City Council Decide to Rush Public Improvements as Fast as Possible

Special Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon—Ald. O'Keefe Discusses Centre St. Sewer

A short special meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon to decide whether the public works at present under the course of construction shall be continued or stopped on account of the cold weather.

There were present at the meeting Mayor Cowan and Ald. Austin, Marshall, O'Keefe, Potter and Edmondson.

A report from the City Engineer was received on an asphalt block pavement on Wellington street from the market square to Sixth street. The Engineer thought it was too late to start this pavement this year and was also in favor of stopping the Raleigh street pavement before any of the road past the C. P. R. tracks is dug up.

Ald. O'Keefe thought the work should be continued as long as possible. The contractors take all the responsibility.

Ald. Edmondson agreed with Ald. O'Keefe. He thought it was to complete these works this year if possible.

Mr. Goodman, pavement contractor, who was present, thought there would be plenty of time to finish Raleigh street.

Engineer Jones referred to the Wellington street pavement, one of the worst jobs in the city. It was put down in cold weather.

Ald. Austin asked if the Raleigh street sewers were all right.

Mr. Jones—The sewers are all right. There have been no complaints lately.

Mr. Austin—I was in the City Clerk's office on Monday and a resident of Raleigh street was talking matters are not very satisfactory yet.

After considerable discussion it was decided to finish Raleigh street and if the weather is still favorable to proceed with Wellington street. The Engineer has power to stop the work whenever he deems it advisable.

The by-law for the Wellington street pavement was put through its various readings and the matter of the contract was left with the Board of Works with power.

The contract will be given to Blight & Fielder at the same rate on which the market pavement was put down.

The matter of the Centre street sewer came in for considerable discussion. The matter was finally left with the Board of Works and City Engineer to investigate.

GOOD CONCERT

The entertainment that was held in the A. U. M. P. Church, last Tuesday evening, was largely attended and proved very satisfactory to both churches that took part.

To make it more interesting a contest was arranged for, Miss Emma Simmons of the First Baptist Church, and Miss Nellie Williams, of the A. M. E. Church, being chosen as the two rivals.

The entertainment started at 8 o'clock, opening with the presentation of the first prize, a solid silver watch, being won by Miss Simmons, who collected $30.35, and the second prize, a solid gold ring, was won by Miss Williams, who received $22.90.

After the presentation a very well prepared program was rendered, which was as follows:—

Solo—Miss Anna Johnson, Instrumental—Messrs. Lynn and Murphy.

Duet—Misses Turner and Appleton.

Instrumental selection—Miss Lillian Lynn.

The total proceeds, which were $53.25, were divided equally between the two churches.

WORK PROGRESSES

The Windsor, Essex & Lake Shore Rapid Railway has elected the following permanent officers:—

President—W. L. Wilson, Port Huron.

Secretary—John W. Goodson, Detroit.

Treasurer—W. C. Crawford, Tilbury.

Managing Director—Philip Heesline, Detroit.

The contractor, who is grading the roadbed for the line between Windsor and Kingsville, has a large force of men at work, and with the exception of three miles of sandy road the work has been completed between Kingsville and Essex. A large gang of men has commenced grading north of Essex, and the contractor expects to have the entire line between Windsor and Kingsville ready for the steel by the latter part of November.

A vessel load of ties has been received at Kingsville for the new road.

SHOCKING, SAYS JUDGE

Enormous Fund For Corruption Purposes in Kingston.

"The Petitioner," Says Judge Street, "Has Proved Sufficient, In My Opinion, to Have the Election Set Aside"—The Election Will Probably Be Voided—Camen Told the Truth—No Names, But Cash Forthcoming.

Kingston, Nov. 2.—The Kingston election will probably be voided this morning. Just before the court rose last evening, Judge Street remarked: "The petitioner has proved sufficient, in my opinion, to have the election set aside." A few minutes before, he said: "The evidence has shown a most shocking state of affairs in Kingston."

About an hour before the court rose, the judges had retired for a few minutes, and both sides got together. When the judges returned, John McIntyre stated that if an adjournment was made until today, he thought the case would be settled.

Judge Street demurred at this, and said there could be an adjournment only for the purpose of probing to the bottom the source of the enormous fund for corruption purposes. He then called for further evidence and the case dragged on till 6.30.

The judges gave their decision in several reserved charges, and held one case proven, and in doing so, Judge Street made use of the expressions given above. The court will meet at 8.30 this morning, and it is understood that an agreement is likely to be reached whereby the protest will not be further pushed, nor the counter-protest, but the seat opened up again.

Corroborated Her Father.

Yesterday morning Miss Shortt, in part, corroborated her father's testimony about Halliday paying $15 for a rig that was used on election day, and just before noon Judge Street declared that the charge was proven, and that Halliday was an agent of Pense.

Charles James swore that, on the night before the election, he got two dollars from some unknown person, the Conservative party, and next day five dollars from Hubert Prevost, a Liberal, since deceased. The charge was held over.

Arthur Tate swore he got five dollars from a stranger in a conskin coat. The charge was dismissed.

Camen Tell the Truth.

Nearly the whole of the afternoon was taken up with charges of paying for corrupt purposes, and some sensational evidence was given. In nearly every case the cammen gave straightforward evidence, which was a refreshing change from much that preceded it. Half-a-dozen revealed the method adopted by the Liberals.

A typical case will suffice: Frank Gallagher swore: "I heard that the cammen were to go to R. H. Toyes' office, and I went in and put my name on it. I saw a list of names on the wall. The night before election a note was left at my house, unsigned, but telling me at what subdivision I was to report. Some time after the election I found a package on my cab seat $75 in it—$25 for each cab."

William Christley, Joseph Eves and Daniel Eves each got $50 for two cabs. Joseph Eves gave the package for himself and his brother at night, and swore he got it from Joseph Kehoe.

The statement caused quite a sensation in court. Kehoe was recently appointed caretaker of the postoffice, and has been missing for over a month.

No Signatures, But the Cash.

Chas. Wilson, a lively-looking man, swore that he got an unsigned note to send six rigs. Afterwards, an unsigned message came that he would get his money by going to the Liberal rooms.

He went in and got an envelope on the table with $100 in it. Joseph Kehoe was the only person in the room. R. Wilson got $40 for three rigs, the money being left in an envelope at his office, and a paper with "for rigs" on it. There was no name to solve the mystery.

The Liberals had their innings with three of the witnesses. Charles Wilson swore that he got $40 from John Sowards, president of the Macdonald Club, and Thomas James that he was offered $75 for two cabs by Sowards, but refused, as he was a Reformer, and the Liberals were giving him $50.

R. Wilson said he got $40 also from the Conservatives for three rigs. Judge Street held that the evidence established the fact that Kehoe paid for cabs, and W. G. Craig's evidence showed him to be an active worker for Mr. Pense. No direct decision was given, however, on these cases.

It is understood that Mr. Mabey, counsel for Pense, is strongly opposed to abandoning the cross-petition.

BAD FIRE AT WINGHAM.

Button Block Totally Destroyed—Occupants Jump For Life.

Wingham, Nov. 2.—The Button Block was destroyed by fire yesterday morning at 5 o'clock. What is left is not worth $50. The total loss is $12,000, with $6,400 insurance.

Five families lived in the block. They had narrow escapes and saved their things. Charles Swanson had to drop his wife out of the window one storey. Several jumped for their lives.

Those in the block were Mr. and Mrs. Alex. G. Gault, Charles Swanson and wife, L. Biddle and wife, T. Fells, wife and two children and Mrs. McLean.

RUSS REIGN OF TERROR

Cossacks War on the People and Kill Hundreds.

Odessa and Kazan Reported As the Storm Centre—Repetition of the Slaughter of July Is Expected—Deploable Feature of the Uprisings Is That Jews Are the Objects of Attack and Pillage.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 2.—Though yesterday passed in comparative quiet here and in Moscow, despatches from all parts of the Empire report disorders in many cities with a heavy toll of dead or wounded. The people, while celebrating their new found freedom, were in many instances set upon by Cossacks and police, while in other localities the spirit of mob violence broke forth and the lower elements of the population gave themselves up to pillage and destruction.

The most serious disorders apparently occurred in Odessa, where hundreds of persons are reported to have been killed or wounded and where rioting momentarily is expected to flare into a repetition of the slaughter of last July, and at Kazan, where a three days' reign of terror was ended only by the retirement of all Cossacks to their barracks.

A deploable feature of the news from the interior is that anti-Jewish uprisings have occurred in many places, especially in South Russia, where the populace vented its hatred of the Jews by sacking their stores and clubbing the members of the race, in some cases resorting to the torch.

The attacks on the crowds are reported to be in most cases the work of Cossacks, who many times apparently were let loose upon the people without direction or authority.

In St. Petersburg, yesterday, Gen. Trepot in accordance with his announcement of Tuesday night, prevented the resumption of the revolutionary demonstrations, by having the crowds dispersed whenever and wherever they gathered. Kazan place and the Nevsky Prospect were several times cleared by Cossacks and police and the crowds were driven from the vicinity of the university with whips and flats of sabres. Gen. Trepot was aided by the weather, which was cold and rainy and which kept many persons off the streets.

Count Witte's task in securing a fair trial for the new experiment in constitutionalism is a most difficult one. He is disappointed at not securing the support of the Liberals on whose co-operation he counted.

An Imperial ukase dated yesterday reorganizing the Council of Ministers, states that the president of the council will be chosen by the Emperor and that the representatives of the chiefs of various departments to the Emperor will be communicated beforehand to the president of the council who will also receive communications regarding all measures taken by the heads of departments. The ukase further provides that all officials, except military, naval, diplomatic and court officers, be subject to previous approval by the Council of Ministers. Finally, all legislative bills presented by the Ministers to the Duma for the State Council, must first be submitted to the Council of Ministers.

HAIL THE NEW FLAG.

Swedish Ensign of Ante-Norway Days Flashed Once More.

Stockholm, Nov. 2.—The old union flag was struck throughout Sweden yesterday, and the new Swedish ensign was hoisted to the accompaniment of salutes, the ringing of church bells and parades of troops.

In Stockholm the whole garrison paraded, and most of the population thronged the streets. At 9 o'clock the flag flown by Sweden before the union with Norway nearly a century ago was again broken out over the palaces, from church steeples, public and private buildings and steamers and sailing vessels.

King Oscar witnessed the spectacle from the roof of the palace, and tens of thousands of citizens gather in the vicinity and demonstratively greeted him. Similar ceremonies occurred in all the cities.

FIVE MISSIONARIES MURDERED.

Thought to Have Been Killed at Lienchow, China.

Hong Kong, Nov. 2.—Five American missionaries have, it is believed, been murdered at Lienchow. Details of the affair have not yet been received.

Lienchow is a town of 12,000 people, situated in the western portion of the Province of Kwan Tung, at the head of the Gulf of Tong King, not far from the treaty port of Pakhoi.

Dr. Eleanor Chestnut, Mrs. E. C. Machle and child, and Mr. and Mrs. Peale are the victims of the disturbance at the Lienchow mission.

Occurred Oct. 22.

Hong Kong, Nov. 2.—Reports from Canton say that the murder of the missionaries occurred Oct. 22.

Wood Alcohol Kills Two.

Winnipeg, Nov. 2.—As the result of drinking wood alcohol, Charles Ennis and Peter Hill are dead. Hill died just after being removed from the ambulance. Angus Lafrance, who drank from the same bottle, is still at the hospital in a dangerous condition.

Twelve Cars Smashed.

Belleville, Nov. 2.—A rear-end collision occurred on the Midland Railway, near Foxboro, Tuesday night, when a way freight coming south ran into a north train. Nobody was hurt, but twelve cars were smashed and traffic was delayed for hours.

Some Distinguished Visitors Present—Grand Master Burritt Successfully Performs Interesting Ceremony

The dedication of the new Masonic Temple in Chatham was the occasion of a grand festive ceremony last evening. The members of the craft from far and near assembled in the magnificent new rooms in the Seam Block and assisted the local Lodge in opening one of the finest lodge rooms in Ontario.

There were present delegates from all over Western Ontario. They included the following distinguished gentlemen: M. W. Bro. J. H. Burritt, K. C., who dedicated the new Temple; M. W. Bro. TIME FOR A CHANGE

Galt Reporter.—The Hon. Nelson Monfith will perhaps incur the displeasure of a few directors as he proceeds to reorganize the Fall Exhibition business, but the people generally will see in the movement to squelch unworthy enterprises, not to speak of fairly respectable societies, a step in the direction. Many societies have outlived their usefulness, while the general trend is towards decay. It is time for a change.

A PEACEFUL REVOLUTION?

The event seems to justify the apprehension previously expressed in The Toronto Star that the Russian revolution is "not going to stick." The despatches indicate that the Czar's manifesto comes too late, and that there must be a period of anarchy before Russia can settle down to the enjoyment of real liberty.

The revolutionaries regard the manifesto with reasonable suspicion. It is a very vague and inconclusive document, and needs a great deal of amending in the way of explicit statement before one straight, irrevocable promise can be read into it. Even if that were not so and the manifesto went as far as it pretends, it would not be far enough to suit the radicals; and the radicals, not the moderates, are the people who have to be reckoned with in these national upheavals.

Witte is a strong man, and his efforts command admiration. He seems to have the idea that you can bandy words with a volcano. Lafayette had the same notion more than a century ago. Necker tried it. Even Mirabeau was not unhopful of damping the flood-tide. But no man could stand against that stupendous deluge. The people had to have their constituent assembly, their terror, their first Empire, before liberty, equality, and fraternity were knocked into the crowned heads of Europe and became working forces in politics.

Russia may accomplish a peaceful revolution, but it is not likely. The people have a long score to settle. It is not human nature, nor, one ventures to think, is it divine justice, that the oppressor should go scot-free.

HAD A BUMPER HOUSE.

Over 2,000 People See the Stoddard Company at the Grand.
Probably the largest audience which has yet patronized the Grand performances filled the large theatre last night, it being estimated that over 2,000 people were present.

The play put on by the Stoddards was Hall Caine's "The Christian," and its production was eminently satisfactory. Last night the audience included hundreds of London's discriminating and critical theatre-goers, and the verdict at the conclusion of the play was that the cast had presented "an interpretation which was very fair indeed."

"I'LL HELP YOU FIND HER."

In "The Christian" the characters of Glory Quayle and John Storm stand out above all others. Last night Miss Stoddard appeared as Glory, and her acting proved highly satisfactory. Mr. Stewart as John Storm proved himself, as usual, a capable and convincing actor. All the other characters were well taken and the play was well costumed and staged.

"The Christian" will be repeated to-night and to-morrow night, when the bill will be changed. — London, Ont., Free Press.

This company comes to the Grand Opera House for one week, commencing next Monday night, at popular prices—10, 20 and 30 cents.

16 MILLS IN PORT ARTHUR.

Earnings of Public Franchises Show Net Profit of $23,145.90.

Port Arthur, Nov. 1.—Port Arthur this year will enjoy the lowest tax rate in its history—16 mills. This rate is struck on assessment of $3,332,111, and is made possible because of the earnings of the public franchises which show a total net profit for the year of $23,145.90, leaving the net amount to be raised by general tax of $34,180.

The earnings are divided among franchises thus: Electric railway, net profits, $5,599.10; electric light, $13,327.70; telephone, $2,617.10.

These figures are, after all expenses, including interest and sinking fund, and $3,000 death claim on railway are allowed for.

OLD AGE.

Old age as it comes in the orderly process of Nature is a beautiful and majestic thing. The very shadow of old age is a thing that makes the more prized the wisdom and counsel. That is old age as it should be. But old age as it so often is means nothing but a second childhood of mind and body. What makes the difference? Very largely the care of the stomach. The full strength of manhood it does not seem to matter how we treat the stomach. We abuse it, overwork it, injure it. We do not suffer from it much but when age comes the stomach is worn out. It can't prepare and distribute the needed nourishment to the body, and the body, un-nourished, falls into senile decay. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a wonderful medicine for old people whose stomachs are weak, and whose digestions are poor. Its invigorating effects are felt by mind as well as body. It takes the sting from old age, and makes old people strong.

SICK HEADACHE

Many varieties of headache exist, those most prevalent being sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, etc.

Headache is an effect of disease, the cry of the suffering body for relief from some depressing disorder.

Undoubtedly the cause must be removed in order to cure the headache permanently. Wrong action of the stomach, liver or bowels is responsible for nine out of ten cases of headache.

In sick headache (a very common form) there is sometimes nausea and vomiting and usually constipation.

In nearly all forms of headache

has proved itself a specific—a medicine that has cured where all others failed.

Keep the stomach, liver and bowels in perfect working order by the use of nature's regulator and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters, which cures all forms of headache by removing the cause.

Miss L. Smith, Morrisburg, Ont., writes: "I desire to let you know how much good Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled with headaches all the time, and could get no relief, until a friend told me of your Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking two bottles of it, I can say that I am completely cured."

U. S. Stops Execution.

Constantinople, Nov. 1.—The preparations which were going on for the execution of Ghrikis Vartanian, who claims American citizenship, and who was condemned to death for the murder of a prominent Armenian, were suddenly stopped Monday on the receipt of a note from the United States legation, setting forth in unequivocal terms that such an act would inevitably produce serious consequences.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. It effectively cleans and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

These are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from the continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion, to relieve the breath, the mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

The Alberta Nominations.

Edmonton, Alta., Nov. 1.—Nominations here yesterday generally passed off quietly, and Liberals, with at least two more candidates in the field, express themselves confident of victory. On the other hand, Conservatives are relying strongly on a campaign among the silent voters, and claim majorities in all but one of the seats south of the line. Next week will be the hottest in the campaign.

Three seats, namely, Athabasca, Peace River and St. Albert, went Government by acclamation.

The People Will Decide.

Christiania, Nov. 1.—The Storting here, by a vote of 37 to 23, adopted the proposition of the Government, that it be endowed with full power to negotiate with Prince Charles of Denmark for his acceptance of the Crown of Norway, with the understanding that the wishes of the people be consulted in the form of a referendum.

The motion of for a referendum as to whether a Republic or monarchical form of government shall be adopted was rejected by 88 to 30.

THANKSGIVING DAY

The Wornout Nerves, The Weak Heart, The Tired Brain, The Wasted Strength.

What a multitude of women there are who feel that these words exactly suit their case. From early morn until late at night they have been on the go, year in and year out, attending to the daily household duties, looking after the wants of her children and spending the rest of her time attending to social and church work. Is it any wonder then that sooner or later there comes a general collapse? The action of the heart becomes weak and palpitating, the nerves become unstrung, the brain feels in a whirl half the time and the usual force of vitality is lacking.

It is at this time a woman should look after herself. If she does not, serious female disorders may set in and often cause weary months and years of helplessness and miserable suffering. What she wants is something to build up the system. For this purpose there is nothing so equal

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

They are the women's friend in every sense of the word.

They will strengthen the weak heart, tone up the shaky, starved nerves, make the brain clear, and restore the lost vitality. Mrs. George Holmes, Stanley Section, N.S., writes: "I was greatly troubled with weak and dizzy spells and was so run down I could not attend to my household duties. I bought two boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and after taking them I found that my trouble had all passed away. I am now strong and healthy again."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25. If your dealer does not handle them, send dipost to The Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

KITCHEN HELPS.

Castors on all heavy kitchen furniture will save strength and aid in keeping the kitchen clean.

Two pads the size and shape of kettle holders, and sewed to a piece of tape are useful for lifting hot dishes out of an oven.

If a little ammonia is used every few days on brass faucets and tubes they will be kept bright and shining and with much less trouble than if polished only occasionally.

A saucepan in which rice, oatmeal or anything sticky has been cooked may be very easily cleaned by putting in a cupful of ashes when you take it off the fire and then fill with water.

A satisfactory way of preventing fish from tainting a refrigerator or any of its contents is to wrap the fish closely in a cloth wrung out of cold water. This will also prevent it from becoming hard and dry.

A head held seldom goes with a soft heart.

A woman never admits that she has a desire for man's admiration.

Silence is always safe, and is frequently the smartest we can say.

When the Deacon Spoke

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1905, by R. B. McClure

No one ever doubted that Deacon Haskell, farmer, meant to be a kind husband and a just father, but there was Puritan blood in his veins, and his ways were harsh and arbitrary. There were those who said he was domineering and obstinate, but, to give the deacon his due, he was simply carrying out what he called principles. It was a principle of his to go to bed on the stroke of 9, and his wife had to do the same. Had an earthquake or a cyclone prevented the good wife from doing the family washing on Monday and the family baking on Tuesday the husband would have made no excuses for her. During the earlier days of her marriage the deacon's wife had opinions of her own, but before she had been his wife five years she gave them up. The thinking and expressing in that house was all done by the deacon. There was a daughter, Ruth, and up to the age of thirteen she was under the same influence as her mother. At that age she went to another state to live with an aunt, and did not return until she was sixteen. The amazement of the father when he met her at the village railroad depot was intense. In fact, it kept him dumb all the way home. Ruth had become some one else—that is, she was like the average girl of sixteen who had been allowed the usual liberties and hadn't been crushed every time she laughed or spoke. She had a hat with flowers on it; she had a dress made by a dressmaker; she had shoes that cost $3; she even had kid gloves; she was also chatty and spoke of her father as "dad."

TWO THOUSAND BEES CLUNG TO HIM.

The deacon realized that there was a big undertaking on hand for him. Ruth had got out from under his influence and must be squelched. The only reproof he administered on the way home was his silence, but she did not seem to mind that in the least. Just how to begin the squelching bothered the father a bit for two or three days, and he waited for an excuse. At last he found one. Among Ruth's baggage was a hammock. There were locust trees in the front yard to suspend it from, but such a thing as a hammock had never appeared on that farm. It was extravagance, profanity, flying in the face of Providence, Ruth put it up while her father was hoeing corn one afternoon, and she was not only lying in it when he came up to supper, but also was reading a love story. The deacon hardly waited to hang up his hoe on the limb of a cherry tree. Standing before the girl, he exclaimed hoarsely: "Get out of that!" "Why, daddy, what is it?" she asked. "You are disgracing me and yourself! People are looking at you as they drive by!" "But I'm only lying in a hammock." "And I tell you to get out. It's a shame and a disgrace. The next thing you'll be doing is to ride horseback." "I was going to ask you if I might do that tomorrow."

That was the beginning of the squelching process. From that time on for a week the deacon nagged and ordered and lectured. He couldn't prevent Ruth from having opinions and from talking back, but he managed to make her very uncomfortable. At length she positively refused to obey him in something, and after turning very pale and swallowing at the lump in his throat, he went out to the barn to think things over. Ruth was too big to be cuffed or whipped, and it was plain that she did not intend to surrender her opinions. After puzzling over the matter for a long time the father returned to the house.

"Ruth," he began, "you have seen fit to set my authority at defiance. Until you have a change of heart and ask my pardon I shall not speak to you again." That was the way the deacon had brought his wife around to his way of thinking in the early days. He had refused to speak to her for days or weeks at a time, and the strata was more than she could stand. With Ruth, however, the case was different. The hammock was taken down and she did not ride horseback nor walk around on stilts. She would have had beans but for the father. As he was not speaking to her he did not forbid her, but when a young man called things were made so unpleasant for him that he never repeated his visit.

As the summer passed and winter came on there were candy pulls and spelling schools. Both were the height of sacrilege in the deacon's eyes, and he groaned in spirit and gritted his teeth when he knew that his daughter attended them.

It was in June that the deacon had vowed not to speak to his daughter again until she had become repentant. Now and then, as time passed, the wife ventured to say something to her husband, but only to find him obdurate. What he had said he had said. What he had said must be right because he had said it, and he would therefore stick to it until the day of his death.

"Let Ruth get down on her knees to me and confess that she has done wrong and I will speak to her, and perhaps forgive her," was invariably his answer, but time continued to pass and Ruth did not kneel.

One day the deacon's wife was called to the bedside of a neighbor. The deacon had a dozen swarms of bees, and as he came up from the field about 2 o'clock that afternoon he found one of the hives swarming. He ran for a tin pan and began to beat it, and in his excitement he almost spoke to his daughter, who was working in the garden. He caught himself in time, though, and resumed his beating and grubbing around. A spare hive should have been ready, but was not. The bees therefore circled and buzzed around for ten minutes and finally began to light. Unfortunately for the deacon they lighted on him. In two minutes they had covered his straw hat and neck; in two more they were clinging to his shoulders in great masses.

As she planted her hollyhock and sunflower seeds Ruth heard a still, small voice utter her name. She investigated and found that her father had become a king bee. His back resembled a pear, and he was terribly frightened. Two thousand bees clung to him, and if he disturbed them he was a dead man.

"Well, daddy," asked the girl as she stopped within ten feet of him. "Ruth, you will find an empty hive in the barn. Get it and smear some 'lasses over the front of it."

"Are you really speaking to me, daddy?" "Of course I am. Can't you see the fix I'm in?"

"But you were not to speak again until I beg your pardon." "Go after that hive. Do you want to see me sting to death?"

"The bees are quiet now. About that hammock, daddy—may I have it up this summer?"

"No—that is, I guess you can."

"And may I ride one of the horses?"

"If they are not too tired."

"And I may climb trees and jump fences?"

"Are you going for that hive?"

"When you answer."

"Then climb and jump all you want to."

"One more question, daddy. May I have young men come here to see me?"

The deacon groaned.

"May I? The bees seem to be getting angry."

"Yes, have 'em and be hanged to you!" shouted the deacon, using slang for the first time in fifteen years.

The hive was brought and smeared with sweet stuff, and presently the bees began to find their way into it. At the end of ten minutes the deacon shook himself, drew a long breath and said to his daughter:

"If you ever tell mother or any one else about it I'll box your ears, big as you are!"

What the Parish Needed.

An excellent example of the humor of parish deacons is related by the Rev. Dr. Gillespie in his "Humors of Scottish Life."

Two ministers of neighboring parishes exchanged pulpits one Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Peebles officiating in a parish church which shall be nameless. After the service Mr. Peebles said to the deacon:

"George, I hope the people would not think my sermon was so short today."

"A' dinn think they would, sir, but may I make bold to ask what ye're inquiring for?"

"Well, you see, George, when it was arranged that I was to preach here today I selected a sermon and laid it down on a chair in my study. I have a dog which frequents the study very much. It got hold of the sermon, tore off the last four leaves and destroyed them entirely, so that I could make no use of them. But I thought that since I had chosen it, and I was afraid the people might consider it too short."

Quick as thought George asked:

"Oh, sir, could ye no get oor minister a pup o' that sort?"

Parliamentary Amenities.

Mr. Wood—My honorable friend was loaded this evening.

Mr. Norton—Surely the honorable member does not think that I allow any one to load me mentally, morally or physically. I pay for my own stuff and carry the consequences. I do not know what the honorable member means by saying that I am loaded. In the sense to which the honorable member may allude I have not been loaded for three weeks. Therefore I resent the imputation.

The Speaker—The honorable member must discuss the principles of the bill.

Mr. Norton—The honorable member for Bega says that I was loaded.

Mr. Wood—I did not say it offensively.

Mr. Norton—In that case I shall say no more about it.

Drowned Yards From Water.

An extraordinary story of a man coming from drowning on land was told at an inquest at Lewes, England, the other day. Ald. William Gates, lieutenant-colonel of the Sussex Royal Engineer volunteers, was found dead in a field a few yards away from a brook.

When Dr. Frank Rawlett was asked by the coroner what was the cause of death, he startled the auditors by saying "drowning."

"How do you reconcile that with the evidence that the body was on land?" asked the coroner.

To this the doctor replied that while there was no evidence to show how he had got into the water, there was no doubt that he had crawled out.

Considering the large quantity of water which came from the body he had no hesitation in saying that death was due to drowning.

The Smiths—And Others.

The fact that the name Smith occupies the largest space in the English dictionary is indicative of the broad basis from which our present metal working industries began to develop, when Thomas the Smith and John the Smith were smiths in fact.

On the continent—as indeed the history of the craft of various nations would lead us to expect—this indication is not so marked. Although the Berlin directory registers some 6,000 Schmidts, yet the Schultzes and Mullers are more numerous. The Jansens family is the largest of all in Brussels, and in the Paris directory that of Martinet. In Naples the names Morelli and Vitelli run one another closely for precedence. Taking a line around the world, however, Smith is the most familiar name.—Manchester Guardian.

A woman can work herself into a spell of illness over a trouble that is not worthy of a second thought.

Taken from Nature.

From the pure fountain of nature flows the stream of energy and health, which renews and invigorates our race. Not only do we get inspiration from nature, but health is well. To live in the open, in the sunshine, in the fields or woods, drinking pure air into the lungs, is best for those who have the opportunity. For people who are run-down, nervous, suffering from occasional indigestion or dyspepsia, head-aches, night-sweats, whose machinery has become weak, it becomes necessary to turn to some tonic or strengthener which will help them get on their feet. For centuries it has been known that nature's most valuable health-giving agents are roots, herbs, barks and berries, and some thirty years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., found a combination of roots, herbs and barks, taken from the fields and woods and made into an extract, that produced results in the system which were satisfactory in cases of blood disorder and stomach trouble. This concentrated extract of nature's vitality purifies the blood, putting the stomach into healthy condition, helping the assimilation of food which feeds the blood, and putting the liver into activity. Nervousness and sleeplessness are usually due to the fact that the nerves are not fed on properly nourished blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood, and thereby all the organs of the body are run smoothly. You feel strong and vigorous, and are good for a whole lot of physical or mental work. Best of all, the strength and increase in vitality and health are lasting.

Every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery bears the stamp of public approval. For the dealer to offer you something he claims "just as good" is to insult your intelligence.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

FERT PARAGRAPHS.

Haste often gets the fortune away from the other fellow.

Of two evils pass the first one up and let the other follow suit.

The man who knows he knows is a good fellow to let alone.

Absence makes you do little things for yourself and so find out how it goes.

Sometimes a cheap upright piano is a standing joke.

Often a man does not call a spade a spade because he wants to make you think he is holding diamonds.

The man with automobiles on the brain naturally has wheels in his head.

Pity may be akin to love, but not the kind of love that a girl likes to brag about to her chums.

About the only difference between a woman and a girl is that the woman is younger, or claims to be.

Longing.

My pa is a scrapper.

I bet he could lick Geth and fellers.

Like that pretty quick. He doesn't scrap now, but when he was a lad

We bet all the kids had to run from my dad.

My ma says it's wicked for him to sit down and tell how he whipped all the bullies in town.

And how do we know, when we wasn't in sight. She says, that he won, as he claims, every fight!

My ma says she thinks it is awful that he should set an example of that kind to me.

But ma is a girl, and she can't understand them fights that pa had were so noble and grand.

I wish I could lick boys lots bigger than me.

Like pa used to lick 'em in bunches of three.

He'd say if I put all the kids to the bad, "Gee, there is a boy what takes after his dad!"

Stealing Time.

Did you ever meet the woman who keeps her clock half an hour fast for the purpose of fooling all those who regulate their appetites and their trains by her time fondry?

Of course you have, because you have certainly met the average woman. She does not succeed in fooling anybody by her little subterfuge because the first thing she tells them is that the clock is half an hour fast.

Doubtless she gets some satisfaction out of it, but we never could see the benefits of it unless it is that it stimulates the members of the family in useful mental arithmetic exercises.

We should think, however, that the young ladies would take exception to this plan, for it always makes them appear half an hour older than they really are.

Fitting Name.

"If the man with two wives is a big-amist, I suppose you would call the man who married three women a trig-amist?"

"No. I would call him a blithering idiot."

Several Ways.

"He seems to be all wrapped up in her profession."

"I heard some of her dearest friends discussing her, and she certainly was well rapped up."

Up to Date.

I'm Captain Jinks of the horse marines.

But I have changed my mood. My horse, that once ate corn and beans, now lives on breakfast food.

Handicapped.

"Does your watch keep good time?"

"No, my mother-in-law is visiting me, and there is no good time around for it to keep."

Been Fishing.

"The doctor says it is a bad case."

"What's the matter?"

"Enlarged vision and inflamed imagination."

A Repeater.

The man who fights and runs away. May live to fight another day. But if he doesn't call it fun, He may instead live but to run.

Delicate Children

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. A sluggish liver gives a coated tongue, bad breath, constipated bowels. HOSE AND HISTORY.

Oliver Cromwell the Patron Saint of Silk Stockings.

The patron saint of silk stockings is, it appears, Oliver Cromwell. He it was who set the official seal of incorporation on the Worshippful Company of Framework Knitters, whose directors this week, says The London Daily Telegraph, testifies to the existence of a body which has done good work in the past. Though to-day the craft of stocking making has long passed out of its control, its earlier efforts undoubtedly did much to give to this country the great industries of Nottingham and Leicester. The Company of Framework Knitters was originally called into existence by the invention in 1559 of the stocking loom by the Rev. William Lee, curate of Calverton, the tradition being that he conceived a great aversion to hand-knitting, as the young lady to whom he was paying his addresses was wont to be more attentive to her needles and wool than to his words. The company reached its majority in 1657, when Oliver Cromwell granted it letters patent in return for a lengthy petition on behalf of "the promoters and inventors of the art and mystery or trade of framework knitting or making of silk stockings, or other work in a frame or engine," on the ground that their just right should "be preserved from foreigners, the trade advanced, abuses therein suppressed, the benefit of the commonwealth by importation and exportation and otherwise increased, and hundreds of poor families comfortably relieved."

The company acted upon these principles until the Restoration, and it is interesting to note that various references have been found in state papers to their endeavors to prevent the exportation of frames. Charles II. renewed the charter, and the powers granted included the making of by-laws for the reformation of abuses and prevention of fraudulent work, powers of search throughout the kingdom, and powers of seizure of frames intended for exportation. In its earlier days the company possessed a hall in Redcross street, where, appropriately enough, the Needle-makers were wont to meet. The arms of the company embody the needle, jack and lead sinker of a frame. A lamb is the crest, and the motto is "Speed, Strength and Truth United."

Various modifications and improvements in the original principles of the frame were introduced by Burnet, Townsend and others, culminating in the introduction of the power-loom machines, which are now used in the great centres of the industry. We do not wholly supply ourselves with the stockings we wear, as last year, in the first time, by the way, that this commodity is given a separate heading in the returns of the Board of Trade—our imports amounted to $307,495.

The exports, however, greatly exceeded them, and were classified as "of wool or of wool mixed with any other material" were worth $1,032,164. In the best makes of stockings this country retains its supremacy, and it is chiefly in the cheapest orders that the foreigner supplies us. Daintiness in hosiery is more and more appreciated by ladies, and there are many, as the leading west-end outfitters can testify, who are exceedingly fastidious as to this detail of their dress. In silk stockings, however, the luxury is more and more appreciated by ladies, and there are many, as the leading west-end outfitters can testify, who are exceedingly fastidious as to this detail of their dress. KEEP TO THE RIGHT

A city merchant, while being interviewed by a Planet reporter this morning, made some valuable suggestions with regard to keeping to the right side while going from and coming to the Post Office. Crowding and many accidents would be avoided by introducing system and order. Continuing, he said:

"Why not put a sign on one door for people who are going in, and have the door so that it may only be opened from the outside, while the other could be made to open from the inside only."

AT LARGE AGAIN

The London Free Press correspondent at Chatham is again at large. In the issue of Tuesday he deals with a raid made on a house of ill-repute and winds up his article by saying that in Dresden, Wallaceburg and Blenheim the same thing exists to a greater or lesser degree. This is the same knocker that some months ago stated that Dresden was full of small-pox. Chatham may or may not be all he says, but Dresden is not; and why this person should be always knocking at Dresden is more than we can understand. Let it be said that such places as the Free Press correspondent suggests do not exist in Dresden.—Dresden Standard.

HOW TO SLEEP AND WHEN.

Some Words of Advice From a Doctor on This Subject.

The following brief quotations are from "Sleep and Its Regulation," by Dr. J. Madison Taylor, in Popular Science Monthly:

During childhood and exhaustive states too much sleep is rarely profitable. For those in full tide of vigor too much sleep is often distinctly harmful.

The action of narcotics presents none of the characteristics of normal sleep except the temporary arrest of consciousness; hence narcotics is not true sleep.

The best position to assume in sleep is to invite the least disturbance of the functions of the great organs is on the abdomen, or nearly so.

Many obscure forms of digestive or circulatory disorders may have been initiated in infancy through lying too long upon the back.

To secure the most perfect repose the temperature of all parts should be equalized before retiring. Cold feet induce sleep in securing sleep, and it is then shallow when at all.

It is most unwise to overfill the stomach before retiring; this disturbs sleep almost as much as hunger, but moderate eating before sleeping is not hurtful, and is often salutary.

Body clothing at night should be loose, not dense, permitting the ready passage of air, never of wool next to the skin.

Bed clothing should not be too close of texture, blankets being preferable to dense "comfortables" and not "tucked in" too closely. Air should be allowed to pass occasionally under the sides at least as one turns about more or less freely.

Early rising is a salutary custom, especially when the day comes early, not otherwise.

More sleep is required in winter than in summer. The best sleep is had during the hours of darkness.

The sleeping room should be cool, abundant air being always admitted. This should not be interpreted to mean that the room may safely remain intensely cold.

In the modern treatment of tuberculosis fresh air is recognized to be imperatively needed all day and all night. Artificial heat can, and should, be applied along with the fresh air, till the temperature of the room be at or near 50 or 55 degrees F., for some even 60 degrees F.

A Life-Saving Coat.

A London tailor has invented a new life-saving coat and gaiters, with which it is possible for a person clothed therein to maintain an upright position when immersed in the water, even if not possessing any knowledge of swimming. The coat resembles in appearance an ordinary pilot coat, but it is fitted with an air belt, which is inflated with air through a tube. The gaiters weigh two pounds, and are fitted with two brass wings or blades fastened to the back of the heel. As the wearer moves his feet in the water these wings open and shut, and not only propel the wearer along like oars, but enable him to maintain an upright position from the waist upward in the water. A practical demonstration was recently undertaken in the River Thames by the inventor, and its efficiency and life-saving qualities clearly shown, even when moving against the tide.

WARDENS OF THE WAVE.

A feature of The London Times' Trafalgar Centennial edition, published on the 19th Oct., was a poem by the poet Laureate, Alfred Austin, entitled "Wardens of the Wave." It is as follows:

Not to exult in bragging vein
Over our gallant foes,
Nor boast of victories on the Main
Which Heaven alone bestows:
Vainglorious claron, clamorous drum,
For which the vulgar crave,
Not these, not any such become
The Wardens of the Wave.

No; but when slumbering war hounds wake,
To one's last gasp of breath,
Face combat for one's country's sake
With male disdain live, did die.
Twas thus did Nelson live, did die.
Far from his land and home,
Making his roof of storm-swept sky
His pillow of the foam.

And if to-day our race recall
His last triumphant room,
Place wreaths on his un fading pall
And flowers about his tomb;
Tis to remind us still to keep
The nation's lust in awe,
And with devotion to the deep
Guard freedom, peace, and law.

Nor yet alone upon the waves
That sentinel our shore,
Should rule the waves of war,
So that our Island Citadel
May tranquilly respond
With the clear signal, "All is well,"
To every sea beyond.

FREAK OF DEEPEST SHAFT.

Nothing That Falls Into Mouth Ever Reaches Bottom.

A Lake Linden, Mich., despatch says: The interesting scientific fact that nothing which falls into the deepest shaft of the Calumet & Hecla mine, the deepest in the world, ever reaches the bottom has been demonstrated at the Red Jacket shaft. Every article, no matter what shape or size it may be, is invariably found clinging to the east side of the shaft.

One day a monkey wrench was dropped. It was found lodged against the east side of the shaft several hundred feet down. This incident came to the attention of the Michigan College of Mines, and it was decided to make a careful test of the phenomenon.

It was decided to use a small but heavy spherical body, and a marble, tied to a thread, was suspended about twelve feet below the mouth of the shaft. When the thread was abruptly still the marble was burned through by the flame of a candle.

The marble fell, but brought up against the east wall of the shaft, about 500 feet from the surface.

The fact would be the case were a man to fall into the shaft. While it would mean sure death, the body would be found lodged in the timber on the east side.

Members of the faculty of the College of Mines are now making experiments here with a view to developing data as to the thickness of the earth's crust. It is not hoped to solve the perplexing problem of the distribution of the earth's matter, but it is hoped to add to the information concerning it.

To this end the Red Jacket shaft presents advantages possessed by no other place in the universe. The deep shafts in other parts of the country, and in foreign lands, generally begin at an attitude and end above or little below the sea level.

The Calumet mine the Red Jacket shaft starts at a comparatively low altitude and pierces the earth's crust further and further the ocean level than any other in existence. It is hoped within a year to be able to give some information regarding the investigations.

No Ambition for Efficiency.

There has no doubt been plenty of party in Japan. But the party in Japan has not spent inefficiency; it tends perhaps in the other direction. It appears to be a rivalry of faction for the goal and prize of efficiency. Japanese parties apparently represent a nation determined on efficiency.

This is where we differ. We are not a nation bent on efficiency; we have a sort of indifference to it. We are thriven so well on another diet that we are careless in the matter. We regard our parties as interesting groups of gladiators. Our firmest faith appears to be that one will do worse than the other, so we maintain the other, whichever that may be.

A directing and vitalizing Government that shall do great things we seem to exclude from possibility with a sort of despair. We know too well that our ministers, however great the ardor and freshness with which they set to work, will soon be lost in the labyrinthine mazes of Parliamentary legislation, and that whatever energy they may devote to struggling for existence on provincial platforms.

Compelled to Turn to Japan.

And yet there is work to do—pressing, vital work, which does not admit of delay; work which would fill strenuous years even if Parliament were suspended and not a speech were delivered.

But Parliament must sit and speeches must be discharged. We then, at last, learn from Japan how to obtain efficiency in spite of the party systems. That is the best lesson that she can teach us.

Scottish Household Superstitions.

If a daughter's petticoat be longer than her frock it shows that her mother loves her more than her mother does.

If an unmarried person be inadvertently seated at table between a married couple, the single person so placed will be married within a year.

If anyone is rising from table overturns a chair it indicates that he has been uttering untruths.

If a girl marries a man whose name begins with the same initial as her own the marriage will be an unhappy one.

If anyone accidentally puts on any article of attire inside out it is an omen that the wearer will succeed that day in his undertakings. But the thing must be worn until night as it was first put on. To reverse it earlier will reverse its luckiness also.

Weighing children makes them weakly and unhealthy.

The Chances of Life.

What occupation in life offers man the best prospect of long life? is a question often asked.

Dr. Schofield, the late lecturer and examiner for the National Health Society, in his book, "Nerves in Order," gives a table of longevity which supplies an answer.

Evidently the Christian ministry is the most healthful of all occupations. Clergy, who head the list, live more than twice as long as the average members of other professions. Non-conformist ministers die a little faster.

The complete list works out thus in order of longevity: Clergy (55 per cent.), dissenting ministers, farmers, agricultural laborers, grocers, lawyers, drapers, coal miners, watchmakers, artists, shoemakers, bakers, clerks, chemists, green grocers, tailors, doctors, butchers, painters, musicians, cab and bus men, sweeps, publicans, metal workers, hawkers, London laborers, barmen.

Descent from a good stock, temperate habits, and small, but assured, incomes are said to be factors in the long life of the clergy.

Their higher death rate to the spirits they consume, writes the author, "their mortality."—London Leader.

The Market Turkey.

Some highly important lessons may be learned from the market reports on turkeys. During the past season high prices have tempted turkey raisers to sell as many birds as possible. The chances are that next season the supply may be short and high prices again prevail. With this knowledge of the case the turkey raiser should of course plan to raise every gobbler and hen he can.

But there is a still more important thing for the average turkey raiser to do; namely, to improve the quality of his stock. The number of birds poor in flesh, weight, etc., is far greater than that of superior turkeys, and also the demand for good stock is steady and great. A first-class gobbler of one of the larger breeds should be made head of the flock as soon as possible.

The effect will be noticed the first season in the increased size and improved quality of the young birds. It costs less to raise good stock than poor, and the price realized for the former are considerably higher. Attention should also be given to the quality of settings.

Princess Finds Profits in Cats.

Every one knows by this time that Queen Alexandra is a cat lover, but it has come as a surprise to a number of English women that her daughter, Princess Victoria, is not only a lover of cats but an energetic and enthusiastic breeder as well.

The princess does not breed cats, it appears, merely to increase the number of her feline pets. Her "catteries" are worked on a solid commercial basis, and apparently with considerable profit to her private pocket. That her enterprise is conducted on thorough business lines may be seen from the following announcement which appears in a weekly paper whose space is mainly devoted to sales and exchanges of miscellaneous articles:

"Her Royal Highness, Princess Victoria has for sale several handsome chinchilla kittens. Sire, Puck III, ex-Chela, also Chela, splendid mother, lovely green eyes; blue Persian female; cheap to good homes; must sell. Mrs. Amor, Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Great Park."

Carries on Family Tradition.

Rev. E. Ryerson Young, the son of the well-known missionary and author of the same name, comes before the public as an author, thus carrying on the family tradition. A work from his pen dealing with life in New Ontario, under the title "Duck Lake and Other Stories," will be extensively circulated this fall.

Mr. Young has received very warm praise from British reviewers. No man is better qualified than he to describe the life of the people of the northland. He was born at Norway House, Hudson's Bay Territory, and is the fourth generation of their lives missionaries to the Indians in Canada.

He has spent seven years in home mission work amongst the settlers, and has also had the superintendency of the Gibson reserve of Iron-quois Indians.

The Czar to His Uncle.

In official quarters and court circles in England it is asserted that the Czar, in reply to King Edward's message of congratulation on the conclusion of peace with Japan, sent a long telegraphic despatch to Marienbad, thanking his English uncle, and expressing his determination that the war is ended, to inaugurate an era of real internal reform in Russia. It is alleged that Emperor Nicholas, in the course of his despatch, pointed out how impossible it had been to engage in any work of the kind, especially that tending the introduction of legislative methods, during the last two years, and expressing a hope that Russia will now enter upon a period of peace and progress.—Marquette de Fontenay.

Asthma or Heaves.

Dietic treatment seems to be the most successful in feeding asthmatic horses. Give small rations of hay only once a day and at nighttime. Corn and oats can be given in proportion to the amount of work the animal performs or according to the size. Sloppy foods should be omitted. The following may be given in oats or in a little water as a drench twice a day after feeding, when it should be omitted for five or six days, and so on alternately until relieved; Lig. kali arsenalis, one pint; tincture of nux vomica; tincture of digitalis, two ounces. Give one tablespoonful morning and night.

The Hindoo Mother.

The relation of a Hindoo husband to his wife is not like a contract sanctioned by the court of justice, but it is a permanent spiritual relation which binds two souls together. A wife is regarded, therefore, as a true helpmate in the spiritual progress of the soul life of her husband, while a faithful husband is considered to be the greatest blessing in the earthly and spiritual career of his wife. When she becomes a mother she represents divine motherhood and holds a unique position in the household.

A Hindoo mother is actually worshipped as a living goddess by her children. The children are taught to obey their parents implicitly and to serve them like earthly deities as long as they live. To support the parents in their old age, to look after their welfare and to fulfill their desires are the duties of children in every Hindoo household. But a mother is considered to be "greater than a thousand fathers."—Swami Abhedananda in Good Housekeeping.

WILLIS ON TRIAL.

Mrs. Covell Says Now Man Who Searched For Her Didn't Look Like Accused.

St. Thomas, Nov. 2.—The trial of Alexander Willis for the murder of Eliza Lowry at Rodney, on April 19 last, was begun yesterday afternoon. Willis was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. He is quite self-possessed, and looks well. He is defended by C. St. Clair Leitch of Dutton, while G. Lynch Staunton of Hamilton is Crown prosecutor. Mrs. Covell was placed on the witness stand and gave substantially the same evidence as at the inquest and the preliminary trial. She, too, is self-possessed and deliberate. Her evidence occupied the court until closing time. The Crown is said to have no evidence to call. It is expected they last all to-day, perhaps longer. There is a preponderance of St. Thomas men on the jury.

Says It Was Not Willis.
Mrs. Covell walked slowly into court, supporting herself with a crutch, and was sworn. She repeated her former evidence. In one important point, however, she varied her former story. After swearing in her principal evidence that the man who searched for her under the bed had a face like that of Willis, on cross-examination she stated positively that it was not Willis at all.

John Macpherson of Rodney told of being with Willis at the Binder Hotel, where they had four drinks between 8 and 10 o'clock the night previous to the murder. John Hughes, one of the proprietors of the hotel, testified that Willis procured a 35-cent flask of whiskey on the night of April 18. Willis wore a black felt hat, a soft one. Duncan Macpherson also testified having seen Willis at the hotel, but that he was perfectly sober. Daniel D. Campbell and James M. Robertson gave unimportant evidence. William Flater, who owns a sawmill at Rodney, and who was the last man known to have seen Willis prior to the crime, swore that he overtook the prisoner about 10.30, and he then appeared to be slightly intoxicated. Willis broke the bottle, and they had a drink. They talked and Willis drank about half the liquor in the bottle. Thomas C. Campbell testified that Willis had stated at the inquest that he had reached his home about 12 o'clock, and did not again leave until next morning.

Dr. Wilbur Harvey of Rodney told of being out the Farnham road, and that about 11.30 that night he passed the Covell house and saw a man standing at the gate. The man was about 5 feet 10 and appeared to have come from the house. He wore an overcoat, but witness could not tell the color. He had on what looked like a hard hat with a dinge in it. The man was about the same build as Willis.

William Cole, who lives not far from the scene of the tragedy, said Willis lived a mile and a half east of his place; had known Willis about 15 years. He saw Willis between 6 and 7 o'clock the morning after the tragedy. Saw Willis going east towards his own farm. He was positive it was Willis. Cole's evidence was the last taken when court adjourned.

"I have not seen anybody yet, and I think they are slow in coming."

Toronto, Nov. 2.—The Grand Jury yesterday afternoon brought in a true bill against Josephine Carr, on the charge of manslaughter for causing the death of Baby Murray last May. When the indictment was read by the clerk she stood up and in a faint voice said "guilty."

DRESS AND FASHION.

IMPORTANT ITEMS IN AN ELEGANT OCTOBER TROUSSEAU.

Bridal and Going Away Gowns and Bridesmaids' Dresses—A Very Chic Long Jacket—Princess Robe and Long Basqued Coat.

The October weddings cast their shadows before in the shape of many trousseaus in process of making. A very handsome confection already prepared is a bride's gown of net embroidered in silver and lace mounted over satin and mousseline de soie. With it will be worn a coronet of orange blossoms, over which falls a beautiful veil of lace. The bouquet is a shower of white heather and orchids. The bridesmaids' gowns are of empire fashion in white crepe de chine. The going away dress is a cream hopsack canvas bolero and skirt, handsomely embroidered in cream and silver, and a cream lace blouse, trimmed with apple green taffeta, with tiny black velvet buttons.

Included in the trousseau is a long jacket of periwinkle blue taffeta, trimmed with designs of Irish lace. Its effect is particularly elegant, over a white embroidered gown.

Everything at present points to the princess robe as the dominant note in autumn fashions, but it will be confined to evening and house wear, not being generally adapted to outdoor wear unless with a short bolero, which leaves the waist line uninterfered with.

For outdoor wear the long basqued coat bids fair to be the height of the mode, either full and fluted or fitted to the figure.

White serge tailor made costumes figure among first autumn fancies. The chic of these costumes as exploited by Parisiennes is contributed to a large extent by a perfect cut and a very long basque. Others again show exceptionally short basques, which extremes of style form a pleasing variety and assist the natural elegance of the wearer.

It is essential, however, that a coat must be made either in the long form or the short, for a medium length is altogether unbecoming and unfashionable.

The Vanishing Home.

People who know what a home is are not so many as middle aged men and women think, and they who never had one will hardly be expected to join in the lament at its gradual disappearance. That it is going out of fashion there is not a doubt. Every new pile of flats, every conversion of a dwelling to a boarding house, is a sign of the circumstance. The modern family shifts from one tenement to another, loses or damages its goods in the transit, is constantly making new acquaintances, but as constantly losing the old, and is without quiet retirement and peace. The older people regret the change; the younger have no standards by which to measure it.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Using the Toothbrush.

Frequently as a woman takes a toothbrush into her hand she rarely uses it properly. It does very little good to rub a brush across the teeth. To cleanse it must be rubbed up and down so that the bristles go into the crevices, as they cannot when the motion is across. Hold the brush firmly and rub it up and down, going carefully from the back teeth, that are too often neglected, to the front and then back to the other side. After brushing rinse the mouth with a fragrant wash. This will not only be strengthening to the gums, but will impart a pleasant odor to the breath.

The secret of success is constancy of purpose.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

There are men who might be of some use if they would do as their wives direct them.

A wise guy may write poetry, but he has to be a fool for luck if he gets it printed.

If we were to get what we deserve, how tickled our friends would be!

If some people were not allowed to make mistakes they would never do anything.

A soft answer seldom turns a collector down.

Maybe it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all, but it depends largely on who you lose.

Truth is straight, but lawyers know how to cut it bias.

Nothing is impossible to a wealthy woman with a good lawyer.

There are plenty of people who had kind parents and a good bringing up, but you never would know it by watching them.

The simple life is a fancy that those people have adopted who are worn out by the other kind.

An inferior person often is known by his superior air.

The Simple Life.

Give me the simple life, I pray; For luxuries I do not care; Let others wear their lives away Pursuing trifles thin as air. Let others seek a stately pile; A brown stone front's about my style.

I find that simple food is best. If one from life would pleasure cull, For humming birds do not digest, And lobster-well, that's personal. For less expensive things I pray; Just give me pie three times a day.

To some ambition clings aloof; They hear the presidential bee And think that some day with the proud The White House will be theirs, rent free.

To all such schemes I say: "Oh, fudge! Just let me be a supreme judge."

Some people want a bank account. Of twenty millions, more or less; They want so much they couldn't count. It is a year or two, I guess. One million cold for me would do— I might shade that a cent or two.

I have no sympathy with those Who want the earth for their estate. Supplied with tools and garden hose, Surrounded by a fence and gate. One county in some fertile plain— This mine, I sure would not complain.

Cause and Effect.

"So many men in this town appear to have colds."

"Yes, there is a new doctor just moved in who prescribes whisky for it."

Going the Limit.

"Is he a rascal? I'll bet that man has a pair of asbestos gloves."

"What for?"

"He might run across a hot stove some time when the owner wasn't looking, mightn't he?"

Magic Word.

No doubt. About. The sweetest word is home. Whether in Rome Or the U. S. A. But, say, There is one other reasonably hot word that touches the spot. More or less. If my guess Isn't more than a mile wide. When you've been out for a while On the mowing machine For about thirteen Hours And your digestive powers Are husky and fine, There is one word coming down the line That can fill you with joy supreme Like a beautiful dream. If the hired girl, pretty and shy, Comes out on the back steps in the gloaming and murmurs, "Pie."

Made It Feel Bad.

"Wonder what makes that baby cry so."

"It was present when it was born and heard what the folks said about its resemblance to its family."

Needed to Be a Billionaire.

"Is she wealthy?"

"You bet."

"How do you know?"

"Well, I have seen her and she is considered beautiful."

Helps Some.

Though money can't bring happiness Nor all its ills efface, It is a very handy thing To have about the place.

One Way.

"He is living the simple life."

"How long was he sent up for?"

BALLOT BOX CASES.

John Bremner Tells His Story and is Mercilessly Cross-Examined.

Belleville, Nov. 1.—Who Assizes opened here yesterday afternoon before Chief Justice Sir William Meredith. After the Grand Jury had been sworn and instructed in regard to the two murder cases to be tried, the case of King v. Harryett was proceeded with. The accused is charged with conspiracy in connection with the bogus ballot-box cases. At the investigation in November last, John Bremner, a newspaper publisher in Bancroft, North Hastings, swore that, just prior to the 1904 election, a box had come to him which he delivered to Harryett, and which contained four bogus ballot-boxes. The day after the election Harryett wanted him to help get rid of the bogus boxes. Bremner refused. Afterwards, at the Liberal convention in Toronto, Bremner said he was approached by Byron O. Lott, Harryett and others to forget all he knew about the bogus boxes, and kiss his thumb instead of the Bible when in the witness-box. Harryett was cross-examined and admitted to bail in $20,000.

Bremner went into the witness box and told practically the same story told at the preliminary investigation. Mr. Johnston's cross-examination was most meretricious.

PROKEN SLEEP - TIRED NEXT MORNING.

Sleep not only rests, but builds up the body. Cut down the hours of sleep, and you cut down health in the same proportion. Rebuilding then ceases, nerves go to smash, you grow tired, weak and wretched.

To restore sleep, you must get more bodily strength, more nutritious blood, healthier nerves. Ferronox solves the whole problem, makes you sleep soundly, gives endurance, vim, ambition. No more morning weakness—instead the fire of youth will run in your veins, supplying abundance of energy and vigor. Withery expresses the instant effect of Ferronox; try it.

Gloomy reflections are most likely to come with self-imposed idleness.

Students Must Have High Ideals.

Whatever the student's bent, whatever his ultimate intention in the way of practice may be, the same simple rule will hold good. He must be earnest in his desire to learn, and he must never be contented with partially understanding. He must be methodical, working according to a plan and ready to sacrifice his personal pleasures and comforts to carry out that plan. And he must keep before him a high ideal of his professional duties, ever remembering that his mission is to prevent disease and heal the sick. He has joined an altruistic profession one where the rewards are often incommensurate altogether with the labors, but one where his power of doing good, if thoroughly and intelligently exerted, will be greater than it would be in any other walk of life.

PHOTOGRAPHED MARS.

Star-Gazing Laymen May Now See For Themselves What the Scientists Claim About the Canals

Astronomers and scientists in general are deeply interested in the modest announcement made by Prof. Percival Lowell and his associates at the Lowell Observatory in Arizona recently that after several partial successes and some complete failures the greater canals of the planet Mars had at last been photographed. Hitherto the general public has been compelled to accept—or to reject the existence of the Martian canals on the word of the star-gazing fraternity. But with the accomplishment of the Harvard observers in Arizona every one will now have an opportunity to see the actual photographs in proof of what has long been considered as more or less of a theory.

While several photographs were taken of the canals some weeks ago, it was not until a few days ago that the solar photographers were ready to announce the complete success of the undertaking. Prof. Lowell, in the following account of the achievement, is unreserved in his belief that the Martian canals closely correspond to the familiar waterways of the same general classification on this planet. Up to the present time human knowledge of Mars has been largely theoretical—the principal facts regarding the planet of being that it is 141,500,000 miles from the sun and approximately 47,000 miles from the earth. The Martian year has 687 days. Mars is 4,230 miles in diameter, the earth being 7,913, Jupiter 86,500 and the sun 886,400 miles.

"To photograph the canals of Mars," says Prof. Lowell, "has for many years been a purpose of the observatory established and maintained by Harvard College in Arizona. The first attempt to meet with even approximate success was made in 1901, when a more or less satisfactory print was made of the Mare Acidulum, or Lake of Acid.

"Yet, encouraging as that pioneer effort was, no canal could then be detected on the negative with absolute certainty. To-day we can state as positive and final that there are canals on Mars, because the photographs say so, and a photographic negative is nothing if not truthful.

"Prior to the present time two difficulties have stood in the way of determining the existence of Martian canals beyond dispute—one, the varying air waves which now favor, now prevent the defining of such minor details of Martian topography as the canals, and the other being the insufficient speed of photographic plates.

"In registering such details the eye has a tremendous advantage over the camera, since it can perceive much more sensitively than a camera plate, besides retaining an image only the twentieth part of a second. It can thus record the moment of apparition, whereas the camera—when it answers promptly. Refuse a substitute and insist on having only 'Catarrh-zone'.

"Having a knowledge of these conditions to be reckoned with, I determined, with the valuable assistance of Mr. C. O. Lampland, to have made a camera patterned after what is known in photography as a bispical film in which, behind a Wallace screen, many successive pictures might be taken in hope of securing among them a few sharp ones of the Martian canals."

"Despite the fact that thus far we have not secured an automatic camera, ours being worked by hand only, our photographs are quite clear enough to corroborate the fact of canals being on the interesting planet floating 47,000,000 miles from the earth.

"In my firm belief, it is only a question of time, possibly of months, maybe a few years, when we shall be able to determine the exact nature and probable purpose of the canals of our planetary neighbor. Meanwhile, we have a number of excellent negatives which have served to bring us a bit closer to Mars than ever in the past.

"Owing both to the smallness of the objective planet, as shown on the negative, and also to the absence of information on the part of the general public as to the peculiar planetary markings, the uninitiated eye can discern nothing from the pictures until they are highly magnified. But, for those who are scientifically conversant with the reliability of the instrument together with what may be called the objectivity of visual observation, and also of serving as a chart to it.

"If one were to compare the several photographs of the planet with a reliable map of Mars, the following markings could be readily recognized: "Regions—Syrts Major, Mare Erythraeum, Mare Isaurum, Hellas, and the North Polar Cap.

"Canals—Nilosyrtis, Pyramus, Casius, Protonilus, Pterus, Vexillum, As-toribus and the Thoth.

"Oasis—Lucus Ismenius.

"For example, a dark triangle, in the photograph, with its apex pointing downward, is the Syrtis Major; a dark area at the top is the Mare Erythraeum, while leading off from the latter to the right is shown the narrow dark stretch of the Mare Isaurum separating Aeria on the north from Deucalonia Regio on the south.

"A bent line from the bottom of the Syrtis, turning sharply to the right, is the Nilosyrtis, which, continuing westward across the print, becomes Protonilus. Similarly, through the photograph, are corresponding confirmations of the visual observation.

"Inasmuch as such fine details as the canals, owing to the air waves, play havoc with either observer or camera, it is hardly to be expected that the more delicate of them should appear in every print taken. Yet they come nearer doing so than was anticipated.

Wise M. P.'s.

It need hardly be pointed out, says the author of "Fifty Years in Fleet Street," that to be elected a member of parliament does not necessarily imply intellectual superiority. Shortly after the Burmese war a young civilian, home on leave, happened to mention Burma.

"Ah, yes, Burma," said an M. P. with whom he was sitting at table. "I had a nephew who was in Burma, only he used to call it Bermuda."

On another occasion, in the month of March, some one said to Mr. Livesey: "This is a cruel east wind."

"Yes," was the would be witty reply. "I expect it will be Easter before it is over."

This was repeated by the author of the book quoted to a respected member of parliament, who observed gravely: "I fancy he's right. I have known it last till Easter and longer yet."

You surely won't stop at a dollar bill to cure that horrid, sniffeling cold? Go to any druggist and get "Catarrh-zone" and your cold will be a thing of the past. Certainly there is no remedy half so prompt for colds and catarrhs as Catarrh-zone. Refuse a substitute and insist on having only "Catarrh-zone."

A Glasgow Cemetery.

The Necropolis cemetery, Glasgow, as originally planned, contained almost exactly twenty-four acres available for burials, and it was suggested that each division of one acre should be named after a letter of the Greek alphabet, which contains twenty-four characters. For various reasons this idea has not been fully carried out, but fifteen sections of the cemetery have been so named from alpha to omega, the monosyllable letters between these being omitted. The names have not been applied in any particular sequence, but with the aid of a small map they are useful in locating any particular spot in what is now one of the most densely filled graveyards in the kingdom.

The Man In South America

By EDITH DOANE

Copyright, 1905, by E. M. Doane

It was the dinner hour at the Ocean House. Inside the spacious dining room the hum of conversation and low laughter of women's voices mingled with soft strains of music. At the open windows the light curtains swayed gently in the ocean breeze.

A burst of infectious laughter came from a gay party by one of the windows, and Robert Woodruff, seated alone at a nearby table, glanced up in amused interest. Something vaguely familiar about one of the group—a girl who sat with her back to him—roused his attention. He was consumed with a burning desire to see her face, but some one was between them.

Just then the little party rose to go. As the girl pushed back her chair she turned, and with a glad thrill he recognized her—Elizabeth! How often the picture of that slender, almost faultless figure, the appealing eyes, the odd little touch of hauteur in the expressive face, had been in his mind during the past dreary months. If only she had given him a chance to explain, now, by the force of his love, grown strong through months of hunger, he would compel her to listen. Perhaps she would ignore that foolish misunderstanding after these two long years.

She was very near now—in another moment she must pass him. He rose, and his face was very bright and eager as he stood, tall and straight, beside his chair. On she came, pausing a moment at the table next to his own. Now she was so close he could have touched her, and his heart throbbed painfully. Then slowly, deliberately, coolly, without a glance, she passed him, her soft white draperies trailing gracefully down the long room.

Outside in the corridor little Billy Preston hurried past her, his fat, good natured face aglow.

"See Bobby Woodruff?" he panted. "Must be in there—name's on the register—not in room—must have come by late boat—I missed him—sailing!" he gasped explainingly.

The smile on Elizabeth's lips—everybody always smiled at Bobby—faded. With a quick shock of comprehension she glanced back into the dining room. So that was Robert Woodruff, that tall, splendid fellow smiling an answer to Billy's effusive greeting; he had been so near and she had not known.

Her heart beat in great, suffocating throbs, the lights were swimming before her eyes, and in her ears rang Billy's high pitched voice.

"Here he is, Miss Worthington. Here's the prodigal!" he bubbled joyously. "Keeping to himself just because the papers are full of that old bridge he managed to build down there in South America. Can't shake his old friends like that, can he, Miss Worthington? Doesn't he look fine, though?" And Billy beamed ecstatically.

"I am so glad to see you," she said, with a tremulous little smile, trying to speak steadily. Her dark eyes were full of tender light.

But there was no answering smile on the stern face above her. "Miss Worthington is very kind," he said courteously and bowing gravely.

Her face was very white as she turned proudly aside. She had lived in the hope of his coming—and he had come—and did not care.

Later in the evening, so late that the long suffering chaperons had already begun to issue warning signals to their unheeding charges, Billy finished a waltz with Miss Worthington. His companion had been singularly silent.

"You look done up," he said anxiously. "Come out on the porch, where Woodruff and the rest of the crowd are."

"Yes, do!"—she commenced in a quick, pleading voice, then stopped and walked beside him with gentle dignity. Billy drew her a chair within the friendly circle and she leaned gratefully back in her shadowy corner. The sound of violins came softly from the distance; below them was the muffled beating of the surf against the rocks; an unusual spell of silence lay upon the little group.

"Woodruff, tell us a story," said Billy suddenly.

"Yes, do!"—"About South America!"—"An adventure!"—"No, a love story," chorused the others. The girl in the shadowy corner said nothing, but Woodruff's eyes turned to her for one brief instant before he spoke.

"Well—it isn't really a story; there isn't enough of it," he began. "There was a fellow down there. I knew him pretty well, better than any one else did, I think. He lived in South America—had been there for a long time—and when we began on the bridge he went out to the mountains with us. He was an odd sort of a chap and hadn't much to say to the rest of the boys. He used to go off by himself and smoke in the moonlight. Some way it was sitting there in the moonlight that made me think of him.

"Well, one night he told me his story. He had been in love with a girl in Brazil, we will say. To hear him rave about her you would think she was the only woman in the world. He thought she loved him—she said she did—but they were not formally engaged because, while she was wealthy, he had only his profession. One day, when affairs were at this stage, he received two letters, one from a syndicate of wealthy men offering him an opportunity that meant an assured future, the other from the widow of an old friend, asking for an interview, and saying that she would be at his office that afternoon. She came and told her story. She had two little children and it seems they were pretty badly off. "Well, this fellow was so overjoyed at his own good fortune—because now he could marry the girl—that he promised to do what he could for the poor woman. At that—she had been having a pretty hard time, you must remember—she broke down completely, fell on her knees and thanked him, and all that. Of course, the fellow was pretty well embarrassed and tried to lift her up again, and just as they were in the midst of it the door opened and who should walk in but the girl and her aunt."

He paused. There was a little tense sound from the shadowy corner. The others waited with breathless interest. "Well, go on. What happened then?" asked Billy eagerly.

Woodruff rose and pushed back his chair sharply. "That was all," he continued slowly. "He wouldn't hear his explanation. He left without seeing her. He took it pretty hard. You see, she had filled his life so completely that when she went there wasn't much left."

"The little group relaxed. "She wasn't worth it," exclaimed one girl indignantly.

"Poor chap," said Billy thoughtfully, his fat face unusually solemn.

"You must admit, though, that it did look queer," said another judicially.

"The strains of a twostep floated invitingly through the windows. "Come on," called a couple from the doorway. And with much laughing adjustment of partners the little group joined the dancers inside.

When they were alone, the girl in the shadowy corner looked slightly. "They were right. She was not worthy of it," she said bitterly, "but perhaps she suffered too."

Woodruff stopped in his walk up and down the veranda. "Then why didn't she answer his letters—make some sign?" he asked grilly.

"Perhaps she, the girl, was too proud at first, and influenced by others, and it might have been—that—afterward—she was afraid he didn't care."

"But if she cared wouldn't she at least have spoken to him—have given him a chance—when she did see him?" he went on relentlessly.

The girl in the shadowy room and stopping forward with unconscious grace held out both hands impulsively. She was very pale, but the dark eyes were full of a sweet, tender light.

"Perhaps she did not see him," she whispered tremulously.

The twostep crashed to a triumphant close, and Billy, more breathless than ever, peered shortsightedly into the soft darkness outside.

"You two missed it," he panted, mopping his rose face energetically. "That was great music. Why didn't you try it?"

"We preferred to discuss the man in South America," laughed Robert Woodruff contentedly.

Elzear Cote Found in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets a Speedy and Permanent Cure for his Stomach Troubles.

"I have suffered for four years from stomach trouble. I consulted three doctors and they told me that I had Dyspepsia and no remedy would cure me." So says Elzear Cote, of St. Hedwidge de Clifton, Que. But Mr. Cote found a remedy that those doctors did not know. It was Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and it cured him. He says:

"Then I quit the doctors and started to take Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. After the first box I had no more trouble. It is now two years since I took them and I am still well. I do all my own work. I am never tired. That's why I recommend all who have stomach troubles to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the food themselves. This gives the overworked stomach a chance to rest and it naturally comes back to its normal healthy condition.

JURY ACQUIT HARRYETT

Gave Him Benefit of Doubt as Advised by Chief Justice.

Ex-Magistrate Swears That Until After Election He Knew Nothing of Bogus Ballot Boxes—Denies Brenner's Story Throughout, as Did Two Other Defence Witnesses—The Jury Was Out Only 35 Minutes.

Belleville, Nov. 2.—The conspiracy case against Sam Harryett, while police magistrate at Bancroft, ended yesterday afternoon in a verdict of acquittal, which was generally expected after the way three witnesses, Weese, Kelly and Harryett himself, had gone into the witness box and denied in toto the story told by Brenner.

The first witness yesterday morning was John O. Brenner, son of the chief witness for the prosecution, who testified to hearing Sam Harryett tell his father that a box was coming by express for him (Harryett) and asking him, when the box came, to put it in his (Harryett's) office. The day after the box came he saw it being taken into Harryett's office. He thought he heard his father tell Harryett that the box had arrived.

James Irwin was the next witness. He lived at Bancroft and knew Harryett and Byron O. Lott and had often seen them together. The night before the nomination he (witness) was with Harryett and they met Lott. Harryett asked Lott, "What about Brenner?" Lott replied, "Well, he spoiled the whole damned job."

That closed the Crown's case.

The Defence.

George Weese was called as the first witness for the defence. He had kept hotel at Bancroft and knew that Brenner was president of the Liberal Association. Weese said he was one of the party who met Brenner at the Somerset House in Toronto where they went into a private room, and denied that anybody had ever tried to persuade Brenner not to tell the truth.

He had told Brenner to kiss his thumb instead of his hand. Nothing was ever said by anybody about the ballot boxes or anything connected with them. This was a straight denial of Brenner's evidence.

Kelly of the Crown Lands Department told of having been at the Somerset House with Brenner, Lott, Harryett and Weese. He had heard no conversation as that told of by Brenner. He had heard all the talk there and the conversation was merely general. He had become acquainted with Lott through business in the Crown Land Department. There had been no attempt to persuade Brenner to conceal anything.

Kelly told of having been "hailed over the coals" by his chief (Hon. A. G. Macdonald) for having associated with Lott and Harryett—men under suspicion. He told the chief that he did not mind the time, knowing anything about bogus boxes or Lott's connection with them.

A Blank Denial.

Sam Harryett swore that he worked in the East Hastings campaign last November, and took no part at all in Lott's election. Harryett swore that until the election, he knew absolutely nothing about bogus ballot boxes. There was no truth in the story told by Brenner that a box had come to Harryett, which was delivered to him (Harryett). Both the Brenner's story Harryett said, were untrue, so far as related to him. The first he had heard of the conspiracy was when the whole thing appeared in the papers. All he knew about the box was that it came to him and asked to be allowed to store it in his (Harryett's) storeroom, to which both he and Brenner had keys. Harryett consented to this. He had never suggested to Paddy Moore, as a good man to do away with the boxes. The first he had heard of his alleged connection with it was when he was in the hospital in Toronto with a broken leg. He was afterwards arrested and was in jail four weeks when he was bailed out.

Harryett then specifically denied that there had been any such conversation at the Somerset House as that sworn to by Brenner.

Give Harryett the Doubt.

After addresses of counsel, Chief Justice Meredith charged dispassionately, but brought out more than one apparently strong point against the prisoner. He advised the jury, however, that they must give him the benefit of the doubt, if they had any. But they must not conjure up any doubt. The fact that Harryett and Paddy Moore had driven out together after the exposure, was dwelt on by his lordship, who pointed out that the drive was taken on a Sunday afternoon. Harryett said he went to buy a bottle of whisky, and that he was in the Hastings, and that he was on Sunday afternoon? In conclusion, the judge told the jury they must lose sight of their political prejudices, if they had any, and must not shrink from their responsibilities. The case was given to the jury at 3.50 o'clock, and they returned in 35 minutes with a verdict of "not guilty."

PORTER BUT DID HIS DUTY.

"Ontario" Makes Apology, Pays Costs, and Libel Suit is Withdrawn.

Belleville, Nov. 2.—The Carman libel case was taken up in the assizes yesterday, and Mr. Johnston, for Mr. Carman, stated that his client was prepared to publish an apology to Mr. Porter, and bear costs to be arranged to the satisfaction of both the Crown and Mr. Porter. Mr. Hellmuth, for the prosecution, said the Crown was agreed, and a noble prosecution entered, his lordship concurred.

Following is a copy of the apology which Mr. Carman has agreed to publish in his paper, "The Ontario," in consideration of which the prosecution was dropped.

The charges made by this paper against E. Vis Porter, M. P., allowing that he was the author of the ballot box frauds and that the whole affair was a put up job by Mr. Porter for political purposes, are absolutely and unreservedly withdrawn. In the light of subsequent events, disclosed in the trial of the Lord-Sibley conspiracy, it is clear that the statements were utterly untrue and without foundation, and that Mr. Porter is innocent of any complicity in the matter. The part taken by him, was that of an honorable man, and he but did his duty to the country in exposing the frauds. The article appeared in this paper without the knowledge of the proprietor. That it did appear is a matter of sincere regret, and this apology is tendered to Mr. Porter in justice to him and in recognition of the fact that he acted rightly and in the best interests of the community. In the course of his exposure of one of the worst political frauds in the history of election contests in this country. (Signed) T. S. Carman. T. O'Flynn, witness.

EDUCATION IN ONTARIO.

Consultative Council to Be Appointed to Advise the Minister.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—The Ontario Government has decided to appoint a consultative council to advise the Minister of Education. The announcement was made yesterday morning by Premier Whitney. It will consist of representatives of the various teaching bodies, including that of Toronto University, high school and collegiate institute teachers, public and separate school teachers. Their intimate knowledge of the daily workings of the educational system is expected to greatly assist the Minister. The Premier was not prepared to say whether or not the present educational council would be displaced. There will still be the necessity for a Deputy Minister of Education. Mr. Whitney could not say when that office would be filled, remarking that the fitness of certain applicants would depend upon proposed amendments to the educational system.

Provincial Secretary Hanna was urged yesterday by an influential deputation to make an investigation into the advantages of a probation system for first offenders and inebriates. It was suggested that he or his inspector of prisons and asylums should visit Massachusetts and other states where the system is in vogue. The system applies to children, youths, adult first offenders, convicts for light offences and to inebriates, and is said to be very successful where tried. Consideration was promised.

AYLESWORTH'S OPPONENT.

Archie McCallum, a Plain Farmer and Advocate of People's Rights.

Newmarket, Nov. 2.—It is a farmer and an advocate of the rights of the people against the Tory and a corporation lawyer, in the North York bye-election, Archie McCallum of King Township was the nominee of the Conservative convention yesterday. The candidature was not large, due to the blizzard of weather that kept many of the rural electors at home, but it was remarkable the enthusiasm that was manifested for the candidate, and still more for the splendid stand he has made against the Tories. Mr. McCallum was the choice of the convention on the second ballot. Three North York Conservatives aspired for the honor of opposing Hon. A. B. Aylesworth in this contest—T. H. Brunton, Danford Roche and Archie McCallum. But when the vote was announced the two first named graciously accepted the verdict and enthusiastically proclaimed their support of the candidate of their platform. Mr. McCallum, who has been in the County Council for seven years, is popular throughout the township, and well-known all over York County.

CURES CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

One Week's Use of Hyomei Did More Than Six Months' Treatment by Specialists.

In the treatment of deafness which is often a result of catarrh, Hyomei acts almost immediately upon the inflamed membrane and the hearing begins to return at once.

Miss McKee, of Mattawan, N. Y., says: "Hyomei is truly wonderful. I have used it but a short time and see a great change in my condition. My hearing is improving rapidly and I had no idea I would improve so rapidly in so short a time. My breath which was very offensive to myself and others, has lost its bad odor entirely. I have spent a great deal of money with catarrh specialists, and can truly say that six months of their treatment is not equal to one month of Hyomei."

A complete outfit costs but $1.00, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler has been in a lifetime and there is enough Hyomei for several weeks' treatment. Additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50 cents. Compare this small expense with the fees charged by specialists.

If you cannot obtain Hyomei of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, postage paid, on receipt of price. Write to-day for consultation blank that will entitle you to receive 25¢ of our medical department without charge. The R. T. Booth Company, Hyomei Building, Ithaca, N. Y.

Expresses in Wireless Message Appreciation of Canada's Hospitality.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The Governor-General received the following farewell message from Prince Louis of Battenberg yesterday, sent by Marconi from H. M. S. Drake:

"Before the shore of Canada disappeared from view I desire to behalf of the captain, officers and crew of the second cruiser squadron to thank our Canadian fellow subjects of all classes, through Your Excellency, for their hearty and hospital welcome during the last three months and a half, and which makes us leave these shores with genuine regret, and a hope that it may be our good fortune to be sent once more across the Atlantic."

TARIFF REVISION.

Indications Are That It Will Be Postponed Till Second Session of 1906.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—It is reported here that arrangements are being made to have Parliament summoned for Jan. 11. This plan, if carried out, will mean a short session and the postponement for a year of the proposed tariff reform. Many of the Government's supporters in Parliament are urging that the forthcoming session should be called in January, and that if there is not time for the completion of the tariff inquiry and revision the subject should be left over till next session.

It is possible, therefore, that if the Ministers find it impossible to complete their tour of inquiry within a reasonable time they may accept this advice and postpone the revision till the succeeding session, which, according to present intentions, is to be called in November, 1906.

School of Expression.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—Toronto University is to have another new building, a splendid structure that has been donated by a lady who desires her name withheld. It will be used as a school of expression. Chancellor Bannerman made the announcement yesterday afternoon at the Willard reception. He, however, declined to give the exact amount of the beneficent lady's donation, but it was rumored that the property had been secured for $4,000, and that the building would cost between $10,000 and $15,000.

Town Hall Safe "Cracked."

Montreal, Nov. 2.—The safe in the Town Hall of Outremont, a suburb of this city, was blown by cracksmen early yesterday, but they only got $10 for their trouble. It was apparently the work of professionals.
