Love in a Flour Mill, OR, The Romance of Two Loyal Hearts!

CHAPTER II.

"Yes, both," said Mr. Lexham. "But another fortune fell into his hands, and in a strange way. Did I tell you that he had been in India? No? I'm a bad hand at story-telling. Well, he was over there for a couple of years before his marriage—he was a restless being, just like this young Ronald—and, while there, he, of course, had another adventure. A certain Indian Prince was one evening attacked by native footpads. Sir Mortimer happened to be at hand—always ready for an adventure, you observe!—rescued the Rajah, and beat off the thieves; he killed two of them, if I remember rightly. The Rajah was grateful, entertained Sir Mortimer at the palace, as if he were a fellow Prince, and made a great fuss over him. Sir Mortimer was there for some time; and, when he left, the Rajah pressed a morocco case into his hand, and begged him to keep it as a souvenir of Sir Mortimer's courage and the Rajah's gratitude. Sir Mortimer thrust the case in his pocket in his careless way, and did not look at its contents until he was on board the ship which was taking him to Europe.

"One can guess its contents," said Reece, with a smile. "Jewels, of course."

"Jewels," assented Mr. Lexham. "And magnificent ones. There were diamonds, pearls, emeralds, and the rest of them, perfect in quality and worth a large sum of money—indeed a fortune, as we Englishmen count fortunes. In the centre of the stones I have mentioned was an enormous ruby, of perfect shape and colour, a marvellous stone, probably the finest in the collection of this Rajah, who was famous for his jewels. I saw it once, and, though that sort of thing has little interest for me, I must admit that I was dazzled by its splendour. Its only fitting place was in the diadem of a king."

"It must be worth a large sum of money," remarked Reece, almost inaudibly. His eyes had grown keener while Mr. Lexham had described the gem, the tip of his tongue moved quickly over his thin lips, and he glanced from side to side with the peculiar expression of hungry wistfulness which one sees in the eyes of a wolf scenting food; but his voice was well under control, and its tone invited Mr. Lexham to continue.

"It would be almost impossible to estimate its worth," he said; "simply because there is no criterion by which one could do so. I have reason to believe that it is the finest ruby in the world; and one knows how difficult it is to put a monetary value on such an abnormal product of Nature." "Sir Mortimer was an extremely lucky man," said Reece, with a soft laugh. "The most unlucky," retorted Mr. Lexham. "Isn't there a tradition that the possession of a gem such as this ruby brings misfortune? The ruby certainly did so. Sir Mortimer sold some of the other stones, and so repaired his fortune, and refilled his coffers. One heartily wishes that he had sold the ruby also; for I cannot but think that it was the cause, the motive—"

At this moment, to the open French window of the drawing-room came Evelyn, her white-clad figure standing out clearly in the dusky twilight. "Are you coming in for some coffee?" she asked. The two men threw their cigarettes away and went into the drawing-room. Sir Reginald was not there. She was alone. They went up to the tea-table with its gleaming silver and dainty Sevres, and they took their cups and stood talking to her. Presently Reece asked her to sing, making the request in his soft tones and deferential, ingratiating manner. She rose at once and went to the piano; and he stood beside her, listening with bent head, and apparently intent upon the young girl's sweet voice; but he was thinking of the monster ruby; he was quivering with curiosity, with impatience, to hear the rest of Mr. Lexham's story.

When she had finished, he thanked her in a low voice, full of respectful admiration and gratitude; but it was Mr. Lexham who asked her to sing again. She complied at once; for Evelyn was one of those girls to whom it is a pleasure to give pleasure, and who was devoid of the vanity which assumes a reluctance to display a gift.

"You shall have your favourite now," she said, nodding smilingly over her shoulder at the old gentleman.

He clapped his hands when she had got through the song; and Reece, with a gesture of imploration, placed another piece of music on the stand. She gave a glance at it, murmured "Yes, I think I remember it," and had commenced to play the prelude, when a footman approached with a note on a salver. She took the note, with a little air of surprise, looked at it, then, suddenly turning pale, rose from the music-stool, and, standing for a moment, as if lost in thought, said, with a forced composure:

"I think I am tired. I will go to bed, if you don't mind my leaving you. Steele"—Steele was the butler—"will get you anything you want. Good-night, Mr. Lexham! Good-night! you will not forget our drive to-morrow," she added to Dexter Reece.

He merely bowed, and went to the door with her to open it. As he did so, he glanced at her hands; the note had disappeared. It was a quick, covert glance, similar to that which he had bestowed on the note as she had taken it from the salver; and he had noticed that the envelope was a common one and rather soiled. The handwriting he had not been able to see.

"I could do with a whisky-and-soda now," remarked Mr. Lexham; and he led the way to the smoking-room. Steele brought in the spirit-stand and a cigar-cabinet, and respectfully asked if anything else were wanted before he retired noiselessly. Mr. Lexham had thrown himself on a luxuri-

A Child Gets Cross, Sick and Feverish When Constipated

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated clean little liver and bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of California Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "Fruit Laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little more to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

ous divan; but Dexter Reece had wandered round the beautifully appointed room, looking at the superb etchings on the walls; and, as he passed the door on the way to the divan, he closed the door in a casual way.

"Very little whisky and plenty of soda, please," he said, in response to Mr. Lexham's invitation. "I rarely drink spirits."

There was a pause. Reece leaned back and smoked as if he had nothing on his mind; but he waited, and presently he got his reward; for, with a yawn, Mr. Lexham said:

"Oh, I didn't tell you the rest of Sir Mortimer's story. I knew there was something I wanted to say, something I had left unsaid. Where was I? Oh, yes; the ruby. Well, Sir Mortimer did not sell it. He, naturally enough, regarded it as an heirloom for his daughter; an heirloom which would outvie the most precious possession of the wealthiest families; though its greatest value in his eyes lay in the fact that his child would some day wear it on her bosom, and set the world a-gaping."

"One can understand his feeling," said Reece; "but the child was only a baby then; some years would have to pass before she could wear such a gem; it was rather a dangerous proposition to keep and protect. What did he do with it?"

"He sent it to the local bank," said Mr. Lexham; "and there it remained for some years; three, to be precise. At the end of that time the bank found it necessary to change its quarters, and while it was getting into its new premises, Sir Mortimer, who was quite aware of the value of his extraordinary gem, had it sent here to the Hall. Would to God he had left it in the care of the bank!"

Reece glanced at the face of the old man swiftly; it was agitated, and the hand which held his tumbler shook slightly.

"Something happened?" murmured Reece. "I have a vague remembrance, only—"

"Yes, something happened," assented Mr. Lexham solemnly. "On the night of the day on which the ruby came back to the Hall, Sir Mortimer died. He died suddenly. He slept in the west wing, now shut up and unoccupied. He was almost alone there. He was found the next morning by his valet. His arms were stretched out, his hands clenched, his face was distorted; his attitude and appearance were those of a man who had died in a fit; and it was not until the doctor had made an examination that the almost invisible mark of a puncture was found on his breast. He had been stabbed through the heart with a long steel instrument, as thin and sharp as a needle. He had died almost instantly, had bled inwardly."

The old lawyer's voice had sunk till it was almost inaudible; his heavy brows were bent, his lips were drawn to a thread. He took a long draught, set down the glass unsteadily, and shook his head.

"Murdered!" said Reece, almost inaudibly.

"Murdered!" echoed Mr. Lexham. "That is not all. When the terrible confusion following on the discovery had somewhat abated, they sought for the child. It had gone!" "Great heaven!" exclaimed Reece below his breath. "And the ruby?" Mr. Lexham shook his head again. "The ruby had gone also. At least, it was only reasonable to suppose that it had, for it has never been found."

CHAPTER III.

There was silence for a moment or two after Mr. Lexham had finished the tragic tale. Dexter Reece, forgetting that he seldom took spirits, helped himself to neat whisky, and drank it in a kind of suppressed excitement.

"It's a terrible story; a tragedy, indeed!" he said; and his usually soft voice was so thick that he was compelled to clear his throat. "Surely the murderer or murderers were discovered, the child regained?"

"No," replied Mr. Lexham gravely. "though it is scarcely necessary to say that every effort to track the criminal, to recover the child, was made. Detectives were at once set to work; every port was watched; not a foot of ground for miles round was unexamined. Unfortunately there had been a fall of snow in the night, and any foot-marks that the murderer may have made were effectually covered. No stranger had been seen in the place—which were not extraordinary, because the district was even more sparsely inhabited than it is now. The surgeons who examined the wound were convinced that the murder had taken place early in the night, probably during Sir Mortimer's first sleep, certainly many hours before his death was discovered; for Sir Mortimer was a late riser, and his valet had orders never to disturb him before ten o'clock. There was plenty of time for the criminal to take the train at some small station, and reach London."

"But, good heavens! there must have been some clue!" exclaimed Dexter Reece. "There was none," said Mr. Lexham gravely. "The death-blow was delivered in such a manner as to cause no flow of blood to mark the criminal; the footprints were effaced, as I say; there would have appeared nothing extraordinary in a man or a woman travelling with a little child."

"You do not know whether it was a man or a woman?" said Reece quickly. "Surely you have your suspicion? Mine went at once directly to the former lover of Sir Mortimer's wife, the man of whom he had robbed her."

"Quite so," responded Mr. Lexham. "That suspicion should be directed towards him was only natural. Nobody knew him, knew what he was like."

"You sent to Italy, the place where he lived?" put in Reece swiftly.

"Of course. It was one of the first things we did—to learn that the man was dead. He had left his native place, Vicenza"—Dexter Reece's lips moved as they mutely formed the word, and he indelibly impressed it on his memory—"soon after the flight of his bride. He had gone to sea in one of the small vessels trading from Venice, which went down with all hands. The man was dead, drowned, and so beyond suspicion."

"Then I cannot see the motive, the object, in stealing the child," said Reece thoughtfully. "There was the ruby, of course; that was temptation enough for an ordinary criminal, a burglar; but why should such a man run the awful risk of hampering himself with an infant? The presence of the child rendered his escape more difficult, his detection almost certain."

A Remedy For All Pain

"The efficiency of any drug" says Dr. C. F. Robbins, "is known to us by the results we obtain from its use. If we are able to control pain and disease by means of any one remedy, we certainly are warranted in its use. One of the principal symptoms of all diseases is pain, and this is what the patient most often wishes to get rid of. It is something to relieve his pain, if we can arrest this promptly, the patient is most liable to trust in us for the other remedies which will effect a permanent cure. One remedy which I have used largely in my practice is Anti-Kamnia Tablets. Many and varied are their uses. I have put them to the test on many occasions, and have never been disappointed. I found them especially valuable for headaches of malarial origin, where quinine was being taken. They appear to prevent the bad after-effects of the quinine. Anti-Kamnia Tablets are also excellent for headaches from improper digestion; also for headaches of a neuralgic origin, and especially for women subject to pains at certain times. Two Anti-Kamnia Tablets give prompt relief to all these conditions. These tablets are able to go about as usual. These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for headaches, neuralgia and all pains."

The Am. Novel of 1915.

MICHAEL O'HALLORHAN
by Gene Stratton Porter.

This is the story of Mickey the newsboy and his ward-pencher, whom he found with a crippled back and cried for until she was cured. It tells of Mickey's part in the romance of Douglas Bruce and Leslie Winton; and of the kindness of Peter Harding and his wife to peacher, and finally of Mickey's own love story with the wail he found years before.

The book possesses, like all of the author's works, a deep feeling for nature, the charm of the woods, the flowers and all growing things.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
France—In Artois, after a further attack in the Labyrinth, the enemy left over 200 dead. Artillery actions in Soissons and Argonne have become more sustained.
Russia—The enemy have been further repulsed on the Riga front, but have made some progress in the region of the River Str. During the past month the Russians have captured 50,000 prisoners, 21 guns and 118 machine guns.
Italy—Further progress in the Carso plateau; about 300 prisoners captured.
Serbia—Enemy reports claim capture of 8,500 prisoners and 12 guns.

CONDITION OF THE SERBIAN ARMY.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
The Daily Telegraph has the following from Rome: The condition of the main Serbian army is excellent. Marshal Putnik is personally directing operations; Prince Alexander commands the army of the north. Twenty thousand Austrian prisoners, five thousand Germans and four thousand Bulgarians have been sent to the Montenegro frontier. In its retreat, the main Serbian army has saved all the field and mountain artillery, heavy guns, locomotives and railway wagons, and thus sufficient munitions have been preserved for an offensive. According to information from Cetinje, the Serbian territory still free from the invader, comprises about 7,800 square miles, it is estimated that 200,000 troops and five hundred thousand fugitives have retreated into this region since the beginning of the war. The Serbians have lost 250,000 men, more than one-third of them from disease, and another 50,000 are still in Macedonia, and are unable to communicate with the principal army. Princess Helen has refused to go to Cetinje preferring to remain near her family as a Red Cross nurse.

SEEKING GUARANTEES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
The Entente Powers are seeking guarantees from the Greek government, the Athens correspondent of the Mail explains, because they have decided to establish an entirely new front in the Balkans, entailing the presence of a large number of troops and desire something more definite than mere promises of benevolent neutrality.

MODIFIED ITS POSITION.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
The Greek Government is reported to have modified its position somewhat in favor of the Entente Allies. The correspondent at Athens of the Exchange Telegraph Company says it has decided that in event of the retreat of the Allies to Greek soil, Serbian troops will be placed on the same footing as the British and French.

HEAVY SICK LIST.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
The average daily losses in the Dardanelles for the entire period from May to October were 795, the Parliamentary Under Secretary for War told the House last evening. The great bulk of these men were the sick, who aggregated 90,000. Of these, he added, eighty per cent might be expected to return to the fighting ranks.

DEMONSTRATION OF WOMEN.

PARIS, Nov. 16.
According to the President of a big Swiss bank, just back from Germany, the peace agitation is beginning seriously to permeate the country. Huge demonstrations of women took place in Berlin, the banker says, riots ensued, and the police had to charge with drawn sabres. There were two hundred victims, all women. German censorship suppressed all reference to the disturbance.

NOTHING TO REPORT.

PARIS, Nov. 16.
There is nothing to add to the preceding communications, says the War Office report this afternoon.

IN THE COMMONS.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
Charles Thevelyan, Liberal member for York, in a speech on the formulation of terms of peace for the purpose of trying to obtain by negotiations, instead of by bloodshed, the restoration of the present settlement of European boundaries on lines of nationality. Germany, said Trevelyan, to preserve her existence, can continue the war for six years. In the meantime it is going to happen to us and the rest of the world? A war of attrition means as well for us as for Germany utter and irremediable ruin.

Andrew Bonar Law condemned Trevelyan's speech as useless and mischievous. There is not another member of the House, said Law, who believed for a moment that Germany will free Belgium or restore Alsace to France, until she is thoroughly beaten, and the British Government is as determined now, as it was on the first day that war was forced on us, that we should continue until the objects sought by it are attained.

T. P. O'Connor said the view should not be permitted to go abroad that Trevelyan represented any considerable section, either of the Parliament or the country. Until Germany was defeated, he added, it was certain that he would never consent to terms of peace satisfactory to the Allies.

John Hodge, Laborite, said that during the last six months he had toured France for the purpose of counteracting the evil effects of such mischievous pacifist views as Trevelyan had expressed.

As long as Kitchener, a man who accepts no advice remaining at the War Office, we will not win the war, declared Sir Arthur Markham in the Commons this evening in a debate on the conduct of the war. Kitchener, Sir Arthur added, was responsible for the blunders at Antwerp and the Dardanelles and also for the withholding of information from the public, whom he treated like derelict. Carson told the Commons that he left the Cabinet when it came to an emphatic decision on the advice of its military advisors, that it was too late to assist Serbia. He protested if it were too late to assist Serbia that country ought to be told, so that she could take such steps as would save her from destruction. It was not until Joffre came to England that the policy announced by Asquith was decided upon.

The Prime Minister replied that there had never been any decision that England should not send troops in case of need, if military and political situation demanded it. He declared that there has been any avoidable delay in making preparations to come to aid Serbia.

FISHER IN THE LORDS.

LONDON, Nov. 16.
"It is unfitting," said Admiral Lord Fisher, former First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, in the Lords this afternoon, "to make personal explanations affecting national interests, when the country is in the midst of a great war." Lord Fisher made this statement in reply to criticisms by Winston Churchill, who was First Sea Lord when the naval attack on the Dardanelles was made, in the Commons yesterday, following his retirement from the cabinet. Churchill in his speech complained that he had not received from the First Sea Lord in connection with the Dardanelles affair, the clear guidance before the event, or firm support after it to which he considered himself entitled.

STEAMER MISSING.
SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 16.
The steamer Dunelm, which left Sydney on Oct. 16th with a cargo of steel products from the steel works here for Manchester, England, has not yet reported at any port in England or Ireland. It is feared she has met with disaster, either sunk by a submarine or foundering at sea.

TROUBLE ON CUNARD LINER.
NEW YORK, Nov. 16.
Passengers who arrived here on the Cunard liner Saxonia to-day, gave further details of the strike of firemen on the liner, as a protest against permitting slackers to escape military service by leaving the country on their ship. The action of the firemen so aroused public indignation against the quitters that all the principal British steamship companies have since refused passage to any men of military age, unless they show sufficient cause for leaving the country. The Saxonia was due to sail at one o'clock on Saturday. As she had one hundred and eighty cabin passengers, 4,200 bags of mail, and five millions in specie, her commander, Captain Marshall, was anxious to get away on time. Long before noon the landing stage was thronged with more than seven hundred young men, clamoring to get aboard. About six hundred of them booked stateroom accommodations and nearly two hundred made cabin reservations, so eager were they to get out of the country. Most of them were Irish, but a fairly large percentage of young English chaps were sprinkled in. When the firemen of the Saxonia saw the assembly they set up a howl of disgust. They said they were doing their "bit" for England, bringing the ship through the zone of the submarine peril, and that they did not intend to assist others to escape from their duty. They struck in a body, and reported to chief engineer Procter that if "slackers" went on board, they would not. Recruiting Sergeants argued with the men, but the "slackers," most of them with tickets already in their hands, appeared utterly apathetic. The Sergeants promised them that the Cunard Company would return the amount advanced on their passage if they would only remain and enlist. White feathers were pinned on many by young women. The officials of the Cunard Company, after a hasty consultation, decided to debar any passengers of military age who could not show their legitimate reasons for leaving the country. Finally the ship got away with the firemen, but without the "slackers." The Saxonia reported a rough passage all the way across, with a succession of gales, and rain squalls.

ASQUITH HOPEFUL.
LONDON, Nov. 16.
Continuing his speech in the Commons, Premier Asquith said he was confident that the appeal to the sense of patriotic duty now being so energetically pressed by Lord Derby's committee, would elicit an adequate response from all classes, and especially the young unmarried men of the country. Asquith, to quiet the fears of the anti-conscriptors, reiterated that no decision regarding compulsory enlistment could be taken without the consent of Parliament.

THE PRESIDENT.
By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

The President of the United States is a good and wise man, who is elected by the people to give tone to politics in Washington. He is popularly supposed to run the country, too, but he doesn't. He merely looks over the train sheets.

The President serves four years. Some of the most durable have served eight years. He gets $75,000 a year, and lives in the White House, a large mansion, completely surrounded by newspaper reporters. He doesn't get his salary for living in the White House, but it is said to be worth the money.

The President usually rises to his high office from obscurity, and goes back there promptly as soon as his term is over. Only native born Americans can be President. This discourages immigrants so that they rarely go into politics. They go into business instead, and become aldermen.

It is the duty of the President to veto all bills passed by the opposition, to see that the Cabinet chairs are freshly filled each morning, and to eat whatever is set before him, no matter how badly the banquet committee may have fallen down. He must fit a Pullman car berth neatly must enjoy seeing his features warped all out of shape by cartoonists, and must give reporters and writers any desired details about his way of shaving, or his brand of socks or the way in which he ties his socks.

The President is public property, and is never allowed to forget the fact. The public is very hard on Presidents too, just as it is on the rest of its property. Very few Presidents live very long after their escape.

The President works very hard and is worked even more heartlessly by former days, executives were very poor house-cleaners, but nowadays the President who didn't clean up at least a department of government a week would be accused of incredible carelessness. The chief exercises of Presidents are shaking hands with office seekers. They are of various denominations. Some are Episcopalians, some Presbyterians and one or two have been thirty-cent pieces. Candidates for the Presidency are chosen by influential politicians in a national yell. Marathon held every four years: The candidate getting the longest yell is nominated. It is customary to elect Republican Presidents.

The Presidents have all been noble honest men. They are even grander and nobler after death, for then even the opposition admits it. If a President works hard and makes good, he gets into the hall of fame, and has 100,000 namesakes. Thus far, however, no namesakes has ever become President.

Ladies' Costumes Fall--1915--Styles.

Was there ever a more fickle lady than Dame Fashion? She is always making changes, and this season has surely surpassed herself.

There is a more decided change in this Fall's styles than has been known for many seasons. While materials are similar, Serges, Gabardines, Tweeds, Cord, etc., the designs are absolutely unlike any of their predecessors. Coats are of many styles, chiefly a la militaire, with high collars, snug-fitting sleeves, and the entire coat in some instances is beautifully braided. Skirts are much fuller, both pleated and gored, and are worn very short.

As descriptions are quite impossible, we can only say that we carry the largest and smartest line of Ladies' Costumes in the city.

Gas and Hospitality.

The sound of motor wheels heralding the arrival of unexpected guests has no terrors for the housewife whose methane is run on up-to-date lines. While the visitors are removing the traces of travel, with the hot water which a gas water-heater keeps always "on tap," a match to the gas fire makes the drawing room a place of warmth and pleasantness for the recipient; and the children love to "help mother" by toasting the crumpets before the clear and smokeless glow.

The gas cooker (or the modern gas trivet by the drawing rooms gas fire) boils a kettle of water in no time, and within a quarter of an hour after their arrival the guests are enjoying a cosy chat over the cup that cheers. Should they be persuaded to stay, the invaluable cooker makes it possible, even at such short notice, for the experienced housewife, after a raid upon her emergency store cupboard, to set before them a dainty dinner of which no hostess need be ashamed. Gas means ever-ready hospitality.

"Colonial empires all of a piece, and as apt for defence as possible, completing our own economic forces, will probably constitute the politico-colonial solution after the war. Special considerations concerning the particular condition of our popular economy will be necessary. We must not let ourselves be intimidated in what concerns the realization of our colonial policy, even if parts of our colonial possessions succumb temporarily to the superior forces of the enemy. Per aspera et astra."

Botha has taken good care to remove the menace of Germany to British South Africa, which was to form part of the German African Empire. This introduction shows that the German Colonial Minister has his eyes on the overseas dominions of Germany's enemies, from which Germany can draw raw material. Our own Bell Island is a clear case in point. Krupp's know all about the mines on it and before the war obtained raw material from them. South Africans will not give up any part of South Africa, nor will the British give up any part of Newfoundland. But Germany wants these places. Our duty in the premises is to continue the fight until Germany is crushed so that neither at present nor in the future will she be able to menace our possessions. We must live up to Asquith's declaration and discountenance the Trevelyan School of Pacifists.

German Hunger for Our Colonies.

Charles Trevelyan who resigned a subordinate office in the Ministry, because he did not agree with Britain going to the aid of Belgium, has since that time been active as a Pacifist. Yesterday he urged in the Commons the formulation of terms of peace for the purpose of opening negotiations for peace. The Secretary for the Colonies characterized Trevelyan's speech as useless and mischievous. T. P. O'Connor said it represented the views of no considerable part of Parliament or people, and John Hodge, Laborite, said he had spent six months in France for the purpose of countering such mischief as Trevelyan was making.

Fortunately, we received this morning from the French Vice-Consul here, a copy of the Bulletin of the Alliance Française for October 1st, 1915. We say opportunely, because the Bulletin contains a short article, entitled "The German Colonial Minister's Ambitions." In it is an introduction to a Colonial Calendar, shortly to be published, from the pen of the German Colonial Minister. It is illuminating and we give it in full:

"In view of Germany's political and economic situation it seems to us indispensable that after the end of the war, our colonial possessions should be maintained and increased, whatever may be the eventual increase of territories in Europe and in the fresh modification of the reciprocal relations of the European States. For someone who is acquainted with economic questions there is no need of special proofs, but he also will be astonished on seeing expressed in figures the extraordinary importance which the possession of colonies presents for a modern State.

"GERMANY'S NEED IN COLONIAL PRODUCTS AMOUNTS TO SEVERAL MILLIARDS. The colonies which we had up to now can only cover a small part of the need in such materials, nearly three per cent. We may be allowed to presume that the tendencies to development of modern colonial politics will increase in a sensible manner after this war. The great colonial powers will aspire not only to an increase of their possessions, but they will strive also in consequence of the aggravation of national antagonisms, to concentrate as far as possible, capitals production in raw materials and overseas trade on their own colonies.

Sergt. John McKinley.
From a correspondent in Boston, we learn that Corporal John McKinley of the 25th Battalion Canadian Expeditionary Force, was not killed in action, as reported in the Boston Journal, on Nov. 5th. According to a message from the Adjutant General at Ottawa to the young soldier's mother he was only slightly wounded and was in hospital at Boulogne, France. The next day his mother received two letters from him, which confirmed the news contained in the message. In his letters he says that he was knocked out by a German gas bomb but was gradually recovering from its effects, and expected to be back in the trenches within a few days. The 25th Battalion was in the big drive made a few weeks ago and resulted in the capture of several German trenches. Corporal McKinley says that several Newfoundlanders were in his company and took part in the drive, and adds that they can be relied upon when the Germans "show their teeth." His letter also tells of a surprise attack by the Huns which was successfully repulsed by his men, and that he had been promoted to Sergeant. He says that he was in the trenches with eight men. He says that the position was rather dangerous, but that "it is all in the game." Sergeant John McKinley is a son of Mrs. Mary E. McKinley, formerly a Miss Tilley, daughter of the late Mr. William Tilley, Light-house keeper at Cape St. Francis for many years. He was born at Chelsea, Mass., and is a machinist by trade. He was a member of the Const. Artillery and shortly after the outbreak of war he went to Halifax and enlisted as a private in the 5th. When the war is over he expects to visit his relatives in this city. He is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Butler of Pleasant Street.

NOVEMBER 16.
1196.-JOSEPH STANFORD, Grate's Cove. Dangerously ill at Malta, Nov. 12th.

The Big Gale.

When the Toronto weather prophet ordered the night before that the westerly gale which followed a few hours afterwards was the most violent felt in the city and suburbs for some time past. On the 12th the gale raged at the rate of about eighty miles an hour, a couple of telegraph poles were blown down and several houses in isolated places were threatened with destruction. Fortunately, however, nothing of any account happened in that respect, but many fences were blown down and barns sustained damage. One small shed at the Upper Battery was blown down. The occupants, a woman and her two children, sought refuge at the police station for the night. Between 70 and 80 feet of Bannerman Park fence was carried away. Also 100 feet of the Penitentiary fence was blown down and a portion of Mr. J. C. Cross's fence on Forest Road carried away.

Countrywards many trees were blown down and some property owners in that section suffered severe damages to barns and fences.

Along the waterfront the gale was seen at its height. The wind blew with great violence in the harbour, accompanied by a heavy choppy sea. Shipping had to haul off from the different wharves. One old schooner, which was lying to anchor dragged her moorings and drifted outside the Narrows and sank. There was no one on board at the time. Another schr., the Shamrock, broke from her moorings, crashed into a schooner in the harbour three different times and then drifted outside the heads. The crew barely had time to get out of her, being rescued by a launch. Other vessels in the harbour got in trouble but were assisted to places of anchorage and secured by tugs which were kept busy the evening long. The S. S. Cape Breton, laden, bound from Sydney to Clarendville, found the storm too much for her and put in here for shelter. She had a rough passage. Last night she dragged her anchors in the harbour and was brought up near Chain Rock, after having a narrow escape from going ashore. It was a very exciting and terrible night at sea and vessels off the port got the full force of the gale. Several vessels were reported to have sheltered in the bay. The schooner, the Pogota was unable to get north and had to return, reaching here at 5 p.m. The Seniac, which left here before the gale, was reported to have been by Cape Race to be off there in the teeth of the storm. She was getting marked in the waves, she passed Cape Race at noon Sunday for anchorage. Much anxiety is felt for schooners which were due here from the Westward with cargoes of dry fish as well as for several northern craft that left for home the night before last with supplies. It is to be hoped that all made harbours of safety.

Much damage to fishing property is reported between the Cape and St. Francis. Even at the Southside of the harbour here some boats and fishing stages were damaged.

The gale was also severely felt along the railway line and the telegraph lines were interrupted in consequence.

IN BATTLE OF CHAMPAGNE.
New York, Nov. 9.—Alexander Powell, the war correspondent who returned from Europe to-day on the steamship Lafayette, told of remarkable sights he had seen in the Champagne district. He said that a field proper had been about the extent of Manhattan Island, and that he had seen thousands and thousands of bodies of the dead. "General Joffre," Mr. Powell said, "is anxious to show the French that his army could do something, ordered a bombardment of the German trenches that would level them. The cavalry might charge across the field. To accomplish this he brought up 3,000 guns with 800 shells for each, and dug fifty miles of special trenches. Then the battle of the big guns began, and for three days and nights the bombardment was so terrible and incessant that it was a continuous roar.

"They never let up for an instant. Every one had cotton in his ears, and we became tired standing on tip-toe to avoid the concussion, for it was continuous. At the end of three days the charge began and for the first time in this war, cavalry charged across an open field.

"Before the bombardment the field which was fifteen miles long and three wide was gashed with deep trenches. After three days it was almost a level plain. The victims of that battle numbered 250,000.

"The men who went after the Germans in that charge were strange looking objects. The French are wearing the steel shrapnel proof helmets or casques. These come down over the back of the neck, and are a great protection. They wear the gas masks also, and every man is armed with a knife for close fighting.

"Make no mistake about the fighting qualities of the German soldier. He is as good a fighter as the world can show, but he lacks the initiative of the French and the English. Give a body of German troops officers and they are superior to most soldiers, but kill the officers and they do not seem to know what to do. With the Frenchman or the English it is different. They can fight for themselves without officers, if necessary, and are often called upon to do so."

Germans Missed Disaster by But Small Margin.

London, Nov. 6.—Joseph Reinach, the military historian, states that had the French guns been able to continue firing for another two hours in the Battle of Champagne the German army would have been driven from France. The French staff, he says, possesses convincing evidence of this. It is also learned that the German garrison at San Quentin was advised that the German line was about to break, that all military stores were removed and the German staff officers formally said farewell to their French families with whom they had been living.

Every road in the rear of the German line from Lens to the Argonne, says Reinach, was packed with guns and military supplies being sent back to Belgium and Lemberg. But at the critical moment the French army was unable to follow up its advantage because the men dropped in exhaustion and the guns were red hot.

SHUTTING OUT MRS. PANKHURST.

LONDON, To-day. A "patriotic meeting" organized by the Women's Social and Political Union, over which Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was to preside on Thursday in the Royal Albert Hall, which was to demand a vigorous conduct of the war has been cancelled by the Hall management. The premature announcement by Mrs. Pankhurst, disclosing the real purpose of the meeting, to which application of the word Patriotic was held distinctly a misnomer, caused the cancellation. In a letter Mrs. Pankhurst said the betrayal of Serbia has come as a final tragic proof that neither the honor nor the interest of the nation is safe in the present hands of the Ministry. The Prime Minister and Sir Edward Grey are unfit for the great and responsible positions they hold. In order to give expression to the prevailing indignation, a great meeting is to be held. This inspired attempt to deprive the nation of its rights of protest will not succeed. A meeting will be held as announced later. Simultaneously the Women's Social Political Union announced it would hold its usual weekly meeting at the London Pavilion on Thursday, where Mrs. Pankhurst would deal with the situation, but this project also was defeated, as the manager of the Pavilion notified Mrs. Pankhurst the theatre was engaged and therefore not available.

RECOGNITION OF MEXICAN GOVERNMENT.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Britain has authorized the British Legation at Mexico City to extend recognition to the de facto Government. A Washington naval official to-day disclaimed any connection between the arrival of the battleship Kentucky at Progreso and the forcible searching of the American steamer Zealandia at that port by an armed patrol from a British cruiser. The investigation to determine whether the Zealandia was within the three miles limit still is underway. British officials contend she was not.

BULGARIANS REPULSED.

PARIS, To-day. (Official).—The army of the east Bulgarians renewed a violent attack on November 14th against our front on the left bank of the Cerna. They were everywhere repulsed with heavy losses. Calm prevailed on the whole front along the left bank of the Vardar. The debarkation of French and British troops at Saloniki continue without incident.

FRENCH MINISTER'S WELCOME AT ATHENS.

ATHENS, To-day. Many Athens merchants decorated their establishments to-day with the French Tricolor in honor of the arrival of Denesh Cochin, Minister without portfolio, in the French Cabinet. Local newspapers attribute great importance to the visit of Cochin.

BULGARIAN REINFORCEMENTS IN SOUTH SERBIA.

PARIS, To-day. The Havas Agency from Athens says telegrams from Saloniki say the Bulgarians are actively reinforcing the troops operating in the region of Veles and Uskup. Five divisions of Bulgarians are reported to be in the region of Abuta Pass and Krivolak with the object of opposing the advance of the French troops before Cerna and the force on the height of Babuna that defends the route from Prilep to Monastir. On the Cerna front the Bulgarians thought twice repulsed are renewing their assaults and the defile Babuna is still firmly held by the Serbs. Despatches from Sofia report the Bulgarians pushing the repairs of the railroad, running from Nish to Sofia. It is declared trains will be running over the line in a few days.

NOT PURCHASING SUPPLIES.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The Russian Embassy issued a statement to-night declaring that neither the Embassy nor any of its officials is connected in any way with purchasing supplies in the United States for the Russian Government.

SOFIA EMBARGO ON FURS.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Russia lifted its embargo on the exportation of furs, which held up shipments valued at millions of dollars, consigned to the United States.

WILL BUILD TWO DREADNOUGHTS.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Bids will be opened by the Navy Department to-morrow for two thirty-two thousand super-dreadnaughts, authorized by last Congress. The Act limited the cost of these ships approximately to fifteen million dollars each. The two new ships will be built on plans prepared after secret experiments to develop means of lessening the danger from submarine attack. These experiments are continuing and are said to be meeting with marked success.

CONCERN ABOUT GREECE.

LONDON, To-day. With increasing gravity from the Allies view point, the military situation in Serbia, the attitude of Greece towards the armies of the Entente Powers has become a matter of deep concern. An effort is being made to induce the Greek Government definitely to state its intentions. It is said the presence at Saloniki of a large number of French and British warships with transports has made some impression on King Constantine and his advisers. But with so much at stake nothing short of positive guarantee of the safety of the French, British and Serbian troops should they be compelled by circumstances to retire to Greece will satisfy London and Paris, the Ministers of which capitals are being strongly supported by Russian and Italian representatives. It is hoped here will help to clear up a very complicated situation. The time, however, is short, for Bulgarians have been very strongly reinforced both in Central and Southern Serbia and besides are attempting a flanking movement against the Serbians at Babuna Pass, thereby threatening Prilep and Monastir and opposing formidable forces to the French and Gradisko and along the left bank of the Cerna, thus the Serbians are holding the Abuna Pass and the French their original positions. But pressure necessarily is being felt by the troops who have been fighting days without cessation. In the north, the Austro-Germans who have joined hands with the Bulgarians west of Nish, are moving slowly and steadily but doubtless cautiously owing to the presence of unbeaten Montenegrins with perhaps other support harassing them in the west. A despatch received to-night from Vienna by way of Zurich, says that British and Italian troops are endeavoring to reach the battle field where the Serbians are awaiting them but does not say from what point they are coming. The campaign will be watched with considerable anxiety for the next few days. On the other fronts there is little to report in both Belgian and Petrograd statements in London.

Charges of incompetency and neglect of their work are brought against the British staff in France by Baron St. Davids this evening, when he asked the Government whether its attention had been called to reports that during the recent fighting there had been many complaints as to faults in staff work. Lord St. Davids asserted men had been added to the staff for no military reasons, who might be in the trenches, and from what he had been told the British headquarters staff was five or six times as large as that of General Joffre, the French Commander in charge. It had been stated, he continued, that women visited the headquarters in France and asked whether the Government defended their presence there. People are sending their sons out to fight under the direction of men, who, he declared, were living at headquarters in vast numbers and could not go early to their offices because they were up late playing bridge. It is about time, said Lord St. Davids, that the men were given a fair chance. More than once troops have broken German lines but owing to the bad staff, many lives have been sacrificed owing to muddling in high places. The Marquis of Crew replied to the allegations that success had been missed owing to the fault of bringing up reserves at the right time, was the subject of inquiry between the highest authorities that could be invoked. Baron Newton said he was unable to disclose the number of the British staff, and defended it as did also Viscount Haldane, former Secretary of War. Lord Haldane declared Lord St. Davids launched his attack without adequate information. It is true, he said, the country suffered owing to the want of an organized general staff. Nevertheless there had been evoked a general staff of the highest order. To say that the work of the staff is faulty is to say something which is very far from the truth; as for Field Marshal French, he is up at six o'clock every morning. Marquis Creve said from his knowledge of Field Marshal French, he thought it exceedingly unlikely he would submit to having persons forced upon his personal staff. Lord Creve had no hesitation in saying that unless women had business at headquarters they ought not to go there.

SERBIANS COMPELLED TO RETREAT.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch received here, says the Serbians have been compelled to retreat from Babuna Pass, owing to the danger of their position being turned. The despatch also the Bulgarians captured Krushevo and are now six miles east of Prilepe.

1.30 P.M.

BULGARIANS MEET HEAVY LOSS.

SALONIKI, To-day. General Sarrail, Commander-in-Chief of the French army in the Balkans, announced that as result of a 26 hours' battle on Cerna River, southern Serbia, thirty thousand Bulgarians were repulsed along the whole line with very heavy casualties. Not one French gun was lost. The Austro-German efforts to envelop the Serbians north, it is also announced, failed. Serbian counter-offensive is proceeding successfully.

NEW BULGARIAN ADVANCE.

SALONIKA, To-day. In addition to the Bulgarian columns which turned the Serbian position at Babuna Pass, a second Bulgarian force is advancing on Kostovo from Kalkendelep. The Bulgarians are reported to be withdrawing from Cerna River section which is held by the French. The French report many desertions from the Bulgarian army.

BRITISH WAR COUNCIL IN FRANCE.

PARIS, To-day. Asquith arrived last night accompanied by Sir Edward Grey, Lloyd George and Balfour. The object of visit has not been announced.

ITALIANS REFUSE SEPARATE PEACE.

ROME, To-day. Proposals for separate peace were made to Italy by Austria at the time of the recent Italian offensive was begun, the Popolo Italia asserts. The paper declares certain territorial concessions were offered to Italy, but that Salandra Cabinet refused to consider them.

GREEK MISSION TO GERMANY.

ROME, To-day. It is announced by newspapers that M. Stratos, former Greek Minister of Marine, is on his way to Switzerland, whence he will go to Germany, supposedly on special mission.

ROMANIA MAY SIDE WITH GERMANY.

BUCHAREST, To-day. Former Premier Carp is credited with the statement that Rumania will take up arms on the side of Germany in December. The prediction is made by Carp that as soon as established communications make it possible, Germany will make new offers to Rumania in the form of an ultimatum, requiring a reply within 48 hours.

UNABLE TO ASSIST SERBIANS.

LONDON, To-day. The Serbs have been compelled to retire from their strong positions in Babuna Pass, which is in imminent danger of being turned by masses of Bulgarian infantry, says a despatch to the Mail from Saloniki, filed yesterday. The French were held on the left bank of Anya River, south of Veles, by considerable Bulgar forces and were unable to send assistance to the hard pressed Serbians.

RECORD ENLISTMENTS IN LONDON.

NEW YORK, To-day. A cable to the Tribune from London says: With only 15 days left before Lord Derby's recruiting scheme gives way to conscription, men stormed the London recruiting offices yesterday until a war's record was reached. Men with silk hats and men in derby's jostled one another to be enrolled as soon as possible. Some of them came in batches from the same business houses. This rush to the colors was not confined to any section but from every part of London came reports of record enlistments.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

Lord Kitchener, Hinzelin concludes, is taking assurances to Greece that if she fulfils her duty to wards Serbia, the Allies will protect her from all dangers.

HOPEFUL OF RECRUITING.

LONDON, To-day. Premier Asquith is still hopeful that the voluntary system of recruiting in the United Kingdom will succeed. The Premier stated in the House of Commons this afternoon: It was his hope and belief that coercive measures would not have to be resorted to.

HINDENBERG FOR THE WEST.

LONDON, To-day. The Post's Bernese correspondent says it is reported there that Von Hindenberg has left the eastern front for the western front.

RUSSIAN DREADNOUGHTS OUT.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to the Vossische Zeitung from Bucharest reports that 15 units of the Russian Black Sea fleet, including 3 recently launched Dreadnaughts, have been cruising for two days off the Bulgarian coast.

FRENCH'S LATEST REPORT.

LONDON, To-day. An official communication from Field Marshal French says: Since my communication of November 10th the artillery on both sides have been active, especially south of Labasse Canal, east of Komel and east of Ypres. There have been no infantry actions. There has been considerable mining activity.

MONTENEGRINS REFUSE ENEMY.

CETTINJE, To-day. An official communication issued by the Montenegrin army headquarters says: Austrian attacks against our Sandjak army redoubled in violence all day on the 14th. We succeeded nevertheless in maintaining our positions and inflicted tremendous losses upon the enemy. We have repulsed the Austrian attacks upon Nouchilo and Troglav. Artillery fighting along the remainder of front continues.

GERMAN SUBMARINE SINKS ITALIAN STEAMER.

PARIS, To-day. An investigation by the Italian Government has disclosed that the submarine which torpedoed the steamer Firenze was a German. The Italian Rome correspondent of the Journal, Passengers and crew of the steamer, all of whom were saved, are said to agree that the sailors aboard the submarine were German. The German uniforms and also German colors were hoisted first, although the Austrian flag was substituted later. If the Firenze, an Italian steamer, was sunk by a German submarine it might be regarded by Italy as an act of war. There has yet been no declaration of hostilities between Italy and Germany.

Pettiness.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"And what do they Crave Publicity. I assure you it isn't at all hard to get some of those pictures. On the contrary, there are many people who hanker for such publicity, who even come into the office lugging pictures of themselves. Mind you, I don't have any use for the person who makes a fearful protest against having his picture appear. That's a kind of false modesty about as far removed from the real article as immodesty. And sometimes it's simply a pretense to hide a real eagerness. If the public has reason to be interested in your appearance, why not permit them to see your picture? It won't hurt you a bit, and the really big people are too busy being and doing, to think much about the matter one way or another.

The Pettiness That Broods Over Little Grievances.

That pettiness ran away with me. You see I still have considerable feeling on the subject left over from my reportorial days. Incidentally it has crowded out any detailed mention of the other pettinesses, but you know what they are—the pettiness that stores up and broods over a small grievance; the pettiness that goes about with a chip on its shoulder always thinking someone is trying to slight or impose upon it; the pettiness that lets envy or the consciousness of another's superior worth breed dislike in its heart; and oh, so many more that I can't think of just now, but that you can think of for yourself!

Of course I don't mean that these pettinesses are peculiar to women. Far from it. But I do think women are rather more inclined to the vice of pettiness than men. We've had petty lives. Why shouldn't we be? But this is a new era. We're not think! The women who are giving the dance for the benefit of the Town Improvement Fund have decided they won't come near our fair for the Old Folks' Home, because we put it in the same week."

This is the interesting bit of news which a neighbor of mine brought me the other day.

Just fancy women who are all exciting themselves in one good cause another being guilty of such abominable pettiness as that!

Don't Speak To Her Neighbour.

Again, a friend of mine in another city writes me that her right-hand neighbour, an ardent anti-suffragist, will not speak to her left-hand neighbour because the latter is working for suffrage.

Shame upon such pettiness!

The thing I hope most of the new man is that she will try to shuck the pettiness that has been hindering her bigger self.

Out upon all such pettiness, I say! And alas! there are so many of them. There's the pettiness of the women to be charitable and philanthropic not for the work's sake, not for the love of humanity, but in order to be on committees, to meet people over them socially, to see their names printed in programmes and in newspaper reports. Once upon a time, I was a reporter on a newspaper, and my friends used to say to me, "don't see how you get all those letters to have their pictures in the paper."

Advocates the Further Extension of the Patriotic Association.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Mr. Editor.—Now that the Prohibition campaign has ended, our thoughts and attentions which had at least been partly diverted by the war-fare against the liquor traffic have again returned to the great centre of attraction, I mean the great War. The stupendous struggle in which our Empire in which we are engaged for our very existence. This fight for freedom and liberty, that we might continue to own ourselves, to think for ourselves, and to act for ourselves. To win this war will be worth the sacrifice however great. Who amongst us is not burning with a fervent desire to take a very active part in this Crusade.

The first impulse for the man is to serve in the Army or the Navy, or the woman to nurse. This privilege is only extended to the few, to the young, strong and healthy. Happy are they who are permitted to bear arms and fight for our righteous cause. To those who are not permitted to make the supreme sacrifice comes the desire to work and pay, or to labour and give. Surely if some are cheerful and willing to give their all, their lives, is it unreasonable to expect from the remainder a large portion of their time and a considerable amount of their means.

We can learn a lesson from the old heathen Romans who lived hundreds of years before the Christian era. History records, and Macaulay expresses their sentiments in the following lines:—

"For Romans in Rome's quarrel Spared neither land nor gold, Nor son, nor wife, nor limb nor life In the brave days of old."

Our brave lads in the Army and Navy are not sparing themselves, some of our noble mothers and fathers are not sparing their sons, a great number of good people (men and women) are not sparing their time or money.

But the sad part that which we are loathe to admit, but is nevertheless true, that

A great number of our strong, healthy young men have not up to the present taken their stand, although the call is constantly ringing in their ears.

2. That a large portion of the other people have given very little of their money or devoted very little time, contrasted very little to the various Patriotic Funds or assisted the noble cause in any substantial way.

Unfortunately even now after fifteen months of this cruel War, very many of our people do not realize the seriousness of our position, the consequence of different results on the moral obligations imposed upon each and every one of us.

One has often to take part in or listen to a conversation after this style:—

(Selfish Man)—Well, what war news to-day?

(The Other Man)—Not much change in the situation on any Fronts, but the Allies are little more than holding their own in most places.

(Selfish Man)—Not very good. They don't seem to be doing much. I wish this War was over. Everything is so dear. It is hard to live those days.

Notice: He does not wish the War over, and a more of our fine, brave men will be slain, or made cripples, so that no more children will be rendered fatherless, wives made widows, parents childless or helpless ones murdered or starved. Oh, no, he only wishes the War over so that he can (he hopes) save five cents on a pound of tea or 50 cents on a barrel of flour.

I think we could be a much happier people if this spirit of selfishness and indifference was to a large extent knocked out.

Now it is with this purpose in view as well as organizing a systematic means of increasing our Patriotic Funds and liberally to the other Funds that I make a suggestion or two.

The various committees of the Patriotic Association in St. John's ac-ording to their reports published from time to time have been doing excellent work since their formation, and to my mind St. John's has responded splendidly in men and money. But not so with many of the Outports. Branches of the Patriotic Association, or rather Committees were organized in many of the outports about a year ago. After making a collection for the Patriotic Fund most of the Committees became dormant or not very active.

Consequently Funds like the Cot Fund, Trafalgar Day (Red Cross Fund), etc., have not been subscribed to as fully as they ought to have been, because there was no organization to look after the collecting. (My remarks do not apply to every outport, the published lists of donations is an informant of who's who and from where).

I suggest that the Patriotic Association in St. John's be the fountain head or organizing medium, to form rules and regulations for the organizing and conducting of Branch Associations in every available settlement in the country. In order to become a member of the Branch each person pay an entrance fee of say $1.00, and to continue a member in good standing pay a regular monthly due of 10, 20 or 25 cents, all fees and dues to go to the Patriotic Fund. The Branch Associations to hold weekly meetings. The agenda paper of these meetings might consist of lectures, discussion on War situation information sought imparted, papers read on Imperial History and General routine.

The W. P. A. is well organized at the present time, but even their efforts might be stimulated if they saw the men organized as I suggest.

There are perhaps 62,000 men in Newfoundland over 18 years of age. (There is no reason why any lad of 13 or 14 could not be a member of the Branch if he paid his dues), and if only 50,000 (less than half) became members and continue so for one year and paid a monthly due of 20 cents. The total amount of dues and fees would be about $102,000.00, a nice addition to the Patriotic Fund.

There is still more to be said, but thanks for so much space at present.

Perhaps some person will think it worth while if not to agree with, criticize my suggestion, anything to stir up our indifferent feelings.

Very sincerely yours,
NEWFOUNDLANDER.

Dr. Garlic.

For centuries past garlic—the very sound smells!—has not held a place in English cookery, though its favour has been retained amongst Continental dishes.

A wise cook, however, knows that one crumb of this famous root adds greatly to the flavour of the family joint.

A map of London reveals the fact that garlic was not once without its staunch supporters — hence Garlic Hill and Garliclight Church; and during the days of the Great Plague it posed as a remedy for the stricken.

Garlic, too, held its place in our grandmothers' medicine chests, and was considered most efficacious for certain aches and pains.

And now we are again threatened with an invasion. Our French allies have discovered that it is admirable as an antiseptic, and it is being used with great success in the French hospitals at the present time.

It certainly will be a rather quaint revival, for at one time any connection with this plant was considered a disgrace, and the term "garlic eater" was synonymous with "a low fellow."

Henry H Asquith

BRITAIN'S PREMIER.

The public are less familiar with the details of Mr. Asquith's career than with those of many other public men. The time for a full life is fortunately not yet, but the biography of the Prime Minister, which Mr. Harold Spender has written, supplies in very interesting and readable form personal facts which will be new to numbers who are fairly familiar with his public life. A well-known story runs that a Balliol man addressing Dr. Jowett, when Mr. Asquith left Oxford, put to him this question: "Will Asquith get on?" To which the reply was: "Yes, he will get on; he is so direct." That prophecy has been amply fulfilled.

But, while the "directness" is there, Mr. Asquith, we are assured, has a "soft and mild side."

In private his wit is always kindly and often boyish in its merriment. "They don't often catch you napping," he said to the greatest of his Chief Whips when he found him dead asleep from fatigue. He loves to sport with his children, and he is, as a rule, with these "near him a thoroughly genial and hearty companion. To his intimates, indeed, he is rather the comrade than the Chief; to his family the fond and best beloved of fathers; to his secretaries the most loyal and tolerant of masters; to his Cabinets the best of friends—quick to praise, slow to blame, large, generous, appreciative, helpful.

Yet always there is the feeling of power behind, and this, according to Mr. Asquith's latest biographer, is the secret of his mastery.

His Recreations.

Mr. Asquith loves recreation, although one might hardly think it. According to the author:

He reads many novels—chiefly novels of the old-fashioned type, for he is little in love with modernism and realism in fiction. He plays auction bridge. He is still as fond of the theatre as when he was a boy. Rather late in life he took to golf, and although he does not aspire to be a mock-professional, he plays a good steady game. Although starved of sports in early life he still loves them with a true British devotion.

How, then, it is asked, explain his reputation for being a remote, rather austere figure?

The explanation, it is urged, lies partly in his habit of aloofness:

He goes rarely into the lobbies and smoke-rooms of the House, and then passes rapidly, seeing few. . . . He loathes the more vulgar aspects of party management and organization. It requires all the scourging of the Whips to bring him to the point of popularising himself. He is almost a Coriolanus in this matter of reserve. Being shy himself, he flatters others by believing that they too object to those readings of the soul which men call familiarity. So he flies from the Treasury Bench to his private room. He has, as far as I know, never been interviewed; he cultivates no Press following.

To Fleet Street, indeed, it would appear, he is the least accessible Prime Minister that ever lived only a mile away in Downing Street. "Still, with all this, Mr. Asquith is a friendly, family, very human man."

What Dyspeptics Should Eat

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE. "Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot resist the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

The Moulder of Fortunes.

(By Thos. E. Walsh, London (Can.) Advertiser.)

I have brought many obscure men and articles into world prominence. I am one of the best investments that can possibly be made. I have returned dividends of 100 per cent and more; yet millions of dollars are wasted upon me. I am the technical school teaching for the rank and file, for millionaire and laborer alike. I have assisted millions of housewives to distinguish between that which is good and that which is shoddy. I am the clarion voice of the mercantile world, used in announcing pure foodstuffs, the latest etapes hygienic wearing apparel and amusement devices that help make a weary world happy. I have brought fame to many of the world's greatest operatic stars. I am printed in nearly every language in the world. I have elected obscure men to public office and am used by governments, states, provinces, cities and towns in spread-broadcast words of advice to farmer and city dweller, and divulging the earth's brainiest men. I have been successfully used to fill churches in large cities, after all other methods have failed. I am quite often thought of as a worker of miracles, yet I never worked one. I have been heard in the remote corners of the frozen North and the burning wastes of the desert lands of the South. I am one of the greatest things in the world to-day; have been used by many, abused by a few; yet my wonderful powers are only now becoming fully appreciated. I have helped slay the dragon of fear and distrust that lived in the minds of millions of men and women of buying my new article by explaining what it was, how and under what circumstances it was made and why it would be to their advantage to buy it. I will go on forever growing more powerful each day for I am "truthful advertising—judiciously handled."

Voluntary Service or Conscription?

The Month.—After twelve months the slacker still exists in considerable numbers. Assuming that some two and a half million volunteers are engaged in the Services, and making a liberal allowance for those otherwise employed in helping the State, a simple sum in arithmetic will reveal the existence of at least a million or two who might be in khaki and are not. I do not underestimate the seriousness of the decision such men are called upon to make; they are called upon to embrace what is at best a life of discomfort, restriction and captivity; they have to give up in many cases present ease and fair prospects. It is an heroic choice for most men, but the occasion calls for heroism, and many succumb before the test. . . . The existence of such weaklings in large numbers, men unable to realize or unwilling to perform their duty, will probably necessitate conscription before the war is over.

"Still Getting Worse."

"No one can measure your 'Nerve Force' as it leaves you. 'Prescription A' will increase your 'Nerve Force' wonderfully. Nerve Force is the very motive power of the body as petrol is of the engine. If you are using up too much Nerve Force through overwork, worry or other causes—you are like a motor car with a leaky petrol tank, however good the mechanism it must break sooner or later. Now Prescription 'A' not only restores lost Nerve Force but actually increases it to a remarkable degree. Try it. You will really be astonished at the result. Indian Princes Continue Gifts to Aid Empire.

London, Nov. 8 (through Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—A special despatch from Delhi, India, says: Premier Asquith's speech was read with the deepest interest in the whole peninsula, and was well received by all classes. Interned conditions in India continue satisfactory, and even quieter on the north-west frontier after the severe punishment meted out to the rebellious raiding tribesmen.

The Indian Princes continue their munificent gifts of money for the Red Cross, and also motor cars, aeroplanes, munition works, and equipment for troops.

Agricultural conditions are fair to good, and prices are steady. Rain is required in most of the districts.

Recruiting in the north-west for the Indian army proceeds vigorously especially among the Sikhs, Gurkhas, and Punjab Mohammedans. The entire country shows the keenest resolve to give all possible and secure final victory for the Empire.

The American and Canadian vessels which were in that section awaiting cargoes for over a fortnight, are now busy loading. The reports from the Armas at Bay of Islands, though, are none too encouraging at present.

AT THE CRESCENT.

Mr. Dan Delmar sings Fiske O'Hara's great Irish success: "Ireland is Ireland to Me," at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. A big program of fine pictures presenting the best artists in the business. Ormi Hawley and Earle Metcalfe appears in "The Human Investment." Tom Moore and Marguerite Courtois in "The Girl and the Explorer," all the Essanay stars appear in "The Dance at Aleck Fontaine's," a French Canadian feature. A real art cartoon in "A Night in New Jersey" and "Cyrenellus and the Wild Man" is a novel Kalem comedy; don't fail to see this big mid-week show. The Crescent gives two shows every afternoon commencing at 2:15; the theatre is comfortably heated and there are no stairs to climb.

EXPLOITS OF ELAINE AT THE NICKEL.

The mid-week programme at the Nickel Theatre which begins to-day is sure to attract capacity audiences at each performance, as it is really one of the best of the great shows given at this theatre of late. In the first place "The Exploits of Elaine" will be continued, the second instalment being shown. This itself will draw all movie fans as all are interested in this clever production. To-day's chapter is a beautiful one and no one should miss it. We strongly advise all our readers to attend to-day. The show will continue until 11 p.m. for the benefit of those working in the stores. Then there are other grand subjects. "Demand that must be Supplied," "When Love took Wings," and "Mr. Buttles," all by big stars. "The Godless is coming shortly, and the greatest feature of it "The Newfoundland Regiment," 1000 feet.

BRITISH THEATRE.

Patrons of the British to-night and following nights are assured of a treat in the local film, "Salmon fishing on the Terra Nova River," is longer than the usual local, and photographically perfect. All the details of a salmon-fishing trip are strikingly reproduced amid the wonderful scenery of one of our finest rivers. We see the party embarking at Glouceston and canoeing up to the falls; the camp and incidents of camp life; salmon jumping the Falls; laying and landing salmon, and glimpses of scenery on the railway taken from the train. Come and see premier angler, Thomas Winter, laying and landing salmon, and guide numbers of caribou, fame, splitting and selling them. Every sportsman's very lover of nature and every Newfoundland should make a point of seeing this film. See in advertising space for a splendid programme of pictures, which are hard to beat.

SURPRISE NIGHT AT ROSSLEY'S TO-NIGHT.

Carroll and Ellor will give their smoky sketch to-night which is one such a minute, and besides Mr. Carroll will repeat his surprise act of Saturday night, and those who could not attend that night will be able to see the greatest female impersonator of the world appearing in one of his magnificent Paris gowns. Don't miss to-night, two complete and distinct acts. The pictures are of the best seen in the city. The contest on Friday night will be another treat. Miss Lily Thorne will again delight the audience. There are several names town and some real good singers and dancers among them. Be sure you attend to-night's surprise show.

Electrician Leaves.

Mr. Llewellyn Saunders, electrician with the Reid-Nfld. Co. for some three years past, left by last evening's express en route to Pittsburg, Pa., where he will enter the employ of the Westinghouse Electrical Company. Mr. Saunders is a native of Salvage, B.B., and was a telegraph operator at his home town before coming here to work with the Reid Nfld. Co. During his leisure hours at Salvage he constructed a complete wireless apparatus though he had up to then never seen a Marconi Station. Other products of his inventive genius were perfected during his term with the Reid Nfld. Co., and we feel sure that with the Westinghouse Co. Mr. Saunders will have an open field for the development of his ideas along electrical lines. He was popular with the electrical staff at the Reid Nfld. Co. and on Saturday last when he tender-

Much thanks is due the members of the Kilbride Club for giving their hall free for the occasion, and for other assistance given, and also those who sent donations of cake, etc., and otherwise helped to make the affair a success.

THE GREAT BLESSING.

We have much to be grateful, since there's no warfare, grim and hateful, within this smiling country's borders; we slay not at some marshal's orders. In Europe men are now preparing for months of freezing and despairing; they'll spend the winter in the trenches, while foes, with guns and monkey wrenches, make daily efforts to dislodge them, and they'll be too blamed cold to dodge them. Oh, when you're seated in your rocker, with trusty pipe and shilling shocker, with peace and comfort all around you, and not a peril to confound you, think how your trans-Atlantic cousins are being shot up by the dozens. There are no comforts in the trenches; no rocking chairs or padded benches; there are no sprightly evening papers, to tell the latest football capers. The men must stand in muddy water, and wield the musket and the swatter, and shiver in the biting blizzard, which freezes them from nose to gizzard. Oh, think of that while you are rocking before the fire, and blithely talking of White House brides and income taxes—think of the swords and battle axes!

WILL POSITIVELY cure the most obstinate cough. A couple doses give relief. The old reliable remedy, "Call's Safe and Sure Cough Cure." Post paid, 30c. G. J. BROCKLEHURST, Carboner.—Oct 23, w.s.t.f

Trouble Which Led Up to trouble in Grecian Cabinet.

Athens, Nov. 4 (via London, Nov. 5).—The trouble in the Chamber to-day arose over a Bill for extra pay to officers during mobilization of war. A lively discussion ensued. Deputy Vlachos, a follower of M. Venizelos, criticized the Bill, and in somewhat unparliamentary language expressed surprise that it should have been introduced by War Minister Yanakitsas, who, he said, was not even a deputy.

M. Vlachos was called to order and offered to apologize, but Gen. Yanakitsas, ignoring the apology, angrily gathered up his papers and left the House, declaring that it was impossible for him to remain. The incident provoked a tumult and the sitting was suspended. The Ministers retired to confer in private on the situation. On the resumption of the sitting, M. Venizelos insisted that Gen. Yanakitsas owed the House an apology for his abrupt departure, and that unless he apologized the House would be unable to continue its sitting. M. Zaimis then declared that the Government considered that no apology was due from the War Minister, and demanded a vote of confidence on the question.

A long debate followed, in which all the leaders spoke, M. Venizelos delivering two long speeches, defending his policy and condemning that of the Government. The former Premier said he deplored the fact that Serbia was being left to be crushed by Bulgaria. Greece's hereditary enemy, who would not scruple later to fall on Greece herself.

Cabinet Alone Responsible. Challenged by another deputy as to whether he thought the King wished the country's destruction, M. Venizelos said: "I should have preferred not to drag the King's name into the discussion, but since you ask I will say that in a constitutional Government the Crown has no place in the responsibility. It is absurd to suppose that the King desires to destroy the country, but our State is a constitutional kingdom, or is rather a democracy presided over by a King, and the whole responsibility rests on the Cabinet. If you want a monarch, say so openly. But your efforts will be unavailing because the country does not desire a change. It is not a question of patriotism, but of constitutional liberties.

"I know the King is a distinguished general, but he is not equally experienced in things political. If I have tolerated the present Cabinet, it is because of the constitutional deadlock created by the Crown's action and the impossibility of holding elections in the present state of mobilization. "You are mistaking this toleration for approval of your policy with which I disagree diametrically. Instead of new elections, you had better suspend the Constitution until the end of the war; then we may know exactly where the responsibilities lie."

Several members of the Cabinet attacked the policy of M. Venizelos. M. Gounaris, Minister of the Interior, maintained that the constitution conferred upon the King the right to disapprove of a Government, and he sought to justify the Cabinet's refusal to assist Serbia. M. Venizelos again spoke at length in defence of his policy and the vote was then taken, showing a lack of confidence in the Ministry. The Patrie, the organ of the Venizelos party, prior to the debate, addressed a supreme appeal to the Government to drop its neutrality and seize the opportunity to put an end to what it termed the Bulgarian threat, arguing that, as in 1913, the Central Powers were using Bulgaria as a diplomatic tool against Serbia and Greece, and that aggrandizement for Bulgaria meant ruin for Greece.

One of the statements of M. Venizelos which attracted especial attention was that Great Britain's offer to cede the Island of Cyprus to Greece was independent of the result of the war, while other promises of concessions were conditional on the success of the Allies. Greece, he said, was to acquire part of the Vilayet of Brusa and Bulgarian Thrace, while Bulgaria was to be shorn of the territory she gained as a result of the Balkan war. All this, he declared, would be obtained by Greece at small cost, since the proposals of the Entente Powers required only the assistance of smaller units of the Greek fleet.

Referring to the allegation that Serbia had failed to send against the Bulgarians 150,000 men in accordance with the provisions of the Treaty of Alliance, M. Venizelos said she actually had 130,000 troops opposed to the Bulgarians. If Greece had taken the field, the former Premier asserted, her army to-day would have been within a short distance of Sofia, and Serbia could have devoted her energies to holding back the Austro-Germans, whose numbers were less than had been reported.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

The Late Ple. W. L. Murphy.

Below we publish a copy of a letter from Surgeon-Major Macpherson to Mr. J. J. Murphy, of Buchanan Street, concerning his son, Private Walter L. Murphy, of the Newfoundland Regiment, whose death was reported amongst the casualties received from the Dardanelles last month. The kindness of the Surgeon-Major, whose message brings such consolation to the bereaved family, is very much appreciated by Mr. Murphy. The following is a copy of the letter:—

Dardanelles, 8/10/15.
Mr. J. J. Murphy,
20 Buchanan Street,
St. John's, Newfoundland.
Dear Sir—

I have very much regret to tell you that your son Walter passed away two or three days after he dictated the letter to you. He was cheerful right up to the last, though I warned him that he was seriously ill. In fact he was feeling better and ate quite heartily of the light diet allowed him for his illness. Just after dinner he had a sudden collapse and passed away.

He is buried in the military cemetery on the east side of the harbour of Mudros in the Island of Lemnos, with many another brave chap who has laid down his life for his country. You and Mrs. Murphy have my very deepest sympathy in your bereavement.

Yours faithfully,
CLUNY MACPHERSON.

Complaint About Missing Port.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your paper to make a few remarks about the Dundee Is. King's Cove really a port of call for her, and if so why doesn't she call here every trip when there is nothing worth while to keep her from coming? This is two trips in succession she did not call here. We have no railway connections whatever except by the Dundee, and then to have passengers and freight waiting is pretty vexing. It is bad enough to have one's freight delayed by railway accidents which I suppose cannot be avoided and then to have the Dundee running around the Bay not calling here where there is nothing to stop her except a little bit of fog. It is all along the shore from Open Hall here to King's Cove are going to ask Mr. Crosbie to make it a port of call for the s.s. Fogata.

Yours truly,
DISGUSTED,
King's Cove, Nov. 13th, 1915.

When the Kiel Canal Cooles Up.

In this great world war canals are perhaps of more importance than railways—the Suez Canal to the British Government in Egypt, and the Kiel Canal to the Germans with their skulking feet. It is not generally known what enormous difficulties have to be faced in the endeavour to keep the canals clear. The Germans have spent a gigantic sum on their Kiel Canal, which carries, or rather did carry, their ships from the North Sea to the Baltic. Just before they plunged all Europe into war they had widened it at a cost of fifteen millions.

The ground through which the canal is cut is nothing but rotten, silty, black peat, which keeps on breaking up and falling into the canal. Another difficulty the Germans experience with their canal is when the bottom "bumps up," this lowering the depth of the passage. Because of this the craft that use the Kiel Canal are forced to crawl along. It is said that if a cruiser were to make a dash through at top speed it would take a year and several millions of money to remedy the damage done by her stern wave.

It would prove disastrous to neglect a canal for even a year, for after that period it would no longer be fit for navigation. If a canal was left alone for five years at least, it would be impossible to paddle a small canoe from one side to the other. Each canal has its own particular troubles. That of the Panama is dangerous landslides. During the process of construction many took place, and it is not beyond doubt that many more will have to be dealt with in coming years.
