GERMANY ONCE MORE BREAKS PLEDGED WORD

Despite Assurances, Deportation of Belgians Continue At Rapid Rate—A Fresh Case of Teuton Duplicity and Equivocation

By Courier Leased Wire

Havre, June 26.—Belgians in the districts occupied by Germans, especially Mons, are fearful that the Germans intend to deport them to Rumania shortly, according to advices received by the Belgian government. The Belgian authorities in a statement published today, reiterate that the Germans are cavilling, and playing on words when they assert "deportation of workers to Germany has ceased."

Though this may technically be the case, deportations to Northern France, points immediately behind the front, where work on roads, railroads, and fortifications continue, the statement adds, and persons promised and ready for repatriation are even being re-deported.

SHORTAGE OF FOOD MAY STRAIN TO BREAKING POINT

Outcome of the War May Ultimately Hang on Question of Food Supplies, Says British Ministers of Agriculture—U. S. to Play a Part

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, June 26.—"Discontent of the stomach is more to be feared than discontent of the heart—that is why we value the cooperation of American farmers." This statement was made by R. E. Prothero, Minister of Agriculture, to the Associated Press today. "The outcome of the war," said Mr. Prothero, "may ultimately hang on the question of food supplies, and the American farmer is allotted the essential part to play in the great struggle for freedom."

Discussing the moral and material effect on Agriculture by the entrance of the United States into the war Mr. Prothero continued: "To vindicate the cause of humanity and national liberty the great democracy of the western world, true to its traditions has taken its stand on the side of the allied peoples. In clear-cut, memorable phrase, President Wilson stated the high ideals animating the United States in joining the allied cause. In his address April 15, he gave an appeal to farmers. He bid them carry on 'in their ploughing the same spirit that animates their brother allies in trenches and on sea, and in munition factories, from the grim spectacle of human carnage and from the feverish race of piling up munitions the farmer stands aloof. His task is to make hills, plains and valleys stand as thick with corn that they shall sing. Yet with spirit that drives a plough as great a help as is the man who shoulders a rifle."

"The need of food for man and beast is greater whether peace is won or war prolonged. Replying to a question as to what the United Kingdom is doing in the way of food production Mr. Prothero said that fully one-third of labor usually employed on land has been taken over for war work. "Short-handed, harassed by a hundred new difficulties, the farmers are doggedly struggling to increase grain production by half," continued the Minister. "Upwards of 120,000 women in England and males old and young, drawn from every section of the country, and toiling on land, tilling hard and continuously. We have quadrupled the wheat crop. After a year and a half, men return to their homes to labor with their wives. There has been no complaint concerning breadstuffs substituted for the wheat loaf. The situation has been accepted and everywhere there is determination to stand together, however it may be. Brewing has been reduced to a minimum. There is a serious deprivation of men working at furnaces, in foundries and harvest fields. For generations they have been accustomed to the use of beer and believe in the aid it gives them. It comes to be a part of their daily diet and they know of no other substitute to replace it."

"We are further contemplating a drastic reduction of our lives so that some more grain may be available for mankind. These privations will have to be endured but we do not fear such shortage as would mean starvation." Mr. Prothero, then discussed the value of co-operation of American armies and continued: "There is risk that the shortage of food may strain endurance to the breaking point. There is as yet no indication that we even have distantly approached that point, but endurance might snap if for instance the milk supply failed through inability to feed the dairy herd, because then lives of little children would be threatened. Thus there is a greater question involved in food supply than the ordinary comforts of life or even reduction in its accustomed necessities. For this reason it is a welcome relief to us to know that the farmers of the United States are co-operating with the allies, that they fully realize the essential part they play in this struggle for freedom, that they are bringing into their work, the spirit of self-sacrifice and endurance and that they are determined to put out the last ounce of their strength to win the war on the ploughlands of the United States. Here and there God Speed the plough."

Ex-premier, Now Restored to Power, to Lay Cause of Entente Before Greek People and Urge Declaration of War on Germany

Paris, June 26.—A Havas despatch from Athens says that former Premier Venizelos, who has been commissioned by King Alexander to form a new cabinet, arrived at Athens yesterday, and will be received by the King.

London, June 26.—A despatch to the Times from Athens says that as soon as parliament is convoked, M. Venizelos will probably propose to the Deputies that Greece join the allies. He does not intend, however, to mobilize the nation against its will. He is expected first to undertake a great campaign explaining to the people that Greece's interests are bound up in the Entente cause.

If his mission is successful he will be able in about three months to put the entire forces of Greece in to the balance.

SURPRISE ATTACK GAINED BY FRENCH

Paris, June 26.—The French made a surprise attack northwest of Hurbelise last night, after brief artillery preparation. The war office announces the capture of the first line German trenches which were held against desperate counter-attacks. More than 300 prisoners were taken.

The statement was: "After a short bombardment last evening our troops made a brilliant attack northwest of Hurbelise, against a strongly organized position of the enemy. All our objectives were attained. In a few moments we carried the German first line. Counter-attacks delivered by the enemy at both ends of this position supported by violent artillery bombardment, were surprised by the rapidity of our attack suffered heavy losses and left in our hands more than 300 prisoners, including ten officers. The enemy's strongest outposts on small posts in the region of La Hure and in the Argonne, were broken up by our fire. RECONSTRUCTION CARRIED ON THROUGH DEVASTATED FRANCE

British, French and American Civilians Work in Close Co-operation With Authorities; Desolation Created by Retreating Huns is Repaired

London, June 26.—A small contingent of the United States flying corps arrived in England yesterday, wearing civilian clothes with blue silk armbands bearing white letters, "U.S. Flying Corps."

French front, June 11.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—British, French and American civilians are working in closest co-operation with the French military and civil authorities in restoring the lands devastated by the Germans when they hurriedly quit the lines they had held for two years from Noyon to the Somme. The Associated Press correspondent, after visiting Noyon, went through the entire district and observed what was being done. Others have followed the example of the Federal Capital and have devoted their energies to the success of particular localities.

There are 243 villages and hamlets spread over the French zone alone before their retreat, tried to make small communities are now just heaps of stones and bricks, without any habitable room or cellar among them, while of the remainder and the rest only slightly. In this region 35,000 old men and women and young children under fifteen years were left without shelter or food by the Germans. Some 12,000 of these were evacuated into the interior of France, where a proportion of them joined their relatives.

The military authorities have grappled in a masterly way with the vast problem which confronts them of providing for a large destitute community immediately behind the lines where a shield of French flash mines was holding back the Germans from a possible return. They set to work to organize the country and the people. The first step was to provide food and this was done through the military commissariat, as there was no means of civilian transport of supplies from other parts of France. Then came the question of putting in cultivation again the 250,000 acres of agricultural land comprised in the French zone. It was late in the season, but a practicable scheme was at once formulated and put into effect. Officers of high rank were placed in charge. The devastated country was divided into several sections and composed of twenty-five communes, and each in charge of an officer with skilled aides. Horses were left by the army, broken ploughs and harrows were repaired by motor mechanics of the army, seeds of all kinds were procured and work on the land was begun. For this manual

PURPLE ALWAYS A ROYAL EMBLEM

From Earliest Ages it Has Been One of Most Precious Colors

Purple has been, from earliest times, one of the most precious and valuable of all colors. Away back in ancient days, it became the sign or symbol of imperial power. Even today we are familiar with the phrase "royal purple." In the bible, purple is spoken of as a highly prized and celebrated product of Phoenicia was the famous Tyrian purple, so called because it was largely manufactured in the city of Tyre on the Mediterranean or the Great Sea, as it was then known. The dye was made from coloring matter obtained in very small quantities from a shell fish called murex, or sometimes, purpura. It was exceedingly expensive, because it was procured in such small amounts, and a gift of purple sent by a Tyrian ruler to another monarch was highly prized. At first this fish was found along the Phoenician coast later the fishermen were obliged to go further in search for it, even to the waters about Greece. Ruins of dyeing establishments have been found near the ancient city of Tarentum, on the Mediterranean coast, where great dyeing establishments were situated, was one of the chief cities of the Phoenicians. It was built on the mainland and hardy upon a rock pushing out into the sea. The rulers of Tyre practically ruled the whole of that fearless little nation of navigators, and has often been called for the Phoenicians might almost be said to have originated international commerce. For a long time, in addition to their small, but fertile country, they practically controlled the commerce of the seas. For seven centuries, it has been estimated, Tyre governed the little nation, but, unlike most monarchies of those times, did not seek to enlarge her territory; in the control of the sea seemed to her much more satisfactory. According to history, King Solomon, in gratitude for the great assistance rendered to him during his building of the splendid temple in Jerusalem, not only timber cut from the mountains of Lebanon stretching up behind their plains but also skilled workmen to assist in the enterprise, offered the Tyrian ruler some 20 towns and cities as reward, but he refused these, accepting, in addition to them, established colonies and acted as missionaries in disseminating the civilization of ancient Egypt. One of their chief exploits was, however, the introduction of an alphabetical system of writing.

When Byzantium was at the height of its glory, purple was the royal color, the symbol of the imperial family. It is said that even the royal orders and decrees were written in purple ink. As for the common expression "born in the purple" it is believed to have originated from an ancient custom of wrapping the royal children in purple robes when very young. Some, however, think the source of the saying to lie in the fact that purple hangings were popular in the imperial palaces.

Purple became the choice of the Roman empire also, for its royal color, and it added much to the magnificence of the great emperors of those days. Wood doubly dyed with this color was exceedingly costly. For instance, in Cicero's time, one single pound of it was said to have cost 1000 denarii or about $175 in American money.

As the empire declined, so did the use of purple; in fact, it was almost entirely neglected, until finally a new method of obtaining the dye was discovered by a scholar in Florence named Orchilli. He learned by experiment that purple dye could be made from a certain variety of lichen which later acquired the name of Orchilli weed. For nearly 100 years, so historians say, his discovery was kept a carefully guarded secret in Italy, which country manufactured the dye and sold it to other peoples of Europe. They called it Orchilli. The color, however, does not seem to have been altogether satisfactory.

Purple today in its various shades is produced, according to its definition, by mixing blue and red. It is considered probable that the famous Tyrian purple of old was in reality a deep crimson.

What Billy Sunday Has Done For New York

"Up to the Ministers Now," Says Baseball Evangelist, After Preaching to Million and a Quarter—What New York Has Done for Billy Sunday

The New York campaign crown thirty years of revival work by Rev. Billy Sunday. From the standpoint of attendance and the number of tral-litters it has been almost twice as large as any other revival conducted by him. Members of the Sunday party expressed themselves as "awed by the bigness of New York," they have met with extraordinary difficulties in their work because of the lack of church unity and their path, in smaller cities smoothed by an actively approving city government, has been strewn with new obstacles, or at least lacking in the usual favorable influences. But Sunday himself declares that New York has been kinder to him than many smaller cities.

"Don't think it was my ambition to come to the greatest city in America," he said to the New York Tribune. "I was always scared stiff at the thought of going to any big city. It is only five years ago that I left the tank towns on the kero-sene circuit for the first time. And keep when I got to Columbus I thought I'd die."

"I didn't want to visit New York. It was the same about New York. I didn't want to come, and when I got out of the tube and saw the big buildings I believed they were right when they called it the 'graveyard of evangelists.' No, sir, I didn't have any ambition to come here. But I did have an ambition to go where the Lord wanted me to go, and so I came and I know the Lord would see me through."

"I was scared stiff until I got into the Tabernacle, where the folks were jammed in so hard you could hear the planks creak. They looked good to me, and say, I found them easier to preach to than any I ever got up to talk to. They seemed to want to hear about God. I think New Yorkers are keener than country folk; they are more used to seeing and hearing new things; they catch on quicker. They are so appreciative and responsive that it just drags the best out of you to preach to them. I couldn't give them any class in stuff, not even when I was tired and wanted to."

"I shall never forget New York and the fine people I have met—people of prominence in business and society women. Say, he way some of these society women have worked in our women's meetings! I didn't think much of such women as a class, but I've got to revise that. They worked day in and day out, and no you pat me and I'll pat you" stuff, either. "Never Met Bigger, Better Men." And the men! I never met bigger, better men than you have here, running your big institutions, asks that young fellow, Rockefeller. I don't believe there's a better young man standing on two legs than he is, and I think God's done a wonderful thing to give us such money, together with such a fine Christian spirit. Did you hear the way he prayed the other night? I tell you he's one of God's workers. There are others like him—many of 'em here in New York—and the city is fortunate in having them. "I'm sorry to leave here, but I've done all I can. What tangible results I've gotten I leave for some one else to figure out. It all depends on what you call intangibility."

"What has New York done for you?" Sunday was asked. "It's tired me out, worn me to a frazzle, in or out thing," he replied. "And then it has given me an even greater faith in the power of God when a great city like this will stop and listen to His Word. It's made me realize that the human heart is the same, whether it beats inside a

ROBLIN CHARGES ARE ABANDONED Indictments Against Manitoba Ex-Ministers Dropped Yesterday

Winnipeg, Man., June 25.—Sir Rodmond Roblin, George R. Coldwell and James H. Howden, who have been under indictment in the Assizes Court here for months, charged with conspiracy in connection with the Manitoba Parliament buildings were discharged this afternoon by Mr. Justice Prud'homme. A. J. Andrews, counsel for the defence, read to the court letters from Dr. Parker and Dr. R. Richards, of Winnipeg, stating that the health of Sir Rodmond was precarious and that he was in no condition to stand the strain of trial. Mr. Andrews stated that it was only fair to say that one of the other defendants was in even worse physical condition than Sir Rodmond. If the trial were to proceed, however, it should go on now, he said, since it was not likely that the health of the defendants would improve, especially with a trial pending.

"Another thing that New York can be said to have done to me is to impress me with the religious fervor that lies latent in the big cities, but above all in New York. The war has done a great deal undoubtedly to make people turn from the frivolous and the worldly to the people of New York had been brought to a consideration of God's mercy by the holocaust in Europe long before we came here."

"It's up to the ministers now to save the souls that have indicated they want to be saved; I've turned over the names and addresses of thousands—I don't know how many thousands—of men and women who have given evidence of a desire to repent. These names have gone to the ministers in the districts where these people live; it's up to the ministers to keep them in the church. Criticize Ministers for Quitting Job. "I'm not going to wash my hands of the whole thing, now. It makes me so mad to think that there are ministers here who are going on their vacations just at this time, can't go without vacations at a time like this, when every one of them ought to be right on the job. I can't help it—I'm sorry to say, but I know there are lots of ministers who understand how important it is to hustle now, and I pray God that they will have come to Him while I've been here, and I'll pray for them and for the ministers, too; they'll need it."

"New York has done for me what I shall never forget. It has opened up its homes to me and showered me with the noblest and kindest ever got up to talk to. They ever seemed to want to hear about God. I think New Yorkers are keener than country folk; they are more used to seeing and hearing new things; they catch on quicker. They are so appreciative and responsive that it just drags the best out of you to preach to them. I couldn't give them any class in stuff, not even when I was tired and wanted to."

he had taken the matter up with the Attorney-General. He was convinced of the truth of the statements made by Mr. Andrews. A grave responsibility was placed upon him in the event of the trial proceeding and anything happening, and it had been decided to leave the matter to the judge. Mr. Justice Prud'homme reviewed the situation briefly and said that if the Crown decided to enter application for a writ of habeas corpus, it would be with his approval. Mr. Bonnar made the formal motion, which was granted. His Lordship said it was the first time the matter of no further prosecution has been mentioned to him, and the formally discharged the ex-ministers, who shook hands with their counsel and left the court room. The ex-ministers were tried last summer and after a hearing lasting several weeks the jury disagreed.

Leonard's Victory as Seen by English Eyes

Little Surprise Expressed by Sporting Critics in Old Land at Freddie Welsh's Defeat—Leonard Seemed the Logical Champion

(Straight Left, in London, Eng., Sporting Life)

The news of Fred Welsh's defeat in a way there is no disputing—he has been stopped for the first time in his career—will not come as a big surprise to those who have followed closely the accounts of his contests in the States, more particularly during the last twelve months, for into them all could be read the story of gradual decline on the part of the champion—a story with which all ring students are familiar whose memory carries them back sufficiently far.

Withal, however, Welsh holds a remarkable record, for, in his many years in the ring, he has only twice previously been beaten by Paaky McFarland and Matt Wells.

Welsh's fate is the one which over takes every champion who remains long enough in the ring with old Father Time, and the reason is easily understood. New men, having reached the top of the ladder after years of perseverance and mighty striving, care to step down voluntarily and retire into comparative obscurity with all their hard-won honors undimmed, even though they may have a comfortable nest egg stowed away in a place where it will do them most good in the days of ease to come. So, although they may know they are getting near the has-been stage, they have "just one more fight before I retire," and then another—perhaps many, this contingency depending merely upon how soon some strong, clever and game young boxer comes along as the deciding factor.

One can hardly find it in one's heart to blame Welsh or any other man for gambling with fate in this way, even while knowing that the dice are loaded. It is after all, the sporting spirit which leads them to keep on "chancing the wind," and we look upon the man who does so as a far better "sport," and of higher courage, than the one who retires at the zenith of his fame or at the first warning of declining powers for no other reason than that he does not want to be beaten.

They feel certain that none will ever accuse Fred Welsh of cowardice. Not even the most viperish of his critics have laid that charge against him. He has been a professional boxer for 12 of his 31 years of age, and in all that time he never framed an excuse for not meeting a man labeled dangerous. Rather, the boot has been on the other leg. Welsh has been the most persistent big game hunter of the American ring since he started out with the ambition of becoming a world's champion, and since he achieved his ambition he has been ready to defend his title against anyone who desired to take it from him. He set a price on himself, it is true, but it can be said in justification for this he was doing only what others had done before him, it was a practice sanctioned if not exactly allowed by custom. And at that price was less than Willie Ritchie's for coming to London and boxing for the championship.

And that reminds us: Practically all America will now hail Benny

Leonard as lightweight champion of the world. Technically, no doubt, so much can be claimed for him, from the circumstance that Welsh was unable to continue the contest.

Custom and the Titles.

But it is not the custom in any of the great boxing countries to regard a contest over a less distance than twenty rounds, as a championship test, nor is it the custom for men to box for a title at catch-weights, as they did in this match in New York. Custom becomes law in due time—unwritten law, if you like, but it holds good in the courts and in sport as elsewhere. Welsh, if he had been beaten for 10 1/2 at home, would not have been called upon to return the Lonsdale belt, as he would have been at the strict lightweight limit, and according to English laws and customs is still world's lightweight champion, a title which he won at 9st. 9lb. from Willie Ritchie in a twenty-round contest.

There is, however, good ground for a claim by Leonard to the American title, because he weighed in at the American limit, 133 pounds, which has been the standard of the country for years long enough now to make custom become law. Leonard has other claims, however, to be called champion of the United States besides his defeat of the battle-born Welsh, for he has clearly established his superiority to all the other leading lightweights on the other side, and set the seal on his reputation about a month ago by knocking out Ritchie, Mitchell, the Milwaukee lightweight, who had worked himself near to a match with Welsh over the twenty-round route. In that contest, which was a very considerable detail in the Sporting Life, Leonard revealed himself a brilliant boxer and a forceful hitter, and since then he has carried on a sequence of knock-out victories, in which Welsh figures as his fifth victim, at least. His last couple of wins by the short cut, of which we have reported, were gained out of Philadelphia, where he stopped Charlie (Kid) Thomas of Philadelphia in the sixth round, and on May 10th at the Cleveport Sporting club, New York, where he beat Eddie Shannon, also in the sixth round.

Benny Leonard, who is below the average height for his weight, standing only five feet five inches, is, like so many other prominent boxers of recent times, of Hebrew descent, and was born in New York on April 7, 1896. But although he has only just passed his majority he has been in the most persistent big game hunter of the American ring since he started out with the ambition of becoming a world's champion, and since he achieved his ambition he has been ready to defend his title against anyone who desired to take it from him. He set a price on himself, it is true, but it can be said in justification for this he was doing only what others had done before him, it was a practice sanctioned if not exactly allowed by custom. And at that price was less than Willie Ritchie's for coming to London and boxing for the championship.

LEAFS BEATEN BY TWO RUNS

Scored Six Runs in Ninth Inning Against the Orioles

THE SCORE WAS 9 TO 7

Newark and Providence, League Leaders, Both Defeated

Baltimore, June 25.—"Larry" Lajoie's Toronto Maple Leafs, with George Zabel, former Chicago Cut-hunter, on the mound, were defeated here today by the score of 9 to 7 in an interesting slugging match. After consistent clotting for a total of ten singles, three doubles and three triples the Birds pulled up a lead of eight runs, but "Big Sam" Newton weakened considerably in the final session, allowing six of the visitors to trot across the plate. A bundle of hits, coupled with errors gave Newton some very uncomfortable moments until Larry Lajoie, appearing in his second time at bat in the ninth inning, ended the agony by forcing Whiteman at second.

Bues and Barber each had a perfect batting average for the day, the former with three singles and a double, and the latter with two singles

A double and a sacrifice fly, in four trips to the rubber, Truesdale was next in line for honors for the Orioles, while Lajoie and Kelly, were in line for the Leafs, with three big hits apiece.

Jack Warnop, former Oriole twirler, broke into the Toronto line-up for the first time in his career yesterday. Blackburns had gone out as the result of a collision at second base, and figured in the last minute rally with a shapely triple to left centre, which scored Johnston, who made a complete circuit when Shannon threw high to Bues on the relay. Up to this inning, Newton had kept the Leafs down to six, against his and one run, allowing only one hit in the first five frames.

At Newark.

Inability to bunch hits on Justin left twelve Newark players on the base, and resulted in a run, to one out at the hands of Buffalo.

SIDELIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

THE APOLLO

"Circus Waifs," a thrilling three part film story of life in the tan bark and sawdust ring, heads a powerful program at the Apollo theatre for the first of the week. A story of unusually deep heart interest, and abounding in thrilling moments, "Circus Waifs" is a production worthy of the attention of all. Helen Holmes is again starred in the third chapter of the stirring serial of railroad life, "The Girl and the Game," while "In the Blood," another gripping two part drama and two reels of pure first comedy films complete the program.

THE BRANT

The original Romeo of romance and tradition was perpetuated more than three hundred years ago by one William Shakespeare of Avon, but those three centuries are a big handicap in these days of modern thought and everything else, and Romeo of the house of Montague must today take a back seat to Romeo of the film. Arthur Keegan, the leading actor, is advised to go, and banish dullness. "Laugh and grow fat" is evidenced in the case of Roscoe, and all-dreaded obesity are warned to avoid the Brant theatre. All others are advised to go, and banish dullness. Blanche Sweet and Thomas Meighan co-star in "The Silent Partner," a powerful, heart stirring story of modern business life and methods, and of the devotion of a true woman to the fitting episode of Metro's great serial, "The Great Secret," introduces to a host of admiring fans, Francis G. Bushman and Beverly Bayne once more, in a whirl of excitement and mystery. A musical of unusual novelty, grace and charm is that of "Those Three Girls," while Tom E. Yule and company

STOCK COMPANY COMING TO THE GRAND

Manager Whitaker has been so fortunate as to secure the Roma Reads, Players for a permanent stock engagement in Brantford.

The coming attraction comes direct from Detroit after finishing a forty weeks engagement in Grand Rapids, Michigan's most progressive city. Each member of the company is an artist. Mr. Edward Kenna, the talented young leading man, has held engagements with Mr. Forbes Robertson and other noted stars. Apart from his clever work, his gentility is bound to win him many friends. Miss Roma Reads holds a very enviable record as a leading woman, being attractive, magnetic and versatile. Miss Reads is essentially a woman's woman, and always counts a host of admirers among the fair sex. The other members of the company give splendid support to the principals. The plays to be presented will be selected from some of the following: Cinderella Man; Miss Maudie; Kismet; Romance; Lion and the Mouse; Fortune Hunter; Human Hearts; Blindness Virtue; Alias Jimmy Valentine, etc., etc.

THE REX

A bill of special attractiveness is presented at the Rex theatre for the first part of the week in which Owen and Dorothy Fish assume the leading roles in "Susan Rocks the Boat," a Fine Arts production of unusual interest replete with winsome and amusing scenes and a story presented in an original manner. The development of the story ranges from society life to the "Tenderloin" district and the variety enhances the interest reaching a climax in the happy denouement. Another of Henry's fascinating stories is shown and is well up to the standard of this famous author's works. "Bathtub Perils" a palpitating effervescent Triangle comedy completes an enjoyable light programme that will repeat the patron of the Rex who visited this popular playhouse yesterday afternoon and evening.

Statement to Contributors.

The local committee beg to report that they have received intimation from the Central Office that owing to the impossibility at present of obtaining the necessary tonnage for shipping to Belgium the food supplies as in the past, the relief work relating strictly to food supplies will be discontinued temporarily, and it is hoped that in a comparatively short time, sufficient shipping tonnage will again be available for forwarding food stuff.

The needs of Belgium, however, continue pressing or even more so, than before. The Central Committee suggests that contributions be used in some of the following work: "Help" to the children removed from Belgium front.

"Anglo Belgian Committee of the Belgian Red Cross."

"Belgian Orphan Fund."

"Belgian National Relief Fund for War Orphans, etc."

The local committee therefore beg to call a meeting of the subscribers to consider the situation, and counsel together as to future action, this meeting is to be held in the Board of Trade rooms on Thursday, June 28, at 4 o'clock.

C. COOK, Chairman of Committee; GEO. HATELY, Sec. of Committee.

The will of Horace White, formerly editor of the New York Post, disposed of $325,000, most of it going to his daughters.

A Call to You to Use The Telephone

The object of the test provided by the Advertisers of this page to Courier Readers was not alone for the purpose of giving prizes, it may be assumed. Behind the prize idea was the aim to make citizens generally better acquainted with these merchants, their locations, the service rendered the public, and their phone numbers, and to extend to all a cordial invitation to use the phone, not only to order the service, but for the purpose of securing information regarding the service or goods advertised. In a word these merchants are keen to give "service"—and therefore invite you to call on them—phone or otherwise—whenever they can serve you.

HEAD AND SHOULDERS ABOVE THE OTHERS

Advertising is the world's best patron of art, as millions of advertising pictures demonstrate.

Advertising is the world's best patron of literature, as the advertising pages of our magazines prove.

Advertising is the world's best patron of sport, as hundreds of miles of advertising baseball fences testify.

Advertising is the workman's friend, providing him with an advertising apron and advertising tools.

Advertising fills the home with advertising pictures and advertising knickknacks.

Advertising makes us sick with sample foods and cures us with sample medicines.

And in all the different lines of advertising, newspaper advertising stands out head and shoulders above the rest.—Selected.

The fiftieth anniversary of the confederation of the provinces of Canada will be celebrated with great enthusiasm and patriotism on the North Shore this year, at North Vancouver.

That large quantities of opium have been secreted in North Vancouver is the belief of the police. It is alleged that several weeks ago 50 tins of the drug were taken across the Inlet.

High prices for metals due to the war have caused the reopening of many neglected and unprofitable mines and produced a general demand for more efficient transportation in this industry at Vancouver.

SEVIGNY IS FOR CONSCRIPTION

Minister of Inland Revenue Urges Saving of Quebec From Isolation

NO DIVISION AS YET

Nearly Every Member Wishes to Go on Record on the Issue

Ottawa, June 25.—Braving the bitter opposition of his native province and facing the practical certainty of defeat when he returns to his constituents in Dorchester for re-election Hon. Albert Sevigny, Minister of Inland Revenue, in the Commons last night gave whole-hearted support to Sir Robert Borden's Compulsory Service Bill. The fact that Mr. Sevigny was the first French-Canadian member of the House to say a word in favor of conscription, made his address a noteworthy one, and one that was followed with close attention by both sides of the House. The Minister did not mince words in dealing with the situation in Quebec. He did not attempt, as his compatriots had done earlier in the debate, to make excuses for Quebec's enlistment figures. He took the recruiting returns as they are, and frankly admitted that Quebec, under the leadership of earnest patriotic men of both parties, united in a common effort to counteract the insidious influence that would be exerted by a word in favor of conscription, made his address a noteworthy one, and one that was followed with close attention by both sides of the House.
