CHAPTER XXII
DAYS OF ANGUISE.

"You are deuced fortunate then," dared? No? A fact. Everybody could retorted Sir Charles, with his light laugh—your buoyant, light-hearted Sir Charles Andersons would laugh even at the undertaker's bill for their own funerals. "I am almost bored to death, Dartmouth; and with to Heaven I had been in your place vegetating in the country and quietly waiting for a cool quarter of a million."

A slight frown contracted the brow of the captain. He did not care to hear the last few months and his own good fortune jested on.

"You would have found it almost as unendurable," he said; "there is not much to choose between town and country, or town and anything else that I know of. Very few things are worth living for; very few games worth the candle."

"I want to know if any are," said Sir Charles. "I haven't had a hand in them if there are. But you want to hear some news and not to listen to my grumbling. Well, look here; here's a text for my discourse. That young lady there, behind those high-paced cobs, is little Lorretta; she is the last center of attraction. We've had her here since you went away. Good-looking, don't you think?" he whispered, as he lifted his hat with a deep bow.

"Passably so," said the captain, glancing indifferently at the fair demoiselle. "Whose heads has she been turning—"

"Heaps—not only heads, but pockets, too," said Sir Charles, and he laughed and sighed at the same moment. "Her last is young Willie Taunton—Lord Taunton now—the old peer died a month ago. She will soon clear him out, for there isn't much more than the encumbrances of the estate left to him. Poor Willie; he is not a bad sort!"

"Your fool seldom is," said the captain, with a quiet sneer.

"He laughs at scars that never felt a wound," quoted Sir Charles, quickly. "You are made of flint, old fellow, or some other composition equally hard, and are un-get-at-able, or you'd have been plucked before now. Well, there she is, and there is poor Willie, and, for the matter of that, there are a good many more in the same boat."

"Sir Charles Anderson for one."

"Myself for one," sighed the young baronet. "But we will not pursue this unpleasant subject, as the lecturer says. You know my Lady Markham has run away with young Wilter her for three days, and then returned to find the squire knocked over. In a few hours he died."

"Yes," said Sir Charles, eagerly. "He died, and left me by will the Dale and twenty thousand a year," said Captain Dartmouth, as quietly as before.

"What extraordinary luck!" exclaimed the young baronet.

"The very remark I made myself when I heard it. Now let us put these animals to it. Dinner is set for six."

Sir Charles knew his friend too well to mistake this hint, and rode on in silence toward the club, where the two, with some others, were to dine together.

As they turned the corner of Pall Mall a handsome carriage passed them. Sir Charles pulled up sharply and lifted his hat to the two ladies who were in it, and as the younger beckoned with her hands he turned and rode up to it, followed by Captain Dartmouth.

Sir Charles, with a flush of pleasure on his face, bent down and exchanged a few words with the lady and then turned to Reginald Dartmouth.

"Countess, this is my greatest friend, Captain Reginald Dartmouth, Captain Dartmouth, Countess Vitzarelli."

Reginald Dartmouth lifted his hat and bent low, the Countess Vitzarelli bowed slightly, and a soft smile lighted up a dazlingly beautiful face as she said, in a voice slightly toned with a foreign accent and exquisitely musical:

"I am very glad to know any friend of yours, Sir Charles. Captain Dartmouth of the Twenty-second? Yes?"

"No, of the Twenty-eighth," said Reginald, in the voice he knew so well how to soften.

"Ah, yes! The other is Captain Dartmouth. I had mistaken. Your English name puzzles me so! They all end in either 'on' or 'es,' and I get so confused!"

Once more the smile lighted up her face, and Reginald Dartmouth wondered what there was in it, and in the flash of the full, dark eyes, that touched a chord within his own heart and vibrated through his whole being.

Sir Charles had gone round to the other side, and was talking to the old lady, who was now introduced under the name of Madame Campani.

The captain, with his hand firmly grasping the bridle of the pulling chestnut, said:

"London is very full. I do not think I ever saw it more crowded."

"And I never saw it even so full," replied the countess, with a smile. "It is my first visit to the Vanity Fair of the world."

"That is a title we English bestow on your Paris," said the captain, guessing that the beautiful woman was French, yet uncertain enough to put the reply as a trap for her.

"Paris is not my city," she said. "I am not a French-woman," and again she smiled, this time, the captain caught at having outgeneraled him.

"But you are wrong; Paris is not really half as gay as your London. It is more on the surface in La Belle France. Here you make a trade of your pleasure and drive deep and soar high for it. Am I not right, Sir Charles?"

"Always, my lady," replied Sir Charles. "You are the only infallible person in the universe."

"And you the most incorrigible," and she touched his arm with her daintily-gloved morsel of a finger.

"But we must be going. We dine at seven, and madam here always takes two hours to dress."

"For shame, Lucille!" interposed the staid, middle-aged chaperon.

The countess laughed.

"Well, whether it takes two hours for your toilet or one, we must be going. Sir Charles, I count on you for to-morrow; and Captain Dartmouth—can you prevail upon him to favor us? It is short notice and a verbal invitation; but perhaps Captain Dartmouth will pardon both, and honor us."

She turned her large, brown eyes on Reginald Dartmouth's face, and he bowed low, as he said:

"The honor is on my side, madam. I shall only be too happy to do so."

"Will you tell my man to drive on, Sir Charles? Thanks. Good-by."

With a slight nod she was gone, and Sir Charles turned his horse's head.

Reginald Dartmouth remained motionless, his eyes bent on the departing carriage; his face stern and thoughtful.

Sir Charles's laugh aroused him.

THERE IS ONLY ONE
GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

Your druggist gladly will give you the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" because genuine Aspirin now is made by Americans and owned by an American Company.

There is not a cent's worth of German interest in Aspirin, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But now you can get genuine Aspirin, plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross,"—Aspirin proved safe by millions for Headache, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monocetate-diesters of Salicylic acid.

The Bayer Co., Sue, U.S.A.

"Hello, Dartmouth!" he said, banteringly. "Moon-struck, star-struck, or Lucille-struck? The last, I expect. Is she not beautiful?" he exclaimed, fervently, as the captain, with deliberate calmness, turned his horse's head and joined him.

"Yes," he said. "Who is she?"

"The Countess Vitzarelli."

"Yes, I heard the name; but who is the Countess Vitzarelli?"

"Pon my word, I don't know, and I was nearly adding, I don't care. She's of the right sort, though. They know her at the embassy and at the court. She moves in the best circles, and is kowtowed to the duchess herself. They say that she is the daughter of one of the old Italian princes, and that she is as rich as a doge. They have taken the Carnation House, in the park, and their turn-outs eclipse Lord Fitz's. There is a regular army of retainers, and everything is carried out with princely magnificence."

Reginald Dartmouth listened eagerly, though his face showed little or no interest.

"It is a noble name," he said, quietly. "I do not remember meeting with any living representative of it, though, Vitzarelli?"

"Yes, Lucille, Countess Vitzarelli. Beautiful name, I think—almost as beautiful as the owner. By Jove, we'd all fall in love with her if it was of the slightest use! Some of us have done so as it is. You'll be a victim, I think, Dartmouth. 'Pon my word, I never knew you so tongue-tied. You are in love a ready."

And he laughed merrily.

"No," said Reginald Dartmouth; "not in love, but troubled. I can not help thinking I have seen her face before. And yet—no, it can not be. It must be a resemblance to some one."

"If you mean she is like some one you know, or, rather, knew," said Sir Charles, slowly, and glancing at his companion's face with a marked hesitation, "I can help you."

"Who is she like?" asked Reginald Dartmouth, marking the tone, and hesitation and looking at his companion.

"Bella," replied Sir Charles. Captain Dartmouth shrank back and turned white at mention of the name.

Sir Charles was about to apologize, but the cold smile, half scornful, half threatening, that rose to the other's lips stopped him.

"Not a word, my dear fellow! The name took me by surprise, that is all. I shall not show the white feather again if you hawl the names of all the ballet girls in London or Paris through the street. Yes, she is like Bella. It is strange!"

Minnesota and Dakota Storm Swept.

Hurricane Takes Toll of Life and Property -- Bolsheviki Suffer Heavy Losses--Fourteen Persons Killed in Railway Collision--Engineer Ran His Train at 70 Miles an Hour -- Republican Presidential Favorite Unknown Yet.

STORM CAUSES HEAVY LOSSES IN MINNESOTA.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 9. Several persons were killed, more than a hundred injured and property losses that will aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars was the toll taken by a terrific wind and electrical storm that swept Northwestern Minnesota and Eastern North Dakota last night. Partial restoration of wire communication to-day disclosed the slowly mounting death list, and fears were expressed to-night that the final reports from sections still isolated might increase the casualties. The known dead include Mrs. R. H. Wilke, sixty-one years of age, Grey Eagle. Mrs. Wilke, who was crushed to death in the collapse of her summer cottage on Birch Lake, was the mother of Will Wilke, recently elected President of the National Editorial Association at its convention in Boston. More than thirty Minnesota counties were more or less seriously affected by the storm, which was felt with diminished intensity in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Monetary damage is confined to small houses, barns, other outbuildings, livestock and trees.

POLISH COUNTED OFFENSIVE DEVELOPING FAVOURABLY.

WARSAW, June 9. The Polish counter offensive against the Bolsheviki between the Dvina and Upper Beresina, under General Pilsudski, President of the Republic, is developing very favourably, according to the official statement issued by the general staff on Tuesday. The Poles, reeking the desperate resistance of the Bolsheviki, have annihilated the third and twelfth Bolsheviki divisions and have occupied Czernika and Plesha, twenty-five miles south of Dvina, with heavy losses to the enemy. The statement says that intercepted Bolsheviki orders show that panic reigns in the enemy's ranks and alights that the Bolsheviki in revenge for their defeat are committing atrocities.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIST FORCES SCORE SUCCESS.

LONDON, June 9. Anti-Bolshevik forces in the Crimea have begun an offensive movement, which is reported to have won initial successes. The Bolsheviki retrieved a part of the advantage lost, however, says the Soviet official communique.

WILL MEET AT BRUSSELS FIRST.

PARIS, June 9. The Conference between representatives of the Allies and Germany to be held July 5, will be preceded by a meeting of heads of the Allied Governments at Brussels on July 2, 3 and 4. It was stated yesterday. The London correspondent of the Temps says he learns that Premier Lloyd George expects to go to Paris about June 30 to confer with Premier Millerand on certain questions regarding the German indemnity, which will be brought before the Spa Conference.

RAILWAY CRASH.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., June 9. At least eleven persons were killed and twenty-one were injured, some of them perhaps fatally, when a fast eastbound American Express special crashed into the rear of an accommodation passenger on the New York central lines about four miles West of this city to-day.

BLAMES THE ENGINEER.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., June 9. Fourteen persons were dead at nine o'clock to-night as a result of the rear-end collision of the New York Central, three miles west of this city to-day. Another is said by the hospital officials to be dying. Railroad officials at the wreck said this afternoon that all railroad equipment had been found in perfect condition, leaving the inference that Martin Doyle, engineer, now dead, had gone by three signals and had run his express train seventy miles an hour into the rear end of the stalled passenger train.

ALBANIAN INSURGENTS DRIVE OUT ITALIANS.

ROME, June 9. Albanian Insurgents have occupied the villages of Postrova and Seltza, in Albania, according to advices received yesterday. The Italian forces retired in the direction of Valona. A torpedo boat lying off Valona, protected the Italian troops, who are believed to have lost many men.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

CHICAGO, June 9. Delegates of the Republican National Convention assembled at the Coliseum to-day for the second session with their views as to who shall lead the Party at the polls next November, still a mystery even to themselves. While giving uproarious approval to Chairman Lodge's keynote address calling for the destruction of the "Wilson dynasty," not a sign of any preference came from the thousands whose votes will select the Republican Presidential candidate to undertake the job. There were no demonstrations even for favorite songs and no mention of the "Big Three" among the aspirants, Wood, Johnson and Lowden.

D.L.S. DIRECTORATE CHANGES EXPECTED.

MONTREAL, June 9. The majority of directors of the Dominion Steel Corporation have signed a request to President Wolfen for the calling of a special meeting to-morrow when, according to information from well-informed circles financially, the chief question to be considered will be that arising out of the form of proxy sent to shareholders for the annual meeting next Tuesday. It is understood that sweeping changes on the board are regarded as within possibility and there is talk of resignations before the annual meeting in June.

FIBROID STRIKE ENDS.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 9. The strike of the Fibroid Corporation, that began nearly two weeks ago, and in which 400 employees have been involved out of a total of 800, was ended yesterday with the return of the strikers to work, after a conference late Monday, in which an agreement was reached on the wage dispute, terms of which were not made public.

PAID ASSASSINS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 9. Sallih Ibrahim Effendi, a former Naval Officer, and other Nationalists, are being tried by court martial on the charge of having plotted to kill Damad Ferid Pasha, Grand Vizier. It is alleged that intercepted letters showed that the suspects, who came from Angora, had been paid $25,000 to commit murder.

BAYARIA ELECTION RESULTS.

BERLIN, June 9. On the basis of figures, supplied by the Semi Official Hoffman Agency of Munich, for the whole of Bavaria, the Bavarian people's party has secured 12 Reichstag seats. The Social Democrats won five, the Independent Socialists four, the Peasants' Party two, the Democrats two, and the so-called Mittal Party two.

ANTI-SEMITIC DISORDERS.

VIENNA, June 9. Sporadic disorders followed the Anti-Semitic demonstrations on Monday night, bands composed chiefly of students beat the Jews they met on the streets, and smashed cafe windows in their search for others.

House of Assembly.

WEDNESDAY, June 9. The House met at 3.40 p.m. Several petitions were presented and reports of committees received. The amendments to the Profit-sharing Bill sent down by the Legislative Council were concurred in. In reply to the question of Sir M.P. Cashin if the Commission promised to inquire into the Woodford Affidavit are yet appointed, and if not why not? Hon. Mr. Warren said "no Commission has been appointed. The Governor is engaged in the attempt to have it appointed." The following questions were put by Mr. Higgins to Mr. Browning, Minister of Finance and Customs:

Q. If Francis Tilley, late Customs officer at Kelligrews, has been dismissed.

A. Yes, Tilley has been dismissed.

Q. If so, has Charles Hynes, the petitioner in the recent election petition filed against Dr. W. E. Jones, been appointed in his place?

A. I don't know.

Q. If the said Tilley has not been dismissed or the said Hynes appointed, who is paying Hynes for the work he is now performing at Kelligrews?

A. The Customs Dept. is paying him.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked Colonial Secretary Squires to table the certificate of the Chief Justice and Justice Johnson of their determination at the close of the Hickman vs. Cave case, and whether the Governor after the receipt of the certificate and report gave any instructions for confirming or altering the return. Mr. Squires replied that the report is a very lengthy one and is being typewritten and that the Governor has called for a bye-election.

The "Prosecution of the Sealfishery Bill" was read a third time.

The "Protection to Animals Bill" was also read a third time.

The Bills, dealing with Election of Members and Amendment Respecting Elections in the Present Year were deferred.

The Bill respecting the maintenance of certain Public Roads went through committee with some amendments. In dealing with the latter Hon. Mr. Warren asked that Bay-Verde roads be included.

Mr. W. J. Higgins agreed, as the district will soon be represented in the House.

This bill was amended to give powers to Magistrates to assist in collection of the taxes for the Commission to be nominated by the Motor Association. The Bill applies to roads in the Peninsula of Avalon and those owing cars outside will not pay the taxes. Mr. MacDonnell pointed out that as the Motor Association had voluntarily offered to tax themselves to the extent of some $10,000, paying rates in some cases 200% greater than before, in order to improve the roads for the

The S. S. Cranley is due at Botwood from England in a day or two with general cargo for the A.N.D. Co. S. S. The Alconda loaded a part cargo of pulp and paper at Heart's Content for England and left for Botwood to finish.

The trawler T.R.-44, Capt. Burke, is now at Greenspond where she is detained by ice conditions. She was recently brought here from Halifax for the A.N.D. Co. by Capt. Stan Duder, and left about 10 days ago for Botwood.

The Country Roads.

The country roads are now in a frightful condition, owing to the motor car traffic, the traction tread tires so much in use, have sucked all the gravel and sand out of the bed and left nothing but loose stones. This is more noticeable on the curves. Showing that drivers do not slacken their speed when rounding them.

Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, is open every night till 9.30.

The Farmers and Dry Weather.

This spring owing to the unusual dry weather farmers have their seeds set and their fields manured much earlier than in other years. However, the dry weather has its disadvantages and it is now feared that seeds, such as cabbage and turnips, are spoiled for want of moisture. Hay land is showing up very poorly.

DEMOCRATS FOR RATIFICATION

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9. A declaration in favor of ratification of the Treaty of Versailles will be the main plank in the Democratic platform, according to Homer Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who arrived here to prepare for the National Convention.

POLISH SUCCESS CONFIRMED.

LONDON, June 9. Reports that Russian Bolshevik forces, fighting on the Northern Polish front, have been forced to retire, are confirmed in an official statement issued at Moscow yesterday, and received here by wireless.

REPUBLICANS HAVING WARM TIME.

CHICAGO, June 9. It looked to-night as if the League of Nations were likely to prove a monkey wrench in the machinery of the Republican National Convention. For the present, possible candidates are forgotten and the fight was switched to a League of Nations plank in the Republican platform, and to-night there was an open threat of a break in the party over this issue. Senators, who are classed as irreconcilables to the League of Nations, threatened to leave the party unless it declared flatly against the League. This ultimatum was delivered in a dramatic fashion at a conference of leaders, when it put the League issue suddenly ahead of all the other questions before the National Convention, not excepting the nomination of a Presidential candidate.

CAPTURED THE MUNITIONS.

PRERAU, Moravia, June 10. The railway workers have seized thirty-six car-loads of munitions bound from Italy for Poland. These supplies were shipped under false invoices.

PRESIDENT ORLANDO RESIGNS.

ROME, June 10. Former Premier Orlando resigned yesterday as President of the Chamber of Deputies. Signor Orlando is said to desire to return to his seat as Deputy in the Chamber, and again participate in active political life.

ZIG-ZAG.

CHICAGO, June 10. Eamon De Valera, Irish leader, said here yesterday that at the conclusion of the Republican Convention, he would go to San Francisco and afterward to New York City. Although he announced no further plans, a member of his party said that when he went back to Ireland, he "would go by a zig-zag route," explaining that this meant in a round-about way to avoid detection by the British authorities.

NOT GOING SMOOTHLY.

LONDON, June 10. The opinion is growing, that negotiations between the Russian Trade Envoys and British officials are not progressing as smoothly toward a satisfactory issue as Krassin's rental of an office and residence would seem to indicate. Persons, closely connected with both sides of the preliminary trade re-opening, said yesterday that they would not be surprised if there was an abrupt breaking off of these negotiations within a few days.

COMING DOWN.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10. A reduction in the wholesale price of sugar, from $36.30 to $35 a hundred weight, is announced by a Western Sugar Refinery.

BOLSHEVIKS ADVANCING.

LONDON, June 10. Russian Bolshevik forces are advancing near Kiev, and southwest of that city, according to a wireless despatch received here, quoting an official statement received at Moscow yesterday.

POLAND AND RUSSIA.

WARSAW, June 10. Poland will send peace offers to the Russian-Soviet Government within a few days, according to a newspaper here. The proposal will be handled by Premier Skulski, who is empowered by Diet Leaders to act in behalf of the Government which framed its new note on Jan. 4.

The Geste of Duke Jocelyn.

Sweet Old Love Story, by Jeffrey Farnol.

A sweet old love-story is Jeffrey Farnol's "The Geste of Duke Jocelyn" (Samson Low, Marston & Co., S. E. Garland retail.) Author of many successful novels, (and among them may be mentioned "The Broad Highway") Farnol has written nothing which will endear him to his readers like this beautiful story will. Unusual it is, too, even for him. The plot, the story itself, is excellent and "satisfying," which word to a reader is self-explanatory. You lay down the book with a feeling of reluctance, wishing that there was more of the same kind. The verbiage, composition, is written in prose, poetry and blank verse. He opens up with a few pages of poetry, breaks out into prose and ends the chapter with blank verse. And such poetry! Strong, healthy, vivid, it has a Spring-like freshness about it, and there is nothing of that fetid warmth present in so much poetry. You can actually feel the breeze of it fanning your cheek. There is a vein of humor, as well as philosophy, running through it, as witness:

Then while all folk did hold their peace to hear,
In golden voice he sang, full, rich and clear:

THE FOOL'S SONG.

"A fool! A fool! ye cry,
A fool forsooth am I.
But tell me, wise ones, if ye can,
Where shall ye find a happy man?
Lived there one since the world began?
Come, answer ye
To me!

"What of the King? says you.
Says I to you—go to!
A King, despite his crown and throne,
Hath divers troubles all his own.
Such woes, methinks, as are unknown
To such as ye,
Or me!

"Ha, then—the rich! ye cry,
Not so in truth says I.
The rich man's gold is load of care,
That day and night he needs must bear.
Less care he'd know if poor he were,
As poor as ye,
Or me!

"For, sirs, as I do guess
This thing called "Happiness"
Man learneth with his youth behind;
So keep ye all a youthful mind,
Thus happiness ye all shall find
If wit have ye,
Like me!

"O list ye, great and small,
Proud knight, free man and thrall,
True happiness, since life began,
The birthright of every man.
Seize then your birthright if ye can,
Since men are ye—
Like me!

"Thus I forsooth, a Fool,
Do now ye wise ones school;
Since of my folly I am free,
I wisely thus admonish ye,
Be wise—and eke fools learn to be In verity—
Like me!"

(The writer read "The Geste of Duke Jocelyn" at one sitting, and guarantees it as a novel of special excellence.)

"Mixed Bathing a Nation's Peril."

LONDON, June 4.—"Hundreds of possible brides are being doomed to lives of useless celibacy through the infamous institution of mixed bathing." This was the devastating pronouncement made to-day by Councilor Donald Clark, Tunbridge Wells, Kent, opposing the Council's motion to establish mixed bathing public swimming-pools.

"I am not puritanical nor jesting," Clark said, "but an ardent Imperialist. A girl who is dazing in the ball-room, becomes vulgarized with her hair straggling over her eyes, like a wet terrier. Such a damp fright would disillusion any young man and he would recoil with horror."

Clark made no reference to men's failure to stand the beauty test in bathing attire. He declared that Brighton and other resorts permitting mixed bathing were "sources of decadence, a menace to England and the Empire. Women's beauty is essential to marriage, to the stability of the Nation, and the progress of the world."

In spite of Clark's formidable objection the Council approved mixed bathing.

Encyclopedic.

He was one of the unsung, one of those heroes who had sailed from the United States just before the armistice and reached France just in time to turn around and start back home again. He had never explored inland even as far as Camp Pontassene.

But the gushing lady who met the ship at the pier in Hoboken, anxious to do something for the boys, didn't know that. She saw him come down the gangplank, and near the Red Cross coffee stand she cornered him.

"Oh, tell me!" she gasped. "Tell me all about it! What horrors you must have been through! What experiences! What soul regeneration! You cannot have come out of it all as you went in! Tell me what great lesson you learned—what wonderful truth must have impressed itself upon your mind!"

"Yes'm," answered the soldier obediently. "I found out that lessons ain't no good for seascickness."—The Home Sector.

Gone is our little one—
Plucked from the door;
Deeper our sorrow than ever before,
Eyes that illumined the innocent face,
None can now gaze upon,
Nor his form trace.

He who once toddled to mother, in glies, O'er the green sod of the Cove by the sea—
Locks of a golden hue circling his brow—
God of the wilderness! Where is he now?

Oh, may the angels who hover around Search all the waters, the woods

Yet may the angels, the form or the Bring from captivity or from the wild

Gone is our little one—
Plucked from the door;
Deeper our sorrow than ever before.

Real Cold Weather.

The man who shivers and groans, when the thermometer registers a degree or two of frost, may "thank his lucky stars" that he knows nothing of such cold as the Arctic explorer experiences.

Dr. Kane, the famous American explorer, for example, tells us of one Christmas Day theatrical performance, which surely is without a parallel:

"The ship's thermometer, outside," he says, "registered 78 degrees of frost. Inside the audience and actors, by aid of lamps and hangings, got as high as minus 30 degrees—only 62 degrees below the freezing-point."

Of a later Christmas Day, Dr. Kane records: "While walking my beard and moustache became one solid mass of ice. I inadvertently put out my tongue, and it instantly froze to my lips. When I put up my mittened hand to "blow hot," and thaw the unmy member from its imprisonment, my mitten was itself a mass of ice in a moment! It fastened on the upper side of my tongue, and flattened it out like a buttered-cake between the two discs of a hot grid. It required all my care with the bare hand to release it; and then, not without laceration."

A DREADFUL HABIT.

RUTH CAMERON

What a dreadful thing the habit of fear is! I don't mean just physical fear—a p p r e h e n s i o n perhaps would carry my meaning better. no u r s e q u e n t neighborhood a man who inherited the habit of apprehension and who has let it grow on him until it has spoiled his life. And since none of us can live himself alone, it has taken much out of the lives of others.

prehension growing on him—whether it be a business man, and the fear is that of making mistakes in his business, or a mother, and the apprehension is that she will not cover her children just right at night or give them just the right food—should first find out if there are any physical causes for that state of mind. Many times it is a colon which is not eliminating poisons properly or a pus-producing tooth, or some such ill, which is causing this state of mind. Then, having eliminated such cause, he should set himself to fight it by mind-control.

Engine Drivers' Superstitions.

The majority of English drivers and stokers lose all confidence in an engine which has had any sort of accident, and their distrust is doubly increased should the accident have occurred during the engine's trial trip.

If an engine is to be turned round on a turn-table, the turn-table must be turned clockwise (i.e. to the right); should the operation be performed in the opposite direction, the belief is cherished that disaster will take place during the journey.

Many engine-drivers still believe that disaster will befall them if they climb up on to their engine putting forward the left foot first.

Engines the number of which has a nine in it or is divisible by nine, are bound to be unlucky, this curious belief being held by American as well as English drivers. As some sort of proof of this, in nearly all big railway disasters in this country the number of the engine has always had a nine in it or has been a multiple of nine.

Pointsmen with a squint invariably herald bad luck, and in support of this there is told the story of a gang of ten pointsmen, one of whom had a squint. In ten months every one fell a victim to the wheels of a locomotive.

Milton D. Copulus, a Greek, has created for himself a place that is unique in the art world. His flowers and fruits are so much like nature that scientists speak of him as a worker of miracles. He came to New York the day President McKinley was shot. He made a living as a waiter and cartoonist. He so startled Colonel Roosevelt with one of his exhibitions that he cried out "Unbelievable."

WOODROW WILSON

If Grimes is our next President, the land will be in clover; we all shall bask in sweet content, our troubles will be over. So say the boys who whoop for Grimes, and fix his divers fences, and hint we ought to dig some dimes to pay campaign expenses. If Grimes wins out, the useful lad who's always busy toiling, will never lack a helpful scud to keep the kettle boiling. And in the bank he'll have a hoard of large gunmetal dollars, and he will own a nice tin ford, and Sunday shirts and collars. If Grimes wins out the idle jay will have no decent standing; he'll loaf throughout the golden day, free soup and pies demanding. "Twill be the same if Grimes should lose, his hopes to ashes turning; all kinds of men will get their dues, will get just what they're earning. The man who buckles down to work will find the times are booming, and we will see the village shirk in some cheap poorhouse rooming. I'll vote for Grimes, but if he wins I'll keep on sawing maple, that I may fill my shelves and bins with fancy grub and staple.

Strawberry blanc-mange is an excellent dessert even for the smallest child.

Why Navy Blue?

Practically every country clothes her sailor in blue.

It was about one hundred and seventy years ago that the first bluejacket were evolved. It then became the uniform of the British Royal Navy. This was adopted in 1748 at the request of a number of naval captains. The seamen, at a meeting in Mill's Coffee House, in Scotland Yard, London, had decided that the Navy ought to have its own uniform instead of wearing either military dress or whatever individual captains decided. They laid the suggestion before the Admiralty Board, and after a little delay for consideration were invited to confer upon the style and colour to be adopted.

While engaged in discussing the subject, the Duke of Bedford, First Lord of the Admiralty, entered and announced that the King had decided upon the uniform to be used in the Royal Navy. His Majesty had seen the Duchess of Bedford riding in the Park clad in a handsome blue dress, primly trimmed with white and gold braid, and, admiring the costume, fixed upon it for the Navy.

It was a happy choice, and the Navy had good reason to be thankful to the clever lady who influenced the King to make his decision.

Stretching Her Imagination.

We laugh usually because we are intended to at the accredited "smart" saying of school children, told by their teachers or fond parents, but occasionally we hear a story that gives us real amusement. Mrs. W. E. Groves, a member of the School Board of Toronto, is responsible for the story of a small girl who returned from her classes one day with a n exciting account of the exceeding naughtiness of another little scholar.

"The teacher says the principal is going to do something like 'elastic garter,'" was the breathless explanation, given her mother.

"Elastic garter," said her mother, very much puzzled, "what on earth could that be?"

The child could give no further definition of the punishment that awaited her erring little school-mate until the following day, when she returned home from school and explained that it wasn't to "elastic garter," after all, that the teacher had threatened, but to "suspend her."

Our Flighty Fashions.

The new fashions seem to be a medley of everything, says a correspondent writing from London. You may have something that tries to look like a young crinoline, or a ladder of stiff frills at the back of your skirt, or you may have a tight skirt and a coat which only flares slightly on the hips. You may even, according to sensational pictures of late fashions, wear tight satin knee breeches under a transparent skirt—pause here to contemplate mentally some of your acquaintances wearing such a get-up—but if you refuse to be made a scarecrow for any dressmaker living you may wear your nice straight-up-and-down dress with some little touch that marks it of the year 1920. High collars and very frilly high neck effects are trying to be popular just as the right season begins for low comfortable collars. The Englishwoman is so devoted to her open neck and low collar that she does not take kindly to the high necked coats and dresses for the spring. Bright colors and stripes are both striking among the new things, and it is said that even men are to be released at last from the hum-drum of black, gray and dark blue.

In this connection The Sunday Herald breaks forth into song—

"I've got a new suit of a delicate Manuve
With a coat with a skirt like an an-thracite stove,
And a shirt of corise crepe de china.
I've a futurist landscape all over my back
And a Cubist design on my chest,
It's foolish I know, but you can't dress in black
In this horrible age of unrest."

Remarkable Change.

The political message sent from Freshwater, yesterday, and published in our news columns to-day, is an indication of a complete change of sentiment in that section of the District of Bay-de-Verde. It will be remembered that at the General Election last November, Freshwater was generally hostile to the then Government, giving its main support to the candidates of the Opposition of the day, Messrs. Cave and LeGrow. Now a complete transition has taken place and Freshwater lines up against the Government, as represented by the man it supported in the fall. It does not need a far excursion into political history to discover why this change has occurred. Bay-de-Verde is a fishing district, its prosperity depending on the gift of the sea. Catch, price and demand are material to its reaping the benefit of the fishing voyage. The catch last year was a good one. The price was maintained and the material advantages to the district were numerous.

With the going out of the Government led by Sir Michael Cashin, and the entrance to office of the Squires administration, all this was changed. In less than three months after their accession of office, a slump came. The demand for fish in the European markets was paralyzed by the Fish Export Regulations put in force in the closing days of November, and with that paralysis the price began gradually to drop, until to-day dry codfish of last year's catch and cure can scarcely be given away. And the worst of the Fish Regulations was that they prevented—because of their harshness—hundreds of thousands of quintals of Newfoundland 1919 fish from going into consumption during the months when the demand abroad was greatest. The fish exporters made strong protests against this killing of trade, but to no purpose. The Government, with a determination worthy a better cause, would not yield one jot or tittle. The disastrous effect of their stubbornness and ignorance is seen at the moment, and fishermen are beginning at last to realize that the direction of their destinies has been delivered into the hands of the wrong men. The charge entrusted to those same men has not been looked after.

Fish exporters in the outports have been hard hit by the Export Regulations covering the shipment of dry codfish to foreign markets, so much so that they complain of having been financially strangled by the Government, and for that reason unable to continue in the trade, under compliance with such rules. In the message to which reference has been made, one of the principal Fish Exporters in the District of Bay-de-Verde, Mr. William Moores, of the firm of W. & J. Moores, Freshwater, for the first time in his life took the political hustings, compelled to do so by the circumstances confronting the issue before the country. This gentleman declared without hesitation, that the Fish Regulations were oppressive and were as a halter around the neck of the trade. He opposed them in toto, pointing out that they were ruinous to business and detrimental to the best interests of the Dominion. So arbitrary were they, that if carried out his firm with others would be obliged to suspend business because of the impossibility of carrying on with a sword hanging over their heads. This statement was not made as a threat. It was a plain presentment of the position. They would be driven out of business by Act of Parliament. Does Bay-de-Verde wish to see its progressive sons forced to abandon the work to which they have devoted time and talent? Do the electors of that district desire to witness the closing of shop and store doors and the abrupt ceasing of the issue of fishery supplies? Are they anxious to have progress and prosperity, or is it their wish to revert to the Tory days of stagnation and destitution? The answer to these questions is in their keeping.

Police Court.

Two Spanish sailors were charged with deserting their vessel, the Terra Nova. Through an interpreter they stated that they left because of the poor quality of the food. They were sent to prison until another vessel, the Ardrea Roca, owned by the same firm, arrives here. This will be about a month hence.

Neptune at Blanc Sablon.

Messrs. Job Brothers & Co., are in receipt of the following wire from S. S. Neptune now on the way to Blanc Sablon:—
"June 9th, 5 p.m. Took ice off St. Anthony. Mouth of Straits blocked with heavy ice; loose ice on Newfoundland side. No ice at Pt. Amour. Expect to reach Lance au Loup at daylight."

Pony Bolts.

At 1.30 this afternoon, the pluck and courage of the driver of a pony and wagon averted what otherwise might have had serious consequences for both man and animal. While driving along the street opposite Hickman and Co., the breaching broke and the wagon, shooting ahead, causing the pony to bolt. The driver pluckily held on to the reins and eventually managed to turn the startled equine toward the curb opposite the West End store of Geo. Knowling, where it was caught by some spectators and brought to a standstill. But little damage was done.

Shipping Notes.

Schooner Terra Nova sailed yesterday evening for Seville, fish laden by Lazo & Co.
Tern schooner June in ballast sailed this morning for Sydney to load coal.
S. S. Seal arrived at Channel at 11.30 a.m. yesterday and left again at 4 o'clock for Codroy.
Schooner Adam Clarke harbored at Cape Broyle on the passage from Sydney to Twillingate.
Schooner Review cleared from Bonne Bay for Sydney in ballast.
INLAND FISHING.—Robinson's River is reported as high no parties have been fishing there yet.

Forest Fires.

Messages received in the city indicate that forest fires are raging in practically every part of the country. At present the fire of greatest proportions is that raging on the Witless Bay line. On Tuesday afternoon the fire was about 1 1/2 miles above Holyrood. The Minister of Agriculture was to the scene and procuring the help of residents got it partly under control. A section of 10 square miles was burned up to then. From Brigus Junction the fire has swept half way to Colinet and some of the best timber land has been swept. The latest report is that Cat Hill ridge, a half mile from the railway station, is all ablaze. This ridge is heavily wooded. A second fire started last evening near Holyrood, about one mile distant from the fire of Tuesday. The constable with a number of men are fighting to keep the south side of the settlement from being wiped out.
A fire was reported this morning as raging near Victoria Village, Carbonear, and is getting near the settlement.
No particulars of the fire at Catalina are to hand.
A fire was raging near Cochrane Pond, on the Ruby Line, last night and had not been subdued up to this morning.
A fire of not serious proportions is burning at Alexander Bay.
A fire is also reported 4 miles west of Sbal Harbor, Random Sound. No particulars are to hand.
Along the Heart's Content line several fires of fair proportions are destroying all the timber there.
From St. Shott's to the northwest of Trepassay, the woods at Chance and Clam Coves, Cape Broyle and La-Manche, have been swept, some 60 miles in length of the best timber on the peninsula being destroyed. Further west to Cape Race the woods are reported all ablaze.
At Norris' Arm last night the forest fire there was particularly grave, one dwelling being burned to the ground. This morning the fire had nearly burned itself out.

Safe-Cracking.

"The police are still looking for the person who made the attempt at safe cracking on Monday night, but so far have not so much as established a clue. The authorities are quite sure, however, that he is not the artist who cleared up the $1000.00 from a safe at Grand Falls a few years ago, and has since avoided detection."—This Morning's News.

Safe-Cracking.

In the item quoted from the News of to-day's date there are two errors: One, as regards the recent attempt at safe cracking. The police are not still looking for the culprit, as his identity has been established in the person of a small boy who entered the place when the owners were absent, and, picking up a hammer, whacked the handle off the safe.
In the second connection, i.e. the case of the Grand Falls "safe cracking," the man there was apprehended and convicted in the Lower Court but escaped while his appeal to the Supreme Court was on file. Later, however, he was arrested in Canada on a similar charge and imprisoned.

Quidi Vidi Sale of Work.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild a very enjoyable sale of work was held at the schoolroom, Quidi Vidi, yesterday afternoon and evening. Rev. C. A. Moulton was chairman, while Rev. Henry Gordon delivered a short address on "The Cartwright Mission." A concert programme was gone through, the ventrioqueal exhibition and the harpise selection of Messrs. J. Wheeler and W. T. Newhook, respectively, being much enjoyed.

Intercollegiate Rugby.

Before quite a number of fans the first inter-collegiate rugby game was played at St. George's Field yesterday afternoon. The Feldians and Collegians played, the former winning by a score of 11 points to 8. Smith, Perlin, Blackler and Rendell, for the Feldians, and Macpherson, Holmes and Clouston, for the Collegians, played a fine game. The next game of the series will be played on Saturday.

FRESHWATER GIVES OPPOSITION CANDIDATE FINE RECEPTION. SPLENDID MEETING TUESDAY NIGHT.

Special to Evening Telegram.
Received noon yesterday.
—FRESHWATER, June 9.
The campaign re-opened at Freshwater last night with a splendid meeting. Considering the number of men away and the busy season, a fine audience attended. Mr. James N. Butt was Chairman and the speakers were, Mr. J. C. Puddester, the candidate, Mr. J. R. Bennett of St. John's West, and Mr. Wm. Moores, of the firm of W. & J. Moores, the merchant and fish buyers of Freshwater. The cause for the Opposition was ably expounded by Mr. Puddester and Mr. Bennett. They dealt with the state of the country and the causes leading thereto. Mr. Moores dealt with the fish regulations and plainly stated his position. He said that he had never before appeared on a political platform, but the circumstances now confronting the country compelled him to do so. He heartily endorsed the candidature of Mr. Puddester and asked the people to show their opposition to the fish regulations by electing Mr. Puddester with a triumphant majority. If the fish regulations are enforced, he predicted that his firm would have to suspend business, and there were others like him.

Obituary.

A well known and esteemed citizen passed away this morning at 9 o'clock, at his residence 20 Young Street, in the person of Mr. William Williams, Manager of Messrs. Rothwell & Bowring's Holdsworth Street premises. The late Mr. Williams was in the firm's employ for seventeen years, and was a valuable and trusted employee. Being of a steady, quiet disposition he made many friends. He has been ailing since last September and has practically been away from business since that time. In the early days he was employed at Tessler's. He was born in Petty Harbor sixty-nine years ago, and came from the well-known and industrious family of the name who have made their reputation famous in Petty Harbor, as successful men in the country's national history. The late Mr. William Williams leaves a widow and Mr. Rowland T. Williams, besides one brother, Mr. Henry Williams, and a sister, Mrs. Pearce, of the Goules, to mourn his demise. Funeral will take place on Saturday, at 3 p.m.

Funeral of the Late Patk. Dunphy.

RED ISLAND, P.B., June 9.
Special to Evening Telegram.
One of the largest funerals ever attended here took place at 6 o'clock last evening, when the remains of the late Patrick Dunphy were committed to mother earth. In the absence of Rev. Father Savin, the service was conducted by Rev. Father Cacciola, who kindly came from Bar Haven, by request. He paid a great tribute to the deceased, saying that the few times he had visited here—and others a well—he had always found in the late Mr. Dunphy a kind friend. After solemn Requiem Mass this morning, Father Cacciola preached a very fine sermon, saying in conclusion that from all that he had heard and known of the deceased, his bereaved wife had lost a good husband, his children a good father, and Red Island one of its most kind and charitable inhabitants. May his soul rest in peace.

Wedding Bells.
St. Thomas's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Robert Brown, electrician at Grand Falls, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Louise Willar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Willar. Precisely at 3.30 the bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away. She looked charming in a gown of white ivory satin trimmed with pearls, with bridal wreath and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of carnations and maiden hair fern. The bride was attended by Miss Gladys Crossman, who looked most becoming in a gown of rose crepe de chine with black hat. Miss Trilxie Noseworthy acted as flower girl, and looked very attractive in pink silk with black bonnet. Mr. Chesley Hall ably supported the groom. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. A. Moulton and was most impressive, while Mr. Stirling, Organist of St. Thomas's, in his amiable manner presided at the organ. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Lake House. At 7.30 the bride and groom left by motor for Manuels, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents. The groom's present to the bride being a pendant of chain, to the bridesmaid a gold brooch, and flower girl signet ring, and to the best man a tie pin. After spending a week with the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs.

Highlanders' Ladies' Association

A meeting of those interested in forming a Ladies' Association in connection with the Newfoundland Highlanders was held in the Presbyterian Hall last night. Lieut-Col. Fawcett O.C. occupied the chair, and brief reviewed the work of the brigade. Addresses were given by Mrs. D. Johnston, Rev. Gordon Dickie, the Brigade Chaplain, Mr. J. J. McKay and Mr. Harold Mitchell. It was unanimously decided to form the Association, and the following officers were elected:—Hon. President—Mrs. (Dr.) Paterson.

President—Mrs. William Herd. Vice-President—Miss Calver. Sec'y-Treas.—Miss E. V. Ledingham.

The Association will no doubt do much to promote the social affairs of the brigade and the enthusiasm displayed in its formation gives promise of every success.

The Suffrage Question.

HAVE WOMEN EARNED THE VOTE? "Nothing but great weight in things can afford a quite literal speech."—Emerson.

Although over a half century has passed since "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was printed as a serial in the National Era in Washington, it is to-day one of the household books, whilst generation after generation seems to read it with the interest—if not with the intensity of other days. Five thousand copies sold in one week! One hundred thousand copies sold in the first eight weeks after the book went to press! Thirteen different German editions were sold within the first year. A million and a half copies were sold on English soil alone!

With all his popularity and his familiarity with the plain people, even Dickens was not translated into the language of the North Britons. And yet one of the most charming translations—in (the author of this book) Mrs. Stowe's possession, was a copy of Uncle Tom's Cabin in Welsh, with illustration by George Cruikshank. (A woman the author.) Fortunate indeed is the country which can claim her for its own.

Fortunate the association of women who, in Mrs. Stowe's lifetime, were given such an opportunity to do her honor as was offered by the celebrations of the discovery of which she was so proud. She has gently closed the door behind her, leaving her own works to praise her, and the children's children of the dusky race whom she befriended to rise up and call her blessed, unto who can say how many generations.

What of Mrs. French Sheldon crossing the dark continent. A woman, alone at the head of five hundred men. She undertook an expedition which hitherto had tested the courage and cost the life of more than one brave man. Doing a man's work in a woman's way she accomplished it without a single drop of bloodshed. What of Grace Darling's deeds of heroism. She did a man's work in a man's way and with a man's weapons. They were glad to make room for her, and the life-saving service exists to-day as her lasting monument. It has been discovered that women were the first among English-speaking people to appreciate the value and benefits of education, and we find one of them founding the first college for men as early as the thirteenth century.

Balol and Wadhwa Colleges in Oxford, Clare, Pembroke, Queen's and Sidney Colleges in Cambridge, owed their existence to the English women of hundreds of years ago. Ian MacLaren sarcastically says, "If a woman will find his belongings, which he has scattered over three rooms and the hall, a man will invest her with many virtues, and if she packs his portmanteau she is a saint. But if his hostess is inclined to discuss problems with him, he will receive her with marked coldness so simple is man!"

And what of Florence Nightingale, Saint Joan of Arc, and others too numerous to mention. Have they not earned for us the vote? "Psalms, the clock of time has struck the Woman's hour."

Happily one can fall back on the assurance that "there is no such thing as pure originality in a large sense; that by necessity, by proclivity, we all must quote the old as well as the new to make the warp and woof of every moment."

Yes, women have at last recognized their worth, and the first demand for real action has come. We want the vote! Surely the Government of the day, realizing as they must, "woman's influence," will not treat this measure with silent contempt, but will give it serious consideration. We are asking for what we consider is ours by right, and feel that the conduct of the past and present generations have earned the franchise. I repeat again in closing:

"Psalms, the clock of time has struck the Woman's hour."

How Matches Are Made In Russia.

When in some western portions of the Russian empire the son of a home has reached his eighteenth birthday, his parents feel that it is time for adding another breadwinner to the family—a daughter-in-law, healthy of lungs and strong of limb. The simplest way of discovering her is through a sort of competitive exhibition. The community sets apart an annual festival day at which the people gather in a central village, the fathers with their sons of eighteen, to be on the lookout for a promising young lady; the mothers with their seventeen-year-old daughters to be looked upon. Fathers and sons take their stand at street corners, while girls walk up and down under the chaperonage of their mothers.

The parade is not carried on in silence. Between the spectators and the paraders remarks are banded back and forth. "That's the kind of hair I like," a young fellow might say as an auburn-tinted young lady happens by. Quick as a flash the retort is likely to leap from her tongue, "What could you do with any kind of hair when you have nothing in your head?" Or the youth puts out a feeler, saying softly, "Come with me and I'll protect you." To which the reply may come from her, "It would take six of your kind to do that." One foolish swain is said to have twitted a girl about the size of her feet. "You look out," came the retort of the buxom girl: "you may get them on top of you some day." And by-standers felt instinctively that the danger was all on his side.

In some way or other, though, the great majority of lads have found their bride-to-be before the day is over. Shyness mixed with pride written on his open features, the youth takes the maiden by the hand and the two walk up and down the street, she casting her glances demurely on the ground, with occasional side observations in his direction. Both appear to be very embarrassed, and probably they are. But the parents on both sides have considered the matter carefully a long time beforehand, and have even talked about it with their children.

In more eastern provinces of Russia, this semi-marketing is almost entirely absent; but ways of making matches are still more curious. The father of an eighteen-year-old son goes out on a quiet hunt for a seventeen-year-old daughter-in-law. He enters this home and that, requesting that the marriageable maiden be properly arrayed and trotted out for his inspection. Then he proceeds to examine her physique and to ascertain her achievements in sewing, knitting, spinning, weaving, cooking and field work. As to her charms, they are a secondary matter; if they exist, so much the better; but they determine the wise parent neither way. There is some concern in regard to the dowry, whether it shall be a cow, a pig or a sheep; a difference which may cause considerable dickerings. It must be clear, too, that no relationship exists between the young people. Even so nominal an office as that of godfather or godmother serves to place impassable barriers between them.

The mother of the damsel on whom the searcher's choice has fallen receives an invitation to the young man's home; she must become acquainted with the "jewel," as for once in his life the lad is now called. If the woman accepts the invitation, a sumptuous supper is prepared, at which every chance is given her to make a study of her prospective son-in-law. In the arguments and the barganings that ensue he takes no part whatever; in fact, though he is so intimately concerned, it is likely that he has never seen his bride-to-be.

Soon after, the lad's mother makes a visit to the girl's home. Accompanied by two or three of her neighbors, she approaches the house by some circuitous way and, under cover of darkness, knocks three times on the door, and replies to the question from within, what she wants,—"We fain would eat." The door is thrown open, and a curious conversation begins, which is, nevertheless, definitely prescribed by custom.

The visitors seat themselves, and the mother of the boy says, "I have a son, a Hercules of a boy, who can plough three times so much ground in a day as any other man in the village. He is tall and comely; every girl in our neighborhood has her eye on him. But we have heard from afar that in this house there dwells a beautiful virgin of seventeen summers, with eyes as a gazelle, with hair as the golden tresses of the water fairies, with a bosom as white as snow. According to her far-spread fame, she is possessed of all the virtues; good-natured, pious, and born in the sunlight. She can sew, cook, knit, weave and spin; she is handy at milking the cows and at working in the field like a man. I beg of you that you show me this beautiful maiden, for fain would we have her become a wife of our jewel."

Humbly confessing that she was quite unaware of harboring so accomplished a young lady in her home, the girl's mother pretends to send for her. But, previous to the arrival of the visitors, ten or a dozen neighboring girls had been collected within the house, and these, one after another, like the sons of Jesse before Samuel, are made to pass before the visitors. Like those same sons, they are rejected, too. Finally, when the examiners are confident that the last neighbor girl has been paraded before them, they assume their hostesses' part, unfortunately, their call has been in vain; not one of the many damsels approaches the virtues that had been reported. So they unwillingly prepare to leave the house.

"Stay yet a moment!" cries the housewife, seemingly embarrassed. "I have one more daughter here whom I had completely forgotten." The blushing maiden is then ushered into the room, is immediately recognized as the wonderful damsel of whom reports had spread so far, and, weeping, she stands in the midst, while her uncertain destiny is discussed in lively terms. At a given time she breaks out in loud lamentations, and she will not be comforted. But the marriage contract and preliminaries are arranged for, then and there. The banquet is ready, too, which lasts through most of the night.

The next day, by various routes, the youth and the girl are conducted to the house of some relative, and are there allowed to exchange glances through a keyhole. It may be the only glimpse they obtain of each other previous to their wedding. And all the while the young lady is loudly protesting, and begs repeatedly that the wedding day be postponed. In these requests she is backed by the married women, who constantly chant songs in which the free and untrammelled days of youth are praised and wedded life is disparaged. It is all part of the ceremony, and probably both of the young people are glad at heart.

Household Notes.

Leaves and ingredients of a salad should be kept cold and dry until mixed.

If the top and bottom cellar steps are painted white, some one will be saved a fall.

Wash white leather gloves on a dry, windy day, so that they will dry very quickly.

Never throw away your sour cream. Delicious pie crust may be made with it.

Decorated oilcloth makes very attractive mats and pillows for the summer porch.

Onion-flavored syrup imparts an excellent flavor to water in which ham is boiling.

Fighting Brain of Giant Wars

NEW YORK, June 2.—The dreadnought Tennessee, the largest and most formidable United States battleship afloat, goes into commission to-day at the Brooklyn yards. Constructed here at a cost of twenty million dollars, she is 345 feet long, has a beam of 98 feet and a displacement of 32,500 tons.

A "fighting brain" enclosed in steel armor near the top of the ward mast, has a number of concentrated devices for observing enemy ships. These enable the crew to see the enemy craft from a distance of twenty-five miles. Signalling devices, connected throughout the ship, insure instant action of range and rapid fire. "Fighting brain" is filled with mechanical devices for range finding and other delicate instruments.

Another important feature in construction of the vessel is electrical control of speed, enabling her to quickly change from a capacity speed of twenty-one to an almost imperceptible speed considered an important point in the standpoint of manoeuvring.

Piling on The Agony.

This Year Estimates to Carry An Extra $1,500,000 -- Salaries of Ministers and Members Increased --Where is the Money Coming From?

(Daily News.)
What's delaying the Estimates?
This question is worn threadbare in the asking. The House of Assembly has been in session nearly two months and there is yet not a word as to when Supply may be expected. The general reason given for the delay is that the Estimates are not printed, but from the stories that are afloat as to what they contain, it would appear as if the Government are rather afraid to bring them down to the House, or are deliberately holding them back until the bye-election in the District of Bay de Verde is pulled off. It is convenient of course to throw the responsibility on the printer, but even if he is to blame, there is absolutely no reason why the Government should not have introduced supply and brought down the Estimates for the various departments as they were ready, without waiting for the whole.
In view of the lateness of the season and the well-known desire of some of their supporters to get back home to their business, some arrangement of this sort may have been made.

But when they do come down, judging from information which has reached The News during the last day or two, they will give the deluded people who expected "reform" a jolt that will be staggering. If late governments were generous in their expenditures, the Squires Government promises to eclipse them all, and a great deal of the increased expenditure will go into their own pockets.

Last year the Minister of Finance,
Sir Michael Cashin, presented Estimates totalling seven millions of dollars; the estimates of the new Minister, Mr. Brownrigg, will total nearly eight and three-quarters millions. In other words, the burdens of the people are being increased over one and a half million dollars, and this at a time when the outlook for the country is not too promising and when economy in every branch of the service should be practised.

In the new increases the Ministers of the Crown are said to be sharing liberally. They have placed their salaries at four thousand dollars each, and to make sure they will not undervalue their services, have increased the sessional pay of the members of the House of Assembly from two hundred dollars a year each to one thousand. In other words the ministers will make at least five thousand a year. In the case of Mr. Squires, however, the gentleman who was going to rescue his bleeding country from the hands of "the graters," and who is drawing two salaries, and it is said three, plus perquisites and allowances, nothing less than ten thousand a year suffices. He is to receive four thousand a year as Prime Minister, four thousand as Colonial Secretary, one thousand as Sessional pay, six hundred from the Board of Review of Separation Allowances, over three hundred as Director of the Savings Fund, and in addition receives hundreds in perquisites from the Colonial Secretary's Department, and is reported to be drawing the salary of the Minister of Militia, which is at least three thousand, and possibly other amounts at present unknown. His income from the Government is at least $10,000, and may be $15,000.

It is easy to be a patriot at $10,000 or $15,000 a year, with the possibility of further additions in big legal fees.
Isn't it? Is it any wonder that this "saviour of his country," this gentleman who was prepared to "devote his life and talents to the services of his country," is ready to fight to the last ditch to retain his position, and is prepared to descend to any depths to maintain his hold on the public Treasury.

Incidentally it is also not to be wondered at that Mr. Cave was "persuaded" to take the Ministry of Shipping, and to fight the bye-election in the District of Bay de Verde. Five thousand a year to Mr. Cave is a nice "honorarium," much more than the "bone and sinew," whose votes he is now soliciting, will make this year out of the fishery.

In addition, it is understood the new Estimates provide that the members of the Legislative Council, that branch of the Legislature which the redoubtable Mr. Coaker always affirmed he would wipe out as soon as he acquired the power, are to have their sessional indemnity raised to two hundred and fifty dollars each.
But this is not the point that will interest the "Noble Lords" the most.
They will be interested to learn that they are to have a real, live, official government leader who is to be specially paid for his services. In the past a representative of the government has been found to pilot the Bills through the Upper Chamber without pay; but now the gentleman who is to perform that very onerous duty,— and will it be the Hon. Mr. Shea or that bosom friend of Mr. Squires, the Hon. Mr. Gibbs?—is to receive a salary of five hundred dollars in addition to the usual "indemnity."

We wish to add that, according to reliable information which has reached us, the regular pensioners, the Old Age Pensioners, and the widows, the orphans, the aged and the infirm are not to be included in the generous "givings out" of this "Liberal" and "Reform" government. Liberal indeed —liberal to themselves!

Motor Accident.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Jardine, manager of the Nfld. Brewery had a narrow escape from injury if not death. When coming down Dwyer's Hill in his motor he changed gears, and in some manner the car shot to the side of the road, the front wheel striking the guard rails of a bridge demolishing them. The driver, however, held his seat and stopped the machine. The front wheel went over the bridge, the rear one being barely one foot from the coping. This much alone saved the car and occupant from being hurled to the river below, a height of some 8 feet. Men from Ren-nie's Bakery were soon on the scene and procuring some barrels and planks made a support for jackscrews and levers. When the car had been levered up, a number of men with ropes pulled it to a safe position. The car was not very much damaged, one head light and dasher being smashed.
Last night a number of Council men repaired the bridge.

Why is the Sky Blue?

Not one person in a hundred could give a satisfactory answer to the question.
And yet the explanation, as given by Professor W. H. Bragg, at the Royal Institution, is quite simple.
The blue sky, he explained, is due to the interception by particles in the atmosphere of the blue rays which form a part of the white light of the sun. The parts of white light conveyed by longer red and yellow light waves manage to jump the many substances in the atmosphere and are seen at sunrise and sunset.

The professor illustrated his meaning by showing a disc of light on the screen which, passing through a bowl of water, became gradually redder as the water got cloudier, till at last, after an imitation of the sun in a November fog, it faded away.

Professor Bragg has also revealed some of the mysteries of sound. If you put a stick in a revolving bowl of water, it sets up little whirlpools behind it. In the same way, the wind rushing past trees forms whirlwinds on a small scale, and these cause those sounds so admirably described by the imitative word "soughing."
Similar sounds are set up by telegraph wires.

Why is it that fishes make no disturbance when swimming through the water, although there is a rushing noise when a stone is flung in?
This is explained by the fact that, in the latter case, it is the filling of the cavity that is made, rather than the mere impact, which causes the noise, whereas the body of the fish is so shaped that when it moves through the water it leaves no such cavity behind it and therefore there is no disturbance.

DOUGHNUTS and CRULLERS

Another Royal Suggestion
From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

DOUGHNUTS made during the war and no wonder. There is nothing more wholesome and delightful than doughnuts or crullers
rightly made. Their rich, golden color and appetizing aroma will create an appetite quicker than anything else in the world.

Here are the famous doughnut and cruller recipes
from the New Royal Cook Book.

Doughnuts
3 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
Cream shortening; add sugar and well-beaten egg; stir in milk; add nutmeg, salt, flour and baking powder which have been sifted together and enough additional flour to make dough stiff enough to roll. Roll out on floured board to about 1/4 inch thick; cut out. Fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a piece of bread in 40 seconds. Drain on ungreased paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Afternoon Tea Doughnuts
2 eggs
4 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon Royal Baking Powder
Cream shortening; add sugar gradually and beaten eggs; stir together flour, cinnamon, salt and baking powder; add one-half and mix well; add milk and remainder of dry ingredients to make soft dough. Roll out on floured board to about 1/4 inch thick and cut into strips about 4 inches long and 1/4 inch wide; roll in hands and twist each strip and bring ends together.
Fry in deep hot fat. Drain and roll in powdered sugar.

Mr. Grace Notes.

It may be "alright" to a certain extent to do away with the dog, and it has, perhaps, been a great ordeal to some people to do so, but the fact remains that the dog was no more a menace to sheep-owners than the sheep are to owners of gardens, who have toiled practically all the Spring to set them out. One thing is certain—sheep-owners should be forced to keep their animals either in their own enclosures or driven country-wards. Sheep in Mr. Grace are running at large everywhere, and could in a very short time, should opportunity present itself, destroy a surprising amount of crops in an equally surprising time. Fair play is fair play.

Miss Mary Madigan, daughter of Mr. Patrick Madigan, left by Monday evening's train for St. John's, where she will enter the Hospital there for treatment for appendicitis. She was accompanied by Mrs. James Sweetland.

On Monday night, at about 11:30 and after, the Western sky was aglow with the reflection of the forest fires, and by what can be seen with the naked eye, it would appear that a tremendous fire, covering a distance of a mile or more, was in rapid progress. It is beyond human power to intervene now, and therefore, as we gaze at the gathering clouds, we can do naught but hope that providence will do that which we cannot do.

Capt. Chas. Webber arrived by motor boat from Bell Island Monday evening to spend a day or two with his home folk before sailing.

Mr. Hubert Spry went to St. John's Monday morning on a visit.

Sch. Annie L. Warren was taken on dock on Monday.

Miss U. Flynn, youngest daughter of Mrs. Margaret Flynn, formerly of Mr. Grace, arrived on Thursday night's train on a visit to friends. Miss Flynn's many acquaintances are pleased to see her.

It is with much regret we record the death of a well-known citizen of this town, in the person of Mr. Edward Daley. Mr. Daley had been ill only a short time, and was thought to be on the road to recovery. He had been up on Friday and again on Saturday, but on the latter day he was taken with an attack of heart trouble and passed away to his reward Saturday evening. Mr. Daley followed the sea from his early manhood up to a few years ago. For a number of years has sailed in Messrs. Rourke's vessels as Mate out of Carbonear, and was known by his companions of the sea, as a broad-minded, kind-hearted, splendid seaman, and his former shipmates will learn of his sudden demise with deep regret. He was in his 66th year, and leaves a widow and two step-daughters, two sisters and one brother, besides a large circle of funeral took place Monday morning at 9 o'clock, interment being at the Roman Catholic cemetery. Much sympathy is extended to mourning loved ones in their bereavement.

NOTES OF TRAVEL:

and Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

I. C. MORRIS.
CHAPTER XIV.
OTTAWA.

With Indian summer at its best our trip pulled out of the great station in Montreal and dashed on like some steed on the field of battle. Our destination was Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion of Canada, therefore the seat of Government. The run occupied some four hours, and was enjoyable in every way, and all the passengers seemed to be in harmony with the surroundings. One could hardly be otherwise; all nature proclaimed its grandeur, and appealed to the best instincts of the heart, and the city itself met out in bold relief to all that we our steps led us to the Chateau Laurier. This hotel is one of the most famous of its class, and is elaborately furnished. As its name implies, the chateau is called after Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and it is a monument worthy of his name in every respect. In style, architecture and design, there is a beauty that at once ranks the chateau with the best of its class, and it elicits the admiration of all who see it. Sir Wilfrid Laurier may have many memories of his character and his manhood, but none of them will equal that of the chateau at Ottawa which bears his name. It is a masterpiece of art, and an ornament of architecture; and the city of Ottawa is to be congratulated upon it, and the Dominion of Canada may well boast of it and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Indulge the same feeling. Personally we would say "Well done the C. P. R." We toured the city by car, and the driver was our instructor. For hours we drove along, and at every point saw things at their best; and when we beheld the canal, or viewed the foliage, or noted the buildings, looked up at the tall towers of the arches near us, or at the countless windows, we found in them all a novelty of interest, that especially begot us to travel, and which the travel-almost creates as he goes along. It impressed us in this particular way, the splendid situation of the homesteads along the Rideau canal, and the comfort which they afforded. Certainly there must have been a great deal of wealth somewhere, and the people who invested these buildings must have had good souls and liberal ideas.

At the time of our visit the new Parliament Buildings were open, and R. H. the Prince of Wales had just ended the function. We seemed to be on the trail of H. R. H. very often, and having had the honor of shaking hands with him here in the city, his proximity abroad was very welcome. We saw him at other Canadian cities, and we were glad to note that the Canadian people arose to the occasion, and adhered to the best traditions of the nation, and showed their loyalty to the constitution and to law and order. We saw much that we liked, but we saw a few things that we disapproved of, and one thing in particular for which we felt sorry, and which such a city as Ottawa should never have permitted. To have done so was unworthy the flag, and unworthy the loyalty which the people had shown, although it had nothing whatever to do with the Prince's Reception, nor with the opening of the new Parliament Buildings; but it happened at the Exhibition which was then being held. As the reader is aware, at an exhibition, such as the city of Ottawa annually holds, there is very device resorted to for the purpose of attracting the people, and drawing the crowd. The most of these devices come under the heading of what are called "Side Shows." We happened to pass by some of these shows, and in reading the advertisements we saw one which appealed to us very directly. It was called "The Spider Girl!" and claimed that the girl on exhibition really had a spider's body. This of course was a pure and deliberate falsehood, and was a mockery to the public, and a degradation of the gentler sex. Like others, we paid our fare, and entered the booth where the hoax was being perpetrated. Around stood a motley crowd of some forty or fifty people, and from a fixture representing a spider's legs, the head of a very pretty girl protruded. The crowd questioned the victim, and asked her several pertinent, and some, none-too-polite, questions. As best she could, she answered, but the whole thing was too superficial, and was a lamentable exhibition of the extremes to which some people will go for the sake of a little gain. There were lots of other curious and comical side-shows for all the people, and it was not necessary to degrade the beauty of womanhood to such a degree. Anyone could see that the situation was an awkward one for the girl, and that the spirit of the spectators was very adverse to the deception.

It seems a pity that the authorities of the city allowed such a thing to be practised. It was certainly below the intelligence of the age, and beneath the dignity of the Province, and unworthy the nobility of woman. Hence it should not be. The city which honors its women honors itself, and consolidates the Empire. The cornerstone of the Empire, and the hope of the city, is the home; and the glory of the home is woman; therefore she cannot be honored too much, nor can her name, nor her worth, be too highly prized.

John Horwood Says It Did Him World of Good

Thought He Would Have to Quit His Business But Tanlac Put Him On His Feet.

"Speaking from personal experience I can honestly say that Tanlac is a grand medicine and has done me a world of good," declared John Horwood, of Quidi Vidi, St. John's, Nfld., recently.

"For two years I was the victim of such awful indigestion that I thought it would be the finish of me. I couldn't eat a thing without bloating up with gas so tight afterwards that I was in pain and misery for hours. I had headaches that almost drove me wild and had dizzy spells when everything just seemed to be spinning round like a top. For hours after going to bed I used to roll and toss about, unable to sleep, and it was often morning before I dozed off. I got into such a weak and rundown condition at last that I thought I should have to give up business as a teamster.

"But it was wonderful how all my troubles yielded to Tanlac and I feel like a new man now. I can eat anything that is set before me and am not bothered any more with gas or indigestion. Headaches and nervousness are a thing of the past and I sleep good every night. I am so much stronger and better in health that I can do a day's work with any man on Water Street and finish up fresh and strong. Tanlac is all right and I feel sure is the best medicine for all who suffer with any sort of stomach trouble."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle—adv.

A Word on Woman Suffrage.

(From "Ave Maria.")

The advisability of "votes for women" now stands foremost among the problems demanding solution. The time for cheap scoffing is passed. Female factory hands who meet to combine against the iniquity of sweat-labour are no longer dispersed with shouts of: "Go home and mind the baby!" and serious men no longer affect to believe that the woman who may freely enter any theatre or restaurant and spend there as many hours as she pleases, will become unsexed if she leaves her home once in a certain number of years in order to register her vote on matters affecting her dearest interests.

It is now admitted that woman's demand for political rights is not a sex war. It is an honest appeal for leave to influence legislation in matters which men have persistently refused to touch or wherein they have shown themselves inapt or hesitant. It is useless to tell an earnest, God-fearing woman that laws concerning the moral well-being of her sons are outside her "sphere." Woman's sphere is above all else the home, and nothing pertaining to it and to her offspring can, or should be indifferent to her. It is the realization of her most sacred responsibilities that impels the woman of to-day to claim a voice in directing legislation which will control the destinies of the children she has brought into the world. Not the animal care of their bodies alone is her task, but their immortal souls, and all that pertains to mind formation and civic duty.

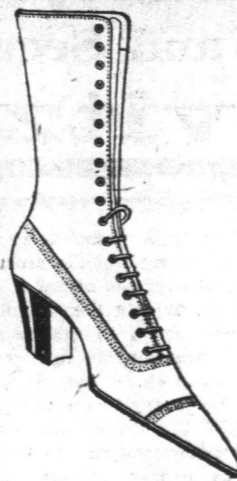

In olden days the men went forth to war and the woman "wept at home." Now the woman goes with her male partner to the ends of the earth, not only to help, but what is more important to save. She can no longer be relegated to the loom, for changed industrial conditions have opened to her other, and often, less congenial fields of labour. If she is refused collaboration in the serious walks of life, she is thrust into the vortex of senseless fashion and frivolity, or degraded to the automatic toil of a despised slave. Those who talk of debasing a woman's fine nature by mixing her up in politics, overlook the fact that English women have long participated keenly in politics, canvassing strenuously at election times, speaking in public, and exerting all their powers to advance the cause of their favorite candidates. Many men owe their seats in Parliament to the active propaganda of their mothers, wives, or sisters. Why then deprecate the application of powers that have furthered individual ambition, to matters that touch the general welfare?

President Spoiled Great Headline.

Recent newspaper statements have been made to the effect that there has not been a legal hanging in Kansas since 1870. Dave Leahy of the Wichita Beacon says there was a legal hanging in Wichita later than 1870, by 18 years, when the Roebler brothers were executed. There was to have been another about the same time—a felon by the name of Lemon. Mr. Leahy says, but the execution was prevented by a presidential commutation. John S. Richardson, editor of the Beacon at that time, was greatly disgusted at the President's action. Mr. Leahy asserts, mainly because it spoiled a fine headline which the editor had prepared for the story all ready for release the moment the trap was to be sprung on Mr. Lemon. The headline which never appeared was—"Lemon Drops."—Kansas City Star.

The Potato Situation!

OLD POTATOES in the United States are very high in price and there appears to be very little likelihood of any decline in this vegetable for some little time at least.

NEW POTATOES are arriving in New York in limited quantities, but the price asked by dealers (exclusive of exchange) is practically prohibitive.

POTATOES from the Old Country are embargoed and therefore unprocurable.

CHARLOTTETOWN stock is nearly exhausted but we were fortunate in securing a small shipment which we offer to arrive to-day ex "Canadian Miner" and would advise our customers to secure their requirements without delay as conditions indicate a potato famine before this year's crop will be on the market.

LONDON GOSSIP.

WITH THE PRINCE TO INDIA.

LONDON, May 3, 1920.
 When the Prince of Wales leaves for India next autumn, the suite to accompany him will be considerably larger than the one that is now with him in New Zealand, and will for the first time include a lord-in-waiting, who, in all probability, will be the Earl of Cromer. The Senior representative of the India Office detailed to travel with his Royal Highness is expected to be Sir J. R. Dunlop Smith, the political aide-de-camp at the India Office. The Renown is to be thoroughly examined after she brings the Prince home from Australia, and, if it is proposed to dock her, then the Malaya will probably be substituted for the India trip. Otherwise no change will be made, for much has been done to the Renown in order to fit her for the Prince and those in attendance upon him.

COURT DRESS ECONOMIES.

A friend with some experience of Court life, discussing the change that would be brought about by the giving up of long trains and feathers at the drawing-rooms, gave me some idea of the economies that it means. In the old days there were usually three Courts in the year, and one dress with some changes did for the three. The number of people who went to Court was comparatively small, and most of them knew one another. They belonged to one class in society. Now it is all altered, and a large number of ladies will be presented—wives and daughters of men who have done notable things during the war,—and the Court will be fairly representative of modern England. A Court dress used to cost about $50, and a dress now on the same scale would cost at least double, which would be a prohibitive tax on many women whom the King and Queen particularly desire to honor. Of course the Court dress had its own economies. The material was always good silk or satin. My informant believed that many ladies with a frugal mind afterwards made three dresses out of their Court dress. How it was done was a mystery, but he believed that the lining made one of them and the bodice and petticoat another, and then there was the outer dress.

HOW THE RICH MANAGE TO LIVE.

During the Budget discussions, Austen Chamberlain explained that the man with an income of $750,000 will pay $600,000 in taxes and in insurance against death duties. But the City man who is sufficiently successful to earn such an income is now usually of opinion that the risks that have to be taken to obtain it are too great in view of the fact that four-fifths have to be paid in taxation. The result is that many of the richest men are deliberately living on their capital. A man with capital of, perhaps, $2,500,000 now keeps possibly $500,000 invested in this country, which at 10 per cent. brings him in $50,000 a year. Roughly half of this is taken by the income tax authorities, leaving him a net $25,000 a year. He keeps $500,000 of his capital for current expenses over the next five years which gives him without interest $100,000 a year. The remaining $1,500,000 he invests abroad in rubber estates, tea or tobacco plantations, which take five years to develop, pay no dividend during that period, but at the end have doubled in value. He will then withdraw his capital, by this time $2,000,000, retain $500,000 or $1,000,000 to live upon and again invest the remainder in the same way. No income tax is payable upon it.

ENGLISH-MADE CIGARS.

English cigar makers are in high feather. This is because the Chancellor of the Exchequer has clapped on a 50 per cent. ad valorem duty on imported cigars, Havanas, and others. They hold the view that when the existing stocks of imported cigars are exhausted there will be a boom in their own trade, and they expect to be able under the new conditions to clear the British market of the cheap Havanas. It is certainly true that during the last ten years remarkable strides have been made in the home industry, which is chiefly centred at Leicester and Nottingham, and the advantage which the home-produced cigar will derive over the Havana from the new duty will be considerable. It must be remembered that the best British-made cigars contain a large proportion of Havana leaf (on which only the flat rate of duty will be payable), and manufacturers claim that this leaf matures much better in this country than it does in Cuba, so that they say they should be able to sell for ninepence (18 cents) a cigar equal in all respects to Havana cigars at double that price. There is one feature of this subject which has been generally overlooked. Cigar-making, it is pointed out, is an occupation eminently suitable for disabled soldiers, and as the wages in the industry are high the work should attract a large number of ex-service men who are unfitted for other occupations.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS IN IRELAND.

In two questions in the House of Commons this week addressed to the Prime Minister, Captain Cooper referred to "the lamentable position of ex-service men in Ireland," asked that the Civil Liabilities Department should be specially authorized to set the men up in business of their own, and suggested that they are boycotted by employers who dare not give them work, that the employment dole is not enough to live on even when it is taken by the income tax authorities, leaving him a net $25,000 a year. He keeps $500,000 of his capital for current expenses over the next five years which gives him without interest $100,000 a year. The remaining $1,500,000 he invests abroad in rubber estates, tea or tobacco plantations, which take five years to develop, pay no dividend during that period, but at the end have doubled in value. He will then withdraw his capital, by this time $2,000,000, retain $500,000 or $1,000,000 to live upon and again invest the remainder in the same way. No income tax is payable upon it.

AMERICAN INVASION OF LONDON.

The advance guard of the threatened American invasion of summer visitors to London has already arrived, and the Metropolis promises soon to fill rapidly with these troops of friends. The leading hotels, however, are not showing themselves over-eager to fill their books completely, as better terms may be obtainable if the squeeze for accommodation becomes steadily greater, as it will may be. A very decided proportion of the visitors will prove to be American residents of British birth or descent, who, having been "hung up" on their own side since 1914, are this year resuming the pleasant habit of visiting their home friends. This section has not been in the least perturbed by the rumor, sedulously circulated in a part of the American press in the interest of their own hotel-keepers and health resorts, that there is such a scarcity of food in England that visitors may starve unless they bring their own supplies. A young American couple whom I met the other day, and whose first visit it was, told me that their greatest surprise had been to be given sugar, as they were assured beforehand that this just now was a virtually non-existent commodity in England. They added that their authorities did nothing to assist this touring movement, the passport difficulties, already great, having been increased within the past few weeks by the necessity for obtaining a certificate allowing its holder to work in this country, either voluntarily or for payment, on specified conditions, for a limited period.

FIBRE STOCKINGS.

During the war merchants dealing with China were encouraged to import large quantities of "china grass," a fibre for which there was a great demand for the manufacture of explosives. After the Armistice the demand stopped and many firms caught with large quantities of the stuff in their warehouses were faced with serious losses. The price fell from $800 to $400 a ton, and one firm wrote off $150,000 as a dead loss. Now a method has been discovered of using this fibre in the manufacture of artificial silk stockings, somewhat similar to those made of wood pulp "silk," and the price has begun to recover, and that is why a City friend said to me, "The typists' stockings have saved me from bankruptcy."

A FARM TRAIN.

There will be several interesting features connected with an experimental farm train which the Great Eastern Railway will send on a six weeks' tour through East Anglia this month. The train promises to be a noteworthy example of the process of the conversion of the sword into the ploughshare. During the war it saw much hard service in France as an ambulance train, while this month, when it starts on its tour, it will do so as a missionary in the all-important work of the increase of food supplies. By demonstration it will endeavor to convey to the country through which it will pass profitable information on the culture of poultry and small live stock. Its big, roomy coaches, measuring 53 feet by 8 ft., are being specially fitted out for the tour, and they will in effect be model farms on wheels. One coach will be devoted to poultry, while in another a special feature will be made of the rearing of rabbits for fur and the methods of curing skins for the market. Several expert lecturers will travel in the train, and they will use a cinematograph as well as live stock to illustrate their lectures.

I AIN'T DEAD YET.
 Time was I used to worry and I'd sit around and sigh
 And think with every ache I got that I was goin' to die.
 I'd see disaster comin' from a dozen different ways
 An' prophesy calamity an' dark and dreary days.
 But I've come to this conclusion, that it's foolishness to fret,
 I've had my share o' sickness, but I Ain't Dead Yet!

Wet springs have come to grieve me an' I've grumbled at the showers.
 But I can't recall a June-time that I forgot to bring the flowers.
 I've had my business troubles, and looked failure in the face,
 But the crashes I expected seemed to pass right by the place.
 So I'm takin' life more calmly, pleased with everything I get,
 An' not over-hurt by losses, coz I Ain't Dead Yet!

I've feared a thousand failures an' a thousand deaths I've died,
 I've had this world in ruins by the gloom I've prophesied.
 But the sun shines out this mornin' an' the skies above are blue,
 An' with all my griefs an' trouble, I have somehow lived 'em through.
 There may be new cares before me, much like those that I have met,
 Death will come some day an' take me, but I Ain't Dead Yet!

Birds Don't Like Fogs.

Until flying reached the importance it has done, few people worried very much about fogs. They thought them disagreeable, and didn't go out in them more than necessary, but that was all.

Now British scientists are making a special study of fogs in order to find some quick way of preventing them, and so removing from flying what is undoubtedly its greatest danger. In fact fog is the only thing, practically, nowadays, which compels airmen to stop on the ground, for they are facing almost certain death in attempting to land in really foggy weather.

Fog has exactly the same effect on birds as it has on pilots. Nothing bewilders birds so much. When the weather is foggy pigeons will remain in their coops huddled up all day refusing to move, while sparrows seem to lose all their power of chattering and darting about looking for food. Even chickens and poultry generally won't stir when there is a heavy fog about.

It is a curious thing that while all things that fly are bewildered by fogs, most animals find their way through them with little difficulty. A horse will trot along in its right direction as though the air were perfectly clear, and will take the right turning at the Alco Hall.

Some time ago a distiller bought a beautiful estate in the country, and, after having the house rebuilt to suit his taste he sat about to give the place an appropriate name. Nothing that he could think of appealed to him, so he decided to consult a friend.

"Say, Bill," said he, going into the office of a friend, one afternoon, "I want you to help me out of a hole."

"All right, old man," responded the friend. "State the case and you will find me right on the job."

"I want a fitting name for that new place of mine," returned the distiller. "I have considered a hundred, but none of them seems to do."

"That's an easy one, old man," was the smiling response of the friend. "What's the matter with calling it 'Alco Hall'?"

For seashore wear, nothing exceeds the popularity of the cape.

Steamship Bars Do Rushing Business.

New York, June 3.—They that go down to the sea in ships these days see greater wonders than ever on the deep. This is the testimony of sea-wise mariners who have piloted liners over the Atlantic and back for many years. Since a major portion of the North American continent went dry the lure of the sea has grown more alluring than ever, and the fauna and flora of the ocean have been added to with many specimens surpassing per-war imagination.

Captains of ships have a simple explanation for the undoubted fact that passengers from this side of the pond now do more drinking at sea than they ever did before. The explanation goes like this:

"When they leave a dry country, going Europe-ward, they drink because they are so glad to be away from prohibition. When they are coming back to America from less arid lands, they drink because they are once more approaching the desert. Like the camel, they desire to store moisture away in their hump."

Since the United States went dry by constitutional amendment, many and various schemes have been proposed to beat the prohibition laws. Some visionaries have dreamed of purchasing an island well out beyond the three mile limit, and establishing there a heavenly basis where the bar would never close and sumptuary laws would never be known. Others thought of a wonderful yacht, stocked with the juice of the grape and the corn, that would cruise and cruise, and never make port except to replenish. The more practical minded did not stop to dream, but if they had the price, purchased a steamship ticket. The boats to Cuba are crowded, and so are those to Europe. On every vessel the bar steward is overworked.

Prohibition should be favored by the steamship companies. In one week 14,000 persons left New York recently for voyages. One large British liner reported the other day that its bar receipts on one crossing were $5,025, a record. Ship officers say that men who travelled dry before now take a drink, while travellers who took a drink in the old days now take three or four. This they describe as the "psychology of prohibition."

Of course, the three mile limit has to be observed, more or less. But the ship's log, if it were asked, might tell that the thirst of the parched passenger from this side is no respecter of the 18th Amendment. Long before the bar opens there is a line waiting. Some of the more thirsty make the smoke room their headquarters during the voyage lest they miss something. Men who once imbibed a solitary cocktail before dinner now miss the dinner and specialize on liquids. Instances are not rare where the visible supply of drinkables has been exhausted before the voyage ended, this resulting in scenes of infinite paths.

Mrs. Nancy Perkins Field, who has wed Arthur Ronald Lambert, Tree, is the widow of the late Henry Field, grandson of Marshal Field. Her mother was Ivy Langhorne, the sister of Lady Astor. Young Tree was a naval aviator in the war. His grandfather was Lambert Tree, at one time American Ambassador to Italy. He has an income of $127,000 a year.

John Grimshaw Wilkinson, the famous botanist of Leeds, Eng., has been blind for 42 years. He was a grocer when stricken at 22 years of age and began the study of botany then. He can name 800 different flowering plants, trees and bushes by touch. He can tell trees by the different noises they make during a rain storm. He can tell a lot about people after he shakes their hands.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A New Development in Light Sixes

Before we began experimental work on our new six-cylinder motor three years ago, we made a very thorough investigation of the light six field.

We found out just what qualities car owners desired in the power plants of their motor cars and then we designed an engine to meet these requirements.

The wisdom of our method is attested by the unanimous approval given our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model. With its first appearance, it immediately won the enthusiastic support of motorists.

And, by its dependable and economical performance, it has so clearly demonstrated its high character as an investment value that our production schedule is already proving unequal to the demand.

The "Glenbrook" is a truly remarkable development in five-passenger cars. Won't you arrange for a demonstration while our dealer is in position to meet your requirements as to delivery?
