The Earl's Son;

TWO HEARTS UNITED.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"Drive quickly, please!" Talbot said to the coachman; and as the high-spirited horses tore down the road Talbot tried to recover his self-possession. He realized that he had been unwise in not returning to the court house, in flying like a criminal; but it was too late to go back now. He must reach the house and get to London; he could invent some excuse for his sudden departure. In London he would have time to think, to face the situation and meet it.

After all, there was no danger of the truth being known. He would live to see Ralph Farrington—Lord Denby, curse him!—hanged.

He got out of the carriage quickly and went up the stairs. At the top, Gibbon, who had been looking down at him with a keen intentness in his dull, colourless eyes, moved slowly across the corridor.

"Is that you, Gibbon?" said Talbot. "Pack my portmanteau and order a carriage—a close carriage—to take us to the station. I have been summoned to town on—on important business."

"Yes, sir," said Gibbon. "There's no train till the four-thirty, sir," he added in his toneless voice.

Talbot, as he entered his room, turned on him savagely. "Obey my orders," he said, harshly, "and be quick about it. You—you move about the place like a black slug."

Gibbon raised his head and looked at his master's back with a twitch of his lips that was like a mute snarl, then he went down stairs. A few minutes later Talbot, who was pacing up and down his room vainly trying to recover his usual calmness, to assure himself that he was in no peril, heard the man packing in the adjoining room. Gibbon was a long time about the task, but presently he came into the bedroom.

"Your things are packed, sir," he said; "and the dog-cart is waiting."

Talbot faced round upon him passionately; for there is no passion so intense, so ungovernable, as fear.

"You senseless hound!" he said. "I told you a close carriage, a brougham! Go and order it! You'll leave my service a month from to-day and will take with you the character I had with you. Yes; this day month; it will not be very long after that before you find yourself in goal, I've no doubt. Get out of my sight!"

As Gibbon went out Talbot fell to pacing the floor. If he could only get away before the earl returned! But half an hour passed and Gibbon did not return; presently Talbot heard a carriage drive up, and he went to the window and looked out. But it was the earl returning in a fly. Talbot bit his lip and forced some color into his face, then went down stairs, and Talbot entered the room with an old telegram envelope in his hand.

"I hope you will forgive me for taking the carriage, sir," he said, "but a man brought a most important telegram to the court house, a wire from our chief; I must return at once."

The earl had sunk into his chair at Talbot's entrance, and his head was bent, his eyes fixed on the carpet as if he could not bring himself to look at the man whom, until lately, he had regarded as his heir and successor; for, in truth, the old man was weighed down by the shame which should have crushed the guilty, not the innocent. He raised his head at last slowly and looked steadily and scornfully at the sallow face.

"You are leaving Lynne Court for the last time I trust," he said, his voice heavy with the shame and the exhaustion of the scene he had gone through.

Talbot affected to start. "You mean—surely you cannot mean that you intend to quarrel with me, sir?" he said, in a deeply injured tone.

The earl's eyes flashed.

"Quarrel!" he echoed, his delicate nostrils expanding. "There are some men whom one does not stoop to quarrel with. But there are some men one cannot suffer beneath an honest roof. Lynne Court has never yet harboured a liar and a scoundrel!"

Talbot's sallow face grew dark. "You forget whom you are addressing, my lord!" he said, with an affectation of wounded dignity and indignation.

"Would to God I could!" said the old man, with a stifled groan. "If I could only forget! But the bitterness and shame, of remembering that you are of my blood, that you might have followed me here, here where no such villain as you has ever been master! But that—the chance of your following me—has been averted, thank God!"

"I am not so sure," muttered Talbot, then he checked himself and sighed deeply. "You are attaching undue importance to the statement of that young woman, Fanny Mason. Surely, sir, you cannot be so ignorant of the world as not to be aware that a woman of her character is unworthy of credit, is never, yes, never to be believed! Is it not quite a common occurrence for such a woman to lay the blame of her misfortune, misconduct, at the door of some prominent person, someone whom she may hope to blackmail, someone of higher rank than herself, so that her fault may seem excusable?"

The earl regarded him with increasing loathing and disgust. "The girl spoke the truth," he said, sternly. "There was not a soul in the court who doubted her!"

Talbot raised his brows. "Nor would they if she had ascribed her fall from virtue to anyone else—say the prisoner," he retorted, with a sneer. "In fact, I think she was rather foolish in not doing so! She left the place soon after his mysterious disappearance. He is a man of no character—in the eyes of the law at any rate; he is charged with murder—this other peccadillo is a slight one compared—"

The earl's eyes flashed. "You malign him!" he cried. "He is my son—he is not capable of such baseness—"

"Grant it, sir; but why should you think me capable of betraying her?" said Talbot, gravely.

The earl leant forward. "Because a thief is capable of most things."

"A thief!" Talbot retorted. Then he laughed as if the accusation were too absurd to cause resentment.

"Yes, a thief! By what other name can you call the man who steals a will from a safe and destroys it?" Talbot's face blanched and his lips worked.

"You saw—" escaped his lips. "I was awake—I saw!" said the earl. "No more. Wait! A thief is always a fool, but you are as great a one as ever existed, for you were not careful enough to see that the will you burnt was the right one: you burnt the wrong one!"

Talbot's eyes flew to the safe and he bit his lip.

"There is some mistake, sir," he stammered.

The earl smiled a terrible smile of merciless cynicism.

"Yes, it was a mistake. But no

Is Your Back Full of Aches All Day Long?

That Stab-like Pain in the Back is Sure Indication of Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez writes as follows from her home in Valencia: "For a long time I suffered with falling strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs became bloated and shaky. I was sallow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy, I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

matter. You are going. It is long since I offered up a prayer, but I pray now that I may never see your face again!"

Talbot's dark eyes flashed savagely; then he cast them down and sighed deeply.

"You are unjust, sir; you wrong me!" he said. "I will write to you from London—I dare not stay—and I will ask you to keep an open mind until you have heard my explanation, my defence."

The earl raised his hand and pointed to the door, and Talbot, with another sigh, passed out.

The brougham was waiting, a footman opened the door for him, and Talbot got in. Gibbon mounted to the box and the carriage drove to the station.

"I'm afraid there's more than an hour to wait, sir," said Gibbon, as he stood beside the carriage door when it pulled up at the steep flight of wooden stairs leading to the station.

Talbot glanced at his watch. "Get the tickets!" he said, as if he were speaking to a dog and a cur at the same time. He followed the man up the stairs, and, lighting a cigarette, paced up and down the platform; his head erect, though his face was pale and heavy; in fact, he looked as he had often looked when the luck had gone against him in some gambling hell.

After a time he grew tired of the monotonous pacing, and, on reaching the end of the platform, he stepped off and walked beside the line, scarcely conscious of what he was doing. No one interfered with him—though he passed a porter and the signal man seated on the steps of his box—and indeed he was in no danger, for the embankment was broad. It was also a very high one, and after about half a mile it led to the viaduct which, at its erection, had caused quite an excitement in the neighborhood, and was still regarded with pride by the simple country folk, who considered it a marvel of engineering skill.

Talbot leant with folded arms against the low stone wall and looked into the valley which the arches spanned. But it may safely be said that he did not see the pretty cooing, with its beech and oak-trees and its silvery stream running peacefully between banks of fern and gorse. So

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and so equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKS CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Ferdie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland—far down seemed the sheep and cattle that browsed beside the brook that they appeared dwarfed and as if in a "bird's-eye" picture. Talbot, though he was staring at it, saw nothing of the loveliness of the view: he was looking at the mental picture of the stern, white-faced old man pointing to the door; at a still more unwelcome vision: that of the hated Ralph Farrington reigning at Lynne Court. But no, no! Ralph Farrington would be hanged.

He was awakened from his reverie by a shadow falling across the coping of the bridge and, turning his eyes, he saw that it was Gibbon.

"I told you to wait at the station!" said Talbot in a low voice. "Go back!" Gibbon still approached, so that his shadow fell athwart his masters.

"I wanted to speak to you, Mr. Talbot," he said. "I wanted to tell you that I'm not coming up to town with you."

Talbot eyed him haughtily. "Go back! You are coming with me! I have need of you—strange as it may seem. You fall-bird! Did you hear what I said?"

Gibbon nodded and leant against the wall, his hands thrust into his pockets, his colorless eyes fixed on Talbot's furious face. Talbot thought he was drunk.

"Oh, yes, I heard!" said Gibbon, coolly. "But I'm not coming. I'm going back to the Court, to Lord Lynborough. I'm going to make a clean breast of it!"

M. Clemenceau's Great Speech.

THE KAISER'S MAD IMPUDENCE
—SWORD OF LIBERTY DRAWN.

PARIS, Aug. 8.
In a signed statement to the press, ex-Premier Clemenceau, one of the most brilliant of living Frenchmen, says: "In the enormous issues now at stake, it is not merely France or Russia or England that we have to consider, but the destiny of European civilization, which will now be decided by force of arms. The result will be either the maintenance of the fine diversity of culture among independent peoples, or an execrable unity of German manufacture. Thus our cause is the cause of all nations and governments, who do not separate sentiment and national dignity from their conception of life, based on the national traditions."

"We Frenchmen, who are sending our sons to battle, who are traitorously menaced at the very roots of our national life, are resolved to save all we can save of our glorious contributions to civilization, by defending ourselves. We become champions all. We march with England, who herself in an age of iron thought to dominate us, and we had to fight to win back our independence. Then Britain threw herself into economic world conquest, and built up an immense Empire, of which civilization can only be proud. Now she nobly draws the sword for the liberty and dignity of the European peoples. Formerly the enemy of Napoleonic hegemony, and of Bismarckian domination she now seeks only that all people be free in Europe."

"Italy remains neutral, and I do not risk much in predicting that the Italian people will speedily realize that their short-sighted government were mad in even placing themselves at the service of Germanism, against the Latin race."

"Finally comes Russia, which, only yesterday seemed to be the last European refuge of Asiatic despotism; Russia, which under the late Czar entered upon the path of liberty, and set afoot an incomparable intellectual movement which places her in the front rank of cultured civilization; Russia magnificent. There idealism is renaissance, and brings with it new springs of energy."

"What Feudal German bureaucracy fears is an intellectual revolt which will destroy that blind obedience on which the government reposes. The Kaiser's manifesto to his people is a sham of shame. No one will ever fully realize how these beasts of prey have allied vile hypocrisy with savage brutality."

"Only yesterday, Baron Schoen said to one of my friends: 'Tell the world we do not want war. It was our misfortune not to know the wishes of Austria to whom we are indissolubly attached as you are to Russia. We will do all we can to prevent war. How do German acts square with these words? She declared war on Russia, because the latter mobilized on the Russian-Austrian frontier,' as a reply to Austrian mobilization. The German war declaration on Russia came at the very moment that Austria, her ally, had accepted, Sir Edward Grey's mediation proposals, that is to say, just as the primary cause of this great war was disappearing. It was then that the Kaiser declared war on Russia, and violated the neutrality of Luxembourg and Belgium in order to march against France."

"The Kaiser talks about 'envious people forcing Germany to just defence, and that he will show his enemies what it means to provoke Germany.' This appears mad impudence, because Germany cannot cite a single act, or even word of provocation, coming from her neighbors. In reality, all provocation came from the autocrat, who wants to throw his hordes on France, as did his ancestors on Rome. The Kaiser's grandiose words are the Germanic formula for inflaming appeals, for pious savagery, for enterprises of pillage, and harsh domination. The Emperor calls upon the God of Vengeance to help him in this greatest crime against humanity in all history, for the Emperor recommends his troops to go to Church and pray for abundant rapine."

Attended Service.

About 150 of the Reservists of H.M. St. Mary's Church yesterday morning, Rev. H. Uphill, officiated, and also preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon from the text, "Be Ready." At the conclusion of the service the whole congregation sang the National Anthem.

A large squad of Reservists also attended last mass at St. Patrick's yesterday where Rev. Fr. Pippy was the celebrant.

Mme. Thebes, Prophecy

Her Forebodings Last Winter to be On Verge of Realization.

Paris, July 30.—The European war situation was foretold last winter by Madame Thebes, world-famous seer, in the following words:

"Russia will bring order out of disorder in the Balkans, unless German intrigue causes the Russian power to topple. St. Petersburg's greatest enemy is Berlin."

Germany: What I see fills me with fear. The Kaiser's future looms dark and foreboding. In the south, many victims of riots and war."

Austria: Unhappy country! In Vienna, riots, fire, and blood. The country will pass through dark days—grave conflicts, financial embarrassments, street fighting and worse still, open hostility between the Slavs and the Germans is approaching."

England: War at home and war outside, with a revolution or something approaching it over Ireland."

Mme. Thebes' predictions regarding France made no mention of war, the whole condition of the country being summed up in the prediction that it would be "a happy year for France."

Mme. Thebes claims to have predicted the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, when she said regarding Austria: "Who thinks he will reign will not reign and a young man who was not to have reigned will reign."

A Summer Tale.

"You look irritated this evening." "I am—on warm days like this I always suffer from heat rash."

"I am liable to heat rash, too, but it never irritates me; it never has since I began to use Zylex, which at once allays the irritation, physical and mental. And I find Zylex Soap with the Ointment go far to prevent heat rash altogether."

Zylex sells at 50 cents a box; Zylex Soap at 25 cents a cake, at your Druggists.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The schr. Grace, Capt. F. Roberts, finished discharging her load of 120M. lumber this forenoon and is now taking ballast.

The business of the Horwood Lumber Company, near the Public wharf, is now a busy place, as men are engaged in piling the lumber of different grades. It is a healthy sign to see a firm of this calibre taking hold of Harbor Grace.

Mr. Silas French, fishing with his brothers at Carbonar Island, has been very sick for several weeks owing to a cold and other causes. His brothers thought it well to bring him in here yesterday and place him under the care of a doctor. Hope soon to be able to report his complete recovery.

Quite a number of trout were in the country yesterday and all secured fair catches. Several ladies also availed of the holiday and fine weather to spend the day on the "Barrens."

There seems to be very much dissatisfaction here at the way the foreign dispatch is sent to Harbor Grace. On Tuesday evening at about 7.30 or 8 o'clock the first public message for the day arrived, and strange to say that same message appeared in the St. John's papers of that day, which probably went to press at 2.45 or 3 o'clock. There is no blame whatever to be laid to the operator in charge, who is most obliging and courteous, and spares himself no trouble to give the public all the reliable information that is sent.

Mr. Albert Heath, clerk with Mr. Thomas Ross, has been inconvenienced for some time by a growth at the back of his right ear. On Friday last he had it removed by Dr. Parsons and has been confined to his home ever since.

The British excursion to St. John's takes place on Wednesday next, Aug. 12th. A dance will be held in the British Hall at night. A good time is assured.

Botwood Notes.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—The children of Botwood, Peter's Arm, Northern Arm and Laurenceston, belonging to all denominations had a great day on Tuesday, August 4th. Through the kindness of Harry J. Crowe, Esq., who provided splendid prizes, and abundance of candy, biscuits, etc., it was planned to hold the picnic on Evans' Point, Northern Arm.

Mr. Crowe despatched two motor boats to pick up the children from Peter's Arm and Laurenceston. Mr. Park, Esq., kindly gave the use of his large motor boat, the Jupiter, which conveyed the first large contingent to N. Arm and returned with a large yacht in tow which had been lent by Mr. Jerry Ball. Both boats were loaded with children and friends who took advantage of the fine day to take a trip with the scholars and teachers. The run from Botwood to Northern Arm was most enjoyable. The friends of Northern Arm spared no pains in making preparations and gave to the visitors a hearty welcome.

On the field all manner of games were indulged in and enjoyed. Children and teachers of the various places and schools vied with each other in the different contests, such as foot races, tug-of-wars, etc. Mr. Crowe, with Harry S. Crowe, Adj. Simmons, S.A., Mr. Hampton of Bishop's Falls and the Rev. J. Davis, of Laurenceston, took a lively interest in arranging and carrying out the various contests.

After this tea and refreshments were served with a plentiful supply of lime juice, biscuits, etc. The field presented a fine appearance as the large number of scholars and friends seated themselves around in different groups and refreshed themselves. An abundance of candy was distributed among the children and friends. Prizes were then given to the winners in the various games. The National Anthem was heartily sung, followed by cheers for the King.

The return journey to Botwood and Laurenceston was made safely. Thanks and cheers were given to Mr. Crowe for his great kindness. As a lover of the little folk it is a pleasure to him to take part with them in such enjoyments.

The leaders of the various denominations are very thankful to him and Mr. Park who kindly lent his motor boat and to all who in any way contributed to give the young folk a good time.—Com.

MONDAY, Aug. 10, 1914.

A Good Start.

BELGIANS BRILLIANT DEFENCE.

It is almost a week ago since Germany tried to cajole Britain into neutrality by promising to respect at the end of the war Belgian integrity. At the very moment she was making the promise she was violating a signed and sealed solemn obligation to respect Belgian neutrality. At the same time she was trying to bully Belgium into consenting to allow her troops to pass through Belgium without opposition. King Albert faced the bully and appealed to France and England for aid, but whilst doing so called upon his subjects to do their part manfully and oppose the German invaders. The story of the past few days tells of the heroic resistance offered by little Belgium, a resistance which will live long in the nation's annals. When the Kaiser's Legions were hurled on the forts around Liege, they apparently expected to break through them and rush the country south of the River Meuse and overwhelm the French army before it was prepared to meet them. These forts are old but manned by brave men and supported by forces outside the forts they have done great work in holding back the Germans for nearly a week and giving time for the French army to prepare to meet them. Germany has long meditated an attack on France in the direction she is taking, for her military strategic railways converge on the route she has taken, and where Belgium has put up a brilliant defence and done the work expected of her. By all accounts British troops will soon be in the fray. The expeditionary force which has been equipped at Aldershot is now marching towards Liege. The small, it is said to be one of the best equipped armies in the world. Recruiting is proceeding apace, and even military and naval deserters are voluntarily surrendering themselves, saying they want to fight. The Manchester Guardian which opposed the war, has come over to the united front. The latest phase of the attempt to cajole, bribe or bully Italy into joining Germany and Austria in a war is that Austria threatens Italy with war and the over-running of her territory. What use an unwilling ally would be to them is difficult to understand. There seems to be nothing left to Italy now, after her strenuous attempt to maintain neutrality but to join Britain and France and their allies. The news of such an effect would be great news to us, for it would mean that the Mediterranean Sea would become absolutely safe for our traffic and would go far to give additional security to our shipping on the Atlantic. It is inconceivable that Italy should be bullied into fighting against England and France.

A Strawberry Festival will be held by the Ladies of the C. E. W. A. in the Orphanage Grounds at Topsisail on Wednesday next, Aug. 12th, at 3.30 p.m. All are welcome.—aug10,21

Despatches Between Governor and Secretary for the Colonies.

8 August, 1914.
Ministers desire authority to enlist special men service abroad by land and sea. Ministers undertake to raise force of Naval Reserve by October 31st to 1000 efficient men available and are willing to meet all local expenses. Several hundred with efficient local Brigade training offer for enlistment for land service abroad. Believe that 500 could be enlisted within one month. Propose to induce serviceable men between eighteen and thirty-six years to enroll themselves in training for home defence wherever corps instructors are available. These would form material for further drafts.

A Criminal Act.

To-day a man named Dove, who resides on George's Street, reported to the police that at a late hour last night, and while he was sleeping, some unknown person hurled a stone through his window. Mr. Dove was awakened by the crash, and picked up the stone, which, if it had to strike anybody, would certainly have done serious injury. The stone was a fairly large one and is now in the possession of the police, who, no doubt, will "land" the perpetrator ere long.

Gower Street Church.

The Rev. Douglas Hemmeon.
(I. C. M.)

The loss of Gower Street Church by the death of its beloved and talented pastor, the late Rev. Dr. Rogers, in September last, was a severe blow, and one which left a blank not easily filled.

During the interval the Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite and the Rev. Dr. Fenwick met the emergencies, and faithfully ministered to the spiritual wants of the congregation. In the meantime the officials of the church arranged for a new pastor, and the choice has fallen upon the Rev. Douglas Hemmeon, B.D., and late of Bermuda, at which place he labored with much acceptance.

With his family the rev. gentleman has arrived in our midst and has taken up the regular duties of his pastorate, and has received a warm welcome from the people of his congregation. This welcome will be more fully demonstrated to-night, when the members of the Epworth League will tender a reception at the Lecture Room of the Church, at which a large gathering is expected.

The Rev. Mr. Hemmeon is a preacher who in his statements is very clear, and not only is he heard, but his meaning is readily seen and easily grasped. He certainly possesses the faculty of originality, and therefore does not bury his subject with undue quotations nor far-fetched illustrations. He has something to say, and says it.

On behalf of the press we extend to the rev. gentleman and his good lady and family a hearty and cordial welcome, and we assure them that while in our fair city they will find loyal friends and devoted companions. The record of Gower Street Church is sacred to thousands of hearts both at home and abroad, and its memories and associations lie deep within the bosoms of the people. Many good men have occupied the pulpit, and the influence of their labours has been far-reaching, and the best wish that we can give the new pastor is that his ministry and his devotion will be worthy his predecessors.

GERMAN SUBMARINES Attack British Fleet.

German Submarine Sunk -- British Ships Not Damaged---Austria Sends Ultimatum to Italy --- Bulgarians Brilliant Resistance of the German Troops for Almost a Week.

GOES TO ALSATIAN FRONTIER. Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Aug. 9. A despatch from Rome says that the report is current that Emperor William left Berlin for the Alsatian frontier, after receipt of news of the French victory there.

GERMAN STEAMER CAPTURED. BERMUDA, Aug. 9. H.M.S. Essex has captured a German merchantship and is escorting her to Bermuda. She is believed to be the German steamer Willehad, 4,761 tons, built in 1894, from Montreal, with grain and flour.

BIG CASUALTIES. BRUSSELS, Aug. 9. The Minister of War announces that the Germans suffered 30,000 casualties and the French 15,000, in the battle at Altkirch which resulted in the capture of the Alsatian village by French troops.

AUSTRIA'S ULTIMATUM. ROME, Aug. 9. Austria has served notice on Italy that unless she joins the triple alliance movement at once, that Austria and Germany will declare war on her and that Austria will invade Venetia and Lombardy.

FRENCH OCCUPY MULHAUSEN. PARIS, Aug. 9. The French Minister of War gives the following official account of the occupation of Mulhausen, in Alsace, by the French on Saturday. During the march from Altkirch the French forces passed abandoned earthworks and defences. At Mulhausen the populace came out from the town and welcomed the French troops. The cavalry galloped through the streets and pursued the German rear guard. The French troops have established themselves north of Mulhausen. Rout is the only word with which to describe the German retreat. The French losses were not heavy when the result is considered. The Germans retired in the direction of Neubreisach.

GERMANY'S HUMILIATION. LONDON, Aug. 10. Military experts here declare that nothing more inspiring than Belgium's heroic defences of her territory against the German invaders, can be found in history. The Germans appeal for an armistice, and their acknowledgment of a casualty roll of 25,000 men, imply confirm the Belgian triumph. This check points in the view of some military experts to the failure of the entire German campaign. If picked Army Corps, under Germany's most trusted commander, have failed against thirty-year-old forts at Liege, what chance, it is asked, have they of penetrating defences, which are judged to be the most perfect of their kind in the world,—those on the eastern and north-eastern frontiers of France. Germany's plan was that France should be beaten to the ground first, while Russia was slowly moving her forces. Then the victorious German troops were to drive back the slow invader. But, instead of gaining victory, it is argued, the Germans have opened the war by defeat from a minor power, one estimated to be of no importance, and have shown that their fighting methods are altogether antiquated.

NAVAL ENGAGEMENT. LONDON, Aug. 10. The Admiralty report an attack on British warships in the North Sea by German submarines. The British ships were uninjured. One German submarine was sunk.

Cape Report. Special to Evening Telegram. CAPE RACE, To-day. Wind N. N. W., weather fine. The motor boat Minora passed in at 8.30 and S. S. Empress of Britain east at 10.30 a.m. A number of schooners are trawling here to-day. Bar 29.63; ther. 60.

War Notes.

Francis Dyke Ackland, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in the House of Commons, on Saturday, promised to consider the suggestion proposing an exchange of Germans in England for British subjects in Germany.

The Belgian Government seized 34 German steamers and 2 sailing ships at Antwerp.

British forces on the Gold Coast, West Africa, have seized the port of Lome, in German Togoland.

Right Hon. Walter Rusciman, Secretary of Agriculture, introduced a Bill in the House of Commons on Saturday, giving the British Government power to seize all food stuffs. The bill passed through all stages.

Mr. Sullivan, of this city, received a message from Messrs. William Heap & Co., stating that steamers were sailing as usual, and there was a continuance of normal trade. The British Government offer national assistance (probably in matter of war risks to ocean traffic).

British and French troops seized Togoland, Africa, without resistance.

On August 4th a special issue of the London Gazette contains a proclamation, signed by the King, enjoining all persons to obey and conform with Admiralty and Army Council rules and regulations, in view of eminent national danger.

Russian warships captured two German steamers at the mouth of the Amur River, in Asia.

Count Albert Deman, one of the Conservative leaders in the Chamber of Deputies, writes over his own signature to a newspaper to-day, that "it was related to me by a friend that twelve Danish children who were on a German train going from Tiers, carried away by the imprudence of their youth and fervor of their young hearts, shouted 'vive la France'. They were dropped out of the train, and four of them were picked out and shot.

The Wounds of a Friend.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"If you aren't satisfied tell us; if you are tell others." The above is a very clever little advertisement which my grocer recently put up in his shop. As a hint to customers it is excellent, but I think it has a far broader gauge than that—especially the first clause. For if your merchant has a right to ask that you shall tell him, instead of others, when you are dissatisfied, your friends certainly have a far greater right. "Well, I've spent seventy-five cents to-day that I'll probably never get anything out of," I heard a woman say the other day. "How so?" someone asked. "I did an errand for Grace (naming a woman whose friend she is supposed to be) and I suppose she'll forget to pay me. She usually does. She's terribly careless about little things like that, you know." "Why don't you remind her if she forgets?" "Oh, I wouldn't do that," with an expression of injured superiority. "That would be so mean and little." As if it were half so mean as to give the woman a reputation for carelessness in money affairs! As if it were ever half so mean and unkind to tell a friend of a fault or a mistake or an injustice 'as to tell someone else about it behind her back!

Another woman who prides herself on her generosity and justice shares a certain expense with a friend, each paying according to the accommodation she receives. Conditions have changed since the proportion was agreed upon and this woman feels that she is paying more than her share. Of course she should go straight to the other party and say so. Instead she tells other people but says nothing whatever to the friend herself who would be more than eager to set the matter right if she only realized how her friend felt about it.

Again a man who was boarding with a friend was much disturbed by her daughter's piano playing. "Had he spoken to his hostess I know she would have been glad to rearrange her daughter's hours for practice, but instead he found fault with conditions to others, and finally left the house without telling what his true reason was.

It takes more courage to find fault with a friend to his face than behind his back, but it is the high kind of moral courage that is more to be desired even than physical bravery. "Faithful are the wounds of a friend," but not when they are stabs in the back.

A conspiracy against the Peruvian Government was discovered on the night of July 22nd, and a large number of plotters were surprised and captured in the residence of Dr. Gerardo Balbuena Marranco in Lima. The prisoners included seven military men, all of whom confessed that it was their intention to overturn the Government.

Severe earthquake shocks, causing considerable alarm, were felt at noon on July 27th on the southwestern shore of Nova Scotia, from Mahone Bay to Shelburne. The disturbances were in most cases felt in two distinct shocks. At Bridgewater the shock was very severe, and at Sable River, houses shook so violently that people rushed into the open, fearing collapse. At Liverpool there were two distinct shocks.

Three young girls were killed, three mortally injured and forty hurt, many of them seriously, as the result of the giving way of a large stony mass, called "The Rock of Calvary," at Val-foury, France, on July 26th. The members of a Catholic gymnastic society had been massed on the rock during a pilgrimage, and the priest had just given them his benediction when the rock oscillated and tumbled down the footpath, knocking over many children grouped there.

Fourteen bishops of the Anglican Church, representing Churches in Great Britain and the colonies, met on July 27th at Lambeth Palace in London to reach a settlement of the heresy controversy known as the Kikuyu case. The Archbishop of Canterbury presided. The bishops will consider among other things whether the proposed federation of the missionary societies of British East Africa contravenes any principles of the Church of England, and whether the action of the Bishops of Uganda and Mombasa in administering the communion to a number of persons who had not been confirmed was consistent with these principles.

The final decisions of the bishops will be announced by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Germany, according to a London newspaper, has at last induced Holland to permit the construction of a German private harbor and steel works on the northern bank of the new waterway connecting Rotterdam with the North Sea. A German company controlled by the Thysses firm bought a large area some time ago on the bank of the waterway, but was unable to get Holland's consent to cut through the foreshore and make a harbor of it. This important step Germany has now achieved on behalf of the Thysses company. The London paper's correspondent believes there is now nothing to prevent the company from accumulating vast quantities of coal and war material and constructing great docks and a naval repairing station. The present importance of Germany's coup greatly transcends its political significance. It would be perfectly practicable for the company to build up under the guise of a commercial undertaking something like a German naval base, and it would be impassable in the event of a European war. Thoughtful observers regard the incident as a step towards the Germanization of Holland. The belief prevails that the concession is the result of a deal, Germany having made attractive proposals to Holland in regard to the building of warships for the defence of the Dutch East Indies with Holland's consent to the harbor scheme as a quid pro quo.

PIPES.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slivash."

A pipe is a small receptacle made to hold a portable conflagration. It is also used by its owner as a means of discouraging intrusion by strangers and fastidious friends. A pipe consists of a wooden bowl filled with tobacco and a stem filled with nicotine and other noxious substances. It is connected with a man who is filled with smoke, which he exchanges with mutterings of deep content. Presently the contents will be replaced with deep and fervent cursing. This happens when the smoker inhales a gill of nicotine instead of the smoke. Until automobiles were invented, keeping a pipe in order and smoking sweetly was the greatest scientific problem which confronted the ordinary man.

Some pipes are made of meerschaum, a peculiar mineral substance which gradually absorbs the nicotine and turns from a creamy white to a beautiful glossy brown. Coloring a meerschaum pipe is a labor of love like running on the democratic ticket in Vermont and requires great talent and patience. Many a young man who has stood at the head of his classes in college has ignominiously burned the top off his meerschaum pipe; while many a man, who has been expelled as unworthy of the attention of the professors has achieved wonderful results in meerschaums with little apparent effort. This shows how futile it is to judge men by mere scholarship.

Pipes are more economical than cigars and five cents worth of tobacco burned in a pipe will make as much smoke as a river steamer. There are several hundred brands of smoking tobacco. Some are used merely to produce pleasure for the smoker while others are very useful for suffocating insects, fumigating houses and breaking up small gatherings of people who do not smoke themselves.

Many men become extremely fond of their pipes and smoke the same one year after year. These men can be detected, when the wind is in the right direction, at an amazing distance.

The Can Opener.

The handy tool, the household pet, we ply with skill and speed; and in the modern kitchenette it's really all we need. The shining tool that opens cans makes household work a joke; it supercedes the pots and pans, the stoves that used to smoke. In olden times the tolling wives their weary lives preparing things to eat. They fried the meat, they baked the beans, they cooked the spuds, I wist; they had no time for magazines, for eucure of bridge whist. How fortunate the modern wife, with many a leisure hour! For she can fill with glee her life, and languish in her bower. And when at evening comes her man, impatient for the cats, she says, "I'll open up a can of beans or deviled beets." It takes three minutes by the clock to get his meal in shape; he's so well trained he doesn't balk, or try to make escape. It may be, as hand over hand, he throws the victuals in, he sighs for grub that isn't canned, that doesn't taste of tin. It may be that his vagrant mind recalls the old-time steak, the dishes of the good old kind, his mother used to make. But idle are the man's regrets, and vain his hopes and plans; this is the age of kitchenettes, and things put up in cans.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? WAR RISKS INSURANCE.

(FROM SECRETARY OF STATE, RECEIVED 9.30 P. M. AUGUST 8.)

Following is summary of war risks insurance scheme:—

Firstly, ships. Government scheme for war risks on ships is worked through war risk insurance association of shipowners already existing, and every effort is being made to bring as many ships as possible into this Association. Government scheme only applies to reinsurance of King's enemy risks. Object of scheme is to secure as far as practicable maintenance in time of war of overseas trade. Government is entering into agreement with association to reinsure to extent of eighty per cent. all risks assumed by associations as far as it is King's enemy risks, on following terms:—

(1) On voyages current at outbreak of war, reinsurance would be without premium.
 (2) On such voyages ship must comply, as far as possible, with order of Government and directions of Committee of Association to which it belongs as to routes, port of call and stoppages.
 (3) On voyages begun after outbreak of war, premium would be charged. This premium which would not be less than one per cent, nor more than 5 per cent, upon voyages, would be fixed by Government.
 (4) On such last mentioned voyages ships must (a) comply as far as possible with order of Government and direction of Committee of Association to which it belongs as to routes, port of call and stoppages. (b) Not start on voyage if ordered by Government not to do. Associations at present approved re: United Kingdom

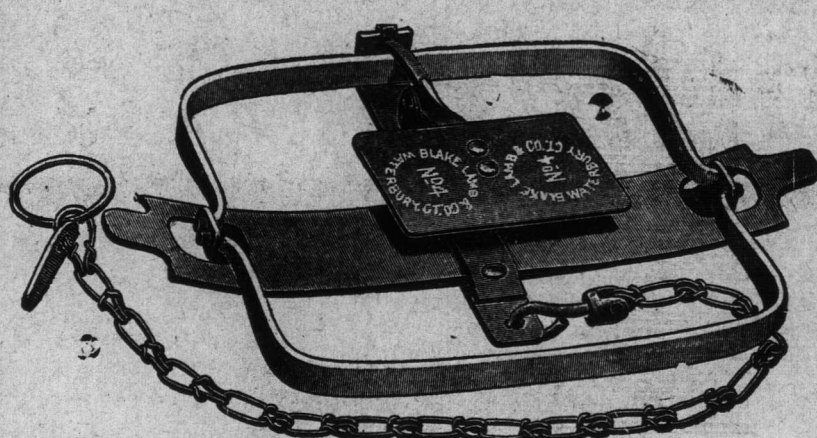

Mutual War Risks Association, Ltd., 24 St. Mary Axe, E.C., London and Liverpool War Risk Insurance Association, Ltd., 10 Water Street, Liverpool. North of England Protecting and Indemnity Association, Collingwood Buildings, Newcastle on Tyne.

Secondly, Cargo. A war risk insurance office has been opened for insurance of cargoes other than enemy's property or goods "export of which is prohibited by proclamation," shipped for voyages commenced on or after office opened for business. Cargo in British ship at the time of outbreak of war would be treated at port of call as though that port were a port of loading.

Only risks which would be covered would be King's enemy risks. Cargo would be insured only if shipped or to be shipped in vessel covered for voyage against King's enemy war risks under scheme outlined above for ships. Rate of premium would be flat one irrespective of voyage or cargo insured. It is capable of variation from time to time with maximum of five guineas per centum and minimum of one guinea per centum. If sailing is delayed under order of Government assured shall have option of cancelling policy and receiving back premium paid. Value of cargo for state insurance policies covering same cargo which policies would be produced at war risks insurance office when insurance is finally arranged.

Thirdly, This scheme was framed and primarily intended for ships continuously registered in United Kingdom, but His Majesty's Government have decided benefits may be extended to Colonial registered ships which are included in above-mentioned approved Associations.

A silver cup, recently imported, has been presented by the City Boat Club to the St. John's Rifle Club and is now on exhibition in the window of the Gas Co.'s show room. The trophy is to be shot for every year by members of the club only, and each winner is to have his name engraved on it. On Saturday, Gunner Freeman, of the Calypso, placed 100 Reservists at the disposal of the club to improve the Range for the use of the Volunteer force. Messrs. Morris and Rennie visited the Range on Saturday and mapped out the work necessary to be done. They also signified their desire to support the forming of a Volunteer or Home Defence Force, and will place their shooting ability at the disposal of the authorities for the training of recruits.

Highlanders at Church

The Nfld. Highlanders, in command of Lt.-Col. Paterson, paraded to Divine Service at the Congregational Church, yesterday morning. The Pastor of the Church, Rev. W. H. Thomas, after cordially welcoming the Corps, delivered a scholarly and interesting address on the War situation. The Rev. gentleman was most emphatic in his condemnation of those who were responsible for letting loose the dogs of war, and deplored the fact that the two great branches of the Teutonic race—the Britons and Germans—should now find themselves in the throes of a horrible and devastating conflict. He did not believe that the great masses of the people of Germany were any more desirous for war than were the British, and felt that the ruling powers of the former nation were wholly responsible for this serious state of affairs. Tracing the cause of the war, the rev. gentleman went on to prove Britain's justification for acting as she did, a fact which is beyond dispute. Quoting instances from ancient and modern history, he showed that war had resulted in stamping out tyranny and oppression and brought abundant blessings in its train. In concluding his remarks, he asked that prayer be made that God would protect the right. Leaving the Church, the Highlanders paraded by way of Queen's Road, Church Hill, McBride's Hill, Water Street and Cochrane Street, saluting His Excellency the Governor who was in the Government grounds, as the brigade passed by. On returning to the Armory, short patriotic speeches were made, after which the National Anthem was sung.

"Caste!"

Celebrated English Comedy-Drama Now Presented in Moving Picture Form.

"Caste," T. W. Robertson's celebrated domestic drama, is offered in moving picture form to-day, where it serves as another interesting example of the tremendous possibilities of the moving picture producer. This film is especially meritorious, because of the fact that the climaxes leading up to the several pictures, previous to the "Curtains," as they are termed in the legitimate drama, are thoroughly recognized, and in the present film there is a genuine effort to preserve a close adherence to the original story. For instance, Eccles, the eccentric diplomatist, who by reason of his absolute carelessness for the domestic happiness of his hearth, brings sorrow and misunderstanding in to the family, is a character that has been handled with singular success by some of the best known character actors on the London and American stage to-day. Sir John Hare—inimitable impersonator of "The Gay Lord Quex" has immortalized himself both as the vain-glorious Eccles, and also as Sam Gerridge, while other notable performers have appeared as D'Alroy and Polly. In addition to the foregoing, there are several brief studies of the British and German naval forces as they existed previous to the present outbreak. A typical review of Great Britain's Fleet is shown at Spithead, while a short peep at a somewhat similar event in connection with the German North Sea Squadron is also shown. His Majesty King George is seen aboard his Yacht, while the Kaiser, accompanied by his sons, is also seen on an inspection of the Imperial Fleet near Berlin. These short episodes of a topical nature are particularly apt just now, when so much attention is rivetted on the European situation, and they will be hailed with some little interest. The other films, including "The Eighth Notch," a Western subject; "A Coupon Courtship," which is an amusing skit on the coupon craze, so prevalent even in our own city, and "Passions"—he had three—a comedy of the unique Keystone type—are well selected with a view to forming a diversified programme. Mr. Cairns offers "The Admiral's Broom"—a vocal number of equal merit to any in which he had yet been heard, so that it will be seen that the entertainment promised for the opening of the week at the Nickel is particularly well chosen and guaranteed to please the most itinerant audience.

NOT CONFIRMED.
LONDON, To-day.
No confirmation of the report, published in Berlin of the fall of Liege has been received in London. Nothing on the subject reached London. Since the report was announced last night, the Belgian Legation refused to give the report any credence.

PARIS, To-day.
An official announcement issued to-day says the Belgian garrison at Liege enjoyed a two days' rest, during which not a shot was fired.

GERMAN ADVANCE EXPECTED.
BRUSSELS, To-day.

Three German army corps which attacked Liege still retain their positions, but it appears they must soon pass the River Meuse, circling the forts near Vise between Liege and Huy. It is reported a serious movement of their troops will be made toward Huy with the purpose of attacking the Belgians before the arrival of the French forces. A German offensive movement, however, is unlikely for some days.

BRIDGE BUILDERS ANNIHILATED.
LONDON, To-day.
The Telegraph's Rotterdam correspondent's despatch, filed on Sunday, says: "How deadly was the task the Germans undertook in re-building the bridge over the River Meuse is shown by the Rotterdam Courant's correspondent at Matricht. The pontoon bridge built by the Germans, he says, was shot away so that further troops could not cross it. The 19th regiment which supported bridge-builders was mown down by quick fire guns. A wounded Belgian, asked how the Germans had fared, replied in one word: Annihilated."

KARLSRUHE AT PORTO RICO.
WASHINGTON, To-day.
It was reported to the State Department that the German cruiser Karlsruhe put into San Juan, Porto Rico, yesterday for coal. She will be permitted to take enough aboard to see her to Bremen. When she is forced to leave that port it is thought she will seek her home port.

GUN FIRING IN ADRIATIC.
LONDON, To-day.
A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Rome says a message from Ancona, Italy, reports battleship fire has been sighted drifting toward Pola, a naval port of Austria in the Adriatic. The nationality was not determined.

GERMAN ADVANCE CHECKED.
BRUSSELS via LONDON.
The following statement has been issued by the General staff. The position of German troops is hardly changed since Saturday. The advance guards are retreating under the irrepressible pressure of French troops, who are in considerable force over all the country South of the Meuse which they are clearing of German troops. Enemy's offensive movement has been completely stopped. The Russian Emperor telegraphed King Albert congratulations, and best wishes for continued success of Belgian arms.

GERMANS LACK FOOD.
PARIS, To-day.
An official announcement issued to-day says confirmation has been received that Germans invading Belgium are lacking provisions, having undertaken to force the war into the country without making adequate preparations. Isolated patrols are surrendering in order to obtain food.

NO BRITISH SHIP DAMAGED.
LONDON, To-day.
The Admiralty announced that one of the Cruiser squadron of the main fleet was attacked yesterday by German submarines, none of the British ships were damaged. One German submarine boat was sunk, no details.

JAPS WANT TO FIGHT.
VANCOUVER, To-day.
Japanese newspapers in Vancouver issued extras calling on Japanese here either to go home and join regiments or form a regiment in Vancouver to fight under the direction of the Government of Canada.

THE TABLET SUPPORTS WAR.
LONDON, To-day.
The Catholic Organ, the Tablet, in an editorial entitled "Why England fights," says she enters the fight with the noblest causes, for the sake of human faithfulness for sanctities, treaties and trust between nations. All perplexity is ended when Germany invaded the little state she was sworn to respect. England will vindicate her honor in her sacred work for which no nobler cause can any man die. Every shade of political opinion supports the Asquith Government at the present moment. Further evidence is afforded by the attitude of Reynolds's newspaper which in an editorial explains, it always strived in the interests of peace and opposed arrangements, but now it says that Britain has no alternative but to go to war this time. Another section of the community evincing the utmost loyalty is the Jewish people, many hundreds of young Israelites having been recruited in the East and West of London.

ENGLISH ARMY ADVANCING TOWARDS LIEGE.
LONDON, To-day.
The report of the fall of Liege is misleading. The city proper seems to have surrendered to prevent property being damaged, but the forts are still held by the allies, the German forces taking the city proper, which now appear in a coil de sac with Belgians in forts to the North, the French reinforcing the army to the South and the advancing English on the West.

Household Notes.

A bare room splinters matting easily. If you have no long-handled soft brush, make a gray canton flannel covering for the top of the broom.

To kill the worms around the root of a rose, pour a mixture of a teaspoonful of ammonia to a cup of water around the stalk, but not on it.

After exposure to poison ivy, the ill effects can be warded off by vigorously washing with soap and water. Use a hand brush. After this wash with alcohol.

To test bread dough and to make sure it has risen sufficiently for baking, press the finger on the dough. If the hole remains the dough is in proper condition.

To test a broom press the edge against the floor. If the straw remains in a solid mass, the broom is a good one; if they break out and bend down, it isn't.

A teaspoonful of dry mustard rubbed into the hands, after preparing onions or fish, will remove the odor completely. It should be rubbed in as if it were soap.

A thin coat of potash left on the sink overnight once a week will remove the ugly stains that will not yield to kerosene. It should be applied with care, as it is poisonous.

Solled and finger-marked bird's-eye maple can be cleaned by washing with a soft rag and lukewarm water in which a little kerosene has been added. Rub dry quickly and polish with a soft cloth.

Rusty flatirons can be cleaned by covering the rusty parts with sweet oil and powdered quick lime and allowing them to stand a few days, then washing them with hot water and plenty of sal soda.

In broiling steak or chops the fire sometimes dies down too quickly. When this happens sprinkle a little granulated sugar over the coals. This intensifies the heat and the smoke from the sugar imparts a delicious flavor to the meat.

When cleaning white shoes the first thing to do is to clean off dust and clay by means of a hand-scrub dipped in water and a fine white soap. Let the shoes dry before applying any cleaner, sometimes the scrubbing is all that is necessary.

A good method of keeping butter from turning rancid in hot weather is to put it in brine. Take a jar and put water in, then add salt until you have a brine strong enough to float a potato. Put the butter in the jar, cover, and keep in a cool place.

When watering plants be careful not to water them too frequently; this will cause the soil to become waterlogged and the plants will die. A way to test the soil is to rap the side of the pot, if it rings clear the soil is dry, if the sound is dull do not moisten.

Divorced Life

Pals

Marian was less offended than humiliated, at Meadows' offer to lend money to her. She had the feeling that to be in need of ready money is to be disgraced, especially if the fact becomes known to others. She also felt woman's instinctive distrust of a man who offers her money. She had seen enough of the world to know that invisible strings are almost invariably attached to such propositions, and that a woman usually has to pay a price that is much more than the mere equivalent of what she has received.

At the same time, she could not escape the feeling that she might be doing Jack Meadows a great injustice by harboring these suspicions. So frankly and kindly had come his offer that she found it hard to suspect him of ulterior motives. Yet, she did not regret her refusal to lend her money, so sorely as she needed it. She clung to the hope that something would turn up to brighten her outlook and restore her shrunken purse in a manner that she could justify.

At three the following afternoon, she was called to the telephone. With drumming heart she descended the stairs to the telephone in the hallway of the boarding-house. She expected, somehow, to hear Jack Meadows' voice. She did.

"Will you go motoring with me to-night while this afternoon?" he inquired. "It's a capital day and a crime to be indoors. I'll be there in twenty minutes."

Marian hung up the receiver, and flew into a froth of linen suit. She thanked her stars that her meagre wardrobe still vouchsafed her a more or less appropriate garb for motoring. She had spent nearly all the day in stowing and moping over a manuscript that refused to make much headway under her lagging pen. The prospect of going automobiling made the blood spin merrily through her veins. And the droll and interesting companionship of the rich young man lured her more than she would have been willing to confess even to herself.

Meadows, at the wheel of a rakish-looking, handsome Italian car, paused in front of the house at the time appointed. Marian did not keep him waiting, and presently the car bumped contentedly down the smooth pavement. As it did so, a pair of brown and wistful eyes, those of Bert Barker, gazed after the departing figure of Marian with puzzled sadness. Marian's new-found ambition to write, and her new-found, mysterious companion, had lately taken her almost wholly out of the life of Barker, the Bostonian.

The tang of salt breezes from the bay in her nostrils, and a stirring sense of adventure in her soul, Marian settled back against the soft cushions and watched the flying landscape with dreamy eyes. A stolen sense of escape from the dark details of her struggle with adversity soothed her like a pleasant narcotic. The man at her side, his gloved hands deftly manipulating the wheel, seemed more like one of those impersonal creatures from the pages of a modern romance, than like a human being.

"There's no reason why we can't be good pals," he added.

Viewed from the angle of her contented mood, Marian was thankful to-day for the series of events which had drawn her into divorce. How had she ever endured the cramped, cramped existence of married life as long as she had! She was glad now that she had protested against its restraints and sorrows. She was glad that she had listened to the call of youth and life, of freedom and the big, broad world. To-day her horizon gleamed with vague but flashing promise.

"It was mighty good of you to let me call for you to-day," observed her companion.

"It was good of you to come," she answered frankly.

"There's no reason why we can't be good pals," he added.

"Yes, and without being foolish," she amended.

The Labrador Ice Blockade.

S. S. Strathcona, At Sea,
Off Labrador Coast,
August 1, 1914.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor,—I have carefully asked all the oldest inhabitants of the "Straits" if they ever remember it being blocked with ice at the end of July, and I have failed so far to find anyone who remembers it. I have asked five men over eighty years of age, and yet, this week everything has been held up, even some large steamers not being able to get through; while Monday and Tuesday we were all blocked solid in the harbours by heavy Arctic ice, not far from Blanc Sablon. The temperatures of the water are excessively cold here still, being 32 and 34 degrees on the surface, although the ice has mostly gone out again before the strong west winds of the last two days.

Not only are men sitting idle around with their nets out of water, but in Lance au Loup, the very boats have been hauled up into the river to save them from the eddy's of the ice pack. Adolph Nielson, when Superintendent of Fisheries, wrote that, as the result of his practical experiments at Dildo, he was convinced that cod could not feed under 32 degrees Fahrenheit, and could not live under 32 degrees, having to seek deeper water for warmth.

For my own part, in spite of the fact of the many recent poor voyages, and in spite of the apparent lessened number of cod off our Labrador coast, I am convinced that the fisheries have made little or no difference to the quantity of cod fish in the water. The outstanding lamentable fact in a country like ours is that we not only still know little or nothing about the matter, but we take no apparent interest in finding out. Our schooner-men are getting more discouraged every year, their numbers are declining. It means that our youth and strength must leave us to seek work elsewhere, and we take no steps whatever to find out the cause and remedy it.

If a scare of diphtheria arises, and we are in danger of losing one or two children, the common sense of the entire community at once endorses a generous expenditure; but in the far farther reaching problem of how to catch more fish, and put a sufficient living in the reach of our poorer fishermen, and so prevent their becoming the prey of every passing disease, why then we do nothing at all.

Last week at all the harbours north of the "Straits" discouraged men were lamenting the fact that there were no fish in the "Straits." It was sheer idleness or apathy that kept so many ashore doing nothing. Day after day of trying out in their little boats with no success, had convinced them that there were no cod in the Straits. Just off the land, outside the paltry four hundred yards that the cod traps reach, glutted with caplin, kept in the deep water, possibly because it was warmer than the shallow water, lay shoals of as fine fish as were ever caught. This was proved to me by my delightful trip with that most enterprising of our Labrador fishermen, Mr. Edward Grant, of Trinity Bay. While others were getting "no fish," we went off to haul his fleet of twenty-six sixty-fathom gill nets, set out in deep water. They were trailing across not more than two miles of water, and up only a few feet from the bottom. As the winch brought in twenty-five quintals of lovely fish full of caplin, evenly scattered over all the nets, and also quantities of live caplin, one could not help believing that there were plenty of fish; that they were glutted with food which they got out of the warmth of the deep water, so, as Mr. Grant quaintly put it: "Why should they go to the Labrador to make a living, when they can make it at home."

Having come to the conclusion that the fault was ours, and that we simply did not know how to catch the fish, Mr. Grant, seeking new methods, sent to Gloucester. He decided that their method of gill nets were worth trying. We have far more and better fish on the same area than they have, and why should not we, as well as they, be progressive and try new ways. It was pathetic as we steamed back with the fine deck load, to see poor fellows in dories offering one dead caplin on a hook to fish glutted with and surrounded by live ones; or trawls with dead bait being hauled 'clean' because the fish had better food already.

The result is not only that he gets fish where others do not, but he encourages others to stay fishing when they are discussing bolting for home to look for Government or other employment. He is also making valuable experiments with these nets, and will certainly improve wonderfully on them.

If man can fly in the air, and man can build boats for under water service, surely he can devise means to outfit cod fish. Not only new markets, but new harvests are needed by our fishermen. Will nothing be done? There are officials even on this coast whose tasks to say the least of it, do not occupy any considerable time, and whose expense is far less justified than the same money spent on fishing inquiries. Even if experiments do not always prove economic successes, that is no real justification for the condemnation that is most unjustly hurled at them; the world only progresses by experience, the most expensive but essential of all schools.

The necessity for studying more closely the effect of temperature is well shown by the following: A fisherman got his trawl tangled on the buoy at one end. He did not notice it until he returned to haul. To his surprise, he found that the hooks suspended at about the middle of the water all had fish; those on the bottom, none. For some days he floated all his hooks a fathom or so down, and caught fish while his neighbours got none. Then they copied him and got as much fish as he. I have seen the experiment repeated this year very successfully by a schooner crew.

Then again, on those same grounds where now people are getting a total blank, there are always plenty of fish to be caught in October. But no one fishes for them because they cannot dry the fish at that time of the year, and there is no way to buy fresh fish at that time of the year, and they do not think it worth while to carry them over in salt. Yet this is done in Bay St. George and elsewhere. All I suggest is that especially in the face of this very poor fishery, we need a lot more knowledge; that is if new knowledge is obtainable; that we as a country cannot claim poverty because we have still unnecessary official expense which might be well diverted into more useful channels.

There is certainly another unnecessary concession to prejudice in our Labrador fisheries. Practically no one fishes north of St. John's Island. The progressive Capt. Blandford demonstrated clearly that there are thousands of quintals of fish to be caught north of that, enough to make a material difference in the quantity of fish taken annually in Labrador. Here to-day lies the large steamer Neptune so famous for the wealth it brought this Colony in his capable hands. Here she lies idle, an expense. What argument can justify this economic waste to any sane man on earth. It is painful to listen to visitors jeering at us for what appears to be sheer puerility and lack of political backbone.

Signed, WILFRED GRENFELL.
