KIDNEY DISEASE.

The Holy Father's Address to French Youth.

The Holy Father in replying to the address presented on behalf of the French Catholic youth at the audience of September 25, said:

Strengthened by the noble sentiments expressed in the address which has just been read to us, in your name we thank the Lord who from time to time procures us such consolation and supports our weakness with the courage necessary in the battles we have to sustain. For your protest is truly consoling to us. It affords us the assurance that amidst the difficulties which trouble the present hour, we shall have at our side, in the struggle for what is good, very dear young folk, who, united in mind and heart, under the shadow of their banner on which appears the fair device, "Piety, Study and Action," shall lead us to victory. Your protests find expression not alone in words but also in facts, of which you have given an eloquent proof by coming to Rome, even at the cost of sacrifices. You have come to the Eternal City to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the definition of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception and to place under the protection of the Queen of Heaven your Faith, the purity of your lives, your generous projects in the interests of the Church and your native land. You have come to venerate the tomb of the Prince of the Apostles and those of so many other martyrs, to derive therefrom the heroism which such noble combats need. You have come to offer to the Vicar of Jesus Christ the homage of your filial love and of your absolute obedience and to receive from him suitable directions amidst the uncertainty of human affairs and the incessant upheavals in ideas and facts.

We thank you, then, dear young people, for the consolation you bring us by your declarations, and in particular by your promise to guard as a treasure the teachings we have given in our First Encyclical. They are condensed in the programme of this Catholic Association: "Piety, Study, and Action." Yes, make yourselves a treasure of piety, but let your piety be thorough, public, and active. There are things that cannot be divided and separated in parts. One of them is piety. It is the same with it as with God, to whom are addressed the sentiments of love and respect that constitute it. God cannot be divided or diminished; piety cannot be concealed if it is not whole and complete. All or nothing. May yours also be a public piety. May your Faith have for witnesses not only the walls of the domestic hearth and of private meeting-places, but the churches, the public places, great crowds and popular assemblies. With that noble freedom given to you by inviolable liberty of the Gospel pay homage to God everywhere and before everybody. Never be so cowardly as to fear the mocking of those who would like to close the lips opened in the Lord's praise, to fetter the feet proceeding towards His temple, and bind the hands ready to lay their offerings and good resolutions upon His altars.

True piety should be enlightened. You do wisely, then, in combining study with it. Good cannot be found where the knowledge is wanting of what is useful for the salvation of souls, the reform of manners, and the acquisition of virtue: "Ubi non est scientia scientia, ibi non est bonum" (Pro. 19, 2). Your study, you are well aware, should be applied especially to the doctrine revealed by which embraces so many treasures of super-human wisdom, precepts of such high morality, teaching adapted to the formation of a virtuous life.

Nothing like it has ever been discovered by the most loudly applauded of the savants of this world, who in the confusion of a new Tower of Babel teach not truth but error, not certitude but doubt, not virtue but vice, not order but anarchy, not religion but Atheism. And it is precisely because of the want of religious studies, because of this ignorance of the knowledge of God that society is invaded by the corruption at which the prophet formerly groaned: "Cursing and lying, and killing and theft, and adultery have overflowed the land because there is no knowledge of God in it" (Osee II, 1, 2). Through having neglected or despised this study men instructed in profane matters blaspheme what they ignore and become a corrupting scourge of society.

But you, dear young people, regard as addressed to yourselves the exhortations of the Holy Spirit: Apply thyself to study, my son, and rejoice my heart, in order that you and respect for the Constitution may be able to reply to those who wish to despise you, in order that you may be capable of defending the truths of the Faith against those who would dare to combat them: "Sade sapientie filii est laetificatio cor meum ad posis exprobranti respondero sermonem" (Pro. 27, 11)

Sustained by your piety and your knowledge, practising the Divine precept: "Unicusquisque menavit Deus de proximo suo," you will arise to a fruitful apostolate. By faithfully fulfilling your duties towards God, by enriching yourselves with all the virtues and detaching the truth with courage, you will invite all men to follow your example, and you will win respect and admiration even from your adversaries themselves. And after having given to your brethren this spiritual bread you will carry out perfectly the precept of charity by offering their material bread to all those who are in want by economic institutions and works of beneficence. Then you can courageously reply to any one who despises you: "Exprobranti respondero sermonem."

Those blessed fruits are assured to us by the loyal assurance you give that you will perform all your acts under the direction of episcopal authority. Experience has shown you that that direction is for the work of showing people the condition of its Christian vitality. May this truth be understood by so many of those blind persons who profess to be Catholics and yet claim absolute independence towards all authority and claim a liberty which would no longer be that of the sons of God but of Lucifer's rebels. If obedience is necessary in every order of affairs, can they free themselves from it who consecrate themselves to works depending so intimately on charity and religion? God grant that your example may lead all those young people to repentance, and that with them as with you we may be able to rejoice in the good done, the victory gained, and the merits secured.

Meanwhile we again thank you for the consolation you have brought us and we trust that of each of you can be repeated the eulogy that of the Holy Ghost made of Tobias. One of the youngest of the tribe of Nephtali, Tobias never had anything puerile in his actions. When all rushed to the golden calves made by Jeroboam, he went alone to the Temple and there adored the Lord of Israel. Led into slavery, he visited his brothers in captivity to bring to them the words of salvation. As far as he could, he gave to eat to those who hungered, he clothed those who were in want of covering, he buried the dead. Although a slave he lived in joyfulness of heart, ever growing in the fear and love of God till his death. May the Apostolic Blessing realize this wish. We grant it to you with all our heart, begging the Lord to bear our prayer, for your friends, your works, and for all who help you to direct them by material support or advice.

Items of Interest.

"since the establishment of libraries of first-class books in the public schools of Chicago," says the Catholic Columbian, "the reading of sensational trashy stories has almost died out among the children there. If boys and girls were only directed to what is best, their taste for good reading would be formed. But when they are left to themselves, and no books are provided for them, the reading of course is often selected by chance and the devil."

"There are so many of God's poor roaming the streets with barely a crust to munch or an extra rag to shield them from the blasts of winter that the season of good cheer seems almost a sham," says the Annals of Our Lady of Lourdes. "And the joy of Christmas is a sham for anyone who has not offered a mite to make pleasanter the life of those poor whose days are all too dark, and who rarely feel the ease of even the lowest of us. Among good Catholics the order of celebration should rightly be God, His poor, and the well-to-do at home."

"There is no denying the fact," says the Catholic Transcript, "that the tide is setting in favor of Socialism. And the day may come, here in America, when we will no longer have Democrats and Republicans—differing in non-essential things but practical y loyal to the Constitution—but Conservatives and Radicals or Constitutionists against the advocates of anarchy and revolution. In such a readjustment, it is not difficult to imagine where all sane citizens will be found. When the reign of disorder is threatened, the Catholic Church will be recognized and acknowledged by all responsible men as a mighty element in making for authority and respect for the Constitution."

It will then be found good state membership to encourage her and second her in the work of education which she is carrying on in her schools—schools which will be regarded as ours, in the law-abiding and the contented."

Two golden jubilees in which the Catholics of England will take a lively interest are about to be celebrated. Right Rev. Bishop Hall, D. D., of Newport, senior of the English hierarchy, completes the fiftieth year of his profession as a Bachelor of Divinity at Ampleforth, and the sacerdotal golden jubilee of Mgr. Giles, rector of the English College, Rome, will be observed upon the anniversary of his ordination on the second Sunday of November.

The smallest grand seminary in the Catholic world, remarks "The Ave Maria," is undoubtedly that of Horar, in East Africa. It consists of only three rooms, or halls, whose combined measurement is scarcely 70 feet square. One apartment serves as dormitory; the second as recreation room, and the third as study, class room, lecture-hall—and "omnibus chamber," as the Capuchin superior, Father Seraphin, calls it. The seminarians number eleven, all of them natives, eight being Gallar and the other three Abyssinians. Six of their number have already received minor orders. Father Seraphin claims, in a letter to the "Missions Catholiques," that his seminary is not only the smallest in the world, but the poorest as well, and appeals to Catholic charity for funds wherewith to ensure the prosecution of his important work—the training of native missionary priests.

The closing by the French Government of clerical educational establishments, demanded by freedom of thought, is not in all cases purely a matter of principle. It implies also, sometimes, certain material advantages, of which the Simon Pares of the Bloc are not above availing themselves, as is shown by the following. One of the leading members of M. Combes' majority, a radical member for one of the Departments of Brittany, had secured the appointment of a friend and neighbor of his, a retired naval officer, to the post of Governor of a small group of islands which were lately declared a French colony. The officer hesitated, as he was a married man with a family and the salary was only 12,000 francs (2480). "Take the appointment in any case," said the Deputy to his friend. "We shall see to your requirements. The Minister cannot give you a higher salary and the credits do not allow of more being paid. But there is over there a Marist college which is paid a government subsidy. We shall suppress it. This will leave you with some more money and the business of the liquidation should bring you in an important addition to your salary." This instructive conversation—about which the officer made no mystery, and which he gave out in explanation of his acceptance of such a poorly paid post—is now the edification of Brittany.

"Kindly allow me to place before you the following statement, which I am compelled to make, both by a sense of patriotism and by a sense of urgent need. You know the laws which have recently been applied to the congregation of which for fifty-four years I have been a member. Our Brothers in France have had to choose between secularization and exile. Some of them have come over here, more are coming, and in order to find work for them we are thinking of opening new schools in Syria. But where could we find in Syria, in this Liban which has remained so French, the money necessary for the opening of these schools? Our establishments have been ordered on the demand of French Consuls. With the subventions which were granted to us by the French Government we have founded schools which are now prosperous. If these subventions are to be withdrawn, as seems likely, our schools will suffer to the great detriment of French influence and to the advantage of foreign establishments, which are generally supported. There are three of our most important houses which we shall have to close down soon unless help is forthcoming. These are: those of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth. The closing of these schools, so well known and so frequently visited, is all the more to be dreaded as the English and the Germans have in these towns a large number of educational establishments, which, if we were not there, would soon sweep away every vestige of French education from the peninsula."

The Canadian Manufacturers Association of Toronto has accepted the invitation of the London Chamber of Commerce to visit England in June and has secured the entire first class passenger accommodation of the steamer Victoria now being built for the A/line.

CANADIANS will again do garrison duty at Halifax, and likely permanently. The Imperial Infantry Regiment expect to be on their way to England inside of two weeks, and the two companies of Artillery will shortly start for Hong Kong. So say Halifax advices.

ADVICES from Minneapolis say that eleven persons lost their lives by the caving in of the wall of a building, which had recently been damaged by fire. The walls fell upon the roof of a hotel, the tons of brick and stone crashing from the roof of the basement while the people were asleep in the hotel.

A Montreal despatch of the 16th, says: It is now pretty well understood here in Conservative circles that Mr. E. L. Borden, will take the Carleton seat now held by Mr. Kidd. Mr. Borden, will possibly reside in Ottawa and practice at the Ontario Bar.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

The "Holiday Messenger," is the name of an eight page pamphlet distributed by Messrs. M. Trainor & Co. It is excellently printed on fine white paper and is beautifully illustrated. It contains, in addition to advertisements and reading matter descriptive of the firm's great store and beautiful holiday goods, interesting stories and other attractive matter. The illustrations, with a strong flavor of Christmas and Santa Claus, will be of the greatest interest to the young.

The market was well attended yesterday and prices good. Eggs 25 to 26 cents a dozen; butter brought 25 cents, Turkeys ranged from a dollar to a dollar and ten cents each, and geese went as high as a dollar and thirty cents. One mammoth turkey was held at five dollars; but he was a turkey. Fowl brought 60 cents. Black oats were 40 cents a bushel and white sold for 39 cents. Hay was $14.00 a ton and straw brought $10.00. Potatoes were about 20 cents a bushel, and pork changed hands at 5 1/2 cents to 5 3/4 cents a pound.

The heavy snow-storm of Sunday was not confined to this Province; but was pretty general along the coasts of the Maritime Provinces and New England. Halifax advices of Monday say—Halifax was enshrouded in a heavy mantle of white yesterday. The snow storm which set in early in the morning, continued all day, and proved unusually heavy for so early in the season. When the storm broke snow fell lightly, but as it progressed it increased in fury and with high wind assumed almost blizzard proportions. No damage here about is reported; but the New England coast suffered from a gale at Vineyard Sound, the worst since 1893.

A Sydney despatch of the 19th, says: According to news received, a real wild western hold up took place at Broughton a new town which the Cape Breton Coal, Iron and Railway Co. are building in connection with the mines at Cochrane Lake. At 9 o'clock Saturday night, two young men armed with revolvers entered the store of Mr. Landry, and holding a gun at the head of the proprietor, demanded that he give up all the cash in the store, which he did. Landry keeps a large general store at this place, besides a boarding house, and Thursday last being pay day at the mines it was believed he had a large sum of money on the premises the larger part of which was taken by the robbers. It is said Landry recognized one of the men as a former Cape Bretoner who lately resided in Halifax. Both men escaped and are still at large.

We wish to give these statements our emphatic denial. They are misleading, and we advise persons receiving such letters and information, to look carefully into the truth of the matter before acting.

HOPE.

(Written for the Sacred Heart Review)

BY MARY HARDMAN SHERRIDAN.

As glows the beacon light upon the harbor To guide the storm-tossed vessel safely home, So shines the star of Hope for each poor mortal That thro' this dark, tempestuous world does roam.

When sorrow comes, and heavy clouds hang o'er us, And when with gloom our weary hearts are filled; When God has taken from us some dear loved one, And lips we often kissed, by death are chilled.

'Tis then, O Lord, we turn to Thee for comfort, Thou'st promised aid to all who call on Thee; Then shine, once more, that star of Hope, so brightly, And with our tear-dimmed eyes, its light we see.

It tells us the oft-repeated lesson Of meeting with our loved ones, once again, What time our earthly life is past and ended, And we are freed from sorrow and from pain.

Growth and Folly of Socialism.

We cannot blink the fact that socialism is making rapid growth in this country, where, of all others, there would seem to be the least inspiration for it. In lands where common right is abridged by monarchical institutions there is no such growth.

A strange and fallacious doctrine has obtained among us that mechanistic rather than agricultural labor is the foundation of existence—at any rate, of all property; hence, mechanistic labor has organized itself, to the extent of something like ten per cent, with a view to exacting shorter hours, larger pay, the monopoly of employment, the forcing of employers to accept terms from men in their hire, in short, the protection of the wage earners against the men of capital.

In spite of the concessions we have made towards socialism, the adoption of that system would signify revolution. It would mean that the individual would lapse into inconsequence, and that the multitude, which now rules only in our politics, would take an authoritative position in all matters that affected the social body.

It would not only work on the railroads, in the mills and mines and gas houses, on the farms, but it would own them; its representatives would apportion to every man his employment, arrange his hours and wage, grant or withhold his leisure, compel him to attend a certain school, live in a certain house, and prophesies have even told us that marriages would be arranged without reference to the wishes of either party, the governors considering such compacts only from the view point of probable perfection in the offspring.

A programme like this is alluring to those whose personal ambitions are of so slight importance that they can be readily subverted to ostensible welfare of the multitude, for they reckon themselves merely as units in that multitude, and not as men apart who can serve society but by a higher personal development that seems possible under socialism.

But the socialist says that these are small and individual instances, and that the whole community would Distress by day and night—That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum—and outward applications do not cure. They can't.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

rids the blood of all impurities and cures all eruptions.

Socialism does not proceed to the extreme of communism, yet it is significant that the more advanced socialists demand wider powers of government than those who first declared the theory.

Socialism to be effective must embrace the whole world. Factories operated under its easy system would be instantly outlived by factories of other countries where the driver of hope and ambition, and the need of a wage were still operative, hence there would be no foreign commerce to bring wealth into a country that had become isolated in its socialism.

For socialism defies liberty, the primal instinct of every man whose liberty means something not merely to himself, but to the world. He who serves to compulsion will never serve well.

It would mean that the individual would lapse into inconsequence, and that the multitude, which now rules only in our politics, would take an authoritative position in all matters that affected the social body.

All Run Down

THIS is a common expression we hear on every side. Unless there is some organic trouble, the condition can doubtless be remedied. Your doctor is the best adviser. Do not dose yourself with all kinds of advertised remedies—get his opinion. More than likely you need a concentrated fat food to enrich your blood and tone up the system.

is just such a food in its best form. It will build up the weakened and wasted body when all other foods fail to nourish. If you are run down or emaciated, give it a trial: it cannot hurt you. It is essentially the best possible nourishment for delicate children and pale, anaemic girls. We will send you a sample free.

never be the engine that drives it. He who works for humanity fulfills a lofty destiny; but he who demands that all humanity shall work for him is comparatively useless.

Religious Maxims. (Sacred Heart Review.)

SUNDAY

Do not be discouraged in your work for God, should you find but few to follow you to the heights to which you long to lead them.

MONDAY

What you have done is magnificent, but it fills me with awe. I feel as if you had written with your heart's blood.

TUESDAY

Ab, dear friend, the more I think, the more do I see that prayer, prayers are needed. Fretting over personal slight is not worthy of you.

WEDNESDAY

Graces, capable of bearing great fruit, are ready to drop down upon us, like the seeds fluting down about us in thousands in the bright spring days; but we ourselves must send the breeze of prayer to loosen them.

THURSDAY

You are so near to our dear Lord—so near in every way—why do you not take the whole matter to Him? He can tell you what to do as no one else can.

FRIDAY

I have heard that one may judge of people by the letters that they receive. They themselves are the inspiration—if that is not too strong a word.

SATURDAY

I have just been reading this: Let us beg of Our Lady to obtain of God for us that inestimable gift, a perfect oneness of our will with His will, till at last our every movement shall proceed like hers from the Holy Ghost, and our hearts shall become, in their love and purity and meekness, humble copies of her spotless heart.
