspicuously displayed by General Gordon in his successful defence of Khartoum deserve my warm recognition. The advance of my troops to Dongola has for its object the rescue and security of General Gordon and of those who so faithfully cooperated with him. I am using my best endeavors in Egypt to promote the further improvement of affairs in that country. I have given my support to the Egyptian Government in the difficult financial position in which it is left to the failure of recent Confession. I regret the occurrences in its Transval and am considering with the Cape Government the means to secure the observance of the convention with the Boers.

The operations in South Africa render it necessary to ask of you further pecuniary provision. My Lords and Gentlemen,— A bill for the extension of the parliamentary franchise will be at once introduced. May the blessing of God attend your labors.

Temperance Matters at Millville. A correspondent from Millville writes that the meeting at that place on the 20th inst., in the interests of the C. T. Act, was a great success. The house was packed, many could not find even standing room. The speaker of the evening, Rev. J. E. Reud, held the closest attention of all for one hour. He explained the nature of the law in a clear forcible manner, the character of men who favor it and who put it in force in York Co., and followed up its various contents and the many obstacles it has had to contend with.

A standing vote was taken at the close of the meeting to ascertain who were in favor of sustaining the act. Every man, woman, and child rose to their feet, eighty of whom were free-holders, and pledged their support in every legitimate way. Millville is free from rum and means to keep so.

WHAT CAN SHE DO?

By E. P. Roe. (Continued.) She kept her room during the afternoon, pleading that she did not feel well. It gave her pain to be with her mother and Laura, now that she supposed to leave them so abruptly, and she wished to see nothing that would shake her resolution to go as she had arranged. She wrote to Edith as follows: "I am going, Edith, to meet Mr. Van Dam, as he told me. I cannot—I will not believe that he will prove false to me. I leave his letter, which I received to-day. Perhaps you never will forgive me at home; but whatever becomes of poor little Zell, she will not cease to love you all. I would only be a burden if I stayed. There will be one less to provide for, and I may be able to help you far more by going than staying. Don't follow me. I've made my venture, and chosen my lot."

As the long twilight was deepening, Hamball, returning from the well with a pail of water, heard the gate-latch click, and looking up, saw Zell hurrying out with hat and shawl on, and having the appearance of carrying something under her shawl. He felt a little surprise at first, but then Zell was so full of impulse, that he concluded,

"She's going to meet Miss Edie. We've all a lookin' and leamin' on Miss Edie, Lor bress her!" But Zell was going to perdition. Little later the stage brought tired Edith home, but in better spirits than before, as she had realized a somewhat fair sum for what she had sold, and had been treated politely.

"After talking of her things, she asked, 'Where is Zell?' "Lying down, I think," said Laura. "She complained of not feeling well this afternoon."

But Hamball's anxious face in the door now caught her attention, and she joined him at once. "Didn't you meet Miss Zell?" he asked in a whisper. "Meet her? no," answered Edith, excitedly.

"Dat's square. She went out with hat and shawl on a little while ago. P'raps she's come back, and gone up stairs again."

Trembling she could hardly walk steadily, Edith hurried to her room, and there saw Zell's note. Tearing it open, she only read the first line, and then rushed down to her mother's rooming.

"Zell's gone." "Gone! Where?" they said, with dismayed faces. Edith's only reply was to suddenly look at her watch, put on her hat, and dart out of the door. She saw that there was still ten minutes before the evening boat passed the Pushon landing, and remembered that it was sometimes delayed.

There was a shorter road to the dock than the one through the village, and this she took, with flying feet, and a white but determined face. It would have been a terrible thing for Van Dam to have met her then. She seemed sustained by supernatural strength, and walking and running by turns, made the mile and a half in an incredibly short space of time. As she reached the top of the hill above the landing, she saw the boat coining in to the dock. Though panting and almost spent, again she ran at the top of her speed. Half way down she heard the plank ring out upon the wharf.

"Stop!" she called. But her parched lips uttered only a faint sound, like the cry of one in a dream. A moment later, as she struggled desperately forward, there came, like the knell of hope, the command, "All aboard!"

"Oh, wait, wait!" she again tried to call, but her tongue seemed paralyzed. As she reached the commencement of the long dock, she saw the lines cast off. The great wheels gave a vigorous revolution, and the boat swept away. She was too late. She staggered forward a few steps more, and then all her remaining strength went into one agonized cry.

"Zell!" And she fell fainting on the dock. Zell heard that cry, and recognized the voice. Taking her hand from Mr. Van Dam's arm, she covered her face in sudden remorseful weeping. But it was too late.

She had left the shelter of home, and ventured out into the great pitiless world on nothing better than Van Dam's word. It was like walking a rotten plank out into the sea. Zell was lost!

CHAPTER XX. DESOLATION. Not only did Edith's bitter cry startle poor Zell, coming to her ear as a despairing recall from the battlements of heaven might have sounded to a fallen angel, but Arden Lacey was as thoroughly aroused from his painful reverie as if shaken by a giant hand. He had been down to meet the boat, with many others, and was sending off some little produce from their place. He had not noticed in the dusk the closely-veiled lady; indeed, he rarely noticed any one unless they spoke to him, and then gave but brief, surly attention. Only one had scanned Zell curiously, and that was Tom Crowl. With his quick eye for something wrong in human action, he was attracted by Zell's manner. He could not make out through her thick veil who she was, in the increasing darkness, but he saw that she was agitated, and that she looked eagerly for the coming of the boat, also landward, where the road came out on the dock, as if fearing or expecting something from that quarter. But when he saw her join Van Dam, he recognized his old bar-room acquaintance, and surmised that the lady was one of the Allen family.

Possessing these links in the chain, he was ready for the next. Edith's presence and cry supplied this, and she chuckled exultantly. "An elopement!" and ran in the direction of the sound. But Arden was already at Edith's side, having reached her almost at a bound, and was gently lifting the unconscious girl, and regarding her with a tenderness only equalled by his helplessness, and perplexity in not knowing what to do with her.

The first impulse of his great strength was to carry her directly to her home. But Edith was anything but ethereal, and long before he could have passed the mile and a half, he would have fainted under the burden, even though love nerved his arms. But while he stood in piteous irresolution, there came out from the crowd that had gathered round, a stout, middle-aged woman, who said, in a voice that not only betokened the utmost confidence in herself, but also the assurance that all the world had confidence in her:

"Here, give me the girl. What do you men-folks know about women?" "I declare it's Mrs. Groody from the hotel," ejaculated Tom Crowl, as this delightful drama (to him) went on from act to act.

"Standin' there and holdin' of her," continued Mrs. Groody, who was sometimes a little severe on both sexes, "won't bring her to, unless she fainted 'cause she wanted some one to hold her."

A general laugh greeted this implied satire, but Arden, between anger and desire to do something, was almost beside himself. He had the presence of mind to rush to the boat house and get a bucket of water, and when he arrived with it a man had also procured a lantern, which revealed to the curious onlookers that gathered around with craning necks, the pale features of Edith Allen.

"By golly, but it's one of them Allen girls," said Tom Crowl eagerly. "I see it all now. She's down to stop her sister who's just run away with one of those city scamps, that was up here a while ago. I saw her join him and take his arm on the boat, but wasn't sure who she was then."

"Might know you was round, Tom Crowl," said Mrs. Groody. "There's never nothing wrong going on but you will see it. You are worse than any old woman for gossip. Why don't you put on petticoats and go out to tea for a livin'?"

When the laugh ceased at Crowl's expense, he said: "Don't you put on airs, Mrs. Groody; you are as glad to hear the news as any one. It's a pity you turned up and spoiled Mr. Lacey's part of the play, for, if this one is anything like her sister, she, perhaps, wanted to be held as you—"

Arden paid no heed to him, for Edith, under Mrs. Groody's treatment, gave signs of returning consciousness, and she slowly opened her eyes, and turned them wonderingly around; then came a look of wild alarm, as she saw herself surrounded by strange bearded faces, that appeared both savage and grotesque in the flickering light of the lantern.

"Oh, Heaven, have mercy," she cried, faintly, "Where am I?" "Among friends, I assure you, Miss Allen," said Arden, kneeling at her side. "Mr. Lacey! and are you here?" said Edith, trying to rise. "You surely will protect me."

"Do not be afraid, Miss Allen. No one would harm you for the world; and Mrs. Groody is a good kind lady, and will see you safely home, I am sure."

Edith now became conscious that it was Mrs. Groody who was supporting her, and regaining confidence, as she recognized the presence of a woman. "Law bless you, child, you needn't be scared. You have only had a faint. I'll take care of you, as young Lacey says. Seems to me he's got wonderfully polite since last summer," she muttered to her self.

"But where am I?" asked Edith, with a bewildered air. "What has happened?" "Oh, don't worry yourself; you'll soon be home and safe."

But the memory of it all suddenly came to Edith, and even by the lantern's light, Arden saw the sudden crimson pour into her face and neck. She gave one wild deprecating look around, and then buried her face in her hands as if to hide the look of scorn she expected to see on every face.

The first arrow aimed by Zell's great wrong already quivered in her heart. "Don't you think you could walk a little now, just enough to get into the hack with me and go home?" asked the kind woman, in a soothing voice. "Yes, yes," said Edith, eagerly; "let us get away at once." And with Mrs. Groody's and Arden's assistance, she was soon seated in the hack, and was glad to note that there was no other passenger. The ride was a silent one. Edith was too exhausted from her desperate struggle to reach the boat, and her heart was too bruised and sore to permit on her part much more than monosyllables, in answer to Mrs. Groody's efforts at conversation. But as they stopped at the cottage, her new friend said, cheerily, "Don't take it so hard, my child, you ain't to blame. I'll stand by you if no one else will. It don't take me long to know a good honest girl when I see one, and I know you mean well. What's more, I've took a liking to you, and I can be a pretty fair sort of a friend if I do work for a livin'."
