CHAPTER XX.
MILITARY TACTICS.

"I have been looking for Mr. More," he said, "and have found instead—these," and he held out a small bunch of violets. "I would say, will you accept them, but that they are yours already. Why is it that flowers awaken so many memories?" he went on, as Edna took the flowers and half sniffed, half breathed on them, as women do. "Some one has said that there are more memories in a rose than in all the chronicles that were ever written. I never smell a violet but I think of a certain hospital tent in which I lay one hot day, looking hour after hour upon a poor fellow who lay next me; he was dying fast, and held in his hot, feverish hand a little faded violet, which I saw him take from a letter. From whom did the next little English flower come as a last message to the dying man—mother, sister, sweetheart? Tut, tut, this is not a cheerful subject, but on my word, Miss Weston, war is not all brass bands and glory. May I ask what you are reading?"

"A volume of poems," said Edna; "that is, I am trying to read them, but either they lack the power to charm, or I am impervious this morning."

"May I see?" said the captain.

"Certainly," said Edna, and he took the book and dropped down almost at her feet, and, thanks to his mother, the ballet dancer, looked graceful.

"Well," he said, "they are not bad—here is one that strikes me as being rather good. May I read it to you?"

Edna smiled her assent, and leaned back idly, sniffing the violets and looking down with unconscious admiration at the handsome face beneath.

Capt. Morton's voice has been spoken of already; it was ordinarily soft and musical, leading to the most commonplace gossip a charm not to be resisted; but who shall describe the witchery of it when he taxed it to its utmost as he did now?

Edna listened at first dreamily, indifferently; then, as the music of the voice gave life and utterance to the melody of the poem, her attention was attracted, then charmed.

The poem was one of the best in the book, and the captain had selected it as adapted to his purpose: it was nothing more nor less than the cry of a girl who has learned to love, but to discover that her love can bring her nothing but an unsatisfied longing and desire which render her days an intolerable burden and her youth a curse. To others she seemed as free from care and anxiety as the birds that flew across her path, while she herself carried the secret of her love and its disappointment in her bosom, passing through life as a shadow and unreality.

Had Edna read the poem it would have affected her; but to hear it read by such a voice, every note of the wall emphasized and accentuated, it seemed as if the man at her feet had pried into her innermost heart, and was interpreting its unsatisfied desires.

Edna struggled with the effect that he was producing for some time, but at last her bosom began to heave, the tears rushed to her eyes, and she was about to beg him to stop when he stopped of his own accord, interrupted by the sound of horses' hoofs.

The next moment Lord Mersey and Grace Bromley, attended by two grooms, turned the corner of the drive and came in sight.

Edna had barely time to dry her eyes and get rid of the evidences of her emotion before Lord Mersey, having caught sight of her, leaped from his horse, assisted Grace Bromley to dismount, and the two came up.

They both looked hard at Capt. Morton, for there had been no time for him to get to his feet, and he was too skilful a tactician to rise hurriedly after he had been seen, but got up slowly and gracefully, just in time to take Grace Bromley's hand.

"Basking in the sun, eh?" said Lord Mersey, looking at Edna with his earnest eyes.

"And reading poetry," said the captain; "I am afraid you will say that we might have been better employed."

"That depends," said Lord Mersey, "on what you were reading."

The captain laughed.

"Miss Bromley shall judge," he said, and handed her the volume, but he took care to close it at first.

Grace took it and seated herself beside Edna. Lord Mersey stood flicking his legs with his serviceable whip, and looked at them, thinking of a blue rose and a damask rose, both beautiful flowers and hard to choose between. The captain eyed him with a serene but sharp scrutiny for a moment, then turned to the horses, which were being led up and down by one of the Rosedene grooms.

"Shall we go round the lawn?" said Edna; "what a lovely morning for a ride; that is such a beautiful mare of yours; Lord Mersey says that it is the handsomest he has seen out of Arabia."

"Does he?" said Grace, with a sudden light in her dark eyes. "He overtook me coming up the hill, and we came on together. He is going up to town to-night."

"I am so sorry for that," said Edna. Grace turned her eyes upon the pure, sweet face. Did the words mean no more than a polite regret? Her next question was a feeler thrown out to ascertain if there was anything hidden behind the polite indifference. "Are you not going up yet?"

"Not yet, I think," said Edna, with some little hesitation; "I seem to cling to the country, and to have a nervous dread of the presentation," and she smiled.

"It is nothing so terrible—after you have learned to walk backward. The crush in the anteroom is the worst. But you are fortunate in being presented by the duchess; Lord Mersey told me this morning that she was quite anxious for you to go to her."

Edna sighed. As she said, she seemed to cling to the country and the neighborhood of Rosedene.

"Who is this coming?" asked Grace, as Aunt Martha and a gentleman were seen approaching from the house.

"Why," said Edna, with a little glow of pleasure, "can it be?—yes, it is—Mr. Burdon."

"And who is Mr. Burdon?" asked Grace. "An old friend?"

"He is a lawyer—the first person to tell me of my good fortune," and she sighed, as she went forward with her hand extended.

"Mr. Burdon has just arrived," said Aunt Martha, with whom the genial lawyer was a great favorite; "he wished to remain in the library, but I told him you would much rather that he came to you."

"I should have been quite angry if you had not, indeed," said Edna, quite bright and beaming and girlish before this true friend.

"You are looking very well, Miss Weston," he said, with kindly respect. "Better than I expected to find you after the account of Mrs. Weston."

Edna laughed softly.

"A delicate compliment is that, Mr. Burdon? Oh, I am quite well, and very glad to see you; you must let me show you the crocuses and hyacinths. You will stay to luncheon," she said, turning to Grace. "Aunt, will you ask Lord Mersey—oh, here they come," she added, as Lord Mersey and Capt. Morton still engaged on horseflesh, came sauntering up.

Just the slightest shadow crossed Capt. Burton's face as he recognized Mr. Burdon, but he welcomed him as an old friend with well-bred cordiality, and with perfect ease.

Lord Mersey knew Burdon, also, and liked him, and they got into conversation at once. They were all moving toward the house when Edward More came from behind the shrubbery, followed by two spaniels, who immediately roared toward Edna, and promptly ruined her morning dress.

Edward More did not look at all pleased to see the lawyer surrounded by such a group, and was on thorns, which grew into daggers, when Lord Mersey, who, of course, knew that Burdon was looking for Cyril, said in a straightforward way:

"By the way, Burdon, have you heard anything of Sir Cyril yet?"

The question falls on all ears with a certain unpleasant suddenness, but upon Edward More's and Capt. Morton's particularly so.

Mr. Burdon hesitated a moment, and looked at Edna, but seeing that she looked as anxious for his reply as any, he said:

"No, my lord, nothing; and I have left very few stones unturned, notwithstanding."

"Strange that," said Lord Mersey, pulling at his beard. "Sir Cyril is not exactly the sort of man to play hide and seek, eh, Mr. More?"

"Eh?" said Edward, uncomfortably. "No, I should think not."

"Quite unaccountable," sighed Mrs. More.

Mr. Burdon looked from one to the other gravely.

"It is unaccountable, and extremely inconvenient," he said, quietly. "Sir Cyril's estate has not disappeared, and demands attention, and provides a reason, if there was no other, for his discovery."

"Cyril always was—" commenced Edward, irritably, but paused, and Mr. Burdon filled it up.

"Eccentric. Yes, and I suppose we must make the best of it. I am glad you are here," he said, addressing

Edward; "there are one or two matters connected with the park on which I should like to speak with you."

"The park is quite shut up—that is, there is no one in charge, is there?" asked Lord Mersey.

"No one," said Mr. Burdon.

"Dear me," said Mrs. Weston, with amiable concern; "so large a place, too! By the way, did you tell Mr. More or Mr. Burdon what you saw, or fancied you saw, in the avenue the night we came from our first visit to the castle, Edna?"

All eyes were turned on Edna, and Mr. Burdon stopped in his ascent of the last step on the terrace, and looked upon her.

"What was that, Miss Weston?" he said.

"Oh, Edna saw him," said Aunt Martha, smiling over her spectacles. "I was too late—the carriage had turned the corner before I had time to look."

"Saw him—whom?" asked Mr. Burdon, with a smile that was half grave.

"Not a ghost, I hope?" murmured Capt. Morton, in so singularly suggestive a tone, that Edna raised her eyes to his face with a little startled look.

Did he know anything? He had helped her once before that morning—was he trying to do so now? She met his eyes half smiling at, half warning her. But she could not but answer.

"It is nothing of any consequence," she said, addressing Mr. Burdon. "One night aunt and I were returning from the castle—it was the night of our first visit, some weeks ago—I saw a man standing in the avenue, looking at the house."

"Looking at the house?" said Mr. Burdon. "Late at night—and dark?"

"No, it was moonlight," said Edna, softly, the dreamy expression creeping on to her face.

"Moonlight," murmured the captain. "Are you sure?—do not think I impugn the excellence of your eyesight—but the moon is such a clever conjuror; are you sure it was not the shadow of a tree or the troublesome horse or cow that is always straying on the premises of uninhabited mansions and being mistaken for the supernatural?"

Edna looked at him. Yes, surely he was tempting her to admit that she had been mistaken.

"No," she said, with a faint smile. "It was a man. I am certain of that."

"Some artist or antiquary, perhaps," said Lord Mersey, thinking how many times he had prowled round ancient buildings in the moonlight.

"I—I—think not," said Edna, and there was such reluctant assurance in her tone that Mr. Burdon dropped into his seat at the table—they had entered the room by this time—with his lips tightly compressed.

THE INDUSTRIAL PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The industrial parliament to be held in the House of Commons tomorrow, the Minister of Labor, Sir Robert Horne, said that the Government was in favor of the establishment of industrial parliaments, as such a step would hamper private enterprises. He said that the Government had decided to reduce the unemployment benefit. After the expiration of 13 weeks the men would receive twenty shillings and the women fifteen shillings a week for a further thirteen weeks. The allowance would continue for the first and three shillings for each subsequent child. Regarding the industrial unrest, he said that whatever view was taken regarding the merits of disputes would not be a matter of life or death. ### NO SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 27.—There are still no signs of a settlement of the port tie-up. The government shipping agents and the labor unions are exchanging notes, asking and making explanations, but no move has been made either to end the lock-out or for the men to return to work under the government decree of nationalizing the ports' services. The port has now been tied up for fifty-one days.

CANADIAN LABOR DEPARTMENTS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—Latest figures to the department of labor show that thirty-four government employment bureaus have been opened up to date in Canada and the next two weeks will see considerable development in the Maritime provinces when ten in all will open.

Flour Surplus in Canada.

Exports of agricultural products decreased in 1918, and there is still warehoused in Canada, and available for export, a substantial surplus, the bulk of which is in the form of wheat and flour. During the period of the war and up to the present time the Allied Governments have taken a large proportion of the wheat and flour produced in the Dominion. At present our chief customer, Great Britain, owing to her having a considerable stock on hand, has placed an embargo on imports of these products, and as the Canadian Government fixed the minimum price of wheat produced in the crop season of 1918 at $2.24 per bushel, it will be responsible to the holders of the crop for obtaining that price. To meet the situation which has arisen, the Government has given a guarantee to all dealers in grain and to the banks that in the event of the overseas Allied Governments not arranging to purchase this wheat, they will pay wheat at the fixed price. It is anticipated, however, that purchases will shortly be resumed by the Allies and the surplus thereby absorbed. Monthly Letter, Canadian Bank of Commerce.

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly session last evening. Deputy Mayor Morris presided and Councilors Brownrigg, Mullaly, Ayre, Vinicombe and Tait were present. After reading minutes etc., the following matters were disposed of:—The Colonial Secretary wrote that in connection with the Council's resolution re the "Dog Tax" he had referred the matter to the Deputy Minister of Justice to look into and instruct the Law Clerk of the Legislature in order that a bill dealing definitely and properly with the whole question may be introduced. The Minister of Mines and Agriculture wrote in regard to the land on Wood Street applied for by Mr. S. O. Steele that he had written the present lessee and on receipt of a reply would further communicate with the Council on the matter.

Sergt. James Mackay wrote claiming the reward of $20.00 offered by the Council for the conviction of any person found breaking the electric lamps in the City, he having made such a conviction a short while ago. The reward is ordered to be paid though he is to be informed that the information should have come to the Council first and Sergt. Mackay is to be asked for the fines in the matter. A letter was read from Elizabeth G. Harvey, President Cowan Mission, in connection with the utilization of the Convalescent House, Forest Road, which has been before the Cowan Mission for some time past and the possibility of converting it into a Maternity Home was suggested. The Cowan Mission propose to rent the Convalescent Home at $1.00 per annum for the purpose of a Maternity Hospital. There is a Government endowment of $600.00. The Municipality would have to provide for the appointment of a committee of medical men, the necessary nurses and a matron and for cost of operation. There is room for four patients. After discussing the matter the Council decided to wait until the return of the Mayor, meantime the letter to be acknowledged. After disposing of some routine business and passing the pay rolls and bills for the week the meeting adjourned.

Every Saturday evening after 7 o'clock, Choice Ends of Beef, Mutton, Lamb, Pork will be sold at cost. ELLIS & CO., LTD., 203 Water Street.—Nov. 29.

Supreme Court.

(In Chambers, Before Judge Kent.) In re Wm. Gosse, of Spanal's Bay, Fisherman, alleging that he is insolvent, and praying that he be so declared.—Upon the complaint of G. M. Barr, a creditor of the insolvent, the following charges are preferred against Wm. Gosse: (1) That the said Wm. Gosse did assign and convey to his wife in 1905 all his property with a view to defraud his creditors, and also did assign $255 to his wife, during the past six months for the same fraudulent purpose. Accused pleads "Not Guilty." Squires, K.C., for accused moves for an order for a special jury. L. E. Emerson is heard against the motion. The hearing adjourned for the purpose of procuring authorities in support of the motion.

To Stand Trial.

Dr. Gill and Joseph Cantwell were committed for trial to the Supreme Court by Judge Morris yesterday. Summing up the evidence His Honor said: "My jurisdiction in this enquiry is merely to determine whether or not the Crown has presented such a case against the accused as ought to be sent to a jury for trial. As to whether the statements made by the accused and the evidence submitted on their behalf, is a sufficient answer to the Crown's case, or otherwise, can only be decided by a jury." Both parties are charged with attempting to obtain money under false pretences.

Ships Move.

The off-shore wind has driven the ice from the shore and cleared the harbor and Narrows, and consequently the ships that have been waiting to get away to market as well as those waiting to reach port, are taking advantage of the clear water, and all of them to-day and this port will be leaving to-day and to-morrow.

Terra Nova, which has been jammed in the ice for two days, arrived in port at 10.30 last evening. She will now get ready for the seal hunt.

Carpenter is Offered $200,000.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—One million francs ($200,000) is being dangled before the eyes of Georges Carpentier, the French champion, as bait to bring him to America. The news arrived from two sources, one a letter to Michael Fildene, inventor, and the other in a letter from Theodore Vienne, the millionaire French sportsman and promoter. The French boxer, holding out for a million and a half, it is almost certain Carpentier will arrive to be at the ring-side to challenge the winner of the Willard-Dempsey clash for the world's championship.

The Majestic Theatre.

A CREDIT TO THE CITY.

The Telegram reporter visited the new Theatre yesterday forenoon, being conducted throughout the entire building by Mr. Coady. Entering by the double door which is on Duckworth St., one is immediately impressed with the quiet beauty of the Theatre, for the beautiful white plastering and mahogany woodwork are at once artistic and pleasing to the eye. The ticket office is situated just inside the entrance, which is on the south-eastern end, off Duckworth St. After entering, the visitor finds himself at the back of the hall, facing the screen. There is a considerable space between the back end of the Theatre and the last row of seats, where people may wait until seated. In this way some 500 people may be accommodated, for nothing that was ever constructed here has such a lobby as possessed by the Majestic. Facing the stage one sees a beautiful work of art. Two fluted columns, the only ones of their kind in the country, tower on either side, while the capitals on the top of each are groups of beauty, both columns and capitals being the work of Mr. Wm. Payne. Above the columns and automatically operated stage curtain which is blue plush, are unsurpassed relief works, the product of our own artistic and talented Dan Carroll, the well-known wood and craftsman of the city. The stage is 22 feet wide and 22 feet high, but could be enlarged some 100 feet in case dramatics need to be staged. This is made possible by movable walls and false ceilings. The beautiful curtain overhanging the stage is draped and contains the gold-lettered wreath-enclosed monogram, "M." The screen, which is 13 feet by 11, is gold-fibre, aluminum finish, specially made to suit the machine. This screen which is very beautiful to look at, has the appearance of silver, and guarantees a very brilliant, clear and distinct picture. It is the only one in the country. The auditorium (the ground floor) is slightly graded, so that those in the back will not have to look over or around the heads of those in front of them, and seats 700 people. The seats are very comfortable, tip-up style, full-backed, no arms (securing the maximum of space) and the space between the individual seats, and the rows of them is plentiful, so that one can sit without having to uncomfortably bend the knees, as is very often the case in other moving picture houses. Two wide aisles run from the back of the theatre, towards the direction of the stage, but in front of it, so that it is impossible for anyone to get in front of the screen at any time. These aisles continue on by either side of the stage and out a door, the main exit, at the back of the stage, and so into the street, at the junction of Theatre Hill and Duckworth and New Dover streets.

Our American Letter.

CHARLESTON, South Carolina, Feb. 14.—The attitude of Japan at the Peace Conference is causing much concern and some disagreeable developments are looked for. It can no longer be denied that Japan is looking for a free hand in China and will oppose strenuously any attempt to curb her ambitions. China has appealed to the rest of the Powers for a guarantee which will prevent aggression or the exploitation of her resources for the benefit of an outside nation. The matter in regard to the secret treaty Chita claims she was compelled to sign at the behest of Japan, has aroused a great deal of comment. China asserts that after signing the treaty under protest, her envoys were afterwards robbed of the document while on their way to Paris where they intended to place it before the peace delegates. A sinister coincidence is the murder of the members of the Chinese Mission in Washington, who it is said were killed in mistake for the Peace Envoys. The Oriental mind is inscrutable and its workings will never be thoroughly understood by western nations. Japan's attitude on the race question creates a difficult problem. It is quite certain that neither Austria nor the United States will ever admit Japanese on equal terms with the whites, no matter what may be their delegate's decision in the matter. To allow Japanese immigration on an equal basis with Europeans would mean the economic ruin of the Pacific States. California, in particular, would soon be overrun with cheap coolie labor and the whole complexion of the State would be changed. The same results would follow Japanese immigration into Australia. Australia to-day has but little more than 5,000,000 people. How long would it be before the Japs would constitute a majority of the population, if unrestricted immigration were allowed? It may seem an affront to a proud people like the Japanese to shut them out, but it is a matter of preserving white ascendancy and not one of sentiment that we have to deal with. The Russian imbroglio is still as difficult to handle as it was when the armistice was signed. Deeper and deeper into anarchy is Russia being plunged, and her rescue seems hopeless at present. Investigation has shown that Bolshevism sprang from the teachings of radical Jewish agitators on the East side of New York. Trotsky was a reporter on a Jewish daily paper in Manhattan when the war broke out. He was not long in making his way to Russia where he soon succeeded in becoming master of the helpless Empire. History does not record another instance of such rapid rise to power. The better informed Jews of New York refused to accept the horrible doctrines of Trotsky and others, and were consistently patriotic. It was the unorthodox element amongst them which helped to Brains and Breakfasts.

The general health of the nation has been improving steadily since 1914, and doctors put this down largely to the fact that we are learning when and how to eat our food properly. One half of the ailments people suffer from come from either eating too much or eating too little. If you want to eat less per day, the need you should leave off entirely at breakfast—that is, if you are a brain worker. The body starts the day in good working order after a night's rest. The cells are thoroughly nourished and refreshed and the whole machinery of the brain and body is ready for action. In the case of a musical labourer, however, he should take a good breakfast, for he has to provide food for building up his muscles which tire much more quickly than the nerve tissue of the brain. The midday meal should be small, and for this reason doctors recommend a quick lunch. A quick lunch is certain to be a moderately small one, and usually includes only staple digestible food. Dinner at night after your work is done, and you are ready to rest, should be the chief meal of the day. Savages go to sleep on a full stomach and they are right, for it is during sleep that Nature builds up the body.

Socialists' Red Flag.

Probably few of those who were the red flag at Socialist meetings and demonstrations know that this emblem of revolution was formerly the banner of the Church Militant and of Royalty. Yet it was so until Henry VI. of England took also the title of King of France. Then red came to be considered as an unlaical colour in France, and was replaced by white, which, in its turn, was given up by the English. By Force of Arms. The red flag was displayed by the Catholic troops of Charles IX. and Henry III., while the flags of the Protestants were white. During the French Revolution the red flag was hoisted in peculiar circumstances. In consequence of the disorders that took place in Paris in 1789 and the opening of the National Assembly in the capital, martial law was proclaimed on October 21st, it being ordered that at the signal of the red flag all riotous assemblies, with or without arms, would become criminal and would be dispersed by force of arms. An Appeal to Insurrection. This the red flag, after being the emblem of Catholicism and Royalty, became under the Republic the emblem of order, destined to safeguard the life and tranquility of the citizens. Opinion changed however during the Second Republic. In an Order issued by the French Government it is stated that:— "The tri-coloured flag and cockade are the only national insignia around which the citizens rally; the Republic does not recognize any others. The red flag is an appeal to insurrection, recalling memories of bloodshed and mourning. To hoist this emblem means to excite to disobedience of the law and acts of violence."

Mr. Wilson and Labor.

"It increases my consciousness of responsibility to be depended upon to speak for justice, and I hope with all my heart that I shall never prove unworthy of it," says President Wilson in acknowledging the address of welcome made to him on his visit to London by the Trades Union Parliamentary Committee and the British Labour Party. Wid. Scotch Cured Herring.

The evident lack of interest displayed by jobbers and merchants in new stocks of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring is interpreted to mean, according to factors in the trade, that the goods recently received is disappointing. While some of the more recent receipts are of better quality than the first lots received, generally speaking the quality is poor as judged by the standard of past seasons. This herring coming into New York at a time when the market is in the midst of its most serious depression since the beginning of the European war, has not fared as well as it might have under more favorable conditions, but there can be no question that the product of the Newfoundland packer this season is inferior. There is no semblance of a standard either as to pack or grading of fish (in most lots this far received there have been small assortments of fish mixed together in the middle of barrels), and the trade of New York does not appear to be willing to undertake the task of repecting when the herring represents so high a cost. Within the past few days there has been evidence of a pressure to sell. Offerings at prices much lower than those heretofore mentioned are reported. Several lots are reported to have been offered at 25 on the dock or ex-warehouse, but there is no confirmed information as to sales at this figure. Stocks arriving in New York have gone largely into storage, importers holding stocks of good quality appear to be less anxious to move them than others, for they expect that there will be a sufficient demand during the early spring months to afford an outlet for their holdings. But it must be considered that there are still stocks of winter and spring herring from Newfoundland in New York, and these supplies have not been moving. Some importers have been cutting prices on these goods to influence immediate business. The whole situation is stagnant at present, and there is no prospect of an improvement until the salt fish market begins to right itself.—N.Y. Fish-Gazette, Feb. 15.

was the predicament Miss Randall, Silver Stream, Sask., found herself in, but Zam-Buk saved her from any serious consequences. Weighing of the affair, her mother says: 'I should like to tell you of an incident which proves conclusively the wonderful healing power of Zam-Buk. My daughter was using the washing machine, when she caught her hand in the cog and almost tore the top off her finger. As we live eighteen miles from a doctor, it was necessary I should attend to her hand at once. I got some Zam-Buk (which we always keep handy) and put on a liberal dressing and bound up the finger carefully. From that time on, my daughter had no more trouble with the injury. We continued the Zam-Buk treatment, and not only did it prove unnecessary to call in the doctor, but in a wonderfully short time Zam-Buk healed the wound—serious as it was—completely.'

Zam-Buk is equally good for burns, eczema, ulcers, cold cracks, skin diseases, blood poisoning and piles. All dealers see box. Send name of paper and 1c. stamps to Zam-Buk Co., Dupont St., Toronto, and we will send you free trial box.

M. C. L. I.

At last night's meeting of the M.C. L. I., Messrs. T. Soper and Hayward contended that 'The Government would be justified in financially assisting to a reasonable extent, any bona fide efforts to develop our coal areas.' The affirmative speakers showed that experts claim there are coal deposits, and that therefore the government should admit duty free, all machinery needed for the development of these areas, and that development would stop the yearly rush of laborers from our shores to Sydney Mines, thereby keeping thousands of dollars in our country. Furthermore, they pointed out instances where government aid to industrial works had been of big value, and that no development was more in need of government assistance than the one in question. The negative speakers, Messrs. W. H. Eaters and James Dowdall, argued that if coal was plentiful in our country, finances would soon be forthcoming from the public for development and that government would be establishing a dangerous precedent if it helped any private concern, and claimed that the coal areas would be worked out without governmental financial help, and that if the government had money to spare it was better to spend same in education of the children. The addresses on both sides were interesting. On being put to the vote the affirmative won by a fair margin.

Sergt. Ricketts is Newfoundland's one and only V.C., and there will never be another; at least, let's hope so. In so distinguishing himself he has brought honor and distinction to our country, and for this we owe him our deepest gratitude. Let us show it then in a tangible form. What about a bumper haul for this worthy and during the next four days? It's a stiff climb, but we'll get there just the same.

Salt & Pickled Herring.

Further evidence of weakness in the New York herring market has been noted since the 1st. The mesager demand (there has been no demand for certain grades) has placed all holders of stocks of split and round herring on the offensive and selling pressure has been noted in many quarters. This condition of affairs is plainly evident from the offerings at lower prices of stocks which have heretofore been high on a fairly firm basis. Splits from Newfoundland, which were reported to have sold from $10 to $12 per barrel a few weeks ago, are reported to have been offering at $10 and less in some quarters, both in the domestic and export trade. The higher prices have disappeared entirely and it is doubtful now if any holder of split herring in New York would hold for $12 per barrel, no matter what the quality of his stocks might be. As for round herring, there is little change in the situation. There has been no semblance of a demand for weeks past and the quotations are therefore nominal. Those who hold lots of round herring—and they are few—are apparently willing to sell at $10, and some are understood to be willing to sell for less. Belly cuts variously priced at from $12 to $14, and in some quarters a trifling demand is reported. Marinated herring continues to offer at from $1.25 to $1.40 per 10-pound pall.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

Maternity Hospital.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—I have read in your issue of yesterday, Dr. Keegan's announcement that he strongly opposed the endorsement by the medical profession of the Salvation Army scheme for a combined Rescue and Maternity Hospital in the city. It cannot be said that Dr. Keegan is "absolutely correct" in that he has not said all that might have been said. The matter was freely discussed as to the practicality of combining the two and as to whether it was proper that the Salvation Army should have control of such an institution, and whether they could be trusted to give satisfaction to the public, whose funds they would use. When it was found that the Salvation Army would have no objection to the appointment of a committee of citizens to advise and assist in the management, it was understood by those present that Dr. Keegan withdrew his opposition to the scheme; at any rate Doctor Keegan did not vote against the motion, and no one will attribute his motion, and no one will attribute to him the restraint to vote against it to lack of courage. As a matter of fact, those present were of the opinion that Dr. Keegan was in the end in favor of the proposition. Hence the unanimity.

The meeting was as representative of the medical profession as any I have attended during several years of practice in this city, and as a matter of fact it would be difficult, if not impossible, to get a larger proportion of the medical men together at any one time in this city, as can be readily understood. As Dr. Keegan has named those absent it is unnecessary for those present to be named. Dr. Scully was called away during the meeting.

Dr. Keegan, after eulogizing the work which has been carried on for years by the S.A., says, "when it is proposed to extend this charity to all married prospective mothers." This is not a correct interpretation of the S.A. project in this respect. They are not proposing a "charity" for all the married prospective mothers in this country, but are offering their organization and experience along these lines to the philanthropic public of this city and country in placing within the reach of all classes an institution which will provide the need and advantage of which Dr. Keegan has so well outlined.

It is not proposed that the Maternity Hospital be a part of the Rescue Home, as any one who might be interested enough to inspect the plans prepared will readily see. The primary consideration is a Maternity Hospital, and with a view to economy of private subscriptions and public funds, as an adjunct to this Maternity Hospital it is proposed to make provision for what is commonly known as rescue work, under a distinct and separate staff, and entirely apart from the regular maternity work. When it is known that a number of married women have from time to time been treated in the now existing Rescue Home, because it was the only institution of its kind available, can it be seriously contended that the proposed scheme is unworkable and impracticable. To know the facts is to think otherwise. It may reasonably be contended that the combination has several real advantages—over two separate and independent institutions. Dr. Keegan suggests I believe is being proposed by the Salvation Army organization, "the people of Newfoundland should be sufficiently alive to build and equip their own Maternity Hospital." But when the period of "under consideration" has passed and something is really undertaken, is it not wise to avail of the expert knowledge which this department of the Salvation Army offers.

The climax which Doctor Keegan reaches in his concluding sentence is almost sublime. One wonders why he did not include the Poor Asylum in the list. No one knows better than Dr. Keegan himself, that for an example of universal, indiscriminate, wasteful "charity," the system under which the General Hospital is operated in this country cannot be excelled, and yet this is recommended as a desirable alternative.

Yours truly,
WM. ROBERTS.

See If the Child's Tongue is Coated.

Mothers! Don't hesitate! If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

N. I. W. A.—The subject of debate at to-night's meeting will be "That the Legislature should at its next session create a Department of Labour." A cordial invitation is extended to all men, and permission to speak is afforded every one.

Obituary.

MR. JAMES GRAHAM.

On the 4th inst, there died at his home 838 Grace Street, Jersey City, N.J., U.S.A., after a very long illness, an old Harbor Gracian, in the person of James Graham. Mr. Graham was the eldest son of the late Joseph Graham of that town, who hailed from Dennis, Scotland and possessed a good share of the excellent qualities characteristic of the men of the heather. After his father's death he continued for some years the cooperage business of his father, in conjunction with his late brother, Joseph M., who predeceased James about three years. About 25 years ago, Mr. Graham closed business here and moved to the United States, and made his new home in the above city, where for many years he held a position of trust, which through failing health he was obliged to resign.

Our deceased friend was well and favorably known to the older generation of this town—many of whom are now passed away. During Mr. Graham's residence in his native town, he established a record for honesty, sobriety and the other attributes that make the model man and citizen. For many years he was a prominent member of the Total Abstinence Society, an organization then doing a great material and moral good in this community, being a co-worker in that cause with Messrs. A. T. Drysdale, C. L. Kennedy, John Hogan, John Cody, M. Scully and others, all of whom name it here, pre-deceased him.

Mr. Graham was married to Miss Casey of Carbonara (whose visit here a few years ago is pleasantly remembered) sister of Mr. J. Casey, Clerk of the Peace, Harbor Grace, and who with six daughters and one son, ere left to mourn a kind and devoted husband and father; also one sister, Mrs. M. A. Walsh of Harbor Grace, widow of the late Captain Patrick Walsh—to all of whom the Telegram tender its sympathy.

A. J. O'ROURKE.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. A. Jos. O'Rourke, aged 28 years, which occurred at his residence, 18 John Street, early this morning. Mr. O'Rourke, who was unmarried, was employed up to December last at the Royal Stores, where he was held in esteem by all. A father, mother, one sister and three brothers survive. To them we offer sympathy.

MINNIE GOODRIDGE.

The firm of A. Goodridge & Sons, Ltd., received word yesterday of the passing of Miss Minnie Goodridge, of Southsea, Hants, England. Deceased was the eldest daughter of Hon. A. F. Goodridge, and suffered from an incurable throat trouble which caused her death. She was engaged in patriotic work from the beginning of the war, and during a visit here last year gave valuable assistance in nursing the influenza patients at the Grenfell Hospital. To the bereaved father and relatives we extend sympathy.

Personal Mention.

Mr. J. A. Young, formerly accountant at the Bank of Nova Scotia in this city, is manager of the branch at Yarmouth, N.S.

Mr. Chas. McNulty, who was salesman for the Mid. Clothing Co., is now seriously ill at Carbonara.

Mr. W. J. Walsh returned from Toronto yesterday morning and feels a little improved.

Capt. E. Bishop, of Wesleyville, arrived in the city yesterday. Capt. Bishop will again command the Eagle at the spring's seal hunt.

We understand that Mr. Ingr. Ivenben, who arrived in the city recently, will take over the S. S. Jacobson to Norway.

Mr. Bert Hayward has left for a visit to Canada and the States. While absent he will inspect the McCormack's Mfg. Co. (the palace of sweets), and the Buick Plant, at London, Ont. Mr. Hayward is the local agent for both those excellent lines, and also for the Chevrolet car.

Tonnage Explained.

There are five kinds of tonnage in use in the shipping business. They are deadweight tonnage, cargo tonnage, gross, net, and displacement tonnages.

1. Deadweight Tonnage expresses the number of tons of 2,240 pounds that a vessel can transport of cargo, stores, and bunker fuel. It is the difference between the number of tons of water a vessel displaces "light" and the number of tons it displaces when submerged to the "load water line." Deadweight tonnage is used interchangeably with "deadweight carrying capacity." A vessel's capacity for weight cargo is less than its total deadweight tonnage.

2. Cargo Tonnage is either "weight" or "measurement." The weight ton in the United States and in British countries is the English long or gross ton of 2,240 pounds. In France and other countries having the metric system a weight ton is 2,205.6 pounds. A "measurement" ton is usually 40 cubic feet, but in some instances a larger number of cubic feet is taken for a ton. Most ocean package freight is taken at weight or measurement (W/M), ship's option.

3. Gross Tonnage applies to vessels, not to cargo. It is determined by dividing by 100 the contents, in cubic feet, of the vessel's closed-in spaces. A vessel ton is 100 cubic feet. The register of a vessel states both gross and net tonnage.

4. Net Tonnage is a vessel's gross tonnage minus deductions of space occupied by accommodations for crew, by machinery for navigation, by the engine room and fuel. A vessel's net tonnage expresses the space available for the accommodation of passengers and the stowage of cargo. A ton of cargo, in most instances, occupies less than 100 cubic feet; hence the vessel's cargo tonnage may exceed its net tonnage, and, indeed, the tonnage of cargo carried is usually greater than the gross tonnage.

5. Displacement of a vessel is the weight, in tons of 2,240 pounds, of the vessel and its contents. Displacement "light" is the weight of the vessel without stores, bunker fuel, or cargo. Displacement "loaded" is the weight of the vessel, plus cargo, fuel, and stores.

For a modern freight tonnage following relative tonnage would ordinarily be approximately correct:—

Net tonnage . . . . .

Gross tonnage . . . . .

Deadweight carrying capacity . . . . .

Displacement 100 cubic feet . . . . .

about . . . . .

A vessel's registered tonnage whether gross or net, is the same under the American and the British rules. The Suez tonnage rules must be larger gross and net tonnage when measured by British or can national rules.

Llewellyn Club.

Last night's meeting of Llewellyn Club was very largely attended; Mr. Wood, 1st V.E. occupied the chair. His Excellency the Governor was present at the meeting, accompanied by Hon. R. Watson, A.D.C., and was received by the singing of the National Anthem. Mr. Wood said he regretted the absence of Rev. Dr. Jones, who had been unable to attend owing to a long-standing engagement elsewhere. In introducing the subject, "David, the great Chorister and Choirs that kill congregations," he outlined in general, the characteristics of David, his courage, shrewdness, statesmanship and practical abilities, and showed that he prospered in himself because he was in touch with God. His Excellency, after a few preparatory remarks, stated that he could find no definition of a chorister that would apply to David. He pointed out that David was always exceedingly tactful, but it was an anachronism to say he was a chorister, for a chorister is a part of a number of trained musicians for some purpose, and David was not such, although he was certainly a musician and poet of great ability, as instanced in his lament over the death of Saul and Jonathan, which is truly a most magnificent dirge. Then talking the Psalms, about sixty of which are attributed to David, His Excellency showed how they were an oratorio in five acts. (1) Psalms 1-41. Decline of man; (2) Psalms 41-72. Revival of Church; (3) Psalms 72-89. Church in Danger; (4) Psalms 89-140. Antiphonal; (5) The last five Psalms are a Thanksgiving. He also pointed out that a great deal of Hebrew parallelism as well as poetical expression is contained in the Psalms, and also stated that the prayer-book version of the Psalms is better adapted to music than the Biblical version. "This prayer-book version," said His Excellency, is that translated by Tyndall and Coverdale in 1535 and left untouched by Cranmer in 1539, because he saw it was exceedingly good and adaptable for music. He believed that as the Psalm writers were inspired, so were the translators also inspired. The Governor then took Psalms 107 and 118, dividing them into stanzas showing how they ought to be sung. Taking the second phase of his subject, His Excellency asserted that congregational singing was the best idea to aim at, for while he did not wish to detract from the choir and organ, yet listening to congregational was not the same as listening to professional singing. The spirit of congregational singing is best shown in the Book of Ecclesiastes—When ye glorify the Lord exult Him as much as you can . . . . Be not weary for you can never go far enough. Congregations and choirs must learn to attune themselves to each other, and must keep in common touch. His Excellency interpolated that his many years of experience in choirs had convinced him that congregations and choirs do not always keep in tune, and showed by a couple of instances that people do not generally take quickly to strange or unfamiliar tunes. Moreover congregations generally go too slow, and drag too much. Mentality, said His Excellency, has much to do with the way music is appreciated, and he added that although the church music in Newfoundland is hearty and devotional, yet there is an extraordinary drag about it, and that this should not be, and especially in triumphant music. His Excellency's address was both instructive and humorous and all present enjoyed it. Mr. J. W. Withers then addressed the meeting and said that the Llewellyn Club, a monument to the Rector's energy and foresight, ought to be the means of making better citizens, and thus a better country, because it ought to imbue in us the sense of righteousness, which in a word means efficiency, something quite different to the work of our politicians, since we secured responsible government, for our politicians have neglected to develop the resources of the country. In connection with the theme in question, Mr. Withers did not agree with His Excellency that congregational singing was best, but rather, that choir singing was, as being the most impressive and most beautiful. He also pointed out that in congregational singing, the choir must be prepared to be obliterated, and showed how loud accompaniments cause people to sing heartily, while with slight accompaniments they grow afraid. He also referred to the influence of music, and said that although music stirs the emotion, yet emotions are no good unless they give rise to something better, and uplift one nearer to God. Mr. Morris, K.C., in moving a vote of thanks to the speakers, especially His Excellency, agreed that congregational singing was the highest kind of devotion, and believed that emotion was itself a positive good if it started one aright. Moreover he thought as the majority of us are not musicians we enjoy congregational singing. In referring to David's success, he wished to point out that good men do not always succeed and bad men fail. We can't have good politicians, he added, unless we have a moral electorate. Hon. John Anderson, in seconding the motion, referred to the metrical version of the Psalms as used in Scotland. The singing of the National Anthem closed the evening.
