Masonic Grand Lodge

Opening of the 37th Annual Communication This Afternoon.

Presentation of Addresses of Welcome by the Mayor and Corporation and by the London Brethren.

Interesting Address by Grand Master Robertson.

How the Craft Has Been Hindered and Helped.

Pertinent Suggestions for Its Future Government.

Another Magnificent Contribution to Charity by the Grand Master.

At two o'clock this afternoon the Grand Lodge of Canada, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, began its thirty-seventh annual communication in the Grand Opera House, this city, M. Wor. Bro. John Ross Robertson presiding. Between 600 and 700 brethren were present, this being the most numerously attended meeting of the supreme legislative body of the craft held in this jurisdiction since its inception. The stage of the Grand Opera House was tastefully decorated by the local reception committee, and was very pleasing to the eye. The Grand Lodge having been formed in the orthodox manner, Mayor Spencer and a delegation of the Board of Aldermen appeared and presented an address of welcome to the Grand Master and Grand Lodge, and D. D. G. M. Robson headed the Wor. Masters of the eight city lodges, who presented a similar address. The addresses are found below:

The Civic Address.

MOST WORSHIPFUL SIR.—On behalf of the corporation and citizens of the city of London, I have great pleasure as mayor in extending to you a most sincere and hearty welcome on the occasion of this Grand Lodge meeting. I can assure you, sir, that the people of this city in common with their fellow-citizens throughout the province, whether members or not of your ancient and honorable fraternity, have noted with just appreciation your generosity and philantropy, and that we deem it all the greater honor to extend our welcome to the members of this Grand Lodge, because its presiding officer is the princely provider for the tenderest and most helpless of God's creatures — sick children. During the ten years which have existed since this Grand Lodge last met here we venture to think our Forest City has made commendable progress, and that to-day we can welcome all the members of this assembly not only to one of the finest Masonic edifices but to the most beautiful of Canadian cities.

We are aware, sir, of the benevolent and great work you are doing, and trust your present session may greatly promote the interests you have at heart. In addition permit me to wish you a most enjoyable and profitable time while in our midst, and at the same time express the hope that London will soon again be honored with your presence. On behalf of the municipal council,

W. M. SPENCER, Mayor.
C. A. KINGSMILL, Clerk.

The grand master replied in appropriate terms. He cheerfully indorsed all that the mayor had said regarding the position and progress of this line of work. He was about to say that it was the most delightful place of abode on the continent, when he recollected that he had left his home in Toronto, the place of his birth and his home. He was confident that the address thoroughly appreciated the feelings of the city, so generously extended to the craft. The visit of the Grand Lodge to London was always a pleasant one, and there would be no exception to the rule.

Address From the London Brethren.

MOST WORSHIPFUL SIR.—On behalf of the 37th annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada, the Masons of London bid you a hearty and loyal welcome. As grand master you have presided with marked ability and acceptance, and we esteem it a privilege that we esteem it a privilege to welcome you as distinguished a Mason, and as a citizen of our city, after an absence of years. As a supreme body of the fraternity we deeply regret the absence of many craftsmen who have been members of the Grand Lodge above, it is to us a great pleasure, as we know it will be to the great majority of the brethren, that the order continues to increase in numbers and influence.

In greeting you, as the occupant of your second year as chief head and ruler of the craft, we find it impossible in befitting terms of your worthiness and Masonic labors on behalf of Masonry. Your zeal, your journeyings, your lavish expenditure of time and money, your practice of charity and the profound wisdom and research have gilded your fame with undying lustre and enshrine forever in the hearts of Masons the name of John [illegible] grand master of the Grand Lodge of Canada.

Cheering as has been the record of Masonry in the past, bright as is the present, we venture to think that the future has for us a still brighter sphere of usefulness and influence. It is our earnest prayer that the Great Architect will so direct our deliberations that Masonry may grow and expand, and amplify to the world the principles and teachings.

Through you, M. W. Sir, we desire to express to the brethren of the Grand Lodge our pleasure in welcoming to the distinguished body a representative brother from the Forest City. We extend to our brother the sincere greetings of the craft in London, and we trust that [illegible] session the wisdom of the [illegible] may be felt throughout the entire jurisdiction.

A. W. PORTE, P. G. S. W., chairman.
JOHN SMITH, W. M., St. John's, No. 20.
F. H. LUSCOMBE, W. M., St. George's, No. 32.
A. A. CAMPBELL, W. M., Kilwinning, No. 64.
A. G. MCWHINNEY, W. M., Tuscan, No. 95.
J. H. STEIN, W. M., Corinthian, No. 330.
JAS. LORD, W. M., King Solomon's, No. 378.
W. G. MCMILLEN, W. M., Union, No. 380.

The grand master who was most enthusiastically greeted by his brethren, shortly but pertinently replied—first on behalf of Grand Lodge, and afterwards on behalf of himself. He warmly commended the truly Masonic spirit that he had always found prevaded the London district, and spoke highly of the work of the London brethren.

The Grand Master's Address.

The grand master was warmly received on rising to deliver his second annual address. He expressed his gratification that during the two years he had held office he had had the gratification of meeting and consulting with at least two-thirds of the members of the craft within the jurisdiction. He had met with difficulties, but his regrets had been softened by the fact that the flood of welcome and appreciation which had greeted him indicates that there is a warm corner for a presiding officer whose aim is unselfishly to do his duty.

VISITS TO THE CRAFT LODGES.

The grand master on this subject says: While words uttered from this grand east may find their way to the membership, either in the printed records of the Grand Lodge or through the medium of the press, there can be but one opinion, that to keep in touch with the heart of the craft, to strengthen the mystic tie of sympathy, personal contact, the commune of voice with voice, the interchange of thought with thought, visits to the brethren in their own homes—in their lodge rooms—are essential. With this object in view, I have during the past two years visited every lodge once and many twice of the 348 on the register of this grand jurisdiction, making 131 visits in 1890-91, and 202 in 1891-92, in all 333 visits, covering about 23,000 miles of travel and ten months of actual time occupied in the work. At these meetings I gave general addresses on craft work, lectures embracing all periods of craft history from the earliest date, at the same time affording the brethren an opportunity of inquiry on matters of which they desired information in connection with either our esoteric or exoteric work. The attendance was large and representative and might be fairly taken as including two thirds of the entire membership. The thousand memories of the pleasant talks at these reunions with my fellow-craftsmen have added leaves to the book of my life, to which I shall surely, in the aftertime when age has a greater claim upon me, turn with pleasure, to refresh my mind, to recall old names and faces, encouraged by the thought that many of those who then greeted me are yet active in the work, and are still with me, marching along in the twilight of life, with the unchanging desire we all have who recognize Masonry as the idealistic reality of fraternity.

The grand master refers in appropriate terms to the fraternal visit which he paid this spring to the brethren in Winnipeg and Brandon, where he had the most cordial welcome.

STATE OF THE LODGES.

The rendering of the work, the grand master says, has improved during the year. The revision of this year has given unqualified satisfaction. As to attendance, the average, if ascertained, would be little more than 20 per cent. of the enrolled membership. It must be remembered, however, that 20 per cent. reside outside of the jurisdiction, or in parts distant from the place of meeting. Other organizations seem to have about the same experience. The grand master cautions the brethren to be careful as to admission of new members. While more confidence is exercised in the admission of members than formerly, it is still a fact that some lodges are too anxious to make gains in membership. The roll of those who have, by suspension, lost their privileges shows that it is better for the craft to "conserve and interest those we have and keep them true to the principles of the institution than receive those whose pleas of Masonry are defined by the purchasing power of the dollar, and who judge their love for a brother by his commercial rating." Men who became Masons for revenue purposes only, and have no love for the craft, should not be mourned over. The grand master contends that the jurisdiction suffers from a plethora of lodges, which gives rise to questionable competition. The surrender of the warrants in the case of Springfield, No. 259, in the third district, Craig Lodge, No. 214, in the fourth district, and Quinte Lodge, No. 241, Shannonville, in the thirteenth district, and the amalgamation of Nos. 83 and 366, Strathroy, in the second district, and Nos. 241 and 246, of Gananoque and Pittsburg, in the fourteenth district, are given as cases in point where the removal or union of weak lodges has been accomplished with positive benefit to the craft, while affording a lesson that the brethren generally can appreciate. There are hopeful signs of progress in the fact that the quality of the work and carefulness in selecting membership in three-fourths of the lodges has improved, as well as in the improvement of meeting places of the craft, as at Barrie, Collingwood, Napanee and Orillawa, where handsome temples have recently been erected.

LODGES UNDER DISPENSATION.

The grand master reported that he had granted a dispensation to a lodge in Port Elgin, a village in which the lodge charter was surrendered a few years ago. A dispensation for a new lodge in Port Perry to replace the lodge which surrendered its charter at last Grand Lodge meeting has also been granted, and a warrant for a new lodge in East Toronto has also been issued. The grand master reported that he had refused to grant dispensations for lodges at Gore Bay, Dundalk and to Ridout Lodge at Streetsville because it would not be in the interests of the craft to accede to the requests.

WEARING OF MASONIC CLOTHING.

The grand master points out that clothing worn by the craft is symbolical of the highest type of manhood, and strongly protests against the cheapening of the article by [illegible] through linking [illegible] with [illegible] enterprises which serve [illegible] masquerade. As was done at a gathering in the eastern part of the Province recently. On this point the grand master says: "It is my deliberate opinion—this, too, indorsed by the voice of the thinking men in the craft—that the use of Masonic clothing at other than authorized ceremonials, such as services over the dead, the laying of corner stones or ceremonies directly under the supervision of Grand Lodge, is detrimental to the morale of the order and repellant to all who regard the craft as a glorious companionship that shall encircle the entire of humanity." While the grand master strongly indorses social reunions, to which "those who make our homes a little heaven" may be invited, "yet there is no more reason why at a ball or concert, at a picnic or a steamboat excursion, the craft clothing should be worn than that a man should carry a thermometer around his neck to grade his earnestness in our work or as evidence of the number of degrees he has, through merit and ability, received during his Masonic career."

WHO SHOULD HAVE CRAFT BURIAL.

The grand master cautions the brethren only to grant Masonic burial to members of the craft who have lived exemplary lives. By no action of theirs should the craft sanction vice or attempt "to use the broad mantle of a Mason's charity, with its ample selvage, as a cover for the sins of a life that can best be crowned with forgetfulness."

CHEAPENING OF CEREMONIES.

An evident impression prevails with many that the laying of corner-stones is an art which the grand master should exercise at call; but Grand Master Robertson ably points out the fallacy of this belief, and protests against the Grand Lodge being summoned to act as an annex to church or other bodies, and in some cases being muict for a portion of the expense. Such a purpose, appropriate, "when taken part in by the craft, cheapens an impressive ceremony, lowers the dignity of the craft, and drags it in as the side-show to capture the little spare cash the spectators have left, before they have even time to recuperate from the exhausting results of their regular contribution."

THE CENTENNIAL YEAR OF THE CRAFT.

"One hundred years ago," continued the grand master, "the first Craft Provincial Grand Lodge met at Niagara. It was known as the provincial Grand Lodge of Upper Canada, and was warranted by the Ancient or Athol Grand Lodge of England on the 7th March, 1792, with R. W. Bro. Wm. Jarvis as Provincial grand master. Acting on the recommendation of Grand Lodge at its last annual communication, I have appointed a committee to arrange the details of the celebration, so that the occasion may be appropriately observed. This committee will report to Grand Lodge at this communication."

GENERAL MASONIC RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

The grand master warmly commends the work of this organization, formed seven years ago, and operating throughout the United States and Canada. The association has been instrumental in saving hundreds of thousands of dollars to the craft that in former years were paid out to tramps or impostors. It was found on investigation that at least $100,000 a year was so expended by the Masons of this continent. Every lodge and board of relief was requested to report cases of imposture after investigation and undoubted proof. Month after month the list lengthened. The hundreds crept into thousands, and still trampdom kept up its march, and to-day 1,200 tramps have been scheduled in the warning circulars of the association. Reports show marvelous effects and that wherever the local lodges affiliate, imposition disappears. A score of cases could be recalled—one as an example, where the tramp started in at Montreal, with a stolen certificate, was followed by the system of the association through eastern cities. Then [illegible] or near to Port Hope he found that he was being tracked. Fearful of detention in Toronto he made for Hamilton. He was identified by a railway official, a brother, who in an eastern lodge had heard of the case. Word was sent to Toronto, and lodges west on the southern division of the Grand Trunk railway were warned, and the fellow was caught and the stolen certificate taken from him at London. This tramp admitted having taken in over $60 in six weeks besides his board and railway transportation. He was not a Mason and had stolen the certificate from a fellow-boarder in Montreal. The Grand Lodge of Canada has cheerfully supported this association. A few weeks ago the Grand Lodge of New York, with its 800 lodges and 80,000 members, affiliated, and this year other leading jurisdictions are expected to join the ranks. The success so far has stimulated the association to greater efforts, and in order that the greatest good may be done to the greatest number, it has reduced the per capita tax one-half, from 1 cent to 5 cent, circulars being sent to each subordinate lodge as before. The results attained by the work of this association are wonderful.

ARREARS AND PROXIES.

Subordinate lodges are requested to liquidate their indebtedness to Grand Lodge promptly and in a business way. The grand master considers that the system of granting proxies has been abused, and he urges that proxies should only be granted by lodges to a P. M. of their own lodge, and not to P. M.s of other lodges, who may or may not have solicited them.

SUSPENDED LODGES.

In the case of suspended lodges, the the grand master suggests that the Grand Lodge should provide for a reasonable remission of fines on the part of members affiliating with other lodges. In many cases it is indifferent officers and not individual members who are responsible for arrears and other irregularities.

A FRATERNAL CONGRESS.

The grand master announces that a fraternal congress, at which delegates from all the lodges of the continent may be present, which he suggested should be convened, will be held in Chicago next year. The appointment of a delegate will be an honorary one, and as many of the brethren of this Grand Lodge will be in Chicago in 1893, the Grand Lodge can, without expense, send a number of delegates.

MASONIC INSTRUCTION.

The grand master warmly approves of holding [illegible] of instruction within the [illegible] being highly beneficial to [illegible] officers and brethren. He suggests that three lodges of instruction be held in each district during the coming year. "Along this line the thought is suggested that, if, under careful supervision, permanent lodges of instruction were held, at stated periods, once a month from October to May, in each of, say, five centers, in London, Hamilton, Toronto, Kingston and Ottawa, the best results would follow."

REPRESENTATIVES.

The relations of the Grand Lodge with foreign jurisdictions are reported to be highly satisfactory, and during the year various positions of the representatives have been filled (as reported in these columns).

CLANDESTINE MASONS.

My attention was called some months ago, says the grand master, to the fact that a person who had been made a Mason in a clandestine organization in this province was not only visiting but had affiliated and had been elected as an officer of a lodge in the sister garnd jurisdiction of New York. I directed the grand secretary to report the matter to the Grand Lodge of New York, and was gratified to learn within a week that the name of the person complained of had been stricken from the roll of the subordinate lodge in New York. The grand master of New York refers to the matter in his annual address. His prompt and emphatic action will add another link to the chain of friendship which binds together two great jurisdictions.

CONSTITUTIONS AND LAWS.

The grand master makes strong representations against the propriety of the committee on constitution and laws practically disposing, in advance, of proposed amendments to the constitution placed on agenda paper by brethren of the Grand Lodge. The grand master argues that the form of report adopted by the committee should not be continued, as it virtually assails freedom of speech.

IS GRAND LODGE A REPRESENTATIVE BODY.

The grand master makes an important argument in this connection. He gives statistics of the attendance at Grand Lodge since 1887 to last year, showing the number of masters, wardens and P. M.s present, together with the proxies. From this statement the grand master orders that Grand Lodge cannot be called a representative body, that the system has grown unwieldy and cumbersome, and that some day a change will have to be made. The system is shown in a worse light when it is pointed out that though the craft makes in every year an average of 230 masters, and these become P. M.s in the same ratio, and in large numbers attend Grand Lodge, the subordinate lodge registers show that comparatively few P. M.s attend their meetings. The grand master suggests, as a question worthy of consideration, whether the business of Grand Lodge might not be conducted with greater efficiency, if the lodges were represented by the masters and wardens, or by a P. M., being a member of the lodge concerned, as proxy in their absence. In American jurisdictions, 12 only out of 35 that I have personal knowledge of extend as we do the privileges of membership in the Grand Lodge to affiliated past masters. In the majority of cases those to whom the privilege is accorded are the grand officers for the time being, the past grand masters and W. M.s and wardens of subordinate lodges, or the lodge proxy—the latter, of course, a P. M. of the lodge. In a couple of instances, Kentucky and Virginia, the P. M.s collectively are given one vote, and in one case, West Virginia, past grand masters have to combine on a single vote. The grand master says that of course his proposal would not be made to affect the seats of those now entitled to seats in the Grand Lodge.

BENEVOLENCE.

The grand master pays a warm tribute to the worth of the late M. Wor. Bro. Otto Klotz, chairman of the board of benevolence, and passes on to [illegible] investigated by subordinate lodges. The Grand Lodge, he estimates, has paid from $12,000 to $15,000 a year in benevolence that would never have been expended if such a course had been adopted. There is, the grand master argues, many good reasons why members of the craft whose mothers are widows should sustain them without aid from the craft. As charity begins at home, too, so the rule that private lodges shall first show that they have aided a brother in distress before they apply to Grand Lodge should be rigidly adhered to. All legitimate claimants to charity should be considered, but indiscriminate liberality—prodigality, in fact—must be strongly condemned.

THE GRAND TREASURER.

A most worthy meed of praise is extended to the late R. Wor. Bro. Mitchell, grand treasurer, and the announcement is made that M. Wor. Bro. High Murray had been appointed to the office till the meeting of the Grand Lodge.

LODGES REMODELLED AND DEDICATED.

The lodge rooms at Sault Ste. Marie, Port Lamston, Amherstburg, Centerville, and Mattawa have been dedicated with craft ceremonial. Having to officiate on one of these occasions I realized, as one of my predecessors has remarked, the utter inadaptability of our ritual for the ceremony of dedicating a hall, and for the instituting and consecration of lodges. Our burial service is in some respects not in harmony with the principles taught in Masonic work, and should be revised. I would, therefore, suggest that as the committee on the work rendered such signal service last year the revisions suggested be considered at the earliest opportunity.

THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The financial statements show our receipts as being $20,359 77, our expenditure as $14,745 73. The decrease in expenditure last year is accounted for by the reduced number of beneficiaries. It is recommended by the grand treasurer that a further sum of $5,000 be invested in securities, and the grand master indorses this view.

THE D. D. G. M.'S REPORTS.

In reviewing the work of the D. D. G. M.s, the grand master more than hints that they would be able to do better work if they were elected from the grand east instead of by the lodges they are expected to settle me. In 20 out of 30 of the American jurisdictions where D. D. G. M.'s are included in the list of officers, they are in every case, with one exception—that of Vermont—appointed by the grand master.

A WORK THAT APPEALS TO ALL.

The grand master, before closing his address, highly praises the charitable work done by the Hospital for Sick Children, of Toronto, a Provincial charity. He adds: "Ten years ago, the Lakeside Home for Little Children, a convalescent branch of the Hospital for Sick Children, was founded, the presentation being made to those in charge, on condition that the sick child of any member in any lodge on the roll of this jurisdiction should be forever free to this charity. The work began and prospered, and many of the lodges have shown their practical sympathy by contributing towards its support. My wish is to further indentify the craft rather than myself with the work, and if no objections be made I desire that the amount of $500 to the credit of the grand master for 1891, he handed to the trustees of the hospital as the first fruits of a fund I purpose increasing this year with the amount of the credit of the grand master for expenses, and a further sum of $4,000, for the maintenance of a ward, which may enlist the sympathy of some of the craftsmen who desired to assist in this charity. A natural diffidence inspires me when I refer to a line of work which is almost the day dream of my life—a fear that possibly some critic, if there be one in human kind—might attribute motives other than those which truly prompt me to this act. Impelled, however, by the thought that the 20,000 craftsmen of this jurisdiction, two-thirds of whom I have shaken by the hand, are prompted by that feeling which in days of sickness and sorrow makes all flesh kin, and with a desire to exemplify in my life, with its many failings, one of the great principles upon which the order is founded, conscious of my own sincerity, I ask that what I have uttered may be taken in the spirit in which it is offered."

THE POSITION OF GRAND MASTER.

In conclusion the grand master said: "My brethren, no man who ever occupied this position appreciates the honor more than I do. Circumstances and opportunity seem to have so combined that I have had a welcome—a most generous one—in every craft home in this jurisdiction. For two years I have had your confidence, and if, perchance, in the management of the work, I have not had all my ideals realized, my endeavor has been to guide my brethren in the spirit that should actuate all whom you honour with the highest gift in your power to confer. The position of the grand master of the craft of Masons in any jurisdiction is one regarded as most honorable. While in the ordinary routine of business and political life he ambitions of our worldly desires can be readily satisfied, it is given to but few to rule in the grand east, and there is no position which commands a greater respect from the world at large than that of grand master of the great Masonic fraternity. The custom of a two years' term has prevailed for many years in this jurisdiction. The principle is one which commends itself to me.

"The truth is, my brethren, that the powers of a grand master are so circumscribed, that I do not see how I could add one ounce to the weight of service which I have tried to render you. The tireless energy that sees and tries to correct abuses may be good to the craft at large, but it is not a quality which smooths the journey of a grand master. Written on my heart is the memory of the enthusiastic welcome, the earnest appreciation and the sincere attention, which have greeted me every where I have met with the rank and file of the craft face to face. My best purposes have been strengthened by these tokens of care for the truest interests of Masonry. I am satisfied that the voice of the craft will never withold the word of earnest praise from the man of action who works in the grand east. His ideas of duty may collide with their views of privilege or right, but finally they will accord him a place which could be won by no gilded idler. As I stand here my head and heart glow with the remembrance of the many acts of kindness that have crowned me, two years. The little annoyances, the worrying criticism, fade in the distance, and I recall only the generous appreciation which has been the rule—not the exception—in my career. It is in this spirit that I definitely and decidedly take leave of you as your grand master."

GRAND LODGE GOSSIP.

Very Wor. Parker Thomas, of Bowmanville, is ill and will not be able to attend. If no one takes up his many motions the business will be very much curtailed.

The Grand Chapter meets on Friday at 10 a.m.

Not for years has there been so much excitement over the election of officers of Grand Lodge.

There are now three aspirants for the office of D. D. G. M. of the London district.

The mayor and a delegation of aldermen will present an address of welcome to the grand master and Grand Lodge, and the brethren of the city lodges will follow suit on behalf of the craft. Both of the addresses have been handsomely engrossed.

The city brethren have decorated the platform of the Grand Opera House with evergreen plants. Through the kindness Right Wor. Bro. W. J. Reid a number of handsome pieces of statuary add to the artistic appearance of the surroundings.

Wor. Bro. S. H. Kent, of Acacia Lodge, No. 41, brings his good wife with him. He is the assistant city clerk of Hamilton, and will pay his respects to the department here before he departs.

At least one bride has come from the East with a Grand Lodge representative. She is pretty, and has quarters at the Tecumseh.

The city reception committee held its final meeting last night. The various committees reported everything in good shape.

Representatives who register early will save themselves a deal of trouble. They cannot get into the Grand Lodge until they register.

THE OLD LOVE REKINDLED.

Rev. E. Wilson's Romantic Experience.

Christian Endeavor Delegates Meet After a Separation and Marry.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 19.—New interest in the romantic story of the Rev. E. Wilson, pastor of the Georg Road Baptist Church, has been awakened by his resignation and departure with his wife for Ontario, where they expect to make their future home.

A year or two previous to the end of the civil war a young, ambitious and eloquent clergyman of American birth went to Montreal. He obtained a charge and made that city his home. Being a handsome and talented young man, he soon made a lot of friends in the best social circles of that Canadian city. James Elliot, major of the Sixty-fourth Regiment, British Army, became a staunch friend of the minister, who became a welcome guest at the major's household. He became interested in the major's daughter, Mary, a talented Canadian beauty, and ere long loved the maiden with all the ardor of youth. Unfortunately for him she did not return the tender passion, although she highly respected the eloquent young preacher, but, having social ambitions, she could not reconcile herself to the idea of becoming a minister's wife.

A dashing young Virginian named Getty, attached by birth and rank to the Southern Confederacy, came to the city of Montreal about this time and soon fell in love with the fair Canadian girl. He was more successful in his suit than the young clergyman, and she accepted him. They were married and lived happily together for fifteen years, when death made her a widow.

In the intervening time Mr. Wilson returned to the United States and married an estimable and worthy woman. He settled in this city about eight years ago and ministered to the spiritual wants of the people of the George Road Baptist Church. About a year ago his wife died. After recovering from the effects of his grief his thoughts turned to his first love. Fortune smiled upon him this time, and after a short correspondence Mrs. Getty visited this city about six months ago and met her old lover. He renewed his suit, was accepted, and they were married quietly on Feb. 23. The newly-married couple took up their home in the parsonage of the George Road Baptist Church, and Mr. Wilson resumed his duties in a happier frame of mind.

Two weeks after the wedding the parsonage was entered by burglars during the absence of the dominie and his wife, and the jewel case and valuables to the amount of about $15,000 was taken. No clue to the thieves ever was obtained. Mrs. Wilson longed for the scenes of her youth, and soon became tired of the pastoral life. She finally prevailed on her husband to tender his resignation and arrange to make Canada their permanent place of residence. The pastor complied with his wife's wishes, and they left Monday night for Ontario. Mrs. Wilson is wealthy, and consequently abundantly able to provide for herself and husband should he not obtain a charge at once.

MET AND MARRIED

NEW YORK, July 19.—The recent Christian Endeavor Convention had a romantic result for two of the delegates at least. Wm. Lane, a delegate from Fargo, who had once lived in Newark, N. J., met the convention an old flame, Miss Benson, of South Tenth street, Newark, N. J. The old attachment between the couple was revived, and on Wednesday they were married. They leave for Dakota this week.

HIS FIRS FEE.

A Soft-Hearted Bridegroom Who Pitied the Minister.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

Rev. Dr. Blank, now a prominent pastor of a prominent church, had his first charge in a country district and he tells this story:

"The first couple I married," he says, "came to the house where I boarded and had my study, for I was a bachelor then, and they were genuine specimens of the rustic lover—he tall and gawky, she awkward, but pink-cheeked and pretty, as rustic beauty goes. They came in a wagon and it did not take long to perform the ceremony. After it was over I thought it my duty to kiss the bride, and bent forward to do so when the groom laid his hand on my arm.

"'No you don't, mister,' he said, good-naturedly. "I'll tend to that part of it myself,' and he proceeded to do so vigorously.

"I smiled and offered no argument, and as they started out I followed them to the front door. There the groom invited me to come out to the wagon, where he had something for me. He helped the bride in, got in himself beside her on the board seat, reaching down behind him he lifted out a sack of potatoes and handed them over to me. I thanked him and took them as my fee, and was about to bid him good-bye, when the groom, proudly looking at the girl and at me, said:

"'Ain't she a beauty, mister?'

"'Very handsome,' I admitted.

"'Nothin' purtier in the country, is there?' and he chucked her under the chin.

"'Not that I have seen, I'm sure,' I assented, cordially.

"'Air you married?' he asked, quite kindly, I thought.

"'I'm sorry to say I'm not,' I confessed.

"'Ain't got no wife?'

"'No.'

"'Nothin' like this in the house?' and again he chucked the blushing bride under the chin.

"'No; I'm all alone.'

"I guess there must have been a touch of sadness or regret in my voice, for the groom's face took on the grace of sympathy.

"'Look here, mister,' he said, 'I'll tell you what I'll do. If you'll give me back them taters and half a dollar to boot I'll be blamed if you can't kiss the bride!'

"Of course I couldn't be so ungallant as to refuse the offer, if indeed it would have been safe to have done so, and handing over the potatoes and the only half dollar I had, I gracefully saluted the bride and sent them both on their way with my blessing."

Consider what God can do and you will never despair of success.—[Thomas Wilson.

WESTERN ONTARIO.

BRANT.

Miss Mary McMullen, of St. George, died in Brantford Sunday morning from the effects of burning caused by a lamp explosion. She was visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Quinlan, at the time of the melancholy occurrence.

ELGIN

Wm. Gilroy, aged 15, has been charged at the St. Thomas police court with stealing $20 from his mother, Mrs. Fitzpatrick. He was sentenced to an indefinite term in the reformatory, pending good behavior. The term is not to exceed four years.

W. Wade, formerly M. C. R. engineer, who is working at painting in St. Thomas, fell a considerable distance from a ladder, but fortunately landed in a bed of mortar, escaping without injury.

John Gilroy, an old and esteemed resident of Southwold, died at his residence near Fingal on Sunday morning, in his 68th year.

The St. Thomas Times says: "On Saturday evening four or five persons were in the Batt House, Port Stanley. One of them laid down $10 to pay for drinks. The man who was tending bar got change from Mrs. Fraser, and gave it to the man who paid the $10 bill, supposing that she had taken up the $10 bill, but she had not, and a $5 bill which she had laid down had also disappeared."

ESSEX.

Dr. Dyarshorsi, an Indian medicine man, became disorderly at Des-Chree-Shos-Ka on Sunday, and was collared by Detective Campau and Officer Livingstone. They put him in a sail boat and started for the Canadian shore, and when half-way across the prisoner jumped into the river. He was hauled on board again and brought to Windsor.

The Cemetery of Our Lady of St. Clair, Walkerville, was consecrated on Sunday. The ceremony was to have taken place a month ago, but bad weather interfered. Long before 3 o'clock the church was packed to suffocation, while hundreds stood outside. A sermon was delivered by Bishop O'Connor, and then the procession wended its way to the cemetery, where the Roman Catholic services for the occasion were gone through with. Bishop O'Connor was assisted by Rev. Dean Wagner and a number of other priests. The cemetery is located about a mile south of the church.

Saturday last the Lypos farm gas well was shot and a vein of gas equal, if not stronger, than that of the famous Coste well was struck. The well is owned by Hiram Walker, who has sunk a number in that locality. This well is situated in Gosfield township, and but a short distance from the Gusher. Upon the success of this well depended whether or not pipes should be laid to Windsor and Walkerville, but there is now no doubt of the early completion of the work.

HURON.

Bayfield village is entirely out of debt.

W. H. Clegg, hardware merchant, Gorrie, has assigned to Major Kaine.

C. Myers, Hensall, has several orange tress in blossom, and they are causing much attention.

William Moore, of Kippen, is suffering with blood poisoning caused by paris green. The poison entered a scratch on his hand.

Sam Humerston, of Hensall, has a pear tree bearing fruit on the bottom limbs and a beautiful cluster of blossoms on the upper branches.

A Government subsidy of $99,200 has been appropriated towards the construction of the proposed Goderich and Wingham Railway, via Port Arthur, 31 miles. It is said this amount will require to be supplemented by $150,000 from the municipalities through which the line will pass. The promoters of the scheme will presently take up the question of the submitting of municipal bonuses. It is likely the largest share of the bonuses will have to come from Goderich.

KENT.

J. B. Stringer & Co., of Chatham, are constantly shipping beans to the possible West Indies. They report orders for carloads of Kent beans and one of Kent corn (the beans principally for export). Prices are said to be lower.

Jacob Weiss, a farmer from near Kent Bridge, was struck by the Erie and Huron train Monday evening, two or three miles south of Chatham and badly cut in the head and other places. He has been taken to the hospital and it is feared one of his arms will have to be amputated.

MIDDLESEX.

Mrs. Lucy Ann Lewis, widow of the late Henry Lewis, died at her late residence, North Dorchester, July 13. Deceased came to that section in 1836, and has resided there until her death. She was well and favorably known in that community, being ever ready to respond to the call for aid and sympathy in time of sickness and sorrow. She was a faithful wife and loving mother. Although of a delicate organization she was capable of great physical endurance and retained her health and strength until her 74th year. Eight months ago she was seized with la grippe and has since then been a constant sufferer, but patient and resigned.

NORFOLK.

The councils of Woodhouse and Port Dover are offering a reward of $100 for the conviction of the party or parties who recently unlawfully opened the grave of the late Robt. England in Port Dover Cemetary and carried off the remains.

OXFORD.

Someone entered the residence of Geo. Weaver, bricklayer, Woodstock, one forenoon day during the absence of Mrs. Weaver and stole $24 in money therefrom.

Andrew O'Donoghue, of Woodstock, who was charged with the robbery of a rifle from a young lad a few days ago, was on Saturday found guilty of larceny, and on paying for the damage of the broken rifle and the costs he was promised a suspension of sentence.

WATERLOO.

Berlin Telegraph. A valuable and extensive deposit of peat and marl has lately been discovered on the lands of T. Potter and the Waterworks Company, adjoining the corporation of Berlin. Alex. Huber, who made the discovery, has secured from the owners of the property the exclusive rights of extracting the substance, and is now working with a staff of five men digging it out. The deposit covers an area of fifteen acres, and at some places is 75 feet in depth. The peat is claimed by those supposed to know to be of the best quality, and equal to that found in the Irish and German bogs, where it is the main supply of fuel. It is said to make a height, flaming fire [illegible] It is cut with a spade [illegible] into bricks twelve inches square, and then dried by the open air and sun until it is fit for use. The marl consists of minute vegetable [illegible] valuable as a fertilizer. Mr. Huber has now several tons unearthed and drying, and feels the utmost confidence in the success of his scheme. He expects before long to be in a position to supply the citizens of Berlin with fuel so good and cheap that it will ultimately take the place of both coal and wood.

Mrs. Schilling, a woman living in Berlin, suicided Sunday by taking paris green. It is not known where she procured the poison. She was found in a sinking condition by her husband and died soon after. She had been morose and downcast of late, being under the impression that she was going to starve to death. Mrs. Schilling was well known and respectably connected. She leaves a family of grown-up sons. When found by her husband she confessed that she had taken poison, but refused to say where she got it. The people of the town are greatly excited over the sad affair.

The Royal Templars of Waterloo decorated the graves of their deceased members in the Hespeler Cemetery Monday evening in the presence of several hundred people. The service was a very interesting one, and the floral decorations numerous and beautiful. The procession was headed by the Royal Cadet Band, who played the Dead March and other appropriate airs.

WELLINGTON.

Michael Burns, a mechanic, attempted suicide Tuesday morning at Guelph. It appears that he and his wife had a quarrel while breakfast was being prepared, when he knocked her senseless with a rolling pin. He then went to another room and cut his throat with a razor. His condition is critical.

James Goldie, of Guelph, has sent 25 barrels of flour to be distributed among the sufferers at the St. Johns fire.

The Town Council of Berlin has granted $100 to the St. Johns sufferers.

WENTWORTH.

A correspondent writes: On Tuesday last we had a very sad accident in our vicinity. Fred Wright was mowing in his field when his boy, 9 years old, showed him where there was a bird's nest with young birds in it. The father told him the mower would go over them and not hurt them. Just as the machine came up to the spot he took a step forward, not noticing the knife behind, and the mower took the foot clean off about an inch above the ankle. The father was nearly beside himself on account of the accident, but there was no possible blame to be attached to him.

The Traveling Dairy.

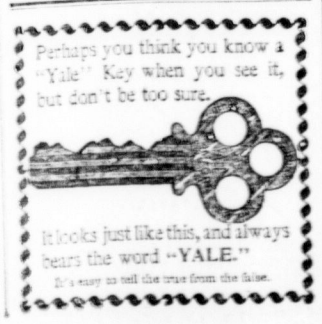
Norfolk county has at last been favored with a visit from the traveling dairy, though at a very unseasonable time of the year, when there is a rush with the hay, and the fall wheat is looking for the binder, some fields being ready to cut. Mr. F. B. Linfield, who has charge, however, fulfills his part of the engagement to the letter, and those who took the time to attend did not lose anything. The methods illustrated and the practical talk on the how and the why of the subject means dollars to those who will take the hints given and make use of them in their work. The people feel it to be unfortunate that the dairy has arrived here in such a busy time.

Meetings were held during the past week in Waterford, Windham Center, Simcoe, Port Dover and Vittoria. The deputation were on time promptly and ready to start at the advertised time, 2 o'clock, but generally the people did not gather till about half past. As soon as the audience arrived Mr. Linfield started his lecture on the advantages of dairying and how to handle the product so as to get the best prices, and how to handle the cow, milk, cream and butter, so as to get the best product. At the same time Mr. Hume practically illustrated the latter point, the handling of the product, and the churning and the manipulation of the butter. Mr. Linfield said their purpose was to give an object lesson of their method of making butter; the system they followed was the same as practiced in the best creameries of the country, modified to suit private dairy work, and he gave facts and figures to prove the advantages of these methods. Then, he said, he would have to leave it to the people themselves to judge whether the methods he advocated were any improvement on that those practiced, if they thought they had a better way, he wanted to know about it, as he was always anxious to learn, and he would tell other people of the better way; if they thought his method better, he hoped they would put it into practice.

Q.—But what is the use of taking this trouble if we cannot get any higher price? A.—Some people imagine that if at the country stores they cannot get any more for their butter than their neighbors, who do not take the same trouble and care, therefore it is so much time wasted. But it does not take more time; you can make from ten to fifteen pounds of butter and have everything washed up in an hour, or an hour and a quarter. Mr. Hume has done it. Cleanliness is a virtue that is commended next to Godliness. Because your neighbor milks a filthy uncleaned cow in a filthy stable; because in milking he never brushes off the udder of the cow or wipes off her teats, nor yet washes his own hands, but milks with wet hands, and the dirty milk, finding its way drop by drop into the pail; because that milk is not strained immediately through three or four ply of buttercloth, but has left in it a large amount of dirt, which dissolves there; because that milk is set in an old, musty, damp, ill ventilated cellar, where the odor of onions, potatoes, cabbage, etc., pervades the atmosphere, or because that cream is kept for a long time till it gets sour, bitter and almost rotten—is this or any of these reasons an excuse why any person should not follow a more intelligent common-sense method. It would be an "eye-opener" to some people if they would strain their cream and see what we have occasionally taken out of the cream brought to the meetings, by straining it through the dipper with a perforated bottom—hardened lumps of cream, sticks, dirt and dust, hairs, flies and other insects. And yet some people will pour the whole into the churn and expect to get good butter out of such a mixture.

Q.—What about washing the butter? A.—Buttermilk is a very poor thing in which to preserve butter. Butter that has a lot of buttermilk left in it will not keep any length of time. To get that buttermilk out a great many attempt to work it out, which is a very tiresome job, and cannot be done thoroughly; at the same time the butter is worked too much, the grain is spoiled and it presents a greasy or sorry appearance. Butter should be washed just to mix the salt with it, to dry it out somewhat, and just as little, as is necessary to accomplish that purpose.

Silence is the consummate eloquence of policy.—William Winters.



THE ST. CLAIR FLATS CANAL.

It May Soon be Closed to Canadian Vessels.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—There is a good prospect that the St. Clair Flats Canal will soon be closed to Canadian vessels, except upon the payment of burdensome tolls by those vessels. The plan of charging tolls for the use of American canals by Canadian vessels is proposed as a measure of retaliation because of the discrimination against Americans now made by the Canadians in the use of the Welland Canal. The sub-committee of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, who have under consideration the retaliatory bill, have had several hearings and will be ready to report to the full committee on Wednesday. They are favorable to the imposition of tolls on cargoes passing through the Sault Ste. Marie Canal on Canadian vessels. Mr. Chipman, who is a member of the committee, will propose like action in regard to the St. Clair Flats Canal. He thinks this is necessary because the Canadians expect their new lock at the Sault will be completed by next spring. Mr. Chipman also thinks that the attitude of the Canadians on the canal question is a powerful argument in favor of a system of canals through American territory to the ocean to render our commerce absolutely independent of the action of the Dominion authorities.

London, Wednesday, July 20.

THE Irish party in the new British Parliament is said to be the finest morally, and as to brains, ever sent to Westminster.

AN immense number of M. P.s favorable to woman suffrage are to be found among those returned to the new British Parliament.

WITHIN a few days the Manitoba Local House elections will have been held. An interesting incidental feature will be a plebiscite on Prohibition.

AN ADVERTISER reader says the proposed Dominion Liberal convention, though desirable, should not be rushed before the full results become known of the elections already held in Great Britain and shortly to be held in the United States.

THE TORONTO NEWS says that Ontario can have any Dominion legislation, fiscal or otherwise, that it likes. Does our contemporary mean, by the indication of a plebiscite? Certainly no fair expression of opinion can be obtained in Ontario under the operations of the Dominion gerrymander.

THE cyclists of Great Britain took an active part in the recent elections. Every candidate was asked to support a measure making it compulsory for all vehicles to carry lights at night. Both in Great Britain and the United States, cyclists are among the most progressive promoters of good roadways.

THREE ideas are propounded in connection with Sunday and the World's Fair: (1) To keep it open, with machinery in full blast; (2) close it absolutely on Sunday; (3) open it to observation, but stop all the machinery—make it "a silent Sunday" at the Fair. The argument put forward for the latter course is that the ten miles of Chicago open saloons are only too anxious to have the World's Fair crowd forced into the saloons on Sunday.

IT IS well known that the promoters of the liquor traffic claim privileges from the Government on account of the large amount of revenue derived from it. It may be interesting to know at this time the view Mr. Gladstone held on the question the first time he was Chancellor of the Exchequer. A deputation of men engaged in the traffic came to him and said their business ought to have more consideration from the fact that it paid such a large revenue to the English Government. Mr. Gladstone said: "Gentlemen, don't worry yourselves about the revenue. Give me 30,000,000 sober people, and we'll have revenue enough and a surplus." Our Canadian politicians should take this as a lesson and not howl about the danger of there being a deficit in the treasury if prohibition were put in force. If they cannot work out the problem themselves, let them ask Mr. Gladstone to solve it for them.

HUMOR THE BUYER.

"Why don't Canadians take a leaf out of the Australians' book in supplying British apple markets?" said a well-known Canadian man of business the other day. "I know that the Canadian fruit comes in at a different season, and is of not quite the same class, but I believe that were Canadian exporters to send their choice apples here in smaller boxes or barrels they would do a larger trade. You may see the Australian apples at Covent Garden in 40-pound boxes, and upon each box about 10 shillings is realized. A barrel of Canadian apples of the weight of 196 pounds goes for about the same money. A man will often buy a small lot of 40 pounds for his family use, and I fancy the Canadians would do well to consider the possibilities of meeting the demand for smaller lots which the Australian trade has shown to exist."—[London Canadian Gazette.

There is food for reflection in these hints. So many Canadians buy their apples by the barrel that packers here have come to regard the barrel as the best if not the only article needed for the proper marketing of fruit. The British householder buys in smaller quantities; in the large majority of instances he occupies a floor or a half floor in tenement houses, so precious is land in the great centers of population. He has no cellar to stow away supplies, and he buys his provisions as he requires them. We advise our apple exporting friends to do all they can to humor the buyer, just as they do so will they find their consignments popularized and increased in value.

The court on Tuesday confirmed Mr. Gilmor, Liberal M. P. for Charlotte, N. B., in his seat, and ordered the dismissal of the petition against him with costs.

Bouchard, the notorious Gulf smuggler, may soon be caught. A portion of his contraband cargo has been captured, and a cordon of swift cruisers are closing up on his retreat.

VISITORS, YOU ARE WELCOME.

The ADVERTISER can add but little to the words of welcome addressed to the Masonic visitors by Mayor Spencer this forenoon. Londoners have not forgotten the pleasant visit of the representative men who assembled at Grand Lodge when it last met in this city ten years ago. Though, owing to the late hour at which the Grand Lodge meets, and the necessity for finishing the business by to-morrow night, formal enjoyments are ruled out of the question, much to the regret of the local brethren and thousands of their friends, we feel assured that we voice the sentiments of the people of London when we say that they are most heartily welcome.

We have, as the Grand Master cheerfully admitted, a most beautiful city, and we trust that the representatives will find it to be a hospitable city as well. Knowing as we do the men who make up the fraternity in this city, we can cheerfully say that the welcome is truly fraternal.

To those of us who have to glean our views regarding the Masonic Order from the published transactions of the craft, the address of Grand Master Robertson will prove extremely interesting reading. It is apparently a most comprehensive resume of the state of this charitable body in this jurisdiction, and could only have been penned by a man who has made himself master of his work down to the minutest details. The grand master modestly refers to the most meritorious institution founded by him at Toronto, but which is not restricted in the work of benefiting the afflicted little ones. Mr. Robertson has just added another $4,000 to the thousands that he has already expended in building up and endowing this home for sick children. In this work he has exemplified a truly Masonic spirit, for, as we are informed, the chief virtue inculcated by the teachings of the order is charity. In thus disposing of a portion of his wealth, the Grand Master has set a good example to monied men the world over. He has the satisfaction while he lives of seeing the good which a man of money can accomplish, and he has no need to defend himself from criticism of his motives. Deeds, not words, speak, and the brethren of John Ross Robertson have well honored him for using the power which he possesses to exemplify in a marked degree that characteristic upon which the foundation of their order is held to rest.

WHY THEY GET BIG WAGES.

The Carnegie Company locked out its workmen at Homestead, Pa., because they would not accept a reduction of wages, and in vindication of its course various statements of high wages paid to expert mechanics have been published. "See," say the apologists for the iron and steel combine, "how great are the wages of these men; why should they not consent to a reduction?" The answer to this is very appropriately made by a workman, who says the only reason why high wages have been paid to what are known as screwmen is that men who can do the work are scarce. It takes a lifetime to learn the business of adjusting the plates used for the armor of Government vessels, and even then a man may not be an expert. In some of the plates an adjustment of one-fifth of one-hundredth of an inch is required, and the adjustment has to be made in a moment. The most minute mistake may mean the loss of a whole plate, and the loss of many plates would bankrupt the company. A spoiled plate is almost a dead loss. The same is true of the rolling department, where high wages are paid. He must guage his work perfectly, or it is lost. In heating, the heater has to calculate the work entirely by the eye, and if he does not treat the metal at the exact moment it is ready the job is spoiled. Thus it has been necessary for the company to pay the highest wages to get and keep the best talent in the market. Indeed, the mechanic who gives this interesting account of the reason why he and others have been paid good wages, contends that it "takes more education and more ability and more carefulness to be a screwman or a roller in an iron or steel mill than it takes to be a lawyer, and there are fewer first-class men in this business than in the law business." He wants to know why they should not be as well paid as the lawyers are. Yes, why!

The one point emphasized in this whole matter is that it is not restrictive tariffs, but the necessities of employers, the law of supply and demand, that influence wages. Those who teach to the contrary are merely trying to befool the workers, and to get their support to establish or continue monopolies.

GLADSTONE AT GLASGOW.

In Mr. Gladstone's great speech at Glasgow, the Liberal leader said that as a Scotchman he rejoiced to say that Scotland had little responsibility and had had little share in the regulation of old-time Irish relations, because, until the union of 1707, Scotland had no political relations whatever with Ireland, and until the Reform Act of 1832 Scotland had no popular share in the working of the Government. "But," said Mr. Gladstone, "if from 1832 I might go back 500 years, it is one almost unbroken succession of political storm and swollen tempest, except when those tempests were for a time interrupted by a period of servitude and by the stillness of death."

Mr. Gladstone then closed with a splendid peroration, which we cannot refrain from giving in full:

"Oh! those storms are in strong contrast with the future, with the present. The condition of the Irish mind justifies us in anticipating. It recalls to my mind a beautiful legend of ancient paganism—for the ancient paganism, amongst many legends false and many foul, had also some that were beautiful. There were two Lacedæmonian heroes known as Castor and Pollux, honored in their life and more honored in their death, when a star was called after them, and upon that star the fond imagination of the people fastened lively conceptions; for they thought that when a ship at sea was caught in a storm, when dread began to possess the minds of the crew, and peril thickened round them, and even alarm was giving place to despair, that if then in the high heavens this star appeared, gradually and gently but effectually the clouds disappeared, the winds abated, the towering billows fell down to the surface of the deep, the calm came where there had been uproar, safety came where there had been danger, and under the beneficent influence of this heavenly body the terrified and despairing crew came safely into port. (Cheers.) The proposal which the Liberal party of this country made in 1886, which they still cherish in their mind and heart, and which, as we trust and believe, they are about now to carry forward—(loud cheers)—that proposal has been to Ireland and to the political relations of the two countries what the happy star was believed to be to the seamen of antiquity. (Cheers.) It has produced already anticipations of love and good-will, which are the first fruits of what is to come. It has already changed the whole tone and temper of the relations, I cannot say yet between the laws, but between the peoples and inhabitants of these two great islands. (Cheers.) It has filled our hearts with hope and with joy, and it promises to give us, in lieu of the terrible disturbances of other times, with their unceasing, intolerable burdens and unsolvable problems, the promise of a holy and a happy brotherhood, a brotherhood exhibiting strength and harmony at home, and a brotherhood which, before the world, shall, instead of being, as it hitherto has been for the most part, a scandal, be a model and an example, and shall show that we, whose political wisdom is for so many purposes recognized by the nations of civilized Europe and America, have at length found the means of meeting this worst and oldest of all our difficulties, and of substituting for disorder, for misery, for contention, the actual arrival and the yet riper promise of a reign of peace." (Prolonged cheers.)

It is reported in a Glasgow paper that an engineer of the city has, after nineteen years' experimenting, devised an arrangement whereby the steam issuing from an engine is returned to the boiler after doing its work in the cylinder. In stationary engines the invention works wonders. A test in one cloth factory shows that one ton of coal does the work of seven tons under the old plan. If all that is said of this device is true it ranks among the greatest discoveries of modern times. It results in a greater saving of fuel than that produced by having the air that passes into a reduction furnace heated by the flames that escape from it. This invention will be likely to reduce the cost of manufacturing many articles at least one-half.

Colonel Charles Chaille-Long, the celebrated African explorer, has issued in Paris in the French language his new volume, which is creating a great sensation, entitled "Egypt and the Provinces." In this work he scores the British Government and Henry M. Stanley unmercifully, and brings forward facts by which to show that Egypt has been looted and plundered under British rule. Stanley owes to Chaille-Long the bricks and other things which are being thrown at him by the English common people, who regard Stanley as a "negro killer." Long says that few if any of Stanley's "discoveries" are accepted by geographers for the reason that the "discoveries" were discovered by other and earlier explorers, and claims that an examination of the standard maps of Africa, made and published by geographical societies, will tend to prove the strictures he makes. Long declares that Stanley can be regarded merely as interesting, not exactly as original.

OFFENSIVE ECZEMA.

Suffered Terribly. Doctors and Medicines Useless. Cured in Four Weeks by Cuticura.

I have a boy, fifteen years old, born in Fishkill, portmit inclosed, who had the eczema so offensive that I could not stay in the room with him. The poor boy suffered terribly. His feet were terribly sore so he could not wear any shoes, and had therefore to stay at home from school. When he put on a pair of dry stockings in the morning, they would in one hour be saturated with moisture and very offensive even in the coldest weather. The disease began to spread over his body, especially his hands and fingers. The thumbs on both his hands became stiff and as useless as two wheeled sticks of wood. It would be useless for me to try to tell the suffering this boy endured. I took him to two different doctors both gave him lots of medicine but all to no use. He grew worse. I therefore despaired of ever having him cured. One day I saw the great benefit you had done others who would use CUTICURA REMEDIES. I sent right away to the drug store and bought them. I must confess I had but little faith in them. However, I used them according to directions, and to-day I say truthfully to all the world, if you wish to prohibit it, that my son is entirely cured, thank God and thank the discoverers of CUTICURA REMEDIES. They cured him in four weeks as sound as a good dollar.

CRICKET.

LONDON DEFEATS CHICAGO.

The Phœnix Cricket Club of Chicago is accounted a crack organization, but they met their masters yesterday when they struck the boss willow-wielders of the Forest City. The match was made the occasion of Ed Hall's benefit and the friends of the clever pro. of the London Cricket Club turned out well. They were rewarded by a very pretty game of cricket—a very satisfactory one too in view of the result. The day was a perfect one for cricket and the crease was in fine shape. The match started at 11:00 a.m., Chicago being the first to bat. MacPherson for the visitors was the first to face Hall's bowling. He put up 40 runs in good form, Wright following with 39. Edwards was the only other man in the team to make double figures. The trio knocked out 101 runs of the 126 earned by the batsmen. The remainder were literally mowed down by the London bowlers. The Chicagoans retired with the very respectable score of 134 to their credit.

Then London's turn came. Williams and Sayers were sent first to bat, and succeeded in breaking the bowling. They acquitted themselves creditably, making nine each. The renowned Terry was second to bat, and it wasn't very long before the bowler realized that he had struck a snag. Terry is considered the finest batsman in Canada. He gave a beautiful exhibition of cricket yesterday, his runs and drives being magnificent. He evidently became tired of exerting himself, and tried one-hand batting for a change. He ran a great luck towards the finish, and gave four or five "lives," which were unaccepted by the fielders. He was finally caught out to a "pop fly," and as he walked off the field with 71 he was given a hearty round of applause. Dr. Beemer scored a well-earned 13. Ed Hall's wicket was taken for a duck. Walker, one of the best batsmen on the team, was more unfortunate, and retired with the only goose egg of the day. Bacon and Smith put up 11 and 21 respectively by clean, careful cricket. Grew played well for his 5. Becher did remarkably well, his 15, not out, being earned rapidly and with good judgment. Capt. Hyman started in energetically and ran up 11 runs in short order. He was, unluckily, stumped, and the home team left the field victors by a score of 193 to 134.

Dougal carried off the bowling honors for Chicago. Hall was very effective for London, and bore the brunt of the work. Smith and Bacon also did well. The score is as follows:

THE GOSPEL OF RICHES.

Bishop Newman recently preached a sermon upon the "Gospel of Wealth." He declared among other things: "I believe in accumulated wealth. The acquisition of property is a divine gift. * * * To amass great fortunes is a special endowment." Now, wealth is a relative term, and it means different things in the mouths of different men. To interpret the word aright we must take into consideration the habits, associations and mental attitude of him by whom it is uttered. Bishop Newman is the man who accepted $5,000 from Leland Stanford for preaching a fulsome eulogy over the dead body of the multi-millionaire's son. Doubtless the bishop had in mind Mr. Stanford and others who are rich through the ownership of natural opportunities when he defended those "gifted with the vision of a seer," who should "anticipate the flow of population and its effect upon real estate."

So when Bishop Newman speaks of wealth he means millions and millions gathered, if need be, from the value that increasing population confers upon land. Does Bishop Newman know that to earn even one of Mr. Sanford's millions it would require that a man, working at the average rate of day laborer's pay in the United States, should have labored every day from the birth of that Christ whom Bishop Newman professes to serve even unto this time? Truly, the cleanliness and ease of Bishop Newman's job have dulled his sympathy with those whom toil has robbed of such ease and cleanliness. It was by men of wealth like Bishop Newman's friends and by the priests who fed at their tables that Christ was crucified.—[The Standard.

This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

FREEDOM OF SPEECH.

Oration by Rev. Donald C. Hossack, of Orangeville.

Liberty the Brightest Jewel in the British Crown.

ORANGEVILLE, July 18.—The citizens of Orangeville, or at least those of them who attend St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on Sunday evening were treated to as fine and forcible an address on freedom of speech as it has probably been within their province to hear for many a day. The church was crowded to the doors, and extra benches had to be brought in, before the minister, Rev. Donald C. Hossack, entered the pulpit.

Mr. Hossack is a young man of fine, handsome appearance, whose leading characteristic is an intense earnestness and fervent zeal in his deliverances. He is withal enthusiastic, vigorous and at times becomes eloquent over his subject. He chose for his text Acts, xxii., 28: "And the chief captain answered, with a great sum obtained I this freedom." The captain, he said, of course, referred to civil freedom. He meant that he was a Roman citizen, and that in order to become so he was obliged to pay a sum of money for his citizenship. Of course to-day a man could not buy citizenship with money, but it was not so when Rome was in her power. That is what the captain meant. Paul replied by telling the captain that he was born free. Now, would it surprise them to find that civil freedom and that other and higher kind of freedom that the Saviour of the world could alone give came from the same source? Well, whether they were surprised or not it was the case. Liberty was given to the world by Jesus Christ first of all. Outside of the liberty of Christ he maintained that they could find no civil liberty at all. Jesus Christ himself gave to the world a decree of emancipation that was to last for all eternity. Jesus Christ himself told the world that all men must have freedom of speech. God never made a slave. God never stopped any man's mouth. Man had tried to do that. When Jesus Christ said, Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel. He meant that in every land and clime there should be the most perfect freedom of speech. It was the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ that gave freedom to the world. People obtained liberty by depressing that in them which was base, and keeping down the animal and letting conscience and reason free. Any government that was free depended for the maintenance of its freedom on the freedom that was in the individual. Therefore no government had a right to impose anything on the people more than was necessary for the safety of the State. Did they ever see any man that was a Christian and in his heart love Jesus Christ desire to take from his fellow-men the freedom of speech that God gave him? Never. The men who would take freedom of speech from their fellow-men were tyrants. The Lord Jesus Christ gave to the world a gospel that was not so likely to aid the tyrant as to aid the poor man. And wherever in the wide world there was liberty, the only men who wanted to take it away were cowards and tyrants, and men who themselves were slaves to their own passions. The Roman obtained his freedom with money. The Briton obtained his freedom with blood. Within the shadow of the British Empire any man could speak his mind so long as it is not detrimental to the peace of the Empire. He saw one argument against continental union that no man to his knowledge has yet reasonably replied to. Take away the history of a people and what was going to become of that people? If they had taken away years ago from Scotland her national sentiment, she never would have obtained her freedom. England was strong to-day, thank God, because she was free. England afraid of free speech? Why, she gloried in it and her throne was built upon it. England afraid to let any man say just what he wanted to say? Why, the great power of England depended on that very liberty which her citizens enjoyed. England afraid of any man? Why, anyone would have thought the other night that England was afraid of three men. England dare stand against the world. Some of us thought that she could not stand before three men the other night, and they were not very big men either. He had felt perfectly indignant when he went to their meeting the other night to think that they, the loyal subjects, as he believed, of her most gracious Majesty, should be afraid to let three men speak, and he desired to say, once and for all, that he was not an annexationist. Freedom of speech was the grandest jewel in the British crown, and they were afraid to let three helpless men say what they thought. Supposing the other evening some of them had cabled to her Majesty, knowing her feeling about freedom of speech, and that with the aid of 20 or 30 toughs from the country and two or three people such as were present from the town, and with a strategic leader with rotten eggs, they had maintained the dignity of the crown and driven away a little man from Alton, a thin man from Orangeville, and a sick man from Esser, what would have been her Majesty's feeling? He would to God that some of them, before they interfered with freedom of speech would learn a little more about her Majesty, whom they claimed to be so eager to protect.

THE BENEFIT CONCERT.

Over $60 Realized for the St. Johns Sufferers—Rain Causes a Great Scatteration, But Does Not Spoil the Receipts.

If the rain interfered somewhat with the artistic portion of last night's benefit band concert, it did not affect to any extent the financial part. Thousands wended their way to Victoria Park, and it is creditable to the people of London that the attendance was even larger than on an ordinary band concert night. Stationed at the various gates to collect the free-will offerings were Mayor Spencer, J. R. Shuttleworth, Ald. Yates, Mr. W. J. Reid, Mr. R. K. Cowan, Park Ranger Grant W. McDonough, George Burns, sen., and others. Mayor Spencer invited the aldermen in council to assist in the collections, but Ald. Yates was the only one who presented himself. Everyone who entered deposited something on the plate, and soon the coin was stacked up.

It was 9 o'clock before symptoms of a shower appeared. A few began to leave the park, but the majority, entranced by the strains of the national airs, remained until the rain rather suddenly commenced to pour. Such a scatteration! No one had brought umbrellas, as the probability of rain had not been thought of. Shelter could not be had as the park does not possess it. Those in carriages dashed away at top speed. Women in light attire were drenched to the skin while running for a friendly door or porch. Those wheeling baby carriages (and there were many of them) were to be pitied. Men turned up their coat collars and their pantaloons and dashed away. Convenient street cars and uptown store doors were filled with dripping humanity, while ice cream parlors did a rushing business for a while. In a few moments Victoria Park was changed from a scene of gaiety and life to one of solitude. The bandsmen and as many as could crouch there, remained in the bandstand and wound up the programme with "Jolly Blacksmiths" and "God Save the Queen." The main purpose of the concert had been achieved, however. Mayor Spencer, Mr. Shuttleworth and Ald. Yates commenced to count the receipts on the spot. It was no easy job. There were a number of $10, $5 and $1 bills, but the majority of the contributions were in 5 and 10 cent pieces. After an hour's work they found the total was a fraction over $260.

It requires but a small amount now to make up an additional $1,000 to be forwarded to St. Johns and the charitably disposed who have not already subscribed should lose no time in handing in their donations to the mayor.

THE INFANT'S APPEAL!

Though Unuttered or Unexpressed, it Should Touch the Mother's Heart!

What a time of distress, pain, agony and suffering for the weak and helpless babe!

You recognize the fact, mother, that this is July weather—the heated season—when the sun pours down its fiercest rays on things animate and inanimate! You are sweltering, hot and uncomfortable! Have you ever thought of baby's condition?

If you have not, mother, let us draw your attention to the fact that baby is a terrible sufferer just now! Look well on the little face as you have baby on your lap, or while it tosses in its cot; and if you cannot discern restlessness, trouble and suffering, you are no judge of baby nature.

The true mother should easily understand that appealing look—that craving for something that baby's life depends upon.

That mute appeal calls for a satisfying diet—a digestible food during the terribly hot weather. Baby has been fed on cow's milk of a very poor quality, which hardly appeases the pangs of thirst, much less satisfying its hunger. Baby, perhaps, from three to five times a day, is fed on some of the common artificial foods. It is more than likely that these articles of diet—stale milk, skimmed milk and poorly prepared foods, have caused some intestinal derangement, perhaps irritation of the digestive organs or inflammation of the stomach.

Baby's mute appeal calls for relief from these troubles that lead on to death and the grave. Baby asks for a food that it can relish, a food that will strengthen and invigorate during the depressing heat of summer. In short, baby silently appeals for Lactated Food, in order that it may live and thrive.

Will you respond to this desire of the baby, dear mother, or will you see it withering away with disease? If baby is fed on Lactated Food, it surely escapes every summer complaint, and becomes bright and happy.

It will be well to remember the words of one of our best Canadian physicians who regularly prescribes Lactated Food. He says:

"Mothers in Canada should bear in mind that Lactated Food is meat and drink for the young infant; it is a blessing to all tender children during the heat of summer."

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Treatment of Domestic Assistants.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

In one of the articles of the Friday evening's issue of the ADVERTISER, astonishment is expressed at the fact that girls of to-day choose to work in manufactories of any and all kinds, with long hours and hard work, in preference to doing housework. There must be a cause. Ought not we to inquire into the cause of this their choice? Christians and fellow-workers, have any of us in our employ a girl—one who on leavers to do the will of God, one of Christ's own little flock? If so, how do we treat her? Do we speak kindly and affectionately to her? Do we give her a welcome seat at our table? Do we introduce her to our friends or have a friendly talk with her when an opportunity is afforded? Do we give her the full benefit of the Lord's Day, which is so essential to her after a hard week's work? Do we treat her as we might wish to be treated were circumstances reversed? Has she not a right to this? Are we not all children of the same Father? All sons and daughters of the same King? Are we not all heirs with Jesus Christ, our Elder Brother, to the same inheritance which is incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away? Are we not to a certain extent responsible to our Master for the spiritual life and growth in grace of her whom God has placed under our roof? Brethren, let us look at this matter, and endeavor in this, as in other things, to follow the example of our Saviour, who was a friend of the poor and a father of the fatherless; who also said, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you; learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

Let us then treat our girls with kindly Christian love, and see if they do not leave their present positions and cheerfully render us that assistance in housework which at present seems so difficult to be obtained.

The Carling Brewery Assessment.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Can you tell us through your valuable paper what course we should take to set aside that most iniquitous judgment of the Court of Revision in reducing the Carling Brewing Company's assessment by about $30,000, whereby the city looses about $600. It seems to us that if there is any appeal the council should take action in the matter as they are elected to look after the interests of the people. We would also like to ask the court the following questions:

1. Was it legal for the chairman, Ald. Judd, to act as counsel, judge and jury in the case; as it was his firm, represented by Mr. Ed Meredith that prosecuted the appeal?

2. If it was legal, was it seemly or honest?

3. Did the court take the necessary or any steps to ascertain the value of the building, land and plant, or did they simply take the statement of the stockholders and Mr. John Christie, all of whom would be interested in the success of the appeal?

4. Did they take the trouble to find out the amount of the insurance on the building, stock and plant, which would have been a guide to them in the matter?

5. Did the whole or some members of the court not know that the assessment should have been nearly doubled instead of being reduced?

6. Why was T. G. Meredith, the city solicitor, who is also solicitor for the C. B. Co, not employed instead of Mr. Ed. Meredith, of the firm of which the chairman is a member?

The workingman's cottage is assessed for more than it would sell for, and if he applies for a reduction the court would bluntly ask him if he would sell for less than the assessment, and if he, not wanting to sell his home, would answer no, then his assessment would be confirmed, but no such inconvenient questions were asked the Carling Brewing Company.

Of course the $30,000 thrown off Carling & Co. will have to be placed on the shoulders of the workingmen of this city, as so much money has to be raised anyway. Now, Mr. Editor, we know you take an interest in the workingman, would you kindly ventilate this matter, as if things are allowed to go on the only thing in the city that will bear the burden of taxation will be the Workingman's house and lot.

Yours, SEVERAL WORKINGMEN.

The Power of the Money King.

Money talks in the politics of the nation, as well as in Tammany Hall. Mr. Harrison did not want Clarkson as manager of his committee, and he showed his strength by forcing Clarkson to resign. Then the President brought the power of his position and his machine to bear upon Mr. Campbell, of Chicago, and Mr. Campbell was made president of his committee, upon which everybody said, "Great is the power of the President." So it was all cut and dried and more morals were drawn of the great power of the executive. But a great millionaire who kills hogs in Chicago decided that Campbell should not be the chairman of the National Committee, and though the power of the Administration was influenced to the utmost, it was utterly fruitless compared with the power of millions, and so Mr. Campbell withdrew. Depew might have been Secretary of State; the power of the executive was again brought into play, but the duties of the Secretary of State clashed with the interests of a Vanderbilt, and Mr. Depew, like Mr. Campbell, remains the trusted and sagacious adviser of a great millionaire. The "influence and power" of the President have been brought upon Mr. Carnegie, but they have as little effect upon the great iron-master as the bleating of one of the kids on his Scotch estate. And so the story goes on. Politics are great. The President is a man of marvelous power, but how small the President and politics appear when one of the great money kings of the land chooses for a moment to exercise his power!—[New York Truth.

British Grain Trade.

LONDON, July 18.—The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: English wheats are unsettled and the markets are generally 2s lower. Country exchanges are quiet at an average price of 30s, but sales have been made at the Norfolk and some of the Midland markets as low as 27s. Foreign wheats are weak in London and firm in Liverpool. The arrivals of American and Indian wheat continue in excess of the demand. American winter sells at 29s 6d and Californian at 34s. Corn is firmer at 21s 6d. Barley is weak; Russian has fallen to 16s 6d. Rye is firm at 33s. Oats are quiet; mixed American sell at 16s 6d. At to-day's market there was a rather better feeling, though trade was not brisk. English wheats sold steadily, maintaining the rates. Foreign wheats were a turn dearer for American and Californian old crop. Flour was in request; American was especially firm. Barley was depressed at 16s 3d. Oats were firm at a rise of 3d. Corn was steady. The prices of beans and peas favored buyers. Linseed was 3d dearer.

CHICAGO, July 19.

A fair volume of business was transacted on the board to-day despite the fears of traders in connection with the expected consideration of the Hatch Bill by the Senate to-day. In the wheat pit prices at the close were unchanged from yesterday's market. Corn lost ⅛c, being weak on the warm weather and the rapid improvement reported in the condition of the crop and the free realizing sales, and oats acted in sympathy with corn. There was some realization by the provision clique which resulted in lower prices for that product.

Manville Again Lowers the Record.

Starting last night at 7 o'clock, Clay Manville of the "London Wheelmen" succeeded in again lowering the record to St. Thomas on a Pneumatic 'Triumph" bicycle. His time was 53½ minutes. His intention was to lower the Port Stanley time as well, but he sustained a severe fall which caused a delay to repair his wheel.

Companions "At Home."

There was a pleasant gathering last evening in Court Brighton's hall, South London, the occasion being a sociable "at home" given by Forest Home Circle, No. 67, A. O. F., Companions of the Forest. Comp. A. E. White filled the chair, and in a few pointed remarks explained the objects for which the Companions of the Forest were working. The principal entertainers were Mr. Lou Hessel, Miss Mary Moorehouse, Miss Clare Tynan, and Miss Minnie Dawe, who gave recitations, songs and instrumental selections. During an intermission ice cream and cake were served by the ladies of the circle.

A Lonely Death.

Last night the police, who had been notified by neighbors, broke in the door and found old Mrs. Carthrae dead in bed at her residence on Nelson street, just west of Wellington street. She had not been around for some days, and the residents in the vicinity began to suspect something was wrong. The old lady was 84 years of age and lived alone. A neighbor heard her coughing in the morning, and it is supposed she died from helplessness, old age and lack of nourishment combined. The body was taken to Hinton's undertaking establishment and a son in Ingersoll was sent for. Coroner Flock considered an inquest unnecessary.

At the Police Court.

It required three lawyers and nearly two hours of the police magistrate's time this morning to settle the assault cases of Fox vs. Beckett and Beckett vs. Fox. Contractor Crawford Beckett is laying the block pavement on Clarence street. He caught Abraham Fox making off with cedar block chips the other day and took him by the collar. Isaac Thomas Fox rushed out to help his papa and claims that Beckett's fists came into severe collision with his (Fox's) head and body. The whole neighborhood and all Beckett's employes were summoned to tell what they knew about the affair, which seemed to be an all-around scrimmage. The charge against Beckett of felonious assault was dismissed but he was fined $10 and costs for common assault. Beckett's similar charge against Isaac Fox was dismissed. The former will lay an information against Fox for appropriating the chips which the contractor claims were of use to him. Fox had been forbidden to take them before.

James Chisholm was remanded for a week for using abusive language to Mrs. Naughton.

Young George Johnston arrived in the city this morning from Hamilton to look for work, as such a thing could not be found at home. His first occupation was that of stealing fruit from Archibald McInnis. Johnston's face will be turned towards Hamilton by the police and he will be told to journey in that direction.

THE TOTAL VOTE.

HONORS FOR EDWARD BLAKE.

LONDON, July 19.—At the National Liberal Club Mr. Blake is, after the elections, to be entertained at a dinner and he will make the formal presentation of Mr. Forbes' painting of Mr. Gladstone to that gentleman on behalf of the Liberals of Canada.

THE TOTAL VOTE.

LONDON, July 19.—The following totals represent the entire vote cast at the recent elections: Tories and Unionists, 2,146,946; Opposition, 2,417,586.

BRITISH PRESS OPINIONS.

LONDON, July 20.—The Times says: On paper the Parnellite vote looks insignificant, but its importance is far greater than it appears on the surface. The Parnellites' bitterness toward Gladstone has in nowise lessened since Parnell's death, and the election methods of the Anti-Parnellites have not increased their love for them. The Parnellites will lose no opportunity to impale the Gladstonians and the Anti-Parnellites on the thorns of a dilemma, and no circumstance will deter them from voting with the Unionists if revenge prompts such a course. As Lord Salisbury has no business to bring up before Parliament, it is not clear why a speech from the throne should be produced at all. Mr. Balfour could intimate to Mr. Gladstone that no Government business would be introduced, thus leaving the Opposition to eject the Government by a vote of "no confidence." The Government has no desire to remain in office an hour after Mr. Gladstone has arrayed the majority against it. Gladstone will find no delays in the post. He will be met wroudly and firmly by the Unionists, who are determined that there shall be another appeal to the country before a policy that has been studiously concealed from the electors of England is forced upon them against their declared convictions by Welsh and Irish separatist votes.

The Chronicle says: We advise Gladstone to begin immediately with an autumn session devoted to registration reform, "one man one vote," and London home rule measures. Then with a Cabinet perchantly tinctured with radicalism, Gladstone may, between this, have enormously strengthened his hand with the people and noticeably lightened the Irish task.

A Practical Lover.

A most practical lover has been discovered at West Hartlepool, England. In one of his letters to his sweetheart he wrote: "I wish, my darling, that you would not write me such long letters. The shorter the letters the more we save from the lawyers."

Adam Graeme, of Mossgray.

By Mrs. Oliphant.

The next morning rose brightly in all the brilliant joy of June, and as early as I could venture, I set out for Greenshaw. The slight morning traffic of those quiet Fendie streets—the cottage wives, upon its outskirts, going about their cheerful household labor—the domestic sounds that came pleasantly from the wayside houses—I remember them with the sunshine of my own joy over all, giving harmony and finest keeping to the homely picture. At last I approached the well-known holly hedge. A woman stood at the gate looking down the lane; the parlor-blinds were closed; there was a look of excitement about the house, as if something unusual had happened. I hurried on, noticing that in my haste, but too pleasantly expectant to think of it.

The woman at the door was Mr. Johnstone's factotum—a sensible, matronly person, who exercised the more laborious duties of housekeeper, for which Lilias was too inexperienced and young.

"Good morning, Margaret," I said, as I came up and was about to pass in.

Margaret stretched out her hand to stop me.

"Oh, Mossgray!"

There was evident distress and trouble on her face. A slight tremor of alarm came over me.

"Has anything happened?" I said.

"What is the matter, Margaret?"

"Ower muckle—ower muckle," said the housekeeper of Greenshaw, lifting her apron to her eyes; "oh, for onysake dinna gang in!—and yet ne maun ken—there's nae use trying to keep it frae him."

The last part of the sentence was spoken under her breath; I became very much agitated.

"What is it, Margaret? Is Lilias ill? What has happened?"

"I'll tell ye, Mossgray," said Margaret, quickly, the arm which she had extended to bar my entrance falling to her side. "It wad be dearly telling her, she had been ill this day. She'll live yet to ken, that the sorest fever that ever chained a mortal to a sick bed wad hae been blessed tether o' her willful feet this wofu' morning. Dinna think o' her, Maister Adam. I ken it's hard, but ye maun try; dinna think o' her—she's no wurdy o't."

I clutched the woman's arm, angry and eager. I could not speak.

"Well, then, she's gane—she's away—her that was the light o' our e'en—that we couldna see ill in—that I've heard ye even to the very angels, Mossgray. She's gane—fled out from her father's house with yon young haverel o' a doctor, that has neither wealth to keep, nor wit to fend for her. Oh, guid forgive me, Mr. Adam! what have I done?"

My face alarmed her, I fancy. I pressed blindly in—Walter Johnstone stood before me. I was close upon him before I was aware of his presence; I looked in his face.

He turned from me with a burst of emotion, which seemed to wake me from some terrible nightmared sleep.

"Mossgray, I did not know it—I had no suspicion of this. Believe me, Adam, believe me, that I am blameless! She has deceived us all!"

I felt a hoarse contradiction struggling from my dry lips—still I could not hear her blamed. Then I turned away; I could hold no further parley with any one; I hurried into the sheltering solitude of my own lonely house.

The bright world without mocked and scorned me—the passers-by looked wonderingly at my stricken face. I could not linger by the water-side now, in the first shock of my vanished and ruined dreams. I fled into this solitary room, within the silent walls of which so many slow years have passed since then, and threw myself into my chair, and pressed my throbbing head between my hands. It was only then that I realized what had come upon me.

I am an old man now, and these passionate struggles of youth have faced in the far distance, veiled in the gentler mists of memory. Yet I do remember them—I do remember me of minute and trifling things—the open book lying there upon this floor—the solitary lily drooping in its vase—the snowy leaf that had fallen upon the window-ledge below; and how the pale and fierce light of my calamity fixed the image of them forever on the tablets of my heart. I remember—it is not such seasons that men can forget.

I had lost her forever—alas! that was not all—she had never been. The conviction forced itself upon me till I grew well-nigh mad. I dashed my clinched hands into the air; I could not restrain the wild fit of passion, the irrational frenzy that possessed me. I was alone! the things which I had worshiped and made my idols were things of air—mists of my early morning, melting away before the stern and sober light—and I was left here desolate, forlorn, and solitary, and there was nothing true under the sun.

It is a bitter and sorrowful thing to mourn for the dead—to lament over those who have gone away out of this shadowy land into the brighter country, where they yet are, and shall be, all the more sure in their wonderful existence that we see them not. But to mourn for those who have never been—to behold stars fall from your horizon, the glory of whose shining was but a phantasm of your brain, a creation of your own soul; to awake suddenly from your contemplation of some noble and beautiful spirit, the fairest that ever gladdened mortal vision, and to find that it is not, and was not, and that the place, which in your dream was illuminated by its glorious presence, is filled by a shadowy thing of unknown nature, which you never saw before—this is the bitterest of griefs. If there is sorrow more hard than this, I bow my head to it in fear and reverence; but this is my woe, and prince of woes.

Drifting from false anchorage, surrounded by spectral ships and ghostly receding shores, hopelessly driven over the treacherous sea; with no light but an indefinite twilight, sickening the faint heart with visions of shadowy haven and harbor, and false security. A world of mists—a universe of uncertain, unknown existences, which are not as you have dreamed, and among whom you must go forth alone, no longer devoutly to believe and warmly to love, but to grope darkling in the brightest noonday, to walk warily, shutting up the yearning heart within you, in jealous fear. It is hard to make this second beginning—hard to fight and struggle blindly against this sad necessity—yet the poor heart yields at last; either to put on the self-wounding mail of doubt and suspicion, or to live in dim and mournful patience, a hermit all its days.

CHAPTER VIII.

Oh! wherefore should I busk my heid?
Oh! wherefore should I kame my hair?
When my true love has me forsook,
And says he'll never loe me mair?
Oh, Mart'mas wind! when wilt thou blaw
And shake the dead leaves aff the tree?
Oh, gentle death! when wilt thou come
And take a life that wearies me?
—Old Ballad.

I took little notice of how months or weeks went after that era. I lost that summer time. It has fallen entirely from the reckoning of my life, leaving only some vestiges of what looks now like incipient madness behind; for I was entirely alone; shut out as much from that ordinary communication with the world, which painfully and beneficially compels the suppression of one's agony, as I was from all human sympathy, all kindness, all compassion. I had lost all; my dreams of a brighter home—my friends—all were gone. How Murray far away in India, and his sad sister Lucy alone in Murrayshaugh—to no others in the wide world could I look for any of those gentle offices which belong to friendship; and the one was thousands of miles away—the other was no less solitary, no less stricken than I.

I did not see her during the whole of that summer. Had there been no cloud overshadowing her own lot, I believe I might have sought the balm of Lucy's pity, and perhaps been in some degree comforted; but as it was I never sought to see her—I saw no one—I shut myself up through those scorching summer days—I remember yet how their unpitying sunshine sickened me to the very soul—in this solitary room. I wandered ghost-like on the water-side at night; I neglected everything that I had formerly attended to. I held no communication even with the servants of my lonely household, which I could possibly avoid. It was little wonder that they should think me crazed; the belief shot in upon my own brain sometimes like an arrow—almost the consciousness that I was mad.

I might have been—how soon I know not—but that I was mercifully snatched from the edge of the precipice.

(To be Continued.)

One Good Turn Deserves Another.

Fellow Passenger—Pardon me, your necktie has been sticking out for some time. I refrained from telling you sooner because those young ladies seemed so much amused.

Farmer—Thankee; and the oil from that lamp has been droppin' on that light overcoat o' yourn for the last ten minutes, but every one seemed so tickled that I hated to spoil the fun.

A bottle of Angostura Bitters to flavor your lemonade or any other cold drink will keep you free from Dyspepsia, Colic Diarrhea and all diseases originating from the digestive organs. Be sure to get the genuine Angostura, manufactured by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

When all is done human life is at the greatest and best, but, like a forward child, it must be played with and humored a little to keep it quiet till it falls asleep, and then all is over.—[Sir W. Temple.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

The one who will be found in trial capable of great acts of love is ever the one who is always doing considerable small ones.—[F. W. Robertson.

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

Is it not a thing divine to have a smile which, none know how, has the power to lighten the weight of that enormous chain which all the living in common drag behind them?—[Victor Hugo.

A Child Saved.

My little boy was taken very bad with diarrhea, he was very delicate and got so low we had no hope of his life, but a lady friend recommended Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and although he could only bear a few drops at a time he got well. It saved my child.

MRS. WM. STEWART, Campbellville, Ont.

The same people who can deny other people everything are famous for refusing themselves nothing.—[Leigh Hunt.

Chalalongkovn is the name of the king of Siam. His nephew, who is now visiting this country, is Prince Mom Rajawongse Pheen. The prince's father's name is Prawongteur Poa Oug Chow Seysonitwongse.

A Canadian Favorite.

The season of green fruits and summer drinks is the time when the worst forms of cholera morbus, diarrhea, and bowel complaints prevail. As a safeguard Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry should be kept in the house. For 35 years it has been the most reliable remedy.

Without tact you can learn nothing. Tact teaches you when to be silent. Inquirers who are always inquiring never learn anything.—[Disraeli.

The Only Remedy.

Gentlemen—I have used Burdock Blood Bitters for my blood and for pimples, and two bottles made a complete cure of my case. It is the only remedy I could find to help me.

MISS JULIA VIGER, Trenton, Ont.

Talkativeness has another plague attached to it, even curiosity; for praters wish to hear much that they may have much to say.—[Plutarch.

Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common Cathartic or Purgative Pills as they are extremely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

Love and death are the two great hinges on which all human sympathies turn.—[B. R. Haydon.

A man's wife should always be the same, especially to her husband; but if she is weak and nervous, and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they will make her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so, too.

In the Greeland dialect a single word frequently answers for whole sentences in English. Mr Whymper, a recent traveler, gives an instance. The sentence: "You must try much to get a good knife." Translated becomes: Savecenearreatoresooaratlaromaronatetok.

SCINTILLATIONS.

—Busch, the German caricaturist, is said to have made $1,000,000 by his funny work.

—The Prohibitionist party of the United States goes before the people for cold water and the limitation of land ownership. Its Presidential candidate has 23,000 acres of land in a single county in California. There is as much consistency in this as in some people's drinks.

—The bounties paid to the fishermen of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces in 1891 amounted to $167,000. Since 1882, when the bounty system was established they have pocketed $1,578,000. What is the matter with the sea fishermen of British Columbia that they do not get bounties! And why should not the lake fishermen of Ontario be bounty-fed, and the farmers of Ontario as well? The United States tariff presses as severely upon agriculture as upon fishing.

—Father Boullion, the Homestead priest whose parish building and church were erected largely by contributions from Andrew Carnegie, in a sermon after the riot, deplored the state of affairs which should cause the men of Homestead to be shot down by lawless invaders, almost at the doors of their own homes, and prayed for a speedy settlement of the difficulties in a triumph of the men, whether it be by battle or arbitration.

—The executive board of the Michigan Patrons met recently at St. Louis, Michigan. The members are, A. S. Partridge, president; F. H. Bathey, secretary; J. J. England, treasurer, and H. H. Daniels, D. Conklin and W. H. Bennett, directors. The business of the last quarter was finished and F. M. Undercook, of St. Louis, was awarded the contract for publishing the Patron's Guide for the ensuing year, of which 30,000 are now printed monthly. The membership of the order in Michigan, has been increased 3,700 since March 1. The next meeting of the board will be held at Lansing during the second week of September.

—The great steel works at Homestead cover 110 acres. Twelve big buildings and a score of smaller shops and sheds occupy much of the space. Among these are the converting mill, where Bessemer steel is made, the beam mill, the plate mill, the armor plate mill, the open hearth mill, the finishing department, the 10-inch, the 22-inch and the 119-inch mill, and the big plate pressing room. The water for the works comes from the Monongahela River and is sufficient in quantity to supply a town of 50,000. One hundred and fifty boilers run the great engines, the pumps and the steam hammers. Natural gas for fuel is furnished by the company's own wells. About 4,500 men are employed, and the output is four times as big as from the great Krupp works in Germany. The Carnegie Company has purchased 100 additional acres and will add it to the works next year. It is already fenced in by heavy barbed wire.

—Abram W. Smith, the Republican nominee for governor of Kansas, is a practical farmer and lives on a quarter section of land in McPherson county, which he took up as a homestead in 1872. He is a native of Maine, having been born at Hiram, Oxford county, Oct. 13, 1843. He received a common school education, and on the breaking out of the war enlisted in the Nineteenth United States Infantry and was made sergeant. He was mustered out of service in 1865 and went to Johnston, Pa., where he found employment in the Cambria iron works. He learned the trade of a machinist, at which he worked until he turned his face toward Kansas. Five times he has represented his county in the Kansas Legislature, the last term in 1887, being elected Speaker. In 1888 he was a candidate for the nomination for Governor, but was defeated by a combination of all the other candidates. It was in his canvass for that nomination that he was given the title of "farmer" in derision by his opponents. It has clung to him ever since. He is almost a giant in stature and is possessed of most robust health. He is a ready though not a polished speaker, and his campaign will be a vigorous stump canvass. Mr. Smith has promised to speak in every county in the State, a feat never before accomplished.

A JEALOUS COW.

She Gores Her Master Because He Nursed a Pup.

(From the London Spectator.)

A few years ago I had a quiet milch cow, Rose, which was fond of Thomas, the stableman, and also showed an aversion to dogs. One morning I had just begun to dress when I heard my puppy barking in the cowshed. The next minute I heard a roar of unmistakable fear and anguish—a human roar. I dashed down stairs, and at the same moment arrived my son pitch-fork in hand.

There lay Thomas on his face in a dry gutter by the side of the road to the cow-house and the cow butting angrily at him. We drove off the cow and poor Thomas scuffled across the road, slipped through a wire fence stood up and drew breath.

"Well, Thomas," said I, "what's the matter with Rose?"

"Well, sir," said Thomas, I heard the pup bark and untied him, and I was just coming out of the cow-house with the pup in my arms when Rose came round the corner. She knocked me down and would have killed me."

Thomas had, indeed, had a narrow escape; his trousers were ripped up from end to end, and red marks all along his legs showed where Rose's horns had grazed along them.

"Well," said I, "you'd better not milk her this morning, since she's in such a fury."

"Oh, I'll milk her right enough, sir, by-and-by; just give her a little time to settle down," said Thomas. "It's only jealous of that 'ere pup, sir. She couldn't abide seeing me a fondling of it."

In about twenty minutes Thomas called me down to see the milk. The cow had stood quiet enough to be milked. But the milk was deeply tinged with blood, and in half an hour a copious red precipitate had settled to the bottom of the pail. Till then I had doubted the jealousy theory. After that I believed.
