THE EASTERN QUESTION.

No Improvement in the Situation.

Russia Unwilling to make Concessions.

Altogether a Gloomy Outlook.

Feb. 28.

It is confidently stated that forty-five thousand troops are ready to start from Bombay at short notice.

It is stated that considerable uneasiness prevails relative to the negotiations between the European Powers and Russia. The Opposition leaders in Parliament are determined not to embarrass the Government while the present critical position lasts. They have been informed that it is desirable in the interests of peace to avoid a definite Ministerial statement. It is also stated that Russia is anxious to erect a fort on the Bosphorus, and it is rumoured that England, Austria, and Italy have informed Prince Gortschakoff that they would regard persistence in this determination a casus belli.

In the House of Commons, Sir Stafford Northcote stated that the Government was still uninformed of the final terms of peace, but if they injuriously affected British interests the Government would take the proper course to protect these interests. The declaration was received with cheers.

The morning papers abound in details of warlike preparations. Some militia colonels have been warned that their regiments may be required for permanent duty. The militia will be armed with Martini-Henry rifles.

A Vienna correspondent of the Manchester Guardian telegraphs that the position appears extremely critical. Notwithstanding the tranquilizing utterances of the Ministerial papers, the Conference is regarded in Government circles as adjourned sine die.

A Vienna correspondent confirms the report that reassuring communications have been received from St. Petersburg. Negotiations have taken a better turn. The rumours of a large concentration of Russians on the Transylvanian frontier are unfounded.

A Berlin correspondent says it is persistently believed that Austria will eventually co-operate with Russia in the occupation of Turkish territory.

A Vienna correspondent says:—The chances of Austria's going to war are smaller than ever. The Government can only count upon a majority of two for the vote of credit in the Delegations, and it would not be surprising if the idea were abandoned at the last moment.

A Berlin correspondent says:—The Conference project has, according to the opinion of politicians, entirely failed.

A Pera correspondent telegraphs that the Russian and Turkish lines at San Stefano are separated by a little river. The Russian and Turkish sentries stand at either end of the bridge, which is one hundred feet long, and the officers and men of the two armies fraternize in a remarkable manner.

A Pera correspondent says:—The pretended struggle over the peace conditions is a mere cloak for a Russo-Turkish alliance. Russia will make a grand pretence of eagerly defending the conditions before the Powers, but will finally yield enough to satisfy them, and then arrange for a Russian protectorate over Turkey in Europe and Asia, according to the terms of a secret agreement.

A Constantinople despatch says:—The greater part of the Russian conditions have been accepted by the Porte. It is expected the treaty will be signed on Tuesday. The delay was caused by the Turks objecting to the inclusion of Salonica and Dedigatch in Bulgaria. The rumor pointing to the possibility of the rupture of the negotiations appears unfounded, although the question relative to the Turkish fleet is still unsettled.

A St. Petersburg special says:—The nomination of Lord Napier to the chief of command is producing great excitement here. It is believed the treaty of peace will be signed on Saturday, the anniversary of the Czar's accession.

The Gazette de St. Petersburg considers immediate war with England preferable to concessions.

Valleyfield Paper Mills.

The following brief account of those mills is taken from the Canadian Illustrated News: The Valleyfield mills, owned by Alex. Buntin, are the largest in the Dominion, their full capacity being seven tons per day. The works, solidly built of stone, comprise three distinct mills; one being employed in the manufacture of fine envelope, book and toned, calendered papers; the second and third turning out the lighter and cheaper kinds of paper, such as are used by the daily press, also Manilla and fine wrapping papers. The machines are capable of producing paper six to seven feet wide, and at any length desired. The raw material used embraces rags, old paper, ropes, fishing nets, &c., grass and wood. That wood should enter into the manufacture of paper will, no doubt, astonish many of our readers, yet the inventive genius of the age, aided by science, has produced a process which deals with the timber in such a manner as to convince the observer that the utilization of trees in paper-making is the most natural thing in the world. The wood used is principally soft maple and poplar; the logs are barked, cut up in short lengths, and ground to fibre by Voelter's patent machines. The product is mixed with other pulp and, going in at one end of the mill a milky white liquid, it issues forth at the other spotless, gleaming paper fit for the press. So, it will be seen, the emblematic tree of Canada might well be called the modern "tree of knowledge." The fact that a forest tree may be metamorphosed into a book, a newspaper, or even a love-letter, invites fanciful flights of imagination, but our purpose just now is more practical. At the Valleyfield Mills about 2,400 lbs. of wood pulp are ground daily. Mr. Buntin owns large tracts of timbered land in the neighborhood, but purchases a great deal of the wood he uses, the idea being to keep the growing wood on his lands as a reserve. For drying and other purposes the Works consume about 4,500 cords annually. To work the machines of the mills there are required thirteen Leffel water wheels, ranging from thirty-four to sixty horse-power. The busy wheel is heard unceasingly from half-past twelve Monday morning to half-past eleven Saturday night, the half-hour at the beginning and end of the week being allowed for the arrival and departure of employees, so that the Sabbath is not encroached upon. When fully at work the mills employ 250 hands; just now there are between 180 and 200 employed. The principal hands live rent free in houses built and owned by Mr. Buntin near the works. The pay roll, even now, amounts to about $4,000 monthly. Mr. Buntin owns a fine wharf, on which stand four large storehouses. The facilities for shipping goods are excellent, the whole of the forwarding fleet of the St. Lawrence having to pass the very doors.

The first mill was erected in 1858; the latest addition was a building erected last summer for the preparation of grass, a material now largely used in paper making.

It is, perhaps, hardly necessary to add that the products of the Valleyfield Mills are first-class; wherever they have been exhibited they have been awarded premiums. The leading newspapers and periodicals of the Dominion are printed upon paper made at these mills.

The warehouses of Alex. Buntin & Co., of Montreal; Buntin Bros. & Co., of Toronto, and Buntin, Gillies & Co. of Hamilton, are the centres from which all the products of the Valleyfield Paper Mills are sold and distributed to every part of the Dominion.

MOUNT FOREST.—Knox Church soiree held on the 30th, was largely attended. $102 were realized.—The last monthly fair was well attended, both by buyers and sellers. There was a slight advance on last month's prices, and a number of sales were effected. Good oxen, per yoke, brought from $90 to $105, the ruling figure being, however from $70 to $95. From $20 to $35 was paid for steers according to age and size. Cows brought from $20 to $30, and heifers $15 to $25.—Thos. Martin has been dangerously ill from injuries received while skating. He received a severe fall while attempting to save a lady from meeting with an accident.

The losses sustained at Port Hope by the freshets there amount directly to $30,000. Loss entailed to mills and factories by stoppage of business will largely increase that amount.

"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."

If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

A Home-Made Telephone.

Professor Barrett, in a recent lecture on the telephone, gave a receipt for making a cheap one. Take a wooden tooth powder box and make a hole about the size of a half crown in the lid and the bottom. Take a disc of tinned iron, such as can be had from a preserved meat tin, and place it on the outside of the bottom of the box, and fix the cover on the other side of it. Then take a small bar magnet, place on one end a small cotton or silk reel, and round the reel wind some iron wire, leave the ends loose. Fix one end of the magnet near, as near as possible without touching the disc, and then one part of the telephone is complete. A similar arrangement is needed for the other end. The two are connected by the wire, and with this Professor Barrett says he has been able to converse at a distance of about one hundred yards.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author in this admirable Essay clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured, without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

The Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 2, 1878

LATEST FROM LONDON.

Canada's Military Commander.

Ten Thousand Canadians to be Raised for Service.

LONDON, March 2.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Patrick L. Macdougall, K. C. M. G., Chief of Intelligence Department, in the war office, will, in May, take command of all forces in Canada. It is understood, in event of war, Sir P. Macdougall will have authority to raise ten thousand Canadians for service in Europe.

In Case of War England to Occupy Egypt.

LONDON, March 2.

Specials from Constantinople say the Treaty will not be signed before next week. That there are still several points of differences to be adjusted.

The report that Servia will put herself under Austrian protection is repeated today, and is said to meet encouragement from the Austrian Government.

LONDON, March 2.—It is stated that one of the first movements of England, in case of war, will be to seize and occupy Egypt with a large force of troops. It is privately asserted that secret orders have been issued relative to the military. The Government's purport is unknown. The report that the Governor of the Dardanelles has been ordered to resist the entrance of any more foreign vessels, causes much feeling here in anti-Russian quarters, as it is believed it has been done at the instigation of Russia.

FIRE IN GEORGETOWN.

Special to the Mercury.

GEORGETOWN, Mar. 2.

The Town Hall in this place was destroyed by fire about one o'clock this morning. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Insured in the Western for $700. The dwelling of Mr. W. R. Brown, waggonmaker, barely escaped destruction.

A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S EXPERIENCES.—In his lecture on war Mr. A. Forbes gave the following description of the modus operandi of his journeys:—"If going from Bucharest to Shipka Pass, for instance, I would start on my journey and ride to Sistova. Reaching Sistova at night, I would leave my horse, and tramp in the darkness, across the bridge, and over the islands and flats, ankle deep in sand, the three miles' trudge to Simnitza. I have reached Simnitza so dead tired that I could not walk, only stagger. But there was more work before me, and I used to turn into a friendly marketender's booth, call for a pint of champagne, draw the cork, and putting the neck of the bottle into my mouth, let the gas effervesce inside me, after which I drank the liquid (laughter). I seldom ate; I was mostly too exhausted. By the time I had drank my champagne and smoked a pipe, the servant of the marketender would have found me a light phaeton of the country, drawn by four ponies, harnessed abreast. About ten or eleven I would start on the night journey of eight hours for Giurgevo. At Giurgeva there was generally time to write a bit of one's telegram, and get a cup of cafe au lait before the train started, at half-past seven. Then during the halts in the 40 miles' journey there were opportunities of adding to the telegram a few words at a time. Bucharest reached at about eleven I would finish my telegram without delaying even to wash, that it might be in time for next day's paper in England. The telegram finished, came a bath, and then food—they used to charge me double price for one of those breakfasts, and I rather think they lost money—(laughter)—and then to bed, to sleep while my white clothes were being washed. Up and off again by the six o'clock the same evening, and so back without a halt en route to the position which I had quitted to despatch the telegram. (Applause.) He next described his intercourse with General Ignatieff, who was always with the Emperor, and from whom he always obtained the earliest and correctest news, and who, on parting with him after his first visit, said, "Always come to me when you want anything. I like the Daily News because it is a Christian paper and I am a Christian man, and, if I am not mistaken, you are also so." I regarded this last observation, said the lecturer, as a strong proof of the aphorism that discerning penetration is one of the leading attributes of a great diplomatist (laughter), and I went to Ignatieff very often, until he was unfortunately compelled to leave the army to assist in nursing his wife's sick sister-in-law (laughter).".

THE regular Sunday Gospel Temperance meeting of the G. O. T. C. will be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms every Sunday at four p.m. Short addresses will be delivered, interspersed with good music. All are cordially invited. C. Raymond, President; J. T. Mitchell, Secretary.

Two Germans, recently visited New York, and one pretty well acquainted with the city invited his friends to Delmonico's, where a dinner for two and a bottle of wine was ordered. The place and fare were praised until the bill of $11 was presented. This they considered an extortion. They paid, however and while walking down Broadway, the excited German commenced to swear at the supposed extortion. His friend then said: "Don't schwear, Yacob. It is wicked to schwear. God has punished dot man Delmonico." "How?" "I have mine pocketful mit spoons."

A mission station may be destroyed by a very small instrumentality. The tsetse, an African fly, has appeared at Livingstonia, Lake Nyassa, and all the cattle are dead. Dr. Laws writes that a new site must be sought for.

The Guelph Association of Congregational Churches met with the First Congregational Church, Simpson's Corners, Garafraxa, on the 18th and 19th ult. A tea meeting held in conjunction realized $50.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—The arrangements for this grand ball and supper are now complete, and it promises to be the most successful and enjoyable affair of the season. Nearly all the tickets issued have been sold, there being only a very few yet to dispose of. Members of the Society not having badges can get them from the Secretary, Mr. Jas. Wiley.

CHESS. — GALT VS. GUELPH. — Messrs. Baldwin, Clyne, and Patterson, as representatives of the Guelph Chess Club, visited Galt on Wednesday evening and played a match at chess with Messrs. Baker, Tassie, and Ball, as representatives of the Galt Club. Eight games were played, the result being six for Galt, one for Guelph and one game resulted in a tie. The Reporter says a return match is spoken of at an early day.

CONCERT AT ROCKWOOD.—On Friday evening the concert given in the town hall, Rockwood, in aid of the Presbyterian Church manse, was largely attended, the hall being comfortably filled throughout. Mr. D. McCaig ably filled the position of chairman. The programme was very long but well arranged, and the number of encores prolonged the concert until nearly twelve o'clock. Mrs. John Crowe, of Guelph, opened the concert with a pretty selection on the piano. Prof. Jones, of Toronto was very happy in his vocal efforts throughout. Miss Greey and Miss Masters, of Guelph, Miss Strange, of Rockwood; Mr. White, Rockwood, Miss Cameron, Aston, and Harry McCarthy, of Rockwood, all sustained their parts admirably. Mrs. Crowe and Miss Maggie Coulson presided at the piano. The entertainment was one of the most enjoyable ever held in Rockwood, and besides has netted a handsome amount for a worthy object.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The mechanical and architectural drawing classes in connection with the Guelph Mechanics' Institute, came to a close last Friday evening. It is to be regretted that more of the young men of our factories and shops did not take advantage of the valuable instructions given this winter. The great progress made in the short course of only twenty-five lessons, and the complete satisfaction shown by the pupils, reflect much credit on the able and efficient manner in which Mr. T. S. Martin conducted the classes, the results being fully up to those attained in any of his previous year's teaching. After examining the drawings made by the pupils, we could not but notice the great care and interest that Mr. Martin has shown in choosing his lessons, particularly the special lessons given on Gear Wheels, in which was shown the correct theoretical methods for finding the proper curves for the teeth of wheels; also the shortest and truest methods for laying out bevel wheels. The lessons given on sheet-iron workers templates must be of great value to those connected with that class of work.

CURLING MATCH. — A match which was intended to be between the Council and the School Board came off yesterday afternoon on the rink, but as the members on both sides did not turn out well, it assumed a kind of a scrub match with the following result:

FOR THE COUNCIL.	FOR SCHOOL BOARD.
R. Fyfe,	J. Innes,
Geo Bruce,	E. Newton,
R. Douglas,	W. Bell,
D. Stirton,	A. Robertson,
T. Dobbie, skp 9.	A. Congalton, skp 14.

This match will not take the place of the regular one between these two bodies, when on the first favorable opportunity we hope to see a good turn out on both sides. The members of the School Board are anxious to measure swords with their brethren of the Council.

A bill has been introduced in the Nova Scotia Legislature to assimilate the Provincial election law to that of the Dominion.

Tableaux Vivants.

An Excellent Entertainment by Amateurs.

On Friday evening the second entertainment of the above nature was given in the Town Hall, in aid of the St. George's Church Rectory Fund. There was a good attendance, but fewer were present than the nature of the entertainment warranted.

The music was of a pleasing feature, and the Committee having seen where the musical programme was defective the previous evening, in point of quantity, between the different scenes, had the defect remedied. Miss Jones, Mrs. Dr. Macdonald, and the Misses Foster, were pleasing in their vocal efforts. "Happy be thy Dreams," as sung by the first-mentioned lady, is worthy of special mention. Instrumental music on the piano and violin, by Miss Geddes and Mr. W. T. Vale, was given at intervals. Little Miss Vale also played an instrumental piece, which was loudly applauded.

The programme of pictures as set down, was as follows:—

Sir Walter Raleigh gallantly spreading his cloak for Queen Elizabeth to walk upon.

The Graces, (statuary).

Ruth and Boaz.

Comic Scene in a Fisherman's Cottage.

Hebe, (statuary),

Pocahontas.

Nydia, (statuary).

Arrival of the Country Cousins.

Besides the above, there were "Captives of Israel by the Waters of Babylon," and a piece of statuary of a little lad and a dog. The lad appeared to understand the necessity of remaining motionless, and the dog evidently in sympathy, did not spoil the scene by a motion. The principal statuary scenes were under the management of Mrs. C. F. Leonard, who is to be congratulated on the particularly correct posing of "Nydia, the blind girl of Pompeii," and the graceful positions assigned those who took part in other scenes. Three The comic scenes "In a fisherman's cottage," and "Country Cousins," was very laughable. "Ruth and Boaz," the history of the parties every person is doubtless familiar with, was a brilliant scene. little girls, aged ten, eleven and twelve years respectively, formed the group of "The Graces." There was a pardonable nervousdess on the part of the misses. Mrs. Leonard was ably seconded by Miss Vale. While some of the other scenes were really excellent, others could only be classed fair. The first scene on the programme, in which Queen Elizabeth and Sir Walter Raleigh occupied the principal positions was greatly admired.

Mr. H. W. Peterson introduced the several scenes in a very interesting manner. The poor acoustic properties of the hall were particularly noticeable to all sitting at the back end of the hall, as at times Mr. Peterson's voice was scarcely audible.

Those who had the management of the entertainments given have reason to feel gratified at their very great success.

MR. BROWN, of Ingersoll, has entered an action against the Mail in connection with the Kaministiquia land valuation. Now is the time for the Mail to toe the mark and prove corruption if it can.

LECTURE ON MONDAY EVENING.—The Rev. Dr. Fraser, who has recently returned from the Presbyterian Mission in Formosa (China) will give a lecture in Knox Church, on Monday evening, D.V. on "Life and Work in Formosa." The chair will be taken at half-past 7; all are cordially invited to attend. There will be a collection at the close of the lecture in aid of the Chinese mission of the Presbyterian church.

Ontario Legislature

TORONTO, Mar. 1.

On the motion for the third reading of the Bill giving finality to Voters' Lists, Mr. Meredith moved in amendment that it be referred back to Committee for the purpose of inserting a clause that the Act should not be enforced this year as regards the lists of 1877. The amendment was lost by a vote of 44 to 27, and the Bill was read a third time.

The Bill respecting Union School Sections was also read a third time. The Bill respecting the Magistracy and the Public Service Bill, passed through Committee. On the motion for the third reading of the Bill respecting the Magistracy, Mr. Cameron moved in amendment that it be referred back to Committee for the purpose of striking out the ninth section. This section gives the Lieut.-Governor in Council the power of appointing Police Magistrates for any county, or any part of a county, when it was thought that the due administration of justice required such an appointment. The amendment was lost by a vote of 47 against 31.

Mr. Cameron then moved the House back to Committee for the purpose of striking out the third sub-section of section nine. This sub-section provides that no other justice of the peace shall admit to bail, or discharge a prisoner, or adjudicate upon a case in which the initiatory proceedings take place before a police magistrate, except in the absence of illness, or at the request of, such police magistrate. The amendment was lost on a vote of 45 against 31.

Mr. Meredith offered another amendment, which was lost by a vote of 46 against 32, after which the motion for the third reading was carried.

The House then went into Committe on the Bill amending the Revised Statutes, rose for recess, and resumed. The railway clause of the Bill was debated at great length.

The House then considered in Committee the Bill to amend the License Act.

The Hanlon-Ross race is expected to take place between the 8th and 15th of July.

Another attempt to hold a public meeting in Hyde Park will be made on the 10th instant.

The laborerers of Sections 19 and 20 of the Welland Canal have struck for an increase of wages, from 90c. to $1.25.

Ontario Poultry Society.

Successful Exhibition—The Show to be Held in Guelph in 1879.

The Ontario Poultry Society held their annual Exhibition for 1878 in London, commencing on the 26th ult. The attendance of visitors during the entire show was fair, but not as large as the display merited. There were a few exhibitors from Guelph. Mr. P. Spragge was awarded first prize for silver spangled Hamburgs, and Mr. John Hewer took prizes for China and common geese.

On Thursday the exhibition was closed and the annual meeting of the members was held. Mr. John Plummer, President, occupied the chair. The address presented by him, after referring to the success of the exhibition just held, he said that in making arrangements for the next annual meeting it would be well not to tie down the Executive Committee to any particular time to hold the Exhibition as was the case this year. In his opinion, this show should come off either the second week of December or the second week of January in each year. Then the birds are in bloom and at their best, and this arrangement would not in any way interfere with either the sale of stock or the breeding season. He thought it was time the breeders and fanciers of Canada should go to work with a united front for the interest, not only of themselves, but for this important commercial industry. It would surprise many to know that the exports of Canada in poultry, eggs, breeding and exhibiting stock considerably exceeds half a million annually, and is steadily increasing. He thought all were satisfied that to hold one large Provincial Exhibition, and that that one should receive the whole of the Government grant, say $1,000, would secure the successful running of at least one good show. Every encouragement should be given to local exhibitions, these acting as sieves to take the chaff from the wheat previous to each locality sending its exhibits to the big annual "crow." This would enable the officers to offer from year to year a good bill of fare, without the fear of coming short of their expectation, knowing exactly what the Government intended to give them. The show could be held in the different poultry centres, and at the place offering from time to time the best inducements in money, accommodation and otherwise. A poultry exhibition is an expensive one to hold, and without some back-bone, officers cannot be found to take the financial responsibility which is occurring now at our shows, and cannot be expected to put their hands in their own pockets to make up deficiencies which are often occurring under the present system. We hope to bring this exhibition to a successful issue, although still in the dark as to the amount of the Government grant, which is not as it should be.

The selection of officers then took place, with the following result:—

President — Mr. Thos. Gowdy, Guelph.

First Vice-President—Mr. W. H. Doel, Toronto.

Second Vice-President—Mr. Allen Bogue, London.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. George Murton, Guelph.

Directors—Messrs. George T. Simpson, Falkland; S. Butterfield, Sandwich; J. W. Buck, Brantford; C. F. Leonard, Guelph; W. Campbell, Brooklin; Thos Partridge, jr., London; John Aldous, Berlin; L. G. Jarvis, London.

Executive Committee — Messrs. C. F. Leonard, John Crowe, James Goldie, E. Morris, and P. Spragge, Guelph; James Fullarton, Strathroy; P. Breiding, Berlin; James Lockie, Waterloo; Daniel Allen, Galt.

It was resolved to hold the next meeting of the Society in Guelph.

Guelph's First Boy.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—I observed in this evening's paper that the idea is still prevalent that Thomas Lynch was the first male child born in Guelph, and that the date of his birth was the 29th of February, 1828. Now, I have no wish to divest Mr. Lynch of his laurels; but, in a case of this kind, the truth should be known. There were several male children born in Guelph previous to the above date, and I am prepared to give their names if required. William Stirton was born on the 22nd of December, 1827, in this town, and the house in which the birth took place is still standing immediately opposite Casey's planing mill. I have made careful enquiry for the past twelve months concerning the first natives, and the result of my search is that the said William Stirton was the first male child born in this town.

John Ruskin, the well-known writer on art, is dangerously ill with brain fever.

A Rome special says: The Italian Government has warned the Vatican authorities, through the Inspector of Police, that they could take no measures to prevent a possible disturbance at the Pope's coronation, as the Pope did not recognize the King of Italy. The Vatican is indignant, and it has been decided that the coronation shall be strictly private. The understanding between the Papacy and Italy is as far off as ever.

The hearing of the appeals from the Registrar's decisions, and of the reserved cases, in the Lincoln Election case, was resumed on Friday in Osgoode Hall before Mr. Justice Patterson and Mr. V. C. Blake. It is likely the hearing of the case will be adjourned over the Sittings of the Court of Appeal, which opens on Monday, and will last till well on in March. There is thus no chance of the successful candidate taking his seat this session.

A number of Molly Maguires are said to be located in the neighborhood of St. Catharines, and to have a lodge in active operation.

Traffic will be resumed to-day on the Midland Railway after a fortnight's suspension, owing in part to the recent strike and in part by damages by the flood.

A Jump for Liberty.

Sam. Soden Scales the Gaol Walls in Broad Daylight.

Chief Constable Kelly Nabs Him.

This (Saturday) morning about half past nine o'clock while everything was calm and serene within the County goal walls, as far as the officials were concerned, one of the prisoners was in a highly nervous state of excitement. He purposed making a bold dash for liberty, and what must have been uppermost in his mind was, "Will I be successful, or will it be worse with me if the scheme fails." The prisoner in question is Samuel Soden, a young man of about thirty years of age, at present undergoing a four months' term of imprisonment for vagrancy. Soden has already served a term in the Central Prison, but has not at any time been found guilty of a graver offence than chronic indisposition to work.

About the time already indicated Mr. D. Spragge was passing Quebec street when he observed a man wearing a pair of pants belonging to the county,—one leg a light grey and the other dark—entering Ward's hotel stables, which struck Mr. Spragge's mind that some of the boarders at the goal had taken French leave of that institution. Chief Constable Kelly happened to be passing at the time and was told what had been seen. He immediately ran down to the stables, but found no person therein. At the back entrance in reply to a question asked, the Chief was told that a man had just run down the basement steps of the hotel. The basement was at once explored, and Sam Soden in prison pants, an overcoat on, and one boot off was at once found.

"Want you," was laconically remarked by the Chief.

"Oh! my God, it is all up with me. I am gone this time, sure," were the words that appeared to spontaneously flow from the prisoner's lips.

He was then urged to pull on his boot and accompany the officer back to his old quarters. He demurred to this and in piteous tones complained of having sprained his ankles in jumping from the top of the gaol wall. He refused to walk, and a cab was ordered for his benefit. As the cab was on the way to the gaol entrance, Mr. Mercer, governor of that institution, was met, who was considerably surprised to learn that one of his birds had flown, and had been recaptured.

Soden was tenderly assisted into the gaol building, and he is now reclining in one of the corridors.

A reporter visited him shortly after his recapture and found that he was considerably down hearted over the miscarriage of his scheme for escape. He stated that he would not care if it were not for the prospect of having to serve his time out at the Central Prison, Toronto. He had been there before, and he knew what it was like. He remarked that no person who had ever been drilled to work at the Government institution in Toronto, would ever want a second dose of it. On being asked if he was badly injured he remarked that his ankles gave him great pain. He wished he was dead and out of the way of those who had him wrongfully sent to gaol.

He was a little reticent at first to speak of how he managed to scale yard walls, but finally stated that he got over at the gates, with the aid of a rake that was in the yard.

"Give it to me light, in the paper," was the last and very urgent request made by him.

On examining the gaol yard, in company with the gaoler and turnkey, it was clearly seen that Soden, nor any person else, could get over the walls at the gate. Where he must have managed this affair was in the south-east corner of the yard, where there is a pile of snow about two and a half feet high. From the tracks in the snow, Soden must have received assistance from other prisoners in the yard. In all probability two prisoners braced themselves in the corner referred to, another stood on their shoulders, and then Soden scaled the three, reached the top and dropped down on the outside.

It is hardly possible that he could have injured his feet very much, as he made good time in running down the gaol alley, and through the hotel stables. It is not known where he got the overcoat, but it is thought he must have had a friend outside who loaned it to him before he was captured.

The affair could never have happened had any of the gaol officials been in the yard at the time.

A NEW AND PLAINTIVE SONG.—"Grease the Griddle, Birdie Darling," a beautiful new song and chorus by the author of "Bang My Scalp-locks o'er My Forehead," will have a greater run than any piece since "Darling, I am Growing Old." The melody is simple and plaintive. Arranged for barber-shop guitars and French harps, 35 cents.

"Grease the griddle, birdie darling—
Grease it o'er with lambient lard,
Pour the buckwheat batter on it
From the bowl so brown and hard;
And in order that the buckwheats
Be not scorched and burned and queer,
Grease the griddle in profusion—
Grease the griddle, birdie, dear."

BRUTAL OUTRAGE.—On Thursday evening a girl from Woodstock, named Minnie Ketch, was shockingly abused by some roughs in London. She had seen an advertisement in a paper for a servant wanted in that city and went in search of the situation. When nearing the Exhibition buildings, on Richmond street, she was accosted by some rowdies who asked where she was going, and on being told offered to lead her to the proper place. Being rather simple she went along with one of them to a shed on the Exhibition grounds, and the scoundrels who had been following came up and dragged her into the shed, threw her down and shockingly abused her, outraging her person in a diabolical manner. They then left her in a helpless condition where she remained until the next day.

Susan Ann Barber, who figured prominently in the Macdonald murder case, died on Monday of consumption. It will be remembered that James and William Young murdered Abel Macdonald and that, after their escape, on going to this girl, she found them a hiding place where she attended to them for some time. The girl was young, intelligent and prepossessing in appearance, and the only error in her life was a passionate love for a murderer.

The Cheap Money Question.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—From your reporter not being able to be present at the commencement of the lecture on "Cheap Money," he has from his report apparently not fully understood the character of the proposed true National currency through which the rates of interest can be brought down to three per cent. to farmers for drainage purposes and to manufacturers for working capital, and thus be about the rates for interest in Britain and France. The report says it would enable all to get rich at a "two forty pace," whereas not one dollar of it would be paid out until the dollar is earned, and thereby a dollar of national wealth have accrued.

It is the present bank currency that is the "two-forty" system, because for every dollar of their earnings or gold they lend three dollars of their due bills or promises to pay, that do not draw interest for their customers, notes on which they secure the interest in advance, and thus those bankers at a "two-forty pace" or at seven per cent secure twenty-one per cent on all the gold in their vaults. And in their haste to get rich sooner or later, succeed by their high rates of interest in eating up all the annual earnings and accrued capital of their customers. And heedless of the speed at which they are going, they eventually tumble into the gulf of financial ruin they have created by high rates of interest, and in which they are smothered by the unpaid notes and mortgages of their ruined customers.

A VALUE CURRENCY.

The national currency I have suggested would be a value currency, for as stated, every dollar would represent a dollar of national wealth accrued. And as it relates to the temporary provision of loans to farmers and to manufacturers at three per cent., in order to rapidly secure sufficient currency to carry on the business of the country, the security would be five dollars of earnings for every dollar thus issued, whereas the bank currency and Dominion notes we now possess only represent one dollar of accrued earnings or gold for every three dollars of notes in circulation. Sir Francis Hincks at a public meeting in London truly stated that by the Dominion notes which he inaugurated he saved the tax payers of the country $400,000 a year, which previously accrued to the banks. And if he had issued all the notes in circulation in place of still allowing the banks to issue two-thirds of them, it would have saved the tax-payers $1,200,000 annually, $800,000 of which now goes to enrich the banks. And if he had issued all those notes upon the principle I have suggested, it would save the tax-payers $400,000 more annually.

The National or proposed value currency I have suggested would represent tangible national wealth that had been earned and be the place of the unpaid mortgages and worthless notes the banks and business men hold against their customers, and it would belong to all the people in place of to rings and corporations to the serious injury of every true national interest.

ABUNDANCE OF CURRENCY.

The importance of having a much larger proportion of currency in Canada can be well illustrated by comparing the contraction in Canada with the expansion in France.

We have about $30 per family. At the end of the German war there was $130 per family in France, and to save the country the government made the bank notes legal tender, and the banks immediately issued $518,000,000 more currency, or fully $70 more per family, whereas Canadian financiers think it the perfection of wisdom to contract the currency so as to test the soundness of their customers whose throats they thus financially cut in order to see how long they will live after being thus beheaded. In the light of French financing they must be looked upon as financially insane.

THE INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY.

In the report of the lecture it stated that the Intercolonial built with a true national currency would not have cost anything. Instead of that being the case it would have cost in national currency paid for labor, just the amount that it has cost in gold; the difference would be that the gold being borrowed we have to pay perpetual interest for it and interest which is continually corpounding and which at 5 per cent will in fifteen years amount to the principal or original sum borrowed. That is the Intercolonial Railway that has cost us $22,000,000 will in fifteen years cost us $44,000,000 in thirty years $88,000,000 in forty-five years to $176,000,000 and so on continually or in that time a loss to Canada of $154,000,000 and a gain to British money lenders to that amount, every dollar of which would have been saved to Canada if the road had been built with a national currency as I suggested to the Government before they commenced it.

The road now belongs to British money lenders and not to Canada, and they require the interest if the road does not pay running expenses, whereas, if built with a true national currency, all that interest would be saved, and the road would, through the development of our national wealth, have been a profitable investment to the country if it only paid running expenses, as stated in the lecture. Moreover, if built with a national currency, it would have furnished us $22,000,000, and thus, at four per cent, would have saved us $880,000 annually, which the banks now get for furnishing it, $400,000 more they do not receive because of the loss by the gold lying idle in their vaults.

The only paper currency in India, issued by one of Britain's wisest financiers, is not redeemable, and was issued to pay for new public works. A redeemable, or gold currency, is only needed to pay for over importations, and as no country should over import it is not necessary for international purposes. The bills of exchange drawn against shipments are a true international currency, and will always be in proportion to our ability to buy from foreign countries.

THE PACIFIC RAILWAY.

Sir John Macdonald's scheme for building the Pacific Railway was to give 54,000,000 acres of land, valued at $5 per acre, or $270,000,000, and $30,000,000 in gold, a total of $300,000,000.

As all that land would, sooner or later, have to be bought back by Canadians from the British money lenders, that $300,000,000 would be equivalent to an annual subsidy of $18,000,000 to them for a road of which we would not own a foot.

Sir John would thus have given to the money lenders a limited portion of a territory for the whole of which we only gave $1,500,000 to the Hudson Bay Company, and have compelled the Canadians to buy back that limited amount to the tune of $270,000,000. If that is statesmanship the less we have of it the better. It was that arrangement which should properly have been called the "Pacific Scandal," and not the sale of the charter, which, as proved, was never sold nor intended to be.

THE PRESENT METHOD.

It can readily be seen that the present method of building the Pacific Railway with borrowed money will ultimately be as ruinous to the country as Sir John's scheme. For estimating the cost at $100,000,000, and the interest on that amount for fifteen years compounded at five per cent., will be $100,000,000, which added to the cost gives $200,000,000, as the cost at the end of fifteen years, and at the end of thirty years that would amount to $400,000,000, in forty five years to $800,000,000, of which $100,000,000 would be the capital, and $700,000,000 the interest accruing to the British money lender, to whom the road would belong. And thus the difference to Canada between building the road by the issue of a national currency, and the present method would be a first saving of $700,000,000, to which must be added at least four per cent. annually for the saving that will accrue to the people in place of the banks, if they were issuing the amount for us, which in forty-five years would save us $180,000,000.

In the light of those facts can be seen some of the advantages of a true national currency, and that both the Charter scheme and the present method are alike overwhelmingly disastrous, and must sooner or later end in the financial disgrace and ruin of the country. I looked upon Sir John's overthrow as a providential deliverance from the great calamity impending in that Charter scheme, and must naturally look for a providential deliverance from the crushing load of accruing interest which our rulers are heaping upon us by the construction of our public works with borrowed money, in place of a non-interest true national currency.

Sir John's scheme can be well illustrated by the history of the Canada Company lands. They bought 2,400,000 acres for about $1,000,000, with time to pay, without interest, by which they paid the principal part out of the receipts for land sold. For that $1,000,000, of which they paid so little out of their own pockets, the Company have received from twelve to fifteen millions of dollars of the hard earnings of the Canadian tax payers, and are likely to yet secure about an equal amount more from them before they close up the Company.

Trusting that the explanations and data I have given will result in your readers perceiving the necessity for securing speedy deliverance.

I remain, yours truly,
GEO. D. GRIFFIN.

The Debate on the Budget.

The debate on the budget has been carried over to another week. On Friday night Mr. Wallace, of Norfolk, was the only speaker for the Opposition, and he was well and ably met by Mr. Oliver, and Mr. Macdonald of Toronto. The speech of the latter deserves special consideration and a most careful perusal. Mr. Macdonald does not often speak, but when he does, his arguments are wells hosen and bear directly on the points at issue. Being largely engaged in trade he is in the best position possible to speak on all questions affecting our commercial interests and the causes that have brought about the present depression in business. On Friday night he stated these in the clearest and plainest light. He dealt freely with the depression, and discussed the present tariff from a protectionist point of view. The conclusion he came to was that this depression had mainly arisen from over impertations, chiefly from the English market, largely induced by a reckless system of credit; that the amount of indebtedness thus accrued was yet far from cleared off; that if the Canadian manufacturer had been largely protected we should have had the evil of over-production instead of over-importation, with the same or worse results; and that as a matter of fact, including all the costs of importation, the Canadian manufacturer had a protection of not less than 30 per cent. No man fit to conduct a business, he held, need ask more than that. He defended the present tariff and the general financial policy of the Government. We have no doubt that Mr. Macdonald's view will have great weight in the country. Though giving the Government an independent support, and in sympathy with their principles, he is in no way committed to their policy, but speaks from conviction about matters with which he is thoroughly conversant.

Mr. Macdonald struck the key note of all our trouble when he stated that there had been an excess of production and an excess of importation. During the exciting times of the American war, and for years after all branches of business and of manufactures were developed to an unnatural extent. Canada shared to a certain extent in the recklessness which marked the period of inflation in the States. Industries multiplied on every hand, which produced far more articles than we could consume. So long as a foreign market could be obtained for these it was all right. But in 1873 when the revulsion began to the States, and was followed by a greater or less depression all over the world, then our difficulties commenced, our markets became restricted, and a general dullness of trade followed. Bad crops followed and aggravated the trouble, and from these causes we are to-day suffering.

Mr. Macdonald pointed all this out very clearly, and showed that no Government could be justly charged with the blame of it, and that no kind of protection could have averted or cured it, and he stated in the most emphatic manner that the protection which the revenue of to-day affords was abundant for every man that had brains, for every man that had courage, and for every man of character. An opinion of this kind, coming from such a man as Mr. Macdonald is worth whole acres of speeches from such interested theorists as Sir John, Dr. Tupper, and the whole rank and file of protectionists down to Dr. Orton.

THE guieless innocence of John Beverly Robinson's claim the other night, in the debate on the Budget, that he deserved credit for misappropriating so small a sum as $27,000 out of the Northern Railway, where his opportunities were so great, is equalled only by the somewhat similar plea set up by Sir John when defending his Pacific Scandal doings, or the tug at the Secret Service balance after he left office.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

The Treaty to be Signed at Last.

The Terms to be Submitted to the Powers.

Austria Gives Up the Idea of War.

March 1.

It is stated in the lobbies of Parliament that the Navy estimates for 1878, to be published to-morrow, show an increase of £85,000, the half of which is for the transport of troops. The estimates show that it is the intention to commence four first-class iron-clads, and complete five ironclads, twenty-six corvettes and gunboats, and 80 torpedo boats. The above increase is exclusive of the portion of the vote of £6,000,000 devoted to the Navy.

Replying to a recent article of the London Standard, which declared that the sword would have to decide unless Russia made concessions, the Agence Russe says the British Government declared it would only make war on behalf of British interests. Russia respected and satisfied those interests, therefore the Standard is misinformed or England will act in opposition to her formal declarations. As regards concessions, the European Cabinets know that Russia is resolved to maintain the essential result of the war. She will always show herself disposed to accept every means of reconciling the inviolability of this result with the interests of third parties, but threats and military preparations are a bad way of attaining a peaceful understanding.

A Constantinople despatch says:—It is probable the British fleet will be withdrawn from Tenedos to Ismid.

Constantinople despatches of Feb. 27th says the Russian plenipotentiaries manifest irritation at the slow progress of the negotiations. If the negotiations are not completed in a few days it is expected the plenipotentiaries will present an ultimatum, fixing a date when the treaty must be signed.

A Gallipoli despatch of February 27th says: A telegram from the Turkish Minister of War orders the Governor of the Dardanelles to prevent any more men of war, whether British, French, or Austrian, from entering the Sea of Marmora.

A Pera telegram of Feb. 28th says:—The Porte is fully prepared to sign the treaty of peace except the clause concerning the ironclads, on which Russia is unlikely to insist, and hence the signature is expected on Saturday.

A Bucharest despatch received in Paris states that Austria is concentrating troops at Hermannstadt, Transylvania.

A Vienna despatch says:—The willingness of Russia to grant concession to Austria arises from the fact that Princes of Roumania and Servia have resolved to accept Austrian protection, if it is obtainable.

A Berlin special says: Austria, in consequence of Germany's confidential representations, has abandoned the idea of war, but would occupy Bosnia and the Herzegovina if Russia persists in her pretensions.

The St. Petersburg Golos says:—Typhus fever is increasing rapidly among the Russian troops in Roumania. All Roumanian railway carriages are infected. It is absolutely necessary for the army in Turkey to return by sea, and not through Roumania.

The inhabitants of Mount Olympus have risen and declared for union with Greece. Five hundred and fifty volunteers from Greece have joined them with two steamer cargoes of rifles.

A Vienna despatch says:—The negotiations concerning the Conference proceed slowly, but Austria's resolution to bring about its meeting is unshaken, and it will probably meet in spite of the present apathy of the Powers on the subject.

A St. Petersburg correspondent repeats that he has reason to believe that Russia is disposed to come to an amicable arrangement regarding the Straits, but the irritation at England's supposed design to form an offensive alliance with Austria is increasing.

THE Montreal Witness, speaking of Dr. Tupper's speech on the Budget, says:—"If this speech is statesmanship, then one thing is certain—that facts are no ingredient in statesmanship."

THE Toronto Telegram hits the nail on the head when it says: It is daily becoming more and more apparent that no man can be a patriot unless he be a Conservative and go howling up and down the streets about his intense loyalty and all consuming love of the Motherland.

PETER MITCHELL'S debate over the killing of an old cow on the Intercolonial Railway, in which he badgered the Government for not immediately paying for the hide, was too much even for the Mail and Dr. Tupper, who thought there was much time spent over a very small affair.

Now that the U. S. Silver Bill has passed, the mints are busy making preparations for coining any number of dollars. It is said that the Inflationists have not much more chance in the present Congress. Moderate silver men declare they have now gone as far as they mean to go in that direction.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 1.

Several bills were introduced, among others an act to provide for the winding up of the Canada Agricultural Insurance Co.

Mr. Wallace resumed the debate on the Budget. He condemned the Government for increasing expenditure, repeating the substance of what has been said better perhaps by previous speakers on that side of the House during the debate.

Mr. Oliver followed, showing that the increased expenditure of which complaint was made was owing to gentlemen now opposite. He went on to refer to the Kaministiquia and Neebing Hotel charges. He said the Government, by sale of 54 acres of the land then held by them, could recoup themselves for all the outlay made at the Thunder Bay terminus. He also spoke of the expenditure having been increased by the honourable care with which the present Government had attended to the veterans of 1812. As the cry about starving workmen, he possessed a letter from a contractor on the Canada Pacific Railway, offering to give employment to labourers at $2 per day. He also referred to the curious action of the Conservatives in supporting Mr. Pope, a pledged free trader, in Prince Edward Island, and doing their best to defeat Hon. Mr. Mills, a pronounced free trader, in Ontario. He did not believe that depression existed to any great extent outside the cities. He reviewed the trade relations existing between Canada and the United States, pointing out the disastrous effects that would follow a protective tariff on agricultural products in Canada. Such a policy would greatly retard the development of Manitoba and British Columbia by preventing, or largely increasing, the cost of the importation of cattle. He showed how the late Government had increased the public debt from fifteen to thirty million dollars. Referring to Mr. Cartwright's speech at Napanee, he held that unless the leader of the Opposition in this House this session refuted the charges brought against him by the Minister of Finance he would be held guilty of them by the people. The House and the country demanded, he said, that these things should be cleared.

Mr. Macdonald (Toronto), followed, and dealt with the arguments advanced by Mr. Wallace. That gentleman had first blamed the fact that there were a large number of unemployed people to the inaction of the Government, and in the next breath he had stated that by the introduction of labour-saving machines four men could do what forty did a few years ago. (Hear, hear.) The hon. gentleman had spoken of the cruelty of bringing immigrants to this country, and had then gone on to picture the unsettled portions of Canada as a perfect land of Goshen. There were two other statements which the hon. member had made, which to his (Mr. Macdonald's) mind did not seem quite reconcilable. He had first stated that what the industries of the country need is protection and a readjustment of the tariff; and later in his speech that all these industries required was that legislation should leave them alone. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) The hon. gentleman had then gone on to declare that he had no confidence in figures, but he (Mr. Macdonald) hoped to be able to show that some confidence was to be placed in figures after all. (Hear, hear.) The imports into Canada for the last ten years were $998,000,000. In the first of these years they were $73,000,000; in the last, $92,000,000. Their average was $99,000,000. Within that period of ten years there were four years, 1872—3—4—5, which were marked by a large excess upon the average for the ten years. In 1872 the imports were over $111,000,000, or nearly $15,000,000 above the average. In 1873 there was an excess of $16,000,000 over the previous year, or an excess of $32,000,000 in these two years. The average excess was $22,800,000, and the total excess $91,000,000. 1872 the excess was $11 000,000; in 1873 $28,000,000, in 1874 $28,000,000, and in 1875, $23,000,000. Deducting the total of $91,000,000 from the gross amount of $998,000,000, there was $906,000,000, giving an average of $90,000,000 per annum. Some might claim that the amount of imports was insufficient for the wants of the country, but he wished to point out that $90,000,000 per annum was $17,000,000 over the imports for 1868, $20,000,000 over those for 1869, $16,000,000 over those for 1870, but only $2,000,000 over those for 1876. (Hear, hear.) The point he wished to make was, that in those four years of excessive importation this country imported $91,000,000 more than it required or could pay for promptly, and that was the cause of the distress from which the country had not yet fairly recoved. (Hear, hear.) He then proceeded to deal with the exports during the same period, showing that the excess of imports over exports in 1870 was one per cent.; in 1872, 34 per cent.; in 1873, 42 per cent.; in 1874, 43 per cent.; and in 1875, 18 per cent. In the Province of Ontario, he was sorry to say the evil was found to exist in a greater extent. The excess in Ontario in 1875 was $20,000,000; in 1876, $13,000,000; in 1877 $25,000,000, or a total during the three years of $58,000,000. He claimed that this was the solution of the crisis. Anyone who looked at the matter dispassionately must see that the true secret of the derangement of trade and the consequent calamities was owing in a great measure to the facts he had stated. He contended that the debt of $105,000,000 had left upon every man, woman, and child in the country a mortgage of $26 50, which would remain until the entire amount was liquidated. The sudden increase in the circulation and discounts was a prominent cause of the commercial depression. It indicated that our people had been trading in a method bordering on madness. Who was to blame for the crisis? The banks had a great deal to do with it, as had also the importers and the merchants. But he would be a dishonest man if he attempted to place the responsibility for the depression on the Government. Passing to the consideration of the question whether protection would have saved the country from the depression, he claimed that protection would have had no such result. If we had protection, instead of over-importation we would have over-production, and then instead of the English merchant bearing his share of the loss consequent on the depression Canada would have had to bear it all herself. (Cheers.) Referring to the criticisms of his own course on the protection question, he quoted from his previous speeches to prove that he had been perfectly consistent throughout. The Canada manufacturer had to-day, with duties and charges, a clear protection of thirty per cent. against Great Britain. Was any more protection desired against a country which had made Canada what she is? The protection which the revenue to-day obtained was abundant for every man that had brains, for every man that had courage, and for every man of character. (Cheers.) A large volume of business was not always an evidence of prosperity. It was quite evident that the prosperity of Canada during years of inflation was a fancy prosperity, and he held that the true way to success was not the modern plan of making haste to be rich, but to be calm, slow, sure, and steadfast. (Hear, hear). What we wanted to-day to make Canada permanently prosperous were men of character. We wanted character among our merchants, so that when difficulties stared them in the face their first object would be to secure their creditors, and not to make plans for their own self aggrandisement. (Cheers). He thought the course pursued by the Government was wise and patriotic, and the only one which could have been adopted under the circumstances. In concluding, he claimed that the present revenue tariff was the best for the Government, the best for the manufacturer, the best for the consumer, and the best for every one. (Cheers).

CHAPTER XXIV.
THE RETURN JOURNEY.

It was about an hour after sunrise when the latter departed, leaving behind them such words of hope and comfort as they could command. Daddy's wallet was well filled with provisions which had remained uneaten, and the lawyer's pockets were also crammed with the same, though not without remonstrance on his part, which was silenced by the mendicant observing rather significantly that he might have use for them ere the day was out.

When they set forth the morning was beautiful as ever. The hills glistened with radiance, sunshine flooded the valley with peace and joy, a soft vernal breeze floated to and fro in gentle currents, and from sheltered hollows came the bleating of the early lambs, infusing life's gladness into the quiet scene.

"How far do we go together, Daddy," asked Mr. Adamson, as they both trudged along.

"That depends on the road ye mean tae tak'," was the reply. "If ye gang doon Glenroy, as ye cam up it, we maun pairt at the place we met."

"But can I follow another road to Aberdeen?"

"Ye can follow half a dizen reads, gin ye like."

"Are any of them shorter than by Glenroy?"

"Weel, ye see, I'm no juist at hame in this district; but if ye gang through the pass wi' me, it brings ye into Strathfugh, an' ye can gang doon and cross the Dee at Banchory."

"The very thing," answered Mr. Adamson. "Once at Banchory and I am on kent ground."

"An' sae am I," sighed Daddy; "but heeven only knows when I may be back in that quarter. Sin' ever this sair business o' Maister Harold's cam on, my peace o' mind has clean left me; and noo that things hae taken this woefu' turn, the prospect o' its comin' back if farer aff than ever. What does ye think o't Mr. Adamson. Is't no an awfu' job?"

"This abduction of his wife and child."

"The haill case—fae that unlucky nicht on the Hill of Fare on tee present moment."

"Why, Daddy, it is simply monstrous," responded Mr. Adamson. "Had I been in Harold Logan's place, I would have taken a very different course. And I hope that this daring outrage—which I have no doubt whatever, is at Gilmour's instance—will cause him to do what he should have done at first."

"What is that, sir?" asked Daddy.

"Declare his innocence. The moment that is established the machinations of her ladyship and that of her son are utterly defeated."

"That's true enough; but hoo is it to be dune?"

"I would soon answer you that if I only knew who the guilty person is. And, by the way, you can tell me?"

"Nae me, sir," answered Daddy, in a quiet tone.

"What! Surely I did not understand Harold. I understood him to say you had the truth from Wanlass himself—is that a mistake?"

"Oh no, it's nae a mistak'; but I canna tell ye for a' that, seein' that Maister Harold made me promise no tae devulge the secret tae nortal."

"Absurb—utterly absurd! There can be no claim of honour to prevent Harold from clearing himself of such a dreadful charge."

"That's as ane thinks. For my pairt I quite agree wi' you."

"You do," cried Adamson. "Then, my dear fellow, just tell me who the real murderer is, and I will have Harold cleared in spite of himself."

"I canna dee that, sir. I am under a promise," returned Daddy, but the regretful tone in which he spoke betrayed unwillingness of his refusal."

"Such a promise is not binding, said the lawyer. "Harold had no right to ask—you had no right to give it."

"Richt or nae richt, it was baith asked and gi'en, and till he himsel' frees me o't my mouth is steekit," was Daddy's sturdy answer. And he looked so firm and dignified that the lawyer knew there was no chance of making him yield.

This vexed and annoyed him exceedingly, for it placed an effectual obstruction in the way of hopes. His brow grew clouded, and he walked leisurely on in moody silence with his head bent towards the ground.

"Ye seem tae tak' this thing sair tee heart," observed Daddy, after a considerable silence.

"I do," returned the lawyer. "It is the only one I can see to defeat these cruel, selfish plotters, and give Harold his inheritance. Just look at the consequences if this was not done. Sir Philip being dead, Gilmour, by this clever stroke of removing the child, obtains both title and estate, neither of which is his, either by birth or legal right."

"But could ye prevent it," asked Daddy, "gin ye had the name o' the murderer o' Wanlass?"

"I would have a chance—a great chance of doing so."

"Weel, sir, I am sure naething wad gae me greater satisfaction than tae see Maister Harold's innocence clearly brought to licht."

"Ha, you relent, then—you will tell me?" exclaimed Mr. Adamson, with renewed hope.

"Na, I'll nae, but I think I can put ye on a plan tae get the truth in anither way. See far as I ken, Betty Corbet has made nae promise tae keep the secret. Noo, if ye ca'd in upo' her as ye gaed by the Hill o' Fare ye micht get it oot o' her."

The lawyer leaped nearly his own height with excitement at the suggestion.

"What a blockhead I was not to think of that," he exclaimed. "Thanks, Daddy, a thousand thanks for putting me up to it. Tell me how to find the cottage, and if I cannot draw the information from old Betty I deserve to be struck off the advocate roll."

THOMAS BRANIGAN.
127 West 27th St, New York.

One of the local papers has recently taken a young lady novice on trial, and she has been awaiting her opportunity to prove her value. A swell wedding gave it. She had a jolly good time, used her eyes to the best advantage, and went home to write about it. At midnight she carried in her copy herself, to make sure of its safety, and in about an hour back she came breathless and in a great flurry. "Where is my manuscript?" she inquired. "I want to make a correction in it." "I am sorry," was the reply, "but your copy is in hand upstairs, and I cannot possibly arrange for you to see it." "Oh, but I must; the correction must be made—everything is spoiled without it. It is very important!" she urged. Seeing her evident distress, the editor suggested that she should give him the correction, and he would attend to it. She was profuse in her thanks, and would he kindly see that, after the discription of the veil, the words "a mist of tulle" be inserted!"

Australian Expedition.
Jottings by the Way.

My last letter stated that we had arrived in Ogden. On leaving Ogden we go north twenty-five miles to get round Salt Lake. We passed near Wahsatah mountains to twenty-three miles from Ogden, to the largest Gentile Town in Utah Territory. The Gentiles who are hated by the Mormons, had taken possession before the railroad was built, and are determined to keep the ascendency. The land in the broad valley is as rich as any in the Territory, and are in the market. The climate is healthy, near a good market, with a short winter, and a cool, salt-water breeze at all seasons of the year. All kinds of fruit can be grown in abundance. Whilst this place has its advantages, it also has its drawbacks; there is a great want of water. All crops in the valley are watered by irrigation. In passing along to the right we see Little Mountain, which rises solitary and alone. Salt Creek rises in the valley above, and sinks into the sand on its way to the lake. We passed Blue Creek station, where an engine is always in waiting to help heavy trains up the grade to Promitory station, where the grade for a short distance is 110 feet to the mile. Leaving Kelton station the road turns to the left, rises a heavy grade, and reaches the divide between the great Salt Lake and the valley beyond. Between the lake and the road are extensive salt plains, while beyond are the green waters of the lake. We turn to the right and leave the lake behind us. We now pass along a dreary salt marsh or alkali plain; we get another view of the lake, while in the distance the Wahsatch and Oquirrh ranges beyond as far as the eye can reach. At Kelton we were but little above the level of Salt Lake, while at Ombey, a distance of eleven miles, we were over 500 feet higher. We pass along the north of the great American Desert; when looking at its barren plains and desolate appearance some idea can be had of the sufferings of those who attempted to cross it without being well prepared. The next place is Terrace, a town on the edge of the great American Desert, with an elevation of 4,544 feet. The water at this place is brought in pipes from springs in the mountains. Leaving Terrace we have over twenty miles of straight road. On the right is the Goose Creek range of mountains, and across the alkali on our left is Pilot's Peak, one of the lofty mountains of Nevada, a noted landmark when travellers were crossing the desert, loomt up to the south-west. Lusing is the last station in Utah Territory. Beyond station we strike Grouse Creek, which rises in the north. The water of this creek sinks in the sand; none of it crosses the railroad, except in spring, when the snow melts. Leaving Grouse Creek on our left, we enter Thousand Spring Valley. As we approached Tecoma, we noticed a granite monument to the left of the track; this marks the Nevada State line, and passing it we enter the land of the "Big Bonanzas." At Tecom stock yards for shipping cattle have been erected. There is a fine grazing country to the north, where large herds of cattle are kept. We next entered the far-famed Humbolt Valley, and passed Clover Valley. The valleys are owned by stock raisers, who raise what wheat, barley, oats and vegetables they require. Carlin has an elevation of of 4,897 feet. The valleys in this section depend entirely upon irrigation for their fertility. We passed some very high rocky peaks of the Humbolt Mountains. In the Humbolt Valley the grass seems to grow well, and immense herds of cattle and horses were to be seen on both sides of the track. There is little difference in the look of the country we are passing through from that which we have already seen. Winnemucca, 403 miles from San Francisco, with an elevation of 4,332 feet, is named in honor of the chief of the Piute tribe of Indians. White Plains, 361 miles from San Francisco, elevation 3,894 feet, is the lowest point reached in this great basin, east of the Sierras. Leaving White Plains we begin to go up grade again; we pass Mirage, and then reach Hot Springs. This station is in the midst of a desert; the hot springs are about one and a half miles from the station. The springs are said to be a remedy for rheumatism and kindred diseases. The steam from these springs can be seen quite a distance in the cool mornings of winter. To the right, as far as the eye can reach, is a dreary waste of sage bush and alkali, which extends across the track over the low hills to the sink of the Carson. At the Salt Works the whole country is nearly white with the saline water rising to the surface and evaporating, leaving the salt on the surface of the ground. Salt is made here by evaporation; it is very pure. We now pass over one of the most desolate portions of the desert; no vegetation is seen, even the sage bush has disappeared. We next reach Wadsworth, which is surrounded by a desolate tract of country. We leave here and cross the Truckee rover, and gaze on the green fields of the Truckee Valley, which is occupied by stock-men. They all have comfortable frame houses. In the Truckee meadows are cultivated fields; the meadows are about fifteen miles long and eight wide. Reno is a town of about 3,500 inhabitants, and is a smart business place. We saw some fine gardens, in which onions were in some places up above the ground. Cabbage seemed to be plenty; potatoes looked to be large, but they are not so good for eating as those grown in Canada. We saw men plowing in the fields, while the mountains in sight were white with snow. At Verdi, 283 miles from San Francisco, the scenery is becoming very fine. To the right is Crystal Peak. The timber is all cut at the base of the mountains, while further up the steep sides the pines form a veil of green, and above all fleecy clouds float fantastically by. The Truckee River foams and boils as its rapid waters battle with the rocks. This river is crossed and re-crossed on Howe truss bridges. After leaving the station, a post marks the State line—the traveller is now in the Golden State of California. Truckee is reached, where snow lies three or four feet on the level. We laid over at this station for a short time, and were afterwards taken on behind the Pacific Express. During the night some very long snow sheds were passed through in crossing the Sierra Nevada Mountains. In fourteen miles from Truckee to Summit station there is a rise of 1,176 feet, or 83 feet to the mile. Before getting to Calfax, the train stopped a few minutes at Cape Horn. Around the Cape the railroad clings to the precipitous cliff at a point nearly 2,000 feet above the river, and far below the summit of the mountain. When near Sacramento we crossed the American River, which had overflown its banks by reason of the late rains; part of Sacramento was also flooded with water. The levee about two miles from the city, had broken, consequently the country for miles was under water. The population of Sacramento is a little over 20,000; it is a city of beautiful houses, and the orange, fig, lime, and palm flourish. The city is lighted with gas, and has water from the Sacramento River, supplied by the Holly system. The State Capitol is the most attractive object to visitors, and cost nearly $2,500,000; it is modeled after the old Capitol at Washington. Its front is 320 feet; height, 80 feet; above this the dome rises 220 feet, and is surmounted by the Goddess of Liberty, and Pamero's bronze statue of California. Here we are in the centre of the great Sacramento Valley, 450 miles long by 40 wide. Just beneath lies the city, with beautiful residences nearly concealed in the luxuriant verdure of semi-tropical trees, beautiful gardens enlarged into highly-cultivated farms; then wide, extensive plains, on which feed thousands of cattle and sheep; groves of ever-green and oaks. Along the eastern horizon stretch the rugged Sierras with their lines of weird foot hills of perpetual verdure, and snowy summits like white summer clouds in a clear blue sky. On the west the coast range, 130 miles distant, limit the vision with its hazy lines, and out of it the round top of Mount Diablo is quite distinct. Southward the eye takes in the valley of the San Joaquin, with its populated plains. Levees have been constructed above the city. A great number of cattle have been drowned, also a great deal of damage to crops by the breaking of a levee, and the overflow of the Sacramento River. The loss is estimated at over $1,000,000. From Sacramento to San Francisco the distance is 108 miles, and the tourist will be interested at every point in looking over the rich lands, the thriving villages, and fertile fields on either side, protected by high levees on each side of the river, affording a series of views in which interest is increasing to the end. We arrived at San Francisco on the evening of the 13th.

GUELPH.

The Stewart Palace of New York city has the following history: The lot was purchased by Townsend, the sarsaparilla man, who made a fortune out of that nostrum and built what was then (1854) the finest house in the city. Such was its beauty, that it was exhibited before the family took possession at twenty five cents admission, for the benefit of a charity. Townsend afterward failed and Stewart bought the property at sheriff's sale. He pulled down the house and planned the present palace. This was done before the war when prices were low, and the inflation so increased the cost of labor and material that the contract became a heavy loss. Stewart held the contractor to the letter, and the unfortunate man suffered to an almost ruinous degree. It is seldom that a building constructed under such circumstances avails much to its owner. Stewart was eleven years preparing a palatial home for his old age, but died soon after taking possession. The grandest palace in America is now occupied by a childless old woman and her servants. The gorgeous parlors, the picture gallery and all the luxurious interior is now a silent waste. The lofty ceiling renders the staircase a labor, and the mistress being lame from a fall, is unable to meet such a difficulty. A person in such a condition must be contented with the limits of a bed-room, and hence the largest part of the palace is useless. Such is the condition of an establishment which cost a round million, and on which the taxes alone are $7,000 a year.

Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the County of Wellington.

The general annual meeting of the members of this company was held pursuant to advertisement, in the Queen's hotel, Guelph, on Tuesday, the 22nd January, 1878.

It was moved by Sheriff Davidson, second by Jno. Harris, Esq., that Thos. McCrae, Esq., take the chair.—Carried.

The chairman having taken the chair, called upon the secretary to read the annual report, which was done as follows:—

The directors have much pleasure in submitting to the members of the company at the close of another year the report of the business done during the same with the financial statement and auditors, report.

It is very gratifying to observe the progress made by the company, having added to the total amount insured $126,122, and to the premium notes $10,292.13 during the year, making a total amount insured of $2,468,406, with premium notes per face of $247,649.85.

The secretary reports twenty-one fires during the year, a much larger number than in any previous one. Nineteen losses have been paid, and two are not yet adjusted, as follows, viz:—18 adjusted and paid amounting to $4,890.26; one paid since 1st January, $2,420; 2 not yet completed as per statement attached.

Your directors have ordered a call of five per cent. on all premium notes in force during the year, and a proportionate rate on all new policies expiring and not renewed, and on all new policies taken, keeping in view the dates of the respective losses, payable at the head office on the 26th February next.

They would also urge on the members promptness in the payment of the assessment made, as they would wish to impress on them the fact that if a loss should occur after thirty days had elapsed from the date at which the party was notified to pay, the policy holder by such an act voided the policy and would receive nothing, although the holder of the policy would be liable to pay the assessments already made and their proportion of any losses or expenses from the 1st of January to the date the policy became void This is not a condition made by the company but the statute law of the land.

And further the directors would bring before the insurers the fact, that as the law now stands—any person insured by any company keeping in any insured building more than 5 gallons of coal oil without the consent of the company being obtained, nullifies the policy—as can be seen on referring to the Ontario statutes of 1876, 39 Vic chap. 24.

The financial statement will be submitted in detail so that any one may examine it, and it will also be presented in a condensed form under the respective heads of expenditure, for publication with the auditors' report, which they trust will be satisfactory to the members.

In conclusion the directors resign the trust placed in their hands at last meeting, satisfied that the company now, as heretofore, is one of the cheapest and most reliable doing business in Ontario, all of which is respectfully submitted.

THOS. W. SAUNDERS, JOSEPH HEFFERNAN, } Auditors.

Audited and found correct.
21st January, 1878.

To the president and directors of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the County of Wellington.

GENTLEMEN.—Your auditors beg leave to present their report with the financial statement for the year ending 31st December, 1877, showing a balance of $120.16 on the debit side of the account.

The item of $330.88 in cash statement represents an error made by your Secretary-Treasurer against himself in computing the five per cent premiums of the year 1875, and which item has not been brought into account before.

Your auditors are surprised to find upon examination that you are paying over eight per cent for bank accommodation.

Your auditors have much pleasure in bearing their testimony to the neat and efficient manner in which your company's books have been kept by your Secretary-Treasurer, and to the courtesy which has been extended to them by each and all of the company's officers.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS W. SAUNDERS, JOSEPH HEFFERNAN, } Auditors.

Guelph, 21st January, 1878.

It was moved by W. F. Stone, Esq., seconded by George Davidson, Esq. that the report now read with the financial statement and auditors' report be received and adopted, and that it be printed and circulated among the members in the usual way. Carried.

It was moved by F. J. Chadwick, Esq., seconded by Christian Ernst, Esq., that D. Guthrie and Joseph Heffernan, Esqs., be scrutiners for the election of directors. Carried.

A ballot having been taken the scrutiners declared the following gentlemen duly elected directors for the ensuing year, viz:—Fred W Stone, Geo Davidson, John Harris, Jas Goldie, Chas McMillan, Jas. Cattanach, Fred J Chadwick, Geo. Hespeler, Christ. Ernst, Jas M Fraser, and Geo Randall, Esqs.

It was moved by John Harris, Esq., seconded by Chas. McMillan, Esq., that Thos. W. Saunders and Joseph Heffernan, Esqs., be auditors for the ensuing year. Carried.

Votes of thanks were then passed to the chairman and scrutineers, also to the directors for their successful management of the company for the year, which were duly acknowledged.

A subsequent meeting of the directors was held, when the secretary acting as scrutineer, a ballot was taken and Fred W Stone and Geo Davidson, Esqs., were declared elected as president and vice-president for the ensuing year,

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

CHEAP SILKS.—J. D. Williamson & Co. have just received a new lot of those cheap striped grey silks—so much sought after. Patterns choice. Price lower than ever. Ladies will do well to call at the Lion.

Nassagaweya Council.

This Council met pursuant to adjournment, on Saturday the 23rd day of February. Members all present; the Reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion it was ordered that the sum of $7 be paid to Anthony Jackson for 26 loads of gravel for division No. 14; $12.40 to the Township Clerk, for registering 73 births, 17 marriages, and 35 deaths, for the year A. D. 1877, the same having been duly certified by the Inspector of the Registrar General of Ontario; $6.10, to Innes & Davidson, for printing posters and ballot papers, and $1.50 to the Township Clerk for furnishing materials for the Returning officers, and delivering boxes.

On motion the petition of William Easterbrook and four others, praying for aid in behalf of widow Job, was received and read, and the desolation of Samuel Scriber and Richard Watson, being duly represented to the Council, it was ordered that the sum of $6 be paid to William Easterbrook, in aid of widow Job, $6 to Samuel Scriber, and $4 to Robert Irving, in behalf of Richard Watson.

On motion a by law was introduced and read a first and second time for the appointment of Fence-viewers, Pound-keepers and Overseers of highways, and partly filled up.

On motion Hugh Fraser's dog tax was ordered to be struck off, said dog having been killed two weeks after being assessed; and the dog tax of James O'Neil was ordered to be refunded, having lost his dog previous to the closing of the Court of Revision.

The auditor's report was received and examined by a committee of the whole.

The report having been duly examined it was adopted.

The Auditors were ordered to be paid the sum of $6 each, for their services.

On motion the Council adjourned to attend a meeting convened for the purpose of organizing a Township Teacher's Convention, for mutual intellectual improvement.

Council resumed.

The directors of the Nassagaweya Agricultural Society made application for aid to their funds, to meet the balance of arrears due for prize money at their last exhibition. It appears that said deficiency is caused through the negligence on the part of some subscribers in paying their subscriptions to the directors in time to have the full benefit of the Government money. The matter, after being discussed pro and con, it was moved by Mr. Wheelihan and seconded by Mr. Hutcheon, that the sum of $30 be granted to the Treasurer of the Nassagaweya Agricultural Society, in aid of the funds of the Society. Carried.

On motion the Council adjourned to meet again on Monday the 4th day of March next, for the purpose of passing by-laws for the appointment and guidance of Overseers of highways, etc., and for other township business.

J. EASTERBROOK, Township Clerk.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provide our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage wich may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homeopathic Chemists, London. "A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."

If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

INNOCENCE.—On Saturday Policeman Dooley's attention was attracted by a young lady on Wyndham street, who found great difficulty to perambulate, and still at the same time remain on the sidewalk. The policeman pitied her, and gallantly offered her protection and his arm. She accepted both, and was taken to the police cells. This morning she was brought before the Police Magistrate, charged with being drunk. She gave her name as Lydia Crawford; not well in body, and terribly racked in mind in consequence of being placed in the humiliating position she occupied. She was no "vag," but had merely come up to Guelph from Toronto on a visit to some of her friends. Two glasses of hot brandy which had been taken as a stimulant, had gone to her head and made her dizzy. She had taken the brandy after her physician had ordered it. Sorrow was expressed, and grief was depicted on her countenance. If allowed to go this time, she would be more careful in future. The Magistrate offered a few words of advice to Lydia Crawford, and informed her that she might go. She went.

After several gentlemen had made congratulatory addresses, among others Rev. Mr. Mitchell, formerly of Guelph, Mr. C. P. Burpee, chairman of the Building Committee, moved and spoke to the following resolution: "Resolved, that the congregation of St. David's Church desire to put on record the sense of the obligations under which they lie, and their gratitude to all those friends who have aided them in rebuilding the church destroyed by fire on the 20th June last, through the efforts of our pastor—Rev. Mr. Chipchase's Reply to Mr. Dawson.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

DEAR SIR,—I notice in a letter in the MERCURY of the 28th ult., written by Mr. S. Dawson, in regard to cattle running at large, which is false. The facts of the case are these: Last Spring there were seven head of cattle roaming around, which annoyed myself and others. I think it was about the first week in May, and from that time they might have been seen on the road until about the 15th of June.

I enquired of several persons, asking to whom they belonged, but could not learn. At last, on learning that they belonged to Mr. Dawson, I asked him to keep them at home, when he said that "the grass was too good to waste." Seeing that he did not intend keeping them off the road I summoned him to appear before the Police Magistrate, with Mr. A. Pipe as witness. Mr. Dawson swore that the cattle broke out and the case was dismissed, and the cattle were still allowed to run at large. I again summoned him. He was brought before J. Card, J. P., and the Reeve, and he swore that he did not allow his animals to run at large, and his sons testified to the same thing, but it was of no use. I had twelve witnesses, but only six or seven were sworn, and the court was satisfied that Mr. Dawson was in the wrong, and fined him one dollar and thirteen dollars and sixty cents costs. The witnesses were all neighbors of Mr. Dawson's, and one of them swore that his cattle were on the road every day during the summer. How could Mr. Dawson appeal if I did not prove my case, and what was the $17.90 for? It was the tax costs of the appeal, which I paid to Mr. Patterson. Mr. Dawson says that I tried to get the costs from him. I say it is untrue. I have not spoken to Mr. Dawson since the trial, nor have I tried, in any way, to get the costs from him. When he says the Council paid me seventeen dollars and ninety cents for my expenses, I have shown what the amount was paid for.

Mr. Dawson thinks it would have been more honourable if I had taken the cattle to the pound, and I think it would have been more honorable if he had kept them off the road after I had spoken to him, but next time I will pound the cattle and prosecute him. When Mr. Dawson writes again it would be as well not to show his ignorance and utter disregard for the truth.

I have been eighteen years a County Constable, and defy him or any other person to prove that I ever willfully evaded or exceeded my duty and when I see cattle roaming about the roads I first request the owner of the animals to keep them at home. But there are people who do not care how much annoyance and injury their cattle cause.

Mr. Dawson may publish all the letters he pleases. After this I will take no more notice of them, and would not this time but that the MERCURY has a large circulation and he is not known over the County. If the affair had not gone beyond the neighborhood I would have treated him as the man did when the donkey kicked him. Yours truly,

W. T. CHIPCHASE.

The Tableaux on Friday Night.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—Allow me to draw your attention to an omission in your report of Friday evening's entertainment in connection with the tableaux. I refer to the performance on the piano of little Miss Laura Lemon, who surprized and delighted the audience with the excellence of her playing. When it is remembered that Miss Lemon is only eleven years of age, one can easily see that she has not only been carefully taught, but that she has great taste and execution. The applause which followed each piece she played was as hearty as it was deserved, and showed that her talents were fully appreciated.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Guelph, March 4, 1877.

[Our correspondent only does justice to Miss Lemon, whose name in our report on Saturday should have taken the place of that of Miss Vale. —ED. MERCURY.

The British Fleet.

The Mediterranean and Channel Squadrons.

The Mediterranean fleet, which is now near Constantinople, consists of the following ironclads, Admiral Hornby on the Alexandria, in command:—

Name.	Guns.	Tonnage.	Horse Power.

The Channel fleet, Lord John Hay on the Minotaur, in command, which has been ordered to Gibraltar, is as follows:—

Ajax (turret)	4	8,492	6,450
Defence	16	6,070	2,537
Hecate (turret)	4	3,430	1,755

Monarch (turret)	7	8,382	7,842

The two fleets aggregate 23 ironclads, 242 guns of the heaviest calibre, 179,261 tons, and 129,679 horse power—by far the most colossal armada the world has yet seen. They are accompanied by a number of steel corvettes of great speed, and gunboats.

THE POPE'S CORONATION.—Pope Leo XIII was crowned in Sixtine Chapel on Sunday. The ceremony commenced at 9:30 in the morning and terminated at 1:30 in the afternoon. The Cardinals, prelates, and the diplomatists accredited to the Vatican, and a few other persons were present. The Pope was afterwards carried to his apartments, blessing the spectators on the way. A few houses were illuminated. Crowds broke the windows which were illuminated for the Pope's coronation, but were dispersed by the troops without any casualty.

SPLENDID portraits of the Queen, Hon. Messrs. McKenzie, Blake and Sir John Macdonald for sale at Anderson's. Large size. Cheap.

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

CHEAP SILKS.—J. D. Williamson & Co. have just received a new lot of those cheap striped grey silks—so much sought after. Patterns choice. Price lower than ever. Ladies will do well to call at the Lion.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

Rev. J. Gemley has been appointed Secretary-Treasurer of the Western University, at London.

Victoria College.

This is an institution with full university powers, and the property of the Methodist Church of Canada. It was founded as a Seminary for both sexes in 1832 and continued in that character till 1841, when it received a charter as a College for young men. It has always ranked high amongst the educational institutions of this country, and many of our public men in all departments of life can refer to it as their Alma Mater. Since the withdrawal of the Legislative aid to denominational colleges in 1867, the Methodist body has been engaged upon a project for endowing Victoria College. The scheme is to raise by voluntary subscription the sum of $200,000, to be placed permanently at interest, the interest alone being applied to the current expenses of the College. The minimum sum of $100,000 was mentioned at one period; but that was on the supposition that the Legislature would be induced to grant additional aid. All hope from that quarter, however, having expired, it only remains that the Methodist people apply themselves to the noble work of sustaining their own institution, thereby promoting the cause of religious education amongst themselves. We understand that more than half the sum required has been secured, and that the Conference Agent, the Rev. J. H. Johnson, M. A., of Toronto, is making application to the friends of the good cause in the various towns and cities of the Province. He is now in Guelph for the purpose, and notwithstanding the "hard times" and the recent strain put upon the Methodist people by their efforts in church building, we have no doubt but that they will heartily respond to this call, and imitate their brethren in other localities who have subscribed so generously towards this project. It will never answer for the Methodist Church to allow its College to go down, or what would be nearly as bad, maintain a sickly existence from the want of adequate support. Time will be given for the payment of all subscriptions, should the subscribers require, and besides the ordinary method of payment by instalments special arrangements may be made with the agent to meet peculiar circumstances.

AN UNNATURAL ROBBERY.—On Sabbath evening last Harry Seymour, with his wife and child, was on a visit to his father-in-law, Mr. Gibbons, of Walkerville, and was left in the house in charge of the child, while Mrs. Gibbons and her daughter went to visit a neighbor. Seymour quietly put the child to sleep and then turned his attention to his father-in-law, in whose pockets he found $200 and a silver watch, and with these he decamped without waiting for his wife's return. Nothing has since been heard of him.

RESIGNATION OF REV. W. STEPHENSON.—The commission to examine into the case of the above-named gentleman and his connection with the Central Presbyterian Church of Detroit, have reported that they were of opinion that Mr. Stephenson could not continue his labors among them with profit, and consequently resolved to recommend the pastoral tie to be dissolved. Immediately afterwards the rev. gentleman handed in his resignation and it was accepted.

ELORA.—The post office and Dominion telegraph office, will be removed to the building formerly occupied as the publishing office of the Observer.——Farmers in the immediate neighborhood are constantly annoyed by having valuable sheep worried by dogs. Mr. David Foote, during the past year, has had four diff. rent visits from dogs, and each time has been a loser to a greater or less extent. Early on Sabbath morning, between two and four o'clock, dogs entered his sheep pens and worried two valuable sheep, one of which cannot survive, a ewe valued at $20. So says the Express.——John Weir, a tinsmith, lately hailing from Toronto, has suddenly left for parts unknown, after purloining clothes from some of his fellow boarders.

A NEW DODGE.—Another new dodge for gulling the "free and independent," has been practised pretty extensively within the past few weeks in this section of the county, by a couple of sharpers. The modus operandi employed was as follows:—A couple of agents were engaged in selling fanning mills. They carried with them a specimen mill. They took the farmer's order for a new mill on the proper order blanks of the firm they represented, and as an inducement to the farmer to purchase the new machine, they would buy his old mill at such a price as he might see fit to place on it, giving their personal note for the old mill. In this manner they sold a great many new fanning mills, the exorbitant prices at which they purchased the old ones being the great inducement to the farmer to give his order for the new. The farmers, however, did not discover until too late that they had given a bona fide order for the new machine, and they only held the note or due-bill of an irresponsible agent as the price of their old mill. Of course, the new machines will be forwarded in due time, and the full price collected for them, whereas the old mills which were bought by the agent and not by the company, and paid for by his note, will never be called for.—Seaforth Expositor.

REFORM ASSOCIATION OF DUFFERIN.—A large meeting of the Reformers of the Electoral Division of Dufferin was held in Shelburne on Friday, to arrange for organization throughout the riding. Nearly a hundred active members of the party were present, notwithstanding the very bad roads and extremely Conservative surroundings. Addresses of a practical character were delivered by the President, Major Parsons, Mr. G. R. Pattullo, Toronto; Robt. McKim, ex-M.P.P; Joseph Pattullo, Mayor of Orangeville; Mr. Middleton, Reeve of Proton; Mr. Munro, Orangeville Advertiser; Mr. Hood, Mr. McBeth, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Dodds, Secretary, and others, after which it was resolved that meetings to organize should be called by the President and Secretary in the several municipalities at an early day. Dr. Barr, M.P.P., who was elected as a supporter of Mr. Mowat's Government, was not present, doubtless owing to his legislative duties in Toronto.

A NON-PAYING SPEC.—The Mount Forest Examiner says:—We understand that a Mr. Giles, representing a Grange near Wroxeter, shipped nine head of cattle on the 26th ult. to Toronto, refusing an offer made him at home. He tried the market in the city, and after some exertion succeeded in securing an offer of six dollars per head less than he refused at Wroxeter. This, of course, he rejected with scorn and shipped his cattle home again—losing by the operation in expenses about sixty-five dollars.

The loss by the floods at Belleville is estimated at $20,000.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

THE TREATY SIGNED.

Some of its Conditions.

The Russians yet to Enter Constantinople.

MARCH 3.

The Times says:—The announcement in Parliament yesterday will be welcomed as reviving some hope of a peaceful settlement of the Eastern Question.

The Manchester Guardian's Constantinople correspondent, writing on Wednesday says:—Great mistrust and uneasiness is felt respecting Russian designs on the Bosphorus. They can occupy the Chanak forts at a moment's notice. Movements, the objects of which are not apparent, are still progressing. The position of the British ships at Tuzla is regarded as critical, owing to the short run for torpedo boats from Chekmedjie or San Stefano.

All officers on leave have received orders to hold themselves in readiness to rejoin their regiments and departments immediately on receipt of telegraphic notice.

A Constantinople despatch this evening says the Russians have made substantial concessions regarding the boundaries of Bulgaria. This point is now settled. The question of the war indemnity was debated to-day. To facilitate its payment Russia has abandoned her claim to the fleet. The peace negotiations are near their conclusion.

A Constantinople despatch says:—The treaty of peace has been signed. The Grand Duke Nicholas announced the fact to the soldiers at a review at San Stefano to-day. Russia has abandoned her claim on the Egyptian and Bulgaria claims.

The Vienna Political Correspondence publishes a Constantinople despatch, saying:—Reliable intelligence from various quarters agrees in stating that the entry of a portion of the Russian army into Constantinople may shortly be expected, irrespective of the signature or delay in the signature of peace.

A Constantinople despatch dated Saturday says the Grand Duke Nicholas will probably visit Constantinople on Monday. It is said that when the Treaty of Peace is signed he will move his headquarters to Ferikeni, within two miles of Pera.

The Agence Russe cites the special despatch from Vienna in the Daily Telegraph of March 1st, stating that the Russians were bent on entering Constantinople with or without the Sultan's consent, and that England had notified Prince Gortschakoff that if Russia pursued the latter course the British Ambassador would be ordered to quit St. Petersburgh.

A St. Petersburgh Pera correspondent confirms the report that the treaty of peace has been signed at St. Petersburgh. The enthusiasm over the news of peace was almost unprecedented. There was an immense crowd before the Palace shouting and singing "God save the Czar." The Pera correspondent says the treaty of peace was signed on Saturday. 31,000 troops were reviewed at San Stefano. A Te Deum was sung amid great enthusiasm. A correspondent at San Stefano is able to state that neither the surrender of a portion of the Turkish fleet nor the claim on the Egyptian tribute is included in the conditions of peace, and there is no interference with the portion of the Turkish revenue which is hypothecated to foreign creditors. Nothing is definitely settled to the indemnity, but it will principally be in the form of territory in Asia, including Kars and Batoum, not Erzeroum. Salodica and Adrianople are not included in Bulgaria.

A Vienna special asserts that two divisions of Austrians will enter Bosnia in about ten days.

A Vienna correspondent states that the Austrian and British Ambassadors have been instructed to protest if the Russians enter Constantinople.

It is privately asserted that secret orders have been issued relative to military governments, the purport of which is unknown.

A St. Petersburg despatch says:—The Czar has called out four divisions of reserve with artillery.

FALL EXHIBITIONS.—At a recent meeting of the Directors of the West Wellington Agricultural Society it was decided to hold the next annual exhibition at Drayton, on Tuesday and Wednesday, 24th and 25th September. Minto Township Show will be held at Harriston on Thursday and Friday, 26th and 27th September.

THE Fergus cattle fair for February was very largely attended, notwithstanding the rain. An immense number of cattle were brought out, and as buyers also were present in unusually large numbers and the demand was keen, a very extensive business was done. Prices were about 50 cents per 100 pounds better than at the January fair, and cattle of all grades were in demand Values averaged from 3 to 4 cents per lb. live weight.

MOUNT FOREST.—A new block of buildings, which will contain three stores, will be erected on Main street during the ensuing season. The block will be a two-story building of white brick, and will have a frontage of sixty feet, with a depth of fifty feet.——Considerable feeling at present exists in Mount Forest over the action of the School Board in their determination to erect a new school building. A petition, on which were one hundred and sixty names, asking the Board to adopt a less expensive scheme of building than the one proposed by them, would not be received by the majority of the Board.——The High School is now held in the Drill Shed. Forty-eight pupils are attending the school at present.——A soiree and social given in connection with Knox Church realized the handsome sum of $110.——St. Andrew's Church Sabbath School also gave similar entertainments, which added $116 to its exchequer.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provide our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage wich may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London. The Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 4, 1878.

The Tories and Parliamentary Committees.

Political parties are like individuals. When a man finds himself the unrepentant victim of his own iniquities and the recipient of well-deserved punishment, he tries by every means, honorable or dishonorable, to extricate himself from the difficulties in which he is placed and is not to be daunted by such a trivial matter as a violation of principle or disregard of truth. So it is with political bodies, who have been not only a disgrace to themselves but a foul blot on the page of their country's history, which unfortunately has to record their misdeeds. Having lost the confidence of the country through their own moral obliquities, and finding themselves placed, in a state of reproach and scorn, the leaders at once adopt the unmanly course of endeavoring to hide their own deformities by blackening the character of their opponents, and thereby attempting to withdraw the attention of the country from their own sins by fastening crimes on others. We have never seen the truth of what we have just stated more forcibly exemplified than in the conduct of the Tory party and its leaders during the past few years in Canada. Hurled from their high position by the unanimous voice of an outraged people, their personal character as well as public career tainted and blasted by the slimy fingers of corruption, the principles which had been the loyal boast of every blue-blooded Tory for years rudely cast to the four winds of Heaven, and every regard for political honesty and integrity treated as naught in comparison with love of power, it is not to be wondered at that our opponents should use herculean efforts to hide their own wickedness in the not very gentlemanly or praiseworthy work of making the Liberal leaders as bad as their own. Charges of the most heinous nature have been daily preferred against Mr. Mackenzie, and both on the platform and in the press has he been made the subject of such virulent personal attacks, that one is somewhat surprised that a man should not seek to be revenged in some specific manner. His character, if we believe one-half of the Tory slanders, is hardly good enough for the proprietor of a gambling den, and instead of being Premier he ought to be placed in some menial situation in the House or in the Governor General's kitchen. Let us see how these charges are answered before passing judgment.

During the late picnic tours made by the two political parties, the Tory leaders, without a blush, spread broadcast over the land the vilest and most disreputable charges against the present Premier. There was evidently more of a desire to cast dirt on the personal character of Mr. Mackenzie and his colleagues than to promulgate any national policy or add to the prosperity of the Dominion. All that could be done in reply was done. Mr. Mackenzie boldly denied the scurrilous charges, and dared his traducers to prove one single item of dishonesty or corruption in the Government of which he is the leader. Steel Rails, Kamanistiquia Harbors, Neebing Hotels, Goderich disgraces, and family patronage, were all met with a strict and unqualified denial, and the proffered assistance of Committees at the next session to have these matters thoroughly ventilated. Well, Parliament meets and then and there Mr. Mackenzie offers to place himself and all his actions in the hands of a Committee, to be thoroughly sifted by his traducers. The Tory leaders, however, discovering their mistake in treating his offers of investigation of last summer as mere braggadocio, have now to forswear every particle of principle left in their ragged and disreputable calendar, and have the fool-hardiness to say:—"We don't believe in Committees. They are mere whitewashing machines. We prefer going to the country on our own unsupported statements." Yes, knowing that the poisoned shafts of malice travel faster than facts, they are just far enough wanting in honesty to allow falsehoods to take the place of truth, if by so doing they can gain one inch of the space that lies between them and power.

Whatever may be the opinion of the Opposition leaders in reference to Parliamentary Committees and their Reports, one thing is certain and cannot be contradicted. The facts must come out. The Report may exonerate, and partisans may applaud, but the public by this means of investigation becomes possessed of the facts and can draw its own conclusions. We have not forgotten the effect of the celebrated North-west Committee. Before that Committee, it was clearly proved that Sir John provided funds for Riel's escape, when he vowed before the people that he "wished to God he could catch him." The Northern Railway Committee exposed the darkest deeds of political and personal corruption, which, next to the Pacific Scandal, ever disgraced the annals of a nation. A dozen others might be mentioned to show their importance. And whether the Committees are partisan or not, and whether or not they "whitewash" the parties concerned, by them a full and detailed account of these charges against Mr. Mackenzie, if true, could be procured and laid before the country in a substantiated and specific form, and we are not saying too much when we assert that the present Opposition in the Commons has, by refusing to unearth the alleged crimes of the present Ministry, either been guilty of disloyalty to the Crown, or stands to-day convicted of wilful and deliberate falsehood.

The Committee on Standing Orders in Ottawa have thrown out the Bill to incorporate the Presbyterian Church of Scotland in Canada. The promoters of the measure were those members of the late Presbyterian Church, in connection with the Church of Scotland who refused to accede to the union several years ago. The scope of the Bill included the recovery from the Presbyterian Church in Canada of three-quarters of a million or so of dollars, which that Church received at the unction of the two bodies. The petition for the Bill was thrown out for want of sufficient notice.

Resignation of the Quebec Ministry.

A late despatch informs us that the De Boucherville Ministry has resigned, on the grounds that it refuses to sanction either the new Tax Bill or the Railway Bill. The Governor General has accepted his Minister's resignation, and entrusted Mr. Joly with the task of forming a new Administration. Several names of leading Liberals in the Chamber and a few moderate Conservatives are already mentioned in connection with the new Government, but so far nothing is yet known as regards the complexion of the Government, and it is not expected that Mr. Joly will be able to announce the members of his Government till Tuesday. We are glad to record this change of Government in Quebec. The old one was Conservative, reactionary and Ultromontane; the new one will be Liberal, progressive and free from the control of any clerical influence.

Of the Silver Bill the N. Y. Tribune says:—"It is less injurious in its immediate than in its indirect effects. It causes no great inflation; it forces upon the public at once no great amount of depreciated coin; it compels no dishonoring of the National obligations. Thanks even to this Senate, the worst of its poison was taken out, and the Silver Bill that has become law no more resembles the Bland bill than it does wise legislation. It only inflicts the stain upon our National honor; it does not enforce immediate acts of National dishonor. The Secretary of the Treasury can still pay all our obligations according to the spirit as well as the letter of the contract, and he can so utilize the new silver coinage as to make it an actual aid to the speedy resumption of specie payment." This may be all very true, but as an evidence that foreign countries have lost faith in the honor and credit of the United States, we have only to look to the reports from abroad. Among others, Mr. Evarts has received official information that Germany, apprehensive of the legislation by Congress, or desiring to convert some of its assets into cash, had disposed of fifteen million dollars' worth of United States bonds, purchased several years ago with a portion of the French indemnity fund. Before long the bulk of these bonds will be thrown back on the States.

Sir John appeared in the House on Friday afternoon, looking pale and exhausted. The great chieftain was evidently the worse for his little holiday.

We can fully endorse what is said by an Ottawa correspondent about Dr. Orton, when he states that "he is not nearly so popular as he was a year ago, as the farmers find out that he has bamboozled them. It was significant that he was allowed, during the year, to speak at but one Tory picnic. It was held early in the season, but he cut such a figure that Sir John promptly squelched him and compelled him to stay at home. The exhibition he made of himself during the debate was truly a pitiable one.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, March 2.

Mr. Crooks presented the report of the Select Committee appointed to consider as to the best schemes for promoting and maintaining the public health.

Mr. Pardee moved that the House resolve itself into Committee to consider the following resolutions relating to railway aid:—

Resolved, That, subject to the conditions hereinafter mentioned, aid shall be granted out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund to the undermentioned railway companies, for the construction of the portions of railway hereinafter mentioned, as follows, that is to say:—

(1) The Hamilton and North-western Railway Company, from Jarvis to Dover, a distance of about ten miles, at the rate of $173 04 per mile per annum, payable half yearly for twenty years.

(2) The Port Stanley, Strathroy, and Port Franks Railway, from Strathroy to the intersection of its line with the Canada Southern Railway, in the township of Ekfrid, a distance of about ten miles, at the rate of $173.04 per mile per annum, payable half yearly for twenty years.

(3) The North Simcoe Railway Company, from Penetanguishene to its point of junction with the Northern Railway, a distance of about thirty three miles, at the rate of $216.30 per mile per annum, payable half-yearly for twenty years.

Then follow the conditions on which the payments are to be made, Mr. Pardee said as regards the first grant, the cost of the section of the road from Jarvis to Port Dover would be, according to the Engineer's certificate, $125,000, or $12,500 per mile. The Company had already expended on that section of the road no less than $91,845, and this sum was raised by municipal bonuses and pledging the Company's bonds. The entire amount of bonus raised was $20,000 from the township of Woodhouse, and $71,845.00 was borrowed on the Company's bonds, making a total of $91,845.00. The cost of work yet to be completed was $35,426. The way the Company proposed to raise that sum was thus:—The Government will give $2,000 a mile for the ten miles, or a total of $20,000, leaving $15,426.00 to be financed for. To raise this there can be no difficulty. The next road to be aided was the Port Stanley, Strathroy, and Port Franks Railway. This road runs from Port Stanley through the counties of Elgin and Middlesex to Strathroy, and thence through Lambton to Fort Franks, a distance of seventy-eight miles. The financial basis to be presented was as follows:—Municipal bonuses from the town of Strathroy, $25,000; from the township of Caradoc, $10,000; a total of $35,000 for bonuses. The Government proposed to aid the road at the rate of $2,000 per mile for the ten miles, making a total vote of $20,000 on account of that road. The Company proposed to issue bonds at $3,581 per mile, which they estimated to sell at seventy-five per cent per mile, and realize $2,860, making a total of $59,360, the sum required to construct the road. The third railway to be aided was the North Simcoe Railway. The scheme had been before the country for a long time, and the Government had been asked previously to grant it assistance, but they had always refused because they were not satisfied with the financial basis. That objection had now been removed.

Already $56,082 91 had been expended on the road, being equal to $1,700 per mile; $50,000 of that sum was voted as a bonus from the township of Tiny. The two engineers had made a careful estimate, and placed the cost of construction at $316,763, or an equivalent of about $9,600 per mile on the thirty-three miles of the road running from Penetanguishene to the Northern Railway at Barrie. The Government propose to aid the road to the extent of $2,500 per mile, or a total of $82,000. This makes the financial basis equal to $392,800; leaving $25,963 to be raised. The sum is so insignificant that the Company will experience no difficulty in making it up. The whole amount would be $122,500, made up thus:—Hamilton and North-western, $20,000; Port Stanley, Strathroy, and Port Franks, $20,000; and the North Simcoe Railway, $82,000. The vote would be divided over a period of twenty years, thus:—Hamilton and North-western, $173 04 per mile per annum; Port Stanley, Strathroy, and Port Franks, $173.04; North Simcoe Railway, $216.30; or a total of $10,598.70 per annum.

Mr. Lauder moved for an Order of the House for a return of copies of all instructions given by the Government, or any Departmental officer, to detectives sent to the county of Brant.

Mr. Hardy had no doubt that the people of Brantford would thank the hon. gentleman for the warm interest he was taking in their welfare. The Commissioners, instead of resigning in a body, remained in office as a body—not one of them resigned; the Inspector resigned, feeling that he was unable to enforce the Dunkin Act, and another was appointed in his place. The Government did not send any detectives, but those who were promoting the enforcement of the Dunkin Act along with the Inspector brought two detectives there, which neither the Commissioners nor the Government knew anything about till after they had been there and did their work.

Mr. Sinclair moved for "Order of the House for a return from each of the Departments of the Government showing comparatively the volume of business done in such Department during each year from 1868 to 1877, inclusive.

Mr. Merrick moved for a return showing the annual cost of the Official Gazette, the annual amount of work done for the Government, and also for the general public, &c.

Mr. Grange moved for a return showing the names of all magistrates at present on the Commission of the Peace, the date of their several appointments, the date of their qualification, and the counties for which they are respectively appointed.

Some other returns were moved for and the House adjourned at two o'clock.

Rymal on McCarthy.

Mr. McCarthy, having been "coached" by Dr. Tupper, who went and had a hurried interview with him, made what might be called a reply (?) to Mr. Blake's splendid speech on Thursday. He was very abusive, but as usual, his facts were bad and he had to withdraw one charge en iretly he made, while the other from having no leg to stand upon was virtually laughed out of the House. Being interrupted several times he foolishly lost his temper and became very much excited. He "flared up," as the immortal Lindley would say, and made an effort to retrieve the position he lost a few evenings ago, but it was useless. The repeated jeers at his "facts" were so pointed that they deprived his speech of any force it might otherwise have had. When he resumed his seat, while his decimated friends indulged in a few sickly cheers, he was very much flushed, and evidently annoyed at his second failure. But whatever, his feelings were, they were changed to mortification when Mr. Rymal rose to reply to him, for he knew he would be held up to the laughter of the House—and he was not disappointed. Mr. Rymal having eulogized the late Mr. John Hillyard Cameron—whose mantle was said to have fallen on Mr. McCarthy, who was to supply the "brains" of the party—he made a rapid comparison of the merits of the two. He was very rough on Mr. McCarthy, and the House laughed loudly at his sallies. When he said that Mr. McCarthy was to Mr. Cameron as Satyr to Hyperion, as mud to marble, and as a singed cat to a Royal Bengal tiger, roars of laughter filled the chambre. To-day the words "singed cat" are frequently heard, coupled with laughter, in the lobbies and smoking rooms, and are as likely to stick to the unhappy and much-squelched member for Cardwell, as the words "Tupper geese" are to be fastened on Campbell and Wade. The process of extinguishing Mr. McCarthy's vanity is rapidly going on, and a man may yet be made of him. He has, so it is stated, refused to have anything to do with financial matters or budget speeches.—Hamilton Times' Correspondent.

We welcome the Ottawa Free Press in its new and becoming dress. It shows signs of prosperity and keeps up its vigor.

To a newspaper man, six lines of a news item is worth more than a barrel of poetry.

ALLAYED.—The fears entertained recently that Rev. Mr. McKay, Missionary to Formosa, had been murdered there, are allayed, Prof. McLaren, of Toronto, having heard directly from Mr McKay himself. In the letter an account is given of the outbreak among the natives. The mob had pulled down the mission house and threatened the missionary, but he stood his ground for a week and then finally escaped.

LISTOWEL.—The total amount of taxes collected in Listowell for 1877 is $10,510.67.——A draught tournament will take place in the Town Hall on Friday evening.——The Stratford and Huron Railway have completed the survey of a railway switch branching from the main line a few rods west of the water tank, and running across the corner of Livingstone's farm and intersecting the lumber yard to the south of Shield's mill, giving Mr. Shields a short branch along the west side of his mill. The G.W.R. Company, not to be behind their rivals in trade, are making a survey this week through Messrs. J. & J. Livingston's property, for the purpose of building a switch to the principal mills of the town.

The first edition of Mr. Pattullo's compilation of the Liberal pic nic speeches, comprising 20,000 copies, has been sold, and a second edition is being printed. We hope before five months to see a fifth edition called for.

Earl Granville has become a total abstainer.

CHAPTER XXIV.
THE RETURN JOURNEY.

Daddy described the situation of Widow Corbet's cottage as well as he was able; at the same time assuring the lawyer that he could scarcely miss it, as it stood by itself just under the broad slope of the Hill. Mr. Adamson's spirits had risen again, his good humour was restored, and he began forthwith to chat with Daddy in a venacular nearly as broad as that of the mendicant. The mixture of shrewdness and commonsense, the liberality, charity, tolerance, the kindness of heart, the dry pawky humour, the truthfulness and sturdy independence, the simplicity of habits and absence of all earthly desire which Daddy displayed, interested and even astonished the lawyer, who could not have imagined it possible that such a dirty exterior and fantastic dress enshrined so much intelligence and true thought and feeling. It was such an example of happiness easily attained, and full contentment within very circumscribed limits, as filled him with wonder and admiration.

The steep and rugged way through the pass had been so completely beguiled by the agreeable conversation that neither of them had taken note of the progress they had made, or indeed of external objects generally, otherwise they might have been sensible of a change which had for an hour or two been taking place in the weather. The soft breeze of the morning had altered into a cold, fitful, gurly, gusty wind, which came ever and anon, emiting angry soughs which had mischief in its sound—a hazy film had gradually gathered over the bright sky and thickened there till the beams of the sun were shorn of their effulgence—a dull, leaden mist crept about the peaks of the mountains, and advanced down their sides, shrouding them as it came, till the visible landscape became narrower and narrower—and the whole scene presented different and less enticing features.

Suddenly a deep shadow fell upon the pass, which at once drew their attention, and looking up they saw that towards the north the sky was covered with dense blackness. At the same moment a cold gust met them in the face, and they became alive to the change which the atmosphere had undergone.

"Bless me, Daddy, here's a new aspect of things," said the lawyer, casting an uneasy look around and above.

"I jaloused as muckle, but it has come suner than I expected," rejoined the mendicant. "Ay, ay, we are to hae it bitter eneuch," he added, as the darkness increased and the wind howled more fiercely, bringing a few whirling flakes of snow into their faces. "Noo, sir, ye'll hae an opportunity o' seein' a winter blast among the hills; but it's high time we were lookin' aboot for a place o' shelter. Yonder's an owre hanging rock; let us make for it wi'oot delay."

The crag to which Daddy pointed was at no great distance, but ere they could reach it the storm was upon them. The black clond had overspread the face of the sun, surrounding them with a deep darkness; the air became filled with snow-flakes, which the wind swept down the pass with blinding impetuosity. In less than a minute everything was blotted out from view, and the lawyer stood bewildered, gasping for breath, unable to see which way to go, and incapable of going if he did.

"Daddy — where — are — you, Daddy. Oh—oh—God bless me—I'm—suffocated," he managed to roar forth at intervals.

It was no time for ceremony. Daddy clutched Adamson's arm and dragged him forward.

"This way, sir," he cried in a cheery tone.

Helplessly the lawyer gave himself up to the old man's guidance, and stumbled on, his utmost efforts being required to obtain breath.

The struggle could not have been long maintained by either of them. A very few minutes exposure to that sweeping tempest would have driven them prostrate and senseless. Fortunately the jutting craig was not far off, and before the blinding snow reached them Daddy had carefully noted its position, so that, even in the darkness by which they were enveloped, he kept a direct course towards it, and had the satisfaction of placing his companion and himself under its lee.

Here the shelter was better than he expected. The rock was more than a hundred feet in height, and its top overhung its base, so that on its southern side they could stand quite protected form the cold blast, and watch its mad career through the pass.

"Mercy me, that was fearsome," ejaculated the lawyer, when he had somewhat recovered his breath. "I was dune for, Daddy—utterly dune for—if ye had not pulled me hither."

"'Deed was ye, sir, for ye had begun to spin roond like a tee totum, and had lost a' 'notion o' the airts' Do ye believe noo, sir, that ye hae come intil the Heilands atween shoors?"

"I believe I was a great idiot to risk my life in such a venture," answered Adamson, rather testly. "Here we are in this mountain solitude in the midst of a snowstorm, which may last for a week, and long before it is ended we'll have perished with cold and hunger."

"Hoots, no, sir; it's no just sae bad as that. Ye ower praised the marnin', and now ye are misca'in' the mid-day. I'll venture tae prophesy that in an hou or sae the blast will be ower, and the afternoon a' the better for the ootblaw."

"I hope so. At present this is awful to witness. Thank goodness we've got out of the force of it."

"Ay, sir," observed Daddy, "this is what ane may ca' the shadow o' a great rock in a weary land. It's a mercy we were sae near it, Mr. Adamson, I hae been in mony a peril among the glens, but somehoo there was aye deliverance for me, sae I never lost heart, for I ken I'll no dee till my time comes. But look, sir. Irna that grand?"

"Grand! Gracious me, it's overwhelming," said the lawyer with a shudder, as he gazed forth upon the war of the elements, which seemed fierce enough to shake the mountain to its base. The wind's roar was terrific, as it tossed hither and thither the snow which darkened the air; and when the commotion was at it's greatest height, gleams of lightning and crashes of thunder deepened the awfulness of the scene.

On the lawyer's mind there was produced a feeling of awe akin to terror; but on Daddy the awe was more akin to joy. It roused, excited, inspired him, and brought him out at his best.

ANOTHER PROPOSED EXTENSION.—Mr. H. Reed, of Glanford, writes to the Hamilton Times advocating the extension of the Wellington, Grey & Bruce Railway from Southampton so Wiarton, on the Indian Peninsula, where there is a very natural harbour. The distance is abaut 20 mi'es. Mr. Reed says:—If the President and Directors of the Wellington, Grey & Bruce road will only take hold of the work, they would find that we, the ratepayers of Wiarton and the Peninsula, will be only too willing to assist; and we hope Dundas, Galt, Guelph, Elora, Fergus, Walkerton, Paisley and the intermediate towns and villages will also wake up from their napping and hold ont their encouragement to the Company to extend the road and establish a line, so that we can trade direct with our neighbors in Manitoba and the Northwest. With such a chain of enterprising towns and villages between the City of Hamilton and Wiarton, the amount of produce in the Northwest cannot help but make the line a great success and open up a market for our manufactories, and thereby build up our towns and cities.

The Provincial accounts of Nova Scotio show a balance of nearly $148,000 against the Province for the year.

Heating a City by Steam.

The experiment of heating Lockport, N. Y. by steam has been proved highly successful. Three miles of pipe properly covered with nonconducting material laid under ground through some of the principal streets radiates from a central boiler house, and fifty different dwellings and otehr difices, including one large public school building have been thoroughly warmed all winter. Dwellings more than a mile distant from the steam generator are heated as readily as those next door. Steam meters are provided, so that each consumer need pay only for what he consumes. It is claimed that the system can be so developed as to furnish steam at fifty pounds pressure transmitted through twenty miles of pipe thus supplying power for engines and manufactories and steam for cooking and laundry purposes for extinguishing conflagrations, for clearing streets of ice or snow, or protecting hydrants from frost. The rates actually charged to the consumer here do not exceed former cost of his coal and wood.

"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."

If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a receipt that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. The great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, Bible House, New York City. sep18 deodwly

The Danites.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—In reference to the Rev. W. H. Poole's lecture on "Anglo-Israel" he places the Danites in a sad fix, as they are not mentioned among the saved in the book of Revelation (see Rev. 7th chap.) This matter better be cleared up at once as it places two or three of our clergymen in an awkward position. A Danite feeling much concerned about his position in the great hereafter asked a friend where he thought the Danites would go to? The reply was to Ireland. Mr. Poole ought to be asked to explain, perhaps he may be able to find them a better place. Yours truly,

AN ISRAELITE INDEED.

ST. PATRICK.

The Society's Ball and Supper.

On Monday evening the Guelph St. Patrick's Society held their annual celebration in the Town Hall. For some time past it has been thought that concerts have been almost too numerous, and dinners have become exploded from the fact that they are a species of enjoyment from which ladies are debarred. Therefore the members of the Society resolved on a grand ball and supper. It is usual to celebrate the anniversary of the patron saint of Ireland on St. Patrick's day excepting when it happens to fall on Sunday, and then on the Monday following. This year, however, such an arrangement would bring the demonstration into Lent, which it was decided to avoid by holding the ball and supper on the 4th.

The decoration committee had bestowed considerable care and attention in fitting up the town hall, and with the display of the national colors the effect was very pleasing. "Cead Mille Failthe" stood out in bold relief across the centre of the stage in words of fire by arranged gas jets. A true Irish welcome was thus tendered to all. Shortly after nine o'clock the ball opened with an Irish jig, and continued with unflagging interest till its close, at an early hour this morning.

The supper provided by Mr. W. Newport, was a magnificent spread, and reflected great credit on his taste and skill. The tables were elegantly set off with flowers and Irish devices. Near the head of each table were pyramids of meringues, surmounted by Irish harps, and those coupled with "Erin go Bragh" and other mottoes and devices on beautiful cakes formed at once an extremely enticing scene.

The music was excellent, and was furnished by the quadrille band of the Berlin Musical Association. Taking the affair altogether it was one of the most pleasant social gatherings, if not the largest that has been given in Guelph for many a day.

The officers of the Society for 1878 are: Dr. Nunan, President; J. C. Chadwick, 1st Vice-President; W. S. Heffernan, 2nd Vice-President; Jas. Hazelton, Treasurer; Jas. Wiley, Secretary.

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

CHEAP SILKS.—J. D. Williamson & Co. have just received a new lot of those cheap striped grey silks—so much sought after. Patterns choice. Price lower than ever. Ladies will do well to call at the Lion.

"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."

If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

A CARD.

FROM the Detroit Free Press of the 2nd inst., it is learned that James Hough, Cashier of the Freight Department of the Detroit, Lansing & Northern Railroad, and son of Mr. Jas. Hough of Guelph, has been very ill of congestion of the brain. Although physically convalescent, his mind is in a condition to cause grave alarm to his family and friends.

From his condition he thought it would be well to allow the Chief to take care of $210 for him, and requested him to forward it to his wife at Paisley. A receipt was given McKittrick for the money. On Monday morning before the money was forwarded he called on the Chief and stated that he had changed his mind; that he would start for home and carry the money to his wife. The amount was handed over to him.

CALEDONIAN SOCIETY. — The regular monthly meeting of the above Society was held last night. Some very important matters came up for discussion, and considerable work was disposed of. The Treasurer presented his report, showing a good balance on hand. Over 20 members were enrolled on the list. It was decided that a Society's Assembly be held in the Rooms on Monday evening next. Tickets admitting lady and gentleman fifty cents. A capital time is expected.

PORK STEALING.—A very good attempt at getting a tierce of hams for nothing from the premises of Mr. Geo. Lees, on Farquhar street, early on Saturday morning was made by a couple of able-bodied thieves. A quantity of hams packed ready for shipping are stored in the yard in connection with the packing house. About half-past four o'clock on the morning in question two men drove up in a light waggon and in trying to load the tierce with the help of a board the board broke and the tierce rolled down the hill to Waterloo street; near the residence of a Mr. White. Mrs White heard the noise and raised a window to look out. This alarmed the thieves and they immediately made off.

Terrible Death.

James Neagle Decapitated at the G. T. R. Gordon Street Crossing.

One of those terrible and sudden deaths which is almost sickening to detail and doubly horrible to witness occurred at the Gordon street crossing of the Grand Trunk Railway about half-past ten o'clock on Monday evening. The victim was Mr. Jas. Neagle, of the 2nd concession of Pilkington, brother of Mr. Richard Neagle, of the Union Hotel, Guelph.

On Tuesday or Wednesday of last week James Neagle left his home in Pilkington for Guelph. He stopped several days at his brother's hotel, and also visited one or two of his old acquaintances. He had been indulging a little in stimulants, but had not imbibed enough to render himself incapable of taking care of himself. The last his brother saw of him alive was on Sunday, when he intimated that he was about ready to start for home. That evening he visited one of his friends residing in the neighborhood of the old Grammar School. On Monday he was around town, still drinking lightly. About eight o'clock in the evening he was at the Fountain House on Gordon street where he asked for liquor. The bar tender states that he saw Neagle had been drinking and he refused to give him anything.

Neagle left the hotel between eight and nine o'clock.

Shortly after ten o'clock Mr. A. McDonald was returning home, and after crossing the railway track at Gordon street, met Neagle, who was staggering a little. A train coming from the west at the time, Mr. McDonald looked back to see it pass. As Neagle was in the act of crossing the track with the freight thundering down at a pretty good speed, and the bell ringing, the night signalman, Thos. W. Love, called to Neagle to "hurry up." The unfortunate man quickened his steps and got safely across the track. Just as he had got clear he must have stepped into a small drain which runs underneath the rails, and falling backwards his right arm and head lay over the rail.

He had not time to move before the train was upon him, and the engine and some sixteen cars passed over him. He could not have known any pain. His head was taken clean off, and blood and brains were strewn about in a sickening manner. His arm was only held in place by the sleeve.

The signal man supposing all was right went into his sentry box as soon as the train passed. The engine driver, who was at his post, saw the man's position when it was too late to prevent the catastrophe, and he knew full well all was over when he felt the terrible crunch of the massive wheels of his engine over the head of the man. As soon as the train was stopped near the passenger depot, some of the train men ran back and found Neagle in the position described. Mr. McDonald reached the spot about the same time.

The news, like all bad news, spread very rapidly, and although no person was certain who the poor victim was at the time, Mr. Richard Neagle soon advanced on the spot and recognized the body by the clothing as that of his brother.

The body was lifted on a plank and the portions of the head and brains shovelled up and conveyed to the Drill Shed.

An inquest will be held on the body this afternoon, at half-past two o'clock, and its interment will take place later in the afternoon.

The deceased was well known in this section of the country as a quiet and inoffensive person. He was well-informed on general matters, and some years ago was considered an efficient school teacher, having had at one time charge of a school in Pilkington.

He leaves a wife and two daughters. His age was about sixty five years.

His friends have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

Last Night's Accident.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I was at the scene of the fatal accident on the Grand Trunk crossing last night and would like to make one or two suggestions in reference to that portion of the road, which is, undoubtedly, the most dangerous crossing there is within the corporation both for pedestrians and vehicles. As you doubtless are aware, a great deal of the travel over Gordon street crossing, from the position of the various streets is on angling and, therefore, more difficult to cross than it would be if otherwise. To render it less difficult, I would suggest that it should be completely planked between the two cattle guards, and thus all danger of stumbling over rails and culverts would be avoided.

I am also of opinion that there is not sufficient light at night at this crossing. It should be so that the watchman could see anybody at any portion of the crossing, as well at night as day, and I am satisfied such was not the case last night.

Yours, &c.,
CALEB CHASE.

Guelph, March 5, 1878.

A ROW IN MONTREAL.—On Monday night the Theatre Royal was crowded by an enthusiastic audience, the occasion being the Emmet Centenary celebration. The entertainment was of a dramatic character. The Hackett No Surrender Lodge of Orange Young Britons also held a concert in Mechanics' Hall, which was crowded by friends of the Order. A special force of fifty police had been ordered out to keep order on St. James-street when the parties went home from both concerts. The meetings dispersed about eleven, and met at several cross streets. At the corner of St. Francois Xavier and St. James streets several shots were fired, apparently by young roughs, for the purpose of causing excitement. The police, however, made no arrests and no one seemed to be injured. At several places a crowd assembled, but were made to move on by the police. From all appearances a disturbance was plainly expected to occur at some point, and it is doubtful if all reached home in safety.

Town Council.

Resignation of Mr. Gauhan—No Bowling Alleys for Guelph.

A regular meeting was held on Monday evening. Present—His Worship Mayor Howard in the chair, Messrs. Elliott, Rich. Mitchell, Sleeman, Chase, Doran, Melvin, Chubb, Hearn, Bissoe, Robt. Mitchell, Bruce, Gowdy, Day, Roche, Dr. McGuire.

Mayor Howard reported in regard to the old burial ground. He stated that he had been in Toronto looking after the interests of the town in regard to converting the old burying ground into a public park, and that in consequence of an error in the preamble of the Bill it was necessary for the Government to have the matter left over for the present.

RESIGNATION.

Mr. F. Gauhan, Councillor for the South Ward, tendered his resignation in writing as member of the Council.

Mr. Day presented a communication from the Police Magistrate asking the Council to defray expenses for cleaning his room, as provided by statute. He also asked to be reimbursed $24 paid for such services.

CHIEF OF POLICE.

Mr Sleeman presented the following petition:—

Your petitioners learn with regret, that that there is a movement on foot, seeking for the removal of the present Chief of Police of this town, who has for over twenty years discharged the duties of such office. Your petitioners desire to express their confidence in him and their satisfaction as to the manner in which he has for so long performed and continues to perform the very important duties of his office. They asked the Council to retain the services of the present Chief of Police.

By Dr. McGuire from John Tyson and twelve other butchers, calling attention to the necessity of making improved regulations respecting the sale of fresh meat in the town, also to the fact that the sixteenth and twenty first clauses of the By-law are daily violated by grocers and others who engage from time to time in the butchering business. An Inspector of meats was asked to be appointed.

By Mr. Roche, from C. H. Evans, asking for the use of the town hall on the evening of the 14th and 15th March, for the purpose of lecturing on strictly Bible themes

By Mr. Roche, from John McKeleghan, indigent, asking for a pass to Toledo.

By Mr. Gowdy, from Catherine Howard, asking to be relieved of paying $4 in taxes for 1877.

By Mr. Biscoe, from W. T. Tovell, asking for a sidewalk on the west side of King st., north.

By Mr. Richard Mitchell, from Thos. Scott Elliott, asking to be relieved of $40 taxes for park lot eight, Canada Company's survey, as he had no right to be assessed for the same.

By Mr. Gowdy, from Rev. Jas. Howie and ten others, asking for the improvement of Oxford street west from the Grammar School to the Edinburgh Road, and that a reasonable sidewalk be laid thereon.

A communication was presented from H. D. Morehouse and thirty-two others, calling the attention of the Council to the fact that a number of idlers were in the habit of congregating on Garden street, especially near the corner of Wyndham street. They asked to have the nuisance abated.

Referred to the proper committees.

On motion of Mr. Gowdy, seconded by Dr. McGuire, the petition of Mrs. Howard was granted.

On motion of Mr. Roche, seconded by Mr. Day, the petition of C. H. Evans for the use of the Town Hall was granted.

On motion of Mr. Roche, seconded by Mr. Day, the resignation of Mr. Gauhan was accepted.

The mover and seconder of the resolution expressed regret at the South Ward losing the services of Mr. Gauhan. His railway business however prevented his devoting that time he would like to the business of the municipality, and in consequence he determined to resign.

Moved by Mr. Elliott, seconded by Mr. Sleeman, that it is expedient and necessary to alter the existing Ward divisions of the town and substitute them for a division into six wards, and that the boundaries thereof adopted by the unanimous vote of the Council on the 4th of February, and forwarded to the Lieutenant Governor in Council, is the division into Wards, that the Council approves and considers expedient and necessary, and pray the Lieutenant Governor in Council to give effect to the said division by issuing the necessary proclamation.

FINANCE REPORT.

Mr. Elliott, Chairman, presented the following report:—

The following accounts, transactions of 1877, were recommended to be paid: Roads account—Charles Mickle, lumber, $18.16; Charles Mickle, $30.15; David Kennedy, $24; H. Macastocker, $23.31; allowance for interest at the rate of 6 per cent. on ordered accounts. In recommending the payment of these claims your Committee consider no precedent should be established for claims of interest on accounts, but in the above cases it being a matter of contract with the parties, the money was due long before it was paid. Market account—Robert Stewart, $3.76; Jas. Mercer, $5.67; George Stevenson, $15.93. Printing account—Innes and Davidson, $47. They also recommend Hart & Robinson's account for $35.56, for assessment rolls and blank, be paid. They recommend that C. Shewan's petition for remission of taxes be granted. Also, that 1,000 be granted to the Guelph General Hospital for 1878. Respecting the claim of Hugh Kelly for the loss of a horse, the Committee have not sufficient evidence before them to recommend the payment of the claim.

In regard to a petition of Chas. Raymond and others, they could make no changes in the By-laws respecting the regulating of shop and tavern licenses. Your Committee has carefully considered the petition of Mrs. Nicholl asking for reduction in her license. As there is a By-law for fixing rate for licenses, your Committee cannot recommend that her petition be granted.

LICENSE REPORT.

Mr. Bruce, Chairman, presented the following report:—

After carefully considering the propriety of allowing bowling alleys in the town, the Committee do not think it would tend to elevate or improve the morals of young men or others that would be likely to attend the same. As a petition from E. Newton and other residents on Cork street has asked the Council not to grant a license for a bowling alley, the Committee recommend that Walter Cook be not granted a license for such an institution.

SPECIAL REPORT.

Mr. Melvin, Chairman of Special Committee appointed to revise and amend the Rules of Order, reported that they had carefully considered By-laws 241 and 288, and proposed several additions and amendments thereto. They recommend that the present By-laws be repealed, and the Committee be given leave to introduce a new By-law in their stead.

WALKS AND GARDENS.

Mr. Biscoe, Chairman, reported that they would recommend that Mr. John Calver be paid the sum of $35 for work done last year, on his giving a bond (with a security) to complete his contract as per agreement. They would ask permission to employ a competent man to prune the trees as soon as the weather permits.

ROAD AND BRIDGE REPORT.

Mr. Richard Mitchell Chairman, presented the following report:—

That the Committee advertised for tenders for the delivery of about 100 cords of stone, and engaged the following quantities, viz.: James Chambers, 20 cords at $1.50; Thos. Merlihan, 50 cords at $1.70, and 30 cords at $1.73.

The Committee advertised for tenders for a supply of pine, cedar, and elm lumber for the use of the Town during the current year, and recommend that the following be accepted: Chas. Mickle—pine, $10.70 per thousand; Alonzo Birge—Cedar, $9; Alonzo Birge—Elm, $10.

The Committee recommend that the communication of R. Oliver, on behalf of Wm Graham, in reference to alleged damage sustained by him by the building and other operations of the School Board, be referred to that body, in order that they may arrange the same.

The committee would also recommend that they be authorized to procure about 100 cords additional of stone, as the quantity on hand will not be sufficient to give employment until spring to those who really require it.

The committee further recommend that the services of a permanent engineer be dispensed with as soon as the present engineer's term expires, and that one be employed only when actually required.

With reference to petitions already received asking for improvements on certain streets, your committee think it advisable not to make any recommendation regarding them until later in the season.

The Finance report was adopted.

The Road and Bridge report was adopted.

The License Committee's report was adopted.

Previous to the License report being adopted, Mr. Gowdy strongly objected to a bowling alley. Those places of amusement, as a rule, were the scenes of debauchery and disorderly conduct.

Mr. Biscoe stated that in the face of such an assertion he was not prepared for an amendment.

Mr. Bruce strongly objected to licensing a bowling alley. Their associations were not of the most orderly character, and he could not, by any means, record his vote in favor of anything of the kind. Broken heads and bloody noses could always be seen around such institutions.

Mr. Chase could not find any particular wrong in connection with bowling alleys. He had visited such institutions in Toronto, and everything connected therewith was orderly. He could not see any difference between licensing billiard rooms and bowling alleys.

Mr. Elliott was opposed to altering the By law in the matter of bowling alleys. No good could come out of them.

In consequence of the St. Patrick's Society wishing the use of the Council Chamber, as granted by resolution of Council at previous meeting, the Council adjourned till Wednesday evening on motion of Messrs. Biscoe and Hearn.

The Crisis in Quebec.

The Tory papers are trying to make a little capital out of the political crisis in Quebec. The Mail in a terrible fit of anger says the Lieut.-Governor brutally dismissed the old Government, and calls him all the bad names it can think of. We believe it will turn out that the resignation of the Ministry was due to the refusal of the Lieut.-Governor to assent to two important Government measures—the Railway Act and the Stamp Act. The principal objects of the first of these were to legalize certain changes made by the Government in the line of the North Shore Railway—changes against the interest of Quebec and Montreal—and to provide means for compelling these two and other municipalities to pay over the bonuses they had voted to the undertaking, notwithstanding the breaches of faith of which they complained. The Act was open to very serious objections on constitutional and equitable grounds; but whether this was the real cause, or one of the real causes, of the crisis will appear in due time. Meantime, there is no ground for the violent personal attacks on the Lieut.-Governor in which the Conservative press are now revelling, far less is there any ground for the absurd charge that he is acting under instructions from the Dominion Government. We have little doubt it will turn out that he had good grounds for his action. Many Conservatives both in the Legislature and out of it have long been dissatisfied with the De-Boucherville Ministry, and it may yet turn out that their overthrow was the result of causes over which the Lieut.-Governor had no control.

The excitement still continues in Quebec. When the House met on Monday it was immediately after adjourned on the desire of the Lieut.-Governor being signified that he did not wish the late Premier to make any explanations as to the dismissal of the Government till the new Cabinet is formed. The Conservatives allege that the Ministers have been abruptly dismissed by the Governor, while the Opposition state that the Governor has in his possession the formal resignation of the Cabinet. It is most probable that when the official explanations are made by Lieut.-Governor Letellier it will be found that he told Mr. DeBoucherville that the new Tax Bill and railway measure imposing burdens on the people had been submitted to the House without his consent and his name used by the Treasurer without authority; that he refused to sanction them; and that when the Premier and his colleagues insisted that it was the Governor's duty to pass them his Honour firmly demanded their resignation. Mr. Joly does not expect to have his Ministry completed before Wednesday. Reformers and Conservatives alike in Montreal are highly pleased at the downfall of the late Government. Startling developements are expected when the closets in which the family skeletons of the defunct Government are opened to the public eye. The general elections will probably take place at once, and we have no doubt the course of the Lieut.-Governor will receive an overwhelming endorsation. Lieut.-Governor Letellier deserves the greatest credit for his firmness and prudence, and has entitled himself to the thanks of the Province of Quebec for his interposition between an unscrupulous and dishonest Administration and the interests of the people.

It is said that the Pope has caused the notification of his accession to Humbert to be addressed to the King of Sardinia. That title was lost sight of when his father became King of Italy.

The Supplementary Estimates required by the Ontario Government for the services of 1878, and to complete the services of 1877, were brought down on Monday, and amount in all to $52,705.

A pamphlet is being compiled in the Department of Agriculture, showing in detail the exhibits made by Canada at the various International Exhibitions since and including that at London in 1851. The work will form a valuable text-book, as showing the progress made by the country in arts and manufactures during the time of which it treats.

The Governor-General has decided to forward to the Imperial Government the names of all the corps of Canadian militia, and the names of officers who have volunteered to raise troops in Canada for service in the British army in case of war with Russia. His Excellency, by so doing, desires to give the British people a tangible proof of the devotion of Canadians to the Empire.

It seems that Mr. Blake did not unconditionally accept the nomination offered him last week by his Reform constituents in South Bruce. He simply expressed a hope that the state of his health might be such as to permit his acceptance at a future day, and that he has not yet come to any conclusion upon the subject. We hope that his health will be so improved as to warrant his acceptance of the nomination.

The grangers of Mitchell are puzzled over the result of last year's business at their warehouse in that place. There is said to be a deficit of $200 on the balance sheet, and no one appears to tell the why or wherefore of it. Let them be thankful it is no worse, and remember that they have still to learn more things than are dreamt of in their philosophy.

Gen. T. F. Burke, Irish orator, patriot and exile, delivered a lecture in the Royal Opera House, Toronto, on Monday night, his subject being entitled, "Emmet, the cause for which he died." The theatre was packed from floor to ceiling.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Re-assurance of Peace.

The Congress to Meet Soon.

March 4.

A London despatch says:—The Government announced in Parliament this afternoon that information of the signing of the peace between Turkey and Russia has been received.

A Paris despatch says that Mr. Layard has left Pera, presumably to confer with the Government about his course at the Conference.

In the House of Lords this afternoon Lord Derby said the Government have received the terms of peace in an imperfect state. They do not include the cession of the Turkish fleet. The indemnity is reduced to twelve millions sterling, and the Egyptian tribute is not affected.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gathorne Hardy, Secretary of State for War, said the matter of the defence of the commercial ports of England was being carefully considered at the present moment.

In the House of Commons Mr. Gathorne Hardy introduced the war estimates. In his speech he avoided all exciting topics, confining himself to technical details. He stated that the estimates had been framed on strictly a peace footing, as would be the case whatever apprehensions were entertained.

The House passed the vote fixing the strength of the army at 135,452.

A Paris correspondent says:—It is asserted that Germany is trying to induce England to occupy Egypt, and thus protect her interests in a way which could not cause a conflict with Russia.

A St. Petersburg despatch says:—The Grand Duke Nicholas has sent the following to the Emperor:—

San Stefano.

I do myself the honor of congratulating your Majesty upon the conclusion of peace. God has vouchsafed to us the happiness of accomplishing the holy work begun by your Majesty, and on the anniversary of the enfranchisement of the serfs your Majesty has delivered the Christians from the Mussulman yoke.

Intelligence comes from San Stefano that General Ignatieff and a special Turkish ambassador were to leave for St. Petersburg immediately after signing the preliminaries of peace.

A St. Petersburg correspondent says:—The southern boundary of Bulgaria has not been closely defined, but it will probably depend on her nationality and the wishes of the population.

A correspondent at San Stefano gives the following additional details of the treaty derived from Gen. Ignatieff: The exchange of the Dobrudscha for Bessarabia is to be subject to the Roumanians' consent. The Prince of Bulgaria is not to be a member of any reigning European family. The amount of the Bulgarian tribute is not to be fixed for two years; Bulgaria will have the sea port of Kavala; the Russians will embark on the sea of Marmora and proceed home through the Bosphorus, but not enter Constantinople. All the Bulgarian fortresses are to be razed, and no Turkish troops are to remain in the country.

A St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs that the treaty will probably not be published until the text is received by a courier a week or ten days hence. It is now hoped that the Congress will assemble in Berlin, and the three Chancellors will attend. I have reason to believe that Bismarck has already consented to preside.

A special despatch from the Greek provinces in Turkey indicates the insurrection as spreading. Seven thousand insurgents are encamped within sight of the town of Volo, Thessaly, and are entrenching. The district between Mount Olympus and the Pindus range is in revolt. The Epiras insurgents defeated the Turks at Ghiasta on Friday after a four hours' fight, killing 80 and wounding 150. Another fight at Caralimper had a similar result, the Turks leaving 70 dead on the field.

Mr. Trow's Railway Bill.

The following is the text of Mr. Trow's bill to provide for the greater convenience and safety of passengers travelling on Canadian Railways:—

1. That a regular ticket shall be good until used, any printed or written notice thereon to the contrary notwithstanding.

2. That the holder of such a ticket shall be allowed to stop at any intermediate station, and resume his journey when he pleases.

3. That no passenger shall be required to produce his ticket on any regular train unless he has a seat, and that he shall be required to pay for that portion of the journey only during which he has been seated.

4. That no extra charges shall be made where passengers fail to purchase their ticket before entering the cars.

5. That when ordinary passenger cars are so crowded that seats are not available, passengers shall, without extra charge, be permitted to take a seat in any car attached to the train.

6. Any passenger, when furnished with a seat, who refuses to pay his fare shall be liable to arrest by any officer of the Company and be carried before any Justice of the Peace and be fined $20 or imprisonment for ten days, but nobody shall be put off or be allowed to leave the train except at a station.

7. Every passenger train must stop at a station for at least three minutes.

8. That Railway Companies shall furnish to any Express Company the facilities and accommodation it requires, and shall treat all competitors fairly and not discriminate in favor of any.

9. That an iron railing not less than a foot in height shall be placed around the top of every car in order to prevent accidents to brakesmen.

10. That no overhead bridge shall be less than seven feet above the top of the cars passing beneath, and that no building shall be constructed within less than three feet of the outside of any passing car.

An exchange tells of a strange occurrence which happened in Montreal, and which the superstitious, if not others, will readily believe:—An old man named Isaie Mailet, a shoemaker, after having been a total abstainer from strong drink for many years, bought a bottle of whiskey, and invited his wife to imbibe. This she indignantly refused to do, and tried to dissuade him from breaking his pledge. But he said if she would not drink with him he would drink with the cross he had sworn upon when he took the pledge. Taking an old wooden cross from the wall he held it in one hand and took a long draught from the bottle which was in the other hand, when the hand that held the cross became paralyzed. Not discouraged, the old man took the bottle in his other hand, and no sooner had he done so than that also became useless.

Thirty one general storekeepers have either compromised, assigned, obtained extension or met their creditors within the past fortnight. These 31 events include 8 attachments, 6 assignments, 6 meetings of creditors, 2 compromises, and so on. This shows that the insolvency cloud is not lifting very fast.

The rate of taxation in the following principal cities and towns in Ontario is:—Toronto 19 mills; Kingston 16; London, 17; Stratford, 18; Guelph, Colbourne, Galt, and Chatham, each 20; Peterboro, 14; Napanee, 19; Lindsay, 15; Tilsonburg and Thorold, 17; Belleville, 16; Brockville 13; St. Mary's, 15; Port Hope, 12½; and Perth, only 10½. The average is thus about 16½ mills.

The modern Greeks are poor specimens of humanity, compared with their ancestors, or even with the rascally brigands of forty years ago.

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa March 4.

Mr. Shultz, in moving for returns in reference to settlers on railway lands in Manitoba and other matters, explained that after a Bill had been introduced by the Government two years ago throwing open the railroad lands in Manitoba for settlement, a number of settlers, principally from Ontario, had gone on these lands in good faith. That Bill was withdrawn, and Mr. Shultz urged that no more than the Government price of one dollar per acre should be charged these settlers. He also urged the appropriation of the relief loan to works of local improvement, pointed out the need of a truck road from the Manitoba penitentiary to Winnipeg, and called attention to the annoyance and loss caused to settlers by the unfinished state of the Pembina branch.

Mr. Mills explained that a number of persons had settled on the railway reserve in Manitoba contrary to the orders of the Department of the Interior. It was impossible to fix the price of these lands, and therefore the settlers were required to pay $1 per acre at the Winnipeg Land Office as part of the price of the land they had taken up.

Mr. Langevin's motion for a return of the lowest tenders on the several sections of the Welland Canal under contract afforded Messrs. Plumb and McCallum an opportunity to criticise the mode pursued by the Government in making the canal improvements

The Premier said it was calculated that the canal would be open for the full volume of trade in a year after the coming summer.

A long debate took place on Mr. Christie'd motion declaring it desirable and necessary that there should be an entire closing and cessation of labour on canals, railways and other public works under control of the Dominion Government during the twenty-four hours comprising the Lord's Day.

Mr. MacDougall (Elgin) moved an amendment to the effect that as far as practicable the observance of the Lord's Day should be carried out in the spirit of the resolution. After some further debate the amendment was carried.

Ontario Legislature.

Toronto, March 4.

Mr. Paxton moved for a return showing the amount of money now in possession of the Court of Chancery unclaimed by the parties entitled to the same, to which the House assented.

The following bills were read a third time.

Bill to amend the law for protection of game and fur-bearing animals.

Bill to amend the law for protection of insectivorous and other birds beneficial to agriculture.

Bill to amend the Revised Statutes respecting ditching watercourses.

Bill to amend the law respecting Building Societies.

Mr. Bethune moved the second reading of his Bill to amend the law respecting trial by jury. The chief feature of his Bill was that in all civil causes which the Superior and County Courts required to be tried and damages assessed by juries, after the jury had retired for one hour the unanimity of eleven jurymen, after two hours of ten jurymen, after three hours of nine jurymen, would have the same effect as an unanimous verdict. A general debate ensued on the motion, when Mr. Massie moved in amendment that the Bill be read that day six months. This amendment was carried by a vote of 46 to 27, and the Bill accordingly, was thrown out.

Mr. Monk moved the second reading of his Bill to amend the Jurors' Act. After some discussion, the Attorney-General said it was the intention of the Government to bring down a measure next session for the purpose of amending the jury law, and under these circumstances he hoped the member for Carleton would withdraw his motion. This was done.

Quite a number of Bills on the paper for their second readings were withdrawn, and a few were advanced a stage.

Mr. Macdougall (Simcoe) moved the second reading of his Bill to restore Her Majesty's subjects in Ontario the right of trial by jury in civil actions. The Attorney-General objected to the motion on the ground that a sufficiently long trial had not been given to the present system properly to test it. On the House dividing, the motion was lost by a vote of 35 to 34.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provide our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage wich may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. A very neat little Presbyterian Church has recently been erected at Horning's Mills by the congregation. At a tea meeting held the entire debt was cleared off by subscription, with a few dollars over.

It is stated that 5,000,000 pounds of milk were delivered at the Brownsville cheese factory during the past season. The Braemar factory made 92,000 lbs. of cheese and got $13,800 for it, which is 10½c per lb. average. In the Elm Grove factory 96,028 lbs. of cheese were made and within a slight fraction of 11 cents realized per pound.

CHAPTER XXIV.

THE RETURN JOURNEY.

"Na, na, sir; nae overwhelmin'," he cried, as he stood erect under that canopy of rock, and looked forth on the wild strife and conflict of Nature. "Michty and wrathfu' as it is, it is in the hands o' ane michtier far; ane that lets it gang only as far as He wulls, and chains it at his pleasure. Kennin' that I am nae feared, far less appalled, at a sicht like this—in fact, it raises me up intae a sort o' rapture. I learn lessons, sir, fae a' the moods and changes o' natur'—fae the storm and sunshine—fae the beauty o' summer and the gloom o' winter—fae the music o' day and the hushed silence o' nicht. Ay, and fae the last maist o' a', for I think there's naething in the warld sae impressive and peace-producin' as a calm meenlicht nicht amang the hills. I hae seen me on the shore o' a Heilan' loch at sic a time, and, oh man, it was grand, grand. The mountains stan'in' roond a' sae silent in the pale glimmer, wi' the meen just tappin' the eastmost o' them, and lichtin' up the surface o' the sublime description in the Book o' Revelations—a sea o' glass mingled wi' fire. There was scarcely a breath o' air to stir the leaves o' the trees or mak' the ferns and the heather rustle on their stalks; and, oh it was fine, fine to stan' still and listen tee the stillness. That looks like a contradiction, but tee my mind there's an eloquence in the silence o' a calm meenlicht nicht in a glen. The landscape spreads itsel' oot around ye, and ye see every object—nae sharply and clearly in a' its lines, but distinctly enouch tee ken what it is—and there's a saft, delicious repose aboot it which ye dinna observe in the bricht sunshine. Ye hear naething, yet ye canna help thinkin' that there are sounds and motions and strange whisperin's gaun on abune and aroond ye. Ah, Mr. Adamson, there's nae room for infidelity in the heart o' sic a scene as that. There is a revelation o' God tee the soul in it deeper, mair unmistakable than at noonday. The presence o' the Invisible is felt tae be hoverin' on a' thing, and stealin slowly, sweetly in upon yer speerit, and a love o'erspreads yer heart and peace and joy borderin' on rapture fill a' yer bein' till ye are inclined tee lift up yer face to the mild beaming stars and gie utterance to the fast comin' thouchts and the joyous feelin's—calm and still as all else in their gladness—that steal into yer brain. See, sir, the storm is passin', and wull sune be owre."

"Daddy, you are a strange fellow—the strangest fellow I ever met," exclaimed Mr. Adamson, who had listened spellbound to the mendicant's eloquent monologue.

"A strange fellow," repeated Daddy, with a laugh. "Weel, I fancy that's true—some fouk say I'm crackit, and whiles I maist fancy I am."

"Then, I wish everybody was cracked in the same way. The fact is, Daddy, you are a genius—a—a diamond in the rough."

"Ay, rough enouch, I hae na doot. But what say ye, sir, tee makin' a closer acquaintance wi' Mysie Morvan's scones and cheese? I dinna feel ashamed tee say that there's a voice cryin' for tnem in my interior wilderness.

The suggestion recommended itself very emphatically to the lawyer, who was in truth exceedingly hungry, and now realized the wisdom, as well as the kindness, which had stuffed his pockets in departing from the cottage. Never did food seem to him so sweet and enjoyable; but the copstone was put upon his pleasure when Daddy produced from his wallet a bottle filled with whiskey, a good pull at which was all that was needed to bring a glow of warmth to their hearts, and complete that sense of comfort which their replenished stomachs experienced.

By the time their repast was ended the tempest was gone, the wind was down, the sky clear, the mountains free of mist, and the whole landscape glistening with its baptism under restored sunshine. Then, as good old Bunyan says of his pilgrimage, "they proceeded on their way rested and refreshed."

Not long after they emerged from the pass and came into the wider region of Strathfugh. Here they had to separate, Daddy having to keep to the westward, while the lawyer's road lay to the east. They separated from each other with sincere regret, especially on Mr. Adamson's part, for he had come to like Daddy amazingly, and enjoined him to be sure to call upon him when he came to Aberdeen, which the old man readily promised to do.

"But goodness only kens," added Daddy, "when I may be there, or what may be the upshot o' the tidin's I am carryin' tee Maister Harold."

"Tell him to communicate with me as often as possible, and keep me advised of all that is done."

"I will be sure to tell him that, sir. Fare-ye-weel! and a safe journey tae the toon."

Thus they parted in the solitude. For a time they were in sight of each other, though the distance was every moment increasing between them. But at length the inequality of the ground hid them from each other's eyes, and, again in the language of Bunyan, "saw each other no more."

We shall accompany neither of them on their respective journeys. We have only to add that on the evening of the following day, after darkness had set in, and the lamps were lit in the streets, Mr. Adamson reached his home in Aberdeen, thankful in heart at his safe return, and vowing that he should not again penetrate into the Highlands but in summer.

He did not consider, however, that he had made a fruitless journey, for on his way back he had called at Betty Corbet's lonely cottage, and succeeded in obtaining from her the important information that it was a person called Black Dick who shot Wanlass.

It is stated that the production of the mills at Cornwall, of the Canada Cotton Company is now about 100,000 yards a week, at which rate they would be able to furnish 100 yards of cotton per annum to every trader in Canada.

The new Independence of Parliament Act will rather seriously affect a good many gentlemen, mostly of the legal profession, who have hitherto acted as Crown Counsel in civil or criminal cases for the Provincial Governments. Some think this is going too far, while others uphold the necessity for a complete severance of all connection between Local and Federal authority, and the avoidance of the possibility, when conflicting interests present themselves, of members of the Federal Parliament being really the agents of Local authority.

Dreadful Homicide Near London

A Man Killed for $1.50.

A terrible tragedy, the details of which are of a horrible character, took place in London Township on Saturday afternoon, Samuel Squires, who leased a farm on the 10th concession of the township, having been kicked to death in a brutal manner by a man named John Munn, who up to last week kept the hotel known as Rudd's Tavern, on the Proof Line Road, about two and a half miles from the city.

Samuel Squires, during his residence in the township, has often had occasion to drop into Munn's tavern whilst on his way to and from the city. Not being always in possession of funds, he had repeatedly got credit for his liquor, and was not the most prompt to pay up his "back scores." He had, it is alleged, been owing Munn $1.50 on this account for over a year past, which sum, the latter avers, he refused to pay, and when asked for it would only laugh at his creditor. Munn had taken a house on Ridout street, in London, and was moving in on Saturday afternoon, his furniture being on a waggon driven by a teamster named Ed. Turner. When opposite Robt. Northey's cottage, a few yards south of the toll-gate, and only a short distance from the hotel named, Squires, who had been in the city, drove up, on his way home. Munn wished him to stop, and called out "Sam, are you going to pay me that dollar and a half?" Whether the latter heard the salute, no one will ever know. Certain it is that he paid no attention to it, but drove right on in his light rig until he reached "Mason's tavern," kept by Wm. Bernard, which was destined to be the scene of the tragedy. Arrived at Bernard's, Munn was the first to enter the house, where he asked for Squires, who had not yet got in. He followed a moment later, and then Munn asked for the money owed him. Squires replied that he had none. Munn retorted that he (Squires) had on his person an order for three dollars, and that it would be an easy matter to arrange for payment.

Munn then proceeded to take off his coat, and with an oath declared he would have the money or Squire's life, at the same moment directing a blow at the face of the unfortunate man. He then grabbed the victim, and threw him on the floor, after which he administered kicks on the breast. Being pulled off by some bystanders, Munn allowed Squires to arise, which he did, his face streaming with blood from a gash in his cheek. He attempted to get out of the room, when Munn again rushed at him, with an oath on his lips, and for a second time bore Squires to the floor. This done, he repeated his brutal kicking. Finally, the bystanders interfered, and drew Munn away. Affairs had reached such a state that Robert Mason, one of the inmates of the bar, proposed to pay the money rather than have Squires further maltreated, and this being accepted, Munn proposed to treat the crowd. Then Robert Hobbs proceeded to raise Squires from his position on the floor, when the discovery was made that he was dead.

To describe the revulsion of feeling which came over Munn were a difficult task. From the ferocious beast of a few minutes before, he changed into a mood of abject piteousness. Throwing himself on the dead body of his former opponent, he wept and called out, "Oh Sam, Sam, you're not dead—oh, no, no!" the while he pressed kisses upon the cold and bloody lips of the murdered man. Arising, his mood again changed, and he wildly rushed from the bar. He was followed, when he declared he would destroy himself and piteously begged for an axe, a revolver, or a knife that he might rid himself of the life which his vile crime had just rendered unbearable. Finally, he became quiet and resolved to hand himself over to the hands of the law. To this end, he surrendered himself to the custody of Mr. Hobbs, and with him came to the Queen's Hotel in this city. From here word was sent to the Police Station, whither Munn was speedily conveyed. While undergoing the usual formality of being searched in the station, the prisoner gave vent to the most heartrending groans, frequently ejaculating "Oh, I'll be hanged! I'll be hanged!" Hobbs then, on the advice of the police officers, proceeded to the house of the Police Magistrate, where he laid a formal information, and the prisoner was remanded till the result of the coroner's inquest is known. At the jail he speaks of the tragedy, but in response to the advice of his counsel, he says as little as possible about it. Sunday morning Dr. Flock empannelled a jury at Bernard's Hotel, who viewed the body, and then adjourned till Monday afternoon, when the result of the post mortem examination will be communicated by Drs. Edwards and Morden.

On Monday an inquest was held on the remains by Coroner Flock, a post mortem examination having been made by Drs. Edwards and Morden. The evidence taken was in accordance with the foregoing, and a verdict of murder was rendered against the prisoner Munn. Squires leaves a wife and five children unprovided for.

A Man Discovers His Mother Whom he Thought Dead. for 38 Years.

(From the Windsor Record.)

About the year 1836, there lived in the village of Ellon, near Aberdeen, Scotland a young shoemaker doing a prosperous business. He married, and during the first four years a son and daughter were born. About the end of those four years, for some cause unknown, the husband and wife mutually agreed to separate, the father to take the son and the mother the daughter. The next year the daughter died. In the meantime the father and little son sailed for America and settled in Canada, the father working at various occupations, as circumstances admitted. About the year 1850 he received word from Scotland that his wife had died. From this time all correspondence with friends in Scotland, which had previously been kept up, ceased. The son having grown to manhood with the impression that his mother had died when he was about one and a half years old, entered the profession of school teacher in the neighborhood of Toronto, where about the year 1860 he married. The father, believing that his former partner in life had been dead about eleven years, and since the son had married, he felt lonesome and took unto himself a second wife. The son, after teaching about ten years, left the profession on account of ill health, for more active duties, and finally located himself in Essex. The father and stepmother still lived in Toronto. In the summer of 1877 the father came to make the son a visit in Essex, and died suddenly of inflammation at his son's residence. After the father's death the son, anxious to find out about the existence of a brother of his father's whom he had reason to believe was still alive in Europe, instituted an extensive and thorough correspondence with various parties in Scotland, and strange to say, he found that his mother was still alive, and leading a retired life in Scotland. The son is now making all the necessary arrangements for bringing his aged mother to Essex.

FIRE IN WROXETER.—About half past two o'clock on Saturday morning fire destroyed Wm. Harrow's grocery. Mr. Knutson's tailor's shop was several times on fire, and the Commercial Hotel was at one time in considerable danger. The building burned was fully insured, together with contents, in the Gore Mutual and Canada Fire and Marine Companies.

Colonel Forney writes of the Prince of Wales at Stanley's lecture:—"What a fine, hearty, clear elocution he has! Altogether English, yet without affectation, he captured everybody, and he looks well."

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

Formosa and Missionary Work there.

The Rev. Dr. Fraser, who has lately returned from Formosa after three years' work there, as a missionary of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, gave an address on that island and the missionary work there, in Knox Church, on Monday night. There was a very good attendance. The Rev. Mr. Ball, pastor of the church, occupied the chair, and opened the proceedings. On the platform behind him were Rev. Dr. Barrie, Rev. Messrs. Howie, Smith, Torrance, Wardrope, Manchee and Harris, and Rev. Mr. Duff, of Eramosa.

Mr. Fraser, after being introduced by Mr. Ball, made a few opening remarks, and then went on to speak of Formosa, which belongs to the great empire of China. It lies about sixty miles south east of the main land, is about 260 miles long and 60 miles wide. Its population is about three million inhabitants. In the south part of the island the climate approaches to that of the torrid zone, and in the north part to that of the temperate zone. It is a land of beauty, and in some parts its scenery is grand. Its resources are great, and when once the gospel has taken root, the people will require no assistance for the support of religion. Though only half as large as Ireland, it not only supported its own population but exported a great deal. In the north of the island were extensive coal fields, and amongst its other wealth was iron, copper, sulphur and petroleum, not bored for. Its forests produced valuable timber, chief among which was the camphor tree. The people grew immense quantities of rice, and the other vegetable products which were raised for export, were sugar, indigo, hemp, tobacco and tea. Last year five million pounds of the latter were grown, and the product of this plant is still increasing. On the whole the people where better off than in China. As to the climate in the north, for two months in the winter it was pretty much as we had it on Sunday last. There were frequent cold rains with occasional sunshine, the thermometer seldom going below 35°. When it was warmer it was generally foggy. In winter in the hill country, snow lay on the mountains, and was brought into the towns and villages and sold, as the people thought snow water was a remedy for fevers. On the whole, winter was not enjoyable. Spring was much the same as winter, but warmer. In May the summer, which lasted about five months, commenced, and during that time it was as hot as our hottest days in July. The heat was never broken but by the typhons, which swept now and then over the island. For the three last months of the year the weather was one continuous Indian summer—beautiful, balmy, and full of delight.

The roads were only about five feet wide, and as there were no carts and vehicles they were sufficient for travel and traffic. Everything light and heavy was carried on the shoulders of the Coolies by means of poles. One Coolie could carry from 150 to 170 pounds and travel twenty miles a day, and all for about twenty cents. Travelling was done by the use of a sort of Sedan chair. The water communication was made easy by the use of good boats. The natives boasted of a civilization much older than our own, but the difference between us and them was, that they had gone as far as they could possibly go without assistance from a higher power. They were as far advanced 1,000 years ago as they are now. They had not receded but they had not advanced. They lacked the Bible which we possessed, and which was the secret of Britain's greatness. Their houses were good, but not to be compared to the better or best class of our houses. They were built of good brick, of one story, so as to escape the typhons and earthquakes—for it was one of the group of volcanic islands which stretched from Japan to the Philipian Islands. The houses were roofed and floored with tiles, and instead of glass the windows were made of paper. The furniture, pictures, &c., were plain—but the mottoes were of all patterns and very elaborate, and were changed every year. Their other ornaments were rather grotesque than beautiful.

As regards their social customs, the women keep pretty much to their own part of the house, and the men always eat by themselves. Rats, dogs, and—to us—other offensive kinds of animals were not unfrequently used as food, but they were not regular articles of diet. The great staple of food was rice boiled. Their drink was mostly rice water, for tea was drunk more as a ceremony. Their chief amusement was the theatre. Companies of actors travelled from place to place, a theatre could be improvised at any place, and the people would sit for hours and listen to the hideous music and plays, which were mostly comedies and farces. There was nothing immoral or indecent in those plays. The moral condition of the people, however, was low and vile, but not so bad as might be expected. Nearly all the men and women smoke, but none chew or snuff. Drinking is common, but not to excess. All the drinking was done at home. Opium smoking is the great curse of the country, and no more pitiable sight than an opium smoker could be imagined. Four or five per cent of the people indulge in this habit, and frequently when they have spent their all for the drug their last effort is to get enough to swallow and put an end to their lives. Profanity is not known in their language, but their obscene language is deplorable, and it is universally used by men, women and children. Gambling is proverbial, and though there are laws against it they are winked at. The speaker once saw forty-nine people gambling in the court of a temple.

They spend much time and money in the practice of their religion. They have gods many and lords many. The greatest barrier to Christianity was the worship of the spirits of their ancestors — a form of worship peculiar to the Chinese. They believed that their prosperity and happiness depended in a great measure on the respect they showed to their parents and ancestors, and that their prosperity or adversity depended on the proper worship of the spirits of these departed relations. He described minutely how this worship was gone about—that tablets of wood like a small headstone was made after the death of a parent, in which the spirit of the departed was supposed to reside. These tablets were placed on the family altar, which occupied a prominent place in the house. Before these tablets food was placed, and it was held that the spirits consumed the flavor, while the worshippers eat the substance. Paper money, and clothes — which were, however, made of paper, etc.—were also burned in honor of these spirits. After the tablets had stood for five generations they were put away in the shrine of the temples. During the seventh month of each year they worship the spirits of those who have no friends. Besides these objects of worship the Emperor decrees images and temples in honor of any great men whom he may select, and who are worshipped yearly on their recurring birthdays. Two Americans — General Ward and Anson Burlingame — have been so deified. Besides these, any local celebrity could be deified on the consent of the Emperor being obtained. The speaker then explained the doctrine of Confucius—how the basis of his system consisted in the observance of five virtues. He spoke of the great antiquity of his doctrines, that his system was to-day the text books in the schools, and colleges, and that the worship of it was mainly confined to scholars, officers and the higher classes.

He closed his interesting address by referring briefly to what had been done in christianising North Formosa. In six years mainly through the earnest, devoted and faithful work of his old colleague, Mr. Mackay, the gospel had been preached in all that part of the Island. They had now twelve places where it was regularly preached,—every day—by twelve native preachers. This was a most hopeful feature of the work. These preachers had received four or five years, careful training, and they were well versed in the Scriptures and in the plan of salvation. The opposition to the spead of the Gospel was not of a religious but of a political character. More than 1,000 people had already renounced idolatry—even the worship of their relatives—and 162 had become members of the church. He referred to the departure of Rev. Mr. Junor, in a week, for this field of labor, and closed by an earnest appeal for more help to send more missionaries to this interesting and favorable field for the evangelization of the Chinese.

After singing a hymn and taking up a collection in aid of the mission, a cordial vote of thanks was moved to Dr. Fraser by Mr. Torrance, seconded by Mr. Manchee, and Mr. Duff closed the proceedings with the benediction.

LATEST FROM THE EAST.

Jules Favre on the French Position.

Congress to Meet Shortly.

LONDON, March 6.—The Republique Francaise, Paris, publishes a sensational letter to-day attributing to Jules Favre, advocating France abstaining from taking part in the proposed Congress and to thereby avoid any responsibility for the result, whether war or peace, and that French diplomacy confine itself to questions involving French rights and interests.

LONDON, March 6.—The latest St. Petersburg and Constantinople despatches state that the probabilities of Congress of Powers being shortly held are increasing.

A despatch from Pera says that the Russians are to evacuate Roumelia within three months.

A despatch from Constantinople states that by the terms of peace the mouth of the Danube is to remain neutral.

It is reported from Constantinople that the Turkish Government will permit the Russians to stop at San Stefano as long as the English fleet remains in the Sea of Marmora.

THE weather to day is much like that of Indian summer.

A load of wood drawn by a team of horses stuck in the mud this morning on Gordon street.

TO DAY is Ash-Wednesday, and service was held in the Church of England this morning.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.—To-day's weather probabilities are moderate to fresh westerly to southerly winds and fair warm weather.

ON Tuesday, a driving horse belonging to Mr. L. Cossitt, managed to straddle a post it was tied to. The animal could not attain its normal position unaided. It was not injured to any extent.

PATSEY O'NEIL, while exercising himself at the gymnasium on Tuesday afternoon dislocated his wrist The bones were pulled into position and Patsey is little the worse. Mr. Maddock had warned the lad from meddling with any of the swings, as he was not a member of the gymnasium; in fact he was ordered to keep out of the rooms altogether.

RUN OVER.—On Saturday evening a person who was crossing Norfolk street, at Nelson Crescent, was knocked down and run over by a light vehicle, which contained four persons. The buggy was stopped and the man cared for, and was found to have sustained considerable injury.

THIS morning, a heifer which was tied behind a waggon, caused considerable disturbance to its occupants. The chain which it was tied by got over one of the hind wheels and the animal was drawn under the waggon. The back part of the box was raised and the riders jumped from the vehicle. Mr. Walter Laing, who was standing near at the time was knocked down by the animal.

NORMAL SCHOOL CANDIDATES.—Notice has been sent by the Deputy Minister of Education to Public School Inspectors, requesting them to intimate to all candidates for certificates as teachers, qualified to enter a Normal School, that they are to send in their applications to him not later than the 20th March. The session opens on the 5th of April.

CHECKERS.—At the regular weekly meeting of the Guelph Checker Club, on Tuesday evening, Mr. D. Naismith was elected President; Mr. Duncan McKenzie, Vice-President; Mr. Waldron, Secretary, and Mr. S. Myers, Treasurer of the Club. Quite a number of signatures was added to the list of members, and it was decided to have a match in their rooms at the American Hotel next Tuesday evening.

INCIPIENT FIRE AT ROCKWOOD.—On Tuesday evening a house belonging to Mr. W. McCarthy, and occupied by Mr. Carter, had a narrow escape from destruction. The family were out at the time, and the fire must have originated by a coal dropping out of the stove. When discovered, the flooring was burned through and the joists had become ignited. A few pails of water removed all danger. Had the discovery of the fire been delayed only a few minutes the building would have been doomed.

HARRISTON.—At the opening of the curling rink a scrub game was arranged by two rinks skipped by Arbuckle and Robertson, the former winning by a score of 17 to 6.

—The following officers of the Brown base ball club have been elected:—President, A. Campbell; Vice President, D. H. Clegg; Treasurer, John Livingstone; Secretary, R. T. Haight; Field Captain, P. Lavin; Scorer, M. P. Empey; Directors, W. Miller, E. Fulton, R. T. Haight, C. Johnson, W. Clapp, T. Cunningham, W. Holman.—A one year old child of Martin Hogg recently upset a dish of boiling water over its body, scalding an arm and one side of its face in a fearful manner.—D. H. Clegg while hauling ice from the river drove on a thin sheet and the horses and waggon broke through. The animals were safely got out.

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

CHEAP SILKS.—J. D. Williamson & Co. have just received a new lot of those cheap striped grey silks—so much sought after. Patterns choice. Price lower than ever. Ladies will do well to call at the Lion.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

Local News Items.

TOWN COUNCIL meets this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

MCCONKEY, the temperance lecturer—a new apostle—will lecture in the Town Hall on Friday evening.

THE O. Y. B. Society held a dance in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance. McLarens quadrille band furnished the music.

SOUTH WARD.—We understand that a number of ratepayers of this Ward have desired Mr. J. P. MacMillan to accept the nomination as Councillor. In all probability he will accede to the request made.

A very valuable rat and tan terrier dog, owned by Mr. James O'Brien was accidentally poisoned on Tuesday at the storehouse of Messrs. Bish.

FOXES.—Mr. James Black, of Aberfoyle, has trapped this winter twenty-seven foxes, —some of them what are called crosses. Mr. Black has realized about a dollar each on the lot.

THE International Railway and Steam Navigation Guide, published semi-monthly, from official time tables, has been received from the publishers, C. R. Chisholm & Bros., Montreal. Can be procured at the booksetores.

RUNAWAY AND ACCIDENT.—The other day a serious accident caused by a runaway happened to Mr. John Burns, who lives near Bosworth. He was driving towards that village when his horses took fright, became unmanageable, and started off. When near Mr. Ramsay's Hotel Mr. Burns was thrown out, and fell with great force to the ground, breaking one of his legs and arms.

BASE BALL.—A despatch from Toronto says that a meeting of those interested in base ball will shortly be held for the purpose of considering the advisability of engaging a nine of professional base ball players, to represent Toronto during the coming season. It is the intention to secure several of the old Guelph players.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—The regular monthly meeting of the members of this organization will be held in their rooms, Bank of Commerce Building, to-morrow (Thursday) evening, at half-past seven o'clock. It is desirable that there should be a large attendance of members as the business intended to be brought up for consideration needs the co-operation of every member to carry its undertaking to a successful issue. Advertisement elsewhere.

ELORA FAIR.—On Tuesday, the March cattle fair was held at Elora. There was a large attendance of buyers and the number of cattle offered for sale exceeded what is generally looked for at fairs held this month. Good cattle were bought at from $3 to $3.75 per cwt; extra fine animals at $4; while some animals were sold at as low a figure as $2.50 per cwt.

THE number of farmers, their wives and daughters in town to day is unusually large for a monthly fair day, notwithstanding the amount of produce brought into the market was little over the average delivered. Merchants—grocers and dry goods—have been doing an extensive business, but not too large for control. They would not object to six such days in the week.

PIGEONS.—Another case of pigeon stealing was up before the Police Magistrate this morning. Jas. Farrell charged a young lad named William Henry Pearson with stealing two pigeons from his dove cote. From the evidence it was shown that Farrell claimed to have got the pigeons from one Ned Mulligan. The case was adjourned till to morrow, for the purpose of hearing what Mulligan has to say. An example should be made of some pigeon thief, as hardly a week passes without some person missing their birds.

PUBLINCH FARMERS' CLUB.—The regular monthly meeting of this club was held in the Temperance hall, school section 11, on Saturday, 23rd Feb. In the absence of the President, Mr. Robert Little was called to the chair. The subject under consideration was "Potato culture." There was a large attendence of members who thoroughly discussed the most approved modes of cultivation, together with the merits of the various varieties of this valuable and indispensable esculent. Altogether a profitable evening was spent. A number of new members joined the Club, besides old members renewing their connection therewith. All retired to their homes impressed with the opinion, that by thus associating, much may be gained of practical benefit, and also resulting in actual profit to the farmer. The next meeting of the Club will be held in the Town Hall, Aberfoyle, on Friday the 15th inst., at 6 o'clock p. m.

MOLESTING THE POLICE.—Marsh Quinton has become notorious in Guelph of late. On the 29th of January last he undertook to assist a prisoner to relieve himself of the protection of policeman Dooley. Knowing full well that to molest a policeman in the discharge of his duty was a serious offence, Quinton cleared out. Acting under instructions of Chief Kelly the Toronto police apprehended him, and he was brought to Guelph by the early train this morning. He pleaded guilty to the offence of molesting the police and not guilty to the charge of being drunk and disorderly on the night in question. Sentence deferred till to-morrow.

WHO ARE THEY?—The London Free Press says:—"A few months since a couple of young men came here from Guelph, so they said, and started a flour and feed store just east of Smith's block, on Dundas street, under the name of Carroll & McNally. Everything went along smoothly until a few days ago, when it was discovered that the store had not been opened for several days, during which time all the goods inside had been cleared out, although the windows still presented a good appearance. Nothing has been heard of either member of the firm for the past few days, and the creditors fear that something will prevent their return. One milling firm is said to have an account of $150 against the parties.

Between $200,000 and $300,000 worth of property has been destroyed by a conflagration at Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Yellow fever prevails extensively at Rio Janeiro. There were over forty deaths from the disease during the first fortnight in February.

March Cattle Fair.

The Guelph cattle fair for March was held to-day (Wednesday). Notwithstanding the bad roads the number of animals brought in and offered for sale was about equal to average fairs. Animals in prime condition fit for exportation were few in number, while cattle fairly fatted and those only middling were in excess of what were required. Milch cows changed hands from $25 to $35. It would be better in all cases for farmers to attempt to make beef of only as many animals as they could put in prime condition, and not as is often done place a herd of a dozen on the market in a middling condition. In all cases only such animals as are in a condition fit for exportation will the top figures be paid. Buyers did not seem at all anxious to buy, and those who had animals for sale in several cases refrained from selling altogether rather than take prices offered. All animals in first-class condition were purchased at $4 and $4 37 per cwt. The extreme muddy condition of the fair grounds was the subject of considerable remark from those who were obliged to wade through it. The following sales gleaned during the day will enable the reader to judge what prices were paid:—

Wm Bathgate, 5 head, at $4 25
Jas Rae, 4 steers for $150
D Whitley, cow, for $38
John Guyer, cow, for $25.

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, March 5.

Mr. Plumb resumed the debate on the Budget, and repeated nearly all the criticisms on the Government policy made by previous Opposition speakers. He spoke to empty benches without attracting any marked attention until six o'clock. After recess he resumed, and continued his speech until nearly ten o'clock.

Mr. Bertram followed, pointing out that in 1858 we had a deficit which, compared with the present, was as 35 per cent. is to six per cent. He referred to the woollen trade to show how protection has reduced the production of wool in the United States by wholesale immediately after the high tariff went into operation. Speaking from a protectionist standpoint, he was satisfied that a 17½ per cent. tariff was ample protection for the leading industries of the country. As a manufacturer, he was prepared to give his unhesitating support to the Government on the line of revenue policy they had adopted.

Mr. McCallum attacked the member for Centre Toronto for saying that as an honest man he could not blame the Government for the commercial depression. He held the Government was to blame because they did not stop importation.

Mr. Norris continued the debate, agreeing with the member for Toronto Centre that the causes of the depression were over importation, the falling off in the lumber trade, and the reduction of traffic succeeding shrinkage in business. Criticizing the proposed policy of the Opposition, he drew attention to a time when that party was in power and he with a large delegation came to Ottawa for relief when business was beginning to feel the pressure of hard times. He with that delegation saw Mr. Tilley, then Minister of Finance, laid their case before him, but they went away sad-hearted, for the gentlemen then in power refused to grant relief to our struggling industries. They promise anything, he said, now that they are in Opposition, but when they were in power under similar circumstances they did nothing. He showed in forcible language the absurdity of attempting to institute a reciprocity of tariffs.

THE "Canadian Methodist Magazine" for March. Rev. S. Rose, publisher, Toronto. $2 a year, single numbers 20 cents. This is the most handsomely illustrated number of this magazine yet published. It has six full page, and a large number of smaller, well executed engravings, illustrating Picturesque Pennsylvania, The Delaware Water Gap, Lumbering in Canada, and The Astor Library. Life in a Lumber Camp is vividly described in the Serial Story. "The Deacon's Sin," by Mrs. Stowe, is concluded. The Story of St. Boniface, the English Apostle of Germany, is a record of grandest heroism. The account of "The Duke of Soap Suds" is an amusing sketch of a very "Odd Character." The other articles are:—Among the Kaffirs; Shakespeare on Conscience, by the celebrated Joseph Cook; "An Indictment of Bonaparte," by Prof. Goldwin Smith; an interesting account of the Revision of the Bible, now in progress; Lord Dufferin at Montreal; Pius IX.; The War Cloud; and The Fall of Turkey. The editor is evidently no Turkophile. He presents a heavy indictment against that power.

THE DEAF AND DUMB INSTITUTE.—An outbreak of fever, supposed to be typhoid, has taken place in the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb. Four pupils have died within a few days, and ten or fifteen others are prostrated. In consequence of the representation made an inquest was ordered by the Ontario Government. The inquest was opened before Coroner Ponton, and after some medical testimony being taken it was adjourned, when the jury were to proceed to view the source of water supply at the bay, whence it is supposed the infection has arisen, owing to pollution from sewers. There is a good deal of excitement in relation to the matter.

Last week some mischevious fellow entered the English Church at Alma, took off the key board of the organ and interposed the reeds placing G where G sharp should be, and G sharp were G should be. There is no doubt but that he was one of the number who attended Divine service on Sunday to hear the result.

A return brought down to the House of Commons by the Minister of Militia shows the names of militiamen of 1812 and 1813 who have died between the 1st of March, 1876, and the last of January, 1878. The deaths were in 1876-77, 243; in 1877-78, 193.

The Late Railroad Accident.

Verdict Found by the Jury is Accidentally Killed.

On Tuesday afternoon an inquest was held on the body of James Neagle, killed by a freight train on the Gordon street crossing on Monday evening, by Dr. Herod, coroner.

The following is the jury empannelled:—

M. Snider, G. W. Stull, O. Henry, Jonathan Tovel, John Carver, Thos. Ellis, Thos. R. Galer, R. Ainley, J. W. Clarke, Geo. Hadden, E. O'Donnell, W. H. Marcon, Geo. Tolton, Robert Shane.

M. Snider was chosen foreman.

The jury visited the drill shed where the remains were lying. The sight was a shocking one.

Richard Neagle, Guelph, testified in regard to the identifying of the deceased, who was his brother James.

Thos. W. Love, night signalman at the Gordon street crossing, testified to having left the signal box on Monday night about 10.20 to flag a down special. As the train was approaching the crossing from the west he saw a man approach the track. Saw he was in danger and called to him to hurry; he had plenty of time to safely cross; he crossed safely and did not see him after that. The next thing the witness knew in regard to the man was the conductor of the train coming back who asked him to help remove the man. The manner in which deceased was found was then described. For deceased to get in the position he was found he must have stepped into a little drain which runs underneath the track and fallen backwards. The engine could not have struck him or he would have seen it. Deceased did not give any alarm before being struck. The witness considered the train was going about five miles an hour at the time. He could not have saved him if he had been aware of his danger.

Alex. McDonald testified to having met the deceased about fifteen yards south of the railway track a few moments before the accident happened. After he had passed him some distance he heard the signal man calling out to hurry up and cross the track. The engine at that time was near the crossing. The witness considered that deceased had plenty of time to get across. After the train had stopped he saw a man running back towards the crossing with a lantern in his hand. Witness then returned and saw the body lying alongside the track. The bell was ringing when the engine was coming up.

Chas. Nettleton, engine driver of the train that caused the death of the deceased, testified to approaching Guelph at 10:25 on Monday night. When approaching the Gordon street crossing he saw a man passing in front of his engine, and thought he had got clear of the track. The fireman called out that a man had been run over. The train was then stopped as soon as possible, and on going back found a man laying on the side of the track. There were no marks on the pilot, but there was hair on the trucks and hair and blood on the driving wheels.

Alex. McDonald, on being recalled, stated that when he met deceased before the accident happened it struck him that he was under the influence of liquor.

Robert Duke, fireman of the train in question, testified to seeing a man crossing the track as the train was approaching Gordon street. He had cleared the track on the north side, when he turned back again, evidently to re-cross the track, and stepped in front of the engine as it came up, and was struck by the pilot as he was staggering. The man staggered as though he might be inebriated when he went to return after crossing the track.

Alfred Bishop, conductor, testified to being on the engine at the time the accident happened, standing behind the fireman. His evidence corresponded in the main with that of the fireman's.

Robert Allen, testified to having seen the deceased shortly after he was run over. He tried to identify him and for that purpose examined his pockets. All that he had in them was a pipe and tobacco. His opinion was that deceased had fallen in the drain under the track and could not recover himself. He believed the crossing was the worst in America. His opinion was that he had fallen at the drain and was dragged to where it was when he saw him.

Thos. W. Love was recalled, when he expressed his opinion that the corporation should afford more light at the crossing by erecting two extra street lamps.

The Coroner instructed the jury and after a short deliberation they returned the following verdict:—

"That James Neagle came to his death by being run over by engine No. 140, G.T.R., special freight, Alfred Bishop conductor, and that no blame can be attached to any of the officials of the road in connection therewith. They believe that the deceased at the time of the accident was under the impression that he was on the wrong track. The jury would strongly recommend that the corporation, to ensure the greater safety of the public, would cause two extra street lamps to be erected at the Gordon street crossing."

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Things All Serene.

Preparing for the Congress.

LONDON, March 5.

The English Government has received information that by the treaty of peace English interests are not interfered with.

A London despatch reports that the political outlook is regarded as much brighter in all the European capitals, in consequence of the signature of the Treaty of Peace, and the resumption of negotiations for a Congress.

A Pera despatch says:—It is stated that the Russians will begin to leave Roumania immediately, some of them embarking at Pera, and others at San Stefano. The treaty of peace has been sent to St. Petersburg for formal ratification.

A San Stefano despatch says:—The amount of tribute to be paid by Bulgaria is not to be fixed for two years, during which measures will be taken to ascertain the resources of the country, which will be occupied by fifty thousand Russians for two years, or until the native army can be rendered capable of maintaining order. The tribute will go towards paying the Russian war indemnity. The ultimate form of Government will be decided partly by a Bulgarian Prince and Assembly and partly by Europe. Servia will have Nisch, and Widin will remain Bulgarian. Thessaly and Epirus will share the administrative reforms stipulated for Bosnia and the Herzegovina.

The Sultan has sent the following telegram to the Emperor:—

On the occasion of the anniversary of your Majesty's accession to the Throne, I offer my congratulations, with the desire of renewing our friendly relations.

The Emperor replied:—

I thank your Majesty for your congratulations which I received simultaneously with the news of the signature of peace. I perceive in this coincidence a presage of good and lasting relations between us.

Roumania is not included in the peace conditions. Russia told Turkey she must treat directly with Roumania, whose pretentions are too great.

A St. Petersburg special to Vienna says—It is confirmed that the treaty includes a clause providing that ratifications must be exchanged at St. Petersburg within a fortnight.

A Vienna correspondent telegraphs:—The time of the Russian occupation of Bulgaria has been reduced to eight months, and the western extension of Bulgaria reduced so as not to include the railway from Salonica to Mitrovitza.

A Pera despatch states General Ignatieff visited Constantinople in military uniform on Tuesday.

The newspapers in Vienna express the opinion that a most difficult phase of the crisis is yet to be passed. They say that nobody wishes to disturb the great result of the war, the liberation of the Christians, but while demands calculated to lead to a conflict with England have been dropped by Russia, similiar consideration has not been shown for Austria. It is stated Andrassy will make a full expositon of his policy to the delegations, which will meet during the present week.

A St. Petersburg special says:—It is believed in well informed circles that Austria will eventually occupy Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The Austrian Government intends to demand the vote of credit from the delegation on Friday. As well as the sixty million florins for use should circumstances require it, three millions is to be demanded to be used under any circumstances.

A Vienna despatch says the Government is making every effort to secure a majority of fifteen or twenty in the delegations for the vote of credit, and seems confident of success. Even the Hungarians are gradually beginning to acquiesce in the annexation scheme. It is reported that Austrian troops have already commenced southward movements.

A Vienna despatch says:—At the opening of the Congress a motion will be brought forward, probably by the German delegate, in favor of the immediate annexation of Austria to Bosnia and the Herzegovinia. Bismarck has quite recently renewed his advice in favour of such annexation.

A Paris correspondent hears from a reliable source that France and Italy intend to propose the neutralization of the Bosphorus and Dardanelles.

Negotiations relative to the meeting of a Congress at Berlin, have been proceeding between Vienna, Berlin and St. Petersburg. The project will be submitted to all the other powers, and if they accept it, Germany will issue formal invitations.

A Galatz despatch says:—The work of removing obstructions in the Danube begins to morrow. It is expected that navigation will open in a fortnight.

Has Sir John been Deposed from the Leadership?

The Ottawa correspondent of the Hamilton Times has the following:—

This (Monday) morning Dr Tupper, who suddenly returned yesterday from Toronto, came at an unprecedented hour to the House, and was met by Messrs. Masson, Langevin, Kilpatrick and others. They adjourned to a private room and held a caucus. Terror was written in the anxious faces of the party. There is the best authority for stating that Sir John has been virtually deposed from the leadership of his party. He was recently waited upon by a deputation of the U. E. Club wire-pullers who informed him respectfully but firmly that he would be expected to resign the leadership after the next election and give place to Dr. Tupper, who, from his manner in the House is clearly manifesting a power and an importance with which he was never invested before. The reason for this is said to be two-fold: (1) Sir John, who is rapidly growing infirm and not to be depended upon, is fast losing his influence over his baker's dozen of lieutenants who are anxious to usurp his place, and (2) it is known that Tupper refuses to serve any longer under him after he has been used for the purposes of another election. Mr. Tilley, who is to be a candidate, declined to be one unless he had assurance that Sir John should not lead the party in the next Parliament. This assurance has been given, and as Mr. Tilley has declared he will not serve under Dr. Tupper, it is to be arranged that the latter is to represent the western section of the Tories, while Tilley leads the contingent from the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. Fleming, the member for South Brant, has accepted the unanimous nomination of his party is their candidate at the forth-coming general election.

The Evening Mercury

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 6, 1878.

The Centre Riding.

We give elsewhere a report of the proceedings of the Reform Convention for Centre Wellington, held at Elora on Tuesday. The meeting was large and enthusiastic, and every arrangement was made for holding a Convention on the 21st, in Fergus, for the nomination of candidates. We understand that it has been generally arranged that the meetings in the different municipalities, for the appointment of delegates to the Convention, will be held on the 19th inst., but the Reformers in the different municipalities will be informed of the day, hour and place of meeting by hand bills. What we want to impress on all is the importance of attending these township meetings and selecting good and true men to represent them at the Convention. Let there be a full attendance at these meetings, and with a good Convention and a good candidate we have no fear for the result.

A Political Curiosity.

Through the kind consideration of Mr. Morris, of the Ontario Bank here, we have been able to peruse a very curious and antiquated book, entitled "A Copy of the Journal-Book of the House of Commons, England," and in which is contained a record of the doings of Parliament from October to December, in the year 1678. The book itself was printed in 1680, and outside of its inherent value, it forms a literary curiosity of great interest. Our readers who are conversant with that period of the history of England, will remember that for some years before the session of Parliament recorded in the work before us, the events were more than usually exciting. The Restoration had taken place in 1660, and was followed by the disbanding of the foreign army; the last vestiges of the feudal system were swept away; the whole nation was plunged in debt and bloodshed in wars with the Dutch; the celebrated Declaration of Indulgence; the machinations of the notorious Cabal Ministry; the Test Act, and the origin in this reign of the political parties of Whigs and Tories, together with the antipathy and hatred that were engendered between the Catholics and Protestants, had well-nigh upset constitutional order and freedom. In the commencement of 1678 an imaginary Popish plot was concocted in the fertile brain of one Titus Oates, and the faithful Commons assembled together on urgent business relating thereto. The book we speak of records the session that immediately follows.

When we remember what the historian Hallam says of the events that transpired at that time, it is amusing to read the language of the King in his address to the House in reference to Popery. That author asserts that there was really a plot against Protestantism, but that the King himself, the Duke of York and the King of France were the real conspirators! However that may be, we will confine ourselves to a few quaint quotations from the work itself. In the opening of the House it is recorded "That the Speaker had attended his Majesty, and that the noise being very great, and his Majesty making use of his Paper; to the end he might not misrepeat him, he had procured a copy thereof, which he read to the House and is as follows." This was prefatory to reading the Speech from the Throne, after which follows the Speech itself. A very remarkable instance of the early measures taken to secure the Independence of Parliament is to be found in an Order of April 1677. By that Order it was resolved that any person elected to the Commons, who had been guilty of giving any person or persons having a vote any meat or drink exceeding in value ten pounds, or made any promises of gift, reward, etc., to such persons, then the election was declared void. Several days are taken up in discussing the pretended Popish Plot, and witnesses were summoned to appear before the House. A Committee is appointed to enquire into certain knocking heard in the night in the palace yard; an order of the House to attend St. Margaret's Church, and a subsequent order thanking the officiating clergyman for his excellent discourse; an order confiscating and appropriating the property of Popish Recusants; a bill hindering Roman Catholics from sitting in Parliament; all are faithfully and most technically recorded with a quaintness and brevity really remarkable. True, the reports of the proceedings are not so full and elaborate as the present Hansard, but are within a much smaller compass, and the gist of a whole session is given with distinctness. The record is both instructive and amusing, and gives one a better idea of the way the old political heroes did their business and conducted the national affairs than anything we have yet come across.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO, Mar. 5

The Bill respecting the purchase of debentures for tile drainage purposes passed through Committee, as did also the Resolution respecting railway aid. A Bill founded upon the latter was introduced and read a first time.

The Bill respecting the National Club, the Bill amending the Mechanics' Lien Act, and the Bill amending the law respecting High Schools were read a third time.

An amendment proposed by Mr Meredith to the motion that the Bill respecting tile drainage be read a third time was lost by a vote of 28 to 43, and the original motion carried by a vote of 58 to 13.

The Bill to enable village municipalities to acquire the management and control of bridges within their limits was read a third time

Resolutions of Concurrence in Supply then proceeded, and continued till after recess. Various divisions were taken, but each item voted upon passed intact.

The political crisis in Quebec still continues, and no explanations with regard to the resignation of the De Boucherville Ministry are expected before Thursday. Meantime Mr. Joly is busy forming his Cabinet, and it is hoped he will be able to announce the names of his colleagues on that day.

AN IDLE EXCURSION.—We have received through Mr. T. J. Day, from Belford Bros., a neat edition of Mark Twain's "Idle Excursion," which is a most plessant and quaint description of his trip to Bermuda, and what he saw there. It is done up in neat paper covers, and is one of the best of Mark Twain's works. Copies for sale at Day's.

Toronto Correspondence

TORONTO, 5th March, 1878.

During the past week the Public Accounts and Printing Committees have attracted a large share of attention, and their meetings have been full and interesting. On Saturday Mr. W. Johnston, Principal of the Agricultural College, was examined before the Public Accounts Committee, and gave evidence as to the cause of an overdraft upon the Bank of Commerce, Guelph, in 1874, on behalf of expenditure in the management of the Institution. He gave very clear and positive evidence, and, while he assumed a share of blame at that time, showed that it was not through any neglect or error on his part that the matter had not received the attention of the Minister of Agriculture or Provincial Treasurer in 1876. He was evidently under the impression that the sum had been provided for by the Department, and the blunder seemed to have originated in the change of Ministers—the Hon. A. McKellar having overlooked the draft and not called the attention of his successor to the fact of its existence.

In the Printing Committee, the contract between Messrs Hunter, Rose and Co., and the Government, for public printing, has been thoroughly enquired into. The examination of Mr. Rose extended over many days, and his evidence pretty clearly proves that the Government was perfectly justified in paying advanced rates in 1873-4, and that the claim of the same figures in '75, '6, and '7 is a fair one. And it is evident that, had the Government permitted the firm to withdraw from its contract, it would have been impossible to procure as favorable terms from any other establishment able to perform the work without delay and inconvenience to the public service. From an examination of the contracts in Ottawa and Quebec it is plainly seen that the printing in Ontario, at the advanced rate sought by Messrs. Hunter, Rose & Co., is the cheapest of the three. The result of the enquiry is an approval of the course pursued by the Government in 1873 and 1874.

Of the numerous bills passed this session in the Ontario Legislature that amending the law for the protection of game and fur-bearing animals possesses much general interest. It was read a third time and passed yesterday, and will come into operation when it receives the assent of the Lieut.-Governor this week and most govern the sportsmen of Ontario for some time to come. The second section of the law, which contains the gist of the measure, reads as follows:—

None of the animals or birds hereinafter mentioned shall be hunted, taken or killed within the periods hereinafter limited: Deer, elk, moose, reindeer, or cariboo, between the fifteenth day of December and the fifteenth day of September in the following year; wild turkeys, grouse, pheasants, prairie fowl or partridge, between the first day of February, and the first day of October; quail, between the first day of January and the first day of October; woodcock, between the first day of January and the first day of August; snipe, between the first day of May and the fifteenth day of August; waterfowl, which are known as mallard, grey duck, black duck, wood or summer duck, and all kinds of duck known as teal, between the first day of January and the first day of September; other ducks, wild swans or geese, between the first day of May and the first day of September; hares or rabbits, between the first day of March and the first day of September. The animals or birds may be exposed for sale, for one month only, after the dates mentioned in the above section, but may be held in possession for the private use of the owner and his family at any time. But with this exception no person shall have in his possession any of the animals or birds, or part or portion thereof, during the periods in which they are protected. It will be unlawful to take, destroy or have in possession any eggs of game birds at any time. It is made illegal to trap, or take by nets, snares, gins, baited lines, or other similar contrivances any of the birds or animals above mentioned. It is provided, too, that no battens, sunken punts, sunken boats or night lights shall be used for the purpose of taking or killing swans, wild geese or ducks, nor can wild ducks be killed during the night time. Beaver, muskrat, mink, sable, martin, raccoon, otter, or fisher, may not be taken between the first of May and the first of November, nor shall traps of any kind be set for their capture between these dates. Muskrat houses may not be destroyed at any time. No person may hunt, take or kill any deer, elk, moose, reindeer, or cariboo for the purpose of exporting the same out of Ontario, the penalty for infraction of the law in this particular being a fine not exceeding $25 nor less than $5 for each animal. No owner of a dog trained or accustomed to hunt deer shall permit such dog to run at large during the close season, if such animal is likely to resort to the woods unaccompanied by its owner or any of his family, and for a violation of this provision, any person harboring or claiming this dog, is to be subject to a penalty not exceeding $25 nor less than $5. The other penalties are not more than $50 nor less than $10 in the case of deer, &c.; in the case of birds or eggs, not exceeding $25 nor less than $5 for each bird or eggs; in the case of fur bearing animals, and in other breaches of the Act, not more than $25 nor less than $5 for each offence. The whole of the fine is to be paid to the prosecutor, unless collusion is suspected between him and the offender, and the confiscation of the game is to follow—such game to be given to some charitable institution or purpose as the convicting justice may determine. The use of poison for the destruction of birds or animals is also made an offence.

The Act for the protection of Insectivorous and other birds, has been slightly amended, "plovers and blackbirds" being added to the unprotected list, and provision being made that "rails may be shot between the first day of September and the first day of January." The proposition to place meadow larks, rice birds, or bobolinks, and cherry or cedar birds on the unprotected list, met with no sympathy from the Assembly, and these birds are still protected.

The Mercer Estate difficulty is likely to be settled by a resolution to be introduced by Mr Mowat to-morrow. He purposes that $5,000 be appropriated to pay the debts of Andrew Mercer, the natural son of Andrew Mercer, that a purchase of 150 acres of land in Etobicoke, for which the late Andrew Mercer entered into a verbal agreement, be completed, and conveyed to trustees for the benefit of Andrew Mercer, jr, and that a further sum of $10,000 be invested in his behalf. It is further provided that out of the estate the sum of $10,000 shall be appropriated towards the erection of a Provincial Eye and Ear Infirmary in connection with the Toronto General Hospital, to be called "The Andrew Mercer Eye and Ear Infirmary," and a further sum of $90,000 to the erection of a Reformatory Institution to be known as "The Andrew Mercer Ontario Reformatory for Females." This institution is to be maintained by the Province, as is the Reformatory for boys and youths, at Penetanguishene, but is to be for the reception of females irrespective of age.

On Monday morning the wife of Mr. August Frosch, residing beyond the G. T. station at Berlin, had occasion to go to town. She left two children at home, one six years and the other thirteen months old. There were also a few neighbors' children in. While she was out the children took the infant and put it into a bag, dragging it around till, when its mother returned it was almost dead.

Harriston Correspondence

The cattle fair on Friday was tolerably well attended, but was not as successful as was desired. A large number of cattle, most of which appeared good, were on the ground, but the prices were below the mark set on them by their owners, and in many cases were driven home. Most of the choice cattle had been bought up previous to the fair by buyers visiting the cattle sheds of farmers.

The anniversary sermons of the Primitive Methodist Church will be preached on Sabbath, 10th March, at 10:30 a.m., and 6:30 p.m., by the Rev. Mr. Ledestone, of Peel, and at 2:30 p.m., by the Rev. J. B. Gundy, of Harriston. A tea-meeting will be held on the following Monday; tea to be served from 5:30 to 7 p.m., after which addresses will be delivered by the above rev. gentlemen, and others.

The ladies of Guthrie Church are going to organize a Sewing Society for the purpose of raising funds to liquidate the Church debt.

BURGLARY.—The Great Western station was broken open on Sunday night last, and burglarized to the amount of $60. The outer doors were forced open, apparently with a crowbar, and it appears that the entrance to the safe was easily effected, as a key, which is supposed to be a duplicate one, was found in the safe. No clue as yet to the perpetrators.

The Flute Band, under the leadership of John Kelly, will give a musical and literary entertainment in the Town Hall, here, on the 14th inst. The vocal part will be supplied by Mrs. Morgan, of London, and others. A drama entitled "The Heir at Law," will be enacted. The affair will conclude with a farce.

At a recent meeting of the congregation of Guthrie Church, the stipend of their pastor, Rev. John Baikie, was raised from $800 to $900 per annum.

THE ODD FELLOWS' BALL.—Thursday evening 28th ultimo, was an auspicious event in the history of Odd Fellowship in Harriston. Since its organization here in August, 1872, its members have been content to work away in an unostentatious manner, adding to their number by degrees, and performing the grand mission for which it was established by dispensing deeds of charity when and wherever merited, in which capacity the good has been felt to a considerable extent without the lodge making any public demonstration. They have, as a body, attained to the position of being the proprietors of a property almost second to none in the town. Having determined on an entertainment, they were bound it would be a success, and went to work accordingly. The issue to which it was brought showed the right men were at the helm. The Town Hall was decorated in a manner far surpassing any previous attempt. Bunting of all shades was very artistically displayed, while picture chromos and mirrors were hung round, making the scene quite enchanting. Above the stage were hung the symbolical three links and devices of the Order, together with various beautiful engravings appropriate to the occasion. Dancing was commenced at nine o'clock, and was participated in with enthusiasm till half-past eleven, which finished the first section of the programme, when an adjournment was made to the Council Chamber for supper; this was under the supervision of A. Yule, baker, and was served in a manner that would do infinite credit to a larger place. After supper dancing was resumed, and the programme was finished about four a.m, in strict accordance with what is now an established custom, by all joining hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne." This concluded the first ball under the auspices of Minto Lodge No. 98, I.O.O.F., of Harriston, and one of the most successful ever held here.

HAROLD THE OUTLAW

—OR—

The Gauger of Skene.

CHAPTER XXV.

AN EXCITING SCENE AT THE GAUGER'S HOUSE.

Malcolm Gillespie sat alone in his parlour. The blinds were down, the shutters closed, and a bright fire burned cheerfully in the grate. Outside the night was clear, starry, but moonless, with a touch of frost in the air; inside there was light and warmth, snugness and comfort.

The gauger sat at the table with a candle burning on either side of him, and a pile of papers—bills and accounts—over which he bent with clouded brow and troubled eyes. He had resolved himself into a committee of ways and means; but in the face of these numerous liabilities adequate ways and means were not to be discerned by him. His financial affairs were growing worse and worse; instead of cutting down his expenses, he was forced to increase them for his numerous spies had to be liberally subsidised, and his professional ambition was so great that his lavish expenditure in this direction was becoming very serious. Yet he must keep it up if he was to maintain his character at headquarters as a clever, dashing, and successful official, whose zeal and important services deserved and would one day receive promotion. This character he must maintain at all hazards. All his hopes and prospects depended on it, and he could maintain it only at an expense which his salary was ridiculously inadequate to meet.

He felt that some means must be devised by which to obtain money. These accounts—many of them of long standing—must be paid, but, worst of all, those slips at his right hand were bills whose dates of payment were drawing fearfully near, and not to be able to meet them was to incur a public dishonor which would be certain to ruin him. How to avert this was the great problem that occupied his perplexed thoughts, as he bent his head between the candles over the scattered papers before him.

His mind was not only troubled and perplexed, his heart was also full of passion and bitterness. He had discovered now how false to all his promises was Gilmour Logan. Had the latter been true to his compact the gauger's financial embarrassments would not have pressed so heavily upon him; but only the day before Gillespie had ridden over to Mount Cairn expecting to obtain some substantial reward for the all important service he had rendered, when Gilmour at once threw aside the mask, and flatly declared that the fifty pounds, which he tossed over to him, was the last farthing of money he should ever receive from him.

In vain Gillespie reminded him of their previous bargain by the Loch of Skene, in vain he reproached and threatened. To the gauger's reproaches Gilmour was imperious; his threats he mockingly defied, and, knowing well that Gillespie durst not, for his own sake, reveal that which would drive Gilmour from his usurpation, he manifested undisguisedly the insolent, brutal selfishness of his nature. Secure as he now deemed himself in his position, he flatly and mockingly intimated his resolution not to abide by the arrangement they had made.

The rage of the gauger was terrible. He flung the fifty-pound note back in Gilmour's face; and with foaming lips and flashing eyes he told him he would make him rue such perfidy. Gilmour only laughed at him more mockingly than before, returned the bank-note to his pocket, and turned jauntily on his heel, leaving Gillespie to vent his curses on vacancy.

In the heat and whirlwind of his passion Gillespie had such reckless feelings that he set spurs to his horse, with the intention of galloping into Aberdeen and divulging the truth concerning Harold Logan to the Fiscal. But after a quarter-of-an hour's hard riding, he was able to to think with a little coolness, and the vision of his own ruin which would be precipitated by the act, made the edge of his resolution depart. He could not face the disgrace which might follow. His fierce thirst for revenge on Gilmour was not proof against that prospect, and when he came to two roads which branched the one to the city the other to Skene, he reined his horse into the latter, gnashing his teeth under a sense of his impotence to deal the blow his arm quivered with eagerness to inflict.

He had now to look his financial difficulties full in the face, knowing that the aid which he had expected was not to be given, and as he saw their magnitude, without a glimpse of a way out of them, he groaned with a feeling of mingled rage and despair.

Then there came into his soul with swift impetuosity an accession of that remorse which he had known more or less for months back—remorse for the measureless wrong he had done Harold Logan. He had felt its strong torturing hand even while he believed that he was to reap the reward of his deed—that reward for which he had been persuaded to commit it. Now, when he knew that he had burdened his conscience so heavily in vain, the burden pressed with double weight. He would willingly have given his right hand or his right eye to be able to obliterate the past few months—back to that September afternoon when he sat with Johnny Belfrage in the same room. Oh, if he could but stand in the position in which he then stood, how different would be his course. But, alas! alas! all such regrets were vain. His better nature was coming back to him all to late. Do what he could now, the past was ineffacable, and never would he get rid of the remorse it brought.

Such were the verying feelings and passions which agitated him when his woman servant opened the door of the room and told him that an old man was in the passage who desired to see him.

Supposing the visitor to be one of his spies, he was about to tell the woman to take him to the kitchen, there to wait his leisure; but ere he could give the order the stranger came quietly past the servant into the room, and the latter withdrew, closing the door behind her.

Gillespie looked at the old man inquiringly, for he did not recognise him. This, however, was not very wonderful, for the persons of some of the men whom he had in his pay were not familiar to him. He was convinced that the stranger had come to him with some secret and important information when he saw him—the moment the servant had gone—step to the door and lock it.

He wants to assure himself of privacy, thought the gauger to himself, with a smile; but this smile gave place to a surprised look when he saw the man withdraw the key from the lock and put it in his pocket. He was still further amazed to see what had seemed the bent form of age raise itself up, till a tall, massive form stood before him, which showed that he was no old man at all, but a strong, youthful person in disguise.

Centre Riding Reform Convention.

A meeting of the delegates of the Centre Wellington Reform Convention was held in the Town Hall, Elora, on Tuesday, to make preliminary arrangements for the nomination of candidates for the House of Commons and Ontario Legislature for that constituency. The Hall was quite filled with as fine a representation of the Reformers of the Riding as we have ever seen at a similar gathering. Mr. Alex Dyce, of Garafraxa, President of the Reform Association, occupied the chair, and Mr. John Craig, of the News Record, acted as Secretary.

The Chairman briefly stated the object of the meeting, and hoped they would make such arrangements as would enable them as soon as possible to hold a Convention when the candidates for both Houses would be brought in the field.

A letter from Col. Clarke, M.P.P for the Riding, was read, explaining his absence from the meeting, owing to the important business in the House during the last few days of the session.

It was moved by Mr. J. M. Shaw, seconded by Mr. Geo. Barron, was resolved

That in the opinion of this meeting it is expedient to nominate Reform candidates for the House of Commons and Legislature of Ontario at the earliest convenient date.

Several present spoke in favor of making the nominations there and then, but the larger majority favored a nomination by a Convention composed of delegates specially appointed for the purpose.

The resolution was accordingly carried.

Moved by Mr. Crackell, seconded by Mr. H. Cull, and resolved

That meetings be held in the different municipalities of the Riding to select delegates to meet in Convention in Fergus on Thursday the 21st inst., for the purpose of nominating candidates for the House of Commons and Legislature of Ontario, the delegates to be in the proportion of one delegate for each fifty votes and fraction of fifty votes given for the Reform candidate at the last election.

The following gentlemen were appointed Conveners for calling the meetings in the different municipalities for the appointment of delegates.

Pilkington—Charles Allan.
Elora—Alex. Smart.
Nichol—Peter Dow.
Fergus—Jas. Cattanach.
West Garafraxa—Harvey Cull.
East " —Ezekiel Hawse.
Peel—Wm. Fisher.
Luther West—Mr. Nunn.
Luther East—H. McDougall.
Erin—Hugh Milloy.
Orangeville—John Green.

The Chairman expressed the hope that these Conveners would at once make arrangements for the calling of meetings, and he pressed upon all the great importance of organisation. With a perfect organization and a united front he had no fear of their success.

Mr. John Robinson, of Fergus, on being asked to speak came forward and said he was much pleased to see such a large turn out. From the appearance of this meeting, and the fact that almost every man he met at the fair to-day was a Reformer, there was very little evidence of the so-called reaction. Although he came from a line of people who held views different to him on public questions, he had since ever he had understood what politics was been on the Reform side, because its principles were in harmony with his views. The great fundamental principle of the party with which he was allied, was to leave to the vote of the people, or the people's representatives, all questions affecting the public weal. For these and other reasons he had been a humble, but consistent member of the party, and he had no reason to regret it. He believed that the Conservatives for many a year past had not a majority in Ontario, yet by means which he need not refer to, they had managed to keep in power for many years, until the revelations in connection with the Pacific Scandal so roused the indignation of the people that they were driven ignominiously from office. He then went on to speak of the great issues at stake in the forthcoming election. No one present could too fully realize the importance of the coming contest, or the desperate efforts that would be made to defeat the present Government. That Government having appealed to the country when the indignation of the people was at the highest pitch, secured a very large majority, not a few being Conservatives, who were ashamed to be identified with their leaders, who had brought such disgrace on their party. It was natural to expect that some of these would fall off from the Reform ranks in time, but he believed that the present Government would at the next election secure a good working majority, and that the reaction would be all on their side. We should put forth every effort to sustain a Government which had acted honourably, and for the best interests of the people. They had nothing to be ashamed of. Charges had been brought against them, but they had not been sustained—and had turned out to be mere rumors. If the Opposition believed in them why did they not ask to have them investigated by Committees of the House, as the Government had proposed time after time, and had even entreated their opponents to have appointed? But the Opposition did not care for such Committees, for they well knew that these charges could not be substantiated, and so they left them to make what capital they could out of them. But he felt that it would be an insult to the people to again bring them up after they had declined to have them thoroughly investigated as the Government proposed. Even had these Committees been of a partizan character, as the Opposition alleged they would be, still the facts would have come out, the truth would have been revealed. But the Opposition were afraid of the facts, they did not want the truth, because they knew that it would knock the bottom out of their charges, and leave them without a grievance to go to the country on. He again expressed his pleasure at seeing so large and enthusiastic meeting. He had fought in the Reform ranks for eighteen years, and he had to-day more faith in the principles of the Reform party, and in the Reform Government than ever he had before. (Cheers.

Mr. Hugh Milloy then moved the following resolution, seconded by Mr. Charles Allan, which was carried unanimously:—

"That the Reformers of Centre Wellington, in convention assembled, embrace this opportunity of expressing their continued confidence in the Administrations of the Dominion and the Province of Ontario, and congratulate their party leaders in both Houses on their having so managed public affairs as to harmonize conflicting interests and create good feeling among all classes throughout the Dominion. We also desire to express approval of a revenue tariff equitably arranged so as to bear fairly upon all classes, without undue pressure upon any, and our admiration of such a policy, in contrast to the delusive one of Protection, which proposes to benefit everyone, but in reality would only enrich a few at the expense of many; the terms 'struggling industries,' 'manufacturing interests,' and 'protection to farmers,' having no practical significance, but being adopted as electioneering cries by the Opposition, whose insincerity in the matter and utter want of policy on the subject was apparent from the fact that they have never yet stated how or where, or to what extent they would alter the present tariff, provided they were vested with the power to do so."

Mr. Barron briefly spoke in support of the resolution.

Mr. James Ross urged upon the Reformers in the Riding the importance of thorough organization and a united effort at the approaching election.

Mr. G. R. Pattullo, Secretary of the Ontario Reform Association, who was present, was asked to address the meeting. He gave a short and stirring speech, in which he warmly congratulated the Reformers in the Centre Riding on the hearty spi it and enthusiasm manifested at the meeting. He gave them some excellent advice with regard to organization, and said that from present appearances, and by a vigorous, and united effort they could redeem the constituency from the hands of the Conservatives.

After three cheers for the Queen the meeting broke up.

Dr. Wm. Gray's Specific Medicine

Before Taking — After Taking
The Great English Remedy is especially recommended as an unfailing cure for Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhea, Impotency, and all diseases that follow as a consequence of Self Abuse, as Loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to INSANITY OR CONSUMPTION and a PREMATURE GRAVE, all of which, as a rule, are first caused by deviating from the path of nature, and over indulgence.
The Specific Medicine is the result of a life study and many years of experience in treating those special diseases. Pamphlet free by mail.

The new Pope is said to avoid in all his public exhortations mention of the Virgin, with the object of discountenancing the Mariolatory which his predecessor so long encouraged. It was also remarked that on the occasion of his coronation he made no allusion to Pius IX., although Cardinal di Pietro in his address paid an eloquent tribute to the late Pontiff. Cardinal Franchi has been confirmed as Pontifical Secretary of State.

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London. VENNOR ON MARCH.—Mr. Vennor writes to the Montreal Gazette to "confess to having been decidedly out in his forecast of February." He says of March:—Precipitation on some 16 to 18 days of which from 8 to 10 will be as snow, and 6 to 8 as rain or rain and snow. The dates upon which snow falls are probable, appear to be the 2nd or 3rd, 7th or 8th, 16 or 17th (possibly both,) 21st or 22nd, and the 28th or 29th (rain and snow.) The "cold dips" I would locate in proximity to the 4th and 5th days, and the 14th and 16th. Should there be rains in the forepart of the month, there will be the same at its close, and the heaviest falls of snow on the medial dates. If snow at first (on 2nd or 3rd,) there will be snow at its end. In either case the total precipitation will be about as given. In conclusion, I would state that upon the action of March, this year (according to my theory,) hangs the character of the whole summer of 1878, for should, by any means, the precipitation be below the figures already given, the weather will be dry and intensely hot. Or if, on the other hand, there be even greater snow and rain falls than mentioned, I should predict for the summer cold weather and rain throughout, with severe frosts. Hence, let those eager to learn what the summer is likely to be carefully watch the character of the entering month, and judge for themselves.

DEATH OF THE REV. ANDREW DRYBURGH.—We regret to learn the death of this minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, on Tuesday, at Elmira, from scarlet fever. Mr Dryburgh was a native of Fifeshire, Scotland, and was educated for the ministry in that church. In 1875, knowing the field there was for ministerial usefulness in this country, he came to Canada, and gave himself devotedly to the cause of Christ. He took his place among the probationers, and was sent to different Presbyteries to labor in them where openings existed. His preference, however, was for some Mission Station in which he might be located, and which he might nuture, till it would attain the position of a self-sustaining charge. For a time he labored at Everton and Ospringe, in the exercise of no small measure of zeal, and at the close of the term refused to take any renumeration for his services. On the 24th of July last he was ordained to the office of the ministry, and inducted into the pastoral oversight of Elmira and Hawksville—two congregations in the bounds of the Presbytery of Guelph. There he labored with his usual zeal and disinterestedness, making full proof of his ministry; instant in season and out of season, and showing all good fidelity. His illness was brief. He has been cut off in the midtime of his days. His people will feel his loss acutely, and they have our sympathy in the circumstances in which they are placed. Funeral to-day (Thursday) at two o'clock.

MR. JOHN ANDERSON has for sale nice photographs of the new Pope, carte de visite size. They are well executed.

THERE are a number of young men who almost nightly congregate on the corners of streets on the Waterloo avenue, recounting deeds of disgrace, in which they always appear as the would be heroes. If such must continue, it would be better for the parties to so modulate their voices as not to be heard by the inmates of houses jutting on the corners.

BEAUTIFUL CANES.—Messrs. John Kennedy & Co., jewellers, Upper Wyndham street, have in stock the finest, richest and most elegant lot of canes suitable for presentations, that has ever been brought into town. They were purchased in New York. The heads are in shape of knobs and crooks, and are both in gold and silver, handsomely chased. The sticks are of ebony, steel tipped. The prices range from $10 to $50.

BASE BALL GROUNDS.—Messrs. Geo. Sleeman and W. H. Cutten, proprietors of the Maple Leaf base ball grounds, purpose fitting the new grounds up for the next season in a manner which will make them one of the most complete on the continent. The ground is full regulation size—360 feet by 500 feet, and about three quarters of an acre on which the diamond is placed was sodded last season, and is as level as a floor. Seating accommodation will be afforded for about 1,000 persons. The seats will be arranged in an amphitheatre shape, extending in length some two hundred feet. A certain portion of the seats will be reserved for ladies, and their escorts. In the centre and immediately behind the home plate will be stands for the managers, scorers, and reporters. These stands will be raised some eight feet from the ground. Underneath there will be club and refreshment rooms. There is every prospect of Guelph having a first-class amateur team for 1878.

DRUNK.—Owen Callaghan is somewhat of a genius in his way, but withal one who is far too fond of the maddening bowl. He makes it a rule to become intensely inebriately every Fair held in Guelph, and holds that it is not necessary to have a cattle market to constitute a fair day. The elements have more to do with it than simply the buying and selling of beeves. Yesterday certainly was a fair day. The cattle fair was held, and the sun shone out in such a manner as to remind every person of spring. On this double account Owen Callaghan became doubly drunk, and for this offence against the commonwealth was coralled by the police. He presented a rueful appearance when brought before the Police Magistrate this morning, and after the information, with its usual verbiage, was read over to him he requested to be allowed to narrate a portion of his harrowing, bloodcurdling history. This was done to melt the heart of the P. M. The prisoner proceeded with the narrative of his life as far as "I was born in the county of" when the words $1 fine and $3 50 costs, or five days in gaol awakened him to a sense of his position. He studied a moment, felt in each pocket, found nothing, and then taking off his well worn coat asked the Magistrate to take it in liquidation of the fine and costs. The coat was not taken—the reporter thought on account of its want of breadth—and poor Owen Callaghan is now languishing in the County gaol.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday evening about eight o'clock, a young man named Edward Hans, brakesman on Scanlon's special, going west, on the Grand Trunk, fell off the top of a car near the Glasgow street crossing and sustained serious internal injuries. At the time the accident occurred the train was not going at a very great speed—about six miles an hour. He was on duty and carried a lantern in his hand. He was missed nearly as soon as he fell off. As it was necessary to apply the brakes to stop at the freight station, the other brakesman, finding that the train did not stop as soon as it should have done, was satisfied that Hans had either fallen off the car or had neglected to apply the brakes. The trainmen proceeded back a short distance and found the young man lying between the two tracks. He was senseless and blood was issuing from the mouth and nose. He was carried into D. McMahon's house near by and Dr. Herod sent for. The doctor made an examination and found that no limbs had been broken, but that he must have been seriously injured internally. A priest was sent for who administered to the young man the last rites of the Church. He was then conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he has since remained in a very low condition. Edward Hans was a strong, robust young man, formerly lived in Guelph, but removed to Toronto some two years ago. It is said that he had been known to take fits on one or two occasions, and it is thought that he might have had one when he fell. He has been married only a short time.

LITERARY ENTERTAINMENT.—In School Section No, 4, West End, Guelph township, a literary entertainment was held on Friday night last. The school house was crowded to its utmost capacity, and some unfortunates had to stand upwards of two hours. The programme was a very long one and it would take too much space to particularize. All the pieces were exceedingly well rendered. Their local paper, the Gem, bids fair to rival well conducted newspapers. Some spicy local articles appeared in this issue. Mr. G. B. Hood very ably filled the chair. The object of these meetings has been more than realized. Young and old have been brought closer together in a social way, and it has also added to their store of knowledge. The debates which have been carried on every Friday evening will close this month. The singing class under the leadership of Mr. Wm. McCrae has closed for the season and the young has been much benefitted. The Sunday school is also in a very prosperous condition under the superintendence of Mr. D. Kennedy and a staff of eight indefatiguable teachers, with an attendance of about sixty scholars during the winter. Few school sections has such a record of religious, literary and musical instruction.

CURLIANA.

Guelph Wins the Royal Caledonian Medal By a Score of 63 to 23.

On Wednesday two rinks from Guelph and the same number from Point Edward met at St. Mary's to play for a very honorable badge—the Royal Caledonian medal. It is said by some that Guelph players are singularly fortunate when they are competing for supremacy. This is a mistake. They are not more fortunate than rinks from other places, but always win by their skill. The game resulted in favor of Guelph by a score of 63 to 23—a majority of 40.

Of all the towns in the Province for curlers to enjoy themselves, and to be treated in a most hospitable manner, St. Mary's stands pre-eminently ahead. The Guelph players were met at the station by St. Mary's curlers, and were cared for and treated in a most kindly manner during their stay there. Their generosity knew no bounds, as the Guelph men were treated as handsomely as though they had been the guests of the corporation. For genial, open hearted, whole-souled callants, Guelph commends all curlers to St. Mary's.

It was hardly expected that Point Edward would win the trophy, but such a crushing defeat for Guelph's opponents was never anticipated. Dr. Ford, of St. Mary's, fulfilled the position of umpire in a very satisfactory manner,

In Guelph's second rink Mr. D. Stirton was left off. This was necessitated by one of Point Edward's skip inadvertantly missing the train, and thus failing to put in appearance.

The score is subjoined:—

NO. I. RINK.

GUELPH.	POINT EDWARD.
Wm. Bruce	Jas. Allcock
Jas. Emslie	D. Livingstone
A. Robertson	D. Gillies
A. Congalton—sk 28.	T. H. Morin—sk. 13.

NO. II. RINK.

A. Bruce	M. Hitchcock
D. Kennedy	A. Kerr
T. Dobbie—skip 35.	Jas. McIntyre—sk. 10.

MEMBERS of St. George's Society are reminded that the regular monthly meeting takes place to-night. A large attendance is expected.

MARSH QUINTON for molesting a policeman in the discharge of his duty, was fined $5 and costs by the Police Magistrate this morning.

SHIPMENT OF HEREFORD CATTLE FOR COLORADO.—Messrs. Hurd & Holmes, of Colorado, have purchased a car load of Hereford bulls, in all twelve heads. From Mr. Geo. Hood, Guelph, five head, including his celebrated bull Hero, four years; Robin Hood 2nd, Victor 3rd, The Doctor, and Canadian Knight 2nd. From Mr. F. J. Chadwick, his bull Glandeboye. From Mr. R. J. Mackie, Oshawa, Tom Thumb, four years; Henry Ward Beecher, one year old, and bull calf Victor. From Mr. F. W. Stone, two head, Sir George, three years, and Guardsman, three years; also one bull from Mr. Shortreed, Paisley Block. During the last nine months 42 head of Herefords have been shipped from Guelph, Colorado breeders taking 20 head, Missouri 20 head, and Michigan 2.

OUR MINTO CORRESPONDENT AND THE HARRISTON TRIBUNE.—We had no intention of troubling our readers in Minto with anything more about the dispute between our correspondent and the Harriston Tribune, but for a very impertinent paragraph in last week's issue of that paper, in which the editor seeks to make the public believe that our correspondent wished to make a retraction, and that we refused to entertain or publish it. We have only to say in answer to this mean insinuation that our correspondent never hinted to us anything approaching a retraction, and that therefore we could not refuse what we were never offered or received. The Tribune talks about a committee appointed to settle their differences. We know nothing about such a committee. All that the editor of the Tribune had to do to clear himself was to furnish evidence in contradiction to what our correspondent said, and to publish it. We have not seen this evidence yet, and until the editor of the Tribune is able to clear his skirts, the less he says about our correspondent or the MERCURY, the better.

THE TORONTO TRIBUNE.—We have received an admirably executed Crayon Lithograph portrait of Monseigneur Conroy, the Papal Delegate to this country, which is being presented by the publisher of the Tribune to all the subscribers to that lively and well-conducted journal. The Tribune gives a large amount of Irish, Catholic, and general news, and while specially adapted for the class to whom it more particularly appeals for support—the Catholics of the Dominion—it is at the same time a good instructive family newspaper, got up in every respect in a style that is creditable to Canadian journalism. The Tribune has also engaged the services of the well-known Mr. Peter O'Leary, at one time the representative of the British Labour League in this country, and his weekly contributions will form an attractive feature in the columns of the Tribune.

DISTURBANCE IN MONTREAL.—The police on Tuesday evening, hearing that large gangs of men were petrolling Wellington-street, went down to disperse them, and found several squads of men, numbering thirty and forty in each squad. A party disturbance occurred, and there is little doubt that a serious row would have taken place if the police had not been at hand. A number of pistol shots were fired, and several persons were more or less hurt. Mr. Alphonse Cummings, who was coming home with Mr. P. Fogarty, was set upon by a number of men, one of whom fired a revolver at him. He escaped the shot by dodging to the ground. Mr. Fogarty was severely handled, and beaten badly about the face, James Douglas, an employee in the gas works, who became embroiled in the row, was thrown to the ground, breaking the outer bone of his leg and dislocating his ankle.

Miss Rye is again in lively spirits, and writes to the London Times that she will shortly resume business transactions.

Town Council.

Report of the Police Committee—All Projections on the Streets to be Removed.

A meeting of the Council was held on Wednesday evening. Present—His Worship Mayor Howard, in the chair, Messrs. Elliott, Sleeman, Rich. Mitchell, Bruce, Gowdy, Day, Roche, Doran, Melvin, Chubbs, Robt. Mitchell, Biscoe, Dr. McGuire.

BY-LAW REPORT.

Mr. Elliott, chairman of the Committee, reported that they do not recommend any change to be made in By-law 274 in the manner asked for by the petition of John Hogg and others, as they are of opinion that it would be contrary to law to define any specified distance at which projections might be allowed to extend over the street.

On motion of Messrs. Biscoe and Doran the report of Walks and Gardens Committee was adopted.

The report of the By-law Committee was adopted on motion of Messrs. Elliott and Biscoe.

These reports have already been published in the MERCURY.

POLICE REPORT.

Mr. Day, chairman of the Police Committee, presented the following report:—

Your Committee have considered the petition of W. J. Little and other ratepayers, asking the dismissal of the Chief of Police on the ground of inefficiency. As said petition does not set forth any specific charges, or furnish any sufficient evidence in support of the statements therein contained, invitations were issued to the petitioners to appear before the Committee to show cause why the prayer of the petition should be granted. Sixteen of said petitioners appeared before your Committee and preferred their complaints, which, to a large extent, had reference to what the petitioners declared to be the partial enforcement of the town by-laws, together with general charge of inefficiency and neglect of duty. Several of the petitioners, who attended the meeting of your Committee, expressed their regret at having signed the petition, as they had done so without reading it, and under a misapprehension as to its provisions. From the statements made during the investigation, as well as from personal observation, your Committee are of opinion that a more rigorous enforcement of the by-laws of the town, might, in the public interest, be made by the police force, and would recommend that the Chief and the officers under him be instructed to prosecute all infringements of the same. Your Committee, after a most careful consideration of the petition, and after having heard the Chief of Police in explanation of the several charges made against him by the petitioners, agree that there is not sufficient evidence before them to warant them in recommending the Council to comply with the prayer of the petition, and they, therefore, recommend that the petition be not granted. With reference to the petition of H. D. Morehouse and others, your Committee would recommend that the attention of the police be called to the matter complained of, contained in by-law 164, section 4.

Mr. Biscoe asked by what authority the Chief of Police left his duty in the town without the consent of the Council; and by what authority had the Chief of Police to inform him in December last that he had no business to obey any of his orders as Chairman of the Police Committee at that time. In his opinion Chief Kelly appeared too negligent in his duty. The report presented this evening bore out his opinion. He instanced the petition of Mr. Morehouse and others in regard to having the nuisance of idlers loitering on the sidewalk on Garden street, in support of such an assertion. He also considered the Chief had been remiss in his duty in regard to the removal of Mr. Hogg's sign. The By-law in regard to the same would relieve Mr. Kelly from all responsibility. There was a little mistake in the preamble of the By-law, but that did not affect the By-law. The snow By-law was not properly enforced. If it were, the town could derive a very handsome revenue from the same. He thought it was the duty of the police to make all the money it was possible for them to do to be applied to the use of the town. There were several By-laws violated, and the Chief should see that parties guilty of so doing should be punished. He did not think petitions amounted to much at any rate, as it was not a difficult matter to receive signatures almost to any petition. He had been told this evening by a gentleman who had signed the petition in behalf of the Chief, that he had no confidence in him. The party however did not want to see him summarily dismissed. He hoped the Chief would be more careful in future, and see that all the By-laws of the corporation were carried out. It would only be with that understanding that he would vote for the adoption of the report.

Mr. Chase here took his seat at the board.

The report was then adopted without further discussion.

The Special Committee's report in re Rules of Order was adopted on motion of Messrs. Melvin and Sleeman.

On motion of Messrs. Melvin and Richard Mitchell leave was granted to introduce a By-law to revise and amend Rules of Order, and it was read a first and second time.

The Council went into Committee on the Whole on the By-law, Mr. Day in the chair.

Several amendments were made in various clauses.

On motion the Committee rose with leave to sit again.

The Council then adjourned.

The Crisis in Quebec.

There is nothing new in regard to the situation in Quebec, but it is expected that Mr. Joly will be able to announce the names of the new Cabinet to-day. It is understood that Mr. Holton was offered a portfolio in the Cabinet, but declined it on account of his other duties.

The Conservative papers have been trying hard to fasten on the Dominion Government the responsibility of having advised the Lieut.-Governor to pursue the course he did. There is not the first shadow of foundation for this charge. The Government in Ottawa knew nothing of the course the Lieut.-Governor felt it his duty to pursue, and they were astonished when the news arrived on Sunday evening that the Quebec Ministry had resigned. It is a further fact that up to Monday night, at least, not one of them knew whether the Ministry had gone out on their own resignation because his Honor had refused to sign their tyrannical Bill, or whether they had been requested to give place to others, as they no longer retained his confidence. Reports have been received of inflammatory speeches, delivered for the purpose of making the Dominion Administration unpopular, but it is believed when the actual facts are known, as they will probably be officially promulgated to-day, that they will reveal a state of things that will compromise no Liberals either at Ottawa or Quebec.

The facts are that the Lieut.-Governor and his advisers fell out on a bill for compelling the municipalities interested in paying the bonuses to the railway which is to connect Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa. Montreal voted a million dollars to this enterprise, but after paying $860,000 of this amount she found that the Government had ignored her claims, that the road was to be run independent of our principal commercial city in the Dominion, that the station for Montreal was to be located far out of the city, and that none of the stipulations which were made when the bonus was asked for were to be carried out. In consequence Montreal refused to pay any more than she had done, and other municipalities followed her example. The Quebec Government then brought in a bill for the purpose of compelling the payment of the bonuses. It went so far as to provide that if the Mayors of the municipalities refused to sign the remaining debentures that Syndicates should be appointed by the Government, who should have power to sign the bonds, which should be as binding as it they had been issued in the ordinary way. This tyrannical measure was petioned against, and public meetings held and the Administration denounced. The opposition to the bill became so violent that the Lieut.-Governor at last felt it his duty to interfere, and hence all the trouble, and resignation of the Government.

We expect that full explanations will be made to-day in the Quebec Legislature, which will place the whole matter in a proper light.

Another of Sir John's Jobs.

On motion of Mr. Dymond a return has been made of certain printing accounts which transpired between Mr. J. G. Moylan, then editor and publisher of the Toronto Freeman, and Sir John Macdonald, who was then at the head of the Conservative Government. The return, among other documents, comprises the following:—

The undersigned desires that the sum of twelve hundred dollars be advanced by the Accountant of Contingencies to J. G. Moylan, Esq, proprietor of the Canadian Freeman, to be repaid by work in printing for the several Departments.

(Signed) JOHN A. MACDONALD.
August 14, 1869.

Across the above document, in brackets, which are made to run on after the words, "several departments," follows this endorsement: "And that with this object the several Departments do send their orders for printing through the Accountant of Contingencies."

Then we have the following:—

Monday, 22nd January, 1872.

MY DEAR ROSS,—Will you be good enough to make an advance to the proprietor of the Canadian Freeman of three hundred dollars, to be repaid by printing work.

Yours truly,
JNO. A. MACDONALD.

Thos. Ross, Esq., Clerk of Contingencies.
Paid. J. G. MOYLAN.

The next document reads thus:

27th March.

MY DEAR ROSS,—Will you pay Moylan's printing accounts without reference to back balance.

Yours,
J. A. MACDONALD.

T. ROSS, Esq.

The following endorsement appears on the face of the paper: "Received 27th March, 1872. THOS. ROSS."

The fourth, written before the general elections, reads as follows:

Mr. ROSS, Clerk of the Contingencies, will please make an advance to J. G. Moylan, Esq., Canadian Freeman, for printing, of one thousand dollars, and oblige.

JNO. A. MACDONALD.
June 19, 1874.
Paid. JAS. G. MOYLAN.

On the back of these orders is the following memorandum:—

"Department of Justice, Department of Contingencies.—Paid per cheque number blank), Nov. 30th, 1873; applicant, J. G. MOYLAN; amount, $2,500; service, printing. Memo. — August 14th, 1869, $1,200; January 22nd, 1872, $300; June 19th, 1872, $1,000; total, $2,500. November 30th, 1873."

It now turns out that Mr. Moylan gave no value for the $2,600 which he drew out of the Treasury; that no service was rendered, no printing done, and no work of any kind performed in consideration of the amount advanced. Unless any evidence can be shown that the transaction is an honest one, the only conclusion we can come to is that it was a clear case of bribery. Mr. Moylan, who then owned and controlled the Freeman, was supposed to have considerable influence with his fellow Catholics, and in order to conciliate him and secure his influence, he had to be bought at any price. Accordingly Sir John adopted the readiest method. He gave him orders on the clerk for contingencies for work that was never done. He dishonestly and dishonorably paid away the people's money to bribe and buy the support of a man whose influence at the time was thought to be worth the price paid for it. A more flagrant case of political dishonesty and robbery of the public money we have not come across for many a day. We patiently await for Sir John's explanation of this transaction.

COLONEL HIGINBOTHAM has given notice of inquiry whether the Government intends to carry out the following recommendations concerning the militia, contained in the last report of the Lieut-General commanding:— 1st. To establish the period of annual drill to twenty-eight days. 2nd. To establish three Model Training Schools for Cavalry and Infantry. 3rd. To raise Brigades of Garrison Artillery at Quebec and Kingston, and to reduce the Ottawa Brigade.

IT is the subject of remark that in the debate on the budget the members of the Opposition are barking back on the question. Messrs. Plumb and McCallum, who no doubt spoke under the inspiration of their chief, the other night, denounced protective tariffs as vigorously as if they had never said a word in their favour. This shows a change of front on the part of the Opposition on the protection question, and we may expect to have their policy more fully developed during the session.

MR. TROW'S bill relating to Life Assurance provides that policies shall be non forfeitable after seven yearly payments. Companies after such number of payments shall not be able to contest them on the ground of fraudulent misrepresentations of age or health. Every Company shall pay claims within sixty days after proof of death. If no legal representative of deceased can be found the company shall pay the amount of the policy into the Court of Chancery bearing eight per cent. interest. Claims must be paid notwithstanding suicide, if assigned on premiums paid for seven years. Thirty days grace shall be allowed for payment of any premium after it becomes due. Policies may be revived within a year; companies to have the privilege of cancelling any policy by giving the assured or assignees six months' notice, and paying 80 per cent. of the premiums back in cash.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

THE TERMS OF THE TREATY.

THE INDEMNITY.

LONDON, March 6

It is suspected in official circles here that England will purchase or seize Mitylene for a naval station to counterbalance the increase of Russian influence at Constantinople. It is said such a step would be looked upon with comparative indifference bo Russia, as England is already able to blockade the Dardanelles.

The Treaty bears the title "Preliminaries of Peace," and contains twenty-nine articles. The opening articles relate to Montenegro, Servia, and Bulgaria. The indemnity is fixed at fourteen hundred and ten million roubles, eleven hundred million covered by territorial cessions. Nothing is fixed concerning the terms and period of payment. No guarantee is stipulated, or mention made of Egyptian or Bulgarian tribute, or the Turkish fleet. The treaty simply states that Russia and Turkey shall agree subsequently about the payment.

All the Bulgarian fortresses will be razed and the Turkish troops withdrawn. A military road is to be established for Ottoman posts and telegraph and the passage of troops, which, however, must not make any considerable halt while passing through the country. Mussulmans may return to Bulgaria. The property of Mussulmans left undisposed of will be sold after two years for the benefit of a widows' and orphans' fund.

Arrears of taxes in Bosnia and the Herzegovina are to be remitted. The revenue until 1880 is to be applied to an indemnity for the sufferers by the insurrection for local needs. Austrian and Russian Commissioners will arbitrate all disputed claims.

The navigation of the Straits is declared free for merchant vessels during peace or war.

Six divisions of Russian infantry and two of cavalry will occupy Bulgaria until the formation of a Bulgarian militia, the strength of which shall be fixed later by Russia and Turkey. The Russian army of occupation will preserve its communications, both through Roumania and the Black Sea. The expenses of the Russian occupation are to be borne by Bulgaria.

Roumania is authorized to make her demand for indemnity to the Porte, and make a direct treaty.

No indemnity is stipulated for Servia, or Montenegro.

Russian, Turkish, and Bulgarian commissioners will determine the Bulgarian tribute.

The Reform programme of the Constantinople Conference will be applied to Bosnia and Herzegovina.

An organization similar to that granted to Crete in 1868 is stipulated for Thessaly and Epirus. No mention is made of Greece or Crete.

Batoum, Ardahan, Kars and Bayazid are ceded to Russia. Erzeroum and Trebizond are not mentioned, except that the Russians may embark at Trebizond on their return home.

Asiatic Turkey is to be evacuated in six months. The evacuation of European Turkey is to commence immediately, and be completed within three months. The European Danube Commission retains it former rights, and the Porte undertakes the expense of re-establishing navigation on the Danube and indemnifying private losses, the amounts of which are to be deducted by the Danube Commission from the sums it owes the Porte.

Russia receives the Dobrudscha, to exchange it for Bessarabia.

The question of the Turco-Persian frontier shall be speedily settled.

The treaty is to be ratified within fifteen days; but the provisions become obligatory immediately. Nothing is said about a ratification by a Congress, nor about the capitulation, nor of a Russo-Turkish alliance.

A Pera special announces that the Grand Duke Nicholas will visit the Sultan on Thursday. He will enter Constantinople at the head of 200 officers.

St. Petersburg advices say it is regarded as settled that only the treaty Powers will take part in the Congress, although minor States will be allowed to bring their views under its notice.

A Vienna correspondent says:—Unless unexpected difficulties arise the Congress will probably meet in Berlin between the 22nd and 25th inst.

The Agence Russe says that Germany and Austria have assented to the proposal for a Congress of the chief Ministers of the Powers at Berlin. The assent of the other Governments is expected.

BEET ROOT SUGAR.—The Berlin Journal (German) has it from private sources at Ottawa that the Dominion Government will pass a bill exempting all beet root sugar manufactories from taxation for ten years.

Ontario Legislature

TORONTO, Mar. 6.

The bills to amend the License Act, respecting aid to certain railways, and making certain amendments to the revised statutes were read a third time.

The Attorney-General brought up the Mercer Estate matter. The conclusion the Government had come to was:—That Andrew Mercer, the natural son of the deceased Andrew Mercer, should receive $30,000; that $10,000 be appropriated towards the erection of a Provincial Eye and Ear Infirmary, in connection with the Toronto General Hospital, to be called "The Andrew Mercer Eye and Ear Infirmary;" and that a further sum of $90,000 be devoted to the erection of a reformatory institution, to be called, "The Andrew Mercer Ontario Reformatory for Females." This latter institution is to be maintained and managed in the same way as the Reformatory at Penetanguishene, and to be for the reception of females irrespective of age.

A general discussion on the subject ensued in Committee, it being argued on the one side that the apportionments were fair and just, and on the other that Andrew Mercer, Junior, was entitled to the whole of the estate if he was entitled to any of it.

Mr. Scott moved that the $10,000 and $90,000 appropriations stand over for one year, which, on a count, was lost. On the vote for concurrence with the Speaker in the chair, he moved that, with the exception of the $30,000 to be given to Mercer as a temporary apportionment, the resolution be not concurred in. This was lost by a vote of 43 nays to 30 yeas, and the resolution passed.

On the motion to go into Committee of Supply, Mr. Cameron moved in amendment that an Address be presented to the Lieut.-Governor asking him to re-consider the Estimates so as to confine them within the estimated revenue for the present year. The motion, which was a very long one, set forth a great number of alleged unauthorized applications of public money.

The Commissioner of Public Works drew attention to the fact that this was a direct vote of want of confidence in the Government, and although it was customary for intimation to be given for such a motion, none had been given in the present instance.

Mr. Macdougall claimed that this had been the first opportunity afforded the Opposition of bringing the Government to a square issue.

After some remarks from Mr. Currie and Mr. Scott, the House divided, with the following result:—For Mr. Cameron's motion, 29, against it 49; majority for the Government, 20.

Mr. Fraser took occasion of the motion to go into Committee of Supply for asking how the member for South Simcoe dared, in his previous remarks, to make insinuations against his (Mr. Fraser's) fidelity to his political party. In a vigorous speech of ten minutes, and amidst Ministerial cheers, he declared that, when an appeal was made to the country, he would be found where his political friends expected to find him.

The House then went into Committee of Supply, and passed the various items making up the $52,705 of Supplementary Estimates, which were subsequently concurred in.

On Tuesday night the well-known procuress, Madame Demott, of London, was arrested, the charge against her being that she was guilty of procuring an abortion.

HAROLD THE OUTLAW
—OR—
The Gauger of Skene.

Half in wonder, half in alarm, the gauger rose to his feet, but did not quit his place at the table, to the opposite side of which the stranger advanced, the light from the two candles shining full upon his person, especially on his eyes, which burned like live coals, as they fixed themselves on Gillespie's face.

"Who—who are you?" gasped the gauger, with a vague yet strong feeling of dread.

For an answer the stranger removed his broad blue bonnet, his false hair and flowing white beard, and at the features which now revealed themselves the gauger started back with a faint cry, and the petrified ejaculation of the name—

"Harold Logan!"

And Harold Logan it was in the very same disguise in which he had previously visited Mr. Adamson. But what a terrible change had come upon his face. It was pale, rigid, hard-set, and awful, and the eyes gleamed more fiercely still with consuming fire.

He took a pistol from underneath his coat and held it in full sight of the speechless gauger.

"Tell me where you have taken them!" he demanded, in a low, hoarse, iron tone, which, added to his aspect so filled the agitated mind of the listener with horror, that he could only stand motionless before him.

"No hesitation—no refusal," said Harold, with sternness, "or your life shall answer it."

"Good—God—what does this mean?" gasped Gilmour, in the extremity—not of terror, but amazement; for bodily courage was ever one of his prominent characteristics, and it was surprise, not fear, that now sealed up his faculties.

"Beware," said Harold, knitting his brow with fearful force, "I have warned you. We are alone here, and you saw me take means to keep out intruders. My presence here must tell you that the purpose for which I have come is not to be baffled. No, I swear by heaven, earth and hell, that if you refuse to tell me where they are I will shoot you to the heart. Move hand or foot either to escape or to summons assistance, and that moment I fire. Therefore, if you value your life, beware, and answer me."

"Answer you what?" demanded the gauger, with a countenance of blankest ignorance.

"Malcolm Gillespie, once more I warn you. I will not leave you an excuse. I will put the question plain and direct. Where are my wife and child?"

"Your—your wife and child—oh, heaven, he has gone mad," said Gillespie, unconsciously uttering aloud the one thought that flashed into his mind.

Harold cocked the pistol, laid his finger on the trigger, and pointed the weapon at the gauger, saying with deliberate emphasis—"I will give you till I have counted ten; if the answer does not come by the time the last number passes my lips, the next moment you are a dead man. One—two—three——

"I protest, Logan. This is to me incomprehensible," cried Gillespie.

"Four—five—six—seven"——

"Stay, stay," he exclaimed in nervous haste. "Kill me if you will. I deserve such a fate from you, and my state of mind is such that I care little though you do blow my brains out. But at least do not do it under a misconception, for it seems to me you are laboring under such."

"Eight—nine," went on Harold, his face hardening like steel, and his teeth grinding against each other.

"Well, if you are resolved on murdering me, do it. There is my breast," said Gillespie, throwing back his arms, and presenting an open bosom to the other's aim.

Harold stood silent, irresolute, the last and fatal number trembling on his tongue. Gillespie's act staggered him. That he was in earnest he could not doubt. He stood also so calm, and with such an aspect of dignified resolution that, in spite of his passion, the youth was constrained to pause and stay his hand.

"Will you rather lose your life than comply with my demand?" he asked, "the sacred indisputable demand of one whose domestic affections you have trampled on, whose heartstrings you have torn till they are well nigh broken? Are you so sold to further the wicked interests of one who I blush to think is my father's son that you are so ready to incur death in his service?"

"If you mean am I ready to suffer anything for the sake of Gilmour Logan, I tell you he is at this moment the object of my fiercest hatred. I would move heaven and earth to crush him—to hurl from the position I was once mad enough to assist him to."

"This is only falsehood prompted by cowardice," said Harold, with a withering frown.

"It is, by heaven?" cried Gillespie, his bold nature rousing up at these words. "Bad as I am; bad as you have reason to know me, the worst enemy I have has no cause to call me a coward. Would a coward have bared his breast to a pistol shot as I have done? No, Harold Logan, there at least you do me an injustice. Whatever I am, I am no coward; and whatever falsehood I may have told, human lips never spoke truer words than mine when I tell you I hate your brother, Logan, and would do my utmost to thwart him in any way."

"As if I had not full and bitter cause to know the contrary," returned Harold, with a withering look."

"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."

If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.

Arthur Village wants a foundry and machine shop, and the village is taking into consideration the best means of securing such. Bonus, loan, exemption from taxation, &c., are the various schemes proposed to secure such a desirable result.

Sometime ago Mr. Smith, Township Treasurer of Osborne, was very nearly swindled out of his farm by a scoundrel from the other side. Mr. Smith exchanged his farm of 150 acres with this man for 1,000 acres in Kansas and, according to agreement, the latter sent over a correctly executed deed of his property. Upon receiving it Mr. Smith went to a law office for the purpose of having his land conveyed to the Kansas man, when the lawyer caused a search to be made in the Washington law office, and it was found out that the land of which he had received what purported to be the deed, was owned by another person. The trick was discovered and the conveyance stopped by the advice of the lawyer.

It is stated that Tom Daly was nominated by the Conservatives of North Perth simply because he told them that he would run anyway, whether he was chosen to do so or not. Mr. Montieth denies that he will withdraw from the Riding, and feels very bitter at the attempt to throw him overboard, and will resist it.

An American Opinion of Canadian Women.

Suffice it that better taste was never shown by fairer women than at this ball. One word, however, for the women of Montreal and Canada generally. It is a common and impolite saying that the average English girl is at once the freshest, the most innocent and the most stupid creature ever met in society. Be this as it may, I am sure that the Canadian women have all the innocent freshness and purity of their sisters in the Mother Country, while they talk quite as well as their cousins on the other side of the border, and in talking have that beautiful voice and accent which are the pride of the English women in every part of the world. There is, too, about them a healthy robustness which comes from plenty of outdoor exercise and which excites the admiration of all men who have heard of nerves, sick headache and those other symptoms of "little health" which go along with housewraps and easy chairs. One other thing I noticed in the ball room which seemed a little odd to me, and that was that the Canadians have either not give up or have taken up again the old fashion of hopping in the waltz. After the smooth and gliding motion seen in an American ball room, I can't say this looked pretty, but it was done with no little agility, and the dancers appeared to be having a good time. I talked the other day with an American from the South, and he expressed his astonishment at the wonderful hospitality met with on all sides, and which I am sure is the rule in Canada. He said that he had expected to find only "cold northern hearts and rude northern tongues," but instead found each one filled with good feeling and generosity, and living as though the latch string of his door was always on the outside.—Montreal Cor. N. Y. World.

The Mennonites in Manitoba.

The Manitoba Free Press of a late date published some interesting statistics regarding the Mennonites of what is known as the Boundary Line reserve, on the west side of the Red River, which is much newer than the Rat River settlement, on the east side of Red River. These statistics show the rapid improvement the Mennonites are making in the march of progress. This settlement contains 25 villages, and 476 families; number of persons, 2567; number of bushels of wheat raised last year, 35,058; acres for crop of 1878, 3305; horses, 128; cows, 622; oxen, 1067; young stock, 482. In the villages were raised 8,969 bushels of barley, 2,782 of oats, 280 of flax seed, and 9,649 of potatoes.

Amongst other improvements, a grist mill was recently erected near the boundary line. The contract for its construction was awarded to Mr. Jacob Beck, Baden, Ont., who completed it, and put the mill in running order on the 15th December last. The mill has two run of stones, and the engine is of twenty-five horse-power.

A church, 80x60, has also been erected at Reinland, the capital of the reserve, where also a meeting house for holding meetings to discuss municipal and other matters of interest to the residents, has been built.

BROKE HIS COLLAR BONE.—On Sunday last a little boy, son of Mr. Francis Rawson, Guelph Township, broke his collar bone. He had been in the hay mow, and falling from it came against the granary, the collar bone being broken in the concussion. Dr. Howitt set the bone, and the little fellow is doing as well as could be expected.

SALE OF PROPERTY.—Mr. W.S.G. Knowles sold at the Town Hall, on Wednesday, the following property:—House and lot, in Guelph, belonging to Mr. Hornbostle for $2,000. Mr. D. Fristant was the purchaser. Mr. Greene's farm, in Puslinch, was sold to Mr. Joseph Lester, of Guelph township, for $2,100. The Pigott farm, situated on the Elora Road, was purchased by Mr. Arch. Parks, of Ingersoll, for $5,500.

The trade sale of the Canada Cotton Manufacturing Co. on Wednesday was largely attended by leading merchants representing the wholesale and retail trade of the Dominion. All the goods in the catalogue were sold, as well as goods to be made for future delivery. Prices were fair, but mostly favorable to buyers.

Horsmen in Hamilton are alarmed at the re-appearance of the epizootic, a painful and contagious disease, which made much havoc amongst the horses in this country some time ago. The long continued wet and unseasonable weather has in a great measure hastened the return of this disease, but it is to be hoped that the experience which the last attack taught our veterinary surgeons will militate against its spreading or having any fatal results.

A BAD STATE OF AFFAIRS.—So many graves have been robbed in the county of Stormont that people have taken to burying the remains of their friends close to their dwellings. A man recently buried the bodies of his two children under one of the windows of his house, where they could be seen all the time, to prevent their being exhumed. It is time a vigilance committee was organized to put an end to this nefarious traffic in cadavers. The report comes from Osnabruck that a man was shot the other night while attempting to rob a grave of its dead.

Peter Clark Mucnee, of the town of Orangeville has been appointed Attorney at-law.

It has long been known that hogs would fatten upon rattlesnakes, and that no better way could be devised of clearing out a snake-infested undergrowth than turning into it a drove of hogs. But lately it has come to light that the mouse is a fearless and victorious enemy of the rattlesnake. A gentleman in Illinois has discovered the fact to his cost. He had some rattlesnakes in a natural history collection, and he put a mouse into their box as food. After a little time he returned to find one of his snakes dead and the mouse gnawing the side of its head, while the other two snakes were in mortal terror, watching every movement of the mouse.

A QUEER CASE.—In Berlin on Monday of last week the case of John Dillon was tried. The prisoner, who is employed as night baggageman, was arrested by Detective Flynn, of the G.T.R., and charged with having stolen about three-quarters of a ton of coal. It appears prisoner's children had been in the habit of gathering coal lying scattered along the track, which had fallen from the cars, &c., and taking it home and storing it in a shed, the door and window of which were usually open, and had made no attempt to conceal it. The prisoner, on being confronted by Detective Flynn, became excited, and told him, for the purpose of screening his children, that he had purchased the coal down town. Sentenced to one month in gaol.

Mr. F. H. Torrington, organist of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, and Miss Rosalina Kennedy, niece of Mr. Warring Kennedy, was married in that church at 6 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

On Wednesday morning the guests at the Royal Hotel, Hamilton, were startled to hear that a gentleman who had arrived at the hotel the night previous had been found at an early hour this morning dead in his room. Further enquiry showed that the deceased was Mr. George Snarr, of the firm of Cowan & Co., commission merchants, Toronto.

NOW GOING ON AT THE "ELEPHANT"

Having just completed opening out the stock of W. H. E. Whitny, of Windsor which has just ben purchased at a great sacrifice, will certainly cause a speedy clearance.

This stock consists mostly of goods bought last fall, therefore, being free of all moth-eaten rubbish that is so often bought with bankrupt stocks.

Those in want of clothing will find this a capital opportunity of buying goods at prices that will meet depressed times.

No reasonable offer will be refused, as the stock must be run off. A call is requested.

VIENNA, March 8.—The Emperor Francis Joseph is ill, but not seriously.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Mar. 7.

Hon. Mr. Laurier introduced a Bill further to amend the Act respecting Stamps on Bills and Notes, explaining that it provided for the use of stamped paper for bills and notes.

Hon. Mr. Mills introduced a Bill to provide for the creation and registration of homestead estates in the Territories of Canada. He said the Bill provided that anyone possessed of a life estate or an estate in fee simple might register as a homestead of exemption estate.

Sir John A. Macdonald revived the "flag" discussion by reading a memorandum from Chief Justice Young and Judge Desbarres in which they reiterated the charge against Hon. Mr. Jones, that he would cheer when the British flag was hauled down from the citadel.

Mr. Jones, in reply, expressed his satisfaction that Judge Young had been at last compelled to come out over his own name, no other course having been left to him. On a former occasion he characterized the statement that had been attributed to him as a foul slander, and so he characterized it again. He read the following document which had been signed and sent him by gentlemen who held the highest, social, political, and commercial positions in Halifax—gentlemen, he said, whose word would be taken before either of the judges in a case of this kind:—

The undersigned citizens of Halifax who were present at the meeting in the City Council chamber on the 10th of August, 1869, with reference to the proposed reception of His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada, have had their attention drawn to a charge made by Hon. Dr. Tupper in the House of Commons that Hon. Mr. Jones at such meeting said he would cheer when the British flag was hauled down from the citadel. They emphatically contradict the statement of Dr. Tupper, who was not present. They affirm that Mr. Jones did not use the words attributed to him, and that the report of his remarks published in the Morning Chronicle the day after the meeting, and recently quoted by him in the House, according to their recollection was substantially correct.

After a heated discussion Mr. Jones, amid considerable disorder, read the following extract from a speech delivered by Dr. Tupper, in the Nova Scotia Assembly, in 1869, in which he spoke as follows about Judge Young:—"I do not shrink from avowing that a man who has acted as he (Chief Justice Young) has done has forfeited all right to public respect and to the confidence of the people of Nova Scotia."

Mr. Mousseau resumed the debate on the the budget in French, and was followed by Mr. G. W. Ross, who reviewed the expenditure under the late and present Administrations, showing that in money the present Government had reduced the interest one-half per cent. less than what the former Government paid, thus saving $700,000 per annum, representing a capital of $18,000,000. This Government had also to manage a larger debt, and yet did it at $274,000 less per annum than the previous Government. He also pointed out that the old Ministry had increased the expenditure 129 per cent. in seven years, while the present one had reduced it in their term of office by 12½ per cent., this being a saving of $1,488,998, or, if capitalized, after the style of gentlemen opposite, a sum equal to $29,779,460. The aggregate increase of expenditure in seven years under the late Administration he showed was 153 per cent., while it was only nine per cent. in three years under the present Government.

Mr. Langevin followed with a review of the career of Sir George Cartier, claiming for that gentleman the credit of having secured nearly all the benefits now enjoyed by French Canadians.

Hon. Mr. Blake next replied to the strictures of the Opposition on the expenditure of the Department of Justice. He challenged these critics to a most searching inquiry, and went on to refer to the establishment of the Supreme Court, pointing out that it was founded on a more economical scale than was proposed by gentlemen opposite when in power they proposed to create this Court.

At midnight Sir John Macdonald rose to reply to Mr. Blake. He reviewed the policies of Protection and Free Trade as they had been tried in other countries, and moved the following amendment:—

That this House is of opinion that the welfare of Canada requires the adoption of a national policy, which by a judicious readjustment of the tariff will benefit and foster the agricultural, the mining, and the manufacturing interests of the Dominion.

That such a policy will retain in Canada the thousands of our fellow-countrymen now obliged to expatriate themselves in search of the employment denied them at home; will restore prosperity to our struggling industries, now so sadly depressed, prevent Canada from being made a sacrifice market; will encurage and develope an active Provincial trade; and moving, as it ought to do, in the direction of reciprocity of tariffs with our neighbors, so far as the varied interests of Canada may demand, will greatly tend to procure for this country eventually a reciprocity of trade.

Sir John continued speaking till one o'clock, when the debate was adjourned.

In reply to Sir John Macdonald, Mr. Mackenzie said he he had not yet decided on the route of the Pacific Railway, because he was not in possession of the evidence requisite to enable him to make up his mind on the subject. The Premier also stated that the debate on the budget must be brought to a conclusion to-morrow, or he would proceed with it as a vote of want of confidence on Monday.

DOG FIGHTS are an every-day occurrence. Two took place this morning, one on Macdonnell and another on Wyndham street. Spectators are not always as anxious to have the animals separated as they pretend to be.

PURCHASE OF PROPERTY.—Mr. Thomas Gowdy has bought through the Court of Chancery the Maddison Estate on Suffolk Street, comprising about one and a half acres. The land is well situated, being at the corner of the London Road and Suffolk street.

FUNERAL.—This morning the body of the late Francis Agnes McClure was conveyed from the residence of Mr. John A. Wood, Woolwich street, to the Grand Trunk station, and from thence by the eleven o'clock train to Toronto. The funeral will take place in that city from the residence of Mr. Owen Peters, 94 Peter street, on Saturday afternoon.

CHALMERS' CHURCH ASSOCIATION.—This Association met last evening in the Church. The subject for discussion was "The Eastern Question." The affirmative was taken by Mr. Wm. Johnston, and the negative side of the question was supported by Mr. D. McIntosh. Decision was given in favor of the affirmative. Miss L. McIntosh and the Misses Cossitt gave some choice vocal music. The Committee of the Association meets in the church this evening.

LOOK OUT FOR THEM.—From appearances there are in Guelph at the present time persons who would not require much endocement to break into a house for the purpose of plunder. On Thursday morning about three o'clock a family residing in the North Ward were aroused by some one who first opened the gate leading to the house, and then walked cautiously along the verandah to a window which he tried to raise. Two of the inmates were awake at the time, and hearing the noise, the head of the house was aroused, and on getting out he gave the person chase. The powler managed to escape. The best preventive for housebreaking is strong fastenings on the doors and windows.

ST. GEORGE.—The monthly meeting of St. George's Society was held on Thursday evening. There was a large attendance of members, and considerable interest was manifested by all in the business proceedings. The celebration of St. George's Day was taken into consideration, and the matter was finally left in the hands of the Executive Committee to report upon at a special meeting to be held on the 21st. A communication was read from Mr. Hallett, Secretary of the Ancient Order of Foresters Lodge asking the Society if they would not release their claim to the Agricultural Park on Dominion Day, as there was in prospect a large gathering of Foresters from different parts of the Province at Guelph on that day. St. George's Society had decided on holding a pic nic on the first day July, but inasmuch as the gathering of the North-American. St. George's Convention is to take place in August, it was finally decided that the pic-nic be deferred and that the Foresters be allowed the Park.

KNOX CHURCH SOCIAL.—The social to be held in Knox Church, this evening will be unusually interesting—extra arrangements having been made for the entertainment of all those who may attend. Besides music by the choir, Messrs. H. K. Maitland, H. Walker, W. H. Jones, Jas. S. Spiers, and Wm. Dale will sing selections. Mr. Philp will preside at the organ, and the Harris boys will assist with instrumental music. Rev. J. C. Smith has consented to be set down for an address.

MILITIAMEN OF 1812.—A return laid on the table of the Commons by the Minister of Militia shows the names of militiamen of 1812 and 1813 who have died between the first of March, 1876, and the 1st of January, 1878. The deaths were in 1876-77, 243: 1877-78, 193.

ABDUCTION.—On Wednesday William Ellico, of Metcalfe, was arrested on a charge of abducting Eliza Ann Moore. The girl's father is dead, and Ellico was hired by her mother to work the farm. He and the girl became intimate, to stop which the mother strove, and it was under these circumstances that Ellico determined to abduct the girl, who is only about sixteen years of age. He was taken before Squire Peters and remanded for eight days.

MANITOBA GRAIN.—Messrs. R. Gerrie & Co., of Winnipeg, in October last, shipped 350 bushels of wheat to Messrs. Barclay & Brand, Glasgow. John Todd & Co. manufactured the grain into flour. In speaking of the grain the latter firm states that the wheat is of excellent quality, being strong and of good color. They considered it superior in every respect to No. 1 American spring wheat.

ARTHUR MAGISTRATES COURT.—The Enterprise says that last week Constable Moore, at the instance of Mayor Hollinger, proceeded to Toronto for the purpose of arresting John Senior on a charge of embezzlement. Senior was arrested, brought to Arthur and arraigned before a bench of magistrates. From the evidence adduced it appears that the prisoner had sold some implements while in company with or in the employ of Messrs. Hollinger & Butler, and failed to give any account of the proceeds thereof. The prisoner was discharged on the ground that the amount retained was due him.

LOVE AND WHISKEY.—A marriage took place at Mono Road, Halton, on the 20th inst., which will serve as a proof in the debates on the influence of whiskey as against love. In this instance the "moisture" had certainly the ascendancy, the happy groom being in a semi-intoxicated state during the performance of the marriage ceremony. When the officiating minister was taking down some facts necessary for the registering of the marriage, the groom, becoming impatient with the delay, thus expressed himself: "If I had known" said he, "that it would have taken this long, I would never have commenced the d—d ceremony." After the ceremony the husband of 45 and the bride of 20, or thereabouts, departed on their wedding tour in a lumber waggon, the felicitious groom being insensible to the jolting of the waggon through the strength of Bacchus.

WHAT THE NEW POPE DID AS CAMERLINGO.—The duty of verifying the Pope's death falls upon the Cardinal Camerlingo, and he does this by visiting the chamber of death striking the Pope on the forehead with a silver mallet and calling him by name. It is not till this has been done, and till the Pope has been officially set in form certified to be truly dead, that the great bell in the Capital is tolled to announce to the Romans that they are Popeless, and that the supreme authority of the city has passed to the College of Cardinals and their marshal. Such of the Cardinals as happen to be in Rome are at once summoned together and notices are sent to those at a distance. The Maestro di Camera delivers the Fisherman's ring to the Camerlingo, or Chamberlain of the Vatican, and it is formally broken before the assembled Cardinals: coins are struck bearing the arms of the Camerlingo sede vacante; and the Camerlingo, taking possession of the Vatican and its treasures, consigns the corpse of the Holy Father to the penetentiaries of the Vatican basilica for interment.

A FIGHT FOR A PEW.—A singular pew case has occurred in Carleton, N. B., recently. The regulations of the Methodist church there requires that the owner of a pew shall, when desiring to dispose of it, first offer it to the trustees of the church. Mr. Browne lately sold his pew to a Mr. Saunders without going through the above formality. The purchaser was allowed to hold the pew, paying the regular dues, until he neglected to occupy it. Then the trustees tendered to him the price he paid for the pew, which was not accepted. Thereupon the trustees leased it to one Clark. Saunders asserted his right to the pew, and on coming to the morning service with his wife last Sunday, and finding the pew occupied by Clark, who refused him admittance, took off his coat and attempted to force an entrance. Mrs. Saunders clambered over the back of the pew and sat down, and Saunders tried to follow her example. The affair caused a great sensation in the church, and a woman fainted. Saunders was finally persuaded by the trustees to retire, and at the door was arrested by a policeman. The matter was settled next day by the prisoner accepting $30 for his right to the pew.

King Humbert opened the Italian Parliament on Thursday. A Ministerial crisis is imminent, the Cabinet having failed to come to an understanding with the discordant groups, and the result being a probable Ministerial defeat on the election of a President of the Chamber of Deputies. Signor Crispi, the Minister of the Interior, has already resigned his portfolio.

South Ward Election.

Mr. J. P. MacMillan Elected by Acclamation.

The nomination of candidates for the South Ward was held to-day (Friday) in the old Central School building, Mr. John Stevens, Deputy Returning-officer.

The nomination was necessiated by the resignation of Mr. F. Gauhan, who found that he could not devote the necessary time to the affairs of the corporation.

The following nominations were received between twelve and one o'clock—the hour specified:—

J. P. MacMillan was nominated by John Roche, seconded by Wm. Goulding.

David Kennedy, nominated by Wm. Hart, seconded by John Day.

Jas. T. Brill, nominated by Thomas Millar, seconded by Thos. Hutchinson.

The mover and seconder of Mr. Kennedy's nomination, with the consent of the ratepayers present, withdrew the nomination.

The mover and seconder of Mr. Brill's nomination wished his name to be withdrawn.

Some discussion ensued as to whether time was up or not. The town clock was just striking one. The mover and seconder had several minutes before, however, signified their intention to withdraw their nomination, and the Returning-officer, after taking a vote of those present, decided that Mr. Brill's name should be withdrawn.

The Returning-officer then declared that Mr. MacMillan was duly elected.

Mr. MacMillan briefly thanked the electors for the honor they had done him by the election. He would represent the Ward to the best of his ability.

Mr. Roche addressed a few remarks to the electors.

Messrs. Gauhan and Roche moved a vote thanks to the Returning-officer.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Gauhan for his past services as representative of the Ward, on motion of Messrs. MacMillan and John Day.

Mr. Gauhan replied.

The Department of Customs.

The trade and navigation tables for the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1877, are compiled so as to afford the most extended and distinct information respecting imports and exports and the shipping interests of the Dominion. The total exports during the year amounted to $75 875,393, compared with $80,966 435 in 1876. The imports were $99,327,962 and in 1876 $93,210,346; the duty amounted to $12,548,451, compared with $12,833,114 in 1876. Great Britain received more than the half of all our exports or $41,567,469; the United States $25,755,245; British West Indies $2,194 649; B.N.A. Provinces $2,112,106; Spanish West Indies $1,284 375; South America $651,625. The exports to other countries are inconsiderable—Australia with $185,610 taking more than half as much as France, and twice as much as Germany and Spain combined. Of imports the United States sent by far the largest porportion, amounting to $51,312,669; Great Britain sent $39,572,239; France $1,410,632; while none of the remaining countries sent half the last named amount. A marked falling off from preceding years is indicated in the imports from China and Japan, South America, British and Spanish West Indies, and the B. N. A. Provinces. The sum of $6,377,596, or more than half the total duty collected, was from British imports; the duty on American imports amounted to $4,426,349. From the warehouse returns it appears that the necessary consumption of the year has been drawn to some extent from previous importations, and that balances in stock were smaller at the close than at the beginning of the year. These and other indications render it apparent that it has become a practice among importers to order more frequently and in smaller quantities than formerly.

THE NEW DOMINION MONTHLY opens this month with a very interesting paper on "The Poems of Charlotte, Emily and Anne Bronte," giving extracts from a letter written to Charlotte by Southey, when asked for opinion of her verses. The story of "Life in Glenshie" is continued, and "The Future of Newfoundland" is taken up in a very able manner by James Whitman, B.A. A remarkable clear description, with cuts, of Bell's Portable Telephone is given by Mr. George Iles, and following it is a lively paper entitled "Early Canadian Reminiscences." W. M. J. has given an illustrated paper on "The History and Practice of Skating" which will be read with special interest by all who are fond of that art. The author of "The Girl's Voyage" writes "Days at St. Augustine," which forms a sort of continuation to the "Winter in Florida" in the February number. A paper on "The British American Fisheries" gives a history of the late Commission, and is evidently from the pen of one well acquainted with the facts. The Young Folks will be entertained by the story of "Blanchette, or the White Hen," an Alsatian tale translated from the French. "Jack Granger's Cousin" is continued, and the selected articles are as usual good. The Home Department opens this month with the story of "John Wilkinson's Widow," which is founded on fact. The "Autobiography of a Vegetarian" is a true narrative, and is a striking instance of what may be done by industry and economy. It attracted much attention when it originally appeared in Frazer's Magazine. The story of "My Lady Help, and What She Taught Me" is concluded. Under the head of Literary Notices are a number of extracts from "The Art of Beauty," by Mrs. Haweis, containing valuable hints concerning costume, color and furniture, and their relations to beauty. Published by John Dougall & Son, Montreal. $2 per year.

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Lord Derby on the Congress.

Not a Hopeful View About it.

March 7.

In the House of Lords to-night the Duke of Argyle called attention to the treaties of 1856 and 1871. He maintained that Turkey was the only Power which had broken them; they were therefore practically at an end.

Lord Derby admitted that the state of things contemplated in those treaties had ceased to exist. The treaties were therefore only binding until Europe ratified the new system. He would not enter minutely into the question of England's attitude at the Conference, but as a general principal England wished the question to be settled in a European, not exclusively a Russian, sense, and she wished the settlement to be durable and equable towards the various races and creeds. The task of the negotiations was one of no common complexity. The Government would do its best to bring about a satisfactory settlement between the conflicting interests, but it was unwise for any man to attempt to predict the result.

Lord Derby's despondent tone caused some uneasiness in the lobby.

A Paris correspondent says:—It seems certain that France would readily consent to England's obtaining complete security in regard to the Suez Canal, but would do her utmost to dissuade England from occupying Egypt. France desires joint action with England respecting Egypt.

A Paris special says:—Prince Bismarck recently stated that he would himself propose at the Congress an English occupation of Egypt, Germany guaranteeing the non-intervention of France.

At the Russian headquarters it is positively stated that when the British fleet passed the Dardanelles, peremptory orders came from St. Petersburg to march into Constantinople, but the Grand Duke Nicholas took upon himself to disobey, and only moved forward in the direction of Constantinople, sending at the same time to St. Petersburg a statement of his reasons.

A Berlin despatch says:—Bismarck is disinclined to attend the Conference. His physicians recommend his early return to his estate at Varzin.

A Berlin despatch states that Germany accepted the proposition for a Congress on Thursday afternoon, and gave notice that Prince Bismarck was willing to preside. Austria, Russia, Turkey, and Italy have also accepted. It is certain the Congress will meet whether France and England accept or not.

A correspondent at Vienna asserts that Prince Bismarck and Prince Gortschakoff will propose at the Congress an Austrian occupation of Bosnia, and that Russia will propose that the Austrians shall participate in the second year's occupation of Bulgaria.

The visit of the Grand Duke Nicholas to the Sultan has been postponed in consequence of the difficulty in coming to an arrangement in regard to his military escort. Although the visit is now announced for Friday, nothing has been finally settled in regard to his escort or the Sultan's return visit.

A Gallipoli special reports that the Russians are actively constructing entrenchments from Kadikoi to Charkoi on the Sea of Marmora. They have now about 18,000 men, with cannon, in these lines, which confront the Turkish lines across the neck of the Gallipoli peninsula.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Gladstone and the Duke of Wellington in the Hands of the Mob.

Mr. Gladstone, the once popular leader of the English Parliament, has been hissed in the public streets, and, we hear, the windows of his house broken by an English mob, but who can tell how soon this same Gladstone may be again the favorite leader of the English people. The following about one of England's great men will be read with interest at this time:

"When the Duke of Wellington returned to England after his brilliant campaigns, crowned with the Battle of Waterloo, he was cheered by the people wherever he went, and lauded to the skies. Afterward, at the period of the Reform Bill, in 1832, the people forgot all his services, and constantly hooted him in the streets. One day coming from the Tower on horseback, the mob attacked him with so much virulence and malice that he was exposed to considerable personal danger in the streets. At a ball given by him at Apsley House to King William IV. and his queen, the mob were very unruly and indecent in their conduct at the gates; and on the following days they proceeded to such excesses that they broke the windows of Apsley House and did much injury to his property. It was then that he caused to be put up those iron blinds to his windows which remain to this day as a record of the people's ingratitude. Some time afterward, when he had regained all his popularity, and began to enjoy that great and high reputation which he carried to the grave, he was riding up Constitution Hill, in the Park, followed by an immense mob, who were cheering him in every direction. He heard it all with the most stoical indifference, never putting his horse out of a walk, or seeming to regard them, till he leisurely arrived at Apsley House, when he stopped at the gate, turned round to the rabble, and then pointing with his finger to the iron blinds which still closed the windows, he made them a sarcastic bow, without saying a word."

It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. The Evening Mercury

FRIDAY EVEN'G, MARCH. 8, 1878.

The Ontario Legislature.

The third session of the third Ontario Legislature came to a close on Thursday after about two months work. The Government did not promise much legislation at the opening of the Session, but they did more than was expected of them, and they have so managed the work of the session, and brought it to such a successful conclusion, as to raise them much higher in the estimation of the people than at any previous period of their administration. In fact, so conscientious has the Ontario Government been in the discharge of their duties, that during the whole Session the Opposition could scarcely detect a single flaw in their management of public affairs, and though at different times they tried to make exception to this or that measure it was so weak and ineffectual as to be scarcely worth answering. The Government by its management of the public business during the past year has greatly strengthened their position in Ontario, and the Opposition, instead of presenting a united front, are disjointed, dispirited and downcast. They feel that they have lost in strength and prestige, and their frantic efforts to excite attention, and their attempts to carry out their own views only excited the derision of the people.

During the session the Government has done a good deal of important and honest work. They were able to bring down a copy of the Consolidated Statutes of the Province, they were able to pass a Landlord and Tenant Act, a Joint Stock Companies Act, and a Civil Service Act. With the exception of the first the others were passed. A very important measure for the preservation of the forests from destruction by fire, for the appointment of a Police Magistrate in rural districts for the trial of liquor and other cases, for the finality of voters lists for election purposes, for Union School Sections, for the registration of railway aid scrip, for the issue of Government loans for tile draining purposes, and to amend the license law, and grant aid to certain railways.

The Opposition threatened formidable things in the early part of the session but their attacks never amounted to anything. The Central Prison—a fertile subject of complaint in old days—was lightly passed over. A formidable attack on the Agricultural College was threatened, but these threats died away in nothing. The Opposition suddenly changed their base of attack. From being bitter enemies of the institution they became its professed friends, they openly expressed their faith in its future, and they stated their intention to support it in all needful expenditure.

The Opposition were not a whit more successful in their assaults on other measures. It has been for them the worst session that they have passed through since a Reform Government came into power, and to-day they stand far lower in the estimation of the people of Ontario than they ever did before. Mr. Cameron has been proved a failure; Mr. Macdougall nobody trusts, and the blatant Lauder is as much a nuisance to his own friends as he is to the Government and their supporters. On the other hand the Government have gained immensely in popular favor, and to-day occupy a stronger position in Ontario than they did at any previous period.

As to the late Session we find that there were in all 28 divisions, only five of which were of a non-party character. Of the remaining 23, no less than four took place in connection with the Magistracy Bill, the votes standing 44 to 31, 47 to 31, 45 to 31, and 46 to 32 respectively. An amendment to the Tile Drainage Bill was voted down by 43 to 28, and the third reading was carried by 58 to 13. The School of Agriculture was honoured with three want of confidence motions, which were defeated by 45 to 30, 44 to 25, 45 to 28. The Central Prison served as a basis for two motions, the first of which was defeated by 47 to 31 and the second by 46 to 31. Two motions to curtail the appropriation for alcoholic liquors in the Lunatic Asylums were voted down by 41 to 39 and 42 to 37. An amendment proposed to the Voters' Lists Bill was lost by 44 to 27. The most accurate test of the strength of the parties, however, was afforded by the fate of what may fairly be termed the "omnibus" resolution of the leader of the Opposition, since it was avowedly a motion of want of confidence, and he had lugged into it, apparently, all the charges against the Government he could think of. This precious piece of verbiage was unceremoniously voted down by a majority of 46 to 27.

THE N. Y. Herald contains a sensational story about Mr. Delfosse, of Belgium, as third Commissioner on the fisheries question at Halifax; that he was appointed because he was friendly to Britain, and that this was the reason why a verdict favourable to that country was rendered. The Herald does not bring forward a syllable to substantiate its statement, and its objection must therefore be put down as entirely imaginary.

SIR JOHN for want of better argument keeps harking away on the old and now exploded charge of disloyalty against Mr. Jones. On Thursday he thought to make a little capital by reading a letter from Sir William Young and Judge Desbarres affirming that Mr. Jones in 1869 uttered the disloyal words attributed to him. But in reply Mr. Jones had the testimony of a score or more of the first citizens of Halifax asserting that his language bore very different and by no means disloyal construction. Not contented with what he had done, Sir John returned to the charge with testimony in Sir William Young's favour, and was met by the quotation from a portion of an old speech of Dr. Tupper's using language towards the Chief Justice that, if true, would discredit his testimony anywhere. After that the Opposition subsided, and it was well for them that they did so, as the testimony was all against them.

A. Ste. Scholastique telegram says that Mr. Lindrouin, the father of the child with two heads, refused $25,000 on Wednesday from two parties from New York who went there to secure it for five years.

John Elliott, lot 11, 3rd concession of Esquesing, had his barn and stables destroyed by fire a few days ago. Loss, about $2,000 It is supposed the fire originated from a lantern, which was usen in the barn a short time before the fire was discovered.

Ontario Legislature.

TORONTO Mar. 6.

Mr. Wood moved that the House resolve into a Committee of Supply on the Supplementary Estimates.

Mr. Cameron had from time to time to complain against the manner in which the present Government interfered with the public purse contrary to constitutional law. Prof. McCandless had been given, without the sanction of the House, $1,500; $5,000 were expended on the Agricultural College in 1874 without authority; $1,000 on the pamphlet for the Sydney Exhibition. Public works had been let without tender, and now they were told that there would be a deficit this year. The result of deficits would at first lead to inroads on the surplus accumulated by the economy of John Sandfield Macdonald; and lastly to direct taxation. He concluded by moving the following amendment:—

"That all after the word 'that' to the end of the motion be left out, and the following substituted therefor: 'an humble address be presented to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, representing that in the year 1874 the then Treasurer of the Province, now Minister of Education, authorized an overdraft of the account of the Province with the Bank of Commerce in respect to the Agricultural College at Guelph, without the constitutional sanction of an Order in Council or warrant of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, for the sum of $5 000, as appears by the statement of the present Treasurer and the Minister of Education, made in their places in this House; that the Treasurer also authorized and recommended the payment of the sum of $1,000, to be made to Messrs. Barber and Ellis on account of a certain pamphlet, after the Minister of Education, while Treasurer, at the last session of this House, had assured this House such payment should not be made; that the Hon. Attorney-General, [in the said year 1874, authorized the payment of the sum of $1,500 by way of gratuity to Prof. McCandless, of the said Agricultural College at Guelph, without the authority of an Order in Council, or the warrant of His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, thereby setting aside the checks and safeguards that have surrounded and protected the public money, and its unauthorized application; that His Honor's advisers have, at different times, in defiance of the Act respecting Public Works, carried on extensive Public Works without inviting tenders by public advertisements; among others the following works:—Extensive alterations and additions to the Central Prison, the Agricultural College at Guelph, the Asylum at Hamilton, the fence around the Legislative Assembly and Departmental Buildings, and other works involving the expenditure of large sums; that under the administration of the present Government the ordinary expenditure has been largely in excess of the expenditure of their predecessors in office—the amount of expenditure for the year 1871 having been $1,386,246, while in 1877 the expenditure amounted to $2,017,438, or an excess of $631,192; that the expenditure in respect of Public Works under the administration of the Honourable John Sandfield Macdonald amounted to $1,212,771, or an average of $303 192, while for the six years ending in December, 1877, the expenditure was only $2,025,413, or an average of $337,562, not warranting the present staff and cost of the Public Works Department; and from the Treasurer's financial statements it appears the revenue of the year 1878 will be less than the estimated expenditure, leaving a deficiency to be made good by the sale or disposal of the securities held by the Province in respect of investments made by their predecessors in office; that the revenue of the Province is in part fixed, the remainder being liable to fluctuate, will diminish and is not likely to increase; that the result of expenditure over revenue, if persisted in, will lead in time to direct taxation, a consequence calculated to prove most detrimental to the public good, and the present Administration not having taken measures to confine their estimated expenditure within the annual revenue, this House would be failing in its duty if it did not express its disapprobation of the course pursued by His Honor's advisers in respect of the several matters hereinafter set forth, and that His Honor would be graciously pleased to reconsider the estimates he has recommended for the approval and sanction of this House, with a view to confining the estimated expenditure within the estimated revenue for the present year.

Mr. Fraser said it would only be necessary to say that the amendment was a direct vote of want of confidence in the Government. Whenever the Reform party were in opposition they always notified the Government of their intention to make such a motion; but such was not the course of the Opposition to-day. (Cheers.) The amendment was but a lawyers brief, intended to be printed at the expense of the Province; but both the House and the country would treat it as it deserved. (Cheers.) Upon that record the hon. gentlemen went to the country three years ago, and they were not sustained. No doubt the hon. leader of the Opposition had been occupying the whole of his spare hours during the season in preparing this statement, based upon the charges he had so frequently made; and as the Opposition organs had not printed the statements satisfactorily, it was to be done at the expense of the Province. (Cheers.) He contended that the Reform Government since it came into power had properly distributed and expended the people's money. He concluded by denying that any part of the work for the Hamilton Asylum had been let without public tenders. (Cheers.)

Mr. Macdougall (Simcoe) made a violent attack upon the Government of Ontario and also upon the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec. The refrain of his speech was that the present Ontario Government had mismanaged the finances of the Provinces in such a manner that this year there was a deficit of $140,000. (Opposition cheers.)

Mr. Currie said that the hon. member for East Toronto desired the Lieutenant-Governor to permit the House to reconsider the Estimates. He read the following figures, showing the amounts asked for in the Estimates, and the amounts objected to by the Opposition since 1872:—In 1872 the Government asked for $2,602,000, and the Opposition objected to the paltry sum of $5,000; in 1873 $2,986,000 was asked for, and $15,000 objected to; in 1874 $2,612,000 was asked for, and $24,000 objected to; in 1875, $2,225,000 was asked for, and $12,058 objected to; in 1876 $2,337,000 was asked for, and $16,690 objected to; in 1877 $2,600,000 was asked for, and $14,548 objected to; and in 1878 the proportion was similar. During the whole seven years the House granted upwards of $47,000,000 for the public expenses of the Province, and the Opposition objected to the comparatively paltry sum of $180,000. (Cheers). This showed the true spirit of economy displayed by hon gentlemen opposite. He concluded by pronouncing a warm eulogy on the character and ability of the Commissioner of Public Works (Mr. Fraser).

After a few remarks by Mr. Scott, the amendment was then put and lost on the following division:—

YEAS.—Baker, Barr, Bell, Boulter, Broder, Calvin, Cameron, Code, Coutts, Creighton, Deacon, Flesher, Grange, Harkin, Kean, Lauder, Long, McDougall (Middlesex), Macdougall (Simcoe), McGowan, Merrick, Monk, Patterson (Essex), Preston, Richardson, Scott, Tooley—27.

NAYS — Appleby, Ballantyne, Baxter, Bethune, Bonfield, Chisholm, Clarke (Wellington), Cole, Currie, Dawson, Deroche, Ferrie, Finlayson, Fraser, Gibson, Graham, Grange, Grant, Hardy, Hargraft, Hay, Hodgins, Hunter, Lane, Lyon, McCraney, McMahon, Massie, Miller, Mowat, O'Donoghue, Pardee, Patterson (York), Paxton, Robinson, Ross, Sexton, Sinclair, Snetsinger, Springer, Striker, Watterworth, Widdifield, Williams, Wilson, Wood—46.

Before the House went into Committee, Mr. Fraser replied to an attack made upon him by the hon. member for South Simcoe in the course of his speech. It was not for that hon. gentleman to charge the Government side of the House with disorganization. They were not so disorganized that their leader deserted them in the midst of a session, and they were not so well drilled that at the tinkle of a bell they could march out of the House in a body. (Loud cheers.) The hon. gentleman talked of appealing to the country—of appealing to the people. What country and what people would he appeal to? (Cheers and laughter.) He was unable to be elected for a single constituency in this Province unless by the endorsation of the hon. gentleman (Mr. Cameron) who sat beside him. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) He ventured to say that although the hon. member had been elected for South Simcoe he would not be elected again unless he went on his knees and declared himself to be a member in good standing. But a little bird had whispered that he was not going to attempt to get a seat in this House again, because affairs here did not exactly run as he wished them; he was going to seek "fresh fields and pastures new." (Cheers and laughter.) When he (Mr. Fraser) appealed to his constituents, they had no difficulty in ascertaining on what side to find him. The greeds of office had not led him to abandon one party after the other. He defied the hon. gentleman to point to one instance in which he had violated his political principles. (Loud cheers.)

The Prorogation.

March 7.

At three o'clock, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor left the Government House and proceeded to the Parliament Buildings, to prorogue the House.

Being seated on the throne, His Honor was pleased, in Her Majesty's name, to assent to the Bills passed during the session. The following are among the most important:—

An Act respecting certain dams on Black Creek.

An Act to incorporate the town of Harriston.

An Act to incorporate the Arthur Junction Railway Company.

An Act to incorporate the Western University of London, Ont.

An Act to incorporate the Georgian Bay and Wellington Railway Company.

An Act to amend the several Acts relating to the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway Company.

An Act to enable the county of Bruce to assume the railway debts of certain municipalities in the said county, and to enable said county to provide for the payment of the same.

An Act to incorporate the Saugeen Valley Railway Company.

An Act to incorporate the Brant Memorial Association.

An Act respecting the Galt and Guelph Railway Company.

An Act respecting the Stratford and Huron Railway Company.

An Act respecting the Credit Valley Railway Company.

An Act respecting the Public Service of Ontario.

An Act respecting the winding up of Joint Stock Companies.

An Act to confirm the Revised Statutes of Ontario.

An Act to provide for employing persons without the walls of common gaols.

An Act to amend the law for the protection of game and fur-bearing animals.

An Act to amend the Mechanics' Liens Act.

An Act for the protection of Insectivorous and other Birds beneficial to Agriculture.

An Act to amend the law respecting High Schools.

An Act to preserve the Forest from destruction by fire.

An Act respecting the Magistracy.

An Act to amend the Assessment Act.

An Act to give finality to Voters' Lists, and for other purposes.

An Act respecting Union School Sections.

An Act to amend the License Act and for other purposes.

The Lieut.-Governor was then pleased to deliver the following speech:—

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

In relieving you from your labors at the close of the Session, it affords me much gratification to acknowledge the diligence which you have manifested in the discharge of your important duties and the care and deliberation which you have bestowed upon the various measures which have been laid before you.

I learn with pleasure that nearly all the measures which I recommended for your consideration have received your approval, and it may be reasonably hoped that your labors will result in the increased prosperity and well-being of the Province.

The Act authorizing loans to be made to township municipalities at a low rate of interest, to be applied for the purposes of tile drainage, cannot fail to be of great advantage to the agricultural interests of the Province.

I notice with satisfaction that you have framed a measure designed to regulate the public service of the Province, and to place it on a permanent and satisfactory basis.

I am pleased to perceive that in view of the great destruction by fire of our valuable forests of timber in the past, a stringent measure has been enacted to prevent, as far as possible, the recurrence of such fires in the time to come.

I have no doubt that the measure to give finality to voters' lists, to which you have given your attention, will result in the avoidance of much litigation in the Election Courts, and in diminishing the expense and labour attendant upon contested elections.

It is gratifying to observe that while the finances of the Province have permitted you to grant such aid to the several railway enterprises whose claims you have had occasion to consider as may ensure their completion, yet that aid has been extended to but a limited number of companies, and your action in that respect has been in the spirit of that special caution which I suggested at the opening of the session.

I cheerfully assent to the liberal appropriation which you have made for completing the extended asylum accommodation commenced during the past year, and it is a source of great gratification to me to know that the finances of the Province continue to permit increased provision to be made for those of our population who are unfortunately afflicted with insanity or idiocy.

I congratulate you on having adopted important measures respecting the Magistracy—for perfecting the working of the License Law—and for providing a simple machinery for winding-up Joint Stock Companies when such a proceeding becomes necessary.

I thank you for the supplies which you have granted for the Public Service. They shall be expended with due regard to efficiency and economy.

HAROLD THE OUTLAW
—OR—
The Gauger of Skene.

"You had, I freely admit it. I was foolish, wicked, mad enough to make a compact with him, of which you are the victim, and for which a gnawing remorse has since been my daily, hourly companion. And how has he recompensed me? His purpose being served, he repudiated our agreement, refuses to give me that for which I sold my honor—taunts, mocks, defies me. I tell you, Harold, when I parted from him yesterday I was within a hair's-breadth of riding to Aberdeen to make a clean breast of it."

"Ah! his selfishness has led him to cast off unpaid the tool which proved so serviceable to him," said Harold, in a tone of contempt. "Then," he suddenly added, "if you be so, you cannot scruple to atone as far as you can for this last outrage. You can do that without compromising yourself. Refuse, and you give the lie to what you have now spoken—refuse, and you seal your earthly doom."

"On my honor, I know nothing——"

"Your honor!" burst in Harold, with a laugh of scornful incredulity.

"On my soul, then—on my very life, I know nothing of what you really mean. Tell me calmly what it is you think I have done."

"You have consummated you sacrifice of soul and body to that fiend, my brother, by carrying away my wife and child from the seclusion in which I kept them. How he and you came to know of their existence I cannot divine, unless the devil, whom you both serve, helped you to the knowledge. But I ask not how you discovered my secret. I am here to demand one thing only—where are they? that I may find them. I have, as you may see, risked all on this, and quit not this chamber, leaving you alive, unless I receive the information."

The ganger, who had listened with an air of interest and amazement which no human being could possibly feign, drew his stout form up to its full proportions, raised his right hand as a person does who takes an oath in a Court of Justice, and, gazing full on his visitor's face with an unquailing eye, thus spoke, solemnly and deliberately—

"As there is a God above us, Harold Logan, I declare to you that I know nothing of this. Till the present moment I was ignorant that you had a wife and child. Disbelieve my asseveration if you will. I know what little cause you have to put faith in my word—ay, my sworn word—disbelieve me, then, and kill me, as you have threatened. I only wish I could pass to the bar of Heaven with a conscience as clear in all else as I am in this, or that in suffering death for a wrong of which I am innocent I could atone for the wrong I formerly committed."

Falsehood can simulate truth and deceive the most skilful, but truth itself has a genuine ring—an air and aspect of reality which forces conviction on any mind which is itself naturally noble and truthful. As Harold Logan looked at and listened to Gillespie when he spoke thus he was staggered in the belief which had brought him to Skene, but no sooner did the rooted conviction begin to loosen in his soul than a horror of anguish and despair crept in upon him. If Gillespie spoke the truth, his hope—and the desperate resolve born of it—of recovering Lizzie and his boy was shattered. Their disappearance was an unfathomable mystery; their fate an overwhelming dread.

Harold gazed for a minute at Gillespie like a man in a dream. The hard-set, iron sternness of his aspect thawed like frost before a southern wind; the blood forsook his face, strength ebbed from his frame, the hand which held the pistol dropped by his side, and he sank into the nearest seat ghastly, helpless, and despairing.

"Oh, God," he groaned, "is this hope gone from me. My poor lost darlings, what has become of you—where shall I find you? My brain reels—am I going mad? or—or ——"

His eyes rolled wildly, he gasped for breath, madness did, indeed, seem to be at hand, but the floodgates of grief opened, and saved him from that fiery waste. He—the strong stalwart man—dropped feebly in his seat till his face rested on his knees, when he burst into tears, and sobbed and wept with uncontrollable vehemence.

The sight of his sorrow had a powerful effect on Gillespie. It roused up all the feelings of his better nature, and made him pitiful, tender, compassionate. He came round the table, and laid his hand gently on the shoulder of the weeping youth.

"Mr. Logan," he said, in a voice husky and faltering with emotion. "Mr. Logan, don't give way like that. Tell me more of what has happened, and if I can aid you I'll do it at whatever risk of sacrifice. Yes, by heaven I'll make expiation for the past, let the cost be what it may. I am not all bad, sir, I was seduced—tempted, and fell; but you don't know how I have loathed my existence since—if you did, even your hard and bitter thoughts would soften towards me. But I beseech you to trust me now, and tell me all this trouble."

"Listen, then," cried Harold, impulsively, as he raised his head and dashed the tears away. "Listen and I will tell you all. It can do no injury now, even though you wish to make a treacherous use of my information. I was privately married more than two years ago. I concealed it from my family. My wife has been living all the time in a secluded cottage at the head of Glenroy. Nearly two years ago a child—a boy—was born to us. Though I have been made an outlaw, he is heir to Mount Cairn. A week ago my wife and child disappeared. Search was made for them everywhere, but in vain. I knew of it only last night, and the moment the news reached me I concluded that Gilmour had in some way discovered the existence of a life which would cut him out of the inheritance which he has plotted so diabolically to obtain, and that he had employed you to carry off both mother and child. Never doubting that this was the truth I set off instantly from my hiding place among the mountains, resolved to wring from you information of where you had taken them. You tell me you are utterly ignorant of the matter. I am forced to believe you, but judge of the despair into which I am thereby plundged. All is now darkness and mystery—the fate of those I love dearer than life is unknown. I made myself so sure of you being the abductor that your assurance to the contrary overwhelms me. Oh, my Lizzie, my boy, what—what has become of you?"

Book Notices.

The March-April number of the International Review (A. S. Barnes & Co., publishers, New York and Chicago) opens with the Confederate Reminiscences of Alexander H. Stephens, who here furnishes to the public many facts of great interest. He combats the recently published statements of Gen. Richard Taylor. In his second article Hon. David A. Wells presents a valuable review of the Elements of National Wealth, including the annual incomes and savings of the principal nations of the world. Will T. Prichard, F.R.S., F.A.S.L., long a resident of Mexico, treats the Mexican Question under the title of the "Mexico of the Mexicans," commenting on the policy of the United States. A fascinating account of the public account of the public and private lives of some famed and learned women of Bologna is given by Madame Villari of Italy, wife of Prof. Villari, who was Minister of Public Instruction under Victor Emmanuel. This is Madame Villari's first appearance in an American periodical. The all-absorbing topic of the Method of Electing the President, past and future, is ably discussed from the judicial and political stand-points by Judge Thomas M. Cooley of Michigan and Hon. Abram Hewitt of New York. Other articles are by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Osgood on Modern Love; Gen. de Peyster (of New York) on New York and its History; Prof. A. P. Peabody, D.D., L.L.D., of Harvard College, on the Relation of Morality to Religion, including the modern symposium; Baron F. Von Holtzendoff, the well-known German jurist, on Imperial Federalism in Germany. Silver in Art is appropriately described by E. C. Taylor of New York. The department of Contemporary Literature embraces recent important English, German, French and American books by eminent foreign and American reviewers. The Review may be had of all newsdealers by single copies or by the year.

"PATERSON'S SCOTTISH ALMANAC," for 1878, can be procured at Anderson's cheap bookstore at 40 cents, mailed post paid to any address. The contents have been arranged with a carefully prepared index in a way most suitable for examination. Among the leading features of the Almanac may be noted Daily Tide Tables for the seven principal British ports, information concerning the Royal Family, Departments of the State, Imperial Parliament, Army and Navy, with details of expenditure on these forces; Militia, yeomanry, volunteers, localization and mobilization scheme. Scottish Peers, Baronets, and Knights. Government Offices in Scotland, with details of Expenditure and Abstract of Government Report on each department. Details of Civil Service Expenditure. Information concerning the Law, the Church, Commerce, Agriculture, List of Ministers, Fast Days, Fairs, Commercial Summary for the year. Statistical information, Table of Stamp Duties, &c., &c.

The Evening Mercury

LATEST FROM GREECE.

LONDON, March 9.—An Athens despatch says the Turks are bombarding the town of Bygoursi, in Epirus, another district in Thessaly revolted.

SERENADE. — The croaking bull-frogs along the river last night reminded many that winter had lost its icy grip.

TO-DAY'S weather probs. are moderate to fresh, south-easterly to north-westerly winds, increasing cloudiness, and rain to-morrow.

MUSICAL UNION.—Each member of the Musical Union is requested to secure, before next rehearsal, a copy of "Day of Gladness," which may be had at Pringle's jewelry store.

F. J. Drew, being about to remove to Wyndham street, will clear out his stock on hand of canned goods, oysters, and fish for five days only—commencing to day. Give him a call to-night.

IT was with regret that many in town heard this (Saturday) morning that the Whitelaw mills, at Paris, had been closed. Financial difficulties the cause.

PLOWING at Paisley Block to-day. The land was in good condition for work. A farmer in the outskirts of Guelph, is also engaged at the same occupation. This is the 9th of March.

STRIPPED.—Two clothes lines on Ontario street, in the East Ward, were stripped on Friday night. A number of sneak thieves must be in town, and it would be wisdom for all house-keepers to leave their clothes line clear at night.

A HORSE which was waiting to be shod this morning in Hooper's blacksmith shop got restless and tried to bolt through the window. Several panes of glass were broken, but the animal did not succeed in the attempt.

SPECIAL ATTENTION.—We direct special notice to the announcement of the arrival from the old country of new spring goods for the Lion. Messrs. Williamson have also made a lucky hit in purchasing a large stock of cottons at the auction sale lately held at the Cornwall mills. Read their advertisement.

DREADFULLY BURNED.—On Friday a Mrs. Watson, of the Township of Nichol, accidently set fire to her clothes, and before they were extinguished her arms and body were burned to a dreadful extent. She was conveyed to the Guelph General Hospital on the order of Warden Kew. There is little prospect of her recovery.

SOUP KITCHEN.—The soup kitchen is still in full blast, and many poor people are thankful that such is the case. A dropping off in tramps is noticeable. The general public has been very liberal throughout the entire winter, and many families have done noble deeds by supplying vegetables and bread. The noble wives of two farmers—the names could not be obtained—lately sent in two bags of excellent bread, as a donation. Mr. George Lees has been particularly generous with excellent pork cuttings.

COLLERY EXPLOSION NEAR GLASGOW.—A colliery explosion occurred on Friday near Glasgow. Twelve miners have been rescued, and seventeen are still in the pit, but it is not expected they will be alive when reached. The rescuers have thus far been prevented from reaching them because of frequent explosions. Later At a late hour last night the Glasgow colliers were still entombed, and there was no hope of rescuing any of them.

The Roman Catholics of Macton, near Glenallan, have decided to erect a brick church, 40x80. Joseph Congdon, Listowel, has the contract for $4,156.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provide our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage wich may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London. Sept. 28. d&w 9m

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

THE Fergus St. Patrick's Society will celebrate "the day" on Monday, the 18th, by a dinner at the Dominion Hotel.

POOR HOUSE.—Rev. E. Kershaw and Joseph Carder, on behalf of the Elora Bible Society, have donated a dozen Bibles to the County House of Industry.

EARLY.—Major Armstrong was surprised this morning on examining a Clinton grape vine in his garden to find that buds had shot out to the extent of some three inches. This for the 9th of March is truly surprising.

"THE Inconsistency of Moderate Drinking" will be the subject of Mr. McConkey's remarks at the Town Hall to-night. He is a clear speaker and bases his arguments on facts, and recites some melancholy episodes in connection with his own career as a drunkard.

ISAAC MODELAND, proprietor of the Irvine Foundry, Elora, for the past thirteen years, has made arrangements to have A. Filshie take possession on the first of June. Mr. Filshie has leased the premises for a period of nine years, paying an annual rental of six hundred dollars.

SOCIAL.—The Farmer's Home lodge of I.O. G. T. held a social in School Section 6, Guelph Township, on Friday evening. During the evening songs, recitations, and readings were given in an excellent style by members. A good attendance was present, and all seemed to enjoy the entertainment.

RECOVERING.—The young man Edward Hance who was injured on Wednesday evening last by falling off a freight car on the Grand Trunk, and who is now at St. Joseph's Hospital, is in a fair way of recovery. The mother of the young man hates that the rumour that he was subject to epileptic fits is incorrect—that she has never known him to take fits of any kind, other than a faint some years ago when he was ill through weakness.

THE Independent Order of Good Templars held a debate on Thursday evening in their Hall, Puslinch. The subject for debate was "Whether love or hatred was the stronger passion." Some strong arguments were advanced by speakers on both sides. After having summed up the arguments the Worthy Chief gave his decision in favor of the affirmative.

CANTATA.—It is understood that the Musical Union will take up for their approaching concert the "Cantata of Belshazzar" by J. A. Butterfield. The American press speaks in the highest terms of it as a work of art, far superior to "Esther" in regard to music and dramatic power,—and approaching closely to some of the more classical works of Mendelssohn and other great composers. A sketch of the scenery and incidents was given in this paper some months ago. No doubt the work will prove highly interesting to the singers.

FOREIGN MARKETS.—The flour market has had a downward tendency, and a late drop has not been at all favorable to some buyers. "Pork is worth nothing" for shipment, was remarked to-day by one dealer. The crop has been unusually large, and farmers have realized from dealers more than the latter could sell at. So dealers have expressed themselves. One extensive packer stated this (Saturday) morning, that there was no doubt in his mind that Chicago mess pork could be purchased for the first of June at $8 per barrel, or at two and a half cents per lb.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.—This Association met on Friday evening in the Church. The debate on "Whether is the Mechanic or the Farmer the most useful," resulted in a discussion given in favor of the former. The next meeting of the Association will be held in the Church on Tuesday evening. On the 29th instant a lecture will be delivered in the Church, under the auspices of the Association, by the Rev. Wm. Milligan, of Old St. Andrew's Church, Toronto.

THE LAW OF LIBEL.—Mr. Hutchinson has brought in a bill to amend the law of libel, which proposes to enact that in any action against a newspaper for an alleged libel contained in a report of a public meeting of a representative character, "held in compliance with any act of Parliament, or convened by the Lord Lieutenant, Deputy-Lieutenant or Sheriff of any county, or by the Mayor or other Chief Magistrate for the time being of any city, town or borough," proof that such report was published in a public newspaper bona fide, without actual malice, and in the ordinary course of business, shall be a good defence unless the defendant had declined to publish an explanation or contradistion of the alleged libel not being of unreasonable length and not containing libellous matter. A person defamed at a public meeting of which a report is published by the person who shall have spoken the same." The bill also provides, among other things, that no proprietor of a newspaper is to be liable to a criminal prosecution for the publication in his newspaper of an alleged libel, unless he is himself the author joint author, or writer of the libel, or unless he saw, or had an opportunity of seeing it previous to its publication, or unless he refuses to give the name of the author, or unless he refuses to publish in a mode as conspicuous as that in which the alleged libel was published an explanation or contradiction, not being of unreasonable length.

There are no less than twenty farmers in Gaafraxa contemplating removal to Manitoba this spring.

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday evening as the 4:45 express going east, on the Grand Trunk, was coming into the passenger station, Mr. Florance Briscoll, of Pilkington, was knocked down by a horse and bruised considerably. He had been standing in the door of a freight car, and on hearing the approaching train jumped down and seized the bridle of his horses. He was standing at one side of the pole, so as to avoid being caught by it if the horses started off, and was directly in front of one of the animals. The animal reared up and struck him on the head with its fore feet. The horses ran a short distance, and as soon as they had passed by him he caught hold of a post, where he remained until a cab was procured. He was taken in an unsensible condition to Dr. Harkin's surgery, where, on inspection it was found that the fore part of the top of the head had been cut by the horse's shoe. He received other injuries on the body. Briscoll passed a very uneasy night, but is considerably better this morning.

EXPRESS PARCELS.—An auction sale of unclaimed express parcels has always been characterized as a sale possessing many laughable phases, as the purchaser in reality buys a "pig in a poke." Last evening the unclaimed packages at the Guelph office were sold at Goulding & Henry's auction rooms. The crowd was large and the bidding was spirited throughout. Talk of the mania for taking another chance after having lost at a faro table, when the veins on the forehead of a green gambler stand out on his forehead like whip-cord, but it is only akin to one who has purchased at an auction of express goods and finds himself sold. Some obtain extraordinary bargains—paying thirty or forty cents for articles worth half the figure in dollars, and others paying dollars when the articles are only worth as many cents. This was the case last evening. One bought a parcel which contained an excellent coat and only paid a few cents for it, and others also obtained goods perhaps not of any particular value to themselves—but withal valuable—for a mere song. Such urged others to bid, and one good sized parcel was bid up as high as $3.90. The feverish anxiety of the purchaser to open his prize was noticeable. A smile of exultation wreathed his countenance as the cord was untied, and wrapper after wrapper was unrolled. The prize was at last reached, and an exclamation more forcible than polite was breathed in an audible manner, when it was found that there was nothing contained therein excepting posters for a minstrel company. A young man quite willing to venture something had his bidding inclination suddenly checked after paying about $2 for a parcel that held nothing but a sample of a baker's bun. All the parcels were disposed off. There was excitement throughout tht entire sale.

KNOX CHURCH SOCIAL.—One of the most interesting socials held in Knox Church since its institution took place in the basement on Friday evening. There was a large attendance—much larger in fact than could have been reasonably expected by the most sanguine who were interested in the social. The ladies who had sole charge of the affair were Mesdames A. Wright, H. Walker, John Martin, W. Anderson, and while the congregation is to be congratulated on the extremely interesting proceedings, the ladies have reason to feel gratified at the result. Rev. Mr. Ball, pastor of the church, presided, and after a few happy remarks called upon the choir, who opened the meeting with an appropriate selection. During the evening the choir, Mr. H. Walker leader, were called upon several times. Mr. Robert Millar sang "Home and Mother," with Miss Bella Hood playing the accompaniment and assisting in the chorus. Mr. Wm. Anderson gave a reading with considerable effect, and Mr. B. Williamson displayed some dramatic power in a recitation. Unfortunately it could not be heard by those sitting at the back part of the room. Messrs. H. K. Maitland and H. Walker sang "The Larboard Watch,"—a duet that will never wear out, in a manner which every person can easily imagine when two such excellent singers are known to have rendered it. Messrs. John Crowe and Wm. H. Jones were particularly pleasing in the duet, "The Minute Gun at Sea." Mr. H. K. Maitland did full justice to the very sweet song "Ilka Blade o' Grass keps its ain drop o' Dew." Miss Mowat gave a very nice vocal selection. Mr. F. Cooke sang a song, in which he very sweetly expressed a strong desire to be a bride. When it is stated that the instrumental music was furnished by Mr. Wm. Philp and the Harris boys, it is sufficient, as all who have heard Mr. Philp and those two of his pupils will well understand what satisfactory strains would be drawn from the violin and organ. A well deserved rebuke was administered to parties who like so very much to beat time with their feet to instrumental music. Refreshments were passed round during the evening, and what is worthy of note—as it is not always done at "tea fights"—the brewing of the tea had been zealously looked after. Rev. J. C. Smith, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, made a few remarks, which elicited much merriment, but showed very clearly what an excellent feeling there was existing between the congregation of St. Andrew and that of Knox. Perhaps the most amusing portion of the programme was that filled by little Miss Bailey and Master Bailey. It was a dialogue entirely out of the usual line, and the children manifested a striking aptness for their positions. Singing by the choir and prayer by Rev. Mr. Smith terminated the proceedings shortly before eleven o'clock.

CANADA AND THE PARIS EXHIBITION.—The Prince of Wales, President of the Royal Commission of the Paris Exhibition transacted business on Thursday at the offices of the Commission in Paris. He considered with Hon. Mr. Mead and Sir John Rose further arrangements for the colonies generally and colonial trophies. The Prince examined in detail with the Commissioners the progress of the arrangement of the objects sent from Canada, and afterwards conferred with the Commissioners upon the arrangements in connection with the Dominion trophy, which will occupy the centre dome.

A grandson of Thos. Rutherford, of Galt, lost his life by a tree falling on him in the township of Egremont. The mother was present while the heavy tree was chopped off the poor little fellow's lifeless body.

O'Donovan Rossa.

Canada not to be Conquered—England to be the Base of Attack.

The Toronto Telegram on Friday published an interview with O'Donovan Rossa, the dynamite Fenian, at his office in New York. Rossa said that he had been invited to lecture in Toronto on the 18th, and proposed going. He intended to relate his experience in English prisons and to dwell on the wrongs of Ireland. He is to be paid his expenses and the balance will go to augment the "Skirmishing Fund." He described the skirmishing fund as a fund which had been subscribed to carry on the fight for Ireland against England in any locality where a fight can be fought. He had no idea of attacking Canada, and thought England would feel the weight of his hand were a blow struck at home. He declined to reveal the plan of his campaign, as the enemy would read it and frustrate it. The skirmishing fund amounts to $49,000. Contributions are received by every man. In answer as to how he was going to carry on the fight successfully with such a sum as that, he said he would not say; but it could be done. England will be made to screech. They would be called devils, but they would succeed. He could get a hundred men to go over with him, and for every dollar he had England would count her damage by thousands. He could do it. There was no use coming to Canada, as England cared nothing for that colony. Besides in Canada they had more freedom than he enjoyed in America. He had found more liberty in Montreal and Quebec than in New York, and he was not afraid of causing a riot in Toronto. If Orangemen pay their admission fee to the lecture and remain quiet there would be no difficulty, but if they disturb him it would warm the blood of his heart, and he would give them more than they bargained for. He proposed commencing his lecture by reading a portion of a speech on Irish grievances made by Lord Dufferin before he became Governor-General of Canada. It contained more treason than anything he could say, and when he pointed that out he thought quiet would be assured. He would then relate his own experience. He had been through twelve English prisons. His friends in Canada would like to hear that he had spent seven or eight years in prison. He was last seized in Dublin in 1865, and liberated in 1871. He was refractory, and they shifted him from one prison to another. He was in Pentonville, Portland, Millbank and Chatham. An investigation was made into the treatment of the Fenian prisoners, and the blue book report substantiated his statement. He was allowed his freedom on condition that he would not return to Great Britain for twenty years, and had resided since in New York. He was coming to Toronto on the invitation of D. Moriarty and Thomas Dulan, whom he termed National Irishmen. He did not know any Torontomans personally except Mr. Patrick Boyle, of the Irish Canadian, and he was lukewarm in the advocacy of his coming to Canada. He had a letter from Dulan strongly urging him to come to Toronto, but there were some whom Dulan termed weak-kneed, who thought his coming inadvisable. Dulan told him in a postscript that there was danger of his presence in Toronto creating trouble unless a war between England and Russia should be declared. In the meantime some people advised him against going to Toronto, but he didn't thank them for their advice. He had a bodyguard, and picked men would accompany him. Others said he would be arrested. He thought although an American citizen now, if arrested, the United States would be mean enough not to ask for his restoration, in which case his people would vote solid against the party in power. While he was being interviewed the postman brought in three letters, all containing contributions to the skirmishing fund—one enclosing a draft for $28.

The Montreal Witness speaking of the state of trade in that city says: Trade during the past week has, perhaps, on the whole, been a little better than during the weeks previous, but the volume of business done will certainly be smaller than during the same season of the past year. There has been no improvement worthy of special note in any department of trade, yet what business is being done is legitimate and safe, for while the volume of trade has been reduced, business is on a more satisfactory basis. The 4th of March, a day on which a large amount of paper matured, has passed with less disaster to the commercial community than had been expected.

FIRE IN GEORETOWN.—Between two and three o'clock this morning the foundry and machine shops owned by Mr. R. W. King, formerly of Georgetown, now of Mitchell, was totally destroyed by fire. No insurance The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Mr King was on the eve of removing to Georgetown to re-open the foundry, which has been for sometime idle. Loss, $2,500.

BOILER EXPLOSION AT NEWBURY.—The boiler in the new saw-mill belonging to Thomas Robinson exploded on Thursday morning with such violence as to shake the earth for miles around, shattering the building and machinery to fragments. Portions of the machinery were hurled a distance of two hundred yards. There were only two men in the mill at the time of the explosion, Alex. King, head sawyer, and George Harris, fireman. They were completely buried in the debris. When taken out they were in a mangled condition, and were thought to be dead, but medical aid being procured they rallied, but King had inhaled steam to such an extent that death put an end to his sufferings an hour from the time of the accident. Harris is gradually improving, and every hope of his recovery is entertained.

Navigation is fairly open at Owen Sound. Beautiful weather; no ice to be seen except a small quantity broken in the river. Georgian Bay and Lake Huron are pefectly free from ice.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Britain to Attend the Conference.

The Feeling in Austria.

BRITISH INTERESTS.

March 8th.

In the House of Commons Sir Stafford Northcote announced that England had accepted the invitation of Austria to attend the Conference, which will be held at Berlin. Lord Lyons, English Ambassador at Paris, has been selected as the Plenipotentiary. The date of the Conference is not yet fixed.

The Government has stated their opinion that not merely a part but the whole of the treaty between Russia and Turkey should be submitted to the Congress.

The British Government has taken measures to establish direct telegraphic communication with Besika Bay, by way of Alexandria.

England's delay in accepting the Congress results from taking time to consider purely formal points.

A Malta despatch says:—The Channel squadron is still here awaiting orders. The troop ship Euphrates, homeward bound with 1,068 soldiers, and the Serapis, outward bound with 29 officers, have also been detained since March the sixth. Four smaller men-of-war have gone to the Dardanelles and one to Crete.

A Paris despatch says:—It is regarded as certain that France will join the Conference.

Russia and Persia are reported as negotiating for an exchange of the district of Bayazid for a certain portion of Persian territory on the Capsian Sea.

A Vienna correspondent says he believes Count Andrassy has abandoned his intention of making the vote of credit by the delegations a Cabinet question, and wisely, for the project will encounter strong opposition. The majority of the Hungarian delegates thinks the credit is intended to be used for the occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which they consider only justifiable in the event that Servia or Montenegro raise pretentions to those Provinces.

A Vienna special says:—Russia suddenly seems to object to an Austrian occupation of Bosnia and the Herzegovina, and is preparing to assist the Turks to resist it.

A Berlin correspondent says:—This sensational news causes much comment, but it evidently requires confirmation.

A Pera letter to Colonge states that Suleiman Pasha has been drowned. His papers prove that he was contemplating a conspiracy for the overthrow of the Sultan.

An Athens despatch says:—By the advice of the foreign consuls the Cretan insurgents have accepted the armistice offered by the Turks.

Thessalian advices state that the insurgents hold all the Province except the towns.

A Test Case.

The Two-pound Per Cwt. Hog Deduction.

A somewhat interesting case was tried at the Galt Division Court last week. The Reporter gives the following account:—Some time ago Mr. S. C. Livett bought some hogs from Mr. Hugh Macdonald, and in paying for them deducted from the scale weight two pounds per 100 lbs., which buyers contend is the allowance to be deducted to protect them from loss on account of shrinkage in weight. Macdonald objected to this deduction and entered a suit to recover the price of the weight deducted.

A number of dealers were subpœned as witnesses by Mr. Livett, and the case attracted a considerable amount of attention. Of course the amount in dispute is small, but the question to be decided is—are buyers right or wrong in making the deductions they do? It is a general practice with dealers, and it is well to get a decision in our Courts.

When the case came before the Judge, that gentleman decided that the defendant was bound to pay plaintiff for the full amount of pork purchased from him, and declined to allow witnesses to be called to prove what was the custom of the trade. Verdict accordingly for plaintiff.

The Richest Man in the World.

If money be power, says the Whitehall Review, what a force is S. W. Mackay, who thirty years ago was a penniless boy in Ireland. Twenty years ago he travelled through the United States as a speculative salesman, and sixteen years ago was a bankrupt. To-day, at the age of 45, Mr. Mackay owns the mines of the great Bonanza, the richest silver mine that has ever been discovered, and draws out of Nevada a yearly income of £2,750,000, which is at the rate of 5 per cent. on a capital of $55,000,000 Though comparisons are odious, it is curious to note the difference in the income of the four richest men on earth, in pounds sterling:—

	Duke of Westminster.	Jones of Nevada.	Rothschild.	Mackay.
Capital.	16,000,000	20,000,000	40,000,000	55,000,000
Per year	800,000	1,000,000	2,000,000	2,750,000
Per month	60,000	80,000	170,000	200,000
Per day	2,000	3,000	5,000	7,000
Per hour	60	120	200	300
Per minute	1.10	2	3.68	5

Mr. Mackay's fortune increases £5 every minute. The question is what will he do with it? Or, perhaps, it will be more cautious to ask, what will it do with him? Fortunes in the far west often vanish as rapidly as they are acquired. Mr. Mackay has a magnificent hotel in Prris, where his family resides, and he passes most of his time in the neighborhood of his vast interests. Mr. and Mrs. Mackay pass the summer at Trouville, in the charming Villa Cordier, which stands on the hill above the town and overlooks the sea.

CHEAP SILKS.—J. D. Williamson & Co. have just received a new lot of those cheap striped grey silks—so much sought after. Patterns choice. Price lower than ever. Ladies will do well to call at the Lion.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

Opening of the Cold Water Campaign.

Address by Mr. McConkey.

Since the defeat of the Dunkin Bill in November last, the temperance community of Guelph has evidently been backward in their endeavors to obtain lecturers to keep up the interest manifested here last summer. The crowd last night at the old Town Hall, to hear a new aspirant from Toronto, in the person of Mr. McConkey, was not a very large one. At the commencement of the proceedings of the meeting the hall was about half full, but during the course of the lecture parties kept continually pouring in, and at the terminus of the speaker's remarks the room was comfortably filled.

In the absence of the President of the Guelph Christian Temperance Club, Mr. E. Mitchell occupied the chair, and in a few remarks introduced the lecturer, and expressed his regret at the small attendance, and said in all probability this was owing to the numerous other meetings being held in town. He hoped the lecturer would be greeted with a larger audience on Saturday evening.

Mr. McConkey commenced by saying he was knocked down by whiskey, and had experienced the evil effects of it to as great an extent as any man could fully endure. He did not come there with flowing eloquence, but merely to state facts in connection with what he had seen and suffered through the cursed drink. Explanations were made as to how he became a total abstainer, and in the course of which he stated that he had been through the mill in all its worst dissipation and wretchedness. During his drinking career he was in the habit of going out of the city in which he resided and visiting the various saloons in the country villages, and would think nothing of spending from $8 to $10 per day for liquor, including a treat to the hangers-on, of which there were not a few, and entirely neglecting his business. On one occasion he attempted to reclaim himself from the evil effects of the liquor, and thereupon locked himself in a room, but the maddening thirst for that disdainful beverage thrilled over him again to such an extent that he could not resist the temptation. Consequently he wrenched the lock from the door of the room he had confined himself in, and partook of a glass or two of liquor. In a short space of time he became a reformed man, and visited Newmarket, at which place he had spoken to the villagers, and intended only to remain three days, but owing to the good work he had accomplished, strong invitations were solicited for him to prolong his visit, and he remained ten days. Half of the population, amongst whom were a number of moderate drinkers, had signed the pledge during his stay in Newmarket. The ministers had congratulated and pointed out to him the good results he had effected. He had never known the taste of strong drink until he was twenty years of age. He then commenced to associate with fast or fashionable company, and every hour of the day, whilst in the city, a trap was laid for him, and occasionally he was found wallowing in the gutter. It was the fashionable society and a social glass that first commenced with his depravity of life, and weeks and months had he continued in a dissipated condition. He had plenty of money. Many a young man, now a-days, grumbles because he has not enough to spend in strong drink. Time rolled on, and this terrible serpent was winding his coil around him. He was like as it were chained to the demon drink. Some people resorted to the morning glass, and those class of the community were generally confirmed drunkards, but they were not aware of the fact. Others would look to the mirror, and noticed that they were in a trembling condition, and would consequently taper off a little from the liquor. The lecturer spoke of his position in life and the wealth he had accumulated, and mentioned a narrative of how his home was broken up, and was obliged to sell out to seek another field of labor. He would not be harsh towards the rum-seller, as there were respectable men in the business. There was not, however, one man in five hundred that had been through what he had in his station of life. He had been one of the worst kind of drunkards, but had been brought to a total abstainer by reading the word of God. He criticised the action of ministers in neglecting their duty from a spiritual stand point, and thought they ought to put shoulder to shoulder with the drunkards and moderate drinkers. He told a sad tale of the misery and woe he had brought upon himself, and of the desponding state of mind the drink had brought him to. People who were moderate drinkers, were of the worst kind of drunkards. For instance, if the younger community observed them taking a glass of liquor, and had never seen them intoxicated, peradventure that would lead the young to follow their example. That class of drinkers were misers—too mean to get drunk. He would again remind the audience that he had experienced the darkest and most degrading days of a drunkard, and depicted the unhappiness he had wrought upon his mother and wife, and the trials that had gloomed over their heads, through his mad career of drinking. He was fond of fashionable company in those days. It was the social glass that first led him to indulge in the intoxicating cup. He besought the audience to use every effort in banishing the liquor traffic altogether, and hoped that a large number would come forward and sign the pledge. The lecturer was listened to with great earnestness throughout.

PROVIDENCE, R. E., Sept. 16, 1874.—DR. GILES: I paid one hundred dollars to a veterinary surgeon for medicine and attendance on a valuable saddle horse, without any benefit. He was lame from a curb more than a year, and useless in consequence of it. No remedy I could find had any effect. I applied the LINIMENT IODIDE OF AMMONIA, and, to my great surprise, found that it removed both lump and lameness. Having driven him recently over a very rough road, sixty miles in two days—two of the hottest days this summer—without the least symptom of return of crub or lameness. As a precaution, I took a bottle of Liniment with me, but had no occasion to use it. In all cases where a Liniment can be applied, it gives me the greatest satisfaction. J. B. TALLMAN.

A convention of Conservative delegates was held in Brampton on Thursday, at which Wm. Elliott of Meadowvale, was nominated as candidate for the Commons for the County of Peel, in Opposition to Mr. Smith.

The Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVEN'G. MARCH. 9, 1878.

The Crisis in Quebec.

Mr. Joly has succeeded in forming his Ministry, and the following members of the same were sworn in on Friday:—

Hon. Henri Gustave Joly—Premier and Minister of Public Works.

Hon. D. A. Ross—Attorney-General.

Hon. Pierre Bachand—Treasurer.

Hon. F. C. S. Langelier—Commissioner of Crown Lands.

Hon. A. Chauveau — Solicitor-General.

Hon. F. G. Marchand—Provincial Secretary.

Hon. Henry Starnes—President of the Council.

All the members, with the exception of Messrs. Ross and Starnes, are of French extraction, and are men of marked ability. Mr. Ross is a lawyer of first-class standing in Quebec city, and though he has never been in public life, he will have no difficulty in getting a seat. Mr. Starnes is in the Legislative Council and is highly thought of by commercial and business men, having held several important positions as President of railways and other enterprises. Mr. Chauveau is the second son of the Hon. P. J. G. Chauveau, late Premier of Quebec and Speaker of the Canadian Senate, and is only 31 years of age.

When the House met on Friday the announcement was made that Mr. Joly had formed a Government, and one of their friends made a statement for them that:—"The new Cabinet declare that they abandon the Bill the object of which is to impose new taxes. They propose to meet the obligations of the Province, and to carry out the undertakings for the execution of which the public faith has been pledged, by a system of economy and retrenchment, which will render unnecessary the laying of new burthens upon the people." Mr. Angers then, in behalf of the late Government made full explanations with regard to its dismissal. He first read the draft of a communication which the Lieut.-Governor sent to Mr. De Boucherville, the Premier of the late Government, in which he asked for copies of all the papers in relation to the construction of the Provincial Railway, and a detailed statement of reasons which induced the Provincial Government not to content themselves with the provisions of the statute and public law and with those of the Civil Code of the Province for the recovery of the sums of money which might become due by the corporations which had voted bonuses for the construction of this railway.

In this memorandum the Lieut.-Governor goes on to say:—

"A very important measure to provide for the imposition of new taxes was proposed to the Legislature without having been previously submitted to the Lieutenant-Governor. The Lieut.-Governor is perfectly aware that measures of secondary importance which had previously been sufficiently explained to him may be, as a matter of routine, proposed to both Houses without express order from him, but he cannot allow the Executive to communicate to the Legislature on his behalf any important or new measures without his special order, and without his having been previously fully informed and advised thereof."

In reply to this the Premier personally waited on the Lieut.-Governor the following day, and took with him a communication in which he justified the course the Government pursued in carrying through this bill to compel the corporations, which had refused to pay their bonuses in aid of the railway. He concludes by saying:—

"I beg your Excellency to believe that I never had any intention of arrogating to myself the right of having measures passed without your approval, and that under existing circumstances, having had occasion to speak to your Excellency in reference to the law respecting the Provincial Railway, and not having received any order to suspend it, I did not think your Excellency would discover in this measure any intention on my part to slight your prerogatives, which no one is more disposed than I am to respect and uphold."

Another communication follows from the Lieut.-Governor, in which he states that the bill in question had been before the Legislature several days without his knowledge, and that when he was aware of it, he expressed to the Premier his regret that such legislation had been proposed. He also regrets being compelled to state that he had not been generally informed explicitly of the measures adopted by the Cabinet, although he often gave occasion therefor to the Premier, especially during the course of last year. He therefor states that he cannot accept the Railway bill, and moreover regrets that he cannot longer retain the Premier in his position contrary to the rights and prerogatives of the Crown.

On the 2nd of March the Premier waited on the Lieut.-Governor and said that under the circumstances he supposed he was dismissed. The Lieut.-Governor in reply said he could put his own interpretation on the matter.

In the House, after these explanations had been made, on a motion for the third reading of the Supply Bill, an amendment was moved justifying the conduct of the late Government, and stating that "this House is of opinion that the dismissal from office of the De Boucherville cabinet took place without reason, constitutes an immense danger for the existence of responsible Government in the Province, and an abuse of power to the detriment of the majority of both Houses, whose confidence they possessed and possess still, and a violation of the rights and will of the people." This was carried by 34 to 12, and another motion was carried that the address be presented to the Lieutenant-Governor, with the request that he will transmit it to the Governor-General, to the Senate, and to the House of Commons of Canada. The motion to pass the Supply was defeated, also one for the issue of writs for new elections in the constituencies rendered vacant by the new Ministers' acceptance of office, on the ground that they have not the confidence of the House.

Of the new Ministers Mr. Bachand will be easily re-elected. Mr. Joly will be opposed in Lotbiniere, while Messrs. Marchand and Chauveau, who represent respectively St. John's and Rimouski, will probably also meet with opposition. Messrs. F. Langelier and D. A. Ross have to find constituencies, not being members of the present House. As the members of the late Government refuse to vote the Supply Bill, the House is almost certain to prorogue, the dissolution to follow later. The general elections will doubtless take place about May.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Mar. 8.

Mr. Dymond resumed his debate on the Budget. He reviewed the conduct of the late Government when they had the power of establishing a protective policy. Referring to the national policy proposed by Sir Francis Hincks in 1870, he showed how all the members of the late Ministry in the House in 1871 voted to repeal the national policy. Had the party then in power been sincere in their desire to sustain that policy they could have carried it by a majority of the r own followers of 42 But they deliberately voted it down. He quoted from different speeches made by Sir John Macdonald to show the great inconsistency of that gen leman's utterances on tariff questions. He pointed out that the tariff we were asked by the Opposition to adopt was the American tariff, which the member for Cumberland declared in 1874 had swept the American marine from off the seas. He then referred to the proposition of the member for Cumberland to tax the coal consumers of Ontario to the tune of $750 000 per annum to benefit Nova Scotia, and then tax that province from one million to twelve hundred thousand dollars per annum on flour to benefit Ontario. Concerning the salt trade, he drew attention to the fact that when gentlemen opposite proposed their national policy they broke down at the very start by exempting salt used in curing fish. He showed how the Opposition had by their recent conduct swallowed all their professions and announced a policy which was nothing more than a servile imitation of a United States statute. In conclusion, he described what a true national policy should be in building up our country, which offered a potentiality of growing rich beyond the dreams of avarice.

Mr. Masson followed and criticized the composition of the Supreme Court, when the speaker pointed out that he could only discuss the fiscal questions on the amendmeudment. He then resumed, and considered the several points in the speech of the preceding speaker. He held that the policy advocated by the Conservatives was the same as that adopted by the Parti National, of which Mr. Joly was chief.

Mr. Charlton then reviewed the history of protection and free trade, and passed on to a consideration of Sir John Macdonald's speech of last night. He made a comparison of the value of articles manufactured in Canada and imported, which showed that while we manufactured and sold $23,500,000 worth only $3,000,000 worth were imported. These figures, he said, showed conclusively that the talk about Canada being a slaughter market was the merest nonsense. He did not believe a reciprocity of tariffs would secure reciprocity of trade. On the contrary, it would rouse a bitter, retaliatory feeling in the United States. Referring to Sir John Macdonald's statement that England was driven from the marts of the world to trade with the interior of Africa, he produced figures to show that the volume of the British export trade last year reached the enormous sum of 1,200 million dollars, England actually sending to the United States alone 84 millions worth of goods, while the States only exported 74 millions to all the world. He read extracts from letters he had received from twenty-one manufacturing concerns, all of which showed business in a flourishing condition, and many of them complaining of over competition in the home market, and only one declaring in favor of an increased tariff. He showed that the tendency of protection was to increase the cost of all the people had to buy, and lessen the price of all they had to sell. He held that Free Trade gave man abundance and power, while Protection created scarcity and increased toil. Mr. Charlton spoke till after one o'clock, making one of the most effective speeches of the session.

Mr. Bunster and Mr. Palmer followed, the latter moving the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Mackenzie said he was willing, if the adjournment was till Monday, when the debate should take precedence.

Sir John Macdonald objected to the private business being set back. The Premier had, he said, accepted the motion as a vote of want of confidence, but it was not a vote of want of confidence. It was absurd to call it such. He insisted that the Government should not take possession of every day of the House.

Mr. Holton agreed that the amendment was not in its wording a direct vote of want of confidence, but the sense of the motion and the attack which it made on the policy of the Government involving the resignation of the Administration and the dissolution of this House, it was the invariable custom to continue the debate from day to day till the question of the life of the Government was finally decided.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said that last year he did accept the amendment as a want of confidence. He accepted this motion in that sense. If it should carry, it would necessitate his immediate resignation. All the speeches made by the Opposition showed that this motion was intended to be the cry with which the hon. gentlemen opposite intended to go to the country. Now they come forward and say it means nothing. But he had a higher sense of his duty, and must accept it in the sense he had indicated.

Mr. Masson cited authorities to show that a motion such as the amendment under discussion was not a want of confidence motion.

Mr. Mackenzie insisted that it was the function of the Government to decide what was a vote of non confidence. If this should carry he would undoubtedly resign, and he took the ground that the discussion should go on.

The Speaker said, anticipating this difficulty, he had carefully looked into the case, and found that in every case where such attacks were made on a Government the party making it never objected to the discussion going on till it came to an end, but in no case did he find the party making such a motion declining to pursue the discussion to a final conclusion.

Dr. Tupper declared the motion was only the expression of a desire to put the issue between the two parties fairly before the country.

Mr. Holton moved in amendment to the motion for adjournment that the debate be adjourned till Monday, then to be the first order of the day.

Sir John Macdonald insisted that the debate was already adjourned. A long discussion arose on that point, which was finally decided by the Speaker deferring his decision on this question, whether the debate should proceed on Monday, till Monday afternoon.

John Burns, of Peel, was returning from a sale on the evening of Friday last when his horses ran away, throwing him out of the waggon, and breaking his leg and arm.

From remarks made by the Premier of Ontario, it appears likely that at the next Session of the Legislature the jurisdiction of Division Courts will be extended to sums of $200. This is a reform which is much needed, and one which we have long advocated.

The Ottawa Free Press understands that at the recent Opposition caucus, in Ottawa, it was definitely decided to effect a change in the leadership of the party before the general elections.

The Orangemen of South Simcoe have adopted a resolution pledging themselves to support no candidate at the next election who is not a "brother" in good standing. This resolve will rid them of Mr. William McDougall, who has not yet been admitted.

In the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa, on Thursday morning, on something being said that it was desirable to bring the session to a close as soon as possible, Mr. Mitchell spoke up and said, "No you don't; you won't have so short a session as you think." It is now stated that the Opposition have decided to keep Parliament sitting four months.

With regard to the Railway Bill, on which it is supposed the Government made its exit, the Montreal Witness says:—"We stated yesterday that we believed the annals of legislation in constitutional countries would be searched in vain for any parallel to the Railway Bill, or any precedent that would justify such a measure."

The Ottawa correspondent of the London Advereiser says:—"Dr. Orton looks as if he felt his end drawing nigh. In fact the jaunty air with which the Opposition members generally entered the House at the opening of the session has entirely disappeared, and the attempts at an outward display of confidence which a few of them affect are so plainly assumed that it is at once evident.

Hon. Mr. Huntington, the Postmaster-General, has introduced a measure into Parliament, to give him power to deal with the lottery nuisance. The country has for years been flooded with swindling circulars of lotteries, gift enterprises, etc., and if a stop can be put to it, the country will have a right to feel grateful.

Hon. Mr. Mill's bill to facilitate the colonization of Dominion lands, by providing for the incorporation of railway companies and aiding the construction of railways traversing such lands, has been distributed. The Act applies exclusively to the construction and operation of railways in Manitoba and the territories of the Dominion, the latter term embracing the Northwest territories, the District of Keewatin, and not included within the limits of any Province.

The London Times on the Canadian Militia.

The Times had a leader on Friday respecting the correspondence concerning the Canadian militia aiding the English army. It says:—The vast body of the Canadian militia would supply in the time of need the raw materials for an army such as could not be surpassed by the military Empires of Europe. In this reserve the British Empire has an inexhaustible mine of military strength. England neither expects nor would accept Canada's assent to any proposition to denude the country of its cultivators but we are not the less justified in assuming that the Canadian militia would furnish a valuable contingent to the Imperial army. The Dominion population contains a certain element of born soldiers. The master feeling in greater colonies, especially Canada, is a growing desire to knit closer Imperial ties. Canada, in lending her volunteer corps for the service of England, is entitled to feel that she is doing a service to the Empire of which she is an essential part, and gains by providing an outlet for her military spirit. The essence of the proposition made in the correspondence we publish is that recruiting in Canada should be of Canadians as Canadians, remaining Canada militia, to serve the Queen under Canadian colors, though stationed outside Canada. Facilities might be given for enlistment from the militia into a Canadian corps for Imperial service. Room could easily be made for such a new organization in the British army. Canada's case suggests this addition to the armed strength of the Empire. Canada in a remarkable way fulfils the conditions necessary to the complete success of the experiment.

Letter from Mr. George Hood.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

Sir,—Your numerous readers may be interested to know some of the particulars concerning the assault cases mentioned in your issue of last Tuesday. As your report was rather mystified, I think there will be no harm in stating a few facts in connection with the same, and with your permission will elucidate the whole transaction as truthfully and briefly as possible. On arriving on the market square last Friday, towards noon, noticing a crowd around the weigh scales—not an unusual thing of late,—hearing rather high words, and wondering what it all meant, I mingled with the multitude, and was hailed by a farmer in charge of a wagon loaded with hogs. He asked if my name was Mr. Hood; answering in the affirmative, he at once told me he was in great trouble about the sale of his pork, stating that he had sold six pigs to Mr. Brill's buyer the day before for $5.80 per hundred lbs., but after driving to Mr. Brill's warehouse they would not take delivery of them, although the ticket was plainly marked $5.80 by Mr. Millar, Brill's authorized buyer. He further stated that he had sold them to Mr. Hewer for 5c per lb., a reduction of 30c per 100 lbs., after being put to the expense of staying in town over night. After having bought the hogs, Hewer told him he had purchased for Brill. Fearing a repetition of the troubles of the day before at the Brill establishment, he asked my aid to keep him out of his difficulty. (And I did.) Asking him to show me the ticket he sold the hogs to Hewer on, he said the Market Clerk had told him that he did not need to get another ticket. Rather strange, for if I understand the rules of the Guelph market, you must have a ticket before you can legally offer your produce for sale; my friend, Mr. Rennie, asking my advice, I told him to get a market ticket and sell to who he liked. By this time he had the hogs weighed. He went into the weighmaster's office and paid for the ticket of weights, when Hewer snatched it from him. Seeing that he was being harshly dealt with, I went with him to the office to see that he got a ticket. Mr. King stoutly refused to sell one, and was ably backed up by that shining light J. T. Brill. But my powers of persuasion being pretty strong, the Clerk yielded and sold a ticket, which enabled Mr. Rennie to sell his hogs according to law. But there is no duplicate kept of produce weighed upon the small scales, although there was a report passed in council last year that there should be a duplicate kept of all hogs, grain, beef, etc., weighed on those scales. Such not being the case, Mr. Rennie had to go to the trouble and expense of weighing over again, I helping him. In the mean time Messrs. Hewer and Brill kept up a running fire of insulting language against myself, ending in Hewer dealing me two rather light but treacherous blows, and then resorted to an old trick, by running to the magistrate and lodging information, which act rather took me by surprise. But entering a counter charge against him, both cases were dismissed, which I consider not at all satisfactory. His worship, Mr. Saunders, in reviewing these cases, said such conduct had the effect of keeping farmers from bringing their produce to Guelph market. He further stated that if I had not shown so much zeal in helping the farmer, no assault would have taken place. (Strange logic.) With all due respect for Mr. Saunders, in his magisterial capacity, I will still continue to help either a friend or a stranger, if I think fit, and that without consulting that august personage who sits in judgment on cases in the Police Court. I defy Mr. Saunders or any other man to prove that any act of mine has had a tendency to keep farmers from attending the market, but on the contrary, I can find thousands who will say that I have done a great deal, both in my public and private capacity, to promote the best interests of our market. On the other hand it must be admitted that the treatment Mr. Rennie received on the market, after coming over thirty miles, over rough roads, will have a damaging effect, not only upon the market, but the general business of the town.

Yours truly,
GEORGE HOOD.

—OR—
The Gauger of Skene.

CHAPTER XXV.

[AN EXCITING SCENE AT THE GAUGER'S HOUSE.

This was the wail of woe with which Harold ended his brief but lucid recital. As Gillespie listened to the latter he could hardly doubt that the lost ones had been spirited away at the instance of Gilmour, though, us we know, he had spoken truly when he declared that he was in pefect ignorance on the subject. Still he hesitated not to speak out his convictions.

"This is Gilmour's doings," he exclaimed; "I have no doubt about it. "He is a dark scheming villain who will stick at nothing. But how could he come to learn the secret which you have kept so long? That he was ignorant of it until recently I am certain. He must have found it out within the last few days; can you not conjecture how?"

"No, I cannot," groaned Harold.

"I can," uttered another voice within the room, and, startled by it, they looked round to behold the door which communicated with the inner chamber open, and Edward Skeat standing on the threshold, white as a ghost, haggard, trembling, and agitated.

"Skeat!" cried Gillespie; "you there! I thought you had not yet returned from Aberdeen."

"I was not at Aberdeen. I was—I was—somewhere else, and I came in an hour ago."

"Then you have been in your room all this time?"

"The whole time; I have heard everything."

"And what," cried Harold, making a dash toward him, and dragging him forcibly into the centre of the room—"what mean you by saying what you did? Do you know anything about my wife's disappearance?"

"No, not about that; but I know how Gilmour found out that you had a wife and child, and where they were."

"How on earth do you know anything about it, Edward Skeat?" Exclaimed his master, in amazement. "You must be dreaming."

"Ha!" shouted Harold, fiercely, as he thrust himself between them, his eyes blazing again with fiery brightness. "You wish to force him to silence; this is another conspiracy between you, and you do not wish him to reveal anything. But he has said so much, and you shall not hinder him from telling all. Out with it, Skeat; don't be frightened into silence by him. Remember I am a desperate man, and ready for desperate deeds."

"Mr. Logan, you do me injustice; you do indeed," said the gauger, earnestly. "I am as ignorant of what Ned means as you are, and as eager to know."

"He speaks the truth, sir," asserted Skeat. "He knows nothing at all of this affair, and I wish to heaven I had not had anything to do with it."

"Then you have had a share in my wife's abduction," cried Harold.

No; I swear to you I did not. Gilmour has accomplished that with his own hands. But I have to confess that it was through me he came to know that you had a wife and child."

"Through you, Ned!" exclaimed the gauger, in unmingled surprise. "Tell us now how the secret came into your possession?"

"Ay, how did you know it?" demanded Harold, with emphasis.

"By an unlooked for chance, sir. I was in Mr. Adamson's office when you paid a visit to him a week ago disguised as you are now."

"Ah! and you overheard our convertion?"

"Every word of it, just as I overheard you to-night. I had dropped in to see Tom Ironby, his clerk, who is a friend of mine. When we were together his master came in unexpectedly, and as we did not wish him to know I was there, Tom locked me in the closet."

"The closet!" shrieked Harold. "I remember—that creaking noise——"

"Was made by me, sir. I was standing on a loose plank."

"Oh, fool that I was to have my suspicion so easily allayed. Go on—you heard all; and the information you obtained you carried to Mount Cairn."

"Not exactly that, sir. I imparted it to Ironby, and he went with it to Gilmour Logan."

"Ay—and doubtless you were both well rewarded by him for the valuable service," said Harold with bitterness.

"Tom might be, sir, but I was not. Let me tell you that Tom has been a spy all along. Her ladyship had him put into Adamson's office to pick up any information he could, and communicate it to her."

Harold started at this, and clenched his hands with passionate force.

"More plotting, more treachery," he exclaimed. "With what devilish cunning she has carried out her plans, making tools or victims of every one near her. Proceed—for heaven's sake proceed—and tell me that which alone I wish to know. When the existence of my wife and child was made known to Gilmour he planned their abduction—he had agents to effect it. Tell me in a word where they have taken them. Oh, if they have dared to injure one hair of their heads I will exact a heavy retribution. Their wrongs towards me I have treated with forbearance; but in touching my loved ones they have roused a ruthless demon in my blood which shall pursue them to the death. Quick—I am racked with agony till I know the worst; if you are not feelingless as an insensate stone, keep me no longer in suspence."

And the trembling, quivering youth bent forward with parted lips and heaving bosom to catch the answer.

"I am sorry, sir," replied Skeat, "that I can give you no more information."

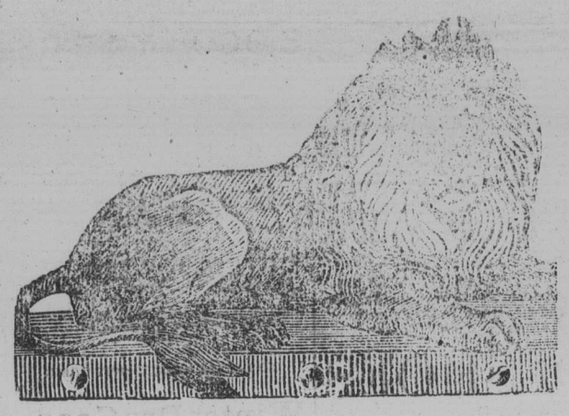
"Liar!" shouted Harold clutching him by the throat. "I will have the answer if I should wring it out with your heart's blood."

"Mr. Logan," said Gillespie, "for any sake don't show such violence. Remember your critical position. The noise will inevitably attract attention, and if you are discovered here think what the consequence will be."

"I care not," cried Harold, glaring round upon the speaker. "I value not my life—no one's life—in this quest. Let him tell me what I seek to know, or, by heaven, he dies."

"May I never speak more, if I have not told you all I know," gasped Skeat, livid with fear, and writhing in the terrible gripe of the maddened youth. "If I had more to reveal I would do it willingly—indeed I would. For God's sake, sir, take away your hand, you are—choking me."

"Be persuaded to greater moderation," counselled Gillespie, "I know the torture of your mind, and cannot wonder at your rage, but, bethink you if this will not injure rather than succour those whom you seek. I am persuaded Ned is not deceiving you, and I give you my sacred promise that both he and I will aid you to the utmost of our power. You have the highest claim to our exertions; we feel this now, and will show we do. For the sake then not of yourself alone, but of your wife and child, I implore you to be calm and reasonable, otherwise you may lose all chance of saving them."



"That argument has prevailed," murmured Harold—a sudden revulsion of feeling coming over him, and causing him to release Skeat, who had by this time become black in the face. "Oh, God, pity me," he pathetically added, "for I am surely going mad—no—this is not a time for weakness—or the indulgence of grief—I must act—act. I have learned so much, and now I go to confront the doers of this deed, who shall render back those they have carried away, or suffer my heaviest vengeance. My wife—my boy, I will rescue you, or die in avenging you."

He made a rush for the door, and in this state of frenzy would have gone forth had not Gillespie gently, but forcibly, restrained him, and beggd him to remain and listen to what he had to say.

On the gauger a noble transformation had taken place—his better nature had once more gained the ascendancy, and under its influence he was about to do that which would go far to atone for his past error.

What this was, will be seen in the following chapter.

ERNESTVILLE.—A meeting was held on the 1st of March for the purpose of re-organising the North Wellington Farmers' and Mechanics' Institute, when it was unanimously resolved to open the Institute, after which the following officers were duly elected for the current year:—President, Mr. John Cunningham; Vice-President, Mr. William Taylor; Secretary and Librarian, Mr. Jas. England's Vast Wealth.

We hear much of her losses by unfortunate hazards in America, but not much of her gains. Nearly three years ago, May, 1876, I procured and printed a list of the deposits in the public banks of London at midsummer, 1874. Most of this treasure was not then, and, of course, is not now (for the times are just as gloomy as they were in 1874), drawing more than two per cent. The Bank of England is not included in the list, in which the private deposits are the balances of the bankers; nor are the heavy deposits of the Indian, Australian, and Canadian banks; nor is there any return of the immense hoards in the hands of the thirty-one private bankers—any one of whom has more money on hand than any of the public banks named. I now submit the list of the public banks in London, with the money in their vaults, June 30th, 1874:

London and Westminster	£31,243,698
National and Provincial	21,824,175
London Joint Stock	21,870,615
London and County	18,928,918
Union	13,918,162
City	3,306,085
Consolidated	3,029,492
Imperial	1,976,265
Alliance	1,723,789
London and Provincial	1,319,998
National Discount	9,568,718
Standard Discount	3,997,289
United Discount	3,872,733
	£134,775,896

In round numbers, adding the estimated funds in private banks, it is safe to say that there there are to-day £300,000,000 sterling ($1,500,000,000!) on deposit in London in these receptacles alone, drawing very small interest, which, with better times and honest dealing, might be attracted to the United States, where all sides agree there is more stability in the Government and fairer prospects for investments.

Another instance: A few evenings ago I was invited by "the President and Council of the Statistical Society" to hear Mr. Robert Griffin read a paper on the "Recent Accumulation of Capital in the United Kingdom," Lefevre, M. P., in the chair. A number of persons took part in the discussion after the lecture, which was very able. A few of the facts may serve to strengthen my position.

It appeared that the growth of those accumulations had been very rapid. The income tax returns showed that the gross income assessed in Great Britain, from £115,000,000 at the beginning of the century, rose to £130,000,000 in 1815, £151,000,000 in 1843, and £262,000,000 in 1853; and then in United Kingdom, from $308,000,000 in 1855, to £396,000,000 in 1865 and £571,000,000 in 1875. If the capital of this portion of the income derived from capital had only increased at the same rate, the annual increase of capital all through, and especially of recent years, must have been enormous. The increase in the income assessed between 1865 and 1875 amounted to £175,000,000, which was equal to forty-four per cent. of the income assessed in 1865. Leaving out altogether the capital for yielding income, a similar increase of capital, assuming the present amount to be what he had stated, would give us from 1865 a total capital of about £5,300,000,000, on which the increase of forty-four per cent. would be £2,228,000,000; or, in round figures, £230,000,000 per annum. The foreign investments, though they were very large in the years before 1875, were by no means the chief part of the national accumulations. Our main savings were at home. Before the nation could be said to be living on its capital, it must be shown that only was capital being called in from abroad, but that more was so called in than was being simultaneously invested at home. He had not seen this point considered by any of those who had made suggestions that the nation was living on its capital.

Here you have two proofs, out of many, of the enormous internal riches of England in money! Fifteen hundred millions of dollars in the public and private banks, drawing little, and some of it no interest, and a recent annual accumulation of over $3,000,000,000.—From the Philadelphia Press.

A Western paper says: "A child was run over by a waggon three years old, and crosseyed, with pantalets on, which never spoke afterwards.

"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."

If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well tried; hold on to it and be saved.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Destructive Fire in Moorefield.

Loss, About $30,000.

The fine and extensive flouring mills, known as the Maryborough Mills, and having six run of stone, erected by John Brodie, and to which the municipality of Maryborough contributed a bonus of four thousand dollars, and costing in total of over $30,000, was burned to the ground on Sunday. The fire was discovered at 6 o'clock, at which time it had got under such headway that no hopes were entertained of saving it. The night watchman left the building at 4 a.m., when everything was supposed safe. The loss is a heavy blow to the surrounding country, Mr. Brodie having done an extensive business in flouring. It was insured for $12,000. The following are the Companies in which the mill was insured:—

Royal	$4,000,
Citizens'	2,000,
Mercantile	4,000,
Canada Fire and Marine	2,000,

The mill had been running about four months.

The Worswick Engine Company, who fitted up the mills, is secured for $8,000 of the insurance.

LATER TELEGRAM.

Inquiries and investigations tend to prove the mills burned were fired by an incendiary, as not the least particle of fire was in the furnaces, one of which was not used on Saturday. The fire in the other was extinguished early on Saturday evening. There were 110 barrels of flour, 60 barrels of middlings, and 300 bushels wheat consumed. Not one particle of anything was saved. This (Monday) morning a tin of tar was found, which had been just used. A stick in the tar appeared as if used in smearing something. The can was recently thrown where found, as could easily be seen by its being newly imbedded in the mud. The night watchman has stated that he had fired his pistol last week at two different times to lurkers around the mill. Two persons on each occasion seemed to be together. Mr. Brodie had received several anonymous letters, saying his mill would be burned.

The daughter of a farmer named Robert Keys, a girl of about thirteen years, accidentally upset a pail of hot water, which had just been set on the floor for scrubbing, and so seriously scalded herself that she soon after died from the effects of the injuries she had received.

Two neighbors named Anderson and Symington, living near Dresden, quarrelled about the impounding of a cow and in the scuffle Anderson was stabbed in the bowels. The wound is a very severe one.

An experienced traveller says: "After a week's sojourn at the Grand Central Hotel, I have no hesitation in saying that it is the best and cheapest first-class hotel in New York. oed

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage wich may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London. Sept. 28. d&w 9m

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

THE GOOD TIMES HAVE COME AT LAST.—And so has that which has hitherto been looked for in vain, namely, a medicine that could be relied upon for curing rheumatism, colds, coughs, neuralgia, tic douloureux, burns and frosbites, bowel complaints, &c. It is called the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," and everyone should really possess a bottle of it without delay. It gives relief the moment you apply it, and will effectually cure your disease; in fact it is the most wonderful medicine ever brought before the public Sold by all medicine dealers.

INDICATIONS of SPRING.—This morning a large flock of wild geese passed over the town, going towards Puslinch lake.—Boys playing base ball in the East Ward on Sunday afternoon.

HIGH SHERIFF.—Mr. Jacob Tyson, of Montgomery County, Penn., has just been elected to the honorable position of High Sheriff of that County. He is to be congratulated on the position acquired. He is brother to Mr. John Tyson of this town.

THE CHURCHES.—Rev. Mr. Davidson, of Alma, occupied St. Andrew's Church, morning and evening yesterday. Rev. J. C. Smith preached at Drayton. Rev. Mr. Eckford occupied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian—Rev. Mr. Torrance's—in the morning.

COWS AT LARGE.—This morning the Police Magistrate imposed a fine of fifty cents, without costs, on Mrs. Geo. Tatham, for allowing a cow to run at large on the streets. D. O'Connor had two cows on the highway, and a fine of fifty cents for each animal was imposed.

THE PRESBYTERY OF GUELPH will meet tomorrow at 10 a. m., in Chalmers' Church. Several important matters, including the election of representatives to the General Assembly, a conference on the state of religion and Remits from last general assembly will come up for consideration.

DECLARATION.—At noon to-day (Monday) Mr. John Harvey, Clerk, at the town hall, officially declared Mr. J. P. MacMillan to be duly elected member of the Council for the South Ward. There were few electors present, as is usual the case on like occasions. After the declaration an adjournment took place.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.—The report of Rev. R. Torrance, Public School Inspector, has been issued. It is a pamphlet of thirteen pages and embraces a full and interesting report of the Guelph Schools for 1877. The pamphlets were printed at the MERCURY office.

FROM the Clinton New Era it is learned that at the annual dinner in connection with the Hullett Branch Agricultural Society held on the 6th inst, Mr Wm Johnston, President of the Ontario School of Agriculture delivered a very instructive and interesting address.

BUTTER FACTORY.—The Walkerton Herald states that a meeting is to be called to consider the advisability of establishing a butter factory. That paper understands there has been correspondence between the Mayor and a party from the neighborhood of Guelph who is willing to establish a factory, provided sufficient encouragement is given. Mr Gale of Guelph is interested in the matter.

A QUAGMIRE.—One of the worst pieces of road in the town is near the top of the Eramosa hill. To pry a waggon out with scantlings and assist an animal out of the mire is almost a daily occurrence. Farmers are beginning to know the spot, and, if they have anything of a load to bring into town, nothing could induce them to try the hill in question. The foundation appears to have been taken completely out of the hill when the hard pan was removed and a coating of gravel put on in its place.

"DRUNKARDS."—Some person has been maligning the Town Council of Guelph by giving Mr. McConkey, the temperance lecturer, to understand that the members were all drunkards. At the Sabbath afternoon lecture, in the Town Hall, Mr. McConkey said, "If I have been correctly informed the City Fathers of Guelph are nothing but a lot of drunkards." It is needless to remark that the statement is entirely incorrect, but it is apropos to remark that the temperance cause has done more harm than good even by an unintentional but strange pervision of the truth as in the above quotation. It is simply a slander on the Council.

UNBECOMING CONDUCT.—At the service in St. George's Church last evening Rev. Canon Dixon announced that he was in possession of the names of several young ladies who were in the habit of conducting themselves during service in an unbecoming manner, and that several young gentlemen (?) could be placed in the same category. The reverend gentleman stated that if the conduct, which could only be characterized as worthy that of heathens, was not stopped he would read certain names out from the pulpit. It is well that the Canon has taken such steps. The nuisance of which complaint is made is now likely to be abated.

"STAGGERING BOB."—A Hamilton despatch states that Mr. James, the Health Inspector, is again on the alert, and is determined so far as his powers go to prevent unwholesome meat, vegetables, &c., being offered for sale in the city. Saturday morning while walking through the market he discovered two quarters of veal of the the quality better known among butchers as "Staggering Bob." The meat was at once confiscated and destroyed, the delinquent brought before the Police Magistrate, the case proven, and the vendor finded $2 and costs. Guelph butchers want the Council to appoint a Meat Inspector for the prevention of dishonest dealers selling poisonous meats.

Aaron Eib and family will leave Berlin next week for Marion Centre, where he will locate and establish a land office.

THE CANADIAN HORSE TRADE.—A London correspondent writes:—I am informed that there will shortly be a large number of English dealers in the Province of Ontario for the purpose of making extensive purchases of Canadian horses.

MOUNT FOREST.—William Evans purposes at once proceeding with the erection of a two-story frame hotel, 64x40 feet, on the site of the old Anglo-American lately destroyed by fire.——Interest is being awakened in the Mechanics' Institute, which has been little heard of during the past few years. A meeting to consider the question will shortly be held.

THE ST. JOHN, N. B., HARBOR.—It is understood that the Government have resolved to acquire St. John, N.B., harbor, and having placed it under a Board of Commissioners will advance half a million dollers to improve it. The Commissioners will be empowered to issue a further half a million of debentures for the purpose of buying out the rights of the city of St. John. It is expected a Bill for this purpose will shortly be introduced into Parliament.

KOSSUTH CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.—A meeting of Liberal Conservatives of the Township of Waterloo, in Kossuth and neighborhood, was held in Groh's Hall on the 5th inst., for the purpose of organizing and forming an association. Jacob Hespeler occupied the chair, and John Phin was on motion appointed Secretary. The following officers were elected: President, Mr. John Phin; Vice-President, Mr. Wm. E. Ellis; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. D. O. Ellis; Executive Committee, Messrs. David Vance, Thomas Ryan, D. Fannebaker, C. Zueber, Jos. Mey, John W. Beechy, John Brohman.

DIVORCE.—Preliminary steps have been taken in the Senate to dissolve the marriage between Hugh Hunter, of Eremont, and his wife, Catharine McPhee. Hunter is a young farmer of the township of Eremont, county of Grey. He married in 1874 Catharine McPhee, the daughter of a neighboring farmer. On his side it was a love match but she married him at the solicitation of her father and mother. They only lived as husband and wife for one week, when she left him and went to Toronto, where she now lives with a former lover named Andrew Tait, by whom she had two children. She makes no opposition to the divorce, and told Hunter that he need not go to the expense of getting one, as she would never trouble him again.

COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER NEAR CLYDE.—An oyster supper was given to Mr. Arch. Ferguson and lady by the members of "The Clyde Grange," No. 574, in the house of Mr. Robt. Young, on Thursday evening, 28th of February, in acknowledgment of their services in said Grange for the past year. The Galt Reporter says that the supper in every respect was a grand success, there being upwards of eighty persons present who enjoyed themselves heartily at the Grangers' supper. After partaking of supper the tables was cleared, and a number of toasts were proposed and responded to. The evening's entertainment was greatly enlivened by the beautiful singing of Miss Hunter, of Beverly, and Miss Portens, of Stamford, together with the auld Scotch songs sung by Mr. D. Bryce, of Beverly, and the excellent music provided by Mr. Ramsay, of Wellington.

VILLAGE OF HESPELER.—From the abstract of the receipts and disbursements of the village of Hespeler for the 1877 it is found that the total receipts were $2467.77, and the disbursements $2391,26, leaving a balance on hand of $76.51. This balance, when it is considered that the rate of assessment last year was only one cent in the dollar, is very handsome. The Galt Reporter says that the streets and sidewalks in the village are always in good order, and everything appears clean and neat, and how the authorities manage on the small amount at their disposal is almost a mystery. The taxes remitted in the village under by law amount to $148.75, Schofield & Co.'s woolen factory being exempt.

COTSWOLD BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION.—A meeting of the Cotswold Breeders' Association of Canada was held in the Agricultural Hall, Toronto, on Wednesday. There were present: Messrs. John Hope, of Brantford, President; William M. Miller, Treasurer; Arthur Johnston, Secretary; John R. Craig, Secretary of the Agricultural and Arts Association; Wm. Hodgson, S. P. Raymer, R. G. Armstrong and others. Questions relating to the breeding, management, and register of pedigrees of Cotswold sheep were discussed, and nearly a thousand pedigrees were submitted to the directors for entry in the registry. It was resolved to hold the annual meeting in the Agricultural Hall, in Toronto, on the 21st inst.

DISGRACEFUL ELOPEMENT.—The other day the wife of Mr. J. B. McKay, of the North American Hotel, Woodstock, eloped with a man named Lorenzo Ail, a painter by trade, who has been about the town for nearly two years. The Review says that when Mrs. McKay left she said that she was going to visit a cousin in London. All had left about a week previous. From information received after his wife's departure, Mr. McKay's suspicions were aroused, and he took the next train and followed her westward. He went to the residence of his wife's cousin, where she said she was going, but she had never been there. The conduct of the woman is most unaccountable, as she and her husband had always lived happily together. Mr. McKay is left with two young children, and he has the heartfelt sympathy of all who know him, in the peculiar and trying position in which he is placed.

FURTHER NEWS FROM REV. MR. MCKAY.—Mr. A. S. McKay, of E. Zorra, has received a letter from his brother, the Rev. G. L. McKay, of Formosa, which is dated Dec. 21st, (four days later than that received by Prof. McLaren, of Toronto, referred to by us last week) in which he describes the mob at Ban-Kah—the future Capital of Formosa. Mr. McKay, with his students and helpers, was kept in an inn, at which they had been staying, for about a week, the place being besieged by his enemies who were thirsting for his blood. It appears that there are a number of the natives who are determined to drive Mr. McKay out of the Island, and this is the fifth time he has been surrounded by a mob. In this instance he describes his escape as singularly providential, inasmuch as the British Consul could not protect him. To his own intrepid bearing and his influence over many of the natives to whom he had given medicine was probably due his escape, if, indeed, it can in any way be attributed to human influence. Mr. McKay gives us a glimpse of his courageous character and his faith in a Divine power when appearing before an angry mob of a hundred or more without feeling the slightest fear, and when he had absolutely no means of self-protection.

EARLY BIRDS.—Peter Todd, of Chesley, chopped down a tree on his farm last week and was surprised to find a nest of young birds, lately hatched, lodged in one of the branches.

SHORTHORN BULL SOLD.—Mr. James Shouldice, Chesley, County of Bruce, has purchased from Mr. F. W. Stone, Guelph, the fine young shorthorn bull "Earl of Shrewsbury" 23062, red, calved 8th October, 1875, sired by "3rd Duke of Springwood" 16928, [3087] of the celebrated Craggs tribe, dam imported "Lilly 2nd" by Lord Warwick (26753.)

VANDALISM.—On Sunday evening, some person or persons broke open a barrel containing pickles, which was standing on the sidewalk in front of Mr. F. J. Drew's fruit depot, on Quebec street, and scattered the contents on the walk for a great distance along the street. Whoever the parties were, they took a very contemptible mode of showing their wanton spirit, and if they can be discovered should be taught a lesson which would make them backward in doing anything of the kind again.

SOUTH WARD ELECTION.—As Mr. John Stevens, Deputy Returning Officer for the South Ward at the late election has certified to the Clerk that Mr. J. P. MacMillan has been duly returned to fill the vacant seat, the Clerk cannot take cognizance of any protest that might be laid before him. The return of Mr. MacMillan will be made to the Council, and if a protest is intended it will have to be made then.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—There is on exhibition in the window of Mr. B. Savage's jewellery store a correct copy of this celebrated Egyptian obelisk. The model is the property of Mr. Wm. Brown, and was sent to that gentleman from Alexandria, in Egypt, some years ago. The size of the miniature obelisk is one inch and three-eighths square at the base, and three quarters of an inch at the top below the pyramidal cap. From the base to the apex it is ten inches. A correct copy of the hieroglyphics on the original is to be seen. The model is cut in a somewhat coarse-grained sandstone.

A man named Chas. Evans was smothered in a somewhat mysterious way in a grain bin in Geo. Currie's elevator, at Port Perry, on Friday afternoon. Two students in the University at Huntsville, Ala., fought a duel last. W. W. Alston and K. J. Harrison, both Albamians, met with pistols, and fired eight or twelve shots at close quarters. Alston was wounded in the neck and shot through the heart, and Harrison was shot through the shoulder and arm. Wounded as they were, one of them mortally, they threw down their pistols and grappled. Alston lived but a few moments after the affray.

George Ward, aged twenty, and William Slain, about fifteen, who say they are cousins, were, last week, arrested for breaking into the school house at Glenwilliams, and stealing a bible, bag, and pencils, also for stealing a bible from James Watson, of Nelson, and a book from George F Morse, of Smithville. They were tried before Judge Miller, when Ward was sentenced to two years in the Penitentiary, and Slain to five years in the Reformatory.

Keely, of motor fame, has become bankrupt. The Cleveland Herald cruelly says of him:—"Keely absorbed about one hundred thousand dollars from credulous people to develop his humbug machine, which was going to supersede steam, and dispense entirely with the use of fuel. He pretended that with a teacupful of water he could run a train of cars a hundred miles. For over three years he lived sumptuously, drove fine horses, wore diamonds, and drank champagne at the expense of the stockholders in his motor company. If Keely gets his deserts he will furnish motive power for breaking stone in the penitentiary."

A despatch from London says that the Great Western Railway accounts for the past half year show a balance, after providing credit for the various reserve funds, for the half-year sufficient to write off the revenue overdraft and arrears of dividend on preference stock for the previous half-year, to pay a dividend on preference stock, to pay a dividend on ordinary shares of five-eighths per cent., and to carry forward two two thousands pounds.

On Saturday while some workmen were preparing dynamite cartridges for blasting at Mr. John Riordon's pulp mills in Merriton, twelve cartridges exploded, killing instantly John Sammon, foreman of the mill, and severely and probably fatally wounding a man named Thomas Madill. The Cold Water Campaign.

"Something Materially Wrong with Guelph."

Mr. T. H. McConkey, the well known reformed drunkard, of Toronto, who had created considerable excitement in that city, as well as in other parts of the Dominion, again spoke to a rather sparsely attended audience, in the Town Hall, on Saturday evening.

The usual preliminaries having been gone through, Mr. McConkey said there was something materially wrong with Guelph, but whose fault it was he was not there to judge. Probably some of the temperance friends and citizens of the town were of the opinion that this kind of work was assuming to be a stale matter for arguments. Since he had first entered on his campaign he had never met with and addressed such a small attendance of people as were present that night, with the exception of one outlandish school house, situated some miles from any village or town. It was a stormy night, and the rain pouring down in torrents. The crowd numbered about forty persons, and the whole of them signed the pledge and donned the blue ribbon. The lecturer enumerated various places where he had been engaged in the work, and also the number of persons who had signed the pledge, and spoke of the successful meetings he had attended, and the prices that were charged for admission, and in one or two cases extra accommodation had been secured for the purpose of seating the hundreds of people who had gone away with the idea of being disappointed. He had been informed that Owen Sound was one of the hardest places in Ontario for sending drunkards to their graves—women and children suffering to a great extent through their husbands and fathers being addicted to partaking of strong drink, but his visit there proved to the contrary.

The temperance interest in Guelph was certainly going down, and he meant to do all in his power to assist in removing this cursed drink, but at the same time he felt somewhat discouraged in coming here and having such a small attendance of people to speak to. There were twenty other places where he had been engaged to speak, and he was afraid he was simply throwing away his time in Guelph. He concluded his address, which only lasted a little over half an hour, by a strong appeal to the audience to come forward and sign the pledge, and at the same time exhibiting the emotional side of his nature.

To fill up the remainder of the time Rev. John Wilkie spoke a few words to the audience, his remarks bearing chiefly on the indifference of temperance people themselves towards the progress of temperance. After a few other remarks from Mr. McConkey the meeting dispersed.

The unsuccessful gatherings cannot be accounted for in any other way than on account of the numerous meetings that were held in town on the first night of the lecture. Saturday evening is always a bad date for gatherings.

On Sabbath afternoon Mr. McConkey addressed a very large audience in the town hall. Very many thought the speaker was over "loud" in some of his remarks. He is an earnest advocate, however, of the cause that appears to be nearest his heart.

The Peace Demonstration in London.

LONDON, March 10.

At a peace demonstration in Hyde Park to-day, Mr. Bradlaugh and Mr. Herbert made short speeches and proposed resolutions in favor of peace, which passed immediately. Soon afterwards supporters of the Government policy arrived in force, and the meeting was declared dissolved. Bradlaugh was cudgeled and fled in a cab.

According to the largest estimates the number of people who attended the peace demonstration in Hyde Park was about 2,000. They were hustled about the park, and finally ejected by a large and disorderly crowd. Sticks were freely used, and several persons slightly hurt were taken to hospitals. The mob then separated, going to cheer for Lord Beaconsfield and Musurus Pasha. A large crowd cheered and groaned before Mr. Gladstone's residence. Mr. Gladstone and his wife, when going to Church were obliged to take refuge in a friend's house, where they were escorted by police. Prince Teck was mistaken for Count Schouvaloff, the Russian Ambassador, and insulted and hustled by the mob.

"Kissing Goes by Favor."

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I observe in your issue of this week that in the report of the Road and Bridge Committee the tender of Alonzo Birge for elm lumber at $10 per thousand, was recommended to be accepted. I tendered for the above lumber at $8.45, delivered in G. W. yard or $8.95 delivered in any part of the town; my highest tender being $1.05 below Mr. Birge's tender. This is the second year I have tendered for lumber, expecting to get, at least, fair play, but if the lowest tender is not to be accepted and the advertisement asking for tenders is only a blind to favor particular friends, then I think the ratepayers of Guelph should know of it, and that I think your Road and Bridge Committee exemplifies the old adage that "kissing goes by favor." Hoping you will insert the above in the next issue of the MERCURY, I remain yours, etc.,

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS.—The number of immigrants settled in Ontario in 1877, through the agencies, according to a report recently submitted to the Local House, was 11,654, an increase 222 over 1876. Besides these, 6,225 immigrants were reported through the customs as having arrived and settled in Ontario, making a total of 17,879. These immigrants were principally from the rural districts of Great Britain—the very best class of settlers—and had their destination fixed for them before leaving the Old Country. The assistance to immigrants in the way of reduction of passage money was $3,422, and the total amount expended on immigration was $46,265 36, an average cost of $3.95 per head—very much smaller than that of any other colony. There were 1,914 persons located on 260,801 acres of free grant lands, of whom 149 purchased 5,534 acres. In the free grant regions between the Ottawa river and the Georgian Bay there are 9,000,000 acres, of which about 6,000,000 acres are surveyed and over 1,500,000 acres are disposed of. New townships are surveyed and opened out as they are needed for settlement. Much of the land is fit for cultivation, and it possesses great mineral wealth.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

The Treaty Ratified by the Sultan

The Congress to Meet on the 31st March.

March 10.

A Pera special says:—The question of the visit of the Grand Duke Nicholas to Constantinople results in a compromise. The visit will be less ostentatious than was at first proposed.

A San Stefano special says:—It is stated that Raouf Pasha will ask the remission of 300 millions of indemnity. The Sultan has ratified the treaty.

A Berlin special says:—It is proposed that the three Emperors will meet after the Congress.

The Vienna Political Correspondence asserts that if Russia persists in not submitting the whole treaty to the Congress war is certain.

A Vienna despatch announces that the Congress will open on March 31st.

It is reported again at Constantinople that the Austrians are about to occupy Bosnia and the Herzegovina. This is unconfirmed, but is understood that the Austrian Plenipotentiary will, with the consent of Russia and Turkey, bring the question of the future position of those provinces before the Congress.

A St. Petersburg special says:—The general impression produced by the Czar's remarks at his reception to-day of the diplomatic corps is decidedly pacific.

Union Division Grange P. of H.

The Union Division Grange No. 38 met at Farmer's Home Grange, on the 2nd March, pursuant to adjournment, the Worthy Master presiding. The meeting was opened in due form. The minutes of last meeting was read and approved. After which communications were read by the Secretary from a number of seedsmen, together with price lists of clover and timothy seed. The Secretary was instructed to purchase the same as soon as the quantity required was ascertained. The Worthy Master then gave a short address relative to the rules of the order strictly.

A discussion was then entered into by a number of the delegates with a view of opening a central supply store in Rockwood; after which a motion was made to adjourn one hour for dinner, which the ladies of Farmer's Home Grange handsomely provided. At 1:30 p.m. the Grange resumed business, when the Secretary was instructed to purchase one car load of salt for the immediate use of the Erin Grange.

Moved and seconded that the Executive Committee be and are hereby instructed to take steps to secure salt and plaster for the different Suborbinate Granges, which are desirous of procuring the same.

Moved and seconded that the Secretary be instructed to purchase the new edition of Rituals necessary for the use of the Division Grange.

The election of a delegate to represent the Division at the next meeting of the Dominion Grange, to be held in Toronto in November next was then proceeded with, when Bro. J. Ramsay was elected.

A general discussion then took place with reference to the fraudulent manner in which farmers are dealt with in marketing their produce, viz: A farmer takes a load of pork or butter to market which he disposes of to a dealer at so much per lb., and his ticket is marked. But when he comes to have it weighed at the storehouse he finds that he is docked 2lbs. on each hog and each firkin of butter, and then they tell him that the butter is not the kind they want and that he must take so much less for it although it has been inspected by the purchaser on the market and his ticket marked at so much per lb. Now we hold that the seller has a just claim for all that is marked on the ticket together with every lb. that his produce weighs.

Be it therefore resolved that we as a Corporate body use all legitimate means at our disposal to rectify such an existing evil and further that we call on the aid of the law to assist us in removing from our markets a nuisance which the farming community have long been subjected to.

Moved that we adjourn to meet for the transaction of business at Rockwood on Saturday, June 22nd, at 10 a.m. Doors will be open to the public at 2 p.m., on which occasion a number of gentlemen are expected to address the meeting.

WM. S. MCFARLANE, Div. Secretary.

CHECKER MATCH FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP.—A solution of the problem as to who will be the coming "pontiff" of the checker hierarch will probably be made manifest during the coming summer. Mr. James Wyllie, the veteran champion of Great Britain, has accepted the challege of Robt. D. Yates, the wonderful American expert, and has signed and forwarded articles of agreement from England, where he is on a travelling tour, for Mr. Yates' acceptance and signature. These articles were received in New York early this week, and after some slight modification, was rewritten and despatched on Saturday, 9th inst., for Mr. Wyllie's final endorsement. Mr. Wyllie designates June 17 as the date of the match; fifty games to be played for $500 a side and the championship of the world—Mr. Wyllie to be allowed $100 for travelling expenses. The amendment of Mr. Yates sets the match down for July, with the proviso that if all the fifty games are drawn, playing is to be continued until either party wins one game. The prospects are that these conditions will be mutually agreeable, and the great contest inaugurated.

A daily mail is to be established between Shelburne and Horning's mills.

The Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 11, 1878.

Sir John's Amendment.

In the whole annals of political warfare we think it would be difficult to find a more hollow and yet a more pretentious resolution than that moved on Friday night by Sir John Macdonald in opposition to the policy enunciated by the Minister of Finance in his speech on the Budget. The amendment is as follows:

"That the Speaker do not leave the Chair, but that it be resolved that this House is of opinion that the welfare of Canada requires the adoption of a national policy which, by a re-adjustment of the tariff will benefit and foster the agricultural, the mining, the manufacturing and other interests of the Dominion. That such a policy would retain in Canada thousands of our fellow countrymen now obliged to expatriate themselves in search of the employment denied them at home—will restore prosperity to our struggling industries, now so sadly depressed—will prevent Canada from being made a sacrifice market—will encourage and develope an active inter-provincial trade—and moving (as it ought to do) in the direction of reciprocity of tariffs with our neighbors, so far as the varied interests of Canada may demand, will greatly tend to procure for this country eventually a reciprocity of trade."

What else is this but a piece of political buncombe, skillfully drawn up, carefully worded, and framed so as to catch all classes of the community, and offer them in an indirect way encouragement which in the present state of affairs no one is warranted in holding out. Only a few days before this the leader of the Opposition declared that his policy was not intended to increase the rate of taxation, not to increase the tariff, but to simply re-arrange and readjust the duties as to benefit both the merchant, manufacturer and miner, as well as the consumer—in other words, to enable both buyer and seller in a business transaction to make more money. And yet he now comes down and asks that the financial policy of the Dominion shall move "in the direction of reciprocity of tariffs with our neighbors." Sir John might have, with as much reason as common sense, moved that the Government of the day is deserving of censure because it is not capable of exercising the functions of a divine power. The truth is that the resolution contains a declaration of an almost unlimited number of policies, each one contradicting the other, and the whole making up such a double jointed, back-action, stub-and-twist conglomeration that the wonder is how any individual with even the average allowance of common sense, could expect to get some men to adopt it as the platform of a political party. The hesitancy and faint-heartedness with which it was advanced by Sir John, and the forced efforts of his followers to keep up an appearance of enthusiasm during its announcement, showed that even among themselves they had no confidence in its efficacy and no hope of its popularity. It was the last card in the hand of a desperate political gamester seeking to retrieve his fortunes, and he threw it with trepidation and doubt written in every feature and visible in every word and act.

The Government have very properly treated this amendment as a motion of want of confidence, and they are fully warranted in doing so. It is sufficiently condemnatory of the policy of the Government while its vagueness makes the motion susceptible of almost any interpretation, and leave some still uncommitted to an absolute protective policy. There are some who favor a protective policy who regard it as going too far. Others again regard it as not sufficiently pronounced, while many more consider it a mere catch-penny resolution, big with promise in sound, but sadly deficient in sense. It is too full of loopholes, it is said, to have any real practical value for those who seek protection pure and simple.

The fact is there is no honesty in the resolution. It was skilfully framed for a purpose, in the hope that while it committed the Opposition to nothing, it sought to gull the people into the belief that it favored the principle of protection, and to make them all rich in a short space of time.

It is remarkable that there is not now a Tory Government in power in the Dominion.

The return of the Governor-General's expenses in Manitoba, laid on the Commons table, shows the entire cost to have been $10,573.94. Of this sum $8,000 has been charged against the vote. The balance, $2,593.94, has been charged to unforseen expenses.

A disposition is beginning to manifest itself in Washington against the validity of the Halifax fishery award, on the ground that it was not unanimous The Post's Washington special says:—The President will not transmit to Congress any message regarding the recent award of the Fishery Commission until something definite is heard from Minister Welsh regarding the probable course of the British Government in relation to the recent outrages upon American fishermen on the coast of Newfoundland by British subjects.

Considerable comment has been made in Ottawa over Sir John's speech on Thursday night, when he said that: "Whether he offered himself as a candidate at the coming election or not, or whether, like the member for Charlevoix, he should find himself in the position of having no constituency desirous of accepting his services, other leaders would be found to take his place and support the policy he was then enunciating." Taking this in connection with the well-known fact that prominent supporters of his were indignant at his conduct and acts both in Ottawa and Toronto, and sharp remonstrance from them was given to him against a repitition of those practices, it would seem as if he either determined voluntarily to withdraw from public life at the close of the session, or he expected that he would be compelled to resign by the votes of his supporters.

It is rumored in London that Lord Lyons may succeed Earl Derby as Foreign Secretary.

Mr. Charlton's Speech.

We give to-day the first part of Mr. Charlton's great speech on the question of Protection, and we bespeak for it a careful perusal from all who wish to thoroughly acquaint themselves with the subject, and who are desirous of judging it on its own merits.

The Crisis in Quebec.

The Quebec Legislature was prorogued on Saturday. The writs for the seats vacated by the new Ministry, were issued on the same day, and it is expected the general elections will take place in May. The ex-Minister and Conservative members of the Assembly refused to appear at the prorogation when called by the Lieutenant-Governor's orders. On leaving the building both the Lieutenant-Governor and the Premier and his colleagues were loudly cheered by the populace.

On Saturday, while the House was discussing a question of order, in regard to Supplies, a message came from the Lieutenant-Governor, from the Legislative Council, that he required the presence of the members of the Legislature. When they attended he prorogued the Legislature, using the following words: "Being desirous of ascertaining in a constitutional manner the feelings of the people of this Province regarding the present state of public affairs, and the Ministerial changes which have just taken place, I determined upon proroguing the Legislature of this Province with a view to its dissolution at an early date. I sincerely hope that the electors of this Province will, in the choice of their representatives, exhibit as much judgment as patriotism, in order to assure peace, prosperity, and happiness to the people of this Province."

The work of the Legislature is therefore over for the time being, and the Lieutenant-Governor, having decided to leave the question in dispute to the ultimate decision of the people, they will have full opportunity of expressing their approval or disapproval of his course, and the policy of the new Government.

Mr. Charlton's Speech on Protection.

(Delivered in the House of Commons on March 8.)

Mr. Charlton said he certainly must characterize the resolution moved last night by the hon. member for Kingston as a most remarkable document. It dealt in vague generalties, made use of promises, took the absurd position that legislative action could fight against the uniform laws as the stars in their courses fought against Sisera; that it could reconcile and harmonize conflicting interests, and render all prosperous by robbing all for the benefit of each in turn. (Hear, hear.) When he heard the the hon. gentleman read that resolution, and saw what it goes on to affirm—that by a judicious readjustment of the tariff we should benefit the agricultural, mining, manufacturing, and other industries of the Dominion—he was reminded of the story of the candidate for Congress in Kentucky, whose object was the same as that of the hon. gentleman from Kingston on this occasion—to get elected to office. In his address to his constituents the Kentuckian promised, if elected, to abolish taxation, increase the revenue, marry all the widows in the district, become father to all the orphans, and for such of his constituents as considered it a boon, he would provide a river of brandy, water, and sugar. (Laughter.) His promises would be as easily redeemed as those contained in his resolution. The hon. gentleman, in the course of his speech, asked the question, or rather, challenged any person to point out a nation that had ever risen to greatness through the principle of free trade. He (Mr. Charlton) was not thoroughly familiar with the fiscal policy of the various nations of antiquity, or that of the middle ages; but his impression was that protection is a theory of comparatively recent growth, and was unknown to the ancients and the middle ages. The nations of that time did not know customs duties, but nothing of the principle of protection. If Rome was a great nation, Carthage a great state, Tyre a great commercial city, and Assyria a great empire, they rose to greatness without the benefit of protection, through the principle of free trade. (Cheers.) Free trade came into existence in the 17th century, and is passing out of existence in the 19th. It was not to its credit it came into existence so late and is passing out so soon. Protection is an anomaly, a system of decrepitude. The hon. gentleman also said that England once had a tariff that gave her sole control of her home and colonial markets, and that she would never have obtained her present position but for protection; and that when her manufacturing supremacy was established, she consented to open her markets to the world if other nations would open theirs to her. Well, had England commercial supremacy in 1820, when her total exports were but thirty six millions sterling; or in 1842, at the end of her protection period, when they reached but forty-seven millions? Had she that commercial supremacy she enjoys to day, when her exports exceed twelve hundred million dollars? No! England's position as a great commercial nation, her growth, dates from that period when she abandoned the principle of protection and adopted that of free trade; and during this period of 30 odd years her imports and exports have quadrupled, and she has risen to the rank of the greatest commercial power that ever existed. She owes this position to the blessing of a just and proper trade policy. We were told by the hon gentleman that a cry was set up in England against the admission of American goods. Did any well-informed commercial gentleman in this House suppose that the importation of American goods was to an extent to attract more than a passing notice from the English manufacturer? He (Mr. Charlton) ventured to say that that importation would scarcely supply the stock in trade of half a dozen good-sized wholesale houses. (Cheers.) Where the English people trembling for fear of being supplanted in their own markets in consequence of the small proportion they received of that total of a little over one million dollars worth of iron exported from the States, or of their share of the total quantity of woolen goods annually exported from the Republic—$337,000? The export trade to England in manufactures was a mere bagatelle, and he ventured the assertion that the small invoices of cotton, woollen, and iron goods might have been sent to England at a loss to American exporters for political effect in the United States. The member for Kingston in the prophetic vein the other evening predicted that many now living would live to see England adopt protection again. Time would tell, however. He told us also that Russia, enjoying the blessings of protection, was underselling English goods in neutral markets at that moment, though they met on equal terms. It was a pity he did not designate those markets, however. It was true that in portions of Asia, counties bordering on the Caspian, where the people could only be reached through Russian territory and channels, Russia sold goods, but simply because all others were excluded. But he denied that Russia could undersell England in any fair competition, and challenged proof. The hon. member for Kingston promised that the tariff re-adjustment he proposed should not increase the volume of taxation. Well, it was to be presumed a re-adjustment on a protective basis would not increase the revenue. In fact, it was certain to diminish it. Protection dried up the revenue while increasing the burdens of the people; it wrung money from the people only to increase the profits of monopolies. It was easy for the right hon. gentleman to assert Canada was made the slaughter market of England and the States, but not so easy to furnish the proof. He had drawn a very affecting picture last summer of the distress in the furniture trade of Canada, mentioning particularly the establishment of Hay & Co. Well, in 1871 the production of cabinet furniture in the Dominion was $3,580,000, which, presumably, was largely increased since, so that he might safely say the production last year reached $4,000,000. The importations reached but $276 000 for the same period, a production per head to the amount of $1 15, and an importation per head of 7¾d. He (Mr. Charlton) did not think that an industry with a production twenty times the amount of the rival importations was liable to be swept away by them. Take the carriage industry, production in 1871, $4,481,000; in 1876 77, importations, $91,000; not much danger of this industry being swept away by slaughter sales. Clothing, in 1871, home manufacture, $9,345,000; last year it undoubtedly rose to from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000; imports this year, $162,000; manufacture here, $5 per head; importations, 5½ cents per head. Spikes and nails, 1871, manufacture $1,250,000; importations last year, $172,000. Boots and shoes last year, manufactured, $20,000,000; imported $265,000; or $5 per head of the population of the former, and 5½ cents for the latter. Leather goods, production, $2.64 per head; importations, 5 cents. Woollen goods, production, 1870 1, $5,500,000; importations last year, $321,000. Machinery produced in Canada in 1870-1, $7,325,000; imported last year, $265,000. Agricultural implements, production, 1870-71, $2,685,000; imported last year, $198,000. Talk about destroying our industries by slaughtered goods! We manufactured and sold over twenty dollars worth for every one imported in 1870 71, the figures being $73,500,000 that year, against $3 000,000 imports last year. The cry of slaughtered goods had an object, though no justification. The right hon. gentleman said that no cry was more popular than reciprocity of trade or tariffs with the States. Just there the garment revealed the cloven foot. (Hear, hear.) It was adopted by the Opposition, because the most popular they could go to the country with. Now, he had held twenty meetings in his constituency in January, and that county was a fair representative of the other Ontario Counties; he felt the pulse of his people carefully, and could say they were not in favor of that gentleman's policy of retaliation or protection. He believed that when this question came to be tried before the people, it would lay its dexter finger on the right side of its nose, and pronounce to the right hon. gentleman the oracular words—"Too thin." (Hear, hear, and laughter.) He told the House last night many things new to him (Mr. Charlton), this inclusive, that the consumption of corn by the farmers of Canada amounted to nothing. He, living in a large corn producing county had known of a very large quantity of American corn being imported and consumed in that county; and thus, when there were short crops, when they had sold themselves short of flour, and were pressed for food in spring, a very large quantity was bought. He doubted very much whether any of them would have thought it a great boon if the Government had stepped in and compelled them to pay increased prices for their food by excluding American corn. The assertion that corn was not used by farmers in Canada to any considerable extent was incorrect. They sold barley at prices which enabled them to buy over one and a half or two pounds of corn per pound of barley. They could sell oats also for a relatively higher price than corn, and it was for their advantage to sell peas, barley, oats, and hay, purchasing in their place corn for the feeding of stock. Any interference with this business would be an injury. The right hon. gentleman assured us that the great advantage of reciprocity in tariff would be the securing of reciprocity in trade. He (Mr. Charlton) did not believe that would be the result, but that it would be a diametrically opposite one—that while it would fail to confer a single benefit on Canadians it would injure them in every respect, and put off to an indefinite distance in the future the realization of reciprocity in trade. The right hon. gentleman had also said—and he was astonished at the information—that England was being crowded out of her markets by the competition of the United States, and that she would have no resting place—no mart left by-and-bye—but Africa. But he had looked up the figures, and found that Great Britain's exports of cotton goods last year reached $211,000,000, woollen goods $79,000,000, against the U. S. exports of $323,000; iron and steel, $92,000,000. England's exports to the United States were $12,000,000 more than the total exports to all the world. The United States exported but $72,000,000 to all creation, while Great Britain's exports to the United States reached $84,000,000. England exported to Germany goods to the amount of $100,000,000; to France $80,000,000; to the Netherlands, $58,000,000; and to Russia, $33,000,000—the paradise of protection. The total volume of British exports reached the enormous sum of over 1,200 millions; with ramifications to every nation and every hamleton the globe was speedily to be driven to the interior of Africa for markets for her manufactures. (Cheers.) In reply to the member for Terrebone, he proceeded to explain that there were two kinds of protection—one to trade and the other to life and property, the latter being the beneficent duty of the great, and the former the entrenchment of monopolies in the law. This one would rob one class for the benefit of another. He (Mr. Charlton) also denied the statement that the depression was greatest in Canada. Some of our protectionists here would deny the workingman that benefit enjoyed by his fellows in the States, of purchasing goods very low or for less than they were worth, it being asserted that they were brought in here at present and sold at slaughter prices. The hon. member for Cardwell stated the other day that the value of American goods exported to Canada was $51,000,000 per annum. He challenged the statement at the time and had found from the Custom House statements that that was the value of the quantity of all the imports, but that manufactures had reached but $24,000,000. He protested against such reckless assertions as calculated to mislead and injure the country. The total consisted of over $12,000,000 worth of grain and $1,260,000 of wool for our manufactures, $590,000 raw cotton for our mills, $713,000 representing the effects of immigrants to Canada, $1,124,000 hides, horns, and pelts for our tanneries, $3,160,000 of coal and coke for our manufactures, $289,000 for dye stuffs. He denied that the issue before the country was between free trade and protection pure and simple. We had a revenue tariff which might properly be designated a non-protective system, which was protective to a certain extent but had not protection for its aim. He explained the rival purely protective and free trade systems, saying that a revenue tariff pure and simple involved a schedule of duties which turned into the public treasury every cent of enhanced cost of goods. There was no increase of cost to the consumer but what he got the benefit of. But under a revenue tariff such as we required, where it was necessary to raise a high revenue, and a great many articles must be taxed, it was impossible to avoid protection to a greater or less extent to home industries. On the 17½ per cent. list was a great variety of goods that were produced in Canada. For the present tariff there was simply the bold proposal to exchange it for a protective one, which would increase the cost of all goods to the consumers and at the same deprive the Government of its present revenue from duties. He had been charged with inconsistency in being now a free trader. He defied any man in this House or country to point to any professional who advocated a higher rate of duty than 17½ per cent, or to point to any free trader that advocated any policy that would reduce the duties below that figure. Was there any inconsistency in this? He now said our present tariff was ample for the protection of our manufactures, and that it was impolitic and unwise to change this tariff; that it answered the purpose of a revenue tariff; and was not unduly oppressive to the people. That was his position. He had been unfairly criticized and stigmatized in this matter. He did not suppose it was necessary for a person to maintain strict consistency of views through his whole life. A young man was likely to form opinions that he would change at forty, and he might be inconsistent later on by the increase of his knowledge. He felt no shame in saying that he had entertained opinions which he had afterwards modified, and that he did not believe extreme protection was a blessing to the country. He believed with the member for Kingston, that free trade as an abstract principle was right, and he further believed that the nearer we came to realizing it in practice the nearer the approach was to the best action in the interests of the country. (Cheers). With regard to the state of our industries, he had some remarks to make. At this moment, and for the last four years, there was less depression and distress in Canada than in the States, enjoying all the benefits of protection. (Cheers and counter cheers). Less also than in England, and in that Utopia and Paradise of protection, Russia. (Cheers). We were singularly fortunate in this respect as compared with the neighboring nations. He had corresponded with a great many manufacturers in Canada since the opening of Parliament, irrespective of their politics, with respect to the condition of those industries. He had received answers from a great many, forming a very satisfactory mass of evidence as to the condition of our manufactures. From one extensive cotton mill in the West came information that it had earned ten per cent. He had two letters on this subject, one of a firm respecting which the correspondent stated that he made no dividend last year. He had another letter, stating that the firm it spoke for earned ten per cent., but no dividend was declared, the revenue being passed to capital account to buy machinery, and orders were coming in faster than they could supply them. The next letter was from an extensive manufactory, with a capital of $180,000; gross profits last year, 10 per cent.; prospects of present year encouraging. His next letter was from an extensive founder, with a capital of $180,000 who had made no profits on the fixed capital last year in consequence of a great many bad debts; report home competition too keen, and business already overdone; that the protection he had enjoyed had actually stimulated this industry, which was therefore overdone. (Cheers.) The next letter was from an extensive woollen manufactory; they reported that the depression had affected their business unfavorably, and that there was no prospect of immediate improvement; profits on capital last year, six per cent. He (Mr. Charlton) had noticed the remarkable fact that when our manufacturers earned no higher than a medium rate of interest they thought their affairs in a ruinous condition. A report from a hosiery establishment, in the West declared too much home competition, and business overdone; the writer believed a revenue tariff the true policy; profits last year six per cent., very much cut down by bad debts; prospects the present year fair to good. The next communication was from an extensive foundry: Trade last year very good; profits eight per cent.; did not anticipate any greater increase of profits this year. Also from perhaps the most extensive sewing-machine factory in the Dominion: Small improvement so far in 1878; not running full time; had to be satisfied with interest on investments; want reciprocity. From an extensive manufacturer of carriage goods: Business fairly remunerative last year; prospects of increased business this year; would like a duty of twenty per cent. From the most extensive concern in the West: Hardly as great profits last year as might have been realized on capital by loaning on notes and mortgages. (laughter and cheers). From an agricultural implement manufacturer: reports last ten months' business very good, exporting to Great Britain, Germany, Australia, and Africa. (Laughter and applause).

—OR—
The Gauger of Skene.

CHAPTER XXVI. BEST—THE GAUGER SHOWS HIMSELF AT HIS FATAL HAROLD'S MAGNANIMITY — THE TEMPTATION.

Harold was applying the key to the lock of the door when the gauger's restraining hand and the words he spoke arrested the act. The youth turned round—his mind was again in a state of furious suspicion.

"Ha! you have been deceiving me then!" he exclaimed. "You are the abductor of my wife and child."

"No, sir, no; you have had the full truth from me, and, I believe, from Ned also."

"Then why ask me to stay when every moment is so important? If you cannot help, seek not to hinder me."

"I can help you, and I will," said Gillespie. "Yes, I am resolved to do it at whatever cost to myself, for I am the author of all your misery."

"You are," returned Harold, sternly and bitterly. "But for your wrong doing, none of all this evil would have come upon me."

"I know it. I have rued it a thousand times over, and I will now atone it as far as man can. Ned and myself will emit a true declaration regarding the death of Wanlass."

Harold stood transfixed at the words, and eyed the speaker for some moments steadily and in silence.

"Is this mockery?" he asked, his lips curling with scorn.

"As heaven is my witness, it is not; but wait and you shall be satisfied."

"Ned," he added, turning to his assistant, "I hope you won't refuse to join me in this?"

"Oh, I will do it," answered Skeat. "I will do anything to have my revenge on that most ungrateful scoundrel Gilmour Logan."

"That's enough. Have patience but a few minutes, sir, and I will furnish you with a copy which will at once remove all your doubts and prevent any temptation to me to withdraw from my resolution."

Gillespie sat down at the table and drew a sheet of paper towards him and began to write. As he proceeded his ruddy face flushed to greater redness, and painful spasms crossed over it, but he did not once faulter. He wrote on fast and determinately, dashing off sentences after sentence till the large sheet became filled with his bold handwriting.

Harold paced the room with folded arms full of doubt and impatience. He hardly knew what to make of this. Naturally his anger burned with intense fierceness against the gauger, for he considered him capable of any treachery. He was slow to believe that what he was writing now was a paper of the character he had indicated. He suspected that his object was to detain him till he had in some way or other taken measures for his seizure, and this thought so inflamed the tumult of wrath already surging in his soul that on the first movement he detected towards the accomplishment of such a design he was resolved to shoot his enemy without compunction. He had returned the pistol to his bosom, but his right hand had a firm grip of it there, ready to use it, at an instant's warning. He also kept a watchful on Skeat, had that worthy taken but one step towards the next room he would have pounced on him with the spring of a tiger. Possibly Skeat had an instinctive knowledge that he stood in such danger. Certainly he was very careful to make no dubious motion, but stood at the end of the table watching his master as he wrote, and at the same time sending furtive glances towards Harold, as he strode from side to side like a wild beast in its cage, his eyes flashing restlessly in the yellow candlelight.

At length the gauger paused and looked up at Skeat.

"Read it," he huskily whispered.

"I read as you were writing," was the answer.

"And are you willing to sign it?"

"I am."

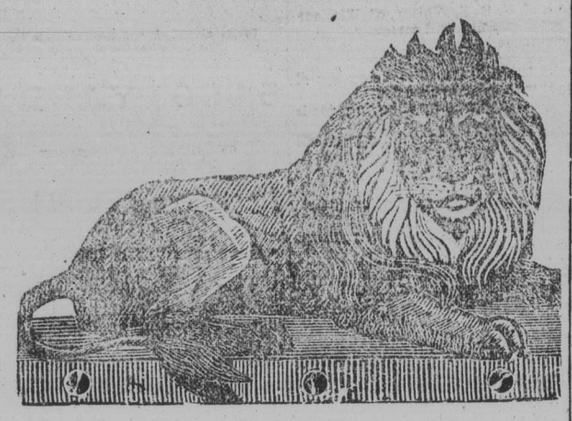
Without further word Gillespie took the pen and with no other manifestation of emotion than a tight compression of the lips, he wrote his name and handed the pen to to Skeat.

The latter took it readily, and without hesitation put his signature immediately beneath.

Pale as death, but calmly and firmly, Gillespie rose and held out the paper to Harold.

"There, sir," he said, "is a paper which will give you your true title of Sir Harold Logan."

The youth advanced a step and took it from his hand. As Gillespie resigned it he became even paler than before, and, sinking back again into his seat, laid his elbows on the table and buried his face in his hands.



Harold read the document in silence. It contained a full confession of the plot entered into between the gauger and Gilmour Logan for the destruction of Harold—narrated the true particulars of the encounter between the Revenue Officrs and the smugglers on the Hill of Fare—and declared particularly that it was not Logan, but Black Dick who shot Wanlass. Then it detailed how Gilmour and Gillespie arranged that the guilt should be fastened on Harold, a false declaration made by the gauger and Skeat, and concluded with the solemn averment shat the statement made by the two latter before the Sheriff was false, in as far as it referred to Harold Logan, who was now declared innocent of the crime which had been laid to his charge.

WHAT THE TELEPHONE MIGHT HAVE BEEN CALLED.—We prophesied even better than we knew the other day, when we said that the adoption of so short a name as "Fernsprecher" for the telephone by the Germans was a matter of congratulation, because they would otherwise find a way of smothering it under some frightfully polysyllabic title. To show how closely the fortunate instrument has escaped this fate, a correspondent in Heilderberg writes us that no less than fifty-four names were proposed in German, all of various degrees of length and atrocity. Some (we will not afflict the reader with the original titles) signified "mile tongue," "kilometre tongue," "speaking post," "word lightning," "world trumpet," and finally one inventor, collecting all his energies for a grand effort, triumphantly produced "doppelstahlblechzungensprecher." The jaw can be replaced by pressing on the molars with the fingers, and guiding the muscles with the thumbs.—Scientific American.

FACTION FIGHT IN MONTREAL.—A serious row took place on Sunday evening between some Orange Young Britons and some Irish Roman Catholics on the Papineau Road. During the altercation two men named Jas Hurst, a Young Briton, and Peter Lacey, an Irish Catholic, were stabbed, but neither of them seriously. The police have arrested three of the roughs, and are in search of others who have escaped. The affair commenced by one of the Catholic Union men boasting that he could thrash an Orangeman, when Hurst took up the challenge, and a fight with fists ensued. Crowds gathered and soon joined in the melee, which was only brought to an end by a body of police coming on the ground.

The black ash wood used for barrel hoops is apparently exhausted in the east of Ontario, and they are now mainly obtained from the County of Lambton, $35,000 being annually paid to the hoop-makers of that county. One firm Campbell Bros., have shipped over 1,000,000 in a year from Watford, and have 800,000 contracted for this winter; and the quantity shipped annually for four years from Lambton, is placed at nine to eleven millions.

A snow blockade prevails on the Union and Kansas Pacific Railroads.

The Mayor and Reeve of Berlin Unseated.

A final decision was given in Berlin on Wednesday in two quo warranto cases, the Queen ex rel., Brown v. Krans and Shoemaker, which have been pending for some time past before the junior County Judge. Both cases have excited a great deal of public interest, as the defendants, Messrs. Hugo Krans, the Mayor, and D. M. Shoemaker, the Reeve, of Berlin, are both well-known, and the proceedings against them are the first of the kind that have been taken for many years past in the county. Both gentlemen were elected to their respective offices on the 7th of January last, and at the last meeting of the old Council, on the 9th of January, they presented accounts against the town which were passed and paid. In the case of Mr. Shoemaker the account was for lumber, and in that of Mr. Krans for sundries, wines, and liquors supplied from his store. The relator, Mr. C. F. Brown, at whose instance the prosecution was carried on, was a member of the Council which passed the accounts, [and, as such, virtually consented to their payment. He subsequently objected to the validity of the two elections on the ground that each of the defendants was disqualified at the time of his election by reason of his then having a contract with the Corporation for the articles referred to. Mr. Krans's election was also objected to on the ground of his being licensed to sell liquor, and both he and the Reeve were also charged with corrupt practices. The evidence was taken before Judge Lacourse. Mr. King appearing throughout for Mr. Brown, and Messrs. Millar and Bowlby for the defendant in each case. At an early stage of the proceedings the Reeve consented to have his election voided, but contended that he should not be made to pay costs. The charges for corrupt practices were then withdrawn against him, and subsequently also against the Mayor, but the other charges were pressed. The defence in the latter's case was that there was no contract with the town, and that if there was, the relator was stopped from asserting it as a ground of disqualification, because he was a consenting party to the payment of the accounts. It was also contended that the defendant had, previous to his election, transferred his liquor license bona fide. After hearing the evidence and the arguments of counsel, the judge decided on Friday that the license had been transferred bona fide, but that a contract had been proved. He held that, as the relator knew nothing of the contract at the time of the election, as he was opposed to the defendant's election, and subsequently consented in a public capacity, as a member of the Council, to the payment of the accounts, he was not debarred from seeking to disqualify the defendants, unseating them with costs, and ordering a new election in each case.

A new election will take place shortly when the late Mayor and Reeve will again seek election.

A Washington rumour states that startling revelations have been made before the Senate Committee on Public Lands, implicating fourteen members of Congress, two United States District Attorneys, and one United States Judge as having accepted bribes, and also proving a private secretary of President Lincoln to have been guilty of selling Cabinet secrets to Wall-street brokers.

The Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 12, 1878

Local News Items.

A new temperance lodge is to be established in town this evening.

WEATHER PROBS.—Fresh southeasterly to northeasterly winds, and cloudy to foggy weather with rain areas.

CURLERS belonging to the Guelph Club purpose having a supper at the Mitchell House on Wednesday evening.

PERSONAL.—Dr. Herod has gone to the Turkish baths, at St. Catherines, for a week on account of ill health. Dr. Brock will have charge of his patients during his stay there.

CLOTHES STEALING.—On Monday night some thieves stripped a clothes line, which was well filled, on the Edinburgh road. This practice is getting quite common and it would be well for people to remove their clothes from the lines before dark.

THE assembly held in Rockwood on Friday evening last, under the auspices of the students attending the academy, was a very successful affair. There were some forty couples present, and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

REVIVALS.—Last night a meeting was held in the Norfolk Street Methodist Church for the purpose of determining whether to continue the special meetings or not. It was resolved to hold one this evening at all events and if successful to extend them for a longer period.

ASSEMBLY.—The Caledonians had a braw time last night at their assembly. The attendance was large, and dancing was kept up till nearly one o'clock to the inspiring strains of Lawrence's quadrille band. Gatherings of a like nature, when under the management of the Caledonians, have always been extremely enjoyable.

FOUL.—The worst ventilated room in the Town Hall buildings is the Police Court. If the Police Magistrate and Clerk were not possessed of strong constitutions, they would doubtless have been laid on the shelf long ago. The dirty, dingy walls are enough to give inebriated prisoners the blues.

THE young man McKelegan, indigent, and in ill health, who applied to the Council at its last meeting for a pass to Toledo, where he would be cared for by his friends, is likely to have his petition granted. The Relief Committee are of opinion that such an act would be a judicious one.

WORSWICK ENGINE WORKS.—It will be with considerable pleasure the public will learn that the roofing and refitting of the Worswick Engine Company's works will be proceeded with at once. The interests involved are valuable to the town, and it is particularly gratifying that a satisfactory settlement has so soon been made with the Insurance Companies and there is a prospect of resuming work at an early date.

EDUCATIONAL.—It has been recommended that a school house be erected in the East Ward, for the better accommodation of pupils. The matter will be attended to at once, under the supervision of the School Board. There are at the present time 121 pupils attending the High School, and prospects of a large increase. The number of pupils attending the Public Schools is 1,245—some 160 more than this this time last year. It has been found necessary to consider the advisability of employing two male and one female teachers extra for the Public School service.

THE "LONDON ADVERTISER."—One of the best exchanges received by us is the Advertiser. Besides the display of a large amount of enterprise in securing the very latest despatches from all quarters, its editorials are ably written—grappling as they do with questions of vital importance to the country in a manner which is highly commendable, and its selections are always made with care. On Saturday morning the Advertiser made its appearance as a morning journal, and if anything is noticeable it is a still further improvement generally. The paper starts as a morning journal with brilliant prospects, and we wish the proprietors rich success in the enterprise, and that the great influence the paper has always wielded in the western portion of the Province may shortly be doubled.

TEMPERANCE.—Mr. McConkey again lectured last evening in the Town Hall to a fair-sized audience. Mr. Robert Mitchell, Vice-President of the Guelph Christian Temperance Club, occupied the chair and made a few interesting introductory remarks. Mr. McConkey related the thrice-told tale of his own degradation through drink; of the agony of body and mind he had endured by the enslavement, and finally of his conversion and now glorious freedom. Rev. James Howie offered a few remarks, a number signed the pledge and received the blue ribbon token, and the meeting dispersed.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE.—A citizen living on the Waterloo Avenue has for some time past been annoyed by having stones thrown at him after dark. The last occasion was on Saturday evening, when the party was on the sidewalk, a short distance from the Gordon street crossing. The stones were thrown from the railway track. Information has been laid with the police, and the guilty parties being known they are to be looked after.

ANOTHER piece of road equal to the "worst spot" on the Eramosa hill, can be seen on Gordon street, directly below Waterloo street. On Monday one of the wheels of a waggon, which was loaded with lumber, sank up to the hub and stuck fast.

BASE BALL.—The forwardness of the season has induced the managers of the Tecumseh Club to begin their season earlier than was at first intended, and the players will be ordered to report for duty on the 1st of April. Should the weather then be unfavorable, practice will be begun in the mechanics' institute gymnasium. It is intended to make some alterations at the grounds. The seats at the western end will be torn down, and the lumber used to prolong the row on the southern side. A prosperous season is anticipated.

FALSE PRETENCES.—Acting under instructions received from A. Livingstone, of Kleinburg, York County, Chief Kelly arrested, in Guelph, on Monday evening, a young man named James Donohue, on a charge of obtaining $90 under false pretences. Donohue at one time lived in Guelph, and was employed at driving a buss run in connection with the Queen's Hotel, at that time kept by Miller. When arrested prisoner smilingly remarked that "It is all right," as though he had half anticipated being provided with sleeping accommodation in the best cell in the lock-up.

LARCENY OF A REVOLVER.—This morning Marsh Quinton was tried before Police Magistrate Saunders charged with stealing a revolver from a noted character who has before been convicted of a charge of keeping a house of ill repute on the Edinburgh Road, named Annie Robertson. This woman swore the revolver was hers it having she claimed a certain private mark. Robt. Barber testified to having repaired it for Quinton and afterwards purchasing it from him. The prisoner claimed to having received the revolver from one Wilson, but as that individual was out of the country he could not secure his evidence. The Magistrate of course held that without evidence to prove that Wilson had given him the article he could do nothing but convict. Sentenced to three months in gaol at hard labor.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.—We are informed that Canon Dixon did not misuse the term "ladies and gentlemen" in reference to those whose misconduct was referred to. What he said, was, that certain persons of both sexes, who from their appearance and years should know better, had behaved with gross impropriety in God's house, proving that they were wholly devoid of all sense of decency and reverence. Neither did he compare them to heathen, for he said that the heathen were remarkable for the respect they paid to the temples of their idols, while those to whom he alluded, he supposed called themselves Christians, yet while in God's House—dedicated to His worship, they were guilty of the most shameless irreverence, and profane silliness. With a few exceptions those who were thus rebuked are not members of the congregation. One young man, whose name has been obtained, was ordered out of the church on Sunday evening, and offenders in the future will be punished with the utmost severity that the law permits.

THE MOOREFIELD FIRE.—From an interview with Mr. John Brodie, proprietor of the Moorefield Mills, destroyed by fire on Sunday morning last, it was learned that two young men named Markle and Roberts had been arrested on suspicion of having fired the mills. It appears that the fire was not seen until ten minutes past six o'clock in the morning, and that before seven o'clock these two young fellows were getting breakfast at Fox's hotel, and were able to narrate the whole story of the burning—even to where the fire commenced. Since then it has also been found that Roberts possesses a remarkably small foot, and that fresh tracks leading from the mills across a plowed field corresponded exactly with the boots worn by that prisoner. Some parties at Teviotdale, who have been heard to boast that they would burn the Moorefield Mills, are also likely to be arrested on suspicion. That the fire was the work of an incendiary there appears to be little doubt. It is hoped that the guilty parties will be found out and severely punished. Mr. Brodie will lose altogether about $10,000 by the transaction, over and above all insurance, &c. There is every probability of the mills being at once rebuilt, as the townships of Maryboro', Peel, and Wallace are prepared to give a bonus of $6,000. Several farmers from Peel have signified their willingness to contribute $100 each as an inducement,

A SEAL THAT IS A SEAL.—Mr. J. B. Armstrong has shown us a document which is certainly worthy of an inspection. He has just received from England the papers securing the patent and exclusive right of manufacturing and selling the celebrated leaf spring in the United Kingdom. What is really odd about the affair besides the document on which the matter is set forth, being in size about that of the DAILY MERCURY, is the great seal attached. The seal is fastened to the bottom of the document by means of a silken cord of about the same thickness as picture frame cord. The seal is perfectly round, its diameter six and half inches, and thickness one inch. It is made of a yellow wax, and weighs about three pounds. The obverse side shows a figure of the Queen seated on a throne supported on either side by figures representing law and justice. The reverse side contains a representation of royalty on horseback, surrounded by courtiers. Around the edge of the seal are characters in Latin having reference to the date and nature of the instrument. The die in which the seal is cast has evidently been a long time in use, as, judging from the impression it is worn. The whole affair was forwarded from the Patent Office in London to Mr. Armstrong encased in a nicely mounted box. For the preservation of the seal it is enclosed in a tin case.

A CRUSH.—There certainly must be a very large number of young men holidaying at the present time. When the Chief unlocked the Police Court room door there was such a crush, that he was nearly knocked off his feet, and in a few moments all the available standing room outside the railings was completely filled. "Hats off," "Order in the Coort," was sung out, and the surging mass of humanity were all attention at once.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

The Mohammedan Excitement in India.

More Talk About the Treaty.

March 11.

The Post says measures must be taken to prevent the Dardanne les and Bulgaria from becoming Russian property.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Sir Stafford Northcote announced that the terms of peace had not yet been received by the Government. He confirmed the statement that Greece would be represented at the Conference.

Trustworthy private advices from India state that the Mohammedans are greatly excited in consequence of the overthrow of Turkey. Serious trouble is apprehended, unless the British Government takes anti-Russian action shortly. It is believed two hundred thousand Moslem volunteers to serve against Russia could be raised without difficulty.

In the House of Lords Earl Derby said he considered it foolish to go into the Congress unless it had a real, not merely a nominal power of dealing with the matters before it.

The Standard reports that all homeward bound men of war have been ordered to be detained at Malta to strengthen the fleet in Eastern waters.

A Vienna correspondent says:—It is stated that Raouf Pasha bears an autograph letter from the Sultan to the Czar as well as the ratification of the treaty.

The Times contends that Russia must submit every one of the peace conditions to the Congress, not excepting the indemnity clause.

Russia has not yet sent a positive reply to Austria's request to fix a date between March 25th and 31st for the meeting of the Congress.

A Berlin correspondent says:—Even Governmental newspapers heretofore favorable to Russia deem it necessary, since the terms of peace are known, to take precautions for the protection of European interests.

The insurrection is very active in Thessaly, Epirus and Crete. Fresh outbreaks in Macedonia are reported.

The Eramosa Road.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR—The town should vote a sum of money as a testimonial to last year's Road and Bridge Committee for their efficient services in putting the streets and roads in good repair, especially the Eramosa Road. This morning at twenty minutes to five a team was stuck on Mitchell's Hill so deep in the mire that a lantern had to be obtained from a neighboring house to enable the parties interested to see the situation and to help in extricating them from the slough of despond into which they had fallen. And now hurdles have to be placed across the road to prevent damage being claimed against the Corporation. Has the contractor been paid? If not, should not the money be retained, as it is a perfect disgrace to have such roads in our town. Yours, &c.,

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—On Saturday night last a daring highway robbery was committed on the Hamilton Road, a short distance from London. It seems that Mr. Wm. Carroll, of the Gore of London, was at the Anglo-American Hotel during the day for the purpose of purchasing horses, and had in his possession a large sum of money. He left at dark, and before reaching home was assaulted and his pockets rifled. Fortunately Carroll had purchased a number of horses during the day, and had only a dollar in his pocket at the time.

Postal Department.

Business Done in Wellington County Offices.

From the report of the Hon. Postmaster General, lately received from the Dominion Government, a number of very interesting facts in connection with Canadian postal service is to be gleaned. During the past year considerable progress has been made in the development of mail routes and conveniences for the public. Several new offices have been instituted in this County during the past year. The statistics supplied show the following results:—

Number of post offices, 5 161; miles of post route, 38,526; annual rate of mail travel, 15,126,676 miles; letters carried, 41,510,000; post cards, 5,450,000; registered letters, 1,842,000; free letters, 1,096,000; newspapers and periodicals 39,000,000, books and miscellaneous articles, 46,308,000; parcels, 90 000; revenue, $1,501,134; expenditure, $2,075,618; number of money order offices, 756; amount of money orders issued, $6,856,873; number of savings bank offices, 282; number of depositors, 24,074; total amount deposited in the year, $1,521,000; deposits and interest to the credit of depositors at the end of the year, $2,639,973. In such a mass of correspondence it is very gratifying to notice how few letters go astray. Of all those registered, only 64 miscarried, and in most of these cases the enclosures were either recovered or the amounts made good. The number of letters passing through the Dead Letter Office was large, amounting to 563,484.

SPECIAL ATTENTION.—We direct special notice to the announcement of the arrival from the old country of new spring goods for the Lion. Messrs. Williamson have also made a lucky hit in purchasing a large stock of cottons at the auction sale lately held at the Cornwall mills. Read their advertisement.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

Board of Education.

Proposed New High School Building.

A regular meeting was held on Monday evening. Present—Judge Macdonald in the chair; Messrs. Newton, Murton, Inglis, Leonard, Robertson, McKenzie, Innes, Wilkie and Dr. Keating.

GOVERNMENT HIGH SCHOOL GRANT.

The Secretary reported that the Government grant for the High School for the last half of 1877, as mentioned in a communication received from the Department, was $400.20.

SITES AND BUILDING COMMITTEE.

Mr. Murton, chairman of the above Committee, reported that they had found that the cost of flooring an apartment in the Central School building for an additional lunch room, would cost about $60. They recommended that the work be done.

The report was adopted.

Mr. Murton reported verbally that the boilers and heating apparatus in the Central School building had been thoroughly examined, and they were found to be in the most perfect order.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The February report of the High School, which was read, showed that the number of boys enrolled was 77 and 44 girls; average attendance 74 boys and 42 girls.

The Secretary reported on the Public Schools attendance for February, as follows:—There were 1,245 pupils enrolled, an increase of 160 over the same month in 1877. There were 656 boys and 589 girls.

The Secretary also recommended two more additional male and one female teachers in order to relieve the over crowded state of some of the rooms.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Mr. McKenzie, chairman of the Visiting Committee for the East Ward, reported that the school room in that Ward at the present time was overcrowded; and recommended that a suitable building be at once erected.

The report was adopted, and the matter of the new building was referred to the Sites and Building Committee to receive tenders. The probable cost, &c., to be reported to the Board before any formal action be taken.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL PROPERTY.

On motion, the Board went into Committee of the whole on the report, having reference to the disposal of a portion of the old Grammar School property. Mr. Murton in the chair.

The report has already been published in the MERCURY.

Mr. Peterson referred to the desirability of going on with the improvements in the Grammar School building. It was remarked in the report that it would be a very fine thing to hand down an unbroken lot of four acres, but notwithstanding that the recommendation was made to sell merely for the sake of $3,000 or $4,000. In time the ground which is a waste now would be filled up and the land be most desirable. The lamentation of the Board now was the want of room, and it would not therefore be judicious to sell valuable land which cost the Board nothing. All agreed that more accommodation was required for the High School, and it was merely a question of finances. He was in favor of erecting a building on those beautiful grounds which would be an ornament to that portion of the town as well as to offer ample accommodation for years to come. The proposed building was supposed to cost some $10,000, but he did not consider it well to keep within a certain figure if $1,000 or $2,000 more would be an object to secure proper accommodation. He had been making enquiries of a practical builder and that gentleman was of opinion that it would not be well to use the old walls, excepting as material. It might even be better to have the site changed, and have the building further back from Paisley street.

Mr. Wilkie considered it would be well to consider just the question of erecting new buildings, and afterwards the question of selling a portion of the grounds. The only reason it was recommended in the report that the old walls be utilized was on the score of economy. The High School would doubtless be made a Collegiate Institute, and when that was accomplished the extra grants which would be received from the Government and the County Council would make up the difference in the cost of maintenance. The opinion of an architect was secured by the Committee before reporting, when it was found that the walls could be readily worked in. The probability of the town extending Oxford street through the grounds would leave a portion of the grounds in an excellent shape for selling, and at the same time have a public thoroughfare around the High School building lot.

Mr. Innes had felt strongly in favor of retaining the whole property intact to be used for school purposes. There was a portion of the land however that could never be utilized for a school ground. The creek which ran through the lot appeared a natural division in the property, and if it was in the interest of the town, or of economy, to dispose of a certain portion of the land it would be well to do so. As to utilizing the walls of the old building it could not well be decided on until a competent architect had taken the whole matter into consideration. As to the question of providing sufficient accommodation for the High School there could be no two opinions, as every member of the Board was anxious to have the school accommodation put on a proper footing.

Mr. Peterson urged deliberation in the matter, so that a building might not be erected that in a few years would be found too small. It was really alarming to him that the Central School building which when erected was thought would be sufficient for many years was now becoming too small.

Judge Macdonald made some explanations in regard to the portion of the ground which was proposed to be sold. The quantity of land which would be left for the High School would be two and three quarter acres. He considered the whole cost of the building to be too much to ask from the town, and the disposal of a portion of the land would enable the Board to place the matter in such a shape as the Town Council would readily fall in with. Unless a desire to economize was shown by the Board they could not expects the councils—County and Township—would give assistance.

Mr. Innes thought the previous speaker was too sanguine in expecting money from Township Councils. The town would have to do the main share, and would receive assistance only from the county. The townships in every case would state that the county grant was all that was right and necessary. He considered that the Board knew full well that they should not place the town in a position to increase the burden of taxation. The school might manage during the present year with the building now occupied, but it could not longer. It was only a matter of forbearance on the part of the Central Committee at Toronto that enabled the Guelph school to receive the Government grant, and therefore the County grant.

Mr. Leonard did not know how the building could be erected without selling a portion of the land. He did not like to vote for the sale of property which was every year increasing in value, but he could see no other way out of the difficulty. A building such as would afford ample accommodation for years to come was absolutely necessary.

Mr. Wilkie remarked that $1,000 or more would be spent this year in excavating and filling in the low portion of the land; the lots to be sold and the building put up next year.

Mr. Innes thought it would be very unadvisable to place lots in the market this year if the building was not gone on with at once. If it was necessary to leave the matter over a year from now it might be more advantageous for the sale of lots. The building however should be pushed on at once, as it was much needed.

Judge Macdonald agreed with the previous speaker.

On motion of Mr. Innes, seconded by Judge Macdonald, the clause referring to the placing of the lots in the market at once for sale, was amended by striking out the words "at once."

The Board resumed after the report as amended was adopted.

The report as amended was then adopted on motion of Messrs. Innes and Wilkie.

Moved by Mr. Innes, seconded by Dr. Keating, that the School Management be associated with the Sites and Buildings Committee in providing for increased accommodation for the High School, and that this joint committee submit to the Board a plan of the proposed building and the probable cost of the same, and also a plan with respect to the sale of the lots belonging to the High School property, before putting the same in the market.

Board then adjourned.

The Militia Drill.

In the House of Commons on Monday, Mr. Higinbotham asked whether it was the intention of the Government to carry out the following recommendations conferring the militia contained in the last report of the Lieutenant-General commanding:—1st. To extend the period of annual drills to 28 days. 2nd. To establish three model training schools for cavalry and infantry. 3rd. To raise brigades of garrison artillery at Quebec and Kingston, and to reduce the Ottawa brigade?

Mr. Jones—It is not the intention of the Government to extend the period of annual drill to 28 days, and they have not yet decided the number of days the militia will be drilled. With regard to the second question, I would say it is not the intention of the Government to establish these schools, nor is it their intention to raise brigades of garrison artillery at Quebec and Kingston. The question involved in the remainder of the inquiry has yet to be considered.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of GILES' LINIMENT IODIDE OF AMMONIA, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases DR. GILES likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says, on application to him at his office, 451 6th Ave., New York.

INHUMAN TREATMENT.—J. H. Hargraves, who keeps a hair establishment in London, and employs a large number of girls, was before the Police Court on Saturday, on a charge of outrage preferred against him, on behalf of one of the girls named Annie Sparks, by Dr. McTaggart. The doctor was called in, a few days ago, to treat another of the girls, and noticed that the girl Sparks was peculiarly disfigured. On asking the cause, he learned that the marks were caused by Hargraves' ill treatment. He had habitually beaten her until it was feared that she was losing her reason. She was once strung up by the hands, and kept in that position a long time, being fed by another girl with a spoon. At another time Hargraves locked her up in a dark room for a day and night, and before thrusting her in had made her remove all her clothing except a thin outer garment to prevent her using them as a bed. His ill-treatment was once varied by using a gag. The girl Sparks is one of Miss Rye's emigrants. Examination of the case was reserved.

MUTINY AMONG THE SWISS GUARDS.—The disturbances among the Swiss Guard at the Vatican continues. Forty have been dismissed. Some fanatics, both inside and outside the Vatican, are tampering with these mercenaries for the purpose of creating difficulties for the Pope. A Rome despatch states that measures are impending against certain persons of high position at the Vatican for instigating the mutiny among the Swiss Guards.

The Lancet draws attention to the progress of the cholera. The outbreak of the disease in Mecca appears to have been serious. The total mortality there from all causes from the 24th of December, 1877, to the 12th of January, 1878, is stated to have been 1,382, of which 185 deaths were assigned to cholera. At Jeddah the total mortality from all causes from the 29th of December to the 6th of January, was 200, of which 96 deaths were reported as due to cholera.

THE GOOD TIMES HAVE COME AT LAST.—And so has that which has hitherto been looked for in vain, namely, a medicine that could be relied upon for curing rheumatism, colds, coughs, neuralgia, tic douloureux, burns and frostbites, bowel complaints, &c. It is called the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," and everyone should really possess a bottle of it without delay. It gives relief the moment you apply it, and will effectually cure your disease; in fact it is the most wonderful medicine ever brought before the public Sold by all medicine dealers.

Consumption, so prevalent and so fatal is dreaded as the great scourge of our race and yet, in the formative stages, all pulmonary complaints may be readily controlled by using "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers." They will relieve the worst cough in a few minutes, and have a most beneficial influence on the bronchial and pulmonary organs; but they must be used in time. Public speakers and singers will also derive great benefit by using them. Sold by all druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per box.

TUESDAY EVEN'G, MARCH. 12, 1878.

The Fisheries Award.

The Americans are trying by every possible loop hole to evade the payment of the award made by the Commission appointed to adjudicate on the claims of Canada for compensation for the privilege of fishing in our waters, under the terms of the Washington Treaty. These Commissioners, it will be remembered gave their decision that the United States should pay Canada five and a half million dollars. It was questioned at the time whether the Americans would agree to this, as, through the stupidity of Sir John Macdonald—who was our representative at the time the Treaty was drawn up—any decision that the Commissioners might come to would be rendered null and void if any one of them dissented from it. It was natural enough to expect that the Commissioner representing the United States should do so, and that the representatives of the people in that country, who wish to drive a hard bargain, should take advantage of this proviso in the Treaty.

The first discussion on the case came up in the United States Senate on Monday, on a motion brought up by Mr. Blaine for the furnishing of all copies of the correspondence relating to the appointment of the third Commissioner, in conformity with the twenty-third article of the Treaty of Washington. This motion was no doubt based on the report which was circulated by the New York Herald some days ago, that Mr. Delfosse, the third Commissioner, was not acceptable to the American Goverment, and that in a sense he was thrust on them, as they were obliged, according to the terms of the Treaty, to accept any third Commissioner who might be named by a neutral Power. According to Mr. Blaine's statement, Mr. Delfosse as Commissioner had been peremptorily declined by the U. S. Government, but had been afterwards appointed by the Austrian Ambassador, into whose hands the matter had been placed. Mr. Blaine went on to say that if he was "correctly informed the correspondence for which the resolution called would disclose a designed and persistent effort on the part of the British Goverment to secure an advantage in the selection of the third Commissioner. He related the history of the fishery negotiations, and said it was difficult to treat the award with respect, as it made us pay 5 million dollars per annum for the privilege of catching less than $400,000 worth of fish. The Treaty of Washington, creating the Halifax Commission, gave no authority to the mere majority of the Commissioners to make an award. He quoted from eminent English authorities to show that as the American Commissioner dissented the award had no binding force. Great Britain under similar circumstances would refuse to pay a single penny. The treaty, as it stands, is a mockery of justice, making us pay a million per annum to Great Britain for destroying the great fishing interest of America and further crippling and weakening us as a commercial power."

From the above it will be seen that the Americans—or at least a portion of them—are meanly trying to evade the payment of the amount that has been fixed on by the Commission. It is true that the people's representatives on the other side of the lines are not all of one mind, for we find that among them there are some honorable exceptions. Some of the members of Congress—notably Mr. Hamlin and Mr. Dawes—took the ground that the honor of the Government and the country required the payment of the award. It is questionable, however, whether Congress will assent to this view, and we would not be at all surprised if the payment of the award is evaded on mere technical grounds, independent altogether of the merits of the case. It is said that the Government have no fault to find with the appointment of Mr. Delfosse, and in that case we cannot see why Congress should object to the payment of an honest debt, which has been fairly decided by a competent and impartial Commission. But we never yet knew the Americans to deal fairly and honestly in such matters. They are always trying to drive a hard bargain, and their diplomacy and dealings with other powers remind one very much of the basswood ham and wooden nutmeg dealers. If the United States want to do a manly and honorable action, let them pay over to Britain the balance of the Geneva Award, for which there are no claimants, and then pay over to Canada in good negotiable coin—not in the new fangled dollar—the amount that the Fisheries Commission have decided by a majority the Dominion is properly entitled to.

MR. GAVIN FLEMING has accepted the Reform nomination for North Brant.

THE Conservatives meet at Barrie on the 21st to nominate a candidate to oppose Mr. H. H. Cook in North Simcoe. Mr. Dalton McCarthy kindly endeavored to save them the trouble by nominating himself, but there seems to be a feeling abroad either that the business of nomination should be regularly done, or that a stronger candidate is needed in order to defeat Mr. Cook.

A REFORM Convention for Huron was held a few days ago at Clinton, all the Riding being well represented. There was a unanimous feeling in favor of bringing out as a Reform candidate for the Commons M. C. Cameron, Q. C., of Goderich, the former member for the constituency. Cheering reports were presented from all sections, and the prospect of electing Reform representatives for all the Ridings is very good.

SAYS the London Advertiser:—John Joseph Hawkins has been elected President of the South Brant Conservative Association. He now says Sir John is just the clean-handedest politician anybody could desire. Yet in September, 1874, this was what John Joseph said at Glencoe:

"He had been present at the firing of the last gun when the political sun of Sir John Macdonald went down for ever in the winding-up of the nefarious Pacific Scandal transaction."

Mr. Charlton's Speech on Protection.

(Delivered in the House of Commons on March 8)

Sir John Macdonald—What African tribe uses a reaper?

Mr. Charlton—I don't think that they belong to any other tribe than the Anglo-Saxon, a little north of Cape Town. (Hear, hear.) From a sewing machine manufacturer running three-fourths time, profits last year reduced, want free trade in brass, iron, and other raw materials. (Ministerial cheers.) From a very extensive implement manufacturer in the West: did a larger and more profitable business than ever before, expects to increase it this year; profits satisfactory, wanted no more protection; duties more protective now than in 1869 70 71 and '72. He (Mr. Charlton) had heard that position contradicted. From a large foundry in the West: business improving; profits last year 20 per cent.: too much home competition. (Laughter and cheers.) Another letter from an agricultural implement manufacturer in the West: making every year 1,500 reapers, business increasing, profits last year 23 per cent.; more protection would damage business. (Cheers.) Another western manufacturer wrote business increasing rapidly, exporting 400 machines; profits last year 20 per cent. on sales, 40 on capital. Another implement manufacturer expected to do double the business of 1877 this year, wanted no more protection; profits on capital last year not less than twenty per cent. From another implement manufacturer in the West: business 20 per sent. greater than ever before, and rapidly increasing; profits good; exporting to Australia, Great Britain, and the United States; wanted no more protection. Next from a manufacturer of knit goods: was holding his own; thought others in the same line in about the same way. Another agricultural implement manufacturer reported trade much the same as in former years; seeking to extend it in the Lower Provinces, and complained of difficulty in sending goods and of American competition; had no faith in Tory protection. (Cheers and laughter.) The next letter was from James Noxon, of Ingersoll, President of the Noxon Brothers Manufacturing Company (agricultural implements,) This gentleman reports last year a profit of 28 per cent. He was at liberty to make public the following extracts from the letter:—.

INGERSOLL, Feb. 21. 1878.

DEAR SIR,—I have your letter of the 15th inst. The profits of this Company for the last year, after making provision for bad and doubtful debts, were 28 per cent. on the paid up capital stock. Our usual profits are over 30 per cent., but were slightly less last year owing to a defect in some of our reapers that was not discovered until they had been sent out into all parts of the country, and which cost us a large amount of money to remedy. The prospects of the present year are good, and we expect to get our profits back again to the old figure on this year's business. There never was a more absurd cry than that manufactures are languishing for the want of protection, while the fact is the manufacturing industries, not including lumber, are to-day more prosperous than any other of the great industries of the country, with the possible exception of agriculture. It may safely be said that the manufactures of Canada are as prosperous as those of any country in the world at present.

Yours faithfully,

JAMES NOXON.

This correspondent gave the names of other manufacturing establishments in that town in a highly flourishing condition, saying that a large woolen mill had paid last year fifteen to twenty per cent. It might safely be said generally that the Canadian manufacturers were as prosperous as those of any other country in the world. To resume of those twenty-one establishments six reported dividends of twenty per cent. and upwards; two reported ten per cent.; two that their profits were satisfactory, and from what he knew of them he believed they exceeded twenty per cent. One reported profits much the same as in former years, six profits at from 6 to 8 per cent., one profits reduced as compared with former years, and two only no dividend. He had a statement of the business of forty-eight manufacturing firms in New England last year, and was happy to say that the exhibit of the Canadian firms was much more satisfactory. The New England firms represented a capital of $52,320,000. Sixteen reported last year no dividend, nine less than six per cent., eight six per cent., and but seven ten per cent. and upwards. What a contrast! The Canadian manufacturers were highly prosperous compared with those of New England. He had furnished sufficient satisfactory proof that his assertion as to the superior condition of our manufacturers and artisans was correct. He repeated, also, that the distress here had been less and also the depression than in the United States, England, Germany, and Russia.

Sir John Macdonald—Have you read all the answers? (Opposition cheers.)

Mr. Charlton—I have suppressed no information I received—have kept back nothing not strictly private. (Ministerial cheers.) He went on to observe that whatever depression existed in Canada was due to over-production. The general depression, moreover, throughout the world must have injuriously affected the commercial interests of Canada. It was impossible the manufacturing interests of Canada should not have sympathised with the depression in other lands. We had in the national policy propounded by the hon. gentlemen opposite the promise that prosperity should be conferred on this country by protection; this was to be the panacea for all ills of mining, manufacturing, and other industries. The speaker went on to consider the amount of prosperity efficient protection would confer on them. The vast majority of enterprises belonged to the category of natural manufactures, such as employed bakers, carpenters and stonemasons, who were indispensable to any community. How large a proportion of those occupations or industries was due in 1870-1, to the protection afforded by our revenue system? The proportion needing protection and due to it was $19,000,000. Of the 187,942 persons employed in the various industrial pursuits among us not, at the outside, more than 37,500 were at employments benefitted nearly or remotely by protection. The next question was—to what extent would these 37,500 be increased by the adoption of the best system of protection? We imported last year of goods paying specific duties that might possibly be manufactured here, $398,000, and of goods paying 17½ per cent., $35,209,000: on the ten per cent. list, goods of the same class to $508,000; on the five per cent., $3,883,000; and on the free list, $3,333,000; of the $42,800,000 imported that, by an efficient system of protection, might be manufactured in Canada. The first sacrifice which would be entailed by the exclusion of those goods in loss of duties would last year be $6,691,000; second, there would be an increased amount of duties necessary to lead to the production of those very goods here amounting to from ten to twenty per cent. The increased cost of those goods would be further some $5,140,000. The goods already manufactured in Canada would also be further enhanced in cost by the increased cost of those imported to the extent of $2,950,000, which would be the total cost to the Canadian people of producing the $42,882,000 in Canada. The total additional cost would therefore be $14,792 to Canada, that would be the advantage. Now, how many operatives would this expenditure add to the population of Canada? Calculating by the per capita production of goods in the United States, where each operative was credited with $2,000 worth, he went on to show the total gain of Canada in population would be some 22,000, including men, women, boys, and girls. For this gain we were to be called on by this admirable policy of the right hon. gentleman to bear a loss of $14,752,000 per annum, and to pay an annual tax of $625 on every operative brought into Canada, which sum capitalized at five per cent. would represent $12,500 for each operative. Brilliant beyond measure would be this piece of statesmanship. We were promised in a general way benefit to other industries. What other? Was it the lumber, one of the most important interests in Canada? That looks to the foreign market for its demand. Protection in any degree was an injury to that interest. Did the hon. gentleman propose to benefit the shipping industry by imposing a tax on ship-building materials?—by hampering the trade of this country and drying up the sources of a business that had made Canada the fourth Maritime State in the world? He could propose no restriction on trade in the line of protective duties that would not injure the shipping interest. Would he propose to benefit the fishing industry by duties on salt? By no possibility could be benefit it one iota by protection. He (Mr. Charlton) had stated that the great bulk of the national manufactures which must exist in any country, forming the mass of the whole, could not in any way be assisted by protection. And even the protected industries were in but few instances advantaged by protection. He held that the duty on pig iron in the States had embarrassed and injured the trade, as statistics proved. The same was the case with regard to bar iron, every industry using which suffered so by raw steel any manufacturer would tell you that all the protection he wanted was the abolition of the duty. The value of the amount of this article produced in the States bore the proportion of 1 to 30 only. With regard to dye stuffs, cloths and other commodities manufactured in and imported to the States by the system of protection which gave a sop to each interest, the benefit that was received in one way was neutralized in another. The mischief might be variously illustrated. The duty on coal would increase the cost to the manufacturer of his motive power and to be an extra tax on everybody's fuel. The effect of this class of duties was to rob all, one for the benefit of the other, and the ultimate result was to leave things no better than they were. Protection invariably enhanced the cost of manufacturers; the duty and profit had to be advanced over and over again, becoming an ever accumulating element in the ultimate cost. He desired to call the attention of the right hon. gentleman to the evil results of making protection an element of uncertainty in the tariff policy, such as the Americans had complained of most grievously. They had had thirty-five different Tariff Acts, and a system of change and insecurity in a corresponding degree. Manufacturers never knew what to expect or at what moment the popular mill would tack and shift. If people were going to govern themselves intelligently they should understand the questions they were to decide, and free trade and protection the mass were scarcely competent to deal with. The effect in the States had been an ever shifting unstable policy. The natural effect of protection here would be the same as in all other countries—at first a checked export demand. The person abroad formerly accustomed to supply us with goods would be shut out by the duties, and as a natural consequence his desire and ability to purchase food, &c., here was impared, and he ceased to be so good a customer for those agricultural products. Next, it checked the demand for facilities of transportation, increased to the agriculturist the cost of his implements, clothing, furniture, &c. His export demand checked, his prices were reduced, and the price of all he had to buy increased. He (Charlton) defied any man to prove that result had not been obtained in the States. (Cheers.) What would remedy or avert this result? One thing only: that protection should create in the country a market for the agricultural surplus, and necessitate the importation of more goods. That done, protection would redeem the promise of its advocates, and compensate the agriculturist in a measure for the taxation he was called on to endure. But the most efficient protective system would fail to add to the population a sufficient number to consume our surplus agricultural products. The agriculturist, with a diminished market and higher prices for everything he had to buy, would be worse off than ever. So much for protection, and the promise of the right hon. gentleman to so adjust the tariff as to enable the agriculturist to sell and buy in the markets that suited him best. No restriction or impediment was created by legislation, nothing to prevent his making the best bargain possible. Another of its characteristics was the maximum of production at the minimum of cost, and further liberality to obey the natural laws in all commercial transactions. It imposed no artificial restraints, it had no State bank, no laws at variance with the principles of common sense. It gave to mankind abundance and leisure. Protection brought on scarcity and an increase of the people's toil for the supply of their wants. Was it not the Creator's design that man should hold commercial and social intercourse with his fellow-man? Was it not the design of commerce to confer upon one clime or zone the riches and blessings of all others, and to secure, by the intermingling of all races, the benefits of thought, invention, learning, culture to all, to raise man from the condition of the savage to the condition of enlightenment and civilization? Why did we build railways and construct telegraphs across continents and oceans, and steamships to make of the Atlantic a ferry, and push our commercial ventures to the remotest corners of the globe, if not for enlarged trade and intercourse with other nations? Whatever a majority in the House might say, to surround the nations with walls of separation was not for the benefit of any. Commerce was the great civilizer of the world. (Cheers.) Having added that protection, on the other hand, diminished the purchasing power of labour, was an attempt to grow rich by taxation, plundered the people for the selfish gains of a few monopolists, taking advantage of the masses by legislation, he proceeded to describe its moral evils, including the encouragement of falsehood and partiality. People drew thence the inference that the law was the respecter of persons, and that property acquired by such means and aids was obtained by theft. It was but another step from the idea that property itself was theft to the commune. Protection, though only two hundred years old, was in a state of decrepitude, and rapidly passing away. In the letters he had read several Canadian manufacturers already complained of overproduction. The first result of protection excluding foreign goods would be great profits; the next over-production, when one of two things would follow. Many manufacturers would combine to reduce production and run on short time, and if this failed, as it would, over-production and bankruptcy would ensue, the wiping out of the unnecessary number, and the ruin of the very man for whose benefit the system had been devised. The country would lose nearly $15,000,000 in Customs for the gain of 22,000 workpeople, and in the end damage would be sustained by every man in the land for whose benefit the system had been imposed. The farmer would not gain by the proposed duty on grain or tax upon food. In ordinary years we exported a surplus of all grains except corn. Perhaps in exceptional years we required more wheat than we exported. We export ordinarily wheat, barley, peas, and oats in excess of our imports of those articles. What benefit could we confer on the farmer by taxing them, since the price in England governs the price received in the States and Canada? A duty, however, would raise the price of corn. How much did gentlemen opposite propose for it? Were a duty of 5 cents a bushel imposed—only 3 cents being fixed by the national policy of a few years ago—it would not give the farmers of the corn growing counties lying north of Lake Erie, and including Norfolk, more than $8 16 per man. Now that county's quota of the $14,000,000 revenue which would have to be raised, were all foreign manufactures kept out, would be $128,000, against a gain of some $12,150 from the corn duty. Now his constituents were not going to make that exchange. They had figured up the account, and were not going to give ten dollars for one dollar. The speaker next dealt with the theory as to the probability of a reciprocal tariff for Canada, forcing the Americans into reciprocity of trade. What was their purpose in abrogating the treaty of 1854? Avowedly the forcing of Canada into annexation. Did it not, however, on the contrary, put the consummation of that purpose infinitely further away? It proved in the end a blessing in disguise, as Canada commenced exporting her own products, becoming her own factor, and furnishing employment to Canadian shipping, capital, and sailors; and in 1874 we handled some $30,000,000 of American produce, importing that amount, and exporting $42,000,000 worth. Would it have been good to deprive our merchants, banks, and sailors of this trade? It was business of this kind that made Canada a great maritime State. Gentlemen opposite proposed a policy that would deprive Canada of this beneficial trade. He denied we could retain this trade in the bonding system. The competition between us and the Americans was of such a nature that the slightest difference would be to divert the great trade from Canadian to American channels. We had spent millions in constructing our canals, and were now enlarging them, not simply to accommodate to Canadian trade, but to obtain as well a share of the great trade of the West. When the Welland Canal was about to bid defiance to all competitors, we were to step in and impose restrictions on this trade and divert it to the United States. The proposal was a piece of sheer fatuity. Did American protection benefit the corn grower? No, it simply drove from American channels the trade they enjoyed during reciprocity. Mr. Charlton next called attention to the average prices obtained by Canadians during the reciprocity, comparing them with subsequent prices, and asserting that with the single exception of cattle they had been higher since the abrogation of the treaty. The facts and figures he had compiled bore out this position. We heard a great deal about the balance of trade, and that if it lay against a country, that country must, forsooth, be on the high road to ruin. Now for the last seventeen years there had been always an enormous balance of trade against England, averaging £113,500,000 — a balance, however, representing her profits. He had abundant proof of this fact, showing that those profits included, as in the case of Canada's trade, also the gain on the outward cargo, the net profits on freight each way, commissions, and so forth—the apparent adverse balance representing in reality a large actual commercial advantage. Examining the matter closely, one could see the absurdity of the calculations often based on the generally received opinion with regard to the balance of trade. Now, with regard to protection in the United States, it had been made use of most extensively by Opposition orators, the system being landed as admirably designed to secure national prosperity, wealth and greatness. No country had given the rival systems of protection and free trade a fairer trial than the Republic, three distinct periods being devoted to each. In the last, extending from 1862 till the present year, there had been wrung from the people the astounding amount of $2,429,000,000. Mr. J. Walker and other authorities in the States had computed that for every $5 the Government had taken by protective duties the manufacturers had received $14 by the enhanced prices of their goods. The people not only paid that enormous sum to the Government, but in addition $4,873,000,000 in increased prices to manufacturers. Those sums represented the wholesale cost only. Add the wholesale and retail dealers' profits, 25 per cent. to this bulk sum, and we reached the astounding sum total of $8,544,000,000 as the cost to the consumers of the United States of the partial system of protection during the last seventeen years. They not only lost all that, but received less money for everything they had to sell. To induce those consumers to submit to this enormous load of taxation the same delusive promises were made as hon. gentlemen opposite had been making the people of Canada of late, and which were calculated to bring them the same disappointment, loss, and disaster as had overtaken their neighbors in the States. The agriculturalist was promised more consumers.

—OR—
The Gauger of Skene.

CHAPTER XXVI.

THE GAUGER SHOWS HIMSELF AT HIS BEST—HAROLD'S MAGNANIMITY — THE FATAL TEMPTATION.

The youth read the paper from beginning to end amid a mighty rush of feeling, the character and intensity of which it is impossible to describe. He could no longer think that Gillespie was deceiving him; he held that in his possession which put the sincerity of the gauger's repentance beyond doubt. With this document he could fearlessly return to his prison cell in the Tolbooth, have the sentence of outlawry reversed, be acquitted of the charge laid against him, and have his inheritance restored. Then Gilmour, having no longer a motive for keeping his wife and child prisoners, would release and return them. What a tremendous temptation did these accumulated advantages present—with what a mighty force it came against him. Scarcely one man in a thousand could have resisted it, but Harold Logan was that man. He had the power to look at the other side of the picture, and at sight of what he saw there his magnanimous soul recoiled with rapidity.

He looked from the paper to Gillespie, and the expression of his countenance was much softer than before. The gauger's bowed form caused still more relenting feelings to swell to his bosom. His generous nature fully appreciated the noble act of atonement involved in the writing of such a paper, and he found himself respecting, almost forgiving, the man who had done him such an injury.

"Gillespie," he said, "are you aware of the consequences to you or which will follow on the production of this paper?" he gently inquired.

"I am perfectly aware of them, Mr. Logan. It must result in my professional ruin, and in such punishment as the law awards to the deed which was done; but I deserve it all, and must bear it as best I can."

"Give me your hand," cried Harold, with a burst of feeling.

The gauger rose in astonishment, and mechanically held out his hand to meet the other's grasp.

"Gillespie, I have misjudged you," said Harold, as he warmly shook the hand which he seized. "I did not think you capable of such noble conduct as this. Now I see you have under untoward influences yielded to strong temptation, as many good men have done before you. But this proves that you are naturally generous and honorable, for a man whose heart is really bad would not have sacrificed himself thus to atone for the evil he had done. From this moment, Gillespie, I respect you? from this moment the bitterness which in my heart I cherished towards you is gone. For the rest—see!"

He deliberately folded the paper, walked to the fire, and thrust it between the bars of the grate, where it was instantly in a blaze.

In dumb amaze Gillespie and Skeat witnessed this act, nor was it till the paper had been curled up by the flames into black ashes that the gauger shook himself free of the spell which enchained him.

"What is your meaning for doing that?" he wonderingly asked.

"For all our sakes that paper is best out of existence," said Harold. "It put a strong temptation before me—a very strong temptation, Gillespie; but I am glad I resisted it, for in doing so I have preserved my honour."

"I—I do not understand you."

"Here is the explanation. I promised Black Dick that I would not betray him, and I could not have used that paper without doing so. If my innocence is ever to be made known it must be by him, and voluntarily. My mouth is sealed, my hands are held, I can do nothing. Nor could I endure the thought of bringing you to ruin through your own act of noble self-sacrifice. Therefore I have destroyed the paper; but I am glad you wrote it, for it has furnished me with such a proof of your sincere regret for the past as wins my admiration."

"That's uncommon handsome of you, Mr. Logan," cried Skeat. "I did not think anybody could have thrown away such a chance. It makes me more sorry than over that we did what we did against you. But I was most to blame in the affair, sir. It was me that suggested the base plan to Mr. Gillespie. He never could have thought of it, and I had a hard task to get him to consent to it. All the blame is mine, and I only wish I could have borne all the penalty."

"Hush, Ned, no more of that," said Gillespie, hastily, and in a voice shaking with emotion. "We were both equally concerned, but I was worst, through my official position. I cannot express to you, Mr. Logan, my sense of your generosity, but I feel like Skeat, that it makes my conduct toward you all the worse. I wish, oh, I wish, I could do something in your behalf."

"Perhaps you can do much," returned Harold, quickly.

"How, how?—only show me how?"

"By making efforts to discover where my wife and child have been taken."

"Ha! yes, to be sure. I will put in operation every means in my power for that end, and if their place of seclusion is within this district of Aberdeenshire, be sure I or some of my agents will ferrit it out. When I have any information to give how shall I convey it to you?"

"Take it to Walter Adamson. He has the all the information of communicating with me. I shall proceed to Aberdeen now and see him."

"To Aberdeen, Mr. Logan!" exclaimed Mr. Gillespie, surely you will never venture near Aberdeen! Only think of the danger."

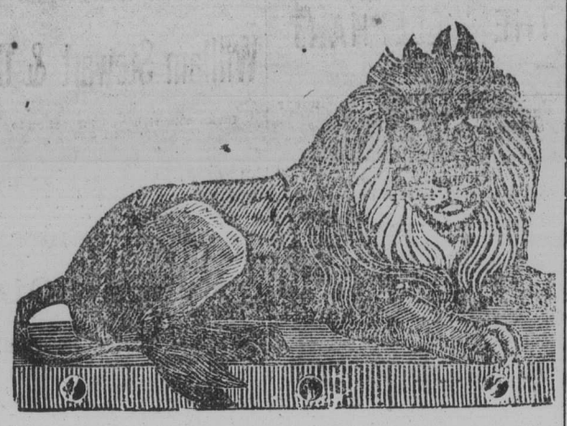
"There is little danger in this disguise," said Harold, drawing the shepherd's plaid about him, preparatory to taking his departure.

"In that disguise!" echoed Ned Skeat. "If you appear at Huxter Row in that disguise, Tom Ironby will recognize you in a moment."

"Egad, so he will, for he has seen me in it before, so I must don another. I thought," added Harold, "of riding in to Mount Cairn and forcing Gilmour at the pistol muzzle to restore my wife and boy; but, on reflection, I have resolved on this other course."

"It is no doubt the best of the two," said the gauger; "only for the danger of discovery."

"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."



If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Mar. 11.

The Speaker gave his decision on the point of order raised last Saturday morning as to whether the debate on the amendment proposed by Sir John Macdonald to the motion to go into Supply should take precedence of all other business. He decided that the regular business of the House should proceed as it was fixed on the paper. The Premier, as representing a large majority of the House, felt it necessary for him to consider the best means of expediting the public business. He expressed the hope that gentleman opposite would not unnecessarily prolong the debate.

Mr. Irving introduced a Bill whereby judgments obtained against railway companies for debts incurred in working expenses may be enforced against railway property, and to authorize the appointment of a receiver and manager in certain cases.

Mr. Huntington, in reply to Mr. McCraney, said the Government would give fair consideration to any proposition for carrying mails on the Hamilton and North-western Railway.

In moving for reports of the surveys of Lakes Manitoba and Winnipegoosis and the River Saskatchewan, Mr. D. A. Smith advocated the improvement of navigation in the North-west.

Mr. Mackenzie, after describing the water system of the North-west, said it was the intention of the Government to remove boulders from the Saskatchewan and Assiniboine Rivers in order to improve those water-ways.

A lively discussion arose on Mr. Domville's motion for correspondence respecting the distribution or loan of old rails not yet submitted to Parliament. He made his motion the basis for a general attack on the railway policy of the Government. He had the report of a speech made by Mr. Ferris, M.P., in which he was reported as having said he would oppose the Government if they did not give him rails for the New Brunswick Central Railway.

Mr. Ferris replied sharply, denying the truth of the report of his words. What he really said was that the rails were granted by Parliament, promised by the Government, and if they did not give the rails he would withdraw his confidence from the Government.

Mr. Tupper went into a history of the old rails from his point of view, and insisted that the manner in which these rails had been distributed required explanation.

The Premier showed that Parliament had authorized the loan of rails to certain roads, of which the Central was one. He pointed out that the applications for these rails were all sent to the Superintendent of Railways, the Government never interfering in the management of the Intercolonial, which was conducted purely on business principles.

Mr. Mitchell took to himself the honour and responsibility of the construction and location of the Intercolonial, and contended that it now earned within $50,000 of its expenses. He attacked the Government violently for the manner in which they had distributed these rails. He declared that it was arrant jobbery, and was done with the object of buying up the Nova Scotia members.

Mr. McKay (Cape Breton) took the last speaker sharply to task, repudiating with scorn the imputation that the Nova Scotia members had been purchased, and expressing the opinion that it was time the member for Northumberland learned to conduct himself with more dignity and propriety.

Mr. Kirk also replied to Mr. Mitchell, saying that the Nova Scotia members had been elected to support the Government. He had gone to the polls as such, and would go again. Nova Scotia had supported the Government because they had got the justice denied them by the party opposite. He thought the party of the Left Centre was demoralized, and its leader had been taken into the arms of the Opposition.

Mr. Mitchell, by the courtesy of the House, again spoke. He denied that he intended to say the Government had purchased the Nova Scotians. In reply to the taunt of the last speaker he said he was a Liberal and Independent, with strong leanings towards the leader of the Opposition.

Mr. Rymal created great amusement by reading the report of a speech delivered by Mr. Mitchell at his recent election in which he had boasted that he forced the Government to pay for cows killed by the Intercolonial Railway by talking against time in Parliament, and threatening to give Mr. Brydges a roasting in the House if he refused compensation for Mrs. Murphy's cow.

Mr. Mitchell, again, by the indulgence of the House, was allowed to speak, and proceeded to attack Mr. Snowball, whom he characterized in unbecoming terms, when he was called to order by Mr. Blake, who pointed out that the hon. gentleman had spoken three times and abused the indulgence accorded him by attacking an absent person.

Mr. Plumb moved the adjournment to give Mr. Mitchell another opportunity to speak, which he did at length, making a general attack on the Government for calling themselves Liberals, and not being, in his opinion, worthy of the title. The debate was then adjourned.

Robbery in Puslinch.

Wm. Moran Loses $315—Hired Man Supposed to be the Guilty Party.

A farmer and cattle dealer named Wm. Moran, residing on lot 10, 3rd concession of Puslinch, was robbed of the sum of $315, and the alleged thief is one Larry Tracy, who has worked for Mr. Moran since November last. Circumstances point strongly to Tracy as being the dishonest one, and it is to be hoped he will be captured and if found guilty of the dastardly deed of robbing one who has befriended him in a time of need, will be severely punished.

On Tuesday morning Mr. Moran and Tracy, his hired man, were seated at breakfast, when Mrs. Moran left for the stables to milk the cows. Shortly after Mr. Moran also went out and left Tracey alone with an infant child. It is supposed that Tracey then went into a bedroom and turning the key in a lock of a drawer took out a pocket book which was there, containing $315, and an unsigned note for $33. The chores were afterwards done up by Tracey, and Moran left about eight o'clock to assist in moving the furniture of Mr. Glennie. There had been no need of going to the drawer in which the money was kept, and up to that time it was not missed. Mrs. Moran observed after her husband had left that Tracey took particular care to notice which direction he had drive in. Shortly afterwards Tracey was missed and did not put in an appearance during the entire day.

Mr. Moran returned towards evening, when on going to the drawer in which the money was kept it was found to be gone. He immediately started off for Guelph to consult the police authorities. On the road into town it was learned that Tracey had been seen passing Downie's school house in the morning and also about three miles from Guelph.

It is supposed that Tracey came to Guelph and at once took the train for over the borders. It is thought that Buffalo will be the objective point for him, as he at one time resided there. Word was wired to the police at Buffalo to be on the look out for him. If he is captured there and the money is found on him although he can not be extradited he can be tried there for grand larceny.

Tracey is a man of about fifty-five years.

Mr. Moran is an industrious person who has at all times been extremely kind to the person he thinks has robbed him, and doubtless will feel the loss in these hard times.

REFORM ORGANIZATION IN CARDWELL.—A large convention of the Reformers of Cardwell, of representatives elected by the several municipalities, was held in Sparrow's Hall, Mono Road, on Tuesday afternoon, to re-organize the Reform Association, discuss organization generally, and consider the question of nominating candidates of the party at the next election. A draft constitution was presented to the meeting and adopted, after discussion and amendment, and the following officers were elected:—President, Alex. McLachlan, Caledon; Secretary, Michael Casserly, Tecumseh; Treasurer, Wm. McElroy, Adjala. Branch associations have already been formed in all the municipalites, and steps were taken to secure increased activity in their work. Addresses were made by G. R. Pattullo, Toronto; Mr. Thomas Bowles, Mono Road; Mr. Lambert, Bolton; Mr. D. A. Jones, Mr. Munroe, Mr. Graham, Mr. Newlove, Mr. Hanton and others, after which it was resolved to delay the nomination of candidates for both Houses until a future day to be named by the President.

ABDUCTION OF TWO BOYS.—Two boys, aged twelve and ten years respectively, were abducted on Tuesday evening while on their way home from school to the residence of their legal guardian, the Rev. A. A. Drummond, of Newcastle. The boys are named James and John Keith, sons of D. S. Keith, of Toronto. A man and woman, who are supposed to have been watching for them during the day, overtook them and induced them to enter a covered buggy on the pretence of giving them a ride home. They drove off in a northerly direction, and when they had travelled a mile and a quarter the lads were transferred to another buggy driven by a young man, who started once more northward. It is thought that the intention is to secrete them temporarily in Canada, and then carry them to Quebec or across to the United States, in order to take them beyond the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, of which they are wards. Our readers may recollect that some years ago there was a great deal of trouble about the guardianship of some of Mr. Keith's children, his wife (a Roman Catholic) having endeavored to be made their guardian after she and her husband had separated.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London. In addition to local talent, Mrs. Caldwell, of Hamilton; Mrs. Secord, elocutionist, of Berlin; Mr. Thos. Hurst, flutist and vocalist, of Toronto, and Mr. H. MUSICAL UNION.—There was a very large attendance at the weekly meeting of the Union last evening, and a most pleasant and successful practice was held. We are informed by those who know the Oratorio that it is acknowledged to be one of the best American productions of that character.

THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—We notice in the Globe of to-day a very excellent letter on this Institution, from Mr. John A. We will give the letter to-morrow.

At the meeting to be held next Tuesday a debate will take place, the subject will be "That the British soldier endures more danger than the British sailor."

THE last number of Grip has been received at Anderson's bookstore. The cartoon is termed "The Jones-Tupper Row," adapted from the familiar monkey and parrot story. A monkey with a head like onto Jones and a parrot resembling Tupper are the main characters. A conflict has taken place and is just about ended when the house maid, Miss Canada, enters the room. The parrot remarks "We've been having a deuce of a time," while the monkey esconced on top of a book case is scratching his hide with feverish pleasure with one hand, while the other holds plumage extracted from the bird, the largest feather of which is labelled "Springhill." It shows just about the real end of the Tupper Jones row in the House.

ENTERTAINMENT IN GUELPH TOWNSHIP.—The Good Templars of Farmer's Home Lodge, Guelph Township, gave an entertainment in the School House, Section No. six, on Friday evening, the 8th. Considering the state of the roads it was very well attended. After a good tea had been served by the ladies, Mr. William Gibson took the chair. A programme was then gone through with, which was both instructive and amusing, the parties taking part in it being the Misses McLaren, Osborn, and Steele, of Guelph Township; Miss Henry, of Hespeler, and Miss Roper and the Messrs. Barrett and Roper of Guelph, and Bolton of Guelph Township, all of whom acquitted themselves admirably, well deserving the hearty encores with which they were greeted. At the close of the entertainment all adjourned to the house of Mr. George Fyfe, where to the excellent music of Roper's string band they amused themselves in tripping the light fantastic until the wee sma' hours of the morning.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 13.—The Journal, an official organ, in its article opposing the treaty of peace being submitted to Congress, and submission to decisions, claims Congress to be a deliberative assembly, and says it would be illogical to ask Russia to submit before decision.

COLONEL NOARCK, a Prussian soldier who has fought in the wars for his country, arrived in Guelph a year or more ago and organized a class which he instructed in sword exercise. He was also interested in a fire escape apparatus which the Council was not as anxious to purchase as the Colonel was to sell. The individual in question loved lager and also enjoyed a friendly game of cards, and many the time and oft did he invite his friends up to his rooms in Day's Block to help drain a keg. The police heard of this after it had been going on for about six months, and it was decided to "light" on the roysterers. Saturday night was set apart for the purpose, and when Chief Kelly and Policeman Dooley called on the Colonel on that evening, a friendly game of cards was in progress and lager was flowing freely. The names of those present were taken down and on Monday information was laid against the Colonel for keeping lager beer for the purpose of sale. The Colonel sold his furniture on Monday and the same evening took his departure for Grand Rapids, Mich., doubtless thinking that would be about the easiest way out of the difficulty. The Colonel was somewhat of a fire-eater, having fought two duels.

INDECENT ASSAULT.—A young man named Plant, living on the 2nd con., Minto, has been sentenced by the Mayor, to the county jail for an indecent assault on a daughter of Mr. Daniel Patterson, aged about fourteen years. She was playing in the school grounds at the time when he threw her to the ground but was stayed in his purpose by others who were there.

THE FISHERIES AWARD.—The New York Herald says it is not impossible that a mere refusal to pay the fishery award may not be the end of this matter. Under the Treaty of Washington Canadian fish and fish oil came in free. An attempt may be made to append to the tariff or Appropriation Bill a clause requiring duties to be hereafter collected on those articles without discrimination in favor of Canada. It is held that Congress is competent to make such a regulation in spite of the treaty provisions.

HARRISTON.—Mr. Andrew Fisher, while unloading ties at the Western station, let some fall upon his right foot, breaking the great and two next toes and otherwise bruising his foot.—At the March fair about one hundred head were sold, at fair prices, but not up to the expectations of the seller. Beef ranged from 2½ to 3½, according to quality; milch cows from $25 to $34; oxen from $70 to $100 per yoke; young lean cattle were in poor demand, and few were sold.—Ellen Graham, a young girl about fifteen years of age was lately arrested for drunkenness and was sent to the Poor House for three months.

HILLSBURG ITEMS.—On Tuesday evening, the 5th inst., some fifty friends from Hillsburg and Erin village entertained Dr. E. L. Burnham, who is removing to Cannington, to an oyster supper at Kirk's Hall, Hillsburg. The chair was occupied by D. McMillan, ex-Reeve of Erin. After the good things supplied by Mr. J. Kirk of the "Wellington," were disposed of, complimentary speeches and expressions of regret were made by Dr. McNaughton, Messrs. McDowell, Broddy, Gibbs, Till and others. Dr. Burnham leaves with the best wishes of his numerous friends. The worthy Dr. has practiced in Hillsburg for the last twelve years. May he prosper in Cannington.—The farmers in the vicinity of Hillsburg propose to organize a Farmers' Club. A meeting was held in the Temperance Hall Friday night.—There was a good turn out of teachers at the first meeting of the Erin Teachers' Institute, which promises to be successful as well as useful.—Strong symptoms of spring visible in Erin. Snow all gone, robins, bluebirds, martens, butterflies, and maple syrup are in order.

It is said that Sir Francis Hincks will be a candidate for the Commons for Montreal West at the next election.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Difficulty About the Powers of the Congress.

The Russians Nearing Constantinople.

March 12.

Andrassy has obtained the vote of the Hungarian Committees by promising to respect the Treaty of Paris.

Vienna advices state that at a joint sitting of the sub committees of the Hungarian Delegation to-day a motion to grant the credit of six millions florins asked for by Count Andrassy was unanimously adopted.

The Journal de St. Petersburg declares untenable the reported English demand that all the points of the treaty be submitted to the Congress.

A Pera special says:—Mr. Layard has called the Porte's attention to the 250,000 starving refugees. The Porte declares it is powerless to help them.

A Vienna correspondent states that Russia postpones the occupation of Roumania until the Congress meets.

A Constantinople despatch says:—The Russians have occupied Ferekeui, half an hour's march from Buyukdere, on the Bosphorus. They also occupy the major by of the villages around Constantinople, and continue advancing towards the city.

Desjardin's Canal Accident.

The Hamilton Times of Tuesday says:—Twenty-one years ago to-day this fearful accident occurred which sent nearly one hundred souls into eternity. Through the courtesy of Mr. Edward Sevier, who was baggageman on the fated train, and now conductor of the one which runs on its time, we are enabled to give our readers an outline of the terrible occurrence. On the 12th of March, 1857, the usual passenger train left Toronto on time for Hamilton, with about 100 people on board. All went well until the engine struck the Desjardin's bridge; then one shrill, startling whistle was given and the locomotive crashed through the bridge and down sixty feet or more to the ice, beneath which it disappeared, carrying to his death the brave engineer, Burnfield, who stuck to his post. Piling indiscriminately into the water came the tender, the baggage car and the two passenger coaches with their loads of precious lives. Truly it was an awful thing, and one that will cause the 12th of March to live forever in the memories of our countrymen. Mr. Sevier himself was sitting near the baggage car door at the time, and hearing the whistle and the crashing of the locomotive he jumped for his life, lighted upon the parapet of the bridge and so was saved. Mr. Sevier has in his possession a pamphlet published at the time, which contains the evidence taken at the inquest, which is so thorough that it is a complete history of the accident. May it be a long time before another such calamity occurs.

A Bill has been introduced in the Nova Scotia Legislature to establish a Board of Commissioners of Charities, who shall have the management of the Insane Asylum, Poor Asylum, and the Provincial and Halifax Hospitals.

Barnum has offered $5,000 a year for the two-headed child recently born at Ste. Scholastique, Quebec. The parents have not accepted the offer.

The North Yorkshire and South Derbyshire miners' wages are to be reduced seven and a half per cent. As this effects between twenty-five and thirty thousand men who are determined to resist the reduction, trouble is likely to ensue. The manufacturers in the north of England iron trade are also demanding a reduction of wages of from ten to seventeen per cent., and in this instance also resistance is expected from the employees.

There is great excitement at Long Branch over the development that a gang of incendiaries, just broken up, was organized to burn the property of non sympathizers with the Hibernian order. The order has been denounced by the local clergy, and also indirectly by the Archbishop of Philadelphia, who has declined to review the St. Patrick's Day parade if the Hibernians take part therein. The latter have, in consequence, resolved to parade over the same route as the procession, and trouble is expected.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London held a special session on Tuesday for the resumption of the hearing of the suit Quebec v. Ontario. The same judges and the same counsel were present as on previous occasions. The Lord Chancellor, at the close of the arguments, said their Lordships would submit their advice in this case to the Queen.

The city of Atalanta, Ga., was on Sunday visited with a tremendous wind tornado. The storm burst suddenly while the service was being held in the churches. The Episcopal church was blown down and the safety of the congregation was secured by throwing themselves under the seats before the building tumbled. Eighteen were injured by falling timbers. The church is a wreck and the escape of the congregation is miraculous. Several other churches in the city were badly damaged and the city hall was unroofed, as well as great damage to private buildings.

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

Forty lives were lost by the colliery explosion near Bolton, Lancashire, on Monday.

Mr. Charlton's Speech on Protection.

(Delivered in the House of Commons on March 8)

(Concluded from yesterday)

Mr. Colby—Who said that?

Mr. Charlton—Every man who wrote or spoke on protection said it. That there would be a surplus market to consume all the produce raised. But when the manufacturers turned out double the quantity of goods they could sell, the agriculturalists were larger exporters than ever. Not only did they not give the farmer an adequate market, but they paid him less for everything he sold. He was robbed by the enhanced prices of what he bought and the diminished prices of what he sold. (Cheers) Was it in consequences of any leak in the United States protective system that it failed to confer the promised advantages? Were duties of 44 per cent. not high enough? If any such system could be made efficient it was this. Manufacturing corporations possessed of vast wealth crowded the lobbies of Washington, with hundreds of thousands of dollars to dispense, for the purpose of securing whatever legislation they wanted, and by which they gained all they required. If protection was capable of producing the results promised they would have been seen in the States. It had failed there and would fail here to redeem its promises. The people were robbed for the benefit of those monopolists, with what result? In the first place, they made enormous profits. In the second, too, many wanted enormous profits. In the third they produced too much goods. In the fourth they made no profits at all, and in the fifth bankruptcy revived. The hon. gentleman next glanced at the growth of manufactures in the United States from 1850 to 1870, contrasting the results for the periods affected by the low and high tariffs respectively. The net products in 1850 were $463 993,731; in 1860 $854,251,584; in 1870, $1,743,898,000. The increase of the gross product from 1850 to 1860, under the low tariff, was 45 per cent.; net, 84; gross from 1860 to 1870, 104; net, 108. Allowing 20 per cent for the premium on gold during during the latter period, the percentage of increase of net production was but 85 against 84 for the non-protection period of 1850 to 1860. Under ten years of non-protection the development of the chief productions of the manufacturers came within 1½ per cent of the expansion under the similar period of protection, 1850 to 1870. He supposed Dr. Tupper would be surprised at the figures he (Mr. Charlton) would give with respect to the iron industry of the States. Established in 1830, in 1850 the value of all manufactures was $185,572,000; in 1860, $256,137,000; in 1870, $5 000,000; the increase from 1832 to 1840, a non protection period, 72½ per cent; and from 1850 to 1860, 60 per cent; from 1860 to 1869, under protection, an increase of 79 per cent; but from 1869 to 1876, only 2 per cent, showing that this industry had reached its culminating point in ten years of protection, ending 1859, and was stationary since. The production of iron in 1876 was 1,941,00 tons; the number of blast furnaces 7.3, with an annual capacity of 5,439,000. Those figures showed that the Americans had invented in those furnaces over $100,00,000 that were actually thrown away. If some great earthquake were to swallow up 400 of those furnaces, and the hundred millions they cost, the other owners would hail it as a Godsend. His figures had shown that the increase of the manufacturing industry of the United States under non-protection, from 1846 to 1857, was satisfactory and rapid, and though stimulated from 1860 to 1870 by protection business had, since 1860, been stationary. They had unduly stimulated manufactures, and today there are more than 2 000,000 of idle men in the Republic, with its abundance of soil inviting the agriculturist; and, we are told, 1,000,000 of tramps besides. Why had the population of that country huddled together so much in the cities and towns? Why had agricultural production relatively fallen off since 1866? Why did the States show a growing diminution of cereals per head from year to year? Why did dangerous and destructive strikes break out last summer in many of the chief centres, requiring the subjection of large districts to martial law, owing to outrages on the railways and incendiarism? Why did Communism crop out in almost every portion of the land? All these were the legitimate fruits of that system of extreme protectionism in vogue since 1861. (Cheers) Again, by the census returns of 1850 the grain products of the United States, betterments and additions to stock, were estimated at $2,600,000,000, which, after ten years of protection, in 1870 was brought down to $2,448,000,000; land in 1860, 407,212,538 acres; in 1870 407,335,041—an increase in ten years of but one-tenth of one per cent. The increase in improved land from 1850 to 1870 was 15 per cent. and from 1850 to 1869 39 per cent. These figures showed a regular continuous decrease in the agricultural productions of the country, and a languishing condition of this interest since protection was introduced. What was the condition of the United States export trade? The cotton exports in 1850 were $4,734,000; in 1860, $10,934,000; in 1870, $3,787,000. This showed a falling off with ten years of protection to the extent of $7,147,000. In 1877, under the pressure of bankrupt sales and over production, with the necessity of unloading stocks the exports were raised to $10,235,000. What would have been the export if the ratio of increase had continued in proportion to the amount from 1850 to 1860 under non-protection? It would have been in 1870, instead of $3,787,00,325,145,000; and in 1877, in place of $10,235,000, it would have been $34,000,000. Those were the points of protection in the direction of increased exports of United States manufactures which had been impeded and weighed down by all sorts of restrictions. Their total exports of manufactures in 1857 were $31,034,000, which had risen in 1872 to 42,459,000 dol. A great flourish of trumpets was made over the fact that the United States had exported in 1877 those products to the amount of 72,677,000 dol. against over 700 millions exported by England. Now, had the ratio of 1860 been maintained in the United States their exports must have been, in place of 72 millions, 700 millions in 1877. What return had our neighbors received for the $8,500,000,000 paid in direct and indirect taxation already mentioned? How many were profited? In 1870 the whole number engaged at all occupations was 12,505,923. The products of the national manufacturers would be 2,351,733,000 dol; net products, $942,767,000. Not only were those interests not benefitted by protection; they were injured by it. At a liberal calculation not more than 510,000 persons were employed in industries that were benefitted by it. So, for the benefit of one man in twenty five in the United States the whole people had been called upon to pay in eighteen years some 8,5 0,000,000 dol! Could a better illustration of the utter absurdity of protection be furnished? The hon. gentleman next proceeded to read statistics to show the price of agricultural products in the protection and non-protection periods respectively. The average price of wheat in protection years was $1,06¼; corn, 59¢; oats, 33⅓¢; cotton, 8½c. During non-protection the figures were wheat, $1 43; corn, 74⅜; oats, 45¢; cotton, 11½; wheat from 1861 to 1869, in gold, $1.06. Did not those figures tell their own tale and show conclusive y that the average price of those various articles grew less under protection? He next read statistics showing that the prices of the different kinds of wool were lower during the protection periods. He had prepared a table of wages in the important New England manufacturing city of Worcester, which showed they were a good deal lower under protection than non protection. He considered that he had rendered it abundantly evident that protection had been disastrous to agriculture in the United States, that the production of cereals had fallen year by year, that the ratio of increase in other departments had diminished, and that the prices received had been less under protection; and that the effect upon manufacturers themselves had been to involve them in ruin; that hundreds of millions were invested to-day in useless manufactures, and were practically lost; and that in consequence of the evil of over production in the United States the Americans had succeeded in exporting goods to a small extent, which under the normal state of things they were never able to do; that the depression of manufacturers in the United States was greater than in Canada. Protection had produced the only evil in the Republic as regarded all industries; and at a time when the people had pronounced by 400,000 of a majority at the polls that protection was a wrong policy, and that the country should return to a system of non-protection—at a time when legislation was impending in Congress to reduce the list of duties, certain wise men in Canada gathered together from the east, west, north, and south in Toronto, and declared that what we wanted was this very policy that had proved a curse to the United States. (Cheers.) They declared for this absurd policy that had led to the ruin of agriculture, manufacturing, the commercial marine—in fact, of all the business interests of the United States.

An Opposition member—What fools they must be.

Mr. Charlton—Yes, the people of the United States have seen their folly, and our Canadian fools have only to step into their shoes. (Laughter and cheers.) Those Canadian gentlemen reminded him of Rip Van Winkle, who after a sleep of several years, on going back to his home found things very much changed. They went to sleep some fifteen years ago during protection, and had not realized the great changes that had taken place in the interval. His hon. friend from Niagara, who had lived in the States, might have been either a barnburner or a hunker Democrat (laughter), but he and his friends were now proposing to re-enact the English Corn Law abolished 30 years ago, and to confer a blessing on this country by giving it dear corn, dear flour, salt, coal, and other things, and to secure prosperity to all, robbing one interest to enrich the other by passing the plunder from hand to hand. He had only to say that this policy was exploded. Its practical results were before our eyes. It had been tried under the most favorable circumstances in a country possessing a vast variety of soil, and raising nearly all the productions grown on the face of the globe. Even the system of protection had completely broken down, demonstrating the fact that its practical results were disastrous, and could only be disastrous in the extreme. The intelligent people of Canada had only to place these facts before them for their consideration when they would reject this theory propounded by the Opposition and urged upon them mainly for private party advantages. It was a principal now advocated for interested objects, wholly regardless of the means and consequences to the people of the country. The hon. gentleman, at the conclusion of his able speech of over three hours, resumed his seat amid hearty applause.

Erin Township Council.

In pursuance of adjournment the Municipal Council of the Township of Erin met at Ospringe on the 8th day of March, 1878, at 10 o'clock a.m.; the Reeve in the chair; members all present.

Several petitions were brought before the Council praying for certain sums of money for road improvements, which were referred to the Road and Bridge Committee, and would be considered at the May session of Council.

A bill for blank assessment and Collectors' rolls, notices, &c., amounting to $12 50 was handed to the Council by the Clerk, and on motion by Mr. McMillan, seconded by Mr. Reed, the bill was ordered to be paid.

Several Township matters were talked of, and approved without a motion.

A claim from Mr. Fielding, hotel-keeper at Ospringe, was presented to the Council. The claim was for $30, and said to be for six weeks' board and lodging of a woman—one of the respectable class of indigents,—and her two children, one of whom was very ill part of the time, and required some medicine and caused extra trouble.

The Council considered the matter carefully, after which it was moved by Mr. Reed, seconded by Mr. Pearin, that this Council take no action on the claim of Mr. Fielding for board for a woman and two children, as above stated.

Moved, in amendment, by Dr McNaughton, seconded by Mr. McMillan, that the following words be added to the motion just now read, viz.: "But that the sum of $5 be paid Mr. Fielding for necessaries supplied for one of the children who had been sick."

The Reeve for the original motion without any addition.

The motion carried, after which it was moved by Mr. Reed, seconded by Dr. McNaughton, that this Council stands adjourned until Monday, April 1st, 1878, at which time the Council shall meet at the Town Hall, Erin Village, to appoint pathmasters, pound-keepers, and fence-viewers, and to attend to the general business of the Township.

WM. TYLER, Clerk.

Harriston Correspondence

Miss Du Ruisseau gave an entertainment in the Town Hall, on Thursday evening of last week, in aid of the Mechanics' Institute. The audience was rather small to make it a financial success. The readings and recitals were good, and worthy of a larger house.

A meeting of the Directors of H.B.B.C. was held at the Collison House on Thursday last, for the transaction of business incident to the coming season. The Browns are resolved to give a good account of themselves this year. They received an invitation from Mount Forest to play a match on the 14th inst., in Harriston, which has been accepted. Should the Foresters not become indisposed about that time, we may expect a lively match, which will be the first of the season.

The weather during the last few days has more the appearance of May than March. March has come in with the gentleness of a lamb, but it is feared will depart with the ferocity of a lion. The roads are in an almost impassible state, which makes business dull. The sidewalks are in good order, which places those unable to be the proprietors of horses and carriages on a par with those who are, as they can enjoy such advantages the elements will permit without extra expense.

Knox Church will be dedicated on Sabbath, 31st inst. The dedicatory sermons will be preached at 11 a.m., and 2:30 and 7 p.m. It is not definitely known yet who will preach, but it will be announced ere long. The building will be finally completed by then.

Sugar making has begun, and a considerable quantity has already been manufactured. The sugar bushes are popular among visitors.

Charles Wait has purchased the photograph business of George Gillespie, in A. Meiklejohn's Brick Block, and purposes carrying on the business in first-class style. "Secure the shadow ere the substance fades," is his advice.

ALMOST A FIRE.—On Wednesday evening of last week, about nine o'clock, a slight illumination was noticed in the stables connected with the property known as the old American Hotel, at the north of the village, now owned by Philip Clapp, and on proceeding to the spot, the fire was found to be in a fair way of soon placing the building beyond redemption. Shavings and other requisites for a quick fire show it must have been the work of an incendiary.

There is a movement on foot to purchase and establish a driving park here. There are a number of good lots suitable for the purpose, if the movement was properly gone into.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be dispensed in Guthrie Church on Sabbath, the 24th inst. Services will be held on the previous Friday and Saturday.

No clue has yet been obtained as to the late burglary at the G.W. station.

The revival services which have been held in the W.M. Church for the last few weeks, by the Rev. J. R. Gundy, have been concluded. It is said much good has been the result.

The anniversary services of the P. M. Church was preached last Sabbath by the Rev. Mr. Sedgeston, at 10:30 a.m., and 6:30 p.m., and by the Rev. J. R. Gundy at 2:30 p.m., all of which were appropriate and impressive. A social was held on the following evening, which, considering the bad state of the roads and other surrounding dif

The Crisis in Quebec.

The appointment of the new Quebec Ministers was gazetted on Tuesday, as was also the appointment of Hon. Messrs. Joly, Bachand, Langelier, and Chauveau to be Queen's Counsel. Mr. Joly has gone to meet his constituents in Lotbiniere, and Mr Marchand to St. John's, where he received an enthusiastic welcome. Mr. Marchand, Provincial Secretary, on his arrival at his constituency, was received by a large and enthusiastic crowd. On his stepping from the train an address of congratulation was presented to him by Mr. Chas. Langelier, to which he replied, thanking the electors for their kind wishes, and briefly announcing the principles of the new Government. He was accompanied by a large procession from the railway station to his residence, where he again briefly addressed the assembly. Cheers were given for the Queen, the Lieutenant-Governor, and the new Ministry.

There is no danger, as we said before, that responsible government in Quebec will receive the fatal blow that our Tory friends declared it would. The Lieut.-Governor has prorogued the House and a general election will ensue. He says he is desirous of ascertaining in a constitutional manner the feelings of the people of the Province regarding the present state of public affairs and the Ministerial changes that have taken place. If the people desire to support the late Government, it will be their duty to send them back with an increased majority. If, on the other hand, they desire to uphold the action of the Lieut.-Governor, they will give his newly-chosen advisers a majority at the polls.

There is much speculation as to whether Mr. Joly will be able to carry on the Government of Quebec. He is in a minority of twenty in the House just now, but it is likely that the Province, in its present temper, would reject a sufficient number of the supporters of the late Government to give him a majority, although whether it would be a working majority or not it is another question. The late Government was of the most Tory kind, and owed its existence to the Roman Catholic Church, without whose support, it is affirmed by friends of the late Administration, no Government can stand. On the other hand the present Government was formed in the belief that it had the support and sympathy of the people. The constitutional question between the Governor and the people must be the prominent issue, and the administrative inquities of the late Government must be lost in the shadow of the question whether the Governor has the right to veto the the legislation of the majority. In addition to the ordinary difficulties which must at any time have stood in Mr. Joly's way in establishing an administration there will be that of the constitutional question, and it is conceivable that this alone may prevent his success. Until he had been sworn in as Minister of the Crown he was in no way legally responsible for the dismissal of the DeBoucherville Government; but having become the constitutional adviser of the Governor he makes himself responsible for the dismissal and declares his readiness to abide the consequence of the Governor's act.

The Liberals anticipate the carrying of thirty-seven constituencies at the Quebec general elections to come off in May. This will give them a working majority and will secure the allegiance of the eastern township men. This will make the Joly Government perfectly strong. It is believed that the dissolution of the Quebec Assembly will take place within two weeks and the general election within five. The dissolution will probably anticipate the nominations of the new Ministers in their constituencies and all the elections take place together.

The Vote on Sir John's Amendment.

At an early hour on Wednesday morning a vote was taken on the amendment of Sir John Macdonald, offering a vague and undefined sort of protection to every industry in the country. The debate took a wide turn, and was not at all confined to the questions immediately in hand, but at last a division was taken, when seventy six voted for the amendment, and one hundred and fourteen against it, thus giving the Government a majority of 38. The division is the most important one during this session, as the question of protection will form the great subject of dispute during the forthcoming elections. We warn our friends from committing themselves to the specious and unsound reasoning contained in that amendment, for it is clearly seen that the people's representatives have no confidence in it, and that the professions contained in it are as hollow and unsubstantial as any of those which Sir John has yet made to his friends in the hope of getting back into power.

ABOUT MONEY ORDERS.—The Postmaster at Montreal having declined to issue money orders payable to the New York Journal of Commerce on the ground that that these should be made out in the name of some person, and not in that of an association, the proprietors of that newspaper laid the fact of the case before Postmaster-General Key. That officer promptly addressed the Postmaster-General of the Dominion upon the subject, and the result is shown in the following communication from the Department at Washington:—"In compliance with the suggestion of this office, the Postmaster-General of the Dominion of Canada has consented that instructions be given 'to all postmasters that in issuing international orders payable in the United States they may follow the the practice which obtains in the issue of Dominion local orders,' namely, that the usual title of a newspaper or other publication, or of an incorporated company, shall be regarded as a sufficient description of the payee."

THE death of two or three persons, the injury of several others, and the destruction of the town hall at Harrison Ohio, by the explosion of a gas-manufacturing machine, will call renewed attention to the dangers of such apparatus. The working of such machines in the hands of careless or inexperienced persons is constantly leading to fatal accidents.

The Claim of Employees Against Insolvents.

We learn from the Monetary Times that a case of some interest to employees was lately before the Court of Appeal for Ontario. It referred to the matter of R. A. Hoskins & Co., of Toronto, auctioneers and commission merchants, who last year went into insolvency. The firm owed some of their employees arrears of salary, and it was claimed that under the Act they were entitled to two month's salary after the date when the firm went into insolvency. One of the employees remained for two weeks in Toronto without employment and then went to the States where he obtained a situation, which however, subsequently failed him, whereupon he returned and made a claim upon the estate for his wages for two months after the insolvency, in addition to arrears due him This claim was contested, and Judge McKenzie held that as the claimant had, at the end of two weeks, gone out of the country to seek employment he was entitled to only two weeks' salary in advance. From this decision the claimant appealed, in which appeal he has been successful, it being now held that he was entitled to be paid for the full two months.

The case was appealed, and Chief Justice Moss gave judgment, that though the appellant would have been bound to work under the direction of the Assignee during these two months if required, he was perfectly justified, on being told that his services would not be needed, in seeking other employment wherever it could be found, adding that if he had been successful in getting other employment within the two months the estate would be entitled to deduct from his claim his earnings during that time.

MR. COSTIGAN is busily sounding the members on the matter of extending a full amnesty to O'Donoghue. He is said to be meeting with some difficulty. It is expected he will move his motion on the first opportunity after the present amendment to the budget motion is settled.

The Montreal Herald, in a scathing editorial on Conservative venality, says, successive Conservative Administrations in Quebec, sometimes changing their name but never materially altering their character, have brought the Province from the high financial position of 1866, when it entered into the Confederation, to the lamentable and almost ruined position in which it is in to-day. Of these Administrations that led either nominally or in reality, for there is room for a difference of opinion on this point, Mr. DeBoucherville's was the last and worst.

A GOOD deal of quiet canvassing is being done in Toronto on behalf of leading men of both parties, towards securing their respective nominations for the different divisions at the general election. Captain McMaster is expected to be the Reform nominee for the West, and Mr. John Ginty is mentioned as his probable Conservative opponent. In the Centre the only possible opponent mentioned to Mr. John McDonald is Mr. Jas. Beatty, Q.C., but it is extremely doubtful whether the Tories will make an effort at all to wrest the seat from Mr. McDonald, who in any event would certainly be re-elected by a large majority. In the East no names are yet mentioned as likely to run against Mr. Samuel Platt.

THE "Chieftain" evidently doesn't set much store by the presents bestowed upon him by the workingmen (?) of Ontario. We learn from the Brantford Expositor that the second-hand escritoire—or old cupboard, as it irreverently terms it—presented to Sir John by his Brantford admirers, still afflicts the city with its presence, occupying a prominent position in a furniture store, among a lot of coffins. After receiving the testimonial, Sir John ought certainly to have carried it away, but it would seem that he cares more for the "spontaneous expressions of good will" than mere paltry gifts. The Expositor thinks the workingmen (?) ought to come to the rescue once more, and raise funds enough to send the cupboard to Ottawa.

HON. MR. LAURIER'S Bill to amend the Acts respecting stamps on bills and notes provides that when the duty does not exceed three cents it shall be paid by fixing an adhesive stamp. When it exceeds three cents, and the instrument is made in Canada, the duty shall be paid in whole or in part by making it on stamped paper of the denomination nearest in value to the duty to which such instrument is liable—stamps to be affixed to the amount required. Instruments made out of Canada, but payable in Canada, may be stamped by the party whose property they become after entering Canada. Stamps in this case must have part of the signature of the first acceptor or endorser in Canada written on it. The penalty for the contravention of this Act is $100, and all instruments not in compliance with this Act shall be invalid, and no effect in law or equity.

Meeting of Presbytery.

The Presbytery of Guelph held their usual bi-monthly meeting on Tuesday last, in Chalmers' Church, Guelph. There was a very large attendance, especially at the forenoon sederunt, both of ministers and ruling elders. We can give only a brief outline of the business transacted. Mr. McCrae read a report from the Finance Committee, showing the state of the funds under their management, from which it appeared that they were in a more than usually satisfactory condition. The following members of the Presbytery were appointed Commissioners to the General Assembly at their ensuing meeting: Messrs. Smellie, Torrance, Masson, McPherson, Wardrope, Mullan, and Ball, ministers, and Messrs. Fordyce, McCrae, Robb, Davidson, Campbell, Muir, and Barnet, ruling elders. Mr. Mullan reported that, according to appointment, he had gone to Drayton and formed those applying into a mission station. Mr. Oliver appeared from Drayton, who informed the Presbytery of the number attending services since these were granted, and of those in the Sabbath school, and of the amount subscribed for the preaching of the gospel among them. A large portion of time was spent upon remits from the General Assembly, of which there were nine. Most of the afternoon sederunt was spent in a conference on the state of religion. Mr. Smellie and Mr. Charles Davidson delivered addresses on the subject of "Pastoral Visitation," for which they received the thanks of the Presbytery. Mr. J. C. Smith spoke on the subject of "Evangelistic Services." Several members of the court took part in the conversation which followed, and which was continued till nearly the hour of adjournment. The Committee on the Sabbath School Conference gave their report of the meeting held at Acton in January last and a notice of which appeared in our columns at the time. The report was received and the Clerk was instructed to forward a copy of the Statistical Table and the resolutions with which it was accompanied, to the Convenor of the General Assembly's Committee on Sabbath Schools. Mr. Dryburgh's death was reported to the Presbytery, and a minute of a meeting held at Elmira immediately after his funeral was read, and, at a subsequent part of the proceedings, the report of a Committee which was then appointed to prepare a minute expression of the sense of the loss sustained by the Presbytery and the congregations over which he was pastor. The report was received and the minutes approved, and the Clerk instructed to send a copy to the Hawkesville, and one to the Elmira congregation. The Committee on Church Property in Puslinch, reported that they had brought to a satisfactory issue the matter in which they had been travelling, by direction of the Presbytery, for some time, and laid the deed upon the table, fully executed and certified as registered. The warm thanks of the Presbytery were given to the Committee for the great pains and labor bestowed upon the matter. A copy of Constitution for the St. Andrew's Church, Guelph, was produced, and a Committee appointed to examine the same and report at next meeting. A petition was read from seventy-one members and sixty-five adherents of the congregation of St. John's Church, Garafraxa, praying to have a supply of preaching granted them, accompanied with a subscription list of the amount they were prepared to pay for the purpose. After a very lengthened and careful deliberation, it was agreed that the petition be received, that an adjourned meeting be held in Chalmers' Church, Guelph, on the second Tuesday in April, at ten o'clock forenoon, to adjudicate on the case, and that the Clerk notify all parties interested. A Committee was appointed to consider the Standing Orders of business, by which the Presbytery was now governed, and report any amendments that may be deemed necessary. Several other matters, including arrangements for mission supply, were taken up and disposed of, but which are not of public importance. The next ordinary meeting was appointed to be held in Chalmers' Church, Guelph, on the second Tuesday in May, beginning at ten o'clock forenoon.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author in this admirable Essay clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured, without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

—OR—
The Gauger of Skene.

CHAPTER XXVI.

THE GAUGER SHOWS HIMSELF AT HIS BEST—HAROLD'S MAGNANIMITY — THE FATAL TEMPTATION.

"On that head I have little to fear. My means of escape are numerous, and through one avenue or another I shall elude seizure if I am likely to be identified. But, let the risk be what it may, I will dare it—ay, and ten times more—for the rescue of my lost ones, whose unknown fate is maddening me. In daring to lay a hand upon them, Gilmour and his mother have roused a ruthless devil in my soul which no revenge can satiate. If my darling has come to harm I will sweep the vile wretches to destruction, though I should be engulphed in the same whirlpool. Farewell, Gillespie. We understand each other now. I trust to you to aid me, as far as you can."

"As far as I can in the search you are making," returned the gauger, "I will spare no effort, no labor to obtain information for you. At the same time you will not ask me to be unfaithful in any way to my professional duty. I must do my utmost to put down smuggling, you know—nothing, absolutely nothing, will tempt me to slacken my exertions for that object. I have compromised myself deeply in other respects; but as an Excise officer I will keep myself above any suspicion and reproach."

"I would be the last to ask you to do anything else," returned Horold, as he threw open the door and dashed out into the night.

Skeat waited a few moments till the rapid footsteps outside were lost in the distance, then he went and shut the door and the two stood looking at one another in a curious, inquiring, way as if the one wished to learn the other's thoughts before speaking.

This was a perfectly natural proceeding on their part, for what a queer, extraordinary turn things had taken. How that unexpected visit from Harold Logan had altered their relations to each other and to him—altered them to an extent most surprising to themselves—and now that they were alone and had an opportunity of exchanging ideas, the utter change in the situation prompted them silently to read each other's feelings in their countenances. How had it come about, what motives had influenced them and prompted them to turn from being Harold Logan's deepest injurers to his earnest allies? Was it altogether through the operation of a strong moral sense? Had the power of conscience impelled them? Had remorse and shame so wrought upon them as to produce in their hearts the desire to do what was right—the resolution to atone for the past, because that past was wrong?

We cannot honestly say that this was altogether the case. On Malcolm Gillespie this strong moral power did indeed exercise itself to a considerable extent. It had operated on him more or less from the day that he had emitted the false declaration, but a baser element had mingled with and quickened the feeling, when Gilmour Logan proved false to his contract. Then it was that anger against him, increased and intensified the repentance which had spontaneously risen in the gauger's mind. Had Gilmour Logan been faithful to agreement and supplied those sums of money the prospective receipt of which had induced Gillespie to execute the plot, we fear the gauger's repentance would not have been so deep nor so speedy. A replenished purse would doubtless have dulled the sharpness of his regret, and made him less ready to listen to the whisperings of his higher nature. But it was not fated that the wages of his unrighteousness should be paid, and so come between him and his truer self, and it needed but the sight of the victim of his perjury, bowed and shaken with grief, to touch his soul to its very centre, and impel him to undo the wrong, even though the act should bring ruin on himself.

The same sight had also a powerful influence on Skeat, and helped not a little to cause him to take the part he played in the extraordinary scene. But genuine moral feeling had not much to do with his change of action. He, too, had been scurvily treated by Gilmour Logan. In fact, he had just returned from Mount Cairn furious with disapointment when heard the conversation going on between Gillespie and Harold in the adjoining room, and it was as much rage as pity which caused him to burst in with his information, and acquiesce in his master's resolution to make full confession of their mutual sin. He far less than Gillespie was influenced by repentance or regret—the uppermost feeling in his heart being a desire for revenge on Gilmour Logan, and also on Tom Ironby, for he had a strong suspicion that Tom had thrown him over at Gilmour's instigation, and was himself reaping the fruit of the information which he (Skeat) had gained while in the closet, and imparted to Tom on the understanding that they would share in the result. The feeling of being betrayed by a "pal" is fierce and implicable, and Edward Skeat must be credited with that more than with virtuous emotion or intention when he so readily seconded Gillespie's resolution to declare Harold's innocence.

Having thus explained the varied moving forces under which they had both acted, we shall now relate what took place between them after the youth's departure.

"Well, Ned, how do you feel?" asked the gauger after they had gazed at each other for some moments in silence.

"All the better for knowing that that paper has gone into the fire," replied Skeat, with a significant nod. "Don't you?" he added, inquiringly.

"To speak candidly, I do," returned Gillespie.

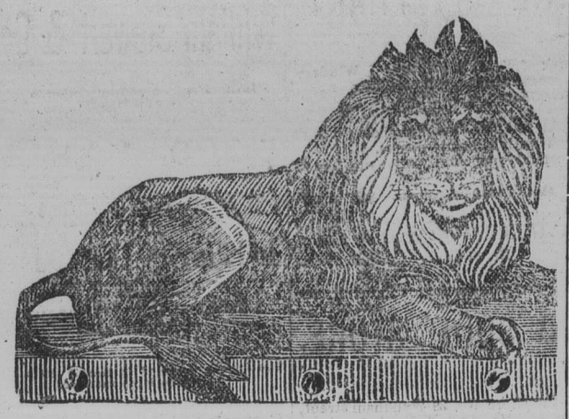
"I should think so. Such ruin as it would have brought on us is not to be coveted."

"Yet I am glad I wrote it, Ned; I am glad I gave Logan the power to destroy us. How noble, how generous of him to refuse it."

"Ah, Harold is worth twenty thousand Gilmours. It's a thousand pities we wrought against him to serve such a treacherous scoundrel. If it wasn't for the evil we must bring upon ourselves I would have revenge on the low, mean, selfish blackguard. But at the price of our own skin—no, egad, that's to pay even for so sweet a mouthful; and again I say I am glad the paper is burned."

SPECIAL ATTENTION.—We direct special notie to the announcement of the arrival from the old country of new spring goods for the Lion. Messrs. Williamson have also made a lucky hit in purchasing a large stock of cottons at the auction sale lately held at the Cornwall mills. Read their advertisement.

"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."



If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a sable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.

Mr. Laurier introduced a Bill to repeal the Customs duty on malt.

Mr. Palmer resumed the debate on the amendment to the motion to go into Supply. His argument was that, while this was not a time to increase the volume of taxation, and while the country was suffering under the existing tariff, it was the duty of the Government to stimulate the industries of the people by legislation.

Mr. Appleby followed, criticizing the conduct of the Opposition, who spread all sorts of charges against the Government with the hope of poisoning the public mind and thereby getting back to power. They were challenged here to get a Committee whose sworn evidence of the crimes of which they alleged the Government were guilty could be taken and laid before the country. The Opposition, however, would not take this course because they could not prove those charges. If they could substantiate them they would be only too ready to take this course. He regarded it as an impossibility for any legislation to create good times. Referring to the effect of a protective policy in the Maritime Provinces, he showed how it would increase enormously the cost of the necessaries of life without conferring any corresponding benefit.

Mr. Gilmour reviewed the question of protection, and declared that the people of the Maritime Provinces would never submit to be compelled to pay additional taxes on the necessaries of life in order to put money into the pockets of a few manufacturers. He was a free trader from conviction, and would stand by poor people in defeating the attempt to impose taxes on the necessaries of life. As regards the Government he said they may have, and no doubt had, committed errors of judgment, but they never, as was proved against their adversaries, deliberately sat down at the Council Board to devise a wholesale system of public plunder and corruption.

Mr. Colby made an able though very long speech in favor of a protective policy.

Mr. Domville read a great many extracts from different authorities in favor of a protective policy.

Mr. Kirk read statistics to show that, under a protectionist policy, the shipping of the United States had steadily decreased, while Canadian shipping, under the present tariff, had steadily increased since 1860.

Mr. Perry, on the part of Prince Edward Island, advocated a free trade policy. He contended that Prince Edward Island was sufficiently taxed as it was, and he would tell the people of Prince Edward Island to avoid the protectionists of Ontario and Quebec, who sought to increase their burthens.

Mr. Haddow said that after listening to the speeches on both sides he had come to the conclusion that he could not support a protective tariff as an independent member. From all the arguments he heard, he had drawn the conclusion that protection could only have the effect of increasing taxation, and he certainly could not support any such proposition.

After the House had listened to several other speakers, at half-past three o'clock a division took place on Sir John Macdonald's amendment:—

BOARD OF TRADE.—Several parties have been making enquiries as to the dates on which the Guelph Board of Trade meets. Their object is to become members of the institution.

HAMILTON has got it again. Every person had an idea that the public spelling bees, which exercised the country from one end to the other a few years ago, had died out for at least a decade. The above city, however, commences again and a gold medal is offered for public competition.

MEDICAL COUNCIL EXAMINATION.—The Ontario Medical Council have decided, contrary to their original intention, and to the general expectation of the majority of candidates, to hold the annual spring examination of students on the 29th April next. It is understood that the greater number of the students will petition for the date to be changed to the latter part of May, the time first intimated for holding the examination.

QUEER THEFT.—On Sunday night a very queer theft was perpetrated at the store of Messrs. Smyth Brothers, of Berlin, formerly of Guelph. The window at the corner contained a number of valuable goods, amongst others a fine woolen shawl. This shawl was near a two inch augur-hole which is in the window blind for some purpose or other. By some means a corner of it was fished out and then as much pulled out as possible, till actually about half the shawl was out. As the thief or thieves could get it out not farther, they cut it right through in the middle from corner to corner.

ST. PATRICK.—At the last regular meeting of Guelph St. Patrick's Catholic Benevolent Society, No. 19, I. C. B. U., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—P. Mahon.
1st Vice-President—M. Healy.
2nd Vice-President—H. Healy.
Recording-Secretary—M. Pigott.
Financial Secretary—D. Cummings.
Treasurer—M. J. Doran.

The reports for 1877 were presented, showing a satisfactory condition of affairs, and a large balance on hand.

BAPTIST SOCIAL.—An unusually fine musical and literary treat has been provided for those who may attend the Baptist social tomorrow evening. In addition to the usual attractions, music is to be furnished by members of the Choral Society, under the leadership of Mr. Parker. A pleasant time is assured to those who may be present.

Local News Items.

LARGELY attended assembly at the Caledonian rooms last evening under the auspices of McLaren's quadrille band.

MME DEMOREST'S PORTFOLIO has been received at Anderson's bookstore. This portfolio of fashions is one of the best illustrated journals for ladies published.

THE Easter Fat Cattle Show, under the auspices of the South Wellington and Guelph Township Agricultural Societies will be held in Guelph on Wednesday, 10th April.

THE PRESBYTERY OF GUELPH, at their meeting on Tuesday unanimously agreed to recommend that the Rev. Dr. Jenkin, of St. Paul's Church, Montreal, be Moderator of the next General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

THERE are some people who are very much afraid of putting others to any trouble. From an employee at the Grand Trunk station it is learned that a young man who happened to be out late on Tuesday night, rather than rap the landlord of his hotel up, repaired to the sitting room of the station and slept on one of the benches till morning.

CIGARS STOLEN.—About a week ago John Rice, billiard room proprietor, had some two or three boxes of cigars stolen from his sleeping apartment; where he keeps his stock of the weed stored. The cigars were taken during the day time, and it is thought the guilty party must have been acquainted with the place in which the cigars were kept and knew about the best time to purloin the goods.

THIEVING.—There are some dishonest lads who hang about the Grand Trunk passenger station occasionally. A little girl who was waiting at the station on Tuesday to see her mother off on the train left a pail for a few moments in the ladies' sitting room while she was out on the platform. Inside the pail was a small sum of money which was to be expended at the store. When she returned the money was gone, some young thief having just had time to secure it and make off.

HOSPITAL STREET.—It is said that a project is on foot to widen the above street and the ratepayers will be heartily glad if the design succeeds. At present it resembles a mixture of the Slough of Despond and the straight and narrow way; although unlike the latter it certainly does not lead to Paradise. Its width is now only thirty-three feet and the absence of a sidewalk renders it, when muddy, an object of aversion to foot travellers while for heavily-laden waggons it is simply impassable. All the parties who are interested in the matter, excepting Mr. J. D. Williamson, have agreed for their own conveniences and for the benefit of the town to give up sufficient land on both sides of the street to make it double its width, viz., sixty-six feet. A Committee composed of Mr. J. P. MacMillan and others called on Mr. Williamson this morning on the subject and he will shortly return them an answer as to whether he too will take joint action with the rest of the owners. Should he do so, no doubt the improvement will at once be made.

G. C. L. & D. SOCIETY.—The regular semi-monthly meeting of this Society was held last evening, in the academy hall of St. Ignatius College. About thirty members were present. Dr. Nunan, President, occupied the chair. The question for debate was: Resolved, "That country life is more conducive to morality than city life." Mr. M. Piggot spoke in the affirmative and in a neat and carefully prepared speech successfully advocated the cause of morality viewed in the light of rural influence. Mr. J. L. Murphy in a capital extemporaneous effort eulogised the virtues and christianizing influences of life in the city, but failed to convince his audience. Verdict for the affirmative. Mr. Hayden followed with a recitation, "The Heroines of Limerick," by Carolan, which was well given. W. E. Aytoun's poem "Edinburgh after Flodden" was recited by Mr. Joseph Harris in a pleasing style. Mr. P. Mahon suggested a subject for a future debate which was referred to the Executive Committee, who will probably act on his suggestion, when an interesting and instructive debate will undoubtedly be the result. Mr. J. P. Coffee offered some very acceptable suggestions on the mode of obtaining exercises. Next meeting fourth Wednesday in March.

JERRY IN TROUBLE.—The Toronto Telegram of Tuesday says:—Jeremiah O'Connor, one of the most notorious drunkards in Guelph, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Constable Healy at the Union Station. Jerry was only released from the Central Prison where he had served a term of six months. Upon being released he immediately got drunk and went to the Union Station intending to take passage for Guelph, his home. He however, became obstreperous, and when Constable Healy attempted to eject him, he resisted and tore the policeman's clothing. He was laid on his back, but this did not quiet him; as soon as he recovered his equilibrium he tackled the constable again. He was finally lodged in the Central Station, and this, morning was brought before the Magistrate, when evidence was given to show that Healy first bumped the prisoner's head on the platform and then sat on him. Three witnesses were examined, all of them testifying that the prisoner had been used in a most disgraceful and cruel manner. Healy denied the evidence, and asked for a remand until to-morrow in order to bring evidence in rebuttal of that already given. The Magistrate said he would not keep the man in custody on such evidence. The prisoner was discharged.

CATTLE FOR ENGLAND.—On the 30th inst., Messrs. Porter & Hawes, of Guelph Township, will ship fifty head of choice cattle, per steamship Quebec of the Dominion Line, from Portland to Liverpool. Mr. Alf Burrows is agent for this line, and he has secured those parties freight for their cattle.

Guelph Curling Club.

Annual Supper—Presentation of a Pair of Curling Stones to the Secretary.

It has been a custom for some years for the members of the Guelph Curling Club to have a social night of it shortly before the breaking up of the season. This year the gathering was of unusual sociability, and possessed of interesting features that will be remembered by at least one member—the worthy Secretary—for years and years to come.

Besides the supper, served in that very rich and tasty manner for which the Mitchell House is so justly celebrated, Mr. Geo. Murton was presented with a pair of curling stones having ebony silver mounted handles. On the handles are neatly engraved the inscription: "Presented to Geo. Murton, from the curlers of Guelph, March, 1878." The stones are of medium size, made of the beautiful Aisla Craig granite and weigh about forty-three pounds each. They are without doubt just a pair of "beauties" that would at once win the heart of a keen curler.

The head of the table was occupied by Mr. D. Stirton, supported at either side by Mr. Wm. Mitchell, President of the Curling Club, and Mr. Geo. Murton, Secretary. Mr. Jas. Innes occupied the vice chair. The following gentlemen constituted the gathering:—Messrs. Alex. Bruce, Thos. Gowdy, Thos. Dobbie, Jas. Emslie, Alex. Congalton, John McKenzie, David Kennedy, Jas. Stirton, Robt. Mitchell, Wm. Guthrie, Wm. Johnston, Wm. Tytler, Wm. Douglas, Walter Grierson, John Anderson, Geo. Anderson, H. K. Maitland, Thos. H. Taylor, Hugh Walker, Chas. Sharpe, Robert Cuthbert, W. H. Mills, R. Fyfe, A. Robertson, sr., R. Emslie, Wm. Bruce, John Patterson, Geo. Bruce, John Spalding, Wm. Sunley, A. Robertson, jr., J. Finlay, W. S. Heffernan, Dr. McGuire and others. After the repast had been done full justice to, the cloth was removed. The chairman proposed the toasts of "The Queen" and the "Governor General," which were honored in the usual way.

The chairman then addressed those present, and after referring to the pleasure always experienced by curlers when they met together, stated there was one particular object in meeting on this occasion. It was to do honor to the esteemed Secretary of the Club, Mr. Geo. Murton, who had during the past seven or eight years filled that position in a way which was calculated at all times to promote its best interests. That gentleman had been found to be an active, earnest member of the Club, and it was so well known how zealously and faithfully he performed whatever duties that fell to him, no matter in what connection it might be, that it debarred him from saying much at this time. Their Secretary was one always open-hearted. If there was anything that curlers were noted for it was that attribute. The game itself stirred up the life in a man, and if there was any spirit in him it would develop and bring it out. In concluding his remarks the speaker stated that the members of the Curling Club had long felt themselves under a deep debt of gratitude to their Secretary for his valuable services, and they had therefore resolved to place their feelings on record in some tangible shape. He therefore took great pleasure in presenting to him a pair of curling stones, as a memento of his connection with the Club. He hoped that Mr. Murton would be able at all times to make a happy "lead" in the game of life, that he would always have the good fortune to have an excellent "guard," and that if an opponent's "fluke," should place him in a position that would not enable him to count, that he would get in a "runner" that would place him in the position he desired. (Loud applause.)

Mr. Murton in reply expressed his surprise at receiving such a very handsome present. He did not consider he had done more than any other member should do if placed in the same position that he occupied in the club. He accepted the gift with feelings of considerable pride and pleasure. He would hold the stones as a memento of the good-will felt towards him by members of the club. The speaker then in a very happy manner sketched his connection with the club, and boasted that although the game was considered thoroughly Scotch, he as an Englishman would not take a second place among the keenest curlers that gathered on the ice. He always played to win. No person could accuse him of ever giving away an end. The kindly feeling which had at all times prevailed among the members while engaged in playing was also made a subject of remark. This he was proud of, and he was satisfied it would always continue so. In concluding, the speaker expressed his thanks for the handsome present and the very kind manner in which the chairman had referred to his connection with the club.

Other toasts were proposed, among which "Our Sister Societies," was reponded to by Mr. Finlay, late of the Goderich club. "The Guelph Curling Club," responded to by Mr. Wm. Mitchell, President, and Mr. John McKenzie.

During the evening songs were sung by Messrs. Hugh Walker, R. Fyfe, H. K. Maitland, Wm. Douglas, Wm. Guthrie, A. Congalton, Geo. Murton, Geo. Anderson, and Jas. Innes

Messrs. Robert Cuthbert and Thomas H. Taylor gave recitations.

A very enjoyable evening was spent by all, and the gathering broke up at a seasonable hour.

In connection with the above it might be mentioned that the inscription engraved on the handles was very neatly done, and was the work of Mr. R. Crawford, of Goldsmith Hall.

CHALMERS' Church Association meets this evening, when a full attendance of members is expected.

THE PATERSON STABBING AFFRAY.—This (Thursday) morning Rory McCrea was tried before His Honor Judge Macdonald, for stabbing Wm. R. Paterson, at Marden, on the 5th of January last. The particulars of the affair have already been published in the MERCURY. John Lillie and Joseph Macdonald were examined for the defence, and they testified to the fact that the prisoner had been worried and teased before the affair happened. It was also brought out that Paterson was trying to befriend McCrea, and had not been annoying him. Paterson's injuries have unfitted him for hard work for all time to come. His Honor has deferred sentence.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

THE ATTITUDE OF RUSSIA.

March 13

On account of the tone of the official Russian newspapers, and the movements of Russian troops about Constantinople, the probabilities of fresh complications between the English and Russian Governments are being agitated to-day. There is considerable commotion in Government circles. The news, however, had no depreciable affect on consols. War preparations continue.

The Vienna Political Correspondence says:—A conviction prevails in St. Petersburgh that the British armaments reveal England's intention to occupy some point in the Levant, possibly Mitylene. Russia would then have to consider the safety of her Black Sea coast, which is only a few hours' sail from Mitylene.

It is announced officially that the British squadron in the Mediterranean is at Besika Bay, and will advance to the Dardanelles to be nearer Admiral Commerell, who commands off Gallipoli.

A Paris correspondent telegraphs:—It seems certain that England and France will arrive at an agreement on the Egyptian question before the meeting of the Congress. It is asserted that Germany thinks that nearly all the points of the San Stefano preliminaries should be submitted to the Congress, and that Russia is almost disposed to accept this view.

The German Government will not issue invitations to the Congress until all difficulties about the subjects to be considered are removed. The difficulties appear more serious than anticipated. The general prospect is far from encouraging. Germany will claim the Presidency of the Congress by prescriptive right, whether Bismarck attends or not.

Immediately after the arrival of Gen. Ignatieff and Raouf Pasha in St. Petersburg, the conditions of peace will be communicated to the Powers.

A Constantinople despatch says:—The Grand Duke Nicholas' visit to the Sultan has been postponed until after the treaty of peace is ratified.

A Vienna despatch says:—The Hungarian Delegation to-day voted the grant of 3,720,000 florins for urgent and extraordinary army and navy requirements.

A Pera correspondent telegraphs that the Armenians intend to petition England to obtain for Turkish Armenia autonomy under an European guarantee or protection; otherwise they fear Russia will encourage Turkish misgovernment to furnish a pretext for Russian absorption of the entire Province.

Hobart Pasha has been ordered to sail for the coast of Thessaly.

The Thessalian insurgents claim that they defeated the Turks near Pharsalis, killing and wounding 4,000.

Lawless Work in Montreal.

MONTREAL, March 13.—The spirit of murder so rife in the city is rapidly assuming alarming proportions. Shortly before midnight a young laborer named David Carr, residing with his widowed mother at 29 Jacques Cartier street, was proceeding along that street between St. Mary and Craig streets, in the direction of his home, when one of two persons who were hiding in the shade of a store, on the north-west side of St. Mary and Jacques Cartier streets, fired at him. Carr immediately ran down back into, and along St. Mary street, and down Campeau street, shouting "Murder!" and "Police!" as loud as his condition and the nature of his wounds would admit. He was taken to the police station, bathed in his blood, where it was found that he was probably fatally wounded. The doctor found a bullet wound just under the eye on the left side of the nose, and another and the largest hole in his right thigh. The doctor at once dressed Carr's wounds, and being unable to extract the shots, ordered the young man's removal to the hospital, whither he was taken. The wounded man's statement is that he had been up town spending the evening with some friends—was returning home, and was about entering the yard, when two men named James Irwin, John McNaughton and some others, commenced firing at him without saying a word. They are Orangemen, and positively denied the crime when arrested in bed; Carr's wounds, though very severe, do not cause the medical staff to anticipate fatal results for the present. Of course there is danger that inflammation may set in, and should that be the case, death may naturally be expected to ensue. Carr has received the ministration of the Church. His ante-mortem examination will be taken to-day. Much excitement is felt by both religious factions in the east end. At noon to-day Carr was easier, but the inflammation, it is feared is setting in.

Mr. Pardis keeps a grocery store near the scene of the row. During the evening he went on a visit to Mr. Cuddy, dry-goods merchant, almost opposite, leaving his two favorite Newfoundland dogs in charge of the premises. When he returned, shortly before the shooting, he found that his private door had been broken open, but that the thieves had proceeded no further, doubtless owing to the determined attitude of the dogs.

John Stormont has been arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the shooting of Carr. The two had some words a few weeks ago.

IT STANDS UNEQUALLED.—Those who have used Wilson's Compound Syrup Wild Cherry, know it to be unequalled for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all kindred diseases. A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

Forty-four corpses have been recovered from the scene of the colliery explosion near Bolton, Lancashire.

They are Likely to be Rebuilt—Mass Meeting to be Held to Consider the Question.

(By Telegraph to the Mercury.)

MOOREFIELD, March 14.—In view of the immense loss sustained by the ratepayers of the township of Maryboro, occasioned by the destruction by fire of the mills at Moorefield, on Sunday last, and to which the Municipality were contributors to the extent of $4,000 as a bonus, a grand mass meeting will be held at Moorefield on Monday next, to take into consideration the expediency of endeavoring to erect another mill in the stead of the one burned, or take such action as is deemed best under the circumstances. From the universal regret manifested on all sides at this incendiary act, and the stoppage to immediate business so manifest now that the mills are destroyed, many who opposed its erection heretofore are clamorous for some action to be taken, the mill, proving under Mr. Brodie's management of most incalculable benefit. It is deemed to be to the interest of all to arrive at some definite result by holding a mass meeting where all can ventilate their views. A Joint Stock Company is talked of in connection with the mass meeting.

On Tuesday afternoon a woman named Honorah Casey residing on Stafford street Toronto, was felled with a spade by a man named Jas. McNamara, a salesman residing on the corner of King and Stafford streets. There had been an unfriendly feeling existing between the parties for some time which culminated on Tuesday afternoon. The residences of the two parties adjoin one another and in the yard attached to Casey's house there is a pool of stagnant water. Mrs. Casey was digging a drain to let this water out when James McNamara seeing the water running into his yard asked her to discontinue her work. On her refusing McNamara struck her on the head with a spade, which injured her seriously. McNamara has been arrested but stoutly denies having struck her or the head.

With some enthusiasm, the Herald of Health tells of a large man who lived for a month off seven cents' worth of fruit and farinaceous food a day, coming out of the experiment with increased weight and improved health. But it is admitted that at the end of the month he returned to beefsteak as the ordinary food with renewed zest. Seven cents' worth of farinaceous food may keep a human being alive, and $1.58 may pay for a student's washing for a whole year, but it is too much like the idiotic passion some persons have for making themselves uncomfortable on a wager, for walking a thousand miles in a thousand hours, or standing on one foot so many hours without going to sleep, and that sort of thing.

A man named James Alexander, residing about a mile from the village of Brighton, committed suicide on Wednesday morning. He had been shaving, and afterwards, while his daughter was out at the barn, cut both his arms and his throat with the razor. Deceased for some years had been suffering from disease of the heart, and for the last few months had been quite desponding. He was 55 years of age, highly respected, industrious, and very temperate in his habits. He leaves a wife and two grown-up daughters.

The Evening Mercury

THURSDAY EVN'G, MARCH 14, 1878.

THE Government has made an offer to the Oka Indians to remove them to Manitoulin Island, where they will get free grants of lands, with $20,000 in cash, in settlement of their claims against the Seminary. The Indians have the matter under consideration.

IT is stated that one reason Sir John is so anxious to get back to power this year is that he may be in office when the next census is taken. If he succeeds, he will, so it is said, reconstruct the constituencies of the country in such a way that the Grits will be in a minority so long as the Tories wish to keep them so.

THE O'Donovan Rossa agitation is as strong as ever in Toronto, and should the present excitement be maintained the fears of trouble may be realised, although there is a very large majority of citizens of all shades of opinion, including many Orangemen, who are in favor of letting the man come and go as he will, and leaving him religiously alone.

A BILL just introduced by Mr. Laflamme abolishes the office of Receiver-General and appoints a new law officer, to be known as the Attorney-General for Canada, who will divide the work with the Minister of Justice. The same deputy will do duty for both. It is the belief that the Hon. Mr. Coffin will take the position of President of the Council, as the office of Receiver-General, which he now holds, will be abolished.

THE analysis of the vote on Wednesday morning of Sir John's amendment shows that of the Ontario members twenty-nine voted for Sir John's motion, and 56 against it, in Quebec thirty-five voted for and 26 against it; British Columbia, three for the amendment, and one against it; in Prince Edward Island one voted for the amendment and five against it; in New Brunswick, three voted for the amendment and ten against it; in Nova Scotia four voted for the amendment, and sixteen against it; and in Manitoba two voted for the amendment, and none against it. The total vote gives 77 for Sir John's amendment and 114 against it. Fifteen were absent or paired off, and the majority in favor of the Government was 37.

THE Mercer Estate matter has not yet been laid at rest, and the probabilities are, after all, the money will not be put to the good use which the Government intend to put it, but that it will be frittered away among the numerous fraternity of Chancery lawyers—as many a good estate has been before. The alleged natural son of the late Andrew Mercer is not satisfied with the $30,000 so liberally given him by the Legislature, but intends to use it to contest the balance of the claim. Another claimant has also appeared on the scene in the person of Hon. Mr. Scott, an English County Judge, who has made formal application to the Master in Chancery contending he is a near relative to the deceased Mercer and therefore a legitimate heir to the estate.

SAYS the Hamilton Times' Ottawa correspondent:—Notwithstanding the sneers from the organs at the statement, first made public in these columns, that Sir John is to retire from the leadership of the Conservative party, the belief that such is the fact is gradually gaining ground. It is said on very good authority that the private understanding between himself and the other leaders is that every effort shall be made to restore him to power, so that he may be, as it were, ostensibly rehabilitated as to his political character and go to England and assert his right, after bitter repentance, to be sworn in as Privy Councillor. The keenest thrust that can be made at Sir John is to throw in his face the fact that, though he lays claim to the appellation of "Right Honorable," his name does not appear in the official or other lists of Her Majesty's Privy Councillors. He has almost become childish about this. He argues, that, as he was guilty for party sake of unprecedented infamy to keep it in power, it should now lend its efforts to wipe off the terrible stain from his reputation, so that he may retire to private life with all the honors he has now. The party has consented to qualify him, on the understanding that when he gets the bauble for which he frets, he should step out of the way of his rivals, which he repeatedly publicly and privately affirms he is ready to do.

THE FORMOSA RIOTS.—From China the Hong Kong Daily Press reports the destruction of a mission chapel. On the 15th of December (they say), at a place called Banka, about ten miles from the port of Tamsui, a mob of upwards of 2,000 Chinese assembled and attacked the chapel of the Canada Presbyterian Mission, which they pulled down, at the same threatening the Rev. G. L. Mackay, the missionary in charge, that they would kill him unless he immediately left the city. Mr. Mackay fearlessly confronted the mob, and told them that he was well aware that they could easily carry their threat into execution if they chose to do so, but he was not afraid of them, and he would not depart. Hearing of the disturbances and the threats that had been uttered by the infuriated mob, the British consul applied to the Tamsui Ting to protect Mr. Mackay against further violence, but the Ting, having only 100 soldiers to protect his yamen, said he could not spare any men, and he therefore begged Mr. Mackay to leave the place for the present. This Mr. Mackay stoutly refused to do, and he was still in Banka when the Hailong left Tamsui. The trouble is said to have originated out of some quarrel between the Chinese teachers or members belonging to the mission and the literati.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Mar. 13.

The Premier, in reply to Dr. Schultz, said the Government knew nothing of the lease of the Pembina branch, C. P. R., to Messrs. Hill, Kittson, Stephens, and Smith, as stated in a Winnipeg despatch.

A short discussion arose on Mr. Goudge's motion for a return of all expenditure for repairs and additions made by the late Government in the Tupper house, Hollis-street, Halifax. This house in said street was transferred by Dr. Tupper to his son for one dollar, plus natural love and affection, a short time before it was leased for offices for the Intercolonial Railway. The rental was $600 per annum, but an additional sum of about $1 500 was spent by the late Government repairing and improving the property, which was occupied only seventeen months by the railway office. He thought the transaction had all the character of a job.

Dr. Tupper said he had no pecuniary interest whatever in the house, and would be glad of an investigation, as he was satisfied it was not a colorable transaction.

Mr. Jones pointed out the coincidence of circumstances by which the transfer was characterized. The transfer, made at a time when the Intercolonial required an office, to a member of Dr. Tupper's own family, was singularly convenient, and enabled him to reap the benefit without incurring the penalty.

Mr. Thompson (Cariboo) moved for a copy of all reports of Mr. Joseph Hunter, C. E., in regard to the survey made by him in 1877 of the Pine River Pass in the Rocky Mountains. The mover and Mr. DeCosmos spoke in favour of the selection of that pass for the route of the Pacific Railway.

Mr. Fecheste moved for a select Committee to secure a better translation of the British North America Act.

After recess the following Bills were advanced a stage:—An Act to reduce the capital stock of the Merchants' Bank of Canada; an Act to provide that persons charged with common assault shall be competent as witnesses in their behalf.

Mr. Archibald then resumed the debate on Mr. Langevin's motion for a return respecting the six lowest tenders for the new Welland Canal. The debate then degenerated into an attack on the Minister of Public Works for the manner in which contracts were given out.

Sir John Macdonald severely commented on the First Minister for not awarding the contract for the Goderich harbour to Mr. Tolton.

The Premier declared there was nothing wrong in what he had done. The leader of the Opposition, he said, was very ready to make insinuations, but was not manly enough to make his charge squarely and above board. At his picnic excursions he was very ready to make charges. When face to face with an opponent he was very generous, but when his back was turned he could malign him and stab him in the dark. The Premier then went on to fully describe his system of giving out contracts. In all these cases the practical officers of the Department decided the award of contracts, except in cases where some extraordinary circumstances rendered action by the Government necessary. He made it a rule to trust the officers of his Department and treat them courteously, although none of them had been appointed by him or any Government he supported.

Mr. Casey read Sir John's speech of last session, in which that gentleman absolved the member for South Bruce of all blame in writing the famous Moore letter to the Premier. Now that generous admission was retracted and a direct charge of corruption instituted. Under these circumstances he requested him to come to business, ask for a Committee, and proceed to proof.

Mr. Landerkin did not believe the Government should be bound down to accepting the lowest tender. He held it was a wise proceeding to compare the acts of the late and present Administrations.

The London Cruelty Case.

The Girl's Story of Ill treatment.

LONDON, March 13.

The examination of the hair factory torture case was resumed to-day at the Police Court, Hargraves being placed in the prisoner's dock. The affair has caused a deep sensation in the city and vicinity, and the court-room was continually crowded with angry and violently disposed men, who openly manifested their abhorrence of the prisoner's conduct and sympathy with the chief prosecutrix, the orphan girl, Annie Sparks. The crowd was strongly prompted to lay hold of the prisoner and deal summarily with him, but better counsel prevailed. Nevertheless, at the close of the court the street was filled with angry crowds waiting to execrate Hargraves, as he should come out. There were present in this Court on behalf of the girl Sparks, Miss Ball, of the Rye Home, Niagara, Mr. and Mrs. Lings, and Rev. Evan Davis. The implements of torture, consisting of ropes and pulleys, leather straps, padlocks, and a gag were produced in court, amid an outburst of honest indignation from the audience.

Annie Sparks, aged sixteen, being sworn, testified to the cruelties practised upon her by both Hargarves and his partner Jarvis. The former had often struck her with his hand and his walking cane. She identified one of the leather straps as having been used to bind her wrist, and described how it was locked with a padlock and attached to a rope, when it was pulled up by a pully fastened in the ceiling. Her hands were kept above her head. The first time she was drawn up she remained from one till three o'clock, the second time for two or three days, being hoisted up at day and let down at night. The third time she was there four days. Hargraves would come at dinner-time and slacken the rope to enable her to eat, then hoist her up again. At night she was given a quilt to lie on, but in the morning it was taken away, and she was strapped up again for the day. At length she was let out of the dark room, at one a.m., by Hargraves and Jarvis, who came for that purpose. She next described the gagging process. Jarvis also used to beat her with a rope's end. Since the machinery of torture was applied, the most of the punishment was given for talking while at work. She disputed with the girls about religion, she being a Protestant and her employers Catholics. She was given a medal, and to spite one of the girls threw it down. For this she was beaten with a cane by Hargraves. The witness saw the boys, Leslair, McGeary and John Jordan, strapped up and punished in the dark room. Altogether her evidence went to show the system of tyranny and daily outrage by which the factory was conducted.

In cross-examination, the girl stated that since the trial commenced, and before his arrest, Hargraves attempted to bribe her to swear falsely in his favor.

The prisoner was committed for trial

Proceedings have also been taken against Jarvis, but he has absconded.

The forewoman, Margaret Donnelly, has been arrested as an accomplice.

A Former Student's Opinion of The Agricultural College.

(To the Editor of the Globe.)

SIR,—If the wants and wishes of farmers' sons are to be consulted, and if our Agricultural College is ever going to be a success, the teaching of practical work at the College should be confined within narrow limits, and the students should receive a thorough knowledge of the natural sciences, with some other studies added. The opinion held by some, that farmers' sons go there for the purpose of learning farm work, is an idea too contemptible to be entertained for a moment. The folly of attempting to teach what can be learned in a much shorter time on any first class farm in the country has been the stumbling-block in the road ever since the institution was opened. While holding these views, I do not, for a moment, wish to be understood as intimating that nothing can be learned at the Guelph institution in the way of practical farming. On the contrary, I believe that there is not a young man come from what part of the Province he may, but will find much that is highly valuable to him; but this, we contend, could be learned during those hours necessary for relaxation while pursuing a severe course of studies, or, at most, by working eight or ten hours a week.

Coupling the object of the institution the time allotted for its accomplishment—two years—will at once explain much of the want of success which may have attended it in the past. A "thorough mastery of the practice of husbandry" cannot be acquired by any youth in less than three years; a mastery of the theory of husbandry would require two or three; and yet all this is to be crammed into a youth fresh from school in two years, an absurdity too glaring to require any comment. The farmers' sons who entered the school when it was opened very soon left in disgust. In the second year great improvement was made, although the necessity of working five hours a day on the farm was a serious loss of time to young men whose services were of some value at home. In the inside department fair progress was made, the chief drawback being want of funds to equip the school. We had a very interesting course of lectures in geology, but had scarcely got beyond the rudiment when the lecturer told us that for wants of means to illustrate his courses it was useless to go any further. The library at that time consisted of a book-case filled with some musty obsolete volumes from some lumber room in Toronto. Again and again we went to the Principal requesting to be furnished with appliances to study the lectures to advantage, and he, while recognizing the justice of our claims, told us that he had done everything in his power, with but little success. He had strongly urged the claims of the institution on the Government; he had endeavoured to obtain the support of private members; and he told us that while the representatives from the towns and cities were willing to grant any reasonable amount to put the institution on a sound footing, the representatives from the country districts—the men who we have no doubt, could shout on the hustings about the claims of agriculture—the men who, year after year, were voting over $300,000 to the support of Grammar and High Schools, the benefits of which were almost entirely confined to the youths of the towns and cities—these were the very men—to their eternal disgrace be it said—who refused to grant a few paltry thousands to equip a college for the education of farmers' sons, even after a large sum had been expended in purchasing the necessary farm and buildings.

Despite the disadvantages under which we laboured, many of the students of 1875 were pleased with the progress they had made, and it was with feelings of regret we found, after having mastered the elements of agricultural science, that so far as any further progress was concerned the doors of the school were closed against us, owing in part to the want of funds, partly to the want of support from the farming community, and still more to the folly of sacrificing the true interests of the school in favor of practical work. Anxious to learn something of the application of the sciences to agriculture, and unwilling to lose what we had already acquired, one or two of us made enquiries as to what could be done at University College in completing the course we had begun, but found that, the Guelph School, being an isolated institution, its curriculum of necessity differing from that of other colleges in the land, it would be but little benefit to attend any of them unless we took a course of studies which, however desirable, would require more time than we felt was at our disposal. We left the Guelph institution without obtaining the object for which we entered it, with the bitter reflection that in this land of schools and colleges this land that boasts of its educational system, as well as of its advancement of the agricultural art, there was not a single institution, public or private, where a young man about to engage in agricultural or horticultural pursuits, could obtain an education to qualify him for his business in the same way as a professional man is educated for his. Two or three of the students of 1875 had come a long way with the expectation of improving themselves in certain branches of agriculture in which the farmers in their neighborhood were deficient, but in this they were disappointed owing to the want of funds. Of the various causes which have opposed the progress of the institution in the past, none is more inexcusable than the want of means. There is no lack of Government money to bonus railways, and money without stint—to the credit of the country be it said,—to support High Schools; money to build asylums for the maimed, the halt, and the blind, drunkards, paupers, and idiots; money for a college to teach young men to play soldier; and with five millions in the treasury, farmers' sons have been forced to leave the Agricultural College, year after year, because the country could not afford to equip it for its work.

Another source of great injury to the school in the past has been the repeated attacks made by certain members of the Opposition party, both in and out of Parliament. It has ever, we believe, been a principle, recognized by all the honoured men of both political parties, that into all those questions affecting the educational interests of the country party political warfare must not be allowed to enter—a principle totally disregarded in all the discussions which have taken place regarding the Agricultural College. Not only during the troubles connected with its inception, but ever since the institution was opened, articles have appeared in some of the Conservative newspapers, and statements have been made in Parliament which were either false in point of fact or otherwise in point of argument.

The hon. Premier and his worthy opponent tell us the institution is an experiment, but with all due deference to these gentlemen, we humbly submit that it is no such thing. It is simply the old question of Educatedy vs. Uneducated Labour; it never had, and from the very nature of things can never have, but one solution. Mr. Lauder and Mr. Macdougall also call it an experiment, and at the same time strain every nerve to prevent it from being an experiment, in any fair sense of the word. Some people talk about the want of success, but what success, we would like to enquire, could be expected from an institution treated as it has been? With one of the leading articles in its constitution demanding impossibilities, disowned by the men whose interests it was wisely established to promote, betrayed by those who pretended to have the agricultural interests of the country at heart, used as a football by unprincipled partisans, so far from expecting any good results, the wonder is that the institution is in existence to-day.

While, Sir, it is true that the Agricultural College did not come up to the expectation of the farmers' sons who attended it in the past, I am but giving the opinion of the majority of them in expressing our most unshaken confidence in its future success, when established on a somewhat different basis and thoroughly equipped for its work.

Yours, etc.,
JOHN A. CAMPBELL.

TOBACCO ADULTERATION.—The Pall Mall Gazette, of London, England, says: "The popular belief that bad cigars are made of cabbage leaves is not justified by the last official report on tobacco adulteration. This document contains a tabulated account of the seizures of spurious tobacco made in the United Kingdom since 1864; and in the whole paper there is no mention whatever of the much-suspected vegetable. Its place in the black list is supplied by a variety of ingredients large enough to rejoice the heart of any member of the Anti-tobacco League. The dishonest dealer in things smokeable is shown by the report to make use of three different sorts of materials besides that which he professes to employ. The first sort is required for the actual substance of the cigar; the second for improving its outward appearance; and the third for imparting to it what is supposed to be a better taste. In the former category the favourite substances seemed to be the leaves of the lime tree, the husks of wheat and oats, cotton, yarn, and tonquin bean. But there are numerous cases where the ingredients have been much more curiously selected, and have included cocoanut fibre, small seeds, cotton, wood, and bread. At one establishment 50lbs. of "tobacco dust" were found and analysed, when it was shown to contain string, wood, nails, grindings of tobacco pipes, dirt, and all sorts of refuse. Another large class of materials is apparently used for securing the adhesion and consistency of the cigar when made. Amongst these starch is the most prominent; but it includes gum and amidine, blue, gum arabic, glue, glycerine, and essential oils. The colour of the fabrication is the next thing to be attended to, and for this purpose resort is had to yellow ochre, red sandalwood, logwood, lampblack, and Venetian red. As for the flavour of the cigar, it is varied to suit the most diverse tastes; but the usual object seems to be to impart to it a pleasing sweetness of tone. Accordingly saccharine matter, and especially treacle, is very largely pressed into the service. For those who like a more decided taste, licquorice, salt, logwood, glycerine, and aniseed are used. It is in Dublin where the latter ingredient is most fashionable, while Edenburgh is fondest of treacle and sugar, and East London is addicted to liquorice.

HAROLD THE OUTLAW

—OR—

The Gauger of Skene.

CHAPTER XXVI.

THE GAUGER SHOWS HIMSELF AT HIS BEST—HAROLD'S MAGNANIMITY — THE FATAL TEMPTATION.

"But wasn't it a noble thing of Harold to do it."

"Too noble, in my opinion, sir. It was a good thing for us no doubt, but I cannot understand the feeling which caused him to do it. Were I in his shoes I would not hesitate a moment to denounce that ferocious ruffian, Black Dick. Fancy it being a point of honor to screen him."

"Ah, Ned," sighed Gillespie. "I suspect neither you nor I can understand or estimate such high feelings as animate Harold Logan."

"Perhaps not," said Skeat; but we can at least understand that we have profited by them, and so I'm not inclined to say much against him. Poor fellow, how hard it is for him to have his wife and child carried off. I feel a great deal more about that than anything else, for it is all owing to me."

"You never gave me a hint of having a game of that kind in hand," observed his master.

"No—I saw you were too much cut up about the other concern to enter on a new one. So Tom Ironby and I agreed to hold this card ourselves, and, curse it, Tom has played it, and grabbed the stakes for himself."

"Where can Gilmour have conveyed the mother and child?" queried the gauger, "or who has done the job for him—Dougal McCallum, most likely. Unless they have been made away with altogether, their ultimate discovery can only be a question of time."

"You mean if they haven't murdered them! Neither Gilmour nor Dougal have pluck enough to risk the halter. So you may depend on it they have the two in safe keeping."

"Then Harold will find them," said Gillespie, in a decided tone. "I wish we could get the first trace, Ned—it would be one faint score wiped off our account. I'll spare neither trouble nor expense to"——expense, he repeated, with a sudden blanching of conscience. "Heaven help me, I am in no condition to incur expense for this or anything else. I am over head and ears in debt. My creditors are pressing—this bill, which is due to morrow, I have no means of meeting—Ned, Ned—it is ruin any way I look at it; can nothing be done to avert it?"

"There's only one thing I can think of," replied Skeat."

Gillespie caught at the words eagerly.

"One thing—one thing—what is that?" he cried.

"Wait a little. I will tell you when I return," was the answer, and Skeat—over whose face a strange expression came—withdrew into the next room.

His operations here during the following half hour were very peculiar. Having fastened the door to prevent the entrance of his master should he desire to come in, he sat down at his business table, and from a drawer therein took out a piece of glass about eight inches square with a letter fixed in the back so that the writing shone through.

The most noticeable thing about the writing as seen through the glass was the signature—large, bold, and well flourished, but very pale, each letter being distinct by itself and fully formed. The body of the letter and signature had evidently been written by different persons.

Skeat placed two of the large business books on the table before him, a few inches apart, fixed the glass up against them, and set the candle behind it, so close that the writing on the other side shone distinctly through, especially the signature, which was so much heavier and darker than the rest. Even when he placed a piece of writing paper on the side of the glass next him, the signature could be discerned in all its outlines, and that so vividly that Skeat could trace the course of the letters with his pen quite acurately.

This he did several times, shifting his writing paper on each occasion, till the surface was covered by fac similes of the signature under the glass. The first of his tracings were tremulous, but the latter ones were bold and heavy, just like the letters he had copied; and so great a resemblance had the copy to the original that no one could detect the difference.

Skeat looked at them narrowly—compared them minutely with the signature under the glass, and a satisfied smile spread itself over his blotched face. Then he doubled up the paper, lighted it at the candle, and held it in his hand till it was burned to ashes.

His next proceeding was to bring forth a piece of stamped paper from the drawer, and write upon it in his usual hand the usual words in which a bill at three months is drawn. This done, he laid it on the glass, and after carefully adjusting it over the signature, traced the latter with special pains and minuteness. When done, he lifted it off, and anxiously examined it. The likeness was perfect. To all appearance it was a genuine bill for £100, duly drawn and duly signed.

Laying it on the table he put the glass back into the drawer, and after waiting till the ink was dry, took it to the othe room, where Gillespie still sat, bending with troubled look ever his papers.

At Skeat's entrance the gauger lifted his head inquiringly. He had vainly tried to imagine what Ned meant by the words he had uttered, and watched anxiously to be enlightened.

"Toere," said Skeat, laying the bill before him, "that will tide you over for the present."

Gillespie looked at the paper—first with strong curiosity, then with an amazement, which gave place to the most surprised gratification.

"A bill for £100! he exclaimed. "In all the world, Ned, how have you managed to induce Smithson to grant that? It was only the day before yesterday he refused me a smaller loan."

"Did he?" said Skeat, with a low chuckle.

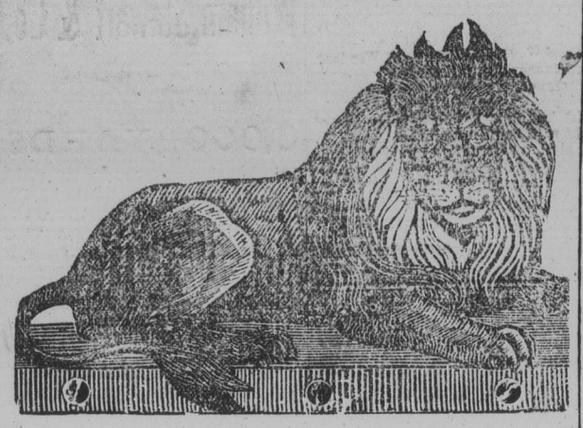
"Positively yes. I asked him to advance me fifty pounds, and he declined point blank."

"Ah! then I'm glad I doubled it."

"But how did you manage to get round him?"

"Never mind how I managed it," laughed Skeat; "just you sign your name below his, and get the bill discounted at the bank to-morrow."

"Of course I will, and get this one retired," said the gauger, with joyous alacrity, as with his finger he tapped on the bill which loy at his side, and which was a draft copy of one which came to maturity on the following day.



"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."

If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.

50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

THE BRITISH CATTLE BILL.—Meetings had been held at Sheffield and Liverpool to oppose the Duke of Richmond's Cattle Bill. The Canadian shipping interest at Liverpool has drawn up a petition to the House of Commons against the Bill, showing how the trade in live cattle has grown, large sums have been expended in fitting steamers, and that the Bill, if it became law, would extinguish the trade. On the other hand, disease has never been known among Canadian herds. Canada is an integral part of the Empire, and Canadian cattle are not foreign cattle, but the growth and produce of British territory. The Canadians are prepared to fight British battles if necessary, therefore they claim that Canadian interests should be treated as Imperial interests, and therefore pray that Canadian cattle may be permitted to come as heretofore.

James Roberts, engine driver, who was severely hurt in the accident on the G.T.R., at Breslau, some weeks ago, is entirely recovered from his injuries, and will soon be able to return to duty.

ABSENT MINDED.—A gentleman was taking a sail not long since when the boat upset. He sank twice and when just going down for the third and last time remembered that he could swim and struck out for shore.

Extravagance is rapidly ruining the Khedive of Egypt. He sustains upwards of twenty palaces in which he supports in luxury three wives and nine hundred women of the harem. Each of the grown up Princes of the blood also has his separate palace and retinue of servants, and the horses in the stables of the father and sons are numbered by hundreds.

A meeting was held at Wellesley on Friday evening to discuss the advisability of incorporating that place as a village. The sentiment of the meeting was in favor of incorporation.

English Engineer Officers Ordered to prepare for Foreign Service.

Germany Wants Full Text of Treaty Submitted to Congress.

LONDON, March 15.—The Stock Exchange to-day is depressed, and securities have a downward tendency. The English Engineer Officers first on the list have been ordered to prepare for foreign service, with field equipments. It is considered probable that Congress will meet before April 15th.

A Berlin despatch says that Germany upholds the proposition of submitting all the terms of the treaty of peace to Congress except the question of pecuniary indemnity.

It is officially announced from Athens that Russia refuses to admit Greece to the Conference.

Fire in Acton.

ACTON, March 15.—About two o'clock this morning the fire alarm was sounded and fire was discovered in the carriage factory of Mr. James Ryder. The flames made rapid headway, and by four o'clock his carriage shop, blacksmith shop, and house were in ashes. His books, notes and some money were in the office at the time, and could not be got out. One double sleigh, one double cutter, and one single cutter was all the ready-made work that was saved. Most of his household goods were saved.

The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Messrs. John Barber and David T. Smith, employees, lost all their tools, on which they had no insurance; their loss will probably be about $150 each. Mr. Ryder's loss is estimated at $10,000; insured for $3,500. Mr. Ryder purposes building again immediately.

A DARING ACT.—A young man named Maurice Sheehan, employed in Mr. James Hazelton's furniture warerooms, on Upper Wyndham street, did an act on Thursday afternoon which shows that he is possessed of considerable courage and muscle. A team of heavy draught horses attached to a railway dray took fright while in the yard at the rear of Massie, Weir & Bryce's biscuit and confectionery establishment. They bolted out of the yard, turned up Woolwich and then down Wyndham street. Boxes of biscuits and other goods fell off the dray as it swung round the corners, and by the time the animals got opposite Mr. Hazelton's warerooms they were going at a fearful pace. Sheehan, who was standing on the sidewalk, at once emade preparations to stop the animals, and as they were passing he managed to catch hold of the dray and spring on it. The lines were then secured and by hard pulling he got the horses down to a slower pace. When he secured the lines parties on the sidewalk that saw the act cheered lustily.

A 25c. bottle will cure any ordinary case. A 50c. bottle has frequently cured chronic cases of from one month to two years' standing, and that after having spent many dollars in vain attempts to get relief. A dollar bottle holds more in proportion, and should be kept in every house. It will save many a doctor's bill.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

ALLEGED CHILD DESERTION.—Mary Ann Hanna and her daughter were charged recently before Messrs. Ewes, Landerkin, Walker and Burrow, Justices of the Peace, at Palmerston, with abandoning a child, the younger defendant being the mother. It appears that the child was left at the house of Wm. Gregg, on the 20th of January last, the mother claiming that he was the father. Mrs. Hanna stated that she thought they were the injured parties; they were advised to send the child were they did, but she would not say that she took it. The parties were bound over to appear to answer to the charge at the next court of competent jurisdiction in Guelph.

FOR FORMOSA.—Rev. Mr. Junor, who preached in Chalmers' Church here not long since, and who as the new representative of the Presbyterian Church in Formosa, left for that place on Wednesday afternoon, accompanied by his family and a Chinese woman who came over with Dr. Fraser. On the Monday evening before his departure a number of personal friends and others assembled in the Widder street Presbyterian Church, St. Mary's, on the eve of their departure. Several ministers addressed the meeting, among which was Dr. Fraser, who has lately returned from this field of labor to which Mr. Junor is going. At the close of the meeting Mr. Junor was presented with a handsome purse by Mr. McAlpine, on behalf of the ladies.

MOOREFIELD FIRE.—The young Markel and Roberts arrested on suspicion of having fired the Moorefield Mills on Sunday morning last have been released. The Drayton Era states that there was not a tittle of evidence to show that they were in any way implicated in the dastardly deed. The Era evidently tries to make capital against Mr. Brodie, the proprietor of the mills, by stating that while he was in Guelph he made different statements to the reporters of the daily press here. Such was not the case, as Mr. Brodie stated to the reporters, who happened to be together at the time, that the fire was first discovered shortly after six o'clock in the morning—say ten or fifteen minutes.

Sintzenich, the Annihilationist.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—I went to the Town Hall last night to hear the lecture on "Man and his destiny" and it was just such a lecture as might have been expected from an itinerant luminary of that stamp from the other side. It was what might be termed a mixture of Christadelphism and Second Adventism. The lecturer is a capital hand at sophistry. He would have you believe that he has great reverence for the Word of God. He told us about a dozen times that he was going to give us no human interpretation of the Holy Scriptures, that the Word of God should speak for itself, and he allowed it to speak for itself in the same way as an apostle of the Latter Day Saint creed does—quoted a passage of Scripture and explained it according to his own views. That is, indeed, a most unique way of allowing the Scriptures to speak for themselves. In referring to the command of the Almighty to Adam, "Multiply and replenish the earth," the lecturer, if he is worthy of such a term, laid great stress on the word "replenish." From which he gave us to understand that the earth had been peopled before the creation of Adam. Will the lecturer give us scriptural proof for that assertion? When speaking of man being created in the image of God, he said, "Can we infer from the word 'image' that man was created an immortal being. Certainly not? If man is immortal he must be possessed of all the other attributes of Deity." Not necessarily so. He told us that the angels were immortal, and I would ask the lecturer if the angels possess all the other attributes of God. He went on in true Yankee style of abusing all those who were unfortunate enough to hold different views from himself, and told us, with quite a flourish of trumpets, that if we refused to accept his teachings that after we went into the grave we should not come out again. Well, there is one consolation, Mr. S. has not the handling of our destiny. His lecture produced one effect, which lecturers generally do not like to see. It was moving. Many left before he got through. As Canadians we are not accustomed to listen to such so-called lecturers. It was neither an intellectual nor theological treat. The "lecturer" would do well to simplify his ideas in the future and give over tossing about his classical and scientific terms. Such a style of speaking may sound big on the "other side," but on this side of the border it is taken for what it is worth. He talked about being stabbed in the dark by clergymen, he need fear no foul play while he perambulates the Dominion. It is the desire, I am sure of all our clergymen, that such a man should die a natural death. A lecturer with such a small capital will do no harm.

Yours truly,
H. HARRIS.

McDonald, the employer of Shaw, wanted the article back but Maney refused to allow him to get it. Hence the arrest of the agent. Shaw was fined $8, the price of the churn.

The severest storm ever experienced in Virginia passed over Jefferson County on Monday. Hailstones, larger than eggs, fell for an hour, unroofing houses, breaking glass and killing cattle, hogs and sheep. It is said by those who have been travelling extensively, that the fall wheat is in a most encouraging condition, and that if the weather does not become far more severe than there is now any reasonable prospect for fearing, there will be another splendid harvest this year.

Guelph Manufactures.

Mr. Levi Cossitt's Agricultural Implement Works.

It is now nearly a year since the implement works of Mr. Levi Cossitt, situated on Nelson Crescent were destroyed by fire. Before the conflagration took place, large and commodious buildings of stone were in course of construction on the corner of Suffolk and Yorkshire streets. These buildings were pushed forward with great activity, and in a few weeks thereafter were ready for occupation. A few weeks more and the ceaseless daily hum of industry was heard throughout the works, and gang plows, lawn mowers, &c., were being turned out at a marvellously rapid pace.

A reporter visited the factory recently and while being shown roun the shops and listening to explanations of the machines, &c., sufficient notes were taken to give the reader an idea of the proportion of the establishment, its capacity, and amount of business done.

The main building is 40 by 80 feet in size, three stories in height with a commodious basement. An office facing Suffolk street extends from the east side 18 by 30 feet, At the back is the boiler room 24 by 40 feet. A glance round the office shows an airy, well-lighted room and all appliances such as are to be found in all offices where a large amount of business is to be transacted, are here found. This room as well as the entire building is heated by steam piping. An experienced book-keeper and shipping clerk who occupy this apartment have very comfortable quarters. A commodious vault is built in connection with the office.

The first floor of the main building is used as a machine shop. Here the greatest order and cleanliness, as far as it can be observed, prevails. An iron planer does its work slowly and surely; lathes, of which there are a number, are all in operation and the endless turning continues; immense drills are looked after by begrimmed workmen, punches, snap off bars of steel or iron, the requisite lengths, as fast as the metal can be fed to them, and bolt machines turn out the threaded iron very rapidly. The shop is thoroughly lighted, and positive comfort as far as complete arrangements and hard work can make it can be found by the artizans. Off the machine shop is the engine room, which is kept as clean and looks quite as neat as a fastidious person might desire a dining room. The wood work is all oak grained. "Worswick Variable Cut-off" is what the engine is called. Its working is very easy—not a single jar noticeable in its motion. A brass railing extends along the front of the engine, which is a safeguard and places accidents to visitors out of the question.

An elevator is used to reach the second floor. This is a powerful affair, is worked by steam, and is capable of conveying from one ton to a ton and a half. All the stock are shipped from one floor to the other by this means. The second floor is devoted exclusively to wood workers. Many valuable machines are here to be found. Shapers, planers, band circulars, and tenoaing saws, mortising machines, etc., all have their use and are kept pretty constantly in motion. It is here of course where all the wood work for reapers, lawn mowers, etc., is turned out. The reaper manufactured by Mr. Cossit is an improvement on the Maxwell machine, and is likely to have a large demand.

The third floor is also reached by steam power. It is here where the painting and finishing touches are put on the implements before they are ready for shipping. A portion of the top floor is also used as a store room. Very little storage, however, is required, as it requires the works to be run at full time, with all hands that can be placed at work, to keep pace with the orders.

The basement is used altogether for storing raw and partly finished material. At the present time there is a very large stock of the raw material on hand. Off the basement is the boiler room having a stone floor. The boiler is forty horse power, and the engine which it drives twenty-five. Everything in connection with the basement is kept in the best of order; the boiler room like the engine room being particularly neat in all appointments. In the basement is situated the fan of the blast, which is run through to the moulding shop. The blacksmith shop is also provided with a small blast for their forges.

West of the main building are the blacksmiths' and moulding shops, the former 30x40, and the latter 40x60 feet. Workmen were busily engaged turning out wrought iron into such shape to be ready for the machine shop. The moulding shop is a scene of animation about half-past four o'clock each day. It is here the small army of men are busily engaged making ready to pour the molten iron. The roar of the fan is heard, while orders are given in a higher key by the foreman. At last everything is ready and the cupalo is tapped. All have ladles in which to catch the liquid iron. After a number of boxes have been poured, and the steam from the damp sand begins to fill the building, nothing looks more like the picture of some other world where imps are said to have their abode.

Mr. Cossit should have every reason to feel satisfied at the very large demand for his implements. At the present time he is about filling an order for 140 lawn mowers for a firm in Glasgow. This is the second large order received from the same house. These mowers are becoming rapidly introduced in Europe, and their superior excellence at once commands for them a ready sale. About 1,000 mowers during the season will be disposed of. Negotiations are now in progress with responsible men to establish several agencies in Europe and also in Australia. The number of gang plows manufactured and sold each week is fully 100. The merits of this plough are known over the entire Dominion. A single plough called the Climax is also manufactured. This season is the first for the reapers, but the prospects are excellent.

The premises are excellently situated for a manufactory, within a short distance of the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railway stations. There is plenty of yard room at the works, something like three acres, with a creek running through one corner of the lot.

The number of hands kept in constant employment is forty-five, and they work full time.

The Cossitt works can justly be ranked among the great industries of Guelph.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

More Trouble about the Congress.

Britain and Russia's Views Antagonistic.

Neither Power Willing to Yield.

LONDON, March 14th.

The English demand is that all points of the Treaty should be submitted to the Congress, and that all nations shall abide by its decision.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Sir Stafford Northcote, answering an inquiry, said in the coming Conference each Power would preserve the liberty of retiring from the deliberation at any moment. The minority would be bound by the decisions of the majority. He said England demanded that the whole question should be placed before the Conference.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Sir Stafford Northcote stated if the Mutiny Bill and certain estimates are passed the House will rise on the 16th or 18th April till the 6th of May, for the Easter recess. The Chancellor will introduce the Budget on the 4th of April. The Government has agreed in principle to take part in the Conference or Congress.

The Admiralty have bought the Brazilian ironclad Independencia.

It is announced that the Admiralty has ordered all outward bound men-of-war to be detained to strengthen the Mediterranean fleet.

In the House of Commons to day Sir Robert Peel objected to Lord Lyons representing England in the Congress, because his opinions were opposed to those of Mr. Layard and Sir Henry Elliott. Sir Stafford Northcote replied that the Government was responsible for England's course at the Congress.

It is now certain England has unreservedly adhered to the French proposal for an investigation into the financial affairs of Egypt from vassalage if she acts in accord with other Powers. All the Powers have agreed that the questions of Egypt, Syria, and Tunis, and the Holy Places can only be raised at the Congress, with the consent of France, and within the limits she prescribes.

A Vienna despatch says:—Russia has intimated her desire that the Congress meet on the 30th of March, which is the twenty-second anniversary of the signature of the Treaty of Paris. The Austrian Government firmly anticipates that the Congress will assemble that day; but it seems hardly possible that everything can be ready so soon.

The Anglo-Austrian demand that the whole Russo-Turkish agreement be submitted to the Congress arises from the belief that secret arrangements have been entered into.

The Journal de St. Petersburg's intimation that Russia will refuse to submit all points of the Treaty has strengthened the current belief in a secret treaty.

The Agence Russe says:—Russia is not so confiding as to conclude secret clauses with Turkey when she knows that the slightest transactions are communicated to Minister Layard. The Agence points out that every Power will enter the Congress with full liberty as to the attitude it may assume relative to the claims brought forward and the decisions arrived at.

A Berlin correspondent states that an early meeting of the Congress is no longer probable. Russia displays no particular anxiety for it to meet at all, in consequence of England's and Austria's demand that the whole treaty be submitted.

A Vienna correspondent says:—Russia does not contest the right of the Congress to decide what clauses of the treaty involve European interests. England demands that the Congress shall have power to discuss all the clauses. Neither power seems disposed to give way. Italy and Germany, while assenting in principle to the admission of Greece to the Congress, think the Congress should decide the matter. Austria coincides, but is willing to have the matter decided before the meeting, if the question of the admission of vassal States is not thereby prejudiced.

A Constantinople despatch says:—The Provincial Governors have been ordered to send here promptly both the old and the newly enlisted recruits.

A Gallipoli despatch says:—There are two thousand Russian lancers and ten batteries of field artillery at Tcharkoi. Hobart Pasha has arrived here. After sending Suleiman Pasha to Constantinople for trial he will proceed to the Greek coast.

The London Torture Case.

More of the Refinements of Cruelty.

LONDON, March 14.—The hair factory cruelty case was continued to-day at the Police Court, the examination lasting all day, and the Court room being crowded as before, many ladies being present. The forewoman of the factory, Margaret Donnelly, was put upon her trial as an accomplice of Hargraves.

The girl Annie Sparks gave further testimony, stating that the defendant, assisted by Hargraves, forced her to take sulphur by striking her repeatedly with a stick of wood as large as a man's arm, and afterwards putting her into the dark room.

In the afternoon the case of the boy McGoey was taken up. This lad worked in the factory before Christmas, and for some trifling acts of disobedience Hargraves beat him with a leather thong and put him through a course of what he called "exercises." He made the boy strip off all his clothing and support himself upon his hands and toes. In this position he was to bow till his nose touched the floor, and each time he missed or stumbled he received a thwack of the leather strap, this being repeated over one hundred times, and another of the apprentices being compelled to count the strokes. After the lad was hung up by the hands in the dark room once he was quite suspended, when some one smuggled a chair in for him to stand on and get rest. Hargraves happening to visit the room and seeing the chair, kicked it away, leaving the boy dangling as before.

The little girl Sparks seems to be a very bright and spirited child, and gave her evidence in a clear and straightforward manner. The defendant was bound over in the sum of $2,000 to appear.

Popular interest in the case is unabated, and Hargraves and his partners in guilt are the subjects of general execration.

It was Miss Bayley, of the Rye Home, not Miss Ball, as stated yesterday, who was present on behalf of the girl Annie Sparks.

The Evening Mercury

FRIDAY EV'G, MARCH. 15, 1878

The Policy of the Opposition.

The Opposition in the House of Commons must be very hard up for charges against the Goverement when they have to fall back on the Goderich Harbour Contract. This was ventilated at every Tory pic-nic gathering for the past two years, but it is now made to do service once more in the vain hope that something might come out which would damage the Government. Mr. Farrow the somewhat eccentric member for North Huron, tried to show that it was with a view to serving the late Minister of Justice—the Hon. Mr. Blake—that the contract was awarded to Mr. Moore. There was not a tittle of evidence to show this, and the facts in connection with the whole matter were explatned for the fourth or fifth time. It was stated that the Minister of Public Works had acted on the advice of the Engineer, and in refusing to accept the lowest tender, the Government was only doing what its predecessors did, for they, in hundreds of instances had, for reasons assigned, refused to accept the lowest tender. Mr. Mackenzie gave full and satisfactory explanations why this was done. The lowest tender—that of Mr. Tolton—was passed over because on the recommendation of Mr. Page it was rejected because it was far below the Government estimate, and one of his sureties had given trouble in reference to a previous contract, and therefore Mr. Page reported against him. The only inference which was to be drawn from the conduct of the Opposition on this question was that they had undertaken to judge the Premier by the policy which they themselves pursued when in office. Those gentlemen had refused contracts to the lowest tenderers in numerous cases upon reports which seemed to be exactly the same as the one Mr. Page made in this case. They declined an enquiry because they were not ready to assume the responsibility of an investigation which they knew would vindicate the Premier, and in declining it they had slandered the majority of the House. Mr. Cartwright in addition said that it was well to remember dates. The present Government took office on the 7th November 1873. Mr. Tolton about a month afterwards had entered into a small contract on the Meaford harbor, which was not executed by the Government but by the municipality, and therefore did not come under the cognisance of the Public Works Department. But even if it had come under their cognisance, it was certainly not to be assumed by the Department of Public Works that the fact that a man had entered into a small contract of $15,000 was a warrant of his ability to execute a contract involving an expenditure of $200,000 or $300,000, and in which a serious engineering difficulty might be involved. Besides, there was a difficulty as to the acceptance of one of the securities, and on that account, and because Mr. Tolton's tender was a long way under the estimate of the Government engineer, that officer decided against the acceptance of the contract, and the Commissioner of Public Works acted on his advice.

The insinuation was more than once hinted at, that because the contractor, Mr. Moore, had a letter of introduction to the Premier from Mr. Blake, that that had something to do with his obtaining the contract. In reference to this Mr. Mackenzie said that when Sir John was face to face with the hon. member for South Bruce, he had regarded his letter as a proper one, but at the first pic-nic held afterwards he said that the letter looked very well on its face, but he said the word "friend" was underlined. He had exhibited that letter, and he could exhibit it in the House to prove that the hon. gentleman's statement was wrong. The hon. gentleman could certainly be very generous to an opponent before his face, but he could stab the opponent in the dark when his back was turned.

We think the matter was very well put by Dr. Landerkin, of South Grey, who in closing the debate said he had no desire to say anything against Mr. Tolton, but, in view of the statements of the Opposition that he was a rich man and an efficient contractor, he wished to say that though he lived in the same section of the country, he did not know that gentleman was a contractor at all until he had heard that he was working at the Meaford harbor. He had only known him previously as a grain buyer. But he did know that Mr. Moore had been engaged in other contracts, and had proven himself to be an efficient contractor. Under these circumstances he did not wonder very much that Mr. Tolton was not known to the Public Works Department as a contractor. With regard also to the statement that Mr. Tolton was in such a financial position as to justify him in taking the contract, he did not wish to say anything against that gentleman, but he had heard shortly after the contract was let that gentleman had made a composition with his creditors. The name of Sheriff Sutton had also been introduced into the discussion, and he had been asserted to be a rich man, and an able and efficient contractor. If there is any truth in the public records this same Sheriff Sutton had once been a tenderer for a contract on Chantry Island under the late Government, and had been passed over in favor of another, though his tender was $15,000 lower. If he were such an efficent contractor why had that $15,000 been lost to the country.

We think the Opposition had better leave the Goderich Harbour contract alone. The whole facts have been fairly and honestly laid before the public, and those who know best the parties interested, and the circumstances connected with the affair, cannot help but come to the conclusion that the Government did what was right, and for the best interests of the country.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA NOT GOING TO LECTURE.—The promised O'Donovan Ros a lecture is not to come off after all in Toronto. Mr. Lucien Barnes, manager of the Royal Opera House, and J. L. Troy, President of the Irish Catholic Union, have announced that, owing to unforeseen circumstances the lecture will not take place. Mayor Morrison was prepared to do his duty, having stated that, while willing to do his best to preserve the citizens in their rights, and preserve public order, yet treasonable language, calculated to stir the feelings of the mob, could not be permitted. It is now hoped Monday will pass over without any serious disturbance.

THE Senate sat ninety minutes on Monday, and yet these grave and reverend Seigniors draw their full pay.

THE Dundas Banner thinks the fact that there is not at present in all this wide Dominion a single Tory Government, may have something to do with the strange weather we have had this winter. Ask Vennor if he is not played out?

A Washington special despatch to the Tribune says that Mr. Delfosse expresses surprise at the aspect the fishery question has taken. The Americans look only upon one side of the question. Mr. Delfosse thinks the idea that the award is not binding because not unanimous, is absurd. He also says he consented with the greatest reluctance and only after persistent urging from both sides, to act on the Commission.

MR. MCGREGOR, of Essex, the other night in his speech on protection said what the farmers wanted was protection for themselves equal to what manufacturers and others were now receiving. The manufacturing and other interests were already sufficiently protected, and he would not support a resolution to give them increased protection.

THAT new Tory bantling—the Berlin News—says that a requisition is in circulation requesting Mr. Samuel Merner, Reeve of New Hamburg, to allow himself to be placed in nomination at the next election for the House of Commons, in South Waterloo, as an Independent candidate. Twas ever thus with the Tories. Finding it impossible to get one of their cloth to contest the Riding, they get hold of a renegade Reformer, who afraid to come out as a full fledged Tory seeks to sail under false colors as an Independent. Mr. Merner will find that he has presumed too much on the credulity of the electors in South Waterloo.

SAYS the Dundas Banner: — The Liberal Conservative Association of North Wentworth had a meeting in Dundas on Tuesday, at which Mr. Thos. Stock formally accepted the nomination of the party as a candidate for the Commons, amidst, as is reported, "great enthusiasm." We know of one leading man who, we venture to assert, did not "enthuse" worth a cent, and from the number who were present at the meeting we are led to the conclusion that a very small number of Conservatives can get up "great enthusiasm" in an emergency.

MR. GUTHRIE on Wednesday night made a pithy reference to the objection raised by a Tory, on the ground that a certain paper he alleged was connected with the Northern Railway Committee's investigation, had been suppressed. Mr. Guthrie showed that the paper was a mere compilation of figures made by an outsider, and had not the slightest conceivable value. He said that if there was any further grumbling against the report of the Committee, its adoption would be moved, and then the House would be in a position to judge whether or not the findidgs were not too leniently instead of too severely drawn. This thrust was enough, and nothing more was heard of the objection.

THE Bill for the reorganization of Cabinet officers will abolish the office of Receiver-General and unite the duties of that Department with those of the Department of Finance. The Deputy-Minister of Finance will no longer be Auditor-General, that functionary being by a separate Act constituted an independent officer of State, only removable, like the Judges, on an address to the Crown. In accordance with the practice prevailing in some of the Colonies, there will be in future two law officers in the Cabinet—a Minister of Justice and an Attorney-General, the latter attending mainly to departmental details, assisted by the Deputy-Minister as at present. The very great increase in the law business of the Government makes this arrangement absolutely necessary. The change will not increase the number of Cabinet Ministers.

WHEN the vote on Sir John's amendment took place on Wednesday morning the absent members were: on the Ministerial side, Messrs. Bannatyne, Blackburn, Devlin, McLeod, Smith and Workman; and on the Opposition side, Messrs. Campbell, Mitchell, White, (Hastings) and White, (Renfrew). Among those who generally support the Government, the following voted for the protection amendment: — Messrs. Bolduc, Brown, Coupal, McDonald, (Cornwall) McKay, of Colchester, and Ryan. This would make the relative strength of parties in the House stand as follows: Ministerial, 124; Opposition, 81; an actual Government majority of 43 votes, exclusive of the Speaker. The Opposition leader insisting that the question should not be treated as one of want of confidence, compelled the six Ministerialists mentioned to vote for the amendment. A feature of the division was the vote of the member for Queen's, P. E. I., for the amendment in favor of protection, thus reversing his vote of last year. Mr. Pope was elected on pledges of the strongest kind to oppose all attempts to introduce a protective policy, and no doubt the people of Queen's County will know how to reward him for his deception when the general election takes place.

ORANGE DELEGATION.—A deputation of the Grand Orange Lodge, headed by ex-Mayor Medcalf, had for its object in approaching the Governor General at Ottawa, on Thursday, to induce the Government of the Dominion to afford protection to the body on the 12th of July, when it will assert the right to march in peaceful procession in Montreal. The difficulty is in the fact that the Dominion Government has no power to act in the premises. The preservation of the peace is solely vested in the local municipal authorities, and only on their requisition can the militia act. The extent of the Dominion Government's action would be to facilitate as far as possible the attendance of any portion of the permanent Dominion force or the militia, if more troops are needed than the district to be protected would supply. The responsibility of providing protection rests with the magistrates of Montreal.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 14.

The House went in Committee of Supply, Mr. Young in the chair.

When the item for the Department of Justice came up, Mr. Dymond drew attention to the fact that in 1868 the then Deputy Minister of Justice received $500 from the Northern Railway Company as Parliamentary agent. He also drew attention to the extortion of fees from poor people holding Ordinance leases in Ottawa by Sir John Macdonald when Minister of Justice, which money, amounting on the average to about $2 50, and aggregating $345 25, that gentleman put into his own pocket. Mr. Dymond likewise referred to the fact that Sir John Macdonald, when Minister of Justice, gave Crown business in thirty-seven cases to the law firm of which he was a partner. These proceedings Mr. Dymond described as highly improper and indecent, and he asked the Minister of Justice and the member for South Bruce if such practices were continued under their administration.

Hon. Mr. Laflamme replied that no such practices were allowed since he became Minister of Justice.

Hon. Mr. Blake said that when he took charge of the Department, he found on appointing a new Deputy that the salary of that officer was supplemented by certain perquisites. He put a stop to that system, and fixed the salary so as to secure the whole of the Deputy's time. No such practices as alluded to were permitted during his term of office.

Sir John Macdonald defended his conduct, and said he had given his brother-in-law, Col. Bernard, full liberty to employ his talents in a professional way. As for the Ordinance land fees, he held that he was entitled to the money, as it was simply a case of payment for a lawyer's letter. The suits to which reference was made were given to his own firm, as had been the practice of his predecessors. He concluded by suggesting that Mr. Dymond had been put up to make this attack on him.

Mr. Dymond accepted the confession just made as justification for bringing the matter up. Thus it was proved that the paid adviser of the Crown had taken money from parties in legal conflict with the Crown. Clerks paid by the Government, it was apparent, did the work, and the member for Kingston pocketed the money. The exaction of this $2 50 was in the nature of a fine applied by a judge to his own use.

Mr. Blake pointed out that the Attorney General could not appear in his official capacity in the Courts as a barrister.

Sir John Macdonald showed that it had been the practice before he entered office for the Attorney-General to take fees when engaged in Crown business.

Mr. Blake expressed the opinion that if the principle were adopted of Ministers of Justice relinquishing their practice on taking office it would be a very difficult thing to find a Minister of Justice such as the Dominion should possess. He, however, thought the taking of fees in the manner indicated was altogether indefensible.

On the item of Militia and Defence, Mr. Mitchell demanded that a reduction should be made in expenses under this head, but deferred saying further at present owing to the absence of the Minister of Militia on account of the death of a near relative.

The items with respect to Secretary of State, the Premier General and Finance Departments were then passed after some discussion.

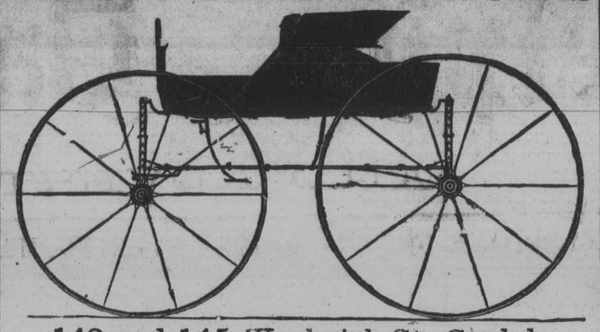
MR. BLAKE.—The St. John Freeman says:—Mr. Blake, repeatedly accused by the Opposition of having been a party to what they choose to call the Goderich Job, spoke one evening last week in the House of Commons. At first he seemed to possess all his old fire and vigor, and the manner in which he tore to pieces the sophistries and fallacies in which the Tories had indulged, and vindicated the honor and honesty of himself and the Premier, was gratifying to the supporters of the Government, and confounded those whose whole stock-in-trade was thus destroyed in a moment, but he had spoken scarcely ten minutes when he began to show signs of weakness and exhaustion, and it became only too evident that he was physically incapable of any great effort. Yet, because he spoke at all, and because he is as hospitable this session as when he was a member of the Government, and endeavors to give pleasure to his numerous circle of friends, in which he can venture himself to share only in a very moderate degree, the Toronto Mail makes a brutal attack upon him; tells him that he but feigns illness, and that he has left the Government not because he is unable to do the work of a Minister, but because he is unwilling to work any longer under Mr. Mackenzie.

English Parliamentary Courtesy

We commend to the attention of our testy Legislators on all sides the following quotation from the London Times. How very different the tone and temper of all concerned, consisting of the chiefs of the House, from that which recently prevailed in the Quebec Legislative Halls where after several days acrimonious debate over an alleged hot expression of Mr. Joly, he at last was contrary to precedent through a partizan fury voted as worthy of admonishment by the Speaker. Compare the courteous observations addressed by both Government and Opposition leaders, and the good tempered apologies of the delinquent Montagu, who comes out victorious by his good natured cleverness rather than of being humiliated, and evidently to the enjoyment of all sides.

Lord R. Montagu warned hon. members not to trust Russia. Let not the House suppose that the Greek Church and the Russian Church were the same. The Russian Church was as much opposed to the Greeks as to the Mahomedans or the Roman Catholics. He warned the House that if they helped to drive out one tyranny, they had done what they could to bring in a greater and more grinding tyranny. Hon. members who had read the Blue books must have read the protest of the Patriarch of the Greek Church, who said he would rather remain under the tyranny of the Turks than come under the heel of the Czar. But there were hypocritical lovers of freedom in this House. ("Oh, oh!")

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said he thought he heard the word "tyrant" applied to a ruler who was in alliance with this country. (Hear, hear.)



Mr. Gladstone said it appeared to him that it must have been from an involuntary deviation from the rules of order that the noble lord had spoken of members of this House as "hypocritical lovers of freedom." (Hear, hear.)

The Speaker called upon the noble lord to withdraw the expression he used towards a foreign Sovereign and also the words in which he had attributed motives to members of that House. (Hear, hear.)

Lord R. Montagu was quite ready to withdraw both expressions on that intimation from the chair. (Hear, hear.) As to the Czar, he would withdraw the word "tyrant" and substitute any synonymous term. (A laugh.) In using the epithet "hypocritical" he had been thinking not so much of members of that House as of persons outside of it.

Dissatisfied with both the Tribune and the Irish Canadian it is said that the extreme Irish Nationalists of Toronto intend to start another national paper of a very pronounced and consequently treasonable type. It is to be printed on light green tinted paper.

DEATH OF A FRAIL AND ERRING WOMAN.—A woman named Errington, the abandoned wife of Charles Errington of Petrolia, was found by constable Warren in a vacant lot in Westminister Township on Wednesday morning in a very exhausted and feeble condition. He took her in his buggy and conveyed her to Squire Peters' where obtaining a warrant he took her to goal. On arriving there it was found that the woman was dead. It appears that for ten or twelve years since her separation from her husband her life has been a failure. Being an accomplished musician she has tried to teach but at other times she has been a servant, and frequently a lodger at the police station on account of her dissoluteness and poverty. On that morning at six o' clock she called at a house in Westminister and asked shelter from the storm of rain and sleet, but was refused. She wandered on until completely discouraged she laid down in a vacant lot where she was afterwards found by the constable. Twenty years ago, the girl, whose maiden name was Crowe, was an ornament to the circle in which she moved.

PRESENTATION AT LISTOWAL.—On the evening of Friday last, a number of Mr. D. D. Campbell's friends met him at his residence and presented him with a cane, accompanied with the following address, which was read by Mr. Rothwell. When the address was read, Mr. J. W. Scott presented the cane, on which was inscribed, "Presented to D. D. Campbell, Esq, first Mayor of Listowel, by his friends, on retiring from office, January 20th, 1878." A locket was also presented at the same time, on which were the letters "D. D. C."

ONTARIO RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—At a meeting of the Ontario Rifle Association held in Toronto on Tuesday, the Treasurer's statement for 1877 showed a balance brought down of $428 82, a balance carried forward of $945 24, the revenue, including the balance, being for the year $3,370.69; and the expenditure, $7,434 45. The present system of selecting the men from the Wimbledon team was emphatically condemned. The annual meeting takes places on the fourth Tuesday in August next.

The Gauger of Skene.

CHAPTER XXV.

AN EXCITING SCENE AT THE GAUGER'S HOUSE.

"I am obliged to you for this, Ned," he added in a tone of earnest warmth. "I am infinitely obliged to you. It gives me relief for the present, as you say, and will enable me to pay off some of these confounded accounts. The other creditors are less pressing as yet, though I expect two or three of them will be upon me ere long."

"Then you'll just have to satisfy them by the same means," returned Skeat, with a look directed to the bill, which by this time Gillespie had signed.

"Nay, you will never get him to grant you a second favor," returned the gauger. "It beats me to think how you wheedled him out of this one, but I know full well that a second one is quite out of the question."

"No, but another name, can be easily got," suggested Skeat, with a peculiar smile, which arrested the gauger's attention, and made him wonder.

"How funny you look Ned," he observed. "There is something under this that I do not understand. You talk of if obtaining bills from people was the easiest thing in the world."

"It is easy enough by doing as I did with this one. Come, and I will show you how."

He led the way to the next room, his master following him in silence, but full of wonder. Fixing on the latter a significant look, Skeat took the prepared glass from the drawer, and held it up against the light. In a moment Gillespie understood all.

"Forgery!" he cried, staggering back in horror, and standing against the wall speechless and aghast.

"Hush; no need for speaking so loud. The name is nothing, so long as the thing is done safely. And you can do it safely enough. The signature, as you see is perfect. He would hardly know the difference himself. All you have to do is to request the bank people to send the intimation to you, and not to the acceptor, who will thus know nothing at all about it. A day or two before it is due we'll find means to take it up."

"I durst not do it Ned," faltered the gauger. Think what would follow if it were discovered."

"I have just shown you that it won't be discovered; and there is not any other way for you getting out of your present difficulties. You can't raise any more cash by borrowing."

"I know that."

"And you have nothing to pay the bill to-morrow."

"True, true; but this is so terribly dangerous."

"That's all nonsence. If the intimation is not sent to the accepter there's no danger at all; and that can be easily managed."

"No, no, no; I dare not do it. Burn it, Ned; burn it."

"Oh, if you'll rather have bankruptcy and ruin, it's not for me to prevent you. Only, refuse to do this, and in a few days it's all up with you. The moment it is known you are bankrupt you'll be dismissed from the Excise, and must either beg or starve. Had Gilmour kept to his bargain things would have been brought straight, but you know that game has failed. Your only choice, Mr. Gillespie, is between this and beggary. Which shall it be? Do you tell me to burn this piece of paper, which if used will keep you swimming on?"

Skeat held the paper to the candle, but did not thrust it into the flame. He waited to see how the temptation presented by his last words would work. He guessed they would have a strong effect, and he guessed truly. The picture of beggary and destitution appalled the gauger, for he knew it was true and would be realised. He could not contemplate it; he would avoid it by any means, however desperate.

"Shall I" asked Skeat again, as he saw the hesitation working in his mind, and skilfully acted on it as an expert angler holds the bait before the fish he wishes to catch.

"Stay," gasped Gillespie, the sweat bursting on his brow. "Stay a moment—let me think"

Skeat chuckled inwardly. He knew how the struggle would end now. The gauger continued a show of opposition, but it was feebler and feebler every minute, as Ned plied his arguments and strove to convince him that there was no danger of discovery.

It was the old story—old as Eden—To dally with temptation is to fall before it. Had Gillespie been true to his first impulse, he would have burned the paper and crushed for ever all inducement to commit the crime and run the risk which it involved.

But he hesitated, and, though the struggle was great, he yielded in the end.

. . . . . .

On the following day he went to the bank, discounted the bill without difficulty, and by this means got rid of his financial embarrassments for a time.

"Myrtle Navy."

Through the medium of advertising Messrs. Tuckett & Billings are—as is their practice—again calling the attention of the public to their Myrtle Navy brand of smoking tobacco. The success which has attended the manufacture of this tobacco may well be considered as once of the marvels of Canadian manufacturing industry. Two chief reasons have contributed to this success; first the "Myrtle Navy" has been kept up to a uniform excellence of quality, and second, it has been made extensively known to consumers of the "fragrant weed." The expense of advertising it would have been lost money to the firm if the quality of the brand had not corresponded with the claims which they made on its behalf, and the quality alone would have brought it but slowly though surely into public favor. The two agencies combined have made it the favorite smoking tobacco of Canada, and it can be found in every grocery store from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Scores of imitations of it have been attempted, but none of them have had more than a very fitful existence. Perhaps it will interest the users of it to know the reason why.

The manufacture of the Myrtle Navy really commences in the tobacco regions in which the leaf is grown. From the transplantation of the crop until its ripening it is carefully watched by experts on behalf of the firm, and in the interest of the Myrtle Navy brand. Several times a year one or other of the proprietors takes a trip to the South for the purpose of personal inspection and the verification of the reports of agents. The section within which the Myrtle Navy leaf is grown is comparatively a limited one, but even within that region careful selection has to be made. Next to the quality of the raw leaf the matter of first importance is the method of its treatment after it comes to maturity. The habits of every planter in this respect within the section already mentioned are carefully noted, and only those who adopt the best methods are dealt with by the firm. Many people suppose that the manufacture of tobacco consists in stripping the stems from the leaf and crushing the remainder into plugs. The fact is that it is a very intricate process, and if a single mistake is made in any of its links the final result cannot be a satisfactory one. The planters bring the leaf to market in September in a partially dried condition, and from the time it is purchased by Messrs. Tuckett & Billings until it is shipped from their factory in its completed shape, it never passes out of their superintending care. They own four large storehouses in Virginia and North Carolina, and in these the tobacco-leaf, after being purchased, is stored; not packed away, however, but hung in bunches upon racks. To bring out the true quality of the leaf great care and skill are required at this stage. Against a damp wind the windows of the building must be carefully closed, and to a dry wind as carefully opened. By about the beginning of June; if everything has gone favorably, the leaf has reached that condition in which it may be safely packed in heaps of from seventy-five to eighty thousand pounds each. If, when this part of the process is reached, the leaf is either too dry or too moist it is spoiled as raw material for the Myrtle Navy. This, however, rarely happens, because the leaf is watched by skilled assistants from beginning to end of the process. A few weeks after the leaf has been bulked the heaps already described are said to be "cured," and are ready for packing and shipment.

We have before now described the care with which the tobacco is treated in the process of manufacture in the factory in Hamilton, and the description need not be repeated here.

A significant fact connected with this celebrated brand can be found in the last volume of the Tables of Trade and Navigation. It will be found there that the tobacco leaf imported into the Province of Quebec passes through the customs at an average price of seven cents per pound, while the average price of the import into Ontario—Messrs. Tuckett & Billings receiving the greater part of it—passes through at an average cost of fifteen cents per pound. These official figures reveal the whole story of the cheaper brands of tobacco which aim to supplant the Myrtle Navy. Another significant fact, attested upon official authority, is that in the Province of Quebec the foreign matter used in the manufacture of tobacco averages 18 per cent. of the total weight, while in Ontario it reaches only 4 per cent. These facts will serve to show why it is that this enterprising firm have achieved such a prodigious success in the manufacture of their favorite brand.

CAPTURING A PENITENTIARY.—The Buffalo Express says:—The sensation in Buffalo is the forcible capture of the Erie County Penitentiary on Friday at noon. One Weston had been Superintendent, and some time ago serious charges were made against him of malfeasance in office and brutal treatment of prisoners. An investigation brought to light very bad management. Weston is a Democrat. In February last a Republican, Samuel N. Baker, was appointed Superintendent and Weston was removed. The latter, however, refused not only to give up the books of the institution for examination, or to allow any one to enter the building for the purpose of serving upon him legal or other papers. In brief, he held possession of the penitentiary in defiance of law, against the wishes of his own party leaders, and with public sentiment against him. The climax was reached on Friday at noon, when Baker and a large number of his friends, making altogether an invading army of about fifty or sixty men, rode up to the penitentiary doors, demanded admission, and, when they were refused, making a battering ram of a stick of pine timber about seven feet long and six by eight inches thick; battered down the door, rushed in and took forcible possession. For a few minutes it looked as though a sanguinary battle was imminent, as Weston and his gang of shoulder-hitters were armed with revolvers. There was no bloodshed, however, and only one knock-down, and Weston and his men were given the "grand bounce."

The members of the Montreal Irish Catholic Union will march from church in procession on Sunday.

Excitement in Mitchell.

Mr. E. J. K. Rine, Temperance Lecturer, Arrested on a Charge of Criminal Assault.

(By Telegraph to the MERCURY.)

MITCHELL, March 16.—There is great excitement in Mitchell to-day. Mr. D. I. K. Rine, just as he was going to lecture last evening, was arrested and taken to Stratford on a charge of assault on a young lady in that town. He returned this morning, having given bail for his appearance on Monday next.

To-day at ten o'clock he appeared in the Town Hall before an immence audience. Nearly all the local clergymen were on the platform. Mr. Rine made little or no explanation as to the charge against him. He urged that a Rine Club should be started in Mitchell. An amendment was moved that the Society should be called the Mitchell Temperance Christian Association. Mr. Rine fought against the latter carrying, as he was under a cloud at present, and it would look like an acknowledgment of his guilt. On a vote the amendment was declared carried.

Mr. Rine jumped up in great excitement, and charged the chairman, who is one of the most consistent temperance gentlemen in town, with showing a determination to carry the amendment whether a majority was in favor of it or not. At this stage there was great excitement, amid calls from the audience of "Carried," and "Lost." The chairman denied the imputation, and proved that he gave the figures exactly as he had received them from these appointed to make the count. He demanded an apology.

Mr. Rine came forward and declared his sorrow for what he had said, and finally shook hands with the rev. gentleman. The motion and amendment were again put, and after Mr. Rine made a sympathetic appeal to his audience with respect to his difficulties, the motion carried.

The trouble, we are afraid, will not help the cause of temperance in this place. Mr. Rine has re-called his engagements for the present, but it is hoped he will be able to prove his entire innocence of the serious charge pending against him.

A previous despatch from Stratford states that Mr. Rine's accuser is a respectable young woman, about sixteen years of age, named Eliza Gibling. Rine had been staying with Mr. C. J. Hurst, one of the leading temperance men in the town, where the complainant was employed as a domestic.

To an already well established reputation, are constantly added the warmest praises of travellers who have enjoyed the hospitalities of the Grand Central Hotel, New York. eod

A boy named Patrick Gillespie, aged 15 years, left his home near Belmore on the 26th of October last, and has not since been heard from. His sorrowing parents would like to hear of the lad's present abode.

A lady in Maine is said to have been offered $2,000 for her hair, which is of the extraordinary length of eight feet one inch.

ENORMOUS.—No other word can describe the quantity of new importations of dry goods, delivered at the Lion yesterday and to day. Passers by would imagine themselves at one of the largest wholesale houses of the country. Load after load was delivered until the sidewalk was crowded with goods. Messrs Williamson & Co., have faith in being able to do a large spring trade. They say only give the goods cheap enough and there is no trouble in disposing of them. No better rule can be adopted to build up and sustain a big business.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

THE regular Sunday Gospel Temperance meeting of the G. C. T. C. will be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms every Sunday at four p m. Short addresses will be delivered, interspersed with good music. All are cordially invited. C. Raymond, President; J. T. Mitchell, Secretary.

THE American Government is sending notices to all Canadians who took part in the American war, warning them to put in their claims at once in order to receive the award given to all members of the Federal Army engaged between the years 1861-64.

IT is said that misery is fond of company and if there is any truth in such an assertion Guelph may take comfort in knowing that Stratford has roads that can discount this town for depth of mud. Several of the streets in that town are impassible for vehicles.

O. S. A. L. S.—The last meeting of the Literary Society of the Agricultural College was held on Friday evening. After the usual programme of readings and debates, the General Committee handed in their report for the past session. A vote of thanks to the officers of the Society was replied to in appropriate terms by the President, Vice-President and Secretary.

DOGS WORRYING SHEEP.—Almost every breeder in the country looses more or less sheep yearly from the effects of worrying by dogs. Many persons do not know the law on this subject and are at a loss what to do with stray dogs which they suspect. The law, how ever, is very simple in the matter. The following is an extract from the Revised Statutes of Ontario, cap 194, section 10: Any person may kill any dog which he sees pursuing sheep, worrying, or wounding any sheep or lamb."

FALL WHEAT.—From what can be learned from farmers in this neighborhood there is every prospect of the wheat crop being an excellent one. There are very few bare spots in the wheat fields, and in fact so small a quantity has been winter killed that it is hardly worth mentioning. From an exchange it is learned that through the centre part of South Dumfries and the western part of Beverly the crop is very little injured. Taken in general the fields have a good appearance, and from the width of acreage sown, much more than usual, if nothing untoward happen, the farmers are looking forward to a good yield.

SCHOOL BOYS ON THEIR MUSCLE.—It appears that at the present time there is not a very kindly feeling existing between some of the High School students and those attending the Separate School. Evidently each school has some lads that are not afraid of a black eye or a bloody nose. If they were no such collision as happened on Friday at noon would have occurred. There was an exceedingly lively time for a while with every prospect of it becoming livelier, when Constable Colson appeared on the scene, He dispersed the crowd without much trouble. They may take fair warning however. Another time some of the party will be marched down to the police cells.

SOCIAL LAST EVENING.—Notwithstanding the plethora of socials at the West End last evening, the gathering in the Baptist vestry was very largely attended, and was throughout a most pleasant affair. The members of the Choral Society, under Mr. Parker, sang with their usual effectiveness and taste. Two anthems by the church choir led by Mr. Rodgers were well rendered. A quartette of little girls trained by Mr. Head, bore off however a large share of the honors of the evening, while solos by Mrs. Raymond and Mr. Thomas and a piano duett by Miss Davidson and Miss Powell were well received. Miss Coulson in the reading "No sect in heaven" showed considerable talent. The Committee having the evening's entertainment in charge deserve no little credit, and proved themselves, like their predecessors, good caters to public taste and enjoyment.

THE CHURCH MILITANT.—The first appearance of the ex-Franciscan Monk, F. G. Widdows, well-known in Guelph, before a Wingham audience will be long remembered as having been followed by one of the most disgraceful scenes that was ever enacted in that place. The meeting was held in Prout's Hall, on Sunday afternoon, 10th inst. Mr. Widdows prefaced his remarks by referring to some unpleasantness which had arisen between the Mayor of Mitchell, who is editor of the Advocate of that town, and himself. Mr. H. Davis objected to what had been said about the party referred to who was his brother. He said he could not remain still and hear his relatives scandalized. Davis and some others then left the hall. After the meeting had been closed and on the ex-monk making his appearence on the street, Davis rushed up to him and dealt him a blow with his fist on the side of the head, Widdows acknowledged the favor by nodding his head and expressing his thanks to the "gentleman" who had assaulted him, and quietly went on his way. Widdows has since lodged a complaint against Davis, and states that nothing but a public apology will prevent him from pressing the matter.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY falling on Sunday this year, no particular observance will be made at St. Bartholomew's Church. On Wednesday, however, as an observance of the event, Vicar-General Rooney, of Toronto, will celebrate high mass and preach an appropriate sermon. The choral portion of the service will be of unusual excellence, as the boys of the academy and the girls of the convent school will assist. Concone's mass will be sung on Sunday, 24th inst. Rev. Dr. Kilroy, of Stratford, will preach in St. Bartholomew's. The collection to be taken up will be devoted to the families of the poor under the care of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

MR. R. LAIDLAW, of the Woodstock Review, is in town to-day.

THIRTY males and twenty-two females have been admitted to the Wellington County Poor House since its opening.

GENERAL HOSPITAL.—Rev. Dr. Davidson and Dr. Herod are set down on the list for Hospital duty during the ensuing year.

THE bachelors of Guelph propose giving a ball in the Caledonian Rooms on Wednesday evening, 27th inst.

HEFFERNAN BROS are now making improvements in the internal arrangements of their store.

REMEMBER the social of Beaver Lodge I. O. G. T., on Monday evening. A good programme has been prepared.

THE Dutch mail train going west was delayed at the Guelph station on Friday evening until half-past eight by a slight accident to the engine.

LARRY TRACEY, the party who it is alleged robbed Mr. Wm. Moran, of Puslinch, is not the party of the same name who has been for many years a respectable resident of Guelph.

MR. A. W. WRIGHT, late of the Guelph Herald, will leave for Toronto on Monday. He has purchased an interest in the Toronto National. He carries with him the good wishes of his friends here.

MR. SWITZER, Principal of the Elora High School, has just received a certificate from the Department of Public Instruction for Ontario, declaring him eligible to be appointed an Inspector of Public Schools in any county or city in the Province.

SENTENCED.—On Friday, His Honor Judge Macdonald found Rory McCrea, charged with stabbing Mr. R. Patterson on the 5th of January last, at Marden, guilty of a misdemeanor. Sentenced to four months in the county goal.

TO MORROW, Sunday, 17th March, is St. Bartholomew's Day. The day will not be celebrated this year in Guelph. St. Patrick's Society held their annual celebration on the 4th inst. by a ball and supper.

DESTROYING PROPERTY.—A house in which one Lily Mills is said to rule, underwent a process of wrecking last evening at the hands of some rowdies. A Frenchman, named Caisie, living on Essex street, complains about having his slumbers disturbed by riotous conduct in the vicinity of his house last evening.

TEA SOCIAL.—Beaver Temple, I.O.G.T., will give a tea social on Monday evening in their hall, over the Bank of Commerce. Recitations, dialogues, addresses, &c., will be given after tea and a pleasant time may be expected.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.—Falling barometer and cloudy weather with rain, followed by rising barometer, fresh to brisk westerly to northwesterly winds, and clearing weather, lower temperatures, are the weather probabilities received by the Dominion telegraph at ten o'clock this morning for the next twenty-four hours.

LAGER BEER.—Mr. Geo. Sleeman, of the Silver Creek Brewery, purposes proceeding at once with the erection of a lager beer brewery. It will be built adjacent to his present premises, 30 by 60 feet and two stories in height. The fitting up will be done in such a manner as to make it the model brewery of the country. The work will be pushed on rapidly, and Mr. Sleeman expects to be manufacturing the best sample of lager that has yet been made in the country by the first of June.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY, was the charge against Alfred Willoughby and Thomas Montgomery had to answer to, at the Police Court this morning. A young lad, named Albert Tandy, was the complainant Fined fifty cents and costs, and a few words of advice from the P. M. thrown in, which if the youths act upon will enable them to have a much better chance of growing up into good citizens.

ACCIDENT.—The greater number of accidents which occur in machine shops are the results of carelessness. This morning a lad named Frank Cass, employed in Messrs. Burr & Skinner's furniture factory, met with a severe accident while working a jointer. It appears he had been looking around when his hand came in contact with the knife of the plane, which keeps going backward and forward. He was taken to Dr. Harkin's surgery, where it was found necessary to amputate the third and fourth fingers, at the second joint.

FOR THE CENTRAL PRISON.—Officer English passed through Guelph this morning with the following prisoners for the Central Prison, in Toronto:—Fred. Perry, Woodstock, sentenced for forgery at Walkerton for eighteen months; George Kimpel, from Berlin, for twelve months, for stabbing Charles Stark at Preston. There were also four prisoners from Goderich.

UTILIZING THE INDIANS.—A Bill has been introduced into the U. S. House of Representatives, at the instigation of the Indian Bureau, providing for the organization of a paid police force of Indians, to exercise authority among the several tribes. The plan was tried some years ago on a small scale at the Wacusa Agency, in the Indian territory of the United States, and found to work well. The system is no novelty, having been used with good effect by the British in India, until the Sepoy mutiny. There will ever be in that country an element of danger connected with it, owing to the influence of castes and religion, but we can see no good reason why the Canadian Government should not try the experiment likewise, in our North west territories. A much larger force could be maintained, of drilled and loyal Indians, officered by whites than the revenue could possibly afford under the existing system of depending on whites exclusively, in that region of magnificent distances.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT.—There was a very large audience in the town hall last evening to listen to the arguments advanced by Mr. Sintzenich, of Rochester, N.Y., an advocate of Christadelphianism. Mr. John Roche occupied the chair. The subject of the lecture was "Future Punishment, and how to avoid it." The lecturer stated that to avoid future punishment was to accept the proclamation of the gospel. Those who were received were not subject to punishment and those who were not were punished by being kept out of heaven. In other words, all men were judged; the righteous were taken to realms of bliss, and the ungodly were sent back to their graves. This was claimed to be the second death spoken of in the Bible. The lecturer claimed to base all his arguments on the Scripture, and in concluding his remarks urged upon all to take the Scriptures only for their guide—independent of the sophistry of any teacher. Mr. Sintzenich proceeds to Galt this afternoon.

Christadelphianism.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—Mr. Sintzenich in his lecture on "Man and his destiny" delivered in the Town Hall last Thursday night, also stated that Plato did not believe in the immortality of the soul, and died without God and without hope in the world. Well let us see if such is correct. Plato in his "Phædo" after assigning various degrees of punishment to the wicked, says, "Those who have passed through life with peculiar sanctity of manners are received on high into a pure region where they live without their bodies to all eternity, in a series of joys and delights which cannot be described." I may also add for the information of our itinerant friend from Rochester that Xenophon the polished Grecian annalist, Cicero the great Roman orator, Seneca the Roman philosopher, and other equally distinguished classical authors teach that man is immortal. Such were the views held and taught by the philosophic sages of the pagan world, unassisted by the light of revelation. Whence came this desire for perpetual life? If we admit that this desire for immortality springs from natural instinct, it must be acknowledged that God is its author; and if God is its author, it must be adapted to man's nature; and if adapted to man's nature, the object desired must be real and not fictitious. There is no escape from this conclusion, unless we impeach the wisdom and goodness of the creator, and argue that he has deceived us with respect to our highest nature and most important interests. In the economy of physical nature we see perfect adaptation everywhere. The structure of birds, beasts &c., is adapted to the elements in which they reside, and all the habits of their being; every instinct has its appropriate object and gratification. If such be so, are the great hopes of man's instinctive nature, given to him by God to be dashed to the ground? Nay, verily.

It is simply preposterous for a man of Mr. Sintzeinch abilities to start out on a crusade against the doctrine of the immortality of the soul which is borne out by the testimony of all ages. If Mr. S is the best advocate the Christadelphians can find to champion their theories they must be hard up indeed. You have not to listen to him but a few moments to find out that he has no debating powers. He is what we might term a moderate type of a stump orator, who would air himself with a good deal of pleasure at a 4th of July demonstration. The best thing Mr. S. can do is to return to Rochester where he is known, as his stock is in a fair choice enough for the Canadian theological exchange. To be plain, we may be allowed to say in conclusion that neither the man, nor his wares are acceptable to a Guelph audience.

Yours truly,
H. HARRIS

Guelph, March 16, 1878.

CATTLE TRADE.—A company, with a large capital, has been organized in Perth county to ship to England a cargo of cattle and sheep each week during the spring and summer.

MILL FOR LUTHER.—This township recently offered a bonus for the erection of a grist mill in that municipality, and a score of applications were received. Marshall Bros. have been awarded the bonus, and mill will be erected at once.

FARMS SOLD—Mr. A. Taylor, of Fergus, has sold the south half of lot 6 on the fifth concession of Mornington, County of Perth, to Mr. Adam Torrance of Milverton, for $4,800.—Mr. Robert Black has sold his farm to Mr. James Cannon for $2,700. It is the east half lot 24, con. 2, Garafraxa, 100 acres of good land, 50 cleared. The buildings are log.

FERGUS.—The School Board have been unable as yet, to secure a suitable lot for the erection of a High School building.—Mr. John Beattie, banker, has bought a site on the south side of St. Andrew street, along side of Mr. Ramore's site, upon which he is going to erect a fine stone building this spring.—Dr. Smellie has made arrangements to enter upon the practice of his profession in Fergus.

A VICIOUS FIGHT.—The Arthur Enterprise gives an account of an altercation that occurred between Mr. Terrance O'Neil, of Arthur, and Mr. Thos. Harcourt, a very respectably connected young farmer of Peel, at Broderick's Hotel, on Wednesday. It appears that Harcourt struck O'Neil as he was passing out of the bar-room door, whereupon O'Neil suddenly turned round and struck at Harcourt with great force, Harcourt dodged the blow, and his (O'Neil's) fist came in contact with the door, which broke several of his fingers. Harcourt then savagely attacked O'Neil, took him down in the mud, and went at him in real bull-dog fashion. After being pretty thoroughly abused, O'Neil was allowed to get up—minus one ear.

THE TRICK EXPOSED.—Under this heading the Waterford Times says:—"It now comes to light that many persons who have sent money for cheap visiting cards, so freely advertised, cannot hear from their cards or their money. The plan seems to have been to fill the first order sent from a locality, and then offering extra inducements to agents, a list is secured, and the money sent on, and that is the last of it. The printed cards are offered by these firms at less prices than legitimate establishments can furnish them for, and the American Agriculturist says it has been discovered that the object is to secure lists of names, to be used in mailing circulars for obscene books, lotteries, etc."

LISTOWEL ITEMS.—Listowel is to have a lodge of Good Templars. The application for a charter was signed by forty one temperance advocates.—Rev. Mr. McGregor, of Woodstock, will, on and after the first of May, take up his residence in Listowel, as pastor of the Baptist Church.—By the running away of a team of horses at the station on the 13th inst., an old lady named Mrs. Wilmot, from Woodstock, was thrown out of the conveyance and had her arm broken.—A draught tournament took place in the hall, on the evening of Tuesday last, and was a most successful affair. About twenty players took part in the contest, and considerable skill was evidenced on the part of several.

The Liberal Association of Leeds has passed a resolution binding itself to support Mr. Gladstone at the next election. It does not expect him, if returned, to perform any local duties. Six candidates whose names were before the Association have withdrawn in his favor.

Congregational Church.

Excellent Musical and Literary Entertainment.

Last evening the after-tea social at this church was a complete success. The fineness of the moonlight night enabled a large number of the friends of the congregation to get out, and these were increased by many friends from other churches in town. Then the programme was certainly very choice, and well rendered throughout. The recitations and readings were solid and had a good point in each case, at the same time they were interesting and pleasing even to the greatest lover of pure mirth. The singers, who were in good voice, had selected pieces well calculated to show both the quality and compass of their voices, and therefore it is not surprising that they elicited very hearty expressions of approval. Nor must we forget the valuable assistance rendered by the Harris brothers. These talented musicians are now recognized as a necessary part of all our town entertainments, and it is gratifying to see the readiness with which they aid in all efforts to provide innocent recreation for the public. Last night they gave several overtures from Rossini and Mozart, in a style which not only showed their enthusiasm, ability and taste, but the very thorough and skilful manner in which they have been trained. They did much to make the social the success it was. Mr. Pilcher's choir was also present, and with their well-rendered choruses, supplied, in a way that was well appreciated, especially in the anthem "Sing unto the Lord," the change from the solos and duets, which is needed to form a pleasing programme. The pastor, the Rev. W. Manchee, after a season of social interchange of thought and feeling, called the meeting to order at about a quarter-past eight, when the entertainment was proceeded with as given below. There was an intermission of a few minutes to allow a further opportunity for social intercourse. The social closed about 10:20 with the singing of the doxology, after which the pastor dismissed the happy gathering with the benediction. The collection taken up during the evening was very liberal. The programme was as follows:—

Quartette—"Refuge,"—Miss Greey, Mrs. Hodgskin, and Messrs. Jones and Crowe.
Chorus—"Robin Hood"—Mr. Pilcher's Choir.
Reading—"The Maiden Martyr"—Mr. W. Anderson.
Solo—"When Sorrow Sleepeth, Wake it Not"—Miss Greey.
Duet—"The Minute Gun at Sea"—Messrs. Crowe and Jones.
Reading—"Hafed Dream"—Rev. W. Manchee.
Instrumental Duet—"The Barber of Seville"—Harris Bros.

INTERMISSION.

Anthem—"Ope ye Gates"—Mr. Pilcher's Choir.
Solo—"The Lone Rock by the Sea"—Miss E. Masters.
Recitation—"The Drunkard's Story"—W. G. Anderson.
Solo—"Come with the Lute to the Fountain" Mesdames Hodgskin and Lyon.
Solo—"Gathering Autumn Leaves"—Mr. Cooke.
Instrumental Duets—"Tancredi," and "Figaro"—Harris Bros.
Anthem—"Sing unto the Lord"—Mr. Pilcher's Choir.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH SOCIAL.—A social for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society was held in the school room attached to the church, on Friday evening, and, considering the number of meetings in other churches, the attendance was good. The ladies who had the management of the social did their part well, and made everything comfortable and pleasant for the company. The Rev. Mr. Smith, pastor of the church, occupied the chair, and announced the programme, which was a most varied and pleasant one. After an opening prayer by the Rev. Mr. Harris, Miss Bessie Webster opened the musical part of the entertainment with a nice solo. She was followed by the Masters Harris who did wonders on the violin and piano. Miss Stewart's rendering of "Nearer my God to thee" was well liked. Mr. Guthrie gave an excellent recitation. Miss R. Gordon was nice in her solo. Mr. Thompson did splendidly in his recitation from William Tell, and Mr. Maitland's solo was greatly liked. In the early part of the evening Mr. James Grant read a thoughtful essay on "Opinions." After suitable refreshments had been served in the interval, the second part was gone into with spirit, when two nice pieces were rendered by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. Parker; a solo by Miss B. Webster, a duet by Miss McBean and Miss Geddes, and two grand old songs by Mr. Maitland—"Gaffer Green" and "Ilka blade o' Grass." Mr E. F. B. Johnston gave an excellent and humorous reading from "Mansie Waugh," which was highly appreciated. The programme was concluded by singing "God save the Queen," after which the pleasant party broke up.

BAPTIST CHURCH SOCIAL.—On Friday evening a literary and musical entertainment or social was given in the Baptist Church. There was a large audience, and the programme as carried out was very good indeed. Mr. Charles Raymond, in the absence of Rev. Mr. Durkee, the pastor, occupied the chair. The singing by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. Rogers, indicated that they were in excellent practice. The anthems given at the opening and closing of the entertainment were particularly pleasing. Mr. W. T. Parker and several members of his singing class, also assisted by singing pieces. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond sang a duet; Mrs. Joyce, Miss Johnston, Messrs. Moffatt and Porter, a quartette; Mr. Thomas a solo; little Misses Evans, Davidson and Joyce, a chant; and Misses Davidson and Powell gave an instrumental duet. Miss Coulson and Mr. S. L. Head gave readings. A collection was taken up at the close.

In the House of Commons on Friday night the First Lord of the Admiralty introduced the navy estimates. He stated the present force was ample to man every ship that could be commissioned. He had come to the conclusion it was not his duty in a time of peace—and he hoped of continued peace—to ask for a considerable increase of the estimates. The House passed all the estimates except those for dock-yards and stores, consideration of which was postponed.

The tea meeting held in the Methodist Church, Cumnock, on the 11th inst., was a very successful affair. The proceeds amounted to over $70.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Still Trouble About the Congress.

Two Representatives to be From Each Power.

MARCH 15.

The London Times says:—The Russians are making further advances towards the Bosphorus. Our Government must have satisfied themselves that the virtual command of Constantinople gave the Russians no insuperable advantage, and we may therefore view with comparative indifference the movements, which are in no way more alarming than those in which we have acquiesced. The Times deprecates Sir Robert Peel's attack on Lord Lyons. It says the prospect at present is not very hopeful, but the course adopted by Sir Robert Peel is the very last which would tend to better it.

Constantinople advices state that it is untrue that the Porte has given orders to prevent any more British men-of-war from passing the Dardanelles. Mr. Layard has recently obtained a firman permitting the passage of the Hotspur and Condor, which vessels are expected in the Gulf of Ismid shortly. Mr. Layard has also received permission to send the Rapid to the Albanian coast to embark refugees.

It is stated that the Admiralty has purchased, or is about to purchase, a large Japanese ironclad built on the Thames.

The Post states in official form that Russia has neither accepted nor rejected the proposition for the admission of Greece to the Congress. She is disposed to agree to the admission of a Greek delegate, with merely a consultative voice.

A Berlin special says the Powers have agreed that they shall each have two representatives in the Congress.

A St. Petersburg special says:—The official world here again entertains grave apprehensions of serious complications. Men who have considerable influence in causing or averting events which they profess to foresee say it is by no means certain that the Congress will meet, and if it does meet it is not very likely to succeed, in consequence of Austrian and English jealousy of Russia's success.

A Vienna correspondent is informed that England will consent to be represented in the Congress under reserve. The Conference will be assembled immediately after the treaty is communicated to the Powers. The proceedings will last ten days or a fortnight. Only a few points is likely to cause serious debate. Austria opposes Russia's assuming the protection of the entire Greek Church.

Constantinople news says it is asserted that Northern Syria has revolted and proclaimed itself separate from the Sultan.

An Athens despatch says:—The commander in chief of the Greek army has notified the Minister of War that the Turks committed unparalleled cruelties on Christians in Epirus. A large number of destitute fugitives have entered Greece.

Railways in Manitoba.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The consul at Winnipeg reports much activity in railroad matters in Manitoba. Canadian and English parties have purchased the first mortgage bonds of the St. Paul and Pacific Railway, and propose to construct a northern extension in Minnesota from Red Lake River to the Manitoban frontier during the summer. They also propose to complete the Pembina branch of the Canada Pacific Railway to connect with the Minnesota extension, and by the first of next November it is expected trains will be running from St. Paul to Winnipeg, and twenty miles from there north, to where the branch line crosses the main line of the Canada Pacific at Selkirk. From this point contracts are in execution for the construction of the main line eastward to the Lake of the Woods, 110 miles. An equal distance westward of Thunder Bay, on Lake Superior, is also under contract. The consul thinks a mutually profitable intercourse between the Dominion and the Western States would be greatly aided if the United States and Canadian Governments were to make international arrangements for aiding the construction of a system of railways from Ottawa to Sault Ste Mairie, thence to Montreal River, to connect with the Northern Pacific, besides completing the latter to Duluth.

Prince Charles, of Roumania, has offered a prize of 1,000 francs for the best history of the Turko-Roumanian war.

Montreal debt is $11,331,786. The treasurer's report for last year shows a surplus of $65,000, every committee having spent less than their appropriations.

"The Russian Guards" left St. Petersburg in August 1,000 strong, and now number only 189 men. Every man lost was hit by a bullet.

The Peterborough Board of Education have instructed the Principal, Mr. Jeffers, to dismiss the female pupils attending the Collegiate Institute and Public School, ten minutes prior to the usual time of closing of the school at 12 and 4 o'clock, providing such steps be taken without materially affecting the discipline of the school, and summarily to dismiss any pupil of the school proved to have used profane or obscene language in the hearing of any other pupil of the school.

Gortschakoff, the real ruler of Russia, is eighty years old; Bismarck, of Germany, is sixty-three; Marshal MacMahon, the President of France, is nearly seventy, and Dufaure, the present head of the French Ministry, seventy eight; Lord Beaconsfield, Prime Minister of England, is in his seventy-third year, and his rival, Mr. Gladstone, only four years his junior.

A young lad named William Malcolm has recently been arrested in Scarboro for attempting to wreck a train on the Grand Trunk. It appears that on the 8th instant Malcolm took a rail from a snake fence and placed it across the track just where the Nipissing Railway intercepts the Grand Trunk, and also rolled two stones, one weighing over a 100 pounds and a smaller one, on the track, as he said, just to see what would happen. Fortunately the obstruction was seen in time to prevent a run off.

The Walkerton Telescope brings the Council of that town to task for first passing a resolution, exempting the flax mill of Mr. Kurg from taxation for a certain number of years, and now trying to collect a portion of the taxes on a part of his property.

The excitement anent the Orange and Green disturbances, in Montreal, continues unabated. The late attempt at assassination seems to tend to reduce the number of people on the streets at night.

The Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVN'G, MARCH 16, 1878.

The World says if the Senate had not adjourned till Monday the President on Friday would have sent the Fishery Award correspondence, probably accompanied by a message advising payment, but declaring that the privileges secured were incommensurable with the award.

In reference to the route of the Pacific Railway turough Manitoba, the citizens of Winnipeg have telegrahed to Donald A. Smith as follows:—"Winnipeg does not want a southern route unless crossing here. We want Government aid for a railway from Winnipeg westward."

At the Opposition caucus on Friday Mr. Costigan's motion anent the release of O'Donoghue was discovered. It is believed that there was much difference of opinion, as the proposal to favor O'Donoghue involved a similar act of grace to Messrs. Riel and Lepine.

It is now thought that Dr. Orton's expected motion in favour of protection to farmers will be withdrawn in favour of one of which Mr. Bechard has given notice, recommending the imposition of a duty on corn, oats, barley peas, beans, and rye, but not wheat. The exclusion of wheat, which the Quebecers import freely, is a curious commentary on a so-called "national policy."

It is worthy of remark that Sir Francis Hincks, in an article in the Montreal Journal of Commerce of this week, defends the action of the Lieut.-Governor of Quebec in dismissing his Government. He defends the course of Mr. Letellier on constitutional and public grounds in the strongest manner. Coming from so disinterested a source, the effect of the article on public opinion here has been very great. There is much political excitement in Quebec in view of the approaching elections, and the feeling is daily growing that the new Government will be supported at the polls. It is reported that Sir A. T. Galt will support the Joly interest.

Much amusement, mingled with contempt, has been caused amongst the honest Highlanders of Glengarry at the absurd and sycophantic action of a few of their hot-headed Tory countrymen in going to Ottawa on Wednesday with bagpipes and kilts to thank Senator Macpherson for his reply to the humorous quotation made by Hon. Mr. Cartwright from Sir Walter Scott about the "predatory instincts" of the ancestors of Sir John when discussing the latter's milking of the Northern Railway cow. Instead of being viewed seriously the proceeding is looked upon by the sensible Highlanders of the riding as a burlesque, a screeching farce got up and being played as a cheap political dodge for the benefit of the Chieftain and the ponderous Senator.

Sixty-eight Head Masters of Collegiate Institutes and High Schools have sent a communication to the Minister of Education, regretting the bitter attacks that have been lately made on the Central Committee, and especially on Dr. McLellan, in the columns of a Toronto daily; and while they refrain from even seeming interference with the action of the Commission recently appointed by the Lieut.-Governor, they, in the strongest manner, disavow all sympathy with the assailants, both as regards the spirit of animosity which they have displayed towards Dr. McLellan, and the dishonorable means they have made use of in attacking him. They express their high sense of Dr. McLellan's fidelity and ability in the discharge of his duty as a High School Inspector, and their appreciation of his valuable services in the cause of education generally. This surely is a sufficient reply to those attacks that were lately made against Dr. McLellan, who has sufficiently atoned for any indiscretion he might have been led into.

School of Agriculture.

(To the Editor of the Globe)

Sir,—I was glad to see in your issue of to-day the remarks from my former fellow-student on the Agricultural College.

I believe that the Institution is a success. A two years' course at the Agricultural College will infuse in any youth a lively interest in agricultural pursuits, so that when his course is finished he will be ambitious to make his own farm a "model farm" That such an impetus is necessary is patent to everybody who has been through the older section of the Province. Farms once yielding immense crops are rapidly deteriorating and are now scarcely remunerative. The New England States may fairly be taken as an example to Canadians—highly productive farms replaced by mortgaged and abandoned ones. Science must be brought into requisition to restore exhausted farms. The unsettled problems of underdraining, deeper and cleaner cultivation, rotation of crops, raising and fattening cattle, and the better management of manures are reforms which must be investigated and practised in the near future in order that farms can yield their fullest returns.

The Agricultural College is decried by a few prejudiced and conceited farmers. "They know enough about farming." "No book farming for them." Yet when anything is the matter with their horses or cattle, they employ practitioners educated by books. They toil on day after day—the work of a drudge—always complaining of poor crops, and finish their career as farmers by making a living and no more. But enough of them! their race will soon be run, and more intelligent men substituted. Agriculture is undoubtedly the most important industry of our country. Should it not then have an institution for the training of its followers as well as other professions? Under the able management of Mr. Johnstone as President, and with liberal Government support, the success of the institution is sure.

Yours, &c.,
March 13, 1878. William J. Sykes.

Important to Agricultural Societies.—A Division Court case was held in Milton lately that is of considerable importance. Mr. Boak sued the Trafalgar Agricultural Society for $29, the amount of prizes awarded him for cattle, &c. at the Society's fair. The Society declared the prizes forfeited on the ground that Mr. Boak had driven his cattle off the fair ground, and had slandered the judges contrary to their rules. Mr. John Dewar appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. C. C. Robinson for the defendants. The following is the decision of the Judge:—"In this case I make my judgment in the nature of an award, rather than a judgment, for the reason that I am of the opinion that the Association had power to make rules for its own guidance, and that the members and exhibitors were bound by such rules, and the rules sufficiently appear in the exhibition bill for 1877, and by the evidence produced on the trial. I do not think the plaintiff forfeits his prize by interfering with his cattle, but on the other charge of slandering the judges I think the directors had sufficient evidence before them to justify them in endeavoring to uphold their rules by withholding the prizes awarded to the plaintiff. I adjure to the plaintiff $29 without costs, to be paid within 15 days."—Champion

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, Mar. 14.

The Liquor Bill Introduced in the Senate.

Hon. Mr. Scott introduced a Bill respecting the traffic in intoxicating liquors. By request of several hon. gentlemen he explained its provisions. The Bill was an enlargement of what was known as the Dunkin Act of 1864 It was attended to apply to all parts of the Dominion. The Dunkin Act being one that was peculiar to the old Province of Canada, under that Act the opinions of the people on the question of prohibition were ascertainable by means of the municipal machinery, which, he believed, was inadvisible and injudicious, inasmuch as the municipal bodies might have a decided objection to any endeavors being made to have an Act of this kind put in force. He therefore introduced a provision in this Bill for obtaining a plebiscite to the effect that on twenty-five per cent of the electors within a city or county qualified to vote for members of the House of Commons presenting a petition to His Excellency in Council, asking that a prohibitory measure be submitted to a vote of the people in the particular municipality, it would be competent for the Governor in Council to issue a proclamation naming a day on which the views of the people should be taken at the polls by ballot. That proclamation should be published in the Canada Gazette, and also in the Official Gazette of the particular Province from which the petition emanated. The proclamation should contain full particulars relating to the appointment of returning officers, etc., so that the people might be apprised at the earliest moment of the steps necessary to be taken. The Sheriff or Registrar might be appointed returning officer, but the appointment of either was not compulsory. It would be the duty of the returning officer, on receipt of the notice of his appointment, to give no less to the electors of the day fixed for the voting, which was to be upwards of a month afterwards, and to name the deputy-returning officers for the several polling districts in the particular city or county. The districts were to be those defined by the parliamentary election law, and in any municipality where they were not so defined the returning officer might define them in the ordinary way, limiting, of course, each district to 200 voters. It would also be the duty of the returning officer to see that the deputy returning officers were provided with ballot boxes and voters' lists.

Hon. Mr. Miller—Do you propose to have the ballots taken at the general election?

Hon. Mr. Scott replied that it was not contemplated to take a vote of that sort. It was only intended that the law should be a permissive one, to be submitted to the people in counties or cities wherever 25 per cent of the electors petitioned in its favor. He supposed it would be perfectly futile to attempt to put a law of this kind in force within smaller areas.

Hon Mr. Miller—In the application of 25 per cent. of the ratepayers in a county or city before the general election would the Act be voted on at the same time?

Hon. Mr. Scott said not necessarily so, but he had no objection to that course if it were considered advisable. It was further provided that at the expiration of sixty days after the taking of the vote, if the law was carried by a majority of votes, and if the returning officer so certified to the Governor in Council, the latter should issue a proclamation putting the prohibitory law in force in the particular county or city in which it was passed. The interval of sixty days was to permit either party to appeal to the Judges of the Superior Courts for a scrutiny of the ballot papers. The day on which the law was to come into force was made to correspond with the day on which the municipal licenses expired, so that there might be no clashing between Provincial and municipal and Dominion authority. Very great objection was urged against the five gallon clause of the Dunkin act, and therefore the present bill provided for the absolute prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors in the particular municipality where the law was passed. Exceptions were made, however, in the cases of liquor used for medicinal or sacramental purposes which might be sold on the druggist or licensed vendor receiving from the purchaser the certificate of a physician or clergyman, as the case might require. If, also, liquor were required for scientific and chemical purposes, a certificate to that effect must be made by the applicant, corroborated by a justice of the peace. These restrictions were necessary in order that there might be no evasion of the law. With regard to manufacturers or wholesale dealers, there was a provision that they might sell in quantities of not less than ten gallons, provided it were sold for consumption outside of the locality wherein the law was in force. It was intended that the criminal procedure law, as administered by justices of the peace throughout the Dominion, should apply to this Bill. When once passed the law could not be repealed for a period of three years, unless at the expiration of one year a majority of all the electors in the particular county or city petition for its appeal. On the other hand, if the law failed to passed, the parties favoring it were precluded from bringing up the question again for a period of three years, unless at the expiration of a year a majority of all the electors asked for its submission again to the people. It was not proposed that the petitioners should be asked to contribute to the expense of submitting this law to the people. He had made an estimate, and found that the expense which would be entailed upon the public revenue would be but slight.

Hon Mr. Read—Does this Bill repeal the Dunkin Act where it is now in force.

Hon. Mr. Scott replied in the negative. Provision was made that wherever the Dunkin Act was in operation it should continue in operation, and could only be repealed by the machinery provided under by this Dunkin Act. But when this Bill once became law the Dunkin Act could not thereafter be submitted. It repealed the Dunkin Act except in those municipalities where that Act was law.

Hon Mr. Dickey feared that this provision would lead to a conflict between the two Acts.

The Bill was read the first time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

The House then went into Committe of Supply.

Mr. Gibbs asked for information relative to the Weights and Measures Act.

Mr. Laurier replied that there were fewer complaints against the Act than during the previous year.

The item, besides several others, passed.

Book Publications.

Littell's Living Age.—The numbers of Littell's Living Age for the weeks ending March 9th and 16, respectively, have the following noteworthy articles:—Dr. Schlieman's Exploration of Mycenæ; Charles Summer; Constantinople—a Lecture delivered in Aberdeen, January 3d, 1878, by James Bryce; A Ride for Life; Erica, a serial story translated for The Living Age from the German of Frau von Ingersleben; The Education of Girls,—their Admissibility to Universities; Above the Clouds; a Reverie on the Bel Alp; Liquefaction of Oxygen; with the usual choice poetry, etc. The back numbers containing the first instalments of Erica, and a story by Miss Thackery, are still sent gratis to new subscribers for 1878. For fifty-two numbers, of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3000 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; or for $10.50 any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies is sent with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. Littell & Gay, Boston, are the publishers.

Appletons' Journal for April exhibits in its table of contents that variety of subjects which characterises this magazine. The opening paper is the second of its new series entitled "The American at Work," this time describing the cheese-maker at his tasks, and the process of the manufacture. Cheese making, as we all know, has developed in recent years to a leading industry, and this paper is therefore of special interest. It is abundantly illustrated by Mr. Kelly, and is from the pen of Mr. William H. Reiding. A fresh and entertaining paper, by J. Brander Matthews, is entitled "About the Ballet." It gives a comprehensive and anecdotical history of that divertisement, which is very readable. The portraits which accompany it of Salle, Camargo, and others distinguished in the art, reveal the fact that the dresses first used were almost unobjectionable on the score of morality. Mrs. Annie Edward's story of "Jet" is continued, the frontispiece by Mr. Reinhart, which illustrates it, being particularly strong and good. There is a telling short story, by John Esten Cooke, entitled "The Wonderful Family;" a short paper, by R H. Stoddard, denouncing the publication of Keat's love letters; a spirited debate by two speakers under the title of "A Colloquy," on the function and place of poetry; and papers by Olive Logan, M. E. W. S., and others.

Discussions on Future Punishment.

Popular preachers—it would be an erroneous use of the term, with one notable exception, to say theologians—have endeavored to shed light on the awful future. Canon Farrar, a scholar and divine, has spoken out his convictions in a manly but passionate way; Henry Ward Beecher has had an outburst on the subject in a style common to himself; and T. DeWitt Talmage has raved in an almost blasphemous manner as the champion of orthodoxy and repulsive materialism. This has set the whole popular preaching world, down to the veriest adventurer, agoing. Will they throw light on the all but impenetrable mystery in which this theme is surrounded? Intelligent men do not quarrel with the discussion of this or any other sacred subject of vital interest to mankind, and surely it will become the pulpit to set the example of a painful levity. It is not in the whirlpool of popular—and oft-times ignorant—discussion that the great verities of faith are established. It is in the exercise of calm, still, earnest thought that central and influential truths are eliminated. After the turmoil and the strife of tongues have subsided, the eternal truth will shine out in all its clearness. Only let all truth-seekers cherish a spirit of calm and earnest enquiry, and let them not be misled by the manifold flippancies with which the subject has been surrounded in some of the more recent utterances upon it. —Exchange.

What Rum Will Do.

John B. Gough tells the following: A minister of the Gospel told me once one of the most thrilling incidents I have heard in my life. A member of his congregation came home for the first time in his life, intoxicated, and his boy met him upon the door step clapping his hands, and exclaiming, "Papa has come home!" He seized the boy by his shoulder, swung him round, staggered and fell in the hall. That minister said to me, "I spent the night in that house. I went out, bared my brow that the night air might fall upon it and cool it. I walked up and down the hill. There was his child, dead! There was his wife in strong convulsions, and he asleep." A man about thirty years of age asleep, with a dead child in the house, having a blue mark upon the temple where a corner of the marble steps had come in contact with the head as he swung him round, and a wife upon the brink of the grave! "Mr. Gough," said my friend, "I cursed the drink." He had told me that I must remain until he awoke, and I did." When he awoke he passed his hand over his face and exclaimed, "What is the matter? Where am I? Where is my boy? "You cannot see him." "Stand out of my way. I will see my boy." To prevent confusion I took him to the child's bed, and as I turned down the sheet and showed him the corpse he uttered a wild shriek, "Ah, my child." The minister said to me: "One year after that he was brought from a lunatic asylum to lie side by side with his wife in one grave, and I attended his funeral." The minister of the gospel who told me that fact is to day a drunken hostler in a stable in Boston. Now tell me what rum will do? It will debase, degrade, embrute, and damn everything that is noble, bright, glorious and Godlike in a human being. There is nothing drink will not do that is vile, dastardly, cowardly, and hellish. When are we not to fight till the day of our death?

A Policeman Outwitted.

Policemen are generally shrewd enough to detect rogues, but their sagacity is sometimes blunted by the impudent coolness of one who passes himself off as an honest man. It is rare, however, even in a rogue, to find such audacity as in the following incident:—

Policeman Badger, of the Tenth Station, had a bit of experience the other night which he is not fond of talking about. It was past midnight as he was leisurely pushing his beat through Jessup street, and as he came opposite to Drayton & Frost's jewellry store he observed gleams of light through the chinks of the shutters, and he rapped at the door.

"Is that you, policeman?" asked a voice within.

"Yes," answered Badger.

"Well, it's only me. It's all right. Kind o' chilly out, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Thought so. I was just fixing the fire. Good night."

Badger said "good night," and pursued his way.

An hour after Badger passed through Jessup street again, and saw the light in the jewellry store. It didn't look right and he banged the door loudly.

"Hello!" cried the voice within. "Is it you, policeman?"

"Yes."

"All right. Won't you come in and warm you? It won't hurt anything for you to slip from your beat a minute."

The door was opened and Policeman Badger entered, and he found the inmate to be a very gentlemanly-looking man in a linen duster.

"Come right up to the stove, policeman. Excuse me a moment."

The man took the ash pan from the bottom of the stove and carried it down cellar and emptied it, and when he had returned and wiped his hands, he said, with a smile:—

"Chilly outside and dull inside. (Another smile.) New goods for the spring trade, and have to keep your eyes open. Lonesome work, this watching at night; but I manage to find some comfort in this. Won't you join me in a tip? You'll find it the pure thing."

And the man in the duster produced a black bottle and a tumbler.

Policeman Badger partook, and having wiped his lips and giving his fingers a new warming, he left the store and resumed his beat, satisfied that all was right at Drayton & Frost's.

But morning brought a new revealment. Drayton & Frost's store had been robbed during the night of $6,000 worth of watches and jewellry; and although Policeman Badger carries in his mind an exact daguerretype of the robber, the adroit rascal has not yet been found.

Napoleon's Prediction on Russia.

Now that all eyes are turned to Constantinople, the bone of contention of Europe, it may be of interest to quote an opinion given by Napoleon at St. Helen in 1817 to his surgeon, Barry O'Meare:—"In the course of a few years," added he, "Russia will have Constantinople, the greatest part of Turkey, and all Greece. This I hold to be as certain as if it had already taken place. Almost all the cojoling and flattering which Alexander practised toward me was to gain my consent to effect this object. I would not consent, foreseeing that the equilibrium of Europe would be destroyed. In the natural course of things in a few years Turkey must fall to Russia. The greatest part of her population are Greeks, who, you may say, are Russians. The Powers it would injure, and who could oppose it, are England, France, Prussia, and Austria. Now, as to Austria, it would be very easy for Russia to engage her assistance by giving her Servia and other provinces bordering upon the Austrian dominions reaching near to Constantinople. The only hypothesis that France and England may ever be allied with sincerity will be in order to prevent this. But even this alliance will not avail. France, England, and Prussia, united, cannot prevent it. Russia and Austria can at any time effect it. Once mistress of Constantinople, Russia gets all the commerce or the Mediterranean becomes a great naval power, and heaven knows what may happen. She quarrels with you, marches off to India an army of 70,000 good soldiers, which to Russia is nothing, and 100,000 canaillie, Cossacks and others, and England loses India. Above all other Powers, Russia is most to be feared, especially by you. Her soldiers are braver than the Austrians, and she has the means of raising as many as she pleases. In bravery, the French and English soldiers are the only ones to be compared to them. All this I foresaw. I see into futurity further than others, and I wanted to establish a barrier against those barbarians by re-establishing the kingdom of Poland, and putting Poniatowski at the head of it as king; but your imbeciles of Ministers would not consent. A hundred years hence I shall be praised, and Europe, especially England, will lament that I did not succeed."

Napier and Wolesley.

Lord Napier, of Magdala, son of a Major in the Royal Artillery, was born in Ceylon in 1810, served with distinction as brigade-major in the Sutely campaign of 1845-6, and in 1849 was made lieutenant-colonel, for meritorious conduct at Guzerat. During the whole of the Sepoy mutiny he was in active service, and again distinguished himself in the engineering operations which he conducted against Lucknow, and subsequently as brigade-commander at the siege of Gwalior and the battle of Pouree In 1860 he took part in the Anglo-French expedition against China, with the local rank of major-general, and here again achieved special distinction in the operations preceding the capture of Peking. He became colonel of the Royal Engineers in 1862, and from the year previous until 1865, when he was appointed commander to the Bombay army with the local rank of general, was a member of the council of the Governor-General of India. He was promoted to the full rank of lieutenant-general in 1867, and given command of the expedition to Abyssinia for the release of the British prisoners held by King Theodore at Magdala. In a brief and brilliant campaign, one of the greatest engineering achievements on record, he captured Magdala, and returned to the seaboard without the loss of a single man. In 1870 he was appointed commander in chief of the forces in India with the local rank of general. For his brilliant achievements he has thrice received the thanks of parliament. He is at present in London, having been summoned home from Gibraltar, of which he is Governor, in order to consult as to the expeditionary force of which he is to be Commander-in Chief should hostilities break out. Sir Garnet Wolseley officially named as Chief of Lord Napier's staff, was born in Co. Dublin, Ireland, in 1833, and is also the son of a Major. He entered the army in time to get into active service during the same campaigns as those in which Lord Napier distinguished himself. After service in the Burmese war of 1852-53 he served in the Crimea, and was severely wounded at the siege of Sebastopol, but recovered in time to participate in the siege of Lucknow and the defence of Alumbagh. He also served in China and Canada, and commanded the British troops in the Ashantee war of 1873. He and Lord Napier received almost precisely similar rewards for the success of the enterprise which they conducted the one against the Ashantees and the other against Abyssinians. They are both good soldiers of large experience, and Sir Garnet Wolesley is in the prime of life and full of British confidence in the strength of the British army which as Chief of the Staff, he may be called upon to direct.

Turkey is required to pay to Russia an indemnity that amounts to just about $800,000,000, and an additional $200,000,000 in bonds; or, in all, $1,000,000,000. This is the amount of the money indemnity that Germany obtained from France after the war of 1870-'71; and it looks as though Russia in arranging the business, had taken her cue from Germany. But France could pay the indemnity and did pay it, while Turkey is too hard up to pay any part of it. So Russia has required Turkey to cede a lot of territory and the fortresses and to turn over the revenues derived from her tributaries and mines.

Erin.

Bright are thy skies, dear Erin,
Thy meadows and fields are green;
Tall are thy stately mountains,
And rivers that roll between;
Bright are the rushing waters,
And dear as my soul to me,
But alas, alas, dear Erin,
I am far away from thee.

The daisies deck thy hill sides
And down in the valley below,
The shamrock blooms in verdure
When the storms of winter blow;
The sun shines down in gladness,
But he shines no more for me,
For alas, alas, dear Erin,
I am far away from thee.

Fair are the blue-eyed maidens,
Who roam by the Lee and Suir—
Bright as the skies above them—
As thy native waters pure;
And the sweet wild flowers are springing,
On upland, meadow and lea;
But sad is my heart, dear Erin,
That I am away from thee.

Away o'er the waste of waters,
From the bright and blushing west,
All lonely and sad I wander,
With sorrow and care oppressed;
And sad are the thoughts within me,
And the tears come rolling free,
When I think of the friends I love best,
And thee who I no more see.

God bless thee, my own dear Erin,
Thy hills and thy mountains grand,
God bless thee and keep thee ever
A free and a happy land;
Though an exile I sadly wander,
Away o'er the dark blue sea,
Still fonder I grow and fonder,
My own dear old land, of thee.

Buried Alive.

Some Strange but Well Authenticated Cases.

It is always with a feeling of horror that we read of graves being opened and the finding of the fact that a burial had taken place before death had actually claimed its victim; and yet such cases are of more frequent occurrence than is generally supposed.

Some very strange cases of persons being buried alive, and the manner in which the facts were brought to light have recently been made public.

A few of the most remarkable of these are now presented, as showing to what an extent this blunder has, of late years, been carried on in the United States. The last truly horrible case was that of a lady, by name Mrs. Roberta Ainslee, of New Orleans. The lady had been sick for some time with malarial fever, and was, at the end of ten days, pronounced dead by her physician, as all signs of animation seemed to be suspended—the body was cold, the pulse stopped, and the lips were bloodless. Mr. Ainslee was himself sick at the time, and could not attend the funeral of his wife, but a few days afterwards he called the old negress who attended her in her last illness, and made her give him a detailed statement of the facts.

After listening to her story Mr. Ainslee stated that he had had a strange dream in regard to his wife, and he was firmly of the impression that she had been buried alive.

So strong hold did this dream take upon his mind that as soon as he was able he, in company with a few friends and an undertaker, went to the vault in which the body had been placed, and opening a large box in which the coffin was confined, that receptacle was found sprung at every joint, and the top almost pried off. Upon opening it the body of Mrs. Ainslee was found to be lying on its face and the terrible expression the face had upon it gave evidence that an effort must have been made for freedom. Scarcely less mournful are the consequences of the sad discovery. Mr. Ainslee is now a raving maniac.

A short three years ago Miss Addie Carter, the daughter of a well-to-do farmer in Middle Tennessee, to all appearances died and was buried. The young lady had on her hand at the time a beautiful diamond ring, the gift of her betrothed, and it excited the cupidity of a negro on the farm to such a degree that he made up his mind to possess it. This he could not do without exhuming the body, and that he did late at night. It seems that after he had burst the coffin open he was, on account of the swollen condition of the finger, unable to pull the ring off, so taking out his knife he attempted to amputate the finger.

The lady, who it seems had only been in a trance, was brought to consciousness by the cutting, and giving a scream, so scared the negro that he fled.

Miss Carter, after many painful efforts, succeeded in getting free from her grave and in making her way home. The effect upon her family can be imagined and her lover, upon hearing of it next day, at once made her his wife, and she now presides at his table as Mrs. Collins, with nothing to remind her of her dreadful fate but the scar upon her fingers.

One of the most painful cases of antemortem interment took place a few years ago in Philadelphia. The lady, a young Quakeress of good family, had apparently passed from this world of sin and sorrow, and was in an open coffin placed in a vault amid the relics of her ancestors. Nearly six months afterward the vault was opened to receive another tenant, when a sight met the eyes of those present that will never be forgotten by them.

On the steps of the vault sat, or rather reclined against the wall, all that was mortal of the young lady. She had awakened from her trance, and being unable to find her way to earth again, had sunk in helpness despair upon the steps, and then when hunger pressed her, she had fed upon her own flesh, as it was discovered her shoulders and arms were literally eaten to the bone.

A very singular case occurred to a minister two years ago in Monmouth county, N.J After a short illness he was thought to be dead, and preparations were made for his funeral. But it was not to be—the man was only in a trance, and as the undertaker was making ready to screw down the lid of the coffin he discovered a twitching of the supposed dead man's eyelids, and upon proper remedies being applied the gentleman was restored to full life and vigor. He described most vividly his feelings at the time, as he said he could hear all that was going on around him, but could not move until the last moment.

Two cases came to us recently from Europe of most heartrending burials before death, which prove most conclusively that doctors are not always the best judges of suspended animation.

CHAPTER XXVII.

WALTER ADAMSON RECEIVES AN UNEXPECTED MORNING VISITOR—THE MYSTERIOUS LETTER AND ITS CONTENTS—PLANS LAID.

"If you please, sir, there's somebody wantin' ye," said a voice by the bedside of Mr. Adamson, and, as the words were spoken for at least the fourth time, the tones in which they were uttered were so loud and importunate that they penetrated the ears of the sleeping lawyer and awoke him out of a dream.

"Eh? What is it, Maggie, my woman?" he cried, opening his eyes and turning them towards the window, through which the first grey streaks of morning light were struggling through. "Dear, dear me lassie, it's not risin' time yet," he added.

"No, sir, it is just six o'clock, but there's a gentleman doon stairs wishin' to see you."

"To see me at this untimeous hour, Maggie. Who is it, lassie?—what does he want?"

"I dinna ken that, sir, He didna tell me his business; but I a'm thinking he is a minister, and he is maist anxious to see you."

"A minister!" echoed Mr. Adamson. "The business must be very urgent indeed that brings him here so early in the morning. Say to him I'll be doon immediately, Maggie."

"Yes, sir."

And Maggie vanished, all the more quickly that she saw by the motion of the bedclothes her master would presently make his appearance on the floor.

"A case of will-making," said the lawyer to himself, as he hastily struck a light and began the operation of dressing. "Somebody dying, and wanting to settle his affairs. No doubt the minister sees what's coming, and has advised him to it. But who can it be—who can it be? How stupid of people to neglect that very important duty till they are on their deathbeds."

Fully assured in his own mind that this must be the business for which he had been so early roused, Mr. Adamson made his way down to the parlor, his toilette being made in half the time usually taken by him. The fire was not yet lighted, but the gas was burning, and standing on the hearth was a tall, stout man, clothed in a black clerical dress, and wearing blue spectacles. He was evidently a minister, as Maggie has said; but to Mr. Adamson he was a stranger, and he thought he knew all the ministers in the city.

"Good morning, sir. You wish to see me, I understand?"

The stranger spoke not, but moving to the door, which on his entrance the lawyer had left open, he closed it, then advancing close to the light he removed the blue spectacles.

The lawyer made a sudden gesture of startled surprise.

"Don't call out my name," said Harold Logan, for it was he. "Surely you must have expected me."

"I don't know; I thought you would communicate with me soon, I am glad you have come, for I wished most ardently to communicate with you. But I tremble for the risk you run."

"Who can recognise me in this disguise? Even you were deceived."

"True. The disguise is perfect; but your enemies may be on the watch, believing you are likely to visit me, and to them your height and figure would betray you. But at this early hour none of their spies are likely to be abroad."

"Though I knew the streets to be swarming with them, I would not have been detained from coming," replied Harold Logan. "This last outrage has made me desperate. If my wife and child are not restored at once and unharmed, I will take instant vengeance on them, if I have to begin with burning Mount Cairn to the ground."

"Hush; be calm, and speak in a low tone. Maggie is a discrete lassie; but the curiosity of a woman is great at the best, and she will wonder if she hears such violent language. So, my dear boy, be calm and——"

"Calm?" repeated Harold in a vehement though subdued tone. Can you ask—can you expect me to be calm under circumstance sufficient to make any man mad? No, by heaven! I'll throw prudence and caution to the winds, even though I should thereby——"

"Though you should thereby harm both yourself and those whom your enemies have got in their power," said the lawyer, warningly.

"What do you really mean?" asked the youth, somewhat staggered by the view of the case.

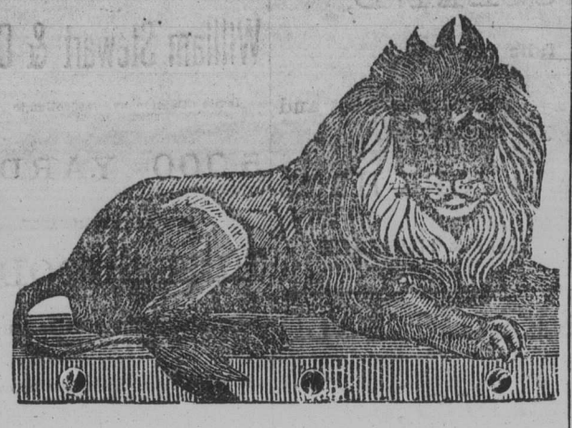
"Nothing is to be gained, much may be lost, by violence and imprudence. My dear boy, I know what you must be suffering, and how difficult it must be for you to restrain your passion; but for their sakes be careful. It will require us to go warily to work with those with whom we have to deal. They are not only daring in their action, but cunning to the last degree; and unless we can be both daring and cunning too, we shall never circumvent them. Unless, indeed," added Mr. Adamson, with sudden animation; "unless you had done the only sensible thing which you ought to have done in the first instance."

"What?" exclaimed the youth, breathlessly.

"Assert your innocence, give yourself up, demand a trial, and produce your two witnesses, Daddy Duff and Betty Corbet. Aha! you see I have now got to know the name of the guilty man, and what proof there is on your side. But do not think Daddy told me. He was faithful to the absurd promise you exacted, all he did was to give me the hint about Betty. I called at her cottage on my way back from Glenroy, and soon sucked from her the information I wanted. That information makes me more angered at your folly in hesitating to proclaim your innocence, because, forsooth, it would bring to light the guilt of some brutal wretch called Black Dick. Now, will you screen that monster, Back Dick, and sacrifice yourself, your wife, and your child?"

"A Drowning Man Will Catch a Straw."

If he catch it, it will do him no good. Thousands of people, who having neglected colds and coughs until they have become dangerous, will rush to almost every nostrum for relief. This is why so many experiments are tried by the sufferers. Go to your druggist, buy a bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and use it with confidence. It will benefit at once and ultimately cure. It is no straw, it is a cable well-tried; hold on to it and be saved.



50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

THE WESTEREN ASSURANCE Company have with great promptness paid their portion of Insurance on the buildings of the Worswick Engine Company. Great praise is due the officers of the Western for fair dealing and promptness, as there had been an omission of form in transferring the insurance from Mr. Worswick to the Joint Stock Company when it was formed, which the Western might have taken advantage of and refused payment, but as men of honour they overlooked it, and paid over the amount within three days after the agent here had sent in the claims properly adjusted. MONDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 18, 1878

The Famine in China.

We published the other day communications on the subject of the famine in China, which showed that the cause of this terrible calamity is misapprehended by some, at least, of our readers. Opium is, no doubt, a curse to the inhabitants of China, and there is no censure too severe for the mercenary policy of a Christian country which urged it upon them in spite of the protests of her heathen rulers. But opium has nothing to do with the present famine. It is unjust to represent the people of Northern China as drunken sensualists, suffering the punishment of their idleness. They are, in fact, a swarming mass of wretchedly poor peasants, accustomed to want and to a frugality of which the people of this prolific country can have no just idea. So extreme is their condition, even in favorable years, that certain days are appointed by law when the half-starved bands of beggars are permitted to enter the shops and houses of the towns, and to make what outcry they please until they receive alms. The destruction of female children, common in these districts, is the outgrowth of the perpetual want to which these people have been heirs for generations. "Infanticide," says a Christian writer, "appears to them a merciful necessity, not a crime." The famine, which has reached its crisis in the present year, has been caused by the failure of the rice crop for three seasons, owing to the terrible drought which followed the destruction of the timber in Shan-tai and Chihli. Sir Thomas Wade has just issued an urgent appeal for aid to all English-speaking people, of which it is only necessary to quote the facts that seventy-five millions of people are literally starving to death; that for a year they subsisted on herbs and grass, and last year on the bark of trees; and that now all vegetation having utterly disappeared, they are eating earth and a kind of slate stone which can be masticated. A single guinea, Sir Thos. says, is enough to save a human life for a year. If any additional motive be needed to give force to these terrible facts, it may be found by Christians in his statement, that the English and American missionaries have given themselves up to the work of relieving the dying people about them, and that their conduct has effected a great change in the opinion of the Chinese with regard to the religion they teach. "We will never speak ill of them again," they say. "This is a better religion than that of the Mandarins."—N. Y. Tribune.

TOWN COUNCIL regular meeting this evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock.

PERILOUS POSITION.—On Saturday evening, about six o'clock, while a gentleman was crossing the Neeve street bridge he saw a woman, evidently aged between thirty and forty years, lying on one of the piers, very drunk, indeed. Very little movement on her part would have precipitated her into the river, which, at that point, is some four or five feet deep. The gentleman picked her up and safely deposited her on the safe side of the bridge railing. One of her relatives remarked shortly afterwards, when he had heard of the affair, that it was a great pity she had not been drowned.

A DANGEROUS SIDEWALK.—The Road and Bridge Committee should now pay a visit to the various Wards and inspect the sidewalks, some of which are very dangerous. Of the many that might be mentioned, a spot, which is very much in need of repair, exists directly beside the bridge at Inglis & Hunter's foundry. Accidents of a simple character are constantly occurring at that particular place, and if something is not soon done toward repairing it, a serious accident may be the result.

RUNAWAY.—To-day about three o'clock, a team belonging to Mr. Frank Law, which were lifting some stones back of the railway track, near Allan's mills, took fright at a train and ran off. They came up Macdonnel street at full gallop, and though the teamster held on to the reins for a while he could not check them. They dashed against the lamp post in front of Mr. Armstrong's carriage shop, which stopped their career, and the concussion threw them on the ground. They were stripped of the harness, but beyond damage to it and knocking the lamp post to one side no more harm was done.

A ROW.—Joseph Cairie, a Frenchman who is particularly fond of old rye, and who is given to raising a disturbance in the vicinity of his own residence on Essex-st was arrested on Saturday by Policeman Dooley at the request of Mrs. Cairie, who stated that she had been beaten by the one who pledged himself on a previous occasion in the presence of a minister to love and cherish her until death put an end to the affair. Joseph sobered up between Saturday evening and this morning. When he was placed in position before the Police Magistrate he looked humble and penitent. Mrs. Cairie was called as a witness, but failing to answer to the call Joseph was dismissed.

MR. RUFUS R. GAGE, late general travelling agent for the Singer Manufacturing Company, has taken charge of their branch office that has been opened in the Masonic Block, Upper Wyndham street. Mr. G. being an old machine man those entrusting their orders to him can depend on their being promptly executed. d1

Spring Hardware. See McBean & Co's notice. d3.

To an already well established reputation, are constantly added the warmest praises of travellers who have enjoyed the hospitalities of the Grand Central Hotel, New York. eod

ENORMOUS.—No other word can describe the quantity of new importations of dry goods, delivered at the Lion yesterday and to day. Passers by would imagine themselves at one of the largest wholesale houses of the country. Load after load was delivered until the sidewalk was crowded with goods. Messrs Williamson & Co., have faith in being able to do a large spring trade. They say only give the goods cheap enough and there is no trouble in disposing of them. No better rule can be adopted to build up and sustain a big business.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

CRICKETERS are beginning to think it is high time to have a meeting called for organization. Guelph is likely to have a strong team for 1878.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES in connection with the Norfolk-street Methodist Church, were announced yesterday for the 31st inst. Rev. Mr. Griffin, of Hamilton, will officiate.

F. J. DREW has removed his stock of fruit, &c., to the store on Wyndham street, lately occupied by W. H. Metcalf. Some improvements are being made in the arrangement of the new shop.

RUNAWAY.—A horse belonging to Mr. Day started off this morning up Macdonnell street at its greatest speed. The animal was stopped by some men at the Albion hotel without any damage being done.

THE sale of the Kribs' property advertised to take place on Saturday did not take place. There was a large number present when the auctioneer was ready to perform his duties. All who had property appeared more anxious to sell than to buy. Hence no sale was effected.

MR. WARD, proprietor of the Victoria hotel, besides other extensive improvements which he has lately made in the hotel, has had the inside of the house grained and painted throughout. The inside of the different rooms are grained to imitate curly maple and the hall resembles oak. The house now presents a very comfortable and inviting appearance.

INSOLVENCY.—Thos. McCaffrey, at one time a grocer in the East Ward, is applying for a discharge. Dividends in the estates of Messrs. D. Allan and R. D. Boomer and Harley & Heather, have been declared open to objection till the 20th inst.

IF a policeman had taken a walk on Sunday afternoon, in the direction of the iron railway bridge, he would have found a party engaged in a four-hand game of euchre, and would have made a first-class item by having them answer to the charge before the Police Magistrate this morning.

FOR TORONTO.—A large number of young Irishmen left Guelph for Toronto to-day, for the purpose of participating in the celebration of St. Patrick's day. It is expected by very many that there will be a row of considerable dimensions over the O'Donovan Rossa lecture, which is to take place in St. Patrick's Hall.

RUNAWAY.—A team of horses attached to a waggon belonging to a farmer, were frightened by a train at the G. W. R. station this morning, and galloped at full speed along several streets. They were finally stopped on Berlin street by a couple of young men. The waggon is a complete wreck but nothing more serious resulted from the occurrence.

CHESS MATCH.—On Friday evening the return match between Galt and Guelph was played in the Caledonian rooms. Messrs. Baker, Ball, Tassie and Fleming, for Galt, were opposed by Messrs. Taylor, Saunders, Baldwin and Clyne. The result follows:—For Galt, Mr. Baker won two games, Mr. Ball and Mr. Tassie one each, making a total of four. For Guelph, Messrs. Saunders and Baldwin won one game each, and Mr. Clyne three, making a total of five. Mr. Baker is considered one of the first players in the Province.

PROMOTED.—It is with considerable pleasure the promotion of an old newspaper man is noticed. Mr. R. Mathison, who for six years has occupied the position of Bursar of the London Asylum for the insane, is about to leave that city, having been called, at an increased salary, to the post of Bursar and Manager of the Central Prison, Toronto. In connection with the above the London Advertiser says that while Mr Mathison's numerous friends will be glad of his official advancement, they cannot but regret his departure from this neighborhood. Affable, courteous, and thoroughly business like, he has performed his numerous and often difficult duties in a manner to win for him general respect and esteem.

BADLY BITTEN.—A child aged five years, living in the East Ward, was severely bitten by a dog on Saturday afternoon. She had been sent on an errand to Mr. Buck's house, and on entering the garden his dog sprang out on her, and tore the flesh along the thigh and calf of one of her limbs. Dr. Brock was sent for, and while the wounds were being dressed the little girl, who seemed to be enduring much pain, fainted. Mr. Buck had the animal killed immediately after the event.

FOR MANITOBA.—The Halifax Herald mentions the fact that a large party is being made up in that city to go to Manitoba in the spring or during the summer.

The house of John Moore about a mile from Galt, was on Thursday night of last week burglarized to the extent of $70, and the running gear of a sewing machine. A letter containing threatenings against Mr. Moore and his family were left by the burglars.

ONE FOR PLUMB.—During Mr. Gillmore's speech last week the erratic Plumb persistently interrupted him. Finally Mr. Gillmore said that he had once been interrupted at a meeting by an individual, whom he chastised; in fact he chastised him rather severely, but he was sorry for it afterwards when he found the man was drunk. Amid shouts of laughter, Plumb rose to a point of order. He said Mr. Gillmore was making personal remarks and should retract them. However, the Speaker could not understand that any personal application had been made in the remarks of Mr. Gillmore, and poor Plumb was left to cool off without getting any satisfactory balm for his wounded sensibilities. The cap evidently fitted that time.

THE O'DONOVAN ROSSA LECTURE.—The engagement of O'Donovan Rossa to lecture in Toronto has, it is understood, caused a serious split in the Irish National Societies of the city. Many members have avowed that they would resign in consequence. It is certain there will be no parade at all to-day or a very small one, for only one body who intend to turn out are Hibernians, and they are not over numerous, in fact, it is believed more than 400 cannot possibly be got to muster. The lecture itself will be almost a farce as far as attendance is concerned, and will resemble more a private conclave than a public entertainment, for the place in which it is now advertised to take place cannot be made to hold more than 200.

THE LUMBER SUPPLY FOR 1878.—A correspondent writes to the Montreal Journal of Commerce:—The account from the logging camps of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota show that only about half their usual stock has so far been banked, and even if it all reaches the mills, which is by no means likely, as there is no snow in the woods to keep up a supply of water to float them, all the lumber in Ontario and Quebec, with the product of all the logs got out the past winter, will fall far short of making up the usual consumption of the Western States, and our lumbermen should take notice of the state of things, and not sacrifice their lumber to either Quebec or American purchasers as I feel confident it will reach a higher price before the close of the season than ever before in the history of the trade.

CHEAP TRIP TO EUROPE.—It is generally supposed that a trip to Europe costs a large amount of money, but the Detroit Free Press shows that this is not necessarily the case. A letter intended for a firm in London, Ont. was posted in Detroit about five months ago. The writer neglected to put the "Ont." on the letter. It visited a London in each of the following States: Michigan, Kansas, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, Ohio, Missouri and Indiana. It began its second tour when a postmaster wrote "Eng." on it, and the letter started on a European tour. It is impossible to decipher from its scars the number of places it visited there, but it is quite evident that the envelope can never be passed off on any one as an originally white envelope. Finally it came back to America and took a rest until it was by some chance sent to London, Ont., in a new envelope, and it reached the firm it was intended for after nearly half a year of European and American travel, all because a Detroiter neglected to put three letters on the envelope in the first place.

PECULIAR AFFAIR AT MITCHELL.—An accident under peculiar circumstances occurred in Mitchell last week. A sewing needle, by some means, ran into a lady's foot, which caused the limb so swell, and it was with the greatest difficulty that the little piece of steel was extracted by one of our surgeons. The foot became worse, and as the sufferer was on the eve of being married it made her case peculiarly awkward. The gentleman who had won the fair lady's heart and hand arrived from Chatham, where he resides, to have the knot tied, but after waiting a couple of days it was evident that his espoused's recovery would take time, when it was proposed that the ceremony should go on, and afterwards the groom returned to his home and the bride to follow as soon as able. With this view, the lady was dressed, placed in a chair, a clergymen called in, the ceremony performed, and after the usual salute the gentleman departed for his home, and his affianced returned to her sick bed. The young lady is recovering and will soon be able to join her husband. So says the Advocate.

NO CHEESE PARING WITH SIR JOHN.—A despatch from Quebec contains the following rather extraordinary developement: "In the examination under oath this morning of Mr. Baillairge, City Engineer, before the Civic Investigation Committee, a remark able incident came out with reference to the construction of the department building in Ottawa. Mr Baillairge was at that time employed by the Government (Sir John's Government) and refused to report favorably the extras claimed by the contractors, which he asserts were ten times what they should have been. One of the contractors is reported to have said: "Mr. Baillairge, the Government knows that we have laid out large sums of money in elections, and that it has to be returned to us in some way. The Government wants no cheese-paring." Mr. Baillairge states that he wrote to the Government saying that when the rind was thicker than the cheese some paring is necessary, and further that no man, no government, could sanction such prices without being held up to the execration of the country." The extras were paid and Mr. Baillairge was shortly afterwards dismissed.

REFORM MEETING IN SOUTH WATERLOO.—A Reform mass meeting was held in Hartlieb's Hall, New Hamburg, on Thursday evening, and was attended by about three hundred persons. Mr. Frederick Merner occupied the chair and Mr. F. D. Woodcock acted as Secretary. After addresses by Mr. Isaac Master, M. P. P., and Mr. J. Gordon Mowat, of the Galt Reformer, a Reform Association for New Hamburg was formed, with Frederick Merner as President; Jacob Becker, Vice President; F. D. Woodcock, Sec.-Treasurer, and about a dozen active Reformers as Executive Committee. At the local election last year only three votes were polled on the Reform side in this stronghold of the Opposition candidate, but the little game played by the Tories on that occasion is now understood, and at the next election the Reform vote will certainly be counted by dozens. The Association is hopeful and determined to work energetically, notwithstanding its surroundings.

Large numbers of young grasshoppers are reported in the fields and gardens about Belleville.

The Hard Times in the States.

People talk about the hard times in Canada, but let them read the following letter, which was published in the Leader the other day, and they will find that Canada is a paradise compared to the States:—

To the Editor of the Leader.

SIR,—Having frequently, of late, heard complaints of hard times in Canada, I take this opportunity of giving a slight description of the condition of things here, from which persons interested may draw their own conclusions. Business in Detroit is absolutely flat. The cry among business men everywhere throughout the city is "nothing doing," and assignments are being made at the rate of half-a-dozen per week. The condition of mechanics and workingmen throughout the large cities of the United States is in many cases deplorable. There are over two thousand men walking the streets of Detroit to-day, who cannot obtain employment, clerks, bookkeepers, mechanics and laborers, most of them do not know where their next meal is to come from. The Poor Fund was exhausted over six weeks ago, and it is no uncommon thing for the police to find whole families literally starving to death. Chicago is even worse than Detroit. I met a machinist the other day, a good, steady workman, formerly earning from two to three dollars per day, who walked from Detroit to Chicago in the hope of getting a job, poor fellow, I hope he may succeed, but his chances are small. I heard a man offer to saw, split and pile a cord of hardwood for twenty cents, in order to get some bread for his little family, and these are merely examples of hundreds of cases in this and every other large city on this side. Talk about the hard times in Canada, but if you want to get the real thing, pure and undiluted, come to the United States. A firm advertised the other day for an entry clerk, paying probably $8 per week, and had over 140 written applications. And things are no better for women than men; a friend of mine advertised for a housekeeper, and had over sixty applicants in twenty-four hours. Instead of the proverbial, "Go West, young man, go West," of Horace Greeley, I would say, "Stay East, young man, stay East," for the probabilities are, that if you do go West you will not be able to earn money enough to get back inside of the next two years.

OBSERVER.

Detroit, March 14, 1878.

Manufacturers and Protection.

(From the Hamilton Times.)

Boot and shoe manufacturers do not profess to ask for further protection, as they not only supply the home market, but have a large export trade to foreign markets.

Rubber manufacturers have almost absolute control of the Canadian market, and can only increase their business by an export trade, which an increase in our taxes would not help them to.

Our leather manufacturers export more than is imported.

Of sewing machines our manufacturers export more than are imported.

Our agricultural implement makers have a monopoly of the Canadian market.

Our stove manufacturers have no competition from outside, and absolutely monopolize the home market.

Our tobacco manufacturers have the almost absolute control of the home market

Our manufacturers of ready-made clothing have things pretty much all their own way.

There is not one of these industries the productive power of which would be appreciably increased by any increase in the tariff on the articles they turn out. But all of them would be injured by a tax on coal, on pig iron, and on wool, such as the Tory protectionists clamour for.

Why is it that Sir John did not venture to deal specifically with the case of any of these industries? Why did he refuse to touch upon them in detail and show in what way he proposed to aid them? Why is it that all the speakers on his side, and the journals of his party will talk and write volumes on Carthage and Great Britain, Patagonia and the United States, but will not touch with a forty-rod pole the very Canadian industries that they profess to have a patent life and health pill for? There is only one reason, and that is that he and they are simply quacks and nothing better. They are bold in talking about depressed industries in vague generalities, but they dare not come down to an actual examination of the present condition of our several industries. They know that facts give the lie to their generalities, and that the one class of business men in Canada to-day who have come out of trade depression richer than when it commenced, are our manufacturers—that the one class of business that has stood the depression best has been our manufacturing industry.

Nassagaweya Teachers' Association.

According to agreement the Board of Directors in connnection with the above named Association met on Saturday, the 9th inst., and after transacting preliminary business connected with the same, drew out a constitution for the regular guidance of the meetings of the Association. It was arranged that the first regular convention of the Association shall be held in the Town Hall, Brookville, on Saturday, the 7th of April, the first session to commence at 1:30 p.m.

Several ladies and gentlemen have already kindly consented to be present and take part in the proceedings, and the Board of Directors are instructed to arrange a programme which we trust will contribute to the interest and edification of those assembled.

We cannot help admiring the interest manifested by the teachers of Nassagaweya in this undertaking; and as they are desirous of having the co operation of intelligent ratepayers, we hope they will succeed in enlisting the sympathies of all friends of education; that ample support may be given to such a laudable enterprise; and that success may attend every such effort put forth for the advancement of the moral interests of society.—COM.

Mr. D., an Irish gentleman, was invited to dinner, in New York, by a well-known Scotch resident, at whose generous table he met quite a number of his host's countrymen. The conversation turned on Irish bulls, of which one and another repeated several, until the whole company was in a roar of laughter. Our Irish friend kept quite still until his patience was exhausted. Then he blurted out: "Say, Mr. C., an' do ye know what I think?" "Why, indeed, what do you think, Mr. D.?" Shure, sir, and do ye know that I think, indade, that not more than one-half of these lies that they tell about the Irish are true." This may be said to have "brought down" the table.

The Arrest of Mr. Rine.

More About the Case.

Great excitement still prevails in Mitchell over the escapade of Mr. D. I. K. Rine. It appears that Rine came to Stratford last Wednesday to lecture in the Town Hall. During his stay he was the guest of Mr. J. C. Hurst, a prominent merchant and an enthusiast in the temperance cause. Mr. Hurst is also recording Secretary of the Christian Temperance Union. Rine lectured on Wednesday night to a crowded house and was much admired for his abilities as a temperance orator. On Thursday morning Mr. Hurst left Rine at his house and proceeded to business. Mrs. Hurst was also absent, and Rine was alone in the house with a young lady named Eliza Gibling, aged about fifteen years. He came out of the room, and asked her for some pins. She went and got them for him, and when handing them to Rine he caught her by the wrist, pulled her into the room and attempted to take improper liberties with her. This is the girl's statement, and is the substance of her sworn information. A warrant was issued by Mr. O'Leane, Police Magistrate, on Thursday evening, and placed in High Constable McCarthy's hands, and that officer proceeded to Mitchell and arrested Rine at the Royal Hotel. He was immediately brought back to Stratford, and arrived here at 10.30 p. m., when he was arraigned before the Police Magistrate, and pleaded "Not Guilty." He was remanded until Monday, and bail was fixed at $2,000, himself in $1,000, and two sureties in $500 each. Bondsmen could not be got, however, and finally the bail was reduced to $1,500. Mr. Flagg, of Mitchell, going surety for $500. On Saturday Rine was in town, and tendered an apology to the girl's father, but it was not accepted, and the document was placed in the County Attorney's hands Money was also offered to hush the matter up, but refused. Rine left the same night for the west, and gave out that he was going to St. Mary's, although a report prevails that Detroit is his destination. Great indignation is expressed at his conduct, and the leading temperance men are determined that the case shall be pushed to its utmost limit, and, if guilty, they desire to see him punished.

The Mail's despatch of this (Monday) morning says that Mr. Rine arrived in Toronto on Sunday morning, and left the same night by a freight train for Stratford. He spent the day at a friend's house.

Trial in Progress.

STRATFORD, March 18.—County Attorney Hayes and James P. Woods are conducting the prosecution, the prisoner being defended by Messrs. Harding & Jones, of St. Mary's.

Eliza Gibling being duly sworn said:—After ten o'clock on Wednesday night Mr. Rine came to Mr. Hurst's house and slept there that night; his bedroom was up stairs; saw Mr. Hurst next Thursday morning and got breakfast for him; Rine did not get his breakfast with him; Mr. Hurst afterwards went to the store; there was then no one in the house but a nurse girl and me; Rine was upstairs in his bedroom; when he came to me and asked me for a pin, I said I would get him one, and he said "bring it up to my bedroom"; he was dressed at the time; I answered "All right, I will bring you one"; I took a pin up to the bedroom; the door stood ajar, and I knocked at the door; he came to the door and I gave him the pin; he said to wait a minute, "I'll give you some back"; I waited, and as he returned the package he took me by the arm and pulled me into the room; he said, "You are a nice stout girl, do you think you are anything like my wife?" I said, "I dont know, sir"; he then laid his hand on my breast and pinched me; I asked to be let go. He said he wanted to speak to me; tried to get from him and struggled. Breaking away a step he caught me again and told me to stay, as he wanted to speak to me. His face was white. He then pulled me towards the bedstead and kissed me. He had his arms around my body. While kissing me he did not say anything. Mr. Hurst came in about a quarter of an hour afterwards and witness complained to him.

Mr. Jones, of St. Mary's, who appeared for the defence, subjected the witness to a severe cross examination without materially affecting her testimony.

Defendant committed for trial.

IN MY FAMILY, and for the stock, I have used GILES' LINIMENT IODIDE OF AMMONIA. It is unsurpassed, and I am surprised at the many different maladies in which it is applicable. It gives the utmost satisfaction. JOHN C. CARTER,

A REMARKABLE CIRCUMSTANCE.—A mare belonging to Mr. Ralph Thompson, near Aurora, on Monday last gave birth to one mare and two horse colts. Unfortunately for Mr. Thompson all three died.

They are making out a heavy indictment against the sparrow in the States. He has changed his sky, but not his mind. He is a born fighter, and out of sheer pugnacity makes all other small birds uncomfortable, and is driving them away.

Complaints of business depression come from the manufacturing districts of Spain, notably in Catalonia, and the commercial centres on the Mediterranean coast. A hundred and nineteen factories have been closed and nine thousand workmen thrown out of employment.

The Far Western Province.

An Opinion of British Columbia.

Mr. Thos. Gowdy lately received a letter from Mr. John Kirkland, formerly a resident of Guelph, who has for the past few years been in British Columbia. The following extract will prove interesting:

Let me now say a few words about our adopted home—to say that our expectations have been fully realized, would not be within the bounds of truth. The foolish bargain entered into by the Dominion at the time of Confederation, has had more to do with British Columbia's difficulties than any other cause, not that I consider the Dominion is to blame for not fulfilling the promises, for that was simply impossible, such promises ought never to have been made. People here as a rule, at least those of them who assume to control and direct public opinion, are either unscrupulous or are ignorant of Dominion affairs, as are the people of England, and refuse to look upon the delay in building us a railroad, in any other light, than as a wilful and contemptible breach of faith. Of course in a sparsely peopled province like this, had the bond of union been literally carried out, there is not a property owner in the Province, who by the enhanced value of his property by the construction of the railway, and consequent influx of capital and population, would not have become suddenly wealthy, and it is in this view of the case, more than any other, that it has had such a depressing effect upon the general prosperity of the Province. People have been anxiously expecting to reap golden harvests without carrying out the injunction based upon the highest authority, that it is to be earned by the sweat of the brow. Thus, while Victoria has some two millions of capital lying idly in its banks, and I believe its savings bank deposit is larger than any other city or town within the Dominion, yet it is with the greatest difficulty that a loan for any enterprise whatever can be obtained, for a larger period than from one to two years, and then at from one to one and a half per cent per month. Under such circumstances, and while we have latent wealth in abundance to develop, it is not surprising that our prosperity is slow indeed. There is, notwithstanding, something peculiarly fascinating about the whole Pacific slope, which makes the adopted "citizen" akin to the "Highlander" who thinks there is no vegetation equal in beauty to his native "heather," or like the Icelander who when visiting Edinburgh, could find no landscape comparable in loveliness and grandeur to that of his own Icelandic home. And there is something about our beautiful climate, and varied scenery, which kindles within the breast of every true British Columbian a feeling of pride which effectually condones many a disappointment, and keeps up a buoyant hope of bright anticipation in the future. We have our deep blue sea studded with innumerable islands and rocky promontories, clothed down to the waters' edge in gorgeous and feathery green, along the whole coast line. In the distance may be seen towering mountains whose hoary heads are covered with perpetual snow. Our majestic, though somewhat turbid Fraser, is not the less admired because it has proved a watery grave to many an eager and recklessly adventurous pioneer. Our splendid and magnificent timber, and the numerous harbors and streams which indent our whole coast line, and team with every variety of fish wealth, of both food and oil; our immense mineral stores of gold, silver, copper, iron, and coal, and last, though not least, our fertile alluvial bottom lands, and our rich bunch grass grazing lands, which though limited in quantity, make up in richness of composition, and promise to provide food for a large population, who, in the not distant future, will find profitable employment, in demonstrating beyond a conjecture that this despised sea of mountains is the richest gem in the confederated coronet.

Recent explorations by practical experts seem to establish the fact that quartz, gold, silver, and copper, in almost unlimited supply is to be found in Cariboo, and in several other localities. Should they prove to be a success there is no reason why other unexplored regions of country should not be equally rich in minerals, and already prominent capitalists from California are forming extensive companies to prove the truthfulness of recent reports. Should they prove a success a tide of immigration will speedily set in, which within a very short time will make the construction of a railway an imperative necessity.

References appropriate to the fact of Sunday being the anniversary of Ireland's patron saint were made on that day in the various Roman Catholic churches of Hamilton. Rev. Father Dowling, of Paris, preached a magnificent sermon in St. Patrick's church.

The almost instaneous death of a young woman under the hands of a dentist in Annadale, Staten Island, shows a danger in the use of chloroform which we have not previously seen mentioned. Her teeth were so bad that she had to get them all extracted, and the dentist took out five while the patient was under the influence of chloroform. He then allowed her to awake in order to get rid of the blood which had accumulated in her mouth. She said she had felt the operation, and the second dose of chloroform was larger than the first, which had been half the usual dose. Five more teeth were pulled, when she suddenly straightened out in a spasm, and in a few minutes was a corpse. The spasm was accompanied by a gurgling sound, which showed that the blood instead of running down the throat, as usual in such operations, into the stomach, had got into the wind pipe, and on account of the muscles of the throat being paralyzed by the chloroform could not be coughed up. The coroner's jury very properly condemned the use of anæsthetics in operations of the mouth.

On Friday night, a man named Clark shot a person named Bowen, at Aylmer, in a drunken row. The bullet penetrated Bowen's abdomen, and his recovery is doubtful. Clark was arrested and sent for trial.

The Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVN'G. MARCH. 18. 1878

Sir John's Little Bills.

On Thursday night Mr. Dymond cornered Sir John when he exposed some of his transactions while Minister of Justice in 1868. In that year he allowed the Deputy Minister of Justice—his brother-in-law, Col. Bernard—to pocket $500 for services as Parliamentary Agent for the Northern Railway Company, which was then engineering a bill through Parliament, which directly affectly the business of the country, and postponed the payment of money to the Crown. Sir John unable to deny the statement sought to justify his action on the ground that he allowed his Deputy to supplement his salary by any perquisites that he could lay his hands on. Mr. Dymond asked Mr. Laflamme and Mr. Blake whether they allowed such practices when they were Ministers of Justices, and Mr. Blake replied that he found the practice in vogue when he took office, but he at once put a stop to it. The transaction to say the least was of an unseemly character.

Mr. Dymond also exposed another petty transaction which Sir John had also to acknowledge, and which he also sought to defend. This was the extortion of a fee of $2.50 from each of the poor people who held Ordnance land leases, and who were in arrears to the Crown. The aggregate of these fees amounted to $545.25, which went into Sir John's pocket. He argued that he was entitled to the money, as it was simply a case of payment for a lawyer's letter, as the suits were conducted by his own firm. This was a clear acknowledgment that the paid adviser of the Crown had taken money from parties being sued by the Crown. Sir John sought to justify himself by saying that it had been the practice before he entered office for the Attorney General to take fees when engagod in Crown busines. Mr. Blake, however, pointed out that the Attorney General could not appear in his official capacity in the Courts as a barrister. At the same time he expressed the opinion that if the principle were adopted of Ministers of Justice relinquishing their practice on taking office it would be a very difficult thing to find a Minister of Justice such as the Dominion should possess. He, however, thought that the taking fees in the manner mentioned by Mr. Dymond could not be defended. The whole business is extremely discreditable to the ex-Minister of Justice.

The Fisheries Award.

Ex-President Woolsey, of Yale College, a man profoundly versed in International Law, has written to the New York 'Tribune' on the subject of the Fisheries Award. He says that according to all law and precedent a majority in a board of arbitrators are competent to give a valid decision. As regards the appointment of Mr. Delfosse—the third arbitrator—about which the American papers have been talking so much, he justly says:—"If he was accepted by the United States, what more was wanted? Our objections, if we had any, ought never to be mentioned afterwards. I consider the award as inordinately great; but our faith is pledged, and if we should refuse to pay the award within the time agreed upon, England would have a claim against us, and Belgium a ground of complaint for a want of courtesy to her Ambassador."

This is very different language from that employed by the New York Herald. Mr. Delfosse in reference to the award says:—"What the Commission has done is done, and there is an end of it. Its members have acted understandingly and conscientiously. If it is not approved why then set it aside. I myself do not personally care the snap of my finger about this discussion, and, what more, I do not intend to concern myself further about it." If after this, the "scrupulous sense of national honor," which led the United States Government to accept from the British Treasury fifteen millions of dollars for the Alabama claims, for two-thirds of which sum it is unable to find claimants, and which is, according to the decision of its own Courts, in excess of any rightful claim the United States actually had upon Great Britain, does not lead the American Government to pay the Fishery Award, then we must consider its virtue of a very doubtful character.

THE Conservatives of West Hastings have nominated Hon. Lewis Walbridge as their candidate for the Commons.

Mr. A. BOULTBEE has been nominated by the Conservatives as their candidate for East York. On the ballot being taken Mr. Tyrrell got 140 votes, and Mr. Boultbee 106. We wonder the Conservatives of that Riding are not ashamed of their choice. A man who for his misdeeds was in a sense chased out of the Local Legislature is hardly a fit person to run for the Commons. But it seems the Conservatives of East York are not hard to please.

WHEN Mr. George Brown's Reciprocity Treaty was under discussion, the Mail and its Tory confreres denounced it on the ground that it would allow American manufactures to enter Canada free, and would consequently tend to kill off Canadian industries, which were not powerful enough to protect themselves against enormous capital and long-established trade. But now they applaud the very same policy, for they declare for a war of tariffs which will compel the Yankees to give us reciprocity which will throw the Canadian market open to them and bring about precisely the very same state of things which they condemned in 1874.

THOUGH the House has been in session five weeks, only but few bills have been reported from the Committees, and not one measure put into shape to go to the Senate, which adjourns early very day for want of something to do. Some of the Opposition, notably Mr. Plumb and Mr. Mitchell, are greatly responsible for this, for by their repeated interruptions, their senseless questions, and their buncombe speeches they consume valuable time.

The Protection Amendment.

In every Conservative meeting throughout the Province, Sir John Macdonald's cunningly framed motion in reference to Protection is being re-echoed, commented upon and adopted as the watchword of the party. It was meant for that. It was drawn up so as to embody the spirit of all his previous motions on the subject, and was purposely made as vague, as shadoway and unsubstantial as possible. He had a difficult rols to play, and with his usual cunning and faculty for expediency, he played it as well as could be done. Obliged to back down from the high ground taken by him and his followers in many of their pic-nic speeches last summer, he yet could not with any show of consistency give up the cry altogether, while at the same time he had so to trim his sails as to steer clear of the settled free trade views of the people in the Maritime Provinces. He had evidently come to the conviction, and with all the more force the nearer the elections draw, that while he cannot rely on the protectionist element in Ontario to bring him back to power, to pander further to them would be to destroy his chances in the Maritime Provinces. These are slim enough in any case. He has practically no maritime supporters in the House to advise him, and the few he has are at sixes and sevens on the fiscal question. The same is the fact with respect to the Tory representatives from Ontario and Quebec. It is taxing the combined ingenuity of the party wire-pullers to keep their discordent faction together upon less important questions, and the difficulty is naturally far greater with respect to this. An enforced union of uncongenial spirits is never pleasant to any member of it, and although the obvious necessity of combining in the face of the general elections upon some general policy may have forced hostile elements into a temporary alliance, it cannot prevent those whose mouths are thus shut from feeling restive under the bond.

Sir John's motion is dishonest because while the resolution demands protection to Canadian industries it is to the last degree indefinite, and commits neither him nor his party to anything. The boasted national policy, therefore, that we hear so much about is like the "baseless fabric of a vision." His speech on the resolution was equally vague and non-committal. In fact, after making a passing reference to the lumber, salt and furniture interests, the greater part of his speech was devoted to a discussion of the trade policy of Britain, which has very little to do with the questions affecting our trade. And even when he dealt with these industries referred to, he failed to make out his case, or indicate in the remotest degree how he would improve them. We all know that the lumber interest is depressed, but we also know that it is mainly on account of the greater depression in the States, and also on account of their high tariff. As for the furniture interest it is no worse off than when Sir John was in power, and when the tariff was lower than it is now.

We cannot but come to the conclusion that Sir John was trifling with the subject for the basest of political purposes. We do not think we err when we say that the motive which inspired the motion had more for its object the catching of votes than the good of the country. It is a policy which appeals to the selfishness of men, and if it be only successful in deluding a sufficient number to restore the Conservative party to power it will have accomplished all that the mover cares about. As a contemporary says:—"The only effect of the Conservative 'national policy'—even if carried to its extreme length—would be to diminish international trade; and if every dollar's worth of manufactured goods consumed in Canada were of home production it would only give employment to an additional 22,000 men. What home market would these 22,000 men give us for the $42,000,000 of breadstuffs we are annually shipping to a foreign market? Let the farmers answer?

Assignees' Liability for Costs.

The Insolvent Act for 1875, provides that the Assignee may, by leave of the Court, intervene and represent the insolvent in any suit pending by or against him in which the estate has any interest. Questions are sure to arise as to the liability of the assignee for costs in case of his so intervening, and being unsuccessful in the final determination in such suits; and any case bearing on the subject will be studied with interest.

From the Monetary Times it is learned that in a recent suit in the Count Court of York, the defendants, after verdict against them and before judgment, made an assignment in insolvency, whereupon their assignee applied for and obtained an order substituting himself as defendant. He then moved against the verdict, in which motion he was unsuccessful. The plaintiff then entered up judgment against the assignee for the full amount of the judgment and costs, and on the assignee's refusal to satisfy the judgment, executions against his goods and lands were issued thereon and placed in the hands of the Sheriff. The assignee then moved to set aside these executions, on the ground that he was a party to the suit only in his official capacity, and that the plaintiff could not hold him personally liable but must look to the estate like any other creditor. The matter was fully argued before His Honor Judge Mackenzie, who, after taking time to consider, decided that the judgment had been improperly entered, that the assignee was personally liable for the costs incurred subsequently to his having intervened, but for nothing further; and that as to the debt and the costs prior to that time the plaintiff would have to rank on the estate.

This appears to be the first case in which the question has arisen under the present Act, and the learned Judge remarked that there appeared to be no English cases directly in point.

ANOTHER VICTIM.—It seems almost incredible that the horrors of the Human Hair Manufactory should have only recently leaked out. Scarcely a day passes, but additional cases are reported, the latest being that of an apprentice named Trainor, who, it will be remembered by our readers, was before the Police Court several months since, at the instance of Hargraves & Jarvis, for leaving their employment without permission. She was an apprentice of the firm, and it was shown in evidence that her health was such as to prevent her from continuing at work. Counter medical testimony was procured, and the girl ordered by the court to return to work, which she did. She was so shamefully ill-treated after this that her father and mother, in order to free her from the bondage of the firm, resolved upon disposing of their furniture here and removing to Detroit, a resolve they put into execution some time ago.

FIRE IN LISTOWEL.—On Saturday morning a fire broke out in a building on Inkerman-street, owned and occupied by C. H. Robinson as a stable. The building was entirely consumed. The fire engine prevented the flames from spreading to other buildings close by. Loss on stable about $400, insured in the Waterloo Mutual for $100. Cause of fire unknown.

COMPLAINT FROM INDIANS.—A deputation of three Indian chiefs, representing the Onondaga, Cayuga, and Seneca tribes of the Six Nation Indians, resident on the Tuscarora Indian reserve, near Brantford, waited upon the Hon. David Mills, Minister of the Interior, on Saturday. They presented a petition signed by thirteen chiefs and 253 Indians for the redress of certain abuses in connection with the management of the agency where they are located. They ask for the removal of Mr. Gilkinson, the agent, against whom they lay very serious charges for stopping their allowances, and in some instances maltreating their people. Mr. Mills has promised to look into the matter.

A BIGAMIST.—Dr. Charles Ream alias Dr. Charles H. Roamer, alias Dr. Arnold, has been arrested on a charge of bigamy, in Philadelphia. It is stated that he has been married six times, and that five of his wives are still living. His second wife belonged to Berlin; her name was Mrs. Mary Brauer, a widow lady encumbered with four children. The marriage ceremony was performed by a Justice of the Peace in Buffalo, but they were afterwards married again by a Catholic priest in Rochester, to make the hymenial knot more secure. The Dr. was afterwards married four times, and in all instances got a considerable amount of wealth before taking "French leave." The Dr. is now awaiting a requisition from the Governor of Minnesota to take him back to the scene of his latest exploits.

THE NEW LIQUOR BILL.—A public meeting of the friends of temperance and prohibition was held in Shaftesbury Hall, Toronto, on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Dominion Alliance. On the platform were Mr. W. H. Howland, in the chair, Vice-Chancellor Blake, Revs. Messrs. Reid, Robb, Dewart, Potts, Gales, and Messrs. Coatsworth, D. Miller, and Mr. Knowlton. Several resolutions were adopted, in one of which the gratification of the meeting was expressed in favor of the new Liquor Bill introduced last week by the Government, Mr. Knowlton, in the course of his speech, referred to the anti-slavery agitation by Mr. Wilberforce, saying that the ultimate triumph of that movement was facilitated by the acceptance at first of a half measure. So with the proposed Bill; they should accept and assist in enforcing it. He believed that the promised legislation was all that could be expected at the present time, and as much as public opinion would warrant. Indeed it was more than public opinion would warrant in some of the other Provinces and in many parts of this Province.

LAKE NAVIGATION.—The following clippings from the Buffalo Express, will give a tolerable idea of the present condition of the Lakes:—"The lakes, we understand, are all the way to Chicago, entirely free from ice, and ripple upon the sand beaches as pleasantly as if the sun were three months further northward. The straits are unobstructed, the harbors are all open, and in fact, navigation, if anybody wants to navigate, is as open as it was last August. Then, ask some of our readers who remember the eager scramble to be first out in other, but generally longer seasons, why are not the vessels and steamboats coming and going into and from our ports? One and a very sufficient reason is that the underwriters will take no risks before the 1st of April, so loads are not to be had even if the vessel owners were willing to chance the safety of their uninsured crafts. Also there is very little grain at the upper lake ports awaiting shipment, for the winter in the west has been an unusually open one, with the roads nearly all the time so bad that farmers have been quite unable to get their produce to the shipping points."

Probably not less than a half dozen exploring expeditions will be dispatched to the Arctic ocean during the present year. Some of them, especially those designed for the northern shores of Asia, may have commercial enterprises chiefly in view; but whatever the main object, they all promise an extension of scientific research in the frozen zone.

IMPORTANT TO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES.—A Division Court case was tried in Milton lately that is of considerable importance. Mr. Boak sued the Trafagar Agricultural Society for $29, the amount of prizes awarded him for cattle, &c., at the Society's fair. The Society declared the prizes forfeited, on the ground that Mr. Boak had driven his cattle off the fair ground, and had slandered the judges, contrary to their rules. Mr. John Dewar appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. C. C. Robinson for the defendant. The following is the decision of the Judge:—"In this case I make my judgment in the nature of an award, rather than a judgment, for the reason that I am of opinion that the Association had power to make rules for its own guidance, and that the members and exhibitors were bound by such rules, and the rules sufficiently appear in the exhibition bill for 1877, and by the evidence produced on the trial. I do not think the plaintiff forfeits his prizes for interfering with his cattle, but on the other charge of slandering the judges, I think the directors had sufficient evidence before them to justify them in endeavoring to uphold their rules, by withholding the prizes awarded to the plaintiff. I adjudge to the plaintiff $29 without costs, to be paid within fifteen days."—Champion.

Preparations for farming operations in Manitoba are being made; and it is stated that seeding will be commenced next week. So says the Winnipeg Free Press.

The grain exports of Kincardine for last year were 213,740 bushels, one-half more than in 1876. Of pork $325,000 as against $371,000 in the previous year.

A gentleman from St. Louis is now in Toronto, with the object of purchasing for a brewing firm in Missouri, three hundred tons of ice, which appears to be as short a crop in the West as it has been hereabout. He has been offered lake ice at a dollar per ton, and the rail freight will cost $48 per car, or say $60 delivered on the Missouri River, equivalent to about a third of a cent per pound.

A return shews the value of articles exported from Canada to Australia, between July 1st, 1874, and December 31st, 1877, to have been $422,891.

The editor of an American paper recently insisted that poets must be brief. The very next day he received a composition entitled, "The Ballad of the Merchant;" consisting of the following sententious stanza: "Trust—Bust!"

Many mothers are either compelled to stay away from church and theatre, or take their babies with them. A poor woman took her little one in her arms to hear a famous preacher. The loud voice from the platform awoke the child and made it cry, and its mother got up and was leaving the hall when the minister stopped her by saying: "My good woman, don't go away. The baby dosen't disturb me." "It isn't for that, sir, I leave," she replied with a perfect unconsciousness of sarcasm: "It's you disturb the baby."

Six thousand people have been attacked with measles at Lyons, France.

Navigation has opened at Buffalo, at Bath, Me., and several other points.

Some three thousand members of the Montreal Irish Catholic Union marched in procession through the streets on Sunday. No disturbance whatever took place.

Six of the most desperate prisoners escaped from the Halifax Penitentiary on Sunday afternoon, after badly beating the keeper, and have not yet been re-captured.

The Evil Effects of Alcohol.

At a meeting of the National Temperance Society, in New York, on Wednesday, Dr. Millard Parker spoke on "The Hereditary Influence of Alcohol." He said that the truth of the saying that "drunkards beget drunkards," was recognized as far back as the times of Plato and Aristotle. The tendency of children to inherit not only the physical traits, but also the mental and moral qualities of their parents, had been clearly demonstrated. Physicians had discovered that diseases of the body were transmitted from father to son through many generations. Alcohol was an irritant—as much so as a grain of sand forced into the eye—and the so-called stimulating effects were only the efforts of nature to throw off the offending substance. Alcohol disarranged the nervous system and weakened the reasoning powers. Man acted either from reason or from impulse. When reason was dethroned by alcohol, man was left a prey to impulse, and was, for the time, insane. When a man, under the influence of alcohol, beat his wife and children, or killed a brother, he acted not from reason, but from impulse.

The temporary loss of reason from drinking alcohol, Dr. Parker said, was not the only effect. The brain lost its tone, and the entire system of the man became tainted. He transmitted the taint to his children. The child of a drunkard would suffer, even if he should remain temperate, many of the physical diseases which resulted from the use of alcohol, and would transmit these diseases to his children. Sometimes this taint took the form of an incurable restlessness. Fifty per cent of the idiots were children or grandchildren of drunkards. In that city the effects of drunkenness were to be seen on every hand. Within ten years the number of hospitals, insane asylums and infirmaries had increased greatly in proportion to the number of inhabitants. The lower portions of the city were inhabited mainly by the descendants of those persons who use alcoholic beverages freely. The better class of citizens had been driven further and further up town or across the East River, and there was a constant advance of the grog-shop keepers and their customers into the fairest portions of the island. About $40,000,000 was spent each year for intoxicating liquors in that city, and during the past ten years the valuation of the property in the city had decreased about $100,000,000. It became a time for intelligent citizens to consider whether some efforts should be made to stop the advance of the rum traffic, or whether the city should be given over entirely to drunkards and their descendants.

At the close of his address, Dr. Parker was asked by a gentleman in the audience if he considered the use of light wine dangerous to health. He replied that he believed indulgence in any beverage that contained alcohol to be dangerous to health. He said, however, that if he r, and light wines were the only beverage in use, the evils now felt so sorely would be greatly lessened.

Mr. Dodge said that careful estimates showed that over $600 000,000 was expended annually in the United States for intoxicating liquors.

MANHOOD:
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author in this admirable Essay clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured, without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Austria and Germany Satisfied with the Russian Concessions.

The London "Times" on the Situation.

LONDON, March 17.

A Vienna despatch says:—A preliminary Conference of Ambassadors is being planned at Berlin to settle the question of procedure at the Congress.

A Paris correspondent says:—The proposal for a preliminary Conference is regarded as a last effort at resistance by Russia. The meeting of the Congress may be counted upon in consequence of the representations of Bismarck.

A Vienna special says:—Bismarck and Andrassy consider that Russia has yielded enough in offering to submit to the Congress the clauses it may designate.

Steps are now being taken for a progressive return of the Russian army from Turkey. The guards will start first, and halt some time at Kieff.

News from Epirus confirms the reported complete suppression of the insurrection in the district of Chimara. The entire expeditionary force is killed or dispersed. Turkish irregulars continue rapine, murder, and devastation. Sixteen villages are burned or pillaged, and the inhabitants have fled or perished.

The London Times says:—On Monday the Russians not only occupied several villages around Constantinople, but took possession of a point on the edge of the most northerly plateau running down towards the entrance of the Bosphorus. The Russians have power to march in at any moment and close the entrance of the Black Sea. Such a movement does not seem calculated to dispel the apprehensions that, though there may be no secret treaty, a tacit understanding has been established with Turkey, which may involve arrangements most material to the decision of the other Powers. It would be difficult for Russia to adopt a course less likely to conciliate the good-will of Europe or this country. Our correspondent at St. Petersburg reports that persons of considerable influence say that the Congress is not likely to be successful, if it assembles. England and Austria are accused of jealousy towards Russia, and being desirous of diminishing the consequence of the war. It is stated that Russia's conditions are already signed, and are the minimum of what she has a right and determination to demand. If England demands the extension of Greece, Turkey will then recognize Russia as her surest alley.

There is less excitement at the Government works at Woolwich than there was some weeks ago, but still there is no abatement of energy and no diminution of work. Nearly all hands work until eight, nine, or ten o'clock at night instead of till five, the usual closing hour.

A London despatch says:—News from the East causes great commotion here, and has affected the markets. Consols are depreciated and breadstuffs advanced. Some newspapers consider the situation very alarming, and assert that the Congress will not be held. The peaceful settlement of differences between England and Russia is very improbable.

England has obtained permission from the Porte to disembark some troops on the island of Tenedos, and send four more ironclads to the Sea of Marmora.

A Pesth despatch states that Prince Bismarck has notified the Austrian Government that Russia in consequence of his intervention has consented to submit all the peace conditions without exception to the Congress for discussion should the Congress make a demand to that effect.

Typhus rages at Adrianople and Philippopolis. There is much sickness at Erzeroum and Constantinople.

A Constantinople telegram says:—Strong detachments patrol the streets day and night on account of the great excitement which prevails over the posting of seditious placards. The Turkish garrisons of Shumla and Varna, numbering 58,000, besides 26,000 Egytian troops, are expected here.

A St. Petersburg despatch says:—Ratifications of the treaty of peace were exchanged to day. The conditions will be published as soon as they are communicated to the Powers.

A Vienna despatch says:—It is said that serious negotiations are proceeding between Sir Henry Elliott and Count Andrassy for an alliance between England and Austria. If the negotiations succeed Andrassy's position will be strengthened. If they fail a Ministerial crisis will ensue, and Andrassy may possibly resign.

The Sault Ste. Marie canal will be opened on the 1st of April.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage wich may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. B. SAVAGE

A Tale of Woe.

Ever since the frightful death of Abel McDonald and the arrest and conviction of the Youngs, the Barber family of Caledonia, have been shunned, despised, and almost persecuted by those who were acquainted with their history and their connection with the terrible affair. The father of the family could not get work, the sons were discharged from any employment in which they were engaged—the world literally cut loose from them, and they were sent adrift upon a black, unfeeling sea of hunger, remorse, and helplessness. No one spoke to them, no one reached out a helping hand, no kind tongue spoke an encouraging word, no sparkling eye more eloquently than words spoke a word of delight and humanizing hope. The world was dead to them, and they, to all intents and purposes, were dead to the world. The days went by, and the family literally starved by inches. They had not enough to cover their nakedness and hid themselves from the public and the public soon forget them. It was whispered about that Sarah Ann Barber, the youngest of the sisters, was soon to become a mother, but the world turned in derision from her, for the child would be born outside the marriage state, and its father was a murderer. The child was born, but never lived to open its eyes upon a world that would have looked upon its innocent face with contempt, not unmingled, we may dare to say with pity. The mother never recovered, and, unknown to the neighbors, the broken-hearted, deserted and childless mother began an unseen and unfitted journey to an early grave. Consumption ate like a canker worm into her bosom, her hands and eyes became dry and hot, her cheeks sunken, and the woman who had led such a strange life began to die. People seemed to feel by instinct the presence of the grim monster Death, and he was found out and traced to the house wherein the Barber family lived. A young and philanthropic lady in the village visited the house and was horrified by what she saw. The dying girl was lying on a bed which could boast of neither sheet nor tick, and was merely a bundle of rags laid roughly upon sharp ropes, which sustained the light, shrunken and helpless girl from the floor. The poor creature had no night clothes or any comfort becoming a woman whatever. When Miss Delaney asked for some soap and a towel with which to wash the poor girl, she was told that there were none in the house. It was not long that Susan Ann Barber lay upon a bundle of rags in filth and misery. The story was told outside, and every sympathetic heart in the village was touched. They did not enquire who she was, they did not enquire into her past history, they did not pry into the secrets locked in a bosom the palpitations in which would soon cease forever; they only knew that she was a woman and that she was on her death-bed. The poor girl was made as comfortable as possible. An easy bed was made for her, and dainties sent her of every kind; beef tea, canned fruits, and little knick-knacks of many kinds. Three times a day Miss Delaney, Miss Garland or some other kind lady combed her long and abundant hair, which was the chief ornament of her person, and bathed her hot, thin, poor face with water. In the evenings some good man would pray by her bedside, or read a hopeful chapter from the Bible. We are told on good authority that the night before the young woman died a resident of the village prayed by the death bed. When he was gone, Barber, the father of the family, thrashed his wife in a jealous mood. During her sickness Susan Ann Barber never murmured a complaint, and it was only when her mind wandered, or when she thought she was altogether alone, did she whisper the name of him who had done her so great a wrong. She often asked for her baby, and sitting up in her bed, reached out her hands for it; it had been buried months before. A few hours afterwards Susan Ann Barber was dead.

Her body was buried at the expense of the Corporation, which provided a decent coffin and a hearse. The funeral was attended by some of the leading people of the village who turned out in respect to a dead woman who was only mortal like themselves.

The Barber family are still very destitute. Our reporter interviewed the old man Barber last evening. He is a little thin, wiry man, talked quite philosophically of the affair. He said he had had a very narrow escape from starvation.—Hamilton Times.

A gentleman made a present of a broom a bride with these words attached: "Accept my dear this token from a friend! In sunshine use the brushy part, in storms the other end."

It is proposed to have an asylum for the treatment of inebriates in connection with the Toronto General Hospital. A circular has just been addressed by the directors to the principal clergymen throughout the Province calling on them to assist in the proposed movement by bringing under the notice of the directors any cases in their respective parishes which would be likely to call for treatment in the institution.

The Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 19, 1878

Local News Items.

FARM SOLD.—On Monday Geo. McCullough sold his farm in Paisley Block (known as the Joseph Jackson Farm), to George Quarrie, for $5,700.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday a young lad named James Pipe, had a hand bruised in the gearing of his father's mill. It was dressed at Herod & Co's drug store.

A MEMBER of the Council for the East Ward, dubbed McConkey, the Temperance lecturer, at last meeting of the Council, a Temperance liar. This was done in referring to the slander uttered by McConkey in referring to the Council.

SETTLE right down to business appears to be the motto of the Council for 1878. So far no special meeting has been held this year, and last evening was the only occasion on which the time rule had to be suspended to finish up the work of the evening.

RICH BEGGAR.—Nassagaweya can boast of having a woman who has made a snug fortune by begging. During the last twenty years she has roamed over the township and had always been kindly greeted by the good hearted farmers. Many will be surprised to learn that she made an offer to buy a farm recently, promising to pay $2,000 of the $3,000 in cash.

REGISTRATION.—Mr. John Harvey, register of births, marriages and deaths for the town of Guelph, intimates that he has been forced to take steps against clergymen who conduct the burial services at the grave, and fail to report to him according to law. Fair warning is given, and if not heeded action will at once be taken in the courts. The penalty fixed to be imposed for the non-observance of the statute is a fine of $20.

ROSSA.—A rumour is abroad that dynamite O'Donovan Rossa is likely to lecture in Guelph. Nothing could be further from the truth. From conversation with prominent members of the Irish societies here it is learned that they all repudiate countenancing the action of any such Fenian fiend. Rossa will only lecture where he is guaranteed a good thing, and as he would not consider being treated with silent contempt a very profitable undertaking, there is no probability of his making a call at this town.

ANOTHER GONE.—Early on Monday morning Mr. Jas. Kidd, aged seventy-nine years, died at his residence, lot 14, 7th concession, Puslinch. The deceased settled in that township in the year 1829, on the same lot on which he died. He was among the earliest settlers, and was one who carved his home out of the dreary wilderness. He was widely known and highly respected. One by one the old landmarks are thus disappearing, leaving behind them a good name, and kindly remembered by all who knew them. Mr. Kidd was twice married, and leaves a wife and large family.

BASE BALL.—The following named clubs have entered for the championship of the International Base Ball Association, the entries to which closed on Friday:—Tecumseh, of London, Ont., Buffalo, Rochester, Star, of Syracuse, Utica, Hornells, of Hornellsville, Crickets of Binghamton, Lowell, Manchester, New Bedford, and Springfield of Springfield. It is said that the Tecumseh players will report for duty on 1st of April next, owing to the openness of the season, and the first regular championship game will take place about the first of May, with the Buffalo club. Two or three improvements will be made on the grounds, and extra stands erected. The papers for the incorporation of the Club are being made out.

ARTHUR JUNCTION RAILWAY.—The provisional board of directors met at Arthur Village on Friday afternoon. Mr. F. J. Chadwick, one of the directors, has reported on the matter to the Council, at its Monday evening session. Messrs. Chadwick and Graham supported a motion to employ Mr. Wheelock, P.L.S, to run a trial line from Alma to Arthur, on the ground that being nearer Guelph than Hamilton, it was a better point than Goldstone, and that even if the line to Alma did cost a little more it was the most desirable route. Mr. Whale opposed it on the ground that if the line ran from Goldstone it would be easier to secure a bonus from Peel, and that by choosing that route the road could be run down a blind line, and the right of way be secured cheaply. From the discussion it was evident the directors thought the route from Fergus to Arthur would be the best one, the only obstacle being the great coast.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The members of the Beaver Temple, I. O. G. T., gave an entertainment in their lodge rooms, over the Bank of Commerce, on Monday evening. After an excellent tea had been served to some two hundred, Mr. John Allen was called to the chair, and a very excellent programme, consisting of some twenty pieces, was gone through with. Miss Roper and Messrs. Roper and Mitchell gave some choice selections on the organ, violin, and bass viol; songs were rendered by Messrs. Symons, Roper, Martin and Knowles; recitations by Messrs. Easel, Mitchell and Miss Penfold; and excellent readings by Miss Grinlinton and Geo. Patterson. The entertainment was not so well attended by the County lodges as it would have been, owing to the fearful state of the roads. A large number of provisions were left over on that account, which will be disposed of this evening at a ten cent entertainment, at which a good programme will be given. Tea served served at half-past six.

ELORA.—Mr. Kerr recently had a barrel of sugar cured hams stolen from his cellar. ——Knox Church Young People's Association gave an entertainment in the drill shed on the 8th instant, when $35 was realized.

LATEST FROM THE EAST.

Conference Probably to Meet this Month.

LONDON, March 19.

A despatch from Athens says the Thessalians have been defeated at Valo.

A despatch from Vienna says the Servian army, under Leskovatz, has created demonstrations against the terms of Peace.

Hon. Robert Bourne, under Secretary, Foreign Department, announced in Parliament to-day that if Russia agreed to the conditions demanded by England respecting the Conference, it would probably meet about the latter part of the present month

Fighting Between Turks and Greeks.

LONDON, March 19.—An Athens despatch reports incessant fighting between Turks and Greeks at Agia and Olympur. The Turks burnt Krania and Popsoni.

$16,993.12 is the deficiency the Council of 1878 has to provide for.

A POLITICAL meeting will be held at the Centre Inn this evening.

MR. INSPECTOR ROMAIN is now on a tour of inspection through the western portion of the Province.

MR. MELVIN has been elected chairman of the Market Committee in place of Mr. Gauhan, resigned.

TENDERS are being asked for the rebuilding of the Worswick Engine Company's Works. The work will be rushed on rapidly.

MR. P. MANNEY accidentally secured a little molten iron for the inside of his boot, while working at Crowe's foundry last week. It will be some time before he is around again.

RETURN TICKETS for one fare can be purchased for Hamilton on the Great Western Railway on Wednesday of this week, good to return on that or any of the three following days.

SALE OF SHORTHORN BULL.—Mr. F. W. Stone has sold to Messrs. Grant & Campbell, Woodville, Ont., the fashionably bred Shorthorn bull "3rd Seraph," of the Seraphina tribe, red, calved 2nd March, 1876, sire 3rd Duke of Springwood 16928 [3087], dam, Serenade, imported, by Cherry Duke (25752)

KNOX COLLEGE.—At the final meeting of Knox College Metaphysical and Literary Society. F. R. Beatty, M.A., of Puslinch, was awarded first prize for public speaking, John Johnston, formerly of Paisley Block, second, and A. Leslie, M.A., Elora, third.

CHECKERS.—A challenge to draw sides for a game of checkers has been made by Mr. Naismith to Mr. Duncan McKenzie. The match will take place this evening at the Checker Club rooms in the American Hotel. All members requested to be on hand at eight o'clock sharp. Visitors invited.

THE FIRST ENLIVENMENT.—Since January when the Council of 1878 was elected the meetings held have been of the most harmonious character, and the work of the several committees appeared to have been so carefully attended to that the reports hardly elicited discussion before they were adopted by the Council. On Monday evening the first ripple in the municipal year took place, and although Messrs. Robert Mitchell and Roche endeavored to make a point out of the action of the Mayor, in regard to the action he took in having a chairman of the Market Committee appointed, vice Mr. Gauhan, so satisfactory were the explanations of the Mayor, that the amendment against the adoption of Mr. Melvin's report was withdrawn. The facts of the case are these: Mr. Gauhan who was member of the South Ward and chairman of the Market and Drill Shed Committee, resigned his seat. Between the time of the election and the meeting of the Council following, the Mayor called the Committee together for the purpose of electing a chairman and for the transaction of business that should be at once attended to. Mr. Robt. Mitchell, a member of the committee, chose to take part in the temperance meeting of Mr. McConkey rather than attend the meeting of the Committee. At the meeting Mr. Melvin was elected chairman, and because of this Mr. Mitchell endeavored to upset the action of the quorum present at the meeting, and moved that the report be not received. Mr, Roche considered that the South Ward had been dealt with unfairly inasmuch as Mr. MacMillan should have taken the place of Mr. Gauhan. The new member of the South Ward could not act on that committee, nor on any other until appointed by resolution of the Council. This shows how foolish it is for any person to state that any portion of the town had been subjected to unfair treatment. Those who are at all acquainted with municipal affairs and the appointment of Committees will know full well that the action of the Mayor was just what was required at his hands, and that it was done in the interests of the ratepayers.

BRANTFORD wants the Guelph checker club to challenge them to play a game.

BEAVER LODGE.—Owing to the very liberal supply of provisions provided by the ladies for their social last evening a very large quantity remained untouched. It has been decided to hold another social this (Tuesday) evening when a good tea will be provided for all, after which a splendid entertainment will be given, consisting of music, singing, recitations, &c. Tickets—including tea—only ten cents. The public are cordially invited. Advt.

WEATHER PROBS. are moderate to fresh south-easterly to south-westerly winds, and clearing weather.

Madame Demorest's spring fashions just received at Marhall's.

Town Council.

Important Financial Statement—A Deficit of $16,993.12.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From MacMillan & O'Connor, for Hugh Kelly, in regard to the claim of damages for a horse injured. A suit was threatened unless claim was paid at once.

From Edward Mayhew, asking to be employed in removing night soil, stipulating prices.

From S. Hodgskin, in regard to the building of boulevards, and asking sanction of Council for the improvement of road in front of his premises in such a manner.

Accounts were presented from T. J. Day, $14.06; Denis Bunyan, for three and a half days' work, $3.50; Joseph Hacking, $10.50.

The Clerk reported that Mr. MacMillan had been elected for the South Ward, vice Mr. Gauhan resigned.

The Mayor reported that a meeting of the Market Committee had been called by him, and that a chairman had been elected in place of Mr. Gauhan.

By Dr. McGuire, from Martin Tobin and seventeen others, asking for improvements on McTague street.

By Mr. Gowdy, from J. D. Williamson and twenty others, asking for improvements on Kirkland street.

By the same from MacMillan & O'Connor, on behalf of the Directors of St. Joseph Hospital and others, in reference to the widening of Hospital street.

By Mr. Chase, from Robert Parker and thirty others, asking for a lamp on Arthur street, near George street.

By Mr. Richard Mitchell, from J. C. McLagan, asking the Council to have the retaining wall on Paisley street completed in such a manner as to prevent land slides and damage to his property, stating that the work would cost $100, which he would perform providing the Council would pay half the amount.

Referred to proper Committees.

In regard to the claim of Hugh Kelly, Mr. Elliott stated that the Finance Committee had recommended that the sum claimed, $40, be paid as soon as evidence was submitted to the Committee in regard to the manner in which the horse was injured.

Mr. Doran explained that he was aware that the horse had been so severely injured that Mr. Grange, Veterinary Surgeon, had ordered the animal to be killed.

Mr. Robert. Mitchell stated that no evidence had been submitted to the Committee in regard to the manner in which the animal was injured, and in consequence could not recommend payment of a sum they did not know the town should justly pay.

ARTHUR JUNCTION RAILWAY.

A report was received from F. J. Chadwick, provisional director of the Arthur Junction Railway, as follows:

That he had attended the first meeting of the provisional directors held at Arthur on Friday last, when Mr. Draper was elected chairman and Mr. O'Callaghan Secretary. Mr. Chadwick was of opinion that the road should be run from Arthur to Alma, but the Committee appointed in Arthur village to work the matter up seemed determined that Goldstone should be the diverging point. He moved that a survey with the object he had in view should be made, but feeling that they were more interested than he was he yielded to their opinion. He awaited instructions from the Council.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Mr. Elliott, chairman, presented the following report:

Your Committee recommend that $20 be deducted from Thos. Scott Elliott's taxes, there being an error in his assessment. No abatement in income tax as appeal should have been made to the Court of Revision.

$57 was recommended to be paid to Geo. Pike for culvert on Wyndham street. According to report of Road and Bridge Committee of last year Thos. Ellis is responsible for the amount, and it was recommended that he be called upon for the same.

That the remaining $10,000 debentures be sold, and the proceeds constitute the appropriation for all expenditure on streets and bridges during 1878.

The Committee regret to find the large sum of $16,993 12 in the shape of a deficiency has been left by their predecessors in office, and from the estimates presented with this report it will be seen that without providing for this deficiency any assessment for roads or any improvement in the fire department, and only calculating on an ordinary current expenditure of the standing committees with the fixed liabilities, a sum of $57,997 is required to be raised by assessment, which based upon last year's assessment roll will require over two cents in the dollar.

As the amount of the above mentioned deficiency is entirely too large to be dealt with as a floating debt, the only course that appears practicable to your committee is to recommend that a By-law to raise a sufficient sum be submitted to the ratepayers for their approval.

They present a statement of the liabilities of 1877 to be met in 1878, and an estimate of the liabilities and assets of 1878, which show that to be met the liabilities of 1877 and the current liabilities of 1878 the sum of $14,990.12 will be required, equal to an assessment based on last year's roll of nearly twenty-six mills in the dollar.

The committee recommend that the Treasurer credit the account of the several committees with the amounts of liabilities of 1877 to enable the chairman to balance their accounts.

RELIEF REPORT.

Dr. McGuire presented a report recommending the payment of the following accounts:—St. Joseph's Hospital, board for Butler $10; G. B. Fraser $2, J. C. Allan $1, Mrs. Edward $3.05; that the petition of John McKellegher be granted. Adopted.

FIRE AND WATER.

Mr. Gowdy, for the Fire and Water Committee, reported, asking for a credit of $1,000 for current expenses. Adopted.

MARKET REPORT.

Mr. Melvin presented the market report, stating the gas account for quarter ending December 31, 1877, amounting to $238.80, had been paid on order of late chairman. It recommended that drawers or shelves be provided for committee papers. It asked for $500 for current expenses.

Moved by Messrs. Elliott and Sleeman that the report of the Finance Committee be adopted. Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Mitchell and Day that the report of the Road and Bridge Committee be adopted. Carried.

Messrs. Melvin and Bruce moved that the report of the Market House Committee be adopted.

In amendment Messrs. Robert Mitchell and Biscoe moved that the report be not adopted.

After some discussion the Council went into committee on the report, Mr. Doran in the chair.

Mr. Robert Mitchell explained that Mr. Melvin was not a regularly constituted chairman of the Committee. The meeting was held in the evening when it had been determined that all meetings should be held at three o'clock in the afternoon. The meeting was held when he was engaged at the other side of the building. There was an unfairness on account of the Committee being incomplete. Mr. MacMillan, the newly-elected member for the South Ward, should take the place of Mr. Gauhan, and he could not have acted just then, not being sworn in. It certainly had been an unusual procedure and he protested against the report being adopted.

Messrs. Biscoe and Roche thought similarly. The latter gentleman considered the South Ward had not been dealt justly with by the procedure.

Mayor Howard explained that it had been really a necessity to have a meeting of the Committee. A chairman had been elected in order that the work of the town in connection with the market might be attended to. Reference was made to Mr. Mitchell making objection, when that gentleman should have attended the meeting at which a chairman was elected. Instead of doing so, however, that gentleman had chosen to attend a meeting in another part of the hall, conducted by a person who had gone out of his way to slander the entire Council.

Mr. Melvin explained that he really had no desire to act as chairman of any committee, but held that the meeting had been regular in every respect.

Mr. Bruce supported the motion for adoption of the report. He advised some members, who had found fault with the Committee, to study the rules of the Council and thereby not exhibit ignorance in dealing with subjects.

Mr Elliott thought it strange that such an objection should be raised. Mr. MacMillan was no more a member of the Market Committee at the present time than he was any other committee. It was usual for a newly-elected member to be made a member of the committees of which his predecessor had been, but that required a resolution of the Council. If a chairman was lost by a resignation a new election in all cases had to be made. This was done in the case under consideration.

Messrs. Biscoe and Mitchell proposed withdrawing the amendment and Mr. Melvin to sign himself chairman pro tem.

Mr. Sleeman failed to see what good would be accomplished by such an action.

Mr. Chubb considered that Mr. Robert Mitchell was trying to make a little capital of the matter. If Mr. Mitchell had the interests of the town at heart, he would have attended the committee meeting, and kept away from a meeting held by a temperance liar.

The amendment was finally withdrawn and the report was adopted.

Council resumed and adopted the report.

The Council went into Committee on the By-law for revising rulers of Council, Mr. Day in the chair.

The remaining clauses were adopted with some amendments.

Time rule was suspended for half an hour.

On the Council resuming it moved the By-law be now passed.

Moved by Messrs. Sleeman and Roche that the By law be laid over till next meeting of the Council.

Amendment lost.

It was moved by Messrs Robert Mitchell and Biscoe that the report be not now adopted, but be left over until printed proof sheets be struck off and each member be furnished with a copy.

Amendment lost and the motion was carried.

By-law read a third time and passed, and two hundred copies were ordered to be printed.

Mr. Day, chairman of the Police Committee asked why the By-law in regard to the removal of signs was not carried out.

Mr. Chase explained that he was to blame for not removing Mr. Hogg's sign. He had received orders to take it down over a week ago, but had been unable so far to accomplish the job.

Council adjourned.

Rev. Mr. Harris' Letters.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—In fairness to the truth allow me a brief space for a few remarks on the above. The former I will not much further notice than to record my astonishment at the ebullition of venom and malice exhibited, especially coming, as it does, from a professed follower of Jesus Christ.

Mr. H. apparently thought to make a point against Mr. Snitzenich by styling him "annihilationist." Why not call things by their right names? Mr. S. is a "Christadelphian," that is, as the name implies, a brother of Christ, and identifies his faith with Deity's prophets and apostles, so that if he be an annihilationist (a term he repudiates) then are they also annihilationists.

It would furthermore seem to be a crime in the eyes of Mr. H. to be an "itinerant luminary," but that surely condemns others also, for instance Gough, Beecher, Talmage, and the great John Wesley himself will be by no means guiltless. The offence too of coming from "the other side" is a little strange to harmonize with the prayers and strivings after brotherly love from shore to shore, and that the race universal may be as one happy and vast family.

With a further view to belittle and prejudice, Mr. H. says the effect of the lecture on Thursday produced "moving" and "that many left before the close;" this is simply untrue. As stated truly in the adjoining columns of the MERCURY, "the building was comfortably filled with a respectable and attentive audience," which ill agrees with the assertion of Mr. H., and I have it from witnesses, to say nothing of my own observation, that Mr. H's. "many" did not exceed eight persons.

With your kind permission I will to-morrow deal with the second letter and its mis-statements which, if possible, bearing on doctrinal matters, are more serious than those alluded to.

Yours truly,
A CHRISTADELPHIAN.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Britain not yet Agreed to the Terms.

Matters Much in the Same Way.

LONDON, March 18.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Sir Stafford Northcote announced that existing circumstances justified the Government in keeping the British fleet at Constantinople. He said it was not true that Russia refused to admit Greece to the Conference.

The Morning Post congratulates the country on the unanimity of the Ministry in the present critical position.

Vienna advices state that England has refused to take part even in the preliminary conference of ambassadors until Russia gives a formal engagement that all clauses of the treaty will be submitted to the Congress. Prince Gortschakoff merely reiterated his promise that the full treaty will be communicated to the Powers.

A Pera correspondent says England has strongly protested at St. Petersburg against a Russian advance towards the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus.

A Vienna despatch says the misunderstanding between Russia and England makes no progress towards a satisfactory settlement.

The Times says the latest phase of the differences between Russia and England seems to be that Russia, while admitting the right of the Congress to discuss all the points of the treaty, declines to be ultimately bound by of the majority of the Powers.

In the House of Commons to-day Sir Stafford Northcote confirmed the report that Russia had not refused to admit Greece to the Congress, but merely raised the question as to the footing on which the Greek representative should be admitted.

A Paris correspondent states that the proposal to convene a preliminary Conference to settle the programme that the Congress has been generally coldly received as unnecessary.

A well informed St. Petersburg correspondent of the North German Gazette of Berlin states that Russia will not allow interference with the points concerning the war indemnity, Armenia, or Bessarabia.

A Vienna despatch says:—At the sitting of the Hungarian delegation to-day almost all the speakers declared that they would vote in favour of the credit, but hoped for a peaceful solution.

The Berlin National Zeitung says the Austrian Government has been positively informed that the Russians are concentrating on the Austrian frontier.

A Constantinople special says:—It is reported that important despatches from England were communicated to the Sultan on Saturday. A Council was held which decided that Turkey should remain neutral in the event of a difference between England and Russia.

Knox College Student's Missionary Society.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—Would you allow me in behalf of the Student's Missionary Society of Knox College to acknowledge, through your columns, the receipt of sixty dollars and fifty cents received through Mrs. Wilkie and Mrs. Stewart, from friends in Guelph, and also to make a short statement of the purpose to which the funds of the Society are applied.

Scattered over the newer parts of our provinces are a number of small settlements, composed mostly of men possessing but little means who, in order to secure for themselves a home, are prepared to endure the hardships of a pioneer's life. To such years of toil, often of poverty, must pass before the well earned reward can be realized from the farm. During these years unless helped from without, save the Bible carried with them from their former homes, the settler can enjoy none of the means of grace. Meanwhile the young people grow up too often hearing little of their need of a Saviour and of Him who is mighty to save, and are lost to the church. Whence is help for these to come? The Home Mission Committee of our church, for want of funds, is unable to do anything for stations that cannot promise to bear part of the expense. To accomplish at least part of this work is the object of the Knox College Student's Missionary Society, and when in any field this work is accomplished, when the stations become able to support their own missionary, the Society gives them over to the care of the Presbytery in whose bounds they may happen to be situated. Last summer the Society had three missionaries in the Muskoka and Parry Sound Districts, one of them being as far north as Lake Nipissing a settlement which, for more than ten years was almost totally neglected by the missionaries of the various churches; two on Manitoulin Island, one at Waubaushene, one in Hastings and one at Coboconk. While feeling thankful for what the Society has been enabled to do in the past it is with regret that from year to year we are compelled to give an unfavorable answer to destitute fields that come to us urging the Macedonian's petition "Come over and help us." Hence we turn to the older and richer parts of the country for the means to carry on and extend the work. Thanking Mrs. Wilkie, Mrs. Stewart, and the friends in Guelph for their generous contribution to the funds of the Society. I am &c.

JAS. FARQUHARSON, Treasurer.
Knox College, March 16th, 1878.

ENORMOUS.—No other word can describe the quantity of new importations of dry goods, delivered at the Lion yesterday and to day. Passers by would imagine themselves at one of the largest wholesale houses of the country. Load after load was delivered until the sidewalk was crowded with goods. Messrs Williamson & Co., have faith in being able to do a large spring trade. They say only give the goods cheap enough and there is no trouble in disposing of them. No better rule can be adopted to build up and sustain a big business.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

THE Puslinch Farmers' Club has accepted Mr. J. E. McElderry's tender for supplying them with clover, timothy, and turnip seed for the coming season. Mr. McElderry supplied the same gentlemen last year, which proves that the seeds gave good satisfaction.

The Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVN'G, MARCH. 19. 1878

John Stuart Mill on Protection.

In the present discussion on the question of Free Trade and Protection it may be of some value to learn the opinion of a man so profoundly versed in politicel economy as John Stuart Mill, who thus speaks so emphatically on the subject:—"I hold every form of what is called Protection to be the employment of the powers of government to tax the many, with a view of promoting the pecuniary gains of a few. I say the intention, because even the desired object is very often not obtained, and never to the extent that is expected; but whatever gain there is, is made by the few, and them alone, for the laboring people employed in the protected branches of industry are not benefited. Wages do not range higher in the protected than in other employments; they depend upon the general rate of the renumeration of labor in the country, and if the demand for particular kinds of labor is artifically increased, the consequence is merely that labor is attracted from other occupations, so that employment is given in the protected trades to a great number, but not at a higher remuneration. The gain by Protection when there is a gain, is for the employers alone. Such legislation was worthy of Great Britain, under her unreformed Constitution, when the powers of legislation were in the hands of a limited class of great land owners and wealthy manufacturers; but in a Democratic country like the United States it is a signal instance of dupery, and I have a higher opinion of the intelligence of the American people than to believe that a handful of manufacturers will be able to retain by fallacy and sophistry that power of levying a toll on every other person's earnings which the powerful aristocracy of England, with all their political ascendancy and social prestige, have not been able to keep possession of."

Our Town Finances.

As will be seen from the report of the Finance Committee, laid before the Conneil last night, the Town had a floating debt on the first of January last of $16,993.12, or in round numbers $17,000. On the 1st of January, 1877, our floating debt was only $8,708,47, so that we may say the Council of last year doubled our floating debt, besides squandering about $23,000 of the amount designed to be raised by debentures for improvements on our roads, which, in almost every case, have turned out to be perfectly worthless, and which it would have been better had they never been undertaken. We ask what is the condition to-day of the Eramosa Road, of Paisley street, of Wyndham street, and other streets that we could name? They are simply disgraceful. In some cases they are impassable, and in regard to every one of them there is not one whit improvement on their former condition. Last year's Council has landed us in a terrible mess. They have saddled the present Council with $17,000 of a floating debt, and they spent more than three-fourths of our $30,000 debenture road improvement by-law in work that is in the main useless, and will have to be gone over again. We said truly in January last that the Council of this year had a hard work to perform, and before they are through with it they will find that they require all the sympathy and support of the ratepayers in their arduous work of setting right the mistakes, and in many cases palpable wrong doing of the Council of 1877.

In 1878 the number of miles operated on the Intercolonial was 344, and the cost of operating them $1,010,892.60, being at the rate of about $2,950 per mile. That was under the late Administration. In 1876 the present Administration managed 745 miles of the same road, the cost being $1,061,675.88, or an average cost per mile of about $2,230, being some $720 less per mile than the cost under the old government.

The London "Live Stock Gazette" states that it has been determined by the Privy Council to purchase 21,000 horses for artillery or transport service. They are required to meet the following conditions: Age, rising five or six years; height, from 15.2 to 16 hands; mares or geldings, any color; stamp of horse required, a light van or strong 'bus horse. Price to be given, from £40 to £60. This notice is of importance to Canadian dealers in horses, who will no doubt find the trade which was very successfully commenced last year still more profitable this year. The service for which these horses are intended, is one for which Canadian horses are peculiarly adapted, and will no doubt command first-class prices.

Sir Francis Hincks, speaking of the action of the Lieutenant Governor of Quebec in dismissing his Ministry, says in an article in the "Journal of Commerce":—"We are quite clear as to the entire constitutionality of the course of the Lieutenant Governor. He had a right to dismiss his Ministers, and to take other advice, and, moreover, he was in duty bound to do so if he believed that they had introduced a measure 'contrary to the principles of law and justice.' There can be no doubt, whatever, on the mind of any one who has carefully read the explanations that the railroad bill was introduced without the previous sanction of the Lieutenant Governor. That he had a constitutional right to take issue with his ministers on this bill is beyond a doubt, and is not only in accordance with precedents without number, but with all the best authorities on the subject.

The Halifax "Chronicle" says:—"In Ontario Dr. Tupper talked much about a duty on flour, but said nothing about coal. In Nova Scotia he talks much about a duty on coal, but says nothing about a duty on flour."

St. Patrick's Day in Toronto.

A ROW AT NIGHT.

Some of the Police Brutally Beaten.

St. Patrick's Day in Toronto was not allowed to pass over without some trouble, caused by the presence in the city and lecture by O'Donovan Rossa. The Globe's account of the affair is as follows:—

There was no procession, the various Irish Societies, in obedience to the request of His Grace, Archbishop Lynch, having agreed to desist from any public demonstration of the kind. In the afternoon the public was attracted to the theatres, and quietness was the order of the day. Towards evening, however, the aspect of affairs changed very considerably, and it was feared that trouble was brewing. The principal point of attraction was the St. Lawrence buildings, where O'Donovan Rossa was advertised to lecture. The "patriot" reached the city in the early part of the day without attracting much attention. He, in order to escape notice, jumped off the train as it was passing the foot of Brock street, and in so doing, came near putting an end to his earthly career. The "Secretary of the Skirmishing Fund," in jumping out of the cars, fell iguominiously on his head instead of his feet, the result being that his hat was smashed and his clothing besmeared with mud. A cab was waiting for him, and he was quickly driven away to a friend's house. There he remained in quiet seclusion until the hour when he had to go to deliver the lecture. There was no disturbance occasioned on his entering the hall, as he was able to do so without being recognized.

At half past eight the crowd had become so immense as to divide into two portions, in consequence of the police pushing back the front of the mob. A second mob passed down East Market square, hooting and yelling as if just loosed from Pandemonium. The City Fathers were disturbed in their deliberations, and a rush of aldermen and others was made from the City Hall. The crowd was met at the foot of Jarvis street by a detachment of police, but a rush took place, and in a few minutes the mob surged up Jarvis-street, and formed a compact mass in front of St. Patrick's Hall. At one moment boots for O'Rossa were given, followed by a shower of stones, and as the noise of falling glass informed the mob that the stones had been effective, manifestations of delight were shown. Cheers for the Queen and Great Britain followed; but by this time the police had begun to gain ground, and the mob was slowly but surely driven out of the Square between Front and King streets. A line of policemen assisted by a few volunteers was formed across King street. About half-past nine a man in the mob cried out 'Revenge for Hackett,' and in a few seconds a crash of glass was heard, and a shower of stones fell on the windows of the part of the building rented by the Toronto Tea Company. The mob amused itself by whistling "The Protestant Boys," but were slowly driven back until the whole space surrounding the hall was cleared. Notwithstanding several futile attempts to break through the cordon of police were made, during which the batons were freely used on the heads of the aggressors, the mob did not recover its lost ground. There was nothing remarkable during the delivery of the lecture further than the smashing of a few more panes of glass. There is nothing treasonable in the lecture itself. It was quite clear from the behaviour of the "patriot" that he did not feel in the slightest degree comfortable. In leaving the hall he resorted to the stratagem of putting on part of a friend's clothing so that he might not be recognized. In this manner he got away as he came, without attracting any notice.

Up to eleven o'clock the crowd persisted in loitering round the St. Lawrence buildings and the Market square, although there could be no good reason for their so doing. That they were bent on mischief was but too clearly demonstrated. Tired of keeping watch over the crowd, the police attempted to induce them to go home, a piece of advice they did not seem inclined to profit by. Matters reached a climax shortly after eleven o'clock, when the rowdies who had congregated at the corner of Jarvis and Adelaide streets made a furious attack on the police, assailing them with shower after shower of stones. Three constables, Brucksnreed, Worth, and Johnston, went down under the first volley, and immediately afterwards Sergeant-Major Ward and Constable Woodhouse were also struck. Worth is very seriously cut on the head, and will probably die. Johnston was struck on the face with a half brick and terribly cut. His lip is hacked in two and a number of his teeth knocked out. Sergeant-Major Ward was also cut on the face pretty badly. In the melee Brucksnreed emptied his revolver, but it is believed he fired in the air in order to intimidate his assailants, and did not attempt to hit any of them. Answering shots were returned, but no one was hurt.

A large body of the crowd passed along Queen street West, shouting and singing, finally bringing up at Owen Cosgrove's, where a regular battle ensued. The whole front of the hotel was wrecked, and in the course of the melee a large number of persons were wounded. As soon as the police had permission to use their batons at discretion they made a vivid impression upon the crowd. One young man named Clegg was shot in the shoulder, and at least a dozen had to have their heads patched up by the doctor, while others were helped from the scene by their friends. Minor troubles took place throughout the west, but by one o'clock comparative quiet once more reigned. By two o'clock this morning only here and there were to be seen stragglers making their way homewards.

The lecture took place in St. Patrick's Hall A strong force of militia and police surrounded the building. About 200 people were present. The lecture was extremely moderate in tone, and nothing of a seditious character was expressed. He trusted that Orangemen and Catholics would shake hands over the Boyne for the sake of Ireland.

The recent action of the French Assembly shows that McMahon's power is on the wane. The first two clauses of the bill providing that a state of siege can only be proclaimed in Paris in cases of war or insurrection, have been passed by large majorities. This is an undoubted sign of the strength of the Government, and the correspondingly great decrease in the influence of the President, who no longer controls the weapon of almost unlimited power, which was used to such advantage during the recent elections.

A social held in the Methodist Church, Bethany, last week, realized some $16. The programme was a varied and excellent one.

Harold the Outlaw

—OR—

The Gauger of Skene.

CHAPTER XXVII.

WALTER ADAMSON RECEIVES AN UNEXPECTED MORNING VISITOR—THE MYSTERIOU LEEER AND ITS CONTENTS—PLANS LAID.

"No by heavens I will not," exclaimed Harold, fiercely. "So long as it was myself alone who was the sufferer I would have kept silent, but for them I will, if need be, throw all considerations to the wind, and fight with every weapon I can grasp."

"I'm glad to hear you say so," cried the lawyer, pith alacrity. "Once resolve on that, and we'll win the day against them. I haven't the shadow of a doubt about it. But before resolving more definitely, let us get at the meaning of a mystery which has been puzzling me and making me intensely anxious to communicate with you. Wait but just a moment, I have a letter for you."

"A letter for me," said Harold, in amazement. "Who is it from?"

"Ah, but that's more than I can tell you. It was dropped into the box of my office door yesterday. I don't know at what hour or by whom. Tom Ironby, my clerk, chanced to look into the box by accident, and there it was. The outer cover was addressed to me, but inside was a sealed letter addressed to you in a different hand. I have it here in my drawer. Oh, bother, I have left my keys in the bedroom. Here, Maggie, ——. No, I had better go myself."

"For heaven's sake, be quick, for I am full of suspense," called Harold after him, as he left the room.

The eager, imploring tones quickened his steps, but his movements were far from being swift enough for Harold's consuming impatience. The youth hoped, expected that the letter, so mysteriously conveyed, contained a communication relative to the misssing ones, and every moment that kept him from the knowledge of it was an age of agony. He could scarcely restrain himself from smashing open the drawer with the poker, but was at last saved from such temptation by the lawyer's return with the keys, when access to it was obtained in the regular way.

It was but a small, thin packet which Mr. Adamson took out and handed to him; but no sooner had Harold's eye lighted on the address than he gave a start, and a joyous cry escaped him.

"It is Lizzie's handwriting," he exclaimed.

"What! from your wife herself?"

"Yes, heaven be praised, the letter is from her."

His trembling fingers were tearing off the envelope as he spoke, and when he had unfolded the paper the following lines were revealed—

"No harm has come to us. We are safe and well, and have the promise of being kindly treated, 'so long as you do nothing.' But I am told that the moment you or any one of you, makes a statement or advance a claim, my child will be taken from me. For heaven's sake, then, do not provoke them to this. If they were to take him away I would go mad or die. I will gladly suffer anything rather than this. I implore you, do nothing, either openly or secretly, for they have the means of knowing every movement you may make. They threaten harm to me also, but it is the child alone I care for. Oh, say nothing, do nothing to make me lose him. I am to be allowed to write to you at intervals to convince you we are always safe and well treated. Do nothing—oh, if you love me, do nothing.

"LIZZIE."

Harold read the lines in a mechanical manner, like one who imperfectly understood the meaning. One thing only had taken possession of him,—the assurance that his wife and child were perfectly safe at present, and the joy which it caused prevented the import of the rest from entering his mind.

"Thank heaven, they are safe and well," he exclaimed, in a tone of intense relief, as he raised his eyes from the paper to the face of Mr. Adamson. The expression which he beheld there arrested his attention. It was the keen and bitter expression of a man who felt that he was overreached by an astute and unscrupulous adversary.

"Safe and well," repeated the lawyer. "Are you deceived by that?"

"Deceived! What mean you?" cried Harold, in great alarm.

"I mean that this is McGarray's work, and the stroke is as clever as it is cunning. Oh, he is playing the cards for Gilmour with rare calculation."

"Ha, are we deceived then?" shouted the youth, with a sudden burst of fury. "Is this letter a forgery?—is it not from Lizzie? No, no, Adamson, your are mistaken," he added, after wildly scanning the paper. "This is my wife's handwriting. No imitation of it could impose on me. It is not so steady as usual, but it is hers—unquestionably hers."

"Oh, I don't doubt that her hand and pen have traced the letters, but do you suppose for a moment that it is her own dictation? I'll venture to say that it is little else than a copy of what was previously written and put before her. Read it again—you have not grasped the meaning of it yet."

"The meaning—the meaning!" exclaimed Harold, impetuously. "It means that they have them in some place of seclusion, and have not as yet ill-treated them. But they threaten it," he added, gnashing his teeth. "No time must be lost in discovering where they have been taken and delivering them. I will return to the hills immediately and organize such a search as will lead me to the hiding-place within a week. Then, the moment they are rescued, the work of retribution must then begin. In the meantime, you can present the claim of the rightful heir as we arranged before, and by the time it is necessary to produce the boy I'll have him forthcoming."

"Ah, I knew you had not grasped the meaning of the letter," observed the lawyer. "Do read it again—slowly and attentively—and say if you persist in following that course."

Thus advised, Harold set himself to a reperusal of the letter. He was now somewhat calmer, and could better realise the meaning of the words. Then their import flashed upon him.

"Do nothing—do nothing," he murmured. "Ha, I see it now. The life of the boy will be sacrificed, the safety of Lizzie imperilled, if the claim is advanced; and she implores me to do nothing."

"Exactly. With a diabolical cunning which none but the most subtle schemer could display, they have taken the most effectual method of keeping us at bay, and preventing us from acting against them. It is most McGarray's doing. I can trace his hand and brain in it as clearly as if I had heard him propound the plan to his client."

"What—what is to be done?" gasped Harold.

"Why, dosen't your wife implore you to do nothing? Poor lady, she may well do so; for what so strong as a mother's love for a child? The threat to deprive her of it has roused her wildest fears, and she'll suffer anything rather than loose the boy. The more you think of it, the more you see the terrible power they possess."

Harold sank into a seat, and groaned heavily. A sense of utter impotence had come upon him. His own fear had been evoked as well as Lizzie's. The weapon seized by his enemies was invincible; it was less a weapon than a paralysing influence they exerted. It secured his inaction as effectually as if he were bound hand and foot. His wife implored him to do nothing, and his own heart prompted obedience. He durst not act so long as Lizzie and the boy were in their power.

Yet what was the prospect with such a state of matters held out? One truely most miserable and agonising—he and Lizzie separated indefinitely; the only joy left him in life taken from him; she kept in close and isolated confinement—her only comfort the companionship of her child—and under continual terror lest her captors should do it harm. The prospect prostrated, crushed overwhelmed him.

"God help me, I cannot bear it," he moaned. "I am vanquished; my spirit is broken; I will yield to my cruel fate without further struggle; I will go to Gilmour, and make terms with him; I will formally renounce all claim in the boy's behalf, and engage to quit Scotland for a foreign land, taking Lizzie and the child with me. There we shall live our days in poverty and exile, yet in each other's companionship, and enjoying each other's love. Yes, Adamson, this is how I will end it; they have conquered me at last."

And the poor youth, the strength and courage utterly gone from his heart, bent himself down in helpless, hopeless despair, while choking sobs violently shook his frame.

The kind-hearted lawyer was greatly moved at the sight. Indignation, pity, sympathy, struggled painfully in his bosom. But he could on no account bring himself to coincide in Harold's resolution. In the first place, he did not believe it practicable, and in the second place, it was such a miserable defeat for himself as well as Harold—it was such a yielding of right to wrong, of innocence and justice to knavery and fraud, that his soul and his lawyer's instincts alike revolted against it.

"Nay, nay, this cannot—must not be," he said, as gently and soothingly he laid his hand on Harold's shoulder.

"It shall," returned the latter; "there is no escape from it. Better that than such misery as this. I thought I was strong, Adamson. I thought I was proof against all their power and malice. I meant to return them scorn for scorn, hatred for hatred, bear their persecution with unbroken spirit, and work my way to triumph and revenge, but this touches me so deeply that my pride is gone. I am become weaker than a woman. Do not try to persuade me against what I have said. I will go to Mount Cairn this very day, this very hour, and humble myself before my foes."

"Ay, and humble yourself in vain," rejoined the lawyer. "They will not listen to such a proposal as you speak of. Full of deceit and treachery themselves, they would not trust you—they would not believe you would fulfil the promise you made. They would think that, so soon as they restored to you your wife and child, you would laugh at the compact, break it, and pursue the boy's claim to the inheritance."

"No, as God is my witness, I will be true and faithful to my promise."

"But how will you convince them of that?"

"I will bind myself by oaths most sacred."

"Oaths—what care they for oaths? Nothing; and judging by themselves, they would suppose that you are equally ready to break them. No, Harold, be persuaded against this, for you will only give them an opportunity of triumphing over you, of mocking and deriding you. Besides, it would be weak and unworthy of you to yield up your rights and the rights of your boy to a set of despicable, swindling wretches."

"What can I do," wailed Harold. "I dare not act in the smallest degree at the expense of those I love dearer than life. And has not Lizzie implored me by that very love to do nothing?"

"Nor must you—at present. For her sake we shall have to refrain from advancing the boy's claim," said Mr. Adamson, ruefully. M'Garray has triumphed so far, I admit; but it remains to be seen how long he will be able to do so. Clever as he thinks himself, he has not provided for one contingency."

"What?" cried Harold, breathlessly.

"In this letter, which I have no doubt is of his framing, he does not provide against your efforts to discover the place of their prisoner's seclusion. Probably he thinks it is so sacred as to be beyond your utmost efforts to find it out. There he may be cherishing a false confidence. You don't despair of being able to discover the place of their confinement, do you?"

"No, in time. I am certain to do so. But the moment they learn that I am making the effort they will prosecute their threat, and my darling will suffer."

"Then they must not learn it."

"How shall we keep it from them. Lizzie here says they have the means of knowing every movement that I make."

"Tush! that is a bit of bounce on M'Garray's part. Unless they have spies everywhere, which is very unlikely, they cannot get information of your secret doings. Are you sure of all your smuggling associations? Do you suspect no spy or traitor among them?"

The Rine Case.

Conclusion of the Evidence.

The following is the concluding portion of the preliminary examination in the indecent assault case, given before the Police Magistrate at Stratford :—

Mr. Jones, of St. Mary's, appeared for the defence, and subjected the witness to a severe cross-examination without materially affecting her testimony. She said—He took hold of my hand and asked for a good-bye kiss before he went; he took me by the arm and pulled me into the room; did not think the affair a joke; saw a woman's photograph, which Mr. Rine said was his wife's; the door was open all the time; asked three or four times that he should let me go to do my down-stair's work; Mr. Rine asked how old I was; said fifteen, and he said I was a fine stout girl; the whole occurrence occupied about ten minutes from beginning to end; he said nothing indecent to me; placed his hand on my shoulder and squeezed me; placed his arm round my waist; did not tell the other servants in the kitchen about the affair up stairs; Mr. Rine stayed to dinner and witness waited at table.

Mr. Hurst, examined—His attention was drawn to the girl by her pale face when he came to dinner; demanded to know what had occurred; don't know that she consulted her father before the information was laid; had a conversation with Mr. Rine after the charge was made; the latter offered to apologize, and said he had attempted to take improper liberties with the girl; witness said it must be done through her father and the proper court; Mr. Rine said he had taken improper liberties, but as no sin was committed he thought the case might be withdrawn; he said there could be no reflection on the girl's character; the girl's father said he was willing to settle it; Mr. Rine spoke of money, but the father said nothing about it; shook hands with Mr. Rine before he left; knew nothing of his going; defendant came to his house with Mr. Flagg on Saturday morning; defendant was much agitated, and said, "I am sorry that such a thing occurred; it has been a terrible blow to me; if you had waited till you got my letter you would have made it right;" Mr. Flagg suggested to Mr. Rine not to convict himself while the latter was writing an apology; the letter, which was addressed to the girl's father, expressed contrition; witness declined to have anything to do with it; then Mr. Rine said he "would let the whiskey ring have their rip," and he would apply to a higher court.

The Magistrate committed the accused for trial, and accepted bail for his appearance at the next court of competent jurisdiction, himself in $1,000, and two sureties, Mr. J. H. Rogers, of Toronto, and Mr. Trout, of the Monetary Times, in $500 each.

Mr. Rine, with his Toronto friends, left for Toronto on Monday night. He says he will go on with his work and will address a meeting at Barrie to-morrow night, and one in Toronto on Sunday next.

WEDNESDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 20, 1878

Local News Items.

THE Ladies' Aid Society, in connection with St. Andrew's Church, meet in the school room to-morrow afternoon.

THE golden man is being removed to-day.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.—Moderate winds and clear, fair weather are the weather probabilities.

SULLIVAN, who played with the Maple Leafs last summer, will play second base in the Alleghenies for the coming season.

MR. W. D. HEPBURN on Tuesday bought the bankrupt boot and shoe stock belonging to the estate of Mr. T. J. Brown, and the book debts at a low figure.

POLICE COURT.—Daniel Donnelly was charged with stealing a razor from Wm. Griffin on the 19th inst. He consented to be tried by the Police Magistrate, pled guilty, and was sent to jail for two months at hard labor.

POLICEMAN DOOLEY found a pair of corsets hanging in front of Mr. G. B. Fraser's store last evening at a very late hour. They had been inadvertently left out on exhibiton. They were taken care of by the policeman.

MARCON'S CATALOGUE.—Mr. W. H. Marcon's seed catalogue has been issued for some time, and contains much useful information about seeds and vegetables, and flower culture. Mr. Marcon has now on hand a fine stock of seeds for the coming season.

A MAD COW, or one very much excited, belonging to Mr. Puddy, a butcher, created considerable excitement on Macdonnell street on Tuesday at noon. It was with considerable difficulty it was got inside the Albion Hotel yard, where it was locked up.

ST. GEORGE'S.—A special meeting of St. George's Society will be held to morrow evening to consider the best way of celebrating the 23rd, St. George's Day. All members are cordially invited to be present, and it is hoped that as many as possible will attend and show their interest in promoting the celebration of the day.

DESTRUCTIVE TASTES.—On Saturday two young men were detected destroying the fence around Messrs. Sole & Johnston's property. They were very penitent, seemingly, when detected, and were quite willing to pay for all the damage they had done. They will not be prosecuted this time.

OYSTER SUPPER.—The millwrights employed by the Worswick Engine Company in fitting a mill at Erin were entertained at an oyster supper given by Mr. Chisholm in his hotel at that place. After the spread had been heartily partaken of the usual toasts were proposed and drank. During the evening several excellent speeches and songs were given by members of the company. The party broke up at a seasonable hour, all having passed a pleasant time.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH Y.M.A.—This Society met in the church on Tuesday evening. In consequence of the absence of some of those who had been placed as speakers on the debate, no debate was held, but the speakers present gave readings and recitations instead. It was decided to continue the weekly meetings till the end of April, but the next will give place to Mr Milligan's lecture on "What do the Sunbeams Say?" which will be delivered in the church on the 29th inst, under the auspices of the Association. The next meeting is to be held on the 5th of April, with "Resolved that industry contributes more to a young man's success than genius," as the subject for debate.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S.—This morning there was a very large attendance at St. Bartholomew's church to take part in the services held as an observation of St Patrick's day. Rev. Father Hamel celebrated high mass, and Vicar-General Rooney, of Toronto delivered an eloquent discourse on the life and virtues of St. Patrick. Much interest and great attention was paid throughout. The manner in which the Roman Catholics have observed the day has been in eveoy way pleasing.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Mr. Wm. Hearn is now going to considerable expense in fitting up the property on the corner of Woolwich and Cardigan streets, and facing Wyndham street. Bay windows, balconies and verandahs, together with brick marking o the walls will give it a very handsome appearance. The ceilings inside are all about eleven feet high and the wood work will be all refitted. The grounds about the building will be levelled down. No doubt the place can be easily rented. A brick carriage shop, which is in course of erection west of the property, will be a very fine building.

LIBRARY FOR THE HOSPITAL.—Through the exertions of two ladies a much needed book case has been provided for the use of the patients in the General Hospital. An appeal is now made to the public to furnish it with books, and doubtless many will be willing to give from their own libraries for such a good purpose. Any person who may be desirous of aiding in this work will send their donations of books to Mr. E. Newton, Secretary, before the 6th of April. A few pictures for the walls of the wards would also be thankfully received. A catalogue of the books is to be made out, and they are to be covered before being used.

HIGH SCHOOL GRANT.—The Minister of Education on the report of the High School Inspectors has declared the following schools entitled to the amount opposite their names, the distribution being based on the results of inspection for the half-year ending 31st December, 1877:—Berlin $102.90, Elora $42.63, Fergus $36 80, Galt $133.44, Guelph $63.79, Orangeville $21.23. The circumstances taken into consideration in making the award are:—School accommodation, condition of school premises, general educational appliances (maps, apparatus, &c.); number of masters employed as compared with the number of pupils and classes, qualification of masters, character of the teaching, &c.; character of the work done in the lower school; the quantity and quality of the work done by pupils of the upper school; and government, discipline, and general morale.

MONTHLY SOCIAL.—The regular monthly social in the Primitive Methodist church will be held to-morrow evening. Tea will be served in the basement, and the concert will be held in the church. The entertainment has been got up by the young men of the bible class, and a first-class musical programme has been provided. See adv't.

HOOKED BY A COW.—On Tuesday a cow was being led up Macdonnel street became unruly and broke away. Mr. Thomas Millar who was passing at the time was attacked by the animal and was rather badly hooked in the abdomen. He is however able to be about again, to day. The cow was partly dragged along as far as Cossitt's old factory on Norfolk street where it had to be killed and carted to the slaughter-house.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—The Rev. Mr. Dewart and Mr. Gales, secretary to the Dominion Alliance, will address a meeting in the Town Hall on Friday night, at eight o'clock, on the Bill now before Parliament, in relation to the restriction of the Liquor traffic.

ON Sunday next, the 24th inst., the Feast of St. Joseph, the Patron Saint of the Universal Church, the services at St. Bartholomew's Church will be unusually imposing. The Rev. Dr. Kilroy, of Stratford will preach at last mass and also at vespers. The music on this occasion will be very grand, and will be under the direction of Rev. Father Fleck, who will preside at the organ at high mass and vespers. The collections taken up during the day will be in aid of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

MR. RINE AT BARRIE.—D. I. K. Rine, accompanied by his wife and aunt, arrived at Barrie on Tuesday. Mr. Harvey, President of the Club, and some other gentlemen, met him near Bradford. There was a large crowd at the station to meet Mr. Rine, and on his appearing he was met with faint cheers and loud hisses. To the President and gentlemen who met Mr. Rine he has contradicted the reports which appeared in the Toronto papers to day, but which are believed by most to be true. The feeling here is very strong against him.

HARRISTON.—The Primitive Methodist social held on the 11th inst. in the town hall was in every respect a very successful one. Mr. Thos. Robinson occupied the chair. The report of the secretary was very satisfactory, it showing that $40 would wipe out the church debt.——Last week the house of Mr. Ruth was entered by burglars, but they must have been disturbed before accomplishing their object, as nothing has been missed. The same evening Mr. Patmore's carriage shop was broken into, but nothing was taken.

PRESENTATION.—On Friday, March 8th, 1878, the examination of the pupils attending the school in section No. 8, East Garafraxa, was held in the school house. Notwithstanding the muddy roads over two hundred persons were present, eighty of these being scholars. At the close of the exercises two of the larger pupils came forward and on behalf of the pupils and friends in the section, presented their teacher, Miss M. H. Wright, with a handsome set of china dishes, crystal spoonholder, dozen tea spoons, crystal covered fruit plate and table linen. It was announced that the presents were made as tokens of affection and esteem.

MUTILATION AND DESECRATION OF THE DEAD.—Watford has been the theatre of one of the most shocking and disgusting acts, which must cover the perpetrators with everlasting infamy. The Guide says that the remains of the late Alex. Farm were exhumed by some parties who cut the hip from the waist, and then down the back, removing the whole leg. Not wanting the lower portion they cut it off at the knee and threw the foot into the grave without the ceremony of coffining, and only covering the body with a small depth of earth. The remains were found in this state by his relatives. Mr. Farm suffered for nearly a year from, what some of the doctors called hip joint disease, while others contended that he suffered from suppuration from a piece of the bone being exfoliated or detached. What the disease really was, the doctors were bound to find out, and this was the method employed by them to gain the desired information.

EXECUTION OF A FRENCH CANADIAN.—Joseph LePage was executed at Concord on the 15th instant., for the murder of Josie Langmaid, a school girl eighteen years of age. She was a daughter of one of the leading citizens of Pembroke, was missed October 4th, 1875, from the academy, where she was attending school. As she did not return home at the accustomed hour, search was made by her family and a large number of the neighbors. At about 8:30 o'clock that evening her dead body was found secreted in a clump of trees several rods from the highway over which she was accustomed to pass. The head was cut entirely from the body, and was not found until some time afterward. The body was mangled and mutilated in a shocking manner. The clothing was torn in many places, and the nature of wounds found on her person found indicate that there had been a terrible struggle before the villian had accomplished his purpose.

DISTRESSING CASE.—The Dundas 'Standard' says:—The father of the woman, giving her name as "Mrs. Christie" who died at Mrs. McManus's in this town last January, while giving birth to a still-born child, has been in town making enquiries about her. Her real name was not Christie. She was unmarried and had been living at Port Elgin, where the father of her illegitimate child, a man in good circumstances, is said to reside. Her indentity was discovered by means of the photograph of a young woman, taken in Port Elgin, and found by Chief Constable McDonough in "Mrs. Christie's" valise. This photograph was sent to the Constable in Port Elgin who recognized it, and in this way the father of the unfortunate and friendless woman was discovered. He lives at Elora. His distress may be imagined on learning the sad fate of his daughter, who now lies buried in a rough box in a pauper's grave. Strangely enough another girl who left Port Elgin a few weeks ago to hide her shame is missing, and it is suspected that the ruin of both these women was effected by the same man.

ENORMOUS.—No other word can describe the quantity of new importations of dry goods, delivered at the Lion yesterday and to day. Passers by would imagine themselves at one of the largest wholesale houses of the country. Load after load was delivered until the sidewalk was crowded with goods. Messrs Williamson & Co., have faith in being able to do a large spring trade. They say only give the goods cheap enough and there is no trouble in disposing of them. No better rule can be adopted to build up and sustain a big business.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Britain and Russia Still at Cross Purposes.

March 19.

A London despatch says:—Hon. Robert Bourne, under Secretary for the Foreign Department, announced in Parliament to-day that if Russia agreed to the conditions demanded by England respecting the Conference, it would probably meet about the latter part of the present month.

A St. Petersburg letter to Vienna states that Russia is not disposed to comply with the imperative orders given to her by England before the opening of the Congress. England's course would only render the Congress nugatory.

The Times, after considering the terrible consequences of a great war, says:—

Nevertheless, England must adhere to the demand that the entire treaty of San Stefano be submitted to the Congress. The one hope of statesmens for the future peace of the world must be founded upon the development of a system of public law and upon the maintenance and increase of the authority of treaties. If the public laws of Europe be valid until formally repealed, any new arrangement between Russia and Turkey falls ipso facto by its very nature within the scope of the treaties of 1856 and 1871. It is not in the power of Russia, and it is not even within the competence of the Congress, to decide whether or not certain clauses of the new treaty fall within the cognizance of the signatories of the old treaty. It is bound to take the instrument into consideration as a whole.

A Vienna despatch says the deadlock between Russia and England is complete. Austria and Germany are altogether opposed to England demands. Austria has been confidently informed of the conditions of peace, and considers them moderate and susceptible of further modification at the Congress.

A Vienna despatch says the Hungarian delegation unanimously adopted the vote of credit for 60,000,000 florins.

A Pera despatch reports that the Russians, in consequence of the Porte's objections, have relinquished going to Buyukdere.

The Agence Russe says:

As the text itself of the treaty will be communicated to the Powers, and as Russia recognizes each power's liberty of action at the Congress, it would seem there was no longer any object in the formality required by England about submitting all the conditions to the Congress.

A Paris special says:—It is stated that Russia now proposes to read the whole treaty to the Congress, leaving it the right to select the articles for discussion. It is believed England will refuse this compromise, and Russia will eventually yield.

A Constantinople despatch says:—The Grand Duke Nicholas, to obviate the difficulty about a military escort passing through the city, proposes to come here in the Imperial yacht Equirklick. The Sultan would then return the visit aboard the yacht.

A Constantinople despatch says:—It is expected that Osman Pasha will soon be released by the Russians and return here. It is doubtful now whether the Grand Duke will visit Constantinople.

A despatch from Athens says the Thessalians have been defeated at Valo.

Puslinch Farmers' Club.

The regular meeting of the Puslinch Farmers' Club was held in the Town Hall, Aberfoyle, on Friday evening, the 15th March. The attendance was large. The President, Mr. William Rae, occupied the chair. Minutes of the previous meeting was read and approved. The subject under consideration was "Agriculture as a profession." Mr. P. Mahon opened the debate, followed by Messrs. Gilchrist, Patterson, Cauper, Smith, Reid, Glennie and others. The Secretary laid before the meeting two samples of seed wheat, forwarded by Mr. James Goldie, one imported from Manitoba, the other of the golden drop variety, grown at Barrie. Price $1.75 per bushel; also a sample sent by Mr. J. S. Armstrong, imported from Minnesota. Price $1.75. Subsequently the Secretary received a sample of the Ohio club variety, grown by Mr. F. W. Stone, which he offers at $1.50 per bushel. These samples were all good, and members desiring a change of seed would do well to examine them.

A number of tenders were received by the Club from seed-dealers in Guelph, offering to supply the Club with seeds. That of J. E. McElderry was accepted by the meeting, with the condition that clover and timothy must be taken away only by the members on or before the 3rd day of April. Members will take notice accordingly.

A number of members gave their orders to the Secretary for a supply of salt for manure, which will be shipped to arrive on Tuesday next. Other members wanting salt or other articles through the Club will notify the Secretary at once. Parties having disposed of members tickets will please make returns to the Secretary as soon as possible. The next meeting of the Club will be held on Friday evening, the 12th of April, at 6 o'clock p.m.

GALT.—The March cattle fair was well attended. The best cattle brought $4.25 to $4.50 per cwt., while the ruling figures were $3.50 to $4.——The charity concert, for the benefit of the poor of the town lately held realized $79.75 after paying all expenses. ——The Methodist church property is likely to be purchased for the use of market purposes.

The congregation of old St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, held their last meeting within the old church on Saturday evening last. This church was opened in 1830. The new church was opened on the following Sunday.

The N. Y. Tribune, speaking of the Liquor Bill, now before Parliament, says:—The temperance movement appears to be making progress in Canada, inasmuch as a bill has been introduced at Ottawa which will enable all counties and cities in the Dominion to establish prohibition by popular vote. Should the bill pass, the experiment will prove instructive and interesting to other communities studying the best means of regulating the liquor traffic.

Lamps and lamp goods will for two weeks be rushed off regardless of price at Bond & Co's. Their stock is large, and they are determined to considerably reduce it before stock taking.

Previous to stock-taking and to make room for larger shipments of spring goods, John Anderson, bookseller, has determined to clear out his large and extensive stock of fancy goods, pictures, picture frames, albums, musical instruments, etc., etc., at prices that will sell them. See the prices at Anderson's cheap bookstore.

The judge was appealed to and he held that an oath taken on no matter what object was good and valid. In illustration he said, supposing a witness threw down his pipe and broke it, and swore that he would be as true as that pipe was broken—that would be a valid oath, and the witness would be held responsible for the truth of his statements. "A National Policy."

Meeting at the Centre Inn, Eramosa.

On Tuesday evening a meeting of electors favorable to a "National Fiscal Policy," was held in the hall in connection with the Centre Inn, Eramosa. The meeting organized at eight o'clock. Besides a number of prominent farmers of the township being present, Messrs. Wm. Bell, Wm. Wilkie, Thos. Goldie, of Guelph; Wm. Lukes, of Newmarket; A. W. Wright, of the Toronto "National," and other outsiders, were present.

On motion of Mr. Henry Carter, Mr. Wm. Duffield was elected chairman.

On motion of Messrs. A. Loghrin and Jas. Kennedy, Mr. George Haigh was appointed secretary.

The chairman announced the object of the meeting, as set forth in posters by which it was called, viz., "For the purpose of forming an Association for the promotion of the adoption of a National Policy."

The following resolution was then put to the meeting:—

Moved by Mr. Jonathan Tovell, seconded by Mr. H. Carter, that this meeting recognizes that Canada can only attain to that high position which her great resources justify her people in aspiring to, by legislating in the interests of the various Provinces, and therefore is of opinion that, in framing a fiscal policy for the Dominion, all the varied interests of the several Provinces should be considered, and every effort made to foster and promote interprovincial trade, and to develope the various resources of all the Provinces.

Mr. Alex. Loghrin spoke to the resolution. He stated that he was surprised that the policy of the Government had been announced by Mr. Cartwright to keep the tariff as it is at present, and this was after the Finance Minister had publicly stated that the depression had been caused in a measure by the unfair slaughtering of American goods. The speaker held that one cause of the depression was overtrading and over importation; another, and it referred particularly to agricultural interests, was the large increase in the importation of American produce. Much could be done to alleviate the present depression if a revision of the tariff was made. The Government at present did not even impose a revenue tariff, as there was at the present time a deficit that had to be provided for.

The resolution was then put to the meeting and declared carried.

Several parties asked the Chairman to call for a contrary expression on the motion.

He then gravely informed them that the meeting was not called for such a purpose. The Secretary announced that those who wished to express their opinion contrary to the resolution to be submitted should call a Free Trade meeting for themselves.

A voice—We intend to do that.

It was then moved by Alex. Loghrin, seconded by Geo. Swanston, that this meeting cannot refrain from expressing its deep regret that the Dominion Government has seen fit to declare its intention to adhere to its present suicidal trade policy and its inability to introduce legislation calculated to alleviate the present commercial distress under which the country is suffering.

This resolution was carried in a like manner.

Mr. Hugh Milloy asked the chairman to define the meaning of the resolution. It was hardly fair to ask men to vote on resolutions without any explanation whatever.

Mr. Robert Kennedy considered it extremely strange that no explanations should be given to farmers.

Mr. Alex. Loghrin stated that those who were not favorable to the resolutions had no business speaking at the meeting, although they could remain seated. The meeting was called for the good of the public.

Mr. Robt. Kennedy thought some had a strange way of manifesting their ideas of what was for the public good.

Mr. Wm. Bathgate held that no person had a right to speak who was not favorable to the resolutions put.

Mr. Kennedy apologized for speaking if the meeting was a Conservative convention.

A number of voices shouted, "No, no. It is independent." During all this time the greatest uproar prevailed, the chairman not being able to make himself heard.

It was then moved by Henry Hortop, jr., seconded by James Kennedy, that this meeting recognize the fact that the one-sided and unfair tariff which obtains between Canada and the United States is unjust to the people of this Dominion, and is calculated to sacrifice the interests of Canada to those four neighbors; and, therefore, this meeting is of opinion that failing to obtain reciprocity of trade with the United States, it is the duty of our Government to move in the direction of a reciprocity of tariffs, in so far as the varied interests of the country may require.

Mr. A. W. Wright was next introduced. He held that Reformers and Conservatives could well stand on one common platform on a question of a National Policy. He was prepared to throw aside all party ties and welcome such strong Reformers as were around him. If Sir John Macdonald, as had been insinuated would not bring forward such a policy as would be for the national prosperity he would never give another Conservative vote in his life. Remark was made that he was afraid the MERCURY would be pleased to report Mr. Luke's remark when he stated that when a country was made up of agriculturalists it was an ignorant country.

A voice—He did say that farmers were ignorant.

Mr. Wright continued. He held that England had been raised to a proud position under a protective tariff, and it was only after the business of the country was built up that free trade was brought about. The Washington Treaty was referred to, and the speaker claimed that it was in the absence of Sir John Macdonald and that the House of Commons took off the duty on wheat. It is said that the Opposition had not announced their policy. A Government that should announce the day when a change in the tariff would take place would do very wrong, simply because it would benefit the speculator and perhaps work material injury to the poor but honest man. It would never do for the Opposition to define positively the exact duties that would be placed on certain articles. If any person can show that protection does not raise the price of goods to the consumer, they have something to base their arguments on. If not they could not have a leg to stand upon. Figures were given showing that the price of manufactured goods had decreased in value and the price of raw material had slightly increased. He defined a national policy to be a a policy to make the interests of Canada for Canadians —the interest of one Province to deal with the other, this and this only was a National Policy. Protection was talked for about half an hour and the speaker concluded after regretting that the Reform newspapers did not publish as much of his speeches as they should in order that their readers might be well informed on the protection question.

Mr. Milloy wanted to know which party he was prepared to support?

Mr. Wright—Any party that will bring forward a national policy.

Mr. Milloy—Reform or Conservative?

Mr. Wright—I have little confidence in either party.

Mr. Milloy was again loudly called for. He briefly addressed those present. He stated that he had been told that the meeting had been gotten up by Reformers. They could imagine his surprise when he found that such men as Messrs. Wright, Bathgate, and Lukes were to be the speakers to instruct Reformers as to what was their duty. He could respect Conservative opponents when they came boldly forward, and were prepared to stand on their own bottom. He did not like them, though, to bring forward a "national policy" for the purpose of getting a few Reformers over by a cry. The gentleman who had recently been in Erin stirring up "a national policy" feeling, found little rest for the sole of his feet. He could not blame the Tories for trying to get back into power. It was natural to expect that would be the desire of their lives. It was not long ago that it was "Canada first" and party next. This was just before the elections were coming off. It died a natural death as soon as the elections were over. So will it be with this "National policy" agitation. It is only being used by the Conservatives for a party purpose. It was really astonishing the number of times the Conservatives have found it necessary to change their names, and the wonder is what will they take after they drop "National." If the Conservatives will not stand on their own bottom, it will be the duty of Reformers to make them. The Government have announced their determination to stand by their present policy. If, as had been stated by a previous speaker, Mr. Mackenzie was a thoroughly honest man, could any person for a moment suppose he would withhold a protective policy if it would be for the good of the country. To show that the farmer had to pay more for what he required if there was a protective tariff than he would now, he stated that when fifty cents a ton was put on coal he felt it in his pocket, and they must know full well that the farmer would have to pay the amount when he purchased implements. The speaker very clearly and forcibly showed the fallacy of the cry raised by the Conservatives. He asked what was the result sought by this National policy cry? Nothing but to get certain parties back into power, whom very many present would very much dislike to see reinstated. He concluded his remarks by urging upon all Reformers to be vigilent and on their guard.

Mr. Wright briefly replied.

Mr. Johnston wanted to know from Mr. Wright if every country had not a constitution and a fiscal policy, and he would like to know why every person had not a right to be present when electors were called for such a purpose?

Mr Wright made some explanations. He remarked that there were some people who should be taught "manners."

The resolutions that were read out and declared carried at an earlier stage in the meeting, and the two following were then read by the secretary.

Moved by Joseph Carter, seconded by Henry Scott, that this meeting in order to carry out the principles enunciated in the resolutions which have just been carried, do form itself into an association to be called "The Eramosa National Association." The object of this association shall be to promote, by all fair and honorable means, the adoption by Canada of a national fiscal policy, calculated to advance the best interests of the Dominion; and to this end the members of this Association, both individually and collectively, pledge themselves to oppose any candidate for Parliament who will not support a National Fiscal Policy, irrespective of the consequences to any political party.

Moved by David Shultis, seconded by Jno. McKerlie, that with a view to promoting the objects the meeting has in view this meeting invites the other municipalities of the Riding to take action similar to that taken by this meeting, and that the executive committees of the other municipal institutions, or so many of them as can make it convenient, are requested to meet at Guelph at two o'clock p.m., on Wednesday, 4th April, to form a Central Committee for the constituency, and to take such action as to them may then seem expedient to promote the objects of this Association.

The motions were declared carried unanimously.

The contrary was asked for, and it was not strange that those who opposed the resolutions refrained from voting, inasmuch as they had been told only a short time previously that they were not allowed, neither had any business, to vote.

At a subsequent meeting the following officers were elected:—

President—Mr. Jonathan Tovell.

Vice President, Division No. 1—Mr. Wm Duffield; No 2—Mr. Henry Carter; No. 3—Mr Alex. Loghrin; No. 4—Mr. Henry Hortop, jr. Secretary—Mr. Geo. Haigh. Treasurer—Mr. Jas. Knowles.

Mr. Milloy hoped the chairman would give the meeting a little light on the resolution. He would insist on that.

The Secretary considered that Mr. Milloy had no right to insist on anything at the meeting.

Mr. Milloy endeavored to make himself heard, and commenced reading from the poster calling the meeting amid cries of "put him out."

Mr. Jonathan Tovell stated all would have a chance to speak after the resolutions had been put. He had been a Reformer all his life and was yet, but what was wanted in his opinion was reform in the party.

Mr. R. Talbot thought the proper time to hear explanations was before the resolutions were declared carried.

On motion, the movers and seconders of the resolutions retired to draw up a constitution of the Eramosa National Association.

Mr. Wm. Lukes, of Newmarket, was introduced to the audience. He held that the only fair way to put resolutions to a meeting was to allow an amendment being submitted. An explanation of what the speaker understood by a national policy was made. It was for a country to legislate for their own interests. The national policy of Canada was to so legislate that our commercial interests would be looked after independent of the interests of all other colonies. He would ask if they were prepared to support Canadian interests in preference to any other. (Hear, hear) The United States legislated for themselves solely by their statesmen putting on a highly protective tariff. He was in favor of free trade if it could be made universal. There was however no such thing as free trade. England perhaps came nearer to it than any other nation, but her customs returns gave the lie to the statement that that that country is altogether free trade. England was an exceptional country inasmuch as it could not raise enough produce for its inhabitants and had to largely import. The United States was highly protected and it was in the interests of any country to be protected.

A voice—John Bright does not think so.

Mr. Lukes continued and held that John Bright was only bright in the eyes of some people. It had been said that any manufacturer who could not make money with a duty of seventeen and a half per cent should go farming. Cartwright, Brown and others had tried farming and failed.

A voice—Millers break down too. They however want wheat to come in free of duty.

Mr. Lukes held that when a country was devoted exclusively to agriculture low wages and ignorance of farmers was the result. Skilled artisans and manufacturers were required to improve the country. In referring to the benefits of protection to Americans, the speaker stated that when the English market became depressed, they sent their produce into Canada and laughed in their sleeves at the foolish Canadians allowing it to be brought in duty free. If we are to be a great people we must look after our individual interests. Although loyal to the land of his adoption, when his individual interests suffered he was prepared to sever his connection with the county, if, by so doing, he could better his condition.

A voice—We want national interests and not men with only one view and that their own individual interests.

Mr. Lukes continued, and in answer to questions put admitted that it was Sir John A. Macdonald's Government that removed the duty on wheat, flour and coal. He then went on to say that the present Opposition did right in not defining their policy, as the Reformers would steal a policy as they would steal letters.

Amid much uproar, Mr. Milloy demanded, as a Reformer, that the offensive statement be withdrawn.

Mr. A. W. Wright said it would be well to retract, by saying that Reformers would not steal a policy as soon as they would a letter.

Mr. Lukes evidently was not prepared to retract. He continued by giving an instance of the way the American duty affected a friend of his living in Port Hope. His friend sold horses across the lines for $600 and of that amount he had to pay $120 duty. Mr. Mackenzie had argued that free trade meant a cheap country to live in. Well, we don't want that, as cheap ploughs and harrows mean cheap wheat and butter.

Mr. Milloy—How far do you want the protection policy to be carried?

Mr. Lukes—As high as the United States.

Mr. Milloy—What do you want protected by duty?

Mr. Lukes—The agricultural interests.

Mr. Milloy—What about our manufactures?

Mr. Lukes—Let the manufacturers look out for themselves. (Oh! ho! and laughter.)

The speaker then brought his remarks to a close, after which a number in the audience took their departure.

Mr. Wm. Bathgate's remarks were listened to attentively. The greater portion of his speech was read. He dealt largely in figures.

Mr. Henry Duffield made a few interruptions while Mr. Bathgate was speaking, intimating that he and Mr. Whitelaw had the same thing out some time before

Mr. Milloy was then called for amid much confusion. He stated that he would like to hear some whose names were on the poster calling the meeting give their views on the question. He was not at all afraid to discuss the question on the platform, but as he believed Mr. Wright, a Conservative, was to speak he would prefer to follow that gentleman.

Before the meeting closed the parties appointed to draft a constitution brought in their report which embraced a neatly drawn up constitution.

The number present, by actual count was one hundred and fifteen.

It was nearly one o'clock Wednesday morning when the meeting broke up.

The Evening Mercury

WEDNESDAY EVN'G, MARCH. 20. 1878.

The Pacific Railway Terminus.

The Committee appointed to inquire into the purchase of the land at the terminus of the Pacific Railway on the Kaministiquia River, has been sitting for some days, and everything relating to the matter has been told by the several witnesses. Mr. Mackenzie in his evidence said that the Government had decided that the terminus should be at Thunder Bay, but that the location of the land had been made by Mr. Fleming. The valuators of the land had been recommended by Hon. Mr. Pardee, and are gentlemen of unimpeachable integrity. They could sell one-half of the lots for three times the amount they paid. He entered fully into the capacities of the Kaministiquia, completely defending the Government. Captain Norris and Mr. McGregor, both shipowners, said that the Kaministiquia was one of the best harbors in the world, while it was impossible to make a harbor at Prince Arthur's Landing. The testimony of Mr. P. J. Brown established some valuable points as fixing the value of property purchased by the Government. The valuation of the property was not made, it appears, at the prices for which lots were bought at the time the valuation was made, but at the figures some time previously given, which were much less than was obtained at later sales. He also testified that Oliver, Donaldson & Co. had much larger interests at Prince Arthur's Landing than at the Kaministiquia, and that if the terminus had been located at the Landing it would have cost $100,000 more than at the Kaministiquia. He also showed that the Prince Arthur Railway had paid $1,600 per acre for land at the Landing, while the Government only paid $500 per acre for the Kaministiquia property, including all improvements and river frontage. This testimony, in the face of the statements made is of great value.

The testimony of Mr. Robt. Reid, one of the valuators, is also of importance. In his evidence before the Committee, he stated that the valuators took as the basis of their valuation the price paid for lots by occupants in 1874-5. He illustrated by several instances the care and judgment exercised by himself and his colleague in keeping down prices, they having cut down prices demanded by the owners very considerably. He also showed that several owners lost money by selling to the Government for less than they had paid for their lots. Concerning the Davidson property, it was his opinion that if it had been valued by arbitration the Government would not have obtained it at as advantageous terms as they did. It having been insinuated that the report of the valuators had been tampered with in the Department at Ottawa, Mr. Reid settled that point by closely examing the document in the Committee and declaring that it was exactly the same as originally sent to the Government.

From all this it will be seen that the attacks of the Tory press about the purchase of the Kaministiquia property, including the famous Neebing Hotel, have lost their edge, and have deprived the Opposition of another of their grievances. In the Committee the Hon. Mr. Aikens did his utmost to shape the testimony to make points against the Government, but he utterly failed. Mr. Reid gave his evidence in a straightforward manner, and convinced every impartial person who heard him that in the valuation of the land there was nothing that would not bear the light of day and the keenest scrutiny. Senator Aikens, in his despair, asked every question calculated to catch a man who was not answering honestly, but his failure to make even one point was clear. The fact is the Committee has failed at every point, and so far as results against the Government go, may be denominated a perfect fizzle.

"Our National Policy."

The so-called National Policy of the Conservatives means "Send us back to Power." As a gentleman remarked to us to-day, it is not Protection, but Politics that is at the bottom of this movement. This was very clearly shown at the meeting called by the National Policy men at the Centre Inn on Tuesday evening. It was announced as a meeting of the electors of Eramosa favorable to a National Policy, and yet not a single elector of the Township felt interested enough in the subject to address the meeting. Only two of the speakers have a vote in the Riding. One of the other two speakers is a sort of political tonter from Newmarket, who tried the milling business without success, and now endeavors to make his mark on the stump. The other, after failing in everything else, has taken refuge in the press, and become a kind of political Dry-as-dust, who bores everybody with his interminable harangues. These unquiet spirits who want to get back John A. Macdonald into power, thought it would be a good opportunity to do a little stroke of business for him under the guise of a "National Policy, and so they drummed up this meeting in Eramosa, had the resolutions all cut and dried a week ago, and everything so beautifully arranged as to ensure success. Some of the speeches did duty months ago in the same cause, and partook very much of the nature of "could kail het again."

But what of the "National Policy?" The scope and character of that great scheme was not explained to the meeting. Oh! no, that could not be done, for neither Sir John nor any of his followers know what that scheme is. It is about as vague and unsubstantial as anything could be; in fact it means nothing more than a skilfully devised scheme wherewith to entrap the farmers, and wean them over to the Tory side with a view of getting Sir John and his friends again into power. The intentions of those who got up the meeting were transparent enough, and the dry and dreary speeches fell flat on the audience, and did not find a single response but from those who were in political sympathy with the chief instigators of the meeting and who fully understood the real object for which it was got up.

MR. GILLIES, M. P., has accepted the nomination of the Reformers of North Bruce. The Conservative nominee, A. Sproat, M. P., has not yet given in his acceptance, and now that the Reformers are unanimous and enthusiastic, he is not likely to be in any hurry to do so.

IT is generally believed that in nominating Mr. Macdougall to Mr. Cartwright's constituency the object was to secure his defeat altogether as he will have to resign his seat for South Simcoe in order to run in Lennox. The whole is regarded as a shrewd trick concocted by the U. E. Club, Sir John and Mr. Cameron, all being disgusted and disappointed with him. The "abandoned man" is even disowned by his political friends, and is now in a double sense abandoned. It is now stated that he will run for Cardwell, leaving Mr. McCarthy at liberty to fulfil his promise to stake his political future on North Simcoe. He is reported as having expressed his anticipation of defeat, but is consoled by the reflection that Parliamentary life has no special attractions for a lawyer in good practice.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Hamilton "Times" says the reason Mr. Plumb so persistently pulls himself forward as a leader of the Conservative party, is because, last summer, he advanced large sums of money to pay the expenses of the pic-nic excursions indulged in by Sir John Macdonald and others. He holds the written acknowledgments of the U.E. Club for repeated advances, and it is understood has in writing the promise of a Senatorship should he be defeated at the next election and should his party return to power. Be this as it may, he has some secret hold on the heads of the party which they cannot shake off, because it is well known if they had their way he would not be permitted to thrust himself forward with the impudence and impertinence he manifests.

Now that the "Mail" and other Tory papers have taken up the cause of the Highlanders, for the playful remark made by Mr. Cartwright about the predatory habits of their forefathers, we shall hear no more for some time about Scotch Ascendancy. Even the Irish Canadian will cease its indignant protests against the hated race, and the whole Tory crew will hug them to their bosoms. Sir John's speech to the handful of Glengary Highlanders who made such fools of themselves by going to Ottawa shows that he is more of the charlatan than we even expected, and it also shows what tricks and dodges he will resort to, and what an amount of unmitigated trash he will say to help him to carry his political objects. The whole thing is beneath contempt, and yet all the Tory papers have received orders to copy the speech and circulate it. Such are the straits the great "Chieftain" is put to in the vain hope that such means may help to reinstate him in power. This last dodge of his shows that he is not only a fraud but a humbug.

MR. BEATTY, President of the Northern Transportation Line of Steamers, from Sarnia to Duluth, states that the scheme mentioned by Mr. Mackenzie in the House the other day is a most excellent one for bringing traffic from Manitoba by Canadian ships from Duluth to Sarnia. He says that at present the chances are that freight brought east by way of St. Paul will go on to Chicago, and thence be conveyed in American vessels, but the company that leases the Pembina branch will secure running powers from Glyndon to Duluth over the Northern Pacific, and this being the shortest possible rail route by water will secure an immense traffic for ships trading between Duluth and all points east in Canadian treaty.

BUNSTER'S hair resolution got only two votes, and the big bully of the Pacific slope had his ire raised by Mr. Mackenzie suggesting that if it passed it might apply to himself.
