DEATH OF MRS. (DR.)

SPOULE AT NEWCASTLE

Newcastle, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Sproule, wife of Dr. H. H. Sproule, died in the Miramichi Hospital this afternoon after a short illness of pneumonia. A woman of quiet tastes and most loving disposition, the news of her death has saddened the community. Her husband has the leaves to mourn the loss of a tender, loving mother, four boys, Hudson, John, Island and Dorey, and two little daughters, Dorey and Helen. Mrs. Sproule was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miller, of Newcastle. Of this family four brothers survive, Harry and Samuel of Newcastle; Everett of Spokane, Washington; and Clarence, of Sydney, N. S.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

WOMEN OPPOSE NEW

CHANCE GRANTED TO

ARBUCKLE BY HAYS

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 28.—(Feature) Arbuckle, the comedian, is making ready today for his re-entry into motion pictures after January, when members of the Los Angeles district federation of women's clubs announce that they cannot rescind their opposition to his plans.

After Will H. Hays, titular head of the motion picture industry, announced last night that Arbuckle might have another chance, the Los Angeles district adopted a resolution affirming a previous one opposing his reappearance in pictures.

Max J. C. Urquhart, president of the district, stated that although Arbuckle at his third trial in San Francisco, had been acquitted of causing the death of Virginia Rappe, a screen actress, the two small cups of very dry crumbs. Select a deep, oblong baking dish and butter it well. Grate enough sharp cheese to make a quarter-cupful. Now make a cream sauce not two thick. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a small saucepan with two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until the butter is melted, then add pepper, salt and a cupful and a quarter of rich milk or light cream, and bring to the boiling point, stir steadily. Let the mixture simmer gently for three or four minutes, then add the cheese and set aside to cool.

When this sauce is cool put in the oysters, place a layer of crumbs in the bottom of the mould, then a layer of crumbs, then a hard boiled egg put through the ricer, then the oysters, and so on until all are used. Bake this mixture, after dotting the top with butter, for about twenty minutes in a medium oven until it is browned delicately on the top.

MOVABLE ARTICLES OF FURNITURE. A certain chain of up-to-date bakery shops advertise the fact that every bit of equipment in their shops is movable, thus securing perfect cleanliness. You will find if you visit one of these bake shops that this is literally true, even the large bread ovens being heated by gas and being mounted on rollers. The mixing boards and tables are all movable. In this way it is possible to clean thoroughly beneath every bit of equipment.

There is a decided advantage in the household to have objects movable in this way. The tendency is to make things either entirely stationary, built so that no dust can get beneath them or easily moved. Thus in the really up-to-date bathroom the bath tub is built so that there is no space beneath the tub where dust and dirt can collect. Bookcases are usually built in the up-to-date house, so that, though they cannot be moved they cannot hide any dirt beneath them. The base of such a bookcase is as light and stationary as is the baseboard itself.

Heavy movable pieces of furniture are built rather high from the ground, so that they can be moved easily in selecting a buffet. It is raised on legs so that you can sweep beneath it, then it will have to be moved only once in a long time. The very little, Phone 281.

STUFFED STEAK. Select as thick a flank steak as the butcher has in stock and have a pocket cut in it for stuffing. Pour a half-cupful of milk over a cupful of dry crumbs and bring it to the scalding point. Then add the juice of an onion, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of sugar and a tablespoonful of butter, a half-teaspoonful of powdered sage, and six oysters, cut fine with a sharp knife. Remove this mixture from the fire and cool it, then stuff the steak with it.

Oil the steak over with butter and broil it as usual. Rinse a dozen green olives, then pare them from the stones, heat a pint of stock or brown gravy and stew the olives in it for about a half hour, season to taste, then thicken with a little browned flour worked to a paste with butter. When the steak is done, life it to hot dish, pour the gravy over it and garnish it with toast slices. This makes a hearty dish, and one that almost every one likes. Serve a little of the stuffing with every helping. Should oysters not be at hand, two tablespoonfuls of chopped or mashed nuts will do.

STUFFED LOAF. Chop the meat of a cold turkey fine and add to each cupful a quarter of a cupful of dry crumbs and one beaten egg. Season with pepper, salt and a cupful of brown gravy or the kind bake for twenty minutes, then un-same amount of cream sauce. Shape this mixture into a loaf and slip it into a buttered tin or glass baking dish. Brush it over with a little butter, cover and bake for twenty minutes, then uncover and bake a delicate brown or a "puff" ten minutes more. Serve this loaf with a good brown gravy or a smooth tomato sauce.

RICE AND SAUSAGE IN CUBAN SAUCE. Fry as many sausages as required in the usual way and have ready two cupfuls of freshly boiled rice. To make a sunny-sided salad, a little chopped celery a few sprays of parsley, pepper, salt, a quarter-cupful of sugar and a half-teaspoonful of curry powder. Stew for twenty minutes in water, return to the sauce-pan and thicken slightly with a little cornstarch mixed in with cold water. Heap the rice on the centre of a hot dish, lay the sausage around the edge and pour the sauce over all. Garnish the dish with hot baked potatoes.

BREADED CUTLETS. Have a slice of veal cutlet sliced one inch thick each, then with a sharp knife cut them in strips two inches wide. Dip the strips in beaten egg, roll them in fine, seasoned crumbs, then place them in a hot frying-pan with two tablespoonfuls of butter. Cover the cutlet and cook, turning once, until the cutlets are delicately on each side. Serve on a hot dish, turning over the cutlets two cupfuls of Cuban sauce made the same as for the rice and sausage dish. Garnish with rice croquettes.

OYSTER SCALLOP MODERNE. Drain and dry on a linen towel a solid quart of oysters, and have ready two small cupfuls of very dry crumbs. Select a deep, oblong baking dish and butter it well. Grate enough sharp cheese to make a quarter-cupful. Now make a cream sauce not two thick. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a small saucepan with two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until the butter is melted, then add pepper, salt and a cupful and a quarter of rich milk or light cream, and bring to the boiling point, stir steadily. that can accumulate beneath the legs is inconsiderable. Tables and chairs, beds and bureaus, should all be provided with good casters or rollers. This makes it easier to move this furniture about when cleaning. An old wobbly caster is an invitation to leave the place of furniture where it is and to sweep around it.

A BIRD SANCTUARY.

Fallodon.

In an interesting account of his wild fowl sanctuary at his home in Fallodon, Northumberland, in Pearson's Magazine, Viscount Grey says: "I would tell you of one incident in the life of a pair of ducks, the North American wood-duck which I thought of considerable interest. I had a good many of these birds at one time, unphoned and then phoned at particular times to their nesting-place. Their natural nesting-place is a hole in a tree. One of my ducks selected a hole in an old elm tree some 30 feet above the water. There she nested every year, and brought out her young. The hole in the tree was a considerable distance the time), was very interested to know how the duck managed to get

One year he noted the day before the eggs were laid. The first period of incubation, on the morning the duck was due to hatch the eggs, he found the mother duck standing away opposite the elm trunk. Presently he saw the duck come to the edge of the hole and look down into the long grass underneath, where the hole was. Then she came to the little ducks close to the edge of the hole and fell, one at a time, except the first, which she dropped all together. There were six of them together, and he told me they fell in that order.

Afterwards I had the height from the ground measured, and the depth of the hole was found to be 21 feet. It turned out that the hole was two feet deep, not 21 feet, as I had supposed. The nest to the mouth of the hole was 21 feet, and the hole was 21 feet above that. The mother duck was first hatched when the mother saw the edge of the hole, had first of all, in the first place, to get down to the edge of the two feet within the trunk, then come to the edge of the hole and look at herself down, and after having done that, to go with her mother for the first time, and long grass following her to the water.

in the nest. Newly hatched out, they are not feeding to strengthen their wings. They can only crawl. They came out of the egg with such vitality and energy that they could actually climb a two-foot perpendicular, and after falling 21 feet they could then fly. The little downy birds in the grass, is a tremendous tribute to the energy of nature.

Britain's Loneliest Job

There is a man in Britain who is the keeper of Beachy Head lighthouse. The lighthouse is built on a point made of rock, and though it is possible to walk out to it at low tide, the keeper has to be carried by boat to the people at night. Even when the lighthouse is reached by boat, the keeper has to climb a series of hooks and ladders to get to the top of the tower.

Sometimes the man in charge of Beachy Head lighthouse has to write a paper for a fortnight, and he is at sea for a week. He is the only man in the world except for the telephone to the coastguard station on top of the tower.

Occasionally a few visitors travel to from Eastbourne by motorboat, but in the winter the lighthouse-keeper does not see a living person from the beginning of his spells of duty to the end. In fact, although he is so near civilization he could not be more isolated.

A GOOD IDEA

The management of one store announces their intention of closing every night with the exception of Saturday, starting Monday, Jan. 8th. By so doing this store is setting a good example. While it is very convenient to be able to procure after supper, something should have got earlier in the day, it should be remembered that this convenience has had only at the cost of depriving certain other people of an evening at home or leisure hours for needed recreation. Moreover there is little to recommend keeping stores open at night during this period of the year as there is obviously little business transacted in the evenings now excepting Saturday. Closing shops every night except the last night of the week is a good plan for the quiet winter months.

OBITUARY

Miss Agnes Grenier.

The funeral of the late Miss Agnes Grenier who passed away in the Soldiers Memorial Hospital, Campbellton, after suffering from typhoid fever, and whose remains were brought here, took place on Friday afternoon from St. Mary's Church, where the Rev. R. J. Coleman conducted the first part of the burial service, the other part being conducted at the grave in the Presbyterian cemetery. Miss Grenier, who was only sixteen years and six months old, leaves to mourn her loss a sister, Miss Emma and a brother, Thomas. To them much sympathy is extended. Their mother died of typhoid fever in October, and their father passed away about two years ago.

Norman A. Brooks.

The death of Norman A. Brooks occurred at his home on Sugar Loaf St., Thursday, December 28th, after a lingering illness extending over a year. Deceased who was forty-eight years of age, was born in Centerville, N. S., and has resided in Restigouche County for the past eighteen years. He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted husband and father, a wife and seven children, six sons, Robie of Halifax, and Leigh, Hugh, Edward, Albert and Allan, and one daughter, Mildred at home, also an aged father, seven brothers and three sisters.

The funeral which was conducted at his late home on Sunday, Dec. 31st, at 2:30 p.m., was largely attended. Rev. W. C. Camp officiating. Interment was made in the Campbellton Rural Cemetery. The floral tributes were most beautiful.

James McCallum.

The death of James McCallum took place at his late residence, 210 Slater St., Ottawa, on Dec. 19th, after a lingering illness. The late Mr. McCallum was born in Nelson seventy-nine years ago, later moving to Chatham, where he spent the greater part of his life until moving to Ottawa two years ago. He was a pilot on the Mississippi river for upwards of forty years, where he was well known and highly esteemed. He is survived by his wife, three sons—Frank of Campbellton, Clair of Portland, Me., and Percy of Ottawa; two daughters—Mrs. T. Pilon and Mrs. H. Thompson. The funeral was held on Thursday, the services at the house being conducted by the Rev. J. W. Woodside, of Chalmers Presbyterian Church. Interment in Beechwood cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tributes and cards of sympathy received by the bereaved family.

An Impossibility.

The director—What's the matter with the leading man? He's supposed to ride madly into the scene at this juncture and gallantly rescue you from the villain.

The star (indignantly)—How can he? There isn't any person out there to help the poor dear on his horse.

If we offered a prize for the man we couldn't find; we don't believe we'd be called upon to pay it unless there was a circus in town and they wished their giant on us.

In our ample stock you will find the suit that you know is yours.

All our garments show distinctive tailoring—splendid, long-wearing materials and are priced at a profit that lets us show our hooks without a blush.

We're here to do business in a fair, man-to-man fashion and when we can't make a living this way, we'll turn the key in the lock and shut up the shop.

We put up or shut up with us.

For the month we are making a Sale of Imported Goods, tailored in our own establishment.
