

MINISTER MEETS FRUIT GROWERS

Hon. Martin Burrell Gives Men of Niagara District Outline of Government's Plans to Aid Agriculture

ST. CATHERINE'S, Ont., March 5.—Nearly thirty years ago Hon. Martin Burrell was a "green hand" on a fruit farm in the Niagara peninsula.

It was a triumphant return of a statesman to a place which held for him many happy recollections. He dropped the minister and became once more an enthusiastic fruit grower.

Mr. Burrell's speech was full of encouragement. He urged the fruit growers to continue setting the pace they had made.

DEATH ROLL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Mortality Among Poorer Classes in Paris Due to Unsanitary Conditions of Workmen's Dwellings

PARIS, March 6.—The heavy death-rate from consumption among the poorer classes in Paris has long been attributed to the overcrowded and consequently insanitary condition of the average workman's dwelling.

In the chamber of deputies M. Charles Dumont, ex-minister of public works, submitted a resolution claiming urgency for a measure to empower local authorities to raise and advance money for model dwellings.

At the present moment 15,000 persons, M. Dumont asserted, lived in apartments which were little better than dog kennels.

M. Dumont also quoted figures showing that the cost of building for the poorest class of dwellings had in ten years increased from $140 to $200 per square metre.

CHINESE CITY LOOTED

Cheng Ting in is Burned by Minutemen—British Missionary Killed by Soldiers

PEKIN, March 6.—Cheng Ting Fu, an important city on the railroad about 160 miles to the southwest of Peking, was added yesterday to the list of those places which have been looted and burned.

The Nanjing delegates say that President-elect Yuan Shi Kai will go to Nanjing in September. They add that the republic will be inaugurated at Nanjing, but that the cabinet will be formed here.

A missionary named F. Day, belonging to the Church of England and attached to the district of Pao Ting Fu, was killed today by mutinous soldiers.

SEVERELY INJURED

Passenger in Car That Dropped Through Saskatoon Bridge Badly Crushed Under Debris

SASKATOON, Sask., March 5.—What was thought last evening to be one of the worst accidents yet recorded on the Canadian Northern railway turns out this morning after a general survey of the situation, to have been one of the much less serious than was at first anticipated.

It was a triumphant return of a statesman to a place which held for him many happy recollections. He dropped the minister and became once more an enthusiastic fruit grower.

NEW CATHEDRAL SITE BOUGHT

Bishop McDonald Personally Negotiates Purchase of the Old Dennis Harris Property—Plans for New Edifice

The site for Victoria's new Roman Catholic cathedral has been chosen and purchased. Bishop Alexander McDonald personally negotiated the transaction last week.

Building operations on the new cathedral will not be begun at once as the present fine structure at View and Blanchard street has not yet been sold and, according to the church representatives here, is worth more than four times as much as the new site.

At the present moment 15,000 persons, M. Dumont asserted, lived in apartments which were little better than dog kennels.

M. Dumont also quoted figures showing that the cost of building for the poorest class of dwellings had in ten years increased from $140 to $200 per square metre.

WANT NO INFLUX OF ORIENTALS

Hon. Martin Burrell Addresses Canadian Club in Toronto on Position of People of British Columbia

TORONTO, March 4.—"Oriental immigration is not only a great question with us in British Columbia; it will be the dominant question of the whole empire. It is a question of ultimate dominance between the Far East and the West of the final supremacy of the yellow or the white. Remember that we on the Pacific coast are keeping watch for you in eastern Canada. We look across the water and see untold millions absolutely and fundamentally different in tradition and ideals and in social structure, and therefore we must ever be reluctant to open the door to the influx, knowing well that fusion is impossible and there can be no hope of assimilating these people to the benefit of empire."

BRAKEMAN HAS THRILLING TRIP

Curled Clear of Wreckage After Traveling at Terrific Speed on Runaway Box Car

Whizzing down the Vancouver-Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway near Mount Lehman on a runaway C. P. R. boxcar loaded with lumber, brakeman Blythe a few days ago had a painful experience that might have resulted fatally for him. Determined to stop the runaway if within his power, Blythe stood at his post, endeavoring to tighten up the brakes. After the car passed Mount Lehman road it gathered terrific speed, and near the Indian reserve left the track, tearing up the rails and reducing the framework of the car to splinters. Blythe was thrown forward clear of the wreckage, alighting upon a soft earth mound. A circumstance that probably saved his life, though two of his ribs were broken. He was taken to Sumas hospital. A wreckage train left the city for the scene of the accident soon after the wreck occurred, and it required six hours to reopen the line to traffic.

THOUGHT IT WAS CANCER

"Fruit-a-tives" Completely Restored Me SYDNEY MINES, N. S., Jan. 26th, 1910. "For many years, I suffered tortures from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago, I was so bad that I vomited my food constantly. I also suffered with Constipation. I consulted physicians, as I was afraid the disease was cancer, but medicine gave only temporary relief.

I read in the 'Maritime Baptist' about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the cures this medicine was making and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better and now I can say 'Fruit-a-tives' has entirely cured me when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say "Thank God for 'Fruit-a-tives'."

EDWIN ORAM, Sr. "Fruit-a-tives" sweetens the stomach, increases the actual quantity of gastric juice in the stomach and ensures complete digestion of all sensible food. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices.

A REVIEW

A comparison of the receipts of the year ending June 30th, 1903, that is the year preceding the advent to power of the McBride ministry, with those of the year ending March 31st, 1911, which is the last twelvemonth for which full returns are available, may prove of interest.

It was pointed out yesterday that the receipts of the first mentioned fiscal year were $2,044,630.35, of which 15 per cent was from the Dominion and 20 per cent from direct taxation, which left 65 per cent to be derived from other sources.

In the last fiscal year the receipts were $10,492,892.47, of which 5.2 per cent was from the Dominion and 9 per cent from other sources, leaving 85.8 per cent to be derived from other sources.

The "other sources" cannot be called in strictness taxes, because the payment of money in such cases is the voluntary act of the individual, who pays it because some direct benefit accrues to him on account of such payment. The most notable exception to this rule is the succession duty, which must be paid, and from which it cannot be said that there is a resultant benefit to the person paying it.

A GREAT FIELD

Two very interesting speeches have been made in London in regard to the position of the Anglican Church in Canada. One was by Earl Grey and the other by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The former was voicing his experience in this country when he said: "Western Canada today wants men who will make the church a centre of social, artistic and industrial life. It does not want friars and formalities. It wants churchmen to be free from the British way of condescending and patronizing superiority."

It is a more important field than perhaps most persons engaged in secular callings appreciate. His Grace was right when he said that this country is in a plastic state. It can be led now by the influences of Christianity, whereas by and bye it may be found to yield less readily to them. We tell laymen that great as are the material projects which our public men and business men are promoting, they are less important in their bearing upon the future of our country than the up-building of national character upon the corner-stone of Christianity.

TRADE COMMISSION

Commenting upon the appointment of Mr. George E. Foster to the Department of Commerce, the Colonist expressed the opinion that he would find in his new office scope for the great abilities with which he is endowed. Yesterday we had a telegram announcing that he would represent Canada upon the Royal Commission to be appointed in pursuance of a resolution adopted at the last Imperial Conference to investigate the trade of the Empire, and the best means of developing it.

Mr. Foster is well equipped for his new responsibility. His experience in the office of Finance Minister familiarized him with trade questions, and he has had many opportunities of broadening his field of knowledge upon all matters relating to Imperial commerce. His mental calibre eminently fits him for investigation, for he is analytical and possesses the faculty of crystallizing his views.

CHINESE HEAD-TAX

A critic of the Provincial Government says that the inclusion of $500,000 from Chinese head-tax in the estimated revenue of the province next year, implies "that the McBride administration has already bargained for the influx of 2,000 Chinese during the current year." Such a statement is grossly untrue, and the critic referred to must know it is untrue. Under the law of Canada as it exists at the present time, Chinamen may enter Canada by paying a head tax of $500, half of which is paid to this province, and the finance minister who would not take into account in estimates of his revenue the amount likely to be received from this source, would be greatly to blame. Every one having any knowledge of affairs at all knows that, labor as he may to prevent the influx of Chinese, Mr. McBride cannot hope to be successful immediately. Every one knows that the question presents its difficulties and that under any circumstances which are at all within the range of possibility, the head tax is likely to be continued for some time. If, however, it is possible to arrange before the close of the next fiscal year for the total exclusion of Chinese, or the reduction of Oriental immigration to a minimum, so that this source of revenue will be lost to the province, the public have the satisfaction of knowing that the increasing prosperity of the country will so swell the revenue that the estimates presented to the House will be exceeded by the actual receipts of the year. It follows as a matter of course that the success of Mr. McBride's exclusion policy will be the loss to the province of considerable revenue; but the province can well afford to bear the loss in view of the benefits that will flow from the suppression of Oriental competition.

A correspondent asks how we understand Judge Charbonneau's judgment in the Ne Temere case. We don't.

This winter has been very severe in the east, one of the most severe experienced in many years. It has been one of the mildest, so far, experienced here in many years.

It is to be hoped that the suffragette craze has at last reached its climax. There can hardly fail to be a reaction from the recent abominable exhibitions of violence.

The new British battleship, with her battery of 15-inch guns and a speed of 30 knots or 35 miles, will be by all odds the most tremendous engine of war the world has ever seen. We suggest that she should be called "Peace-maker."

We are inclined to think that, among the many matters that will receive the attention of the present Aldermanic Board, none will be more fruitful of good results than its contemplated action in reference to Mount Douglas Park.

Italy admits losses in the war in Tripoli amounting to nearly 900, of whom 536 were killed and the remainder are missing, and probably killed. The gain so far is merely nominal. It is beginning to look as though the permanent conquest of the country is hopeless. Any temporary successes are likely to be followed by reverses later on, and if some sort of government is established on the coast, the interior will be in a ferment for years to come.

Mr. Asquith's speech on the coal strike is the effort of a statesman. He exhibited no desire to appeal to prejudice, but preserved his balance with remarkable success under exceedingly trying circumstances. While negotiations are at a deadlock, it seems very evident that only relatively few people are responsible for the failure to reach an agreement. Once more we desire to draw attention to the remarkable manner in which the miners are acting. The first indication of violence has yet to be announced. We are glad to feel that the good sense exhibited on both sides is very likely to result at an early day in such a settlement as will be of material advantage to the whole country.

In Naples recently the families of the soldiers who are at the front in Tripoli were asked to march before a moving-picture machine, bowing and smiling. The films were to be sent to the army and be shown at night to the men, who would thus see their friends at home greeting them from the sheet. We do not see why this idea cannot be carried a little further. Let armies move before the picture machine, and let each side send its films to the Hague Tribunal, where umpires can determine which of them would win under the circumstances shown. This would be cheaper, infinitely less costly, and in the end just as satisfactory as the results reached by sending out a lot of perfect strangers to shoot at each other.

"What absolute nonsense some people talk! Here we have Mr. Hudson Maxim, whose sole claim to distinction is that he has been a successful inventor, declaring that in a very short time there will be only three nations, the United States of America, the United States of America and the United States of Africa. Mr. Maxim's opinion on this subject is not worth any more than Lord Wolseley's statement that there would soon be only two nations, the United States of America and China, and Lord Wolseley's opinion is not worth anything at all. Why not go a little further and say that there will soon be only one nation, China? The four hundred millions of that country can, theoretically, absorb the rest of us racially, individually, financially and by conquest. But this is not going to happen."

Quality Is The Best Economy

WILLS OFTEN MADE IN STRANGE WAYS

The Austrian actress who who disputed without success her grandfather's typewritten will would equally have failed had her action been brought in English or American courts instead of in Vienna. Only the other day, indeed, a typewritten will figured in a case in a British Probate Court.

The typewriter is quite commonly used in the recording of wills. Only in fiction does one read of wills tattooed on the back of a woman—as in Rider Haggard's novel, "Mr. Meeson's Will," or the secret of a treasure pricked indelibly on the skin of a living man as imagined by Jules Verne in "Captain Antifer's Millions." Yet quite as romantic is the story of the British soldier who, dying after the battle of El Teb in the Sudan campaign of 1884, scrawled with a lead bullet in the inside of his helmet the laconic instruction: "All to my wife." This incident was more than paralleled in one of the Afghan wars. A soldier on scout duty was killed, and remained undiscovered for many weeks. He was then found lying behind a rock, on the surface of which he had written in his life's blood: "I want mother to have all." The War Office, it is interesting to learn, saw that these wills were duly executed.

Curiosities in Wills

One could cite, indeed, case after case of people who chose the strangest of materials on which to inscribe their wishes for the posthumous allocation of their worldly goods. One of the most remarkable, perhaps, is that of an American lady, Mrs. Florence Wright, of Hempstead, U.S.A., who disposed of an estate of $50,000 in fifty words on an old piece of wrapping paper. Another testator, Alfred W. Brothwell, wrote his will in chalk on a manger before committing suicide at Long Sutton, in Lincolnshire. Another man, Edward George Hunt, of Woking, who left £41,026, wrote his will in a ledger, and the leaf was torn out of the book by order of the registrar. A merry Belgian who bequeathed his all to the village of Adeg on condition that £12 "be given to the fire brigade to have such a carousal as was never seen before," scratched these instructions on a piece of rusty iron with a nail. Somerset House, too, can produce examples of equally curious wills. One was found in an oven after having been baked for months, and a second had been boiled for hours with dirty linen in a copper. A rich London Bibliomaniac left a note on an old envelope: "Will in Till." There was, however, no till in the shop, and the secret of the missing will was "wrapt in mystery" until some old books, which had passed into the possession of a dealer, were searched. The will, with a £500 banknote, was found in the first volume of Tillotson's sermons.

Legal Mistakes

Judge Bacon, whose property was valued at £118,408, detailed his legacies on a sheet of blue court paper, and, for all his knowledge of the law, forgot to sign and have attested the interlineations and alterations he made. The result was that an affidavit from a solicitor and an official of the Bloomsbury County Court was needed before probate could be granted. Strangely enough, more than one notable lawyer has failed to make a properly legal will. Among them were Lord St. Helier and Lord Grimthorpe. Even a high official of the Probate Court, whose will recently came up for proof, was tripped up on the codicils which he neglected to get duly signed and attested. Lord Grimthorpe's will was a formidable document of 11,070 words, but he was easily beaten by Mr. Edward Bush, a retired Gloucester engineer, who devoted 26,000 words to the disposition of £114,813. In striking contrast, Lord Russell of Killowen condensed his wishes in regard to an estate of £150,000 into 12 lines. Lord Brampton disposed of £142,000 in 400 words. Lord Mansfield only took half a sheet of notepaper, and Mr. Alphonse Henry Strauss bequeathed £200,221 in 43 words. Sir James Fitzjames Stephens only used 13 words, but even this was verbose in comparison with the three words of the will of Mr. F. C. W. Thorne, of Streatham: "All to mother." Mr. Harriman dealt with his many millions in 66 words, and Mr. Pittcain, of Pittsburg, who was worth £3,000,000, condensed his will into twelve lines of typewriting.

Daughter Saved the Day

Lord St. Leonards, on the other hand, was supposed to have been buried with his will. However that may be, it could not be found, and its loss gave rise to one of the most famous of the many will suits which from time to time have come before the English courts. When the case came before Lord Hanmer in 1875, Miss Suggden, a daughter, was able to repeat in evidence the clause of her father's will. The judge accepted this as proof, and his decision was confirmed on appeal. This is a legal curiosity which reminds one of the more complicated problem, which a United States judge has already solved, and an English legal debating society gave an evening to a night or so ago. The case which came before the American court concerned a man who was accused of libelling a friend by speaking defamatory words into a gramophone and reproducing them for the amusement of his friends. If the defamation was spoken it was slander; if written, libel. The court held that it was libel, as the words were written by a needle in symbols which formed a permanent record. There is presumably no instance of a will being dictated to a gramophone—except in fiction—but if the American court was right such a record would be as valid as a typewritten will.

Notable Bequests

The romance and eccentricity of wills is indeed an inexhaustible subject. One recalls the request written by Nelson on board the Victory the night before Trafalgar, praying England to take care of Lady Hamilton, the neglect of which permitted her to die in poverty and distress. Not so well known, but more grim, is the story of Francis Jeffrey, a taxidermist of Grimsby, who called in a police sergeant at midnight, and almost with his dying breath dictated to him his will. One may also recall the death of Captain Hardy, of the 120th Regiment, who, falling from his horse at Laon, used his last moments to make his will, and, having signed his name, shouted, "Vive l'Armee! Vive la France!" and died.

Shakespeare's dictum—"The evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones"—slightly amended, has been illustrated in tragic fashion by a good lady of Paris, who left £8000 to whomsoever would watch by her tomb day and night for twelve months, and hold no communication with any one except the person who served the watcher with meals. One man did it for nine months, and lost his reason. The money is still unclaimed. In a different category, but not less eccentric, was the will of a Brooklyn man, who ordered that 70 pairs of trousers should be sold for the benefit of the poor, no buyer to be allowed to have more than one pair. The reason for this leaked out later, when one purchaser found sewed in the waistband a canvas bag containing ten $100 notes. A similar bag was concealed in each of the other 69 garments. From the Teddington ironmaster who bequeathed to "this inferior but educational world" the blessing of cheerfulness, to the French count who left his heirs the family honor as a legacy, and the Spanish lady who devised to his sisters, nieces, nephew, brother-in-law, cousin, a bag of sand "to rub themselves with," the record of wills teem with queer benefactions and curious provisions. There is the case of the Birmingham man, for example, who left a friend's wife 9½d with which to buy a halter, the railway official who described his wife as "a perambulating human vinegar cruet," and the gentleman who cut off his wife with a farthing because she had called him "old pig," and many other names."

Wives in Wills

Several men have bequeathed their wives to relatives or friends, but one such lady, who had been disposed of in the will, together with £500, to a brother, collected the money, and bolted with a former sweetheart to America. An American millionaire directed that his body should be given to a medical school for dissection, and a French countess ordered her heart to be cut out and preserved in an urn. Perhaps the most curious legacy of all was the essay on how to conduct a public sale attached to the will of a well-known printer, while it would be difficult to discover in the realm of romance a more pathetic story than that of the English barrister who revealed in his will, his marriage many years before, to his servant. She refused the ease to which her position as wife entitled her, and, in an ideally happy married life, acted to the end as his servant.

POETIC PRESS AGENT

The American Press agent, the gentleman who, for a fee all too small, considering his accomplishments, sees to it that actors and actresses, pushing business men, and many other ambitious people are accorded what they consider a fair share of attention in the daily newspapers, does not always reach the heights of rhetoric achieved by Mr. William Marion Reedy, the agent who is responsible for keeping the name of Miss Maude Adams before the public. His latest effort deserves to be known on the other side of the Atlantic, where there is still much to be learned in the art of "writing up" a theatrical celebrity, writes the New York correspondent of the London Standard.

Miss Maude Adams is, of course, one of the leading actresses of the United States. She has been before the public for some 25 years, and this is how her devoted Press agent writes of her in this week's papers:

"Here is a woman of the stage whose every movement, glance, tone, smile, or tear proclaims that woman is a thing for honor, not vile use. There is no suggestion of mawkish arising at the mention of her name. There is no association of her in thought with absinthe or creme-de-menthe. The tragic touch is on her face, but it is not the tragedy of the fleshly passion, nor the worse tragedy of chill genius simulating passion."

Miss Adams may not like the following sentence, if she should happen to see it: "There is that in her face that makes you glad she is not a beauty. It is a yearning face, soft, pure, innocent, yet of an unearthly sapiently withal. With some such face the Blessed Damozel might have looked out from Heaven, the while the holy fervor in her breast 'made the bar she leaned on warm.' 'Tis a holy wistfulness in her glance, and the trustfulness of her voice is of little children crying, lonely, lost in some daedal night. Her smile is full of a charm of sadness that is older than the world—the sadness of unfinished things, of foiled hopes, of vanished dreams. Just a shade here, there, on her lip or cheek, and the smile transmutes to tears."

Just a hint of a tone here, there, in her laughter," proceeds Mr. Reedy, his muse now in fine swing, "and it is the cry of youth whose soul is torn out with its illusions and trampled on by Fate and Fate. Is she playful—it is with a melancholy undertone. In I know not what manner this woman—perhaps I should call her girl?—never fails to make me think of old roses, old songs, old landscapes, that I saw and knew under circumstances pleasant, but now sad in remembrance. Something about her ever brings back to mind the fact that there is in life and in memory a 'bitterness of things too sweet.' There's an ancient atmosphere about her, as if she were some creature many million years young, joyous while endeavoring to hide some wondrous secret. Her simplicity is so rare and fine that you scarce can help feeling that she is untrammelled by even original sin. The pathetic note about her is the same thing we feel when we see a 'little white hearse go glimmering by.' Youth and old are strangely intimated in her glance. She is a child—and yet the antique flavor is in her childishness, as if she had somehow come down to us untouched, untainted by time from some wide, wild, open woodland place of the classical world, wherein one walking might easier meet a god or goddess than a man or a woman."

"This feeling that you have before her, under her spell, is an eerie one, but not unpleasant; not more so, in any event, than is the emotion that arises at remembrance of especially delectable days in one's own vanished youth. I care not whether she be in one of her histrionic flights—always there is that quaint suggestion of her intimate relationship to something young and sweet and pure, a great while since, a long, long time ago. The personal charm is all-pervasive. It is child-like, and yet so worldly-wise and worldly-weary. It is essentially spiritual—a quality I recollect never to have felt of observed in any other woman of the footlights. This isn't genius—say you? Well, what is genius, anyhow? Whatever it be, Maude Adams lifts you out of your work-a-day self into your better self, makes you forget and remember and dream and live in a hidden, inner world of romance. Rostand's poetry falls as naturally from her lips as Shakespeare's from Rosalind's or Imogen's."

RECORD IN CHEAP TRAVEL

Not everybody would care to set out on a tour through five European countries with a purse of only $90 (£18); but Mr. William Grant a Chicago student leaves London tomorrow after having accomplished the feat, says the London Standard in a recent issue.

"I guess it could be done on £10, if one were really careful," he said yesterday. "Anyhow, I've seen London, Paris, Holland, Germany and Switzerland, and I'm still able to pay my steerage fare home. I had six weeks to do it and it will take me just to the end of the seventh. It has been a good holiday, and I've learned a lot of geography I had forgotten; but of course I had to rough it just a bit."

Passage on a Cattle Boat

Roughing it has not taken away the enjoyment of the holiday from Mr. Grant. He fed cattle on board a leisurely tramp steamer and it was the saving of the Atlantic fare that made the tour possible. Indeed cattle boats have become the royal road to Europe for American students who want to sail free. At the Ocean Employment Office at Manhattan men are occasionally offered a free passage in return for their services. Every vacation sees a covey of students in the United States at the offices, and Mr. Grant soon found himself aboard a tramp steamer, handling a bucket and mop like a thorough going cattle man. He admits that he enjoyed that trip. The work was hard, but it was a change, and in the appointed time he arrived in London and sent his trunk along to the Young Men's Christian Association, where it was deposited

THE STEWART CASE IS NOW AGITATING BRITAIN

Interest in the case of Mr. Bertrand Stewart, sentenced to three years' imprisonment in a German fortress for alleged espionage, continues unabated in London. Details of the trial are recalled, and make most interesting reading. It is evidently the intention of the press to push the matter to a conclusion.

Mr. Stewart is known in Germany as the "gentleman spy," and he was accused of attempting in 1911, in Bremen, Heligoland and Wilhelmshaven, to obtain information the secrecy of which is essential to the interests of the German Empire, "with intent to communicate the same to a foreign Power."

Mr. Stewart was arrested at Bremen on August 2 last, and was held in confinement awaiting trial until January 31.

The trial opened with a preliminary public hearing. The President cautioning the prisoner as to the necessity of speaking the truth asked him to give a short statement of his life and career. The prisoner's counsel pointed out that Mr. Stewart was not obliged to answer any questions put by the Court if he preferred not to, but the accused declared that he could speak quite openly.

Then, speaking in English, the prisoner gave a very full account of himself, his words being interpreted into German for the benefit of the Court. He stated that he was born in London in 1872. He followed the profession of a lawyer and was a member of the Church of England. He was a senior lieutenant in the West Kent Yeomanry, and had held his commission for 16 years. He was fond of sport and was a great traveller, having visited every European country with the exception of Russia. Twenty years ago he visited Dresden, Berlin, and Leipzig, and since then he had been in Germany five or six times.

Full as were the prisoner's statements, they were not sufficient for the Court, and the President asked a number of questions, displaying particular interest in the prisoner's social standing and family connections, to all of which questions Mr. Stewart gave most frank and detailed answers. On being asked if his income was not very high, he replied that it was £2,000 yearly.

The President—What is your fortune?—Before my arrest my capital was about £12,000.

Denied Being Spy in Africa

You were in South Africa?—Yes, during the Boer War. I wrote a small book on my experiences.

Were you a scout or a spy during the Boer War? I deny most emphatically that I was ever a spy in the ordinary sense of the word. I never had anything to do with the Intelligence Department, and during the war I only secured information as every other cavalryman does.

The prisoner declared that he had only a very slight knowledge of naval matters. He could distinguish a merchant vessel from a war vessel, but not an armored cruiser from a battleship. He only knew what he had read in the newspapers with regard to German merchant vessels being converted into war vessels in time of war.

The President—But every German child knows that merchantmen are attached to the navy.

until he returned from the continent. Naturally all the sight seeing in London was done on foot. A room was hired off Euston Road for 5s. a week, and the tourist was converted to a sympathy with those who advocate only two meals per day. For nearly a week he stepped round London, craned his neck to view St. Paul's, looked down from the top of the Monument, became vastly interested in Westminster Abbey, saw through the Houses of Parliament on a free day, and was grievously disappointed because Buckingham Palace was not a more imposing structure.

Bargaining for a Tour

Then having exhausted London and himself also he hid him to a tourist agency and explained that he wished to see France, Holland, the Rhine and Lucerne. "I want to go third class, and I can afford to give you £6 for the round journey." The tourist agency considered the matter, and Mr. Grant sailed for the Hook of Holland with five more dollars in his pocket than he had reckoned upon. A day was spent in Rotterdam, a few hours in Cologne. He had a two hours' train ride along the banks of the Rhine, pushed on to Heidelberg, and landed at Lucerne before going on to Geneva. Two days were spent at the latter place, and then the train bore him to Paris. At all the other places he had lived economically, but in Paris he indulged in the riotous extravagance of three meals a day. He sat in a boulevard sipping wine at the small tables and rubbing shoulders with his fellow countrymen who had come to Europe on luxurious liners and spent as much in one day as he had paid for half his holiday.

Cure for Overfed Millionaires

"I got a shave in Paris," remarked the economical traveller reflectively. "Mind you I don't say it was all comfort. It wasn't. But it was good fun, and that's why I came. They tell me that one of our millionaires has overeaten himself. The best cure for that is to give him £18, and make him do what I did."

The method adopted by Mr. Grant to stretch out his finances was peculiar. Bitter experience in London taught him that there were many "extras" which threatened to re-

The accused—I congratulate Germany on educating her children better than we do.

The President then closely questioned the prisoner at length on his social relations, and asked if the seven clubs of which the prisoner was a member were "exclusive."

The accused—I hardly know what is meant by "exclusive." I mixed with my relatives and friends.

You are supposed to have connections with the English Court.

The accused—I am not related to the Court and so far as my relationships are concerned I do not see that I am called upon to discuss them here. I am standing in the dock, as it were, before all Europe, but if the President wishes for information I have no objection to writing it for him on paper. My relatives had no idea that I had gone to Germany, not even my wife, and none of them would have agreed with me if I had wished to perpetrate espionage.

The resident—Will you tell us if you are a member of a very rich and respected family?

I hope my family is respected. I am the nephew of Lady Kensington, whose husband was Queen Victoria's Chamberlain and Chief of the Royal Household. My mother belongs to the family of Johnstone-Douglas.

The prisoner then answered many other questions relating to his mode of travelling, first or second-class, the hotels he stayed at, how much money he carried with him, etc. He also stated that before joining the Yeomanry he was for four years a member of an infantry volunteer regiment when at Eton and Oxford, but he insisted that his military superiors had absolutely no knowledge of his journey to Germany, and he had not even obtained permission to leave the country, as he should have done according to military regulations—a fact which he now much regretted.

Protest Against Excluding Public

At this point the public prosecutor asked for the exclusion of the public. The prisoner protested somewhat vehemently against this, but the President overruled him, and after the court had spent an hour in considering the question, the exclusion of the public was decided upon for the remainder of the hearing. The court was then cleared. The verdict will probably be given on Friday.

Continuing to answer the President at the secret session, Mr. Stewart said that he certainly was not given to luxury. He lived pretty well up to his income. His wife had money. His soldiering cost him about £300 or £400 a year. He sometimes travelled first and sometimes second class, and in England often third class on the railways. He admitted that he usually went to the best hotels and took a larger sum of money when travelling than he expected to spend. His health was excellent but he could not say that he felt well after his six months in prison. He had suffered from bad headaches, but did not wish to dwell on that. He was quite strong enough to face the fatigue of a trial. Mr. Stewart further stated: "I should like to say that if your distinguished country attacks mine, I hope to be among those who will take part in the war." He also stated unasked by the Court that it was his intention in the case of his own regiment not participating in a great war to serve with another cavalry regiment.

reduce his "wad" so he always made the seller state his or her price, and then proceeded to cut it down. Sometimes he had a difficult ten minutes with the natives, but the knowledge that he had no money to spare hardened his heart when the bargaining stage was in progress. He left London on the outward journey with no luggage. In the pockets of his overcoat (which he carried over his arm) were stowed a clean suit of underclothes, a pair of socks, a comb and a toothpick. The trip he regards as a triumph of economy and barter, but there is one flaw in it. At Cologne he was outmatched by an old woman who made him pay 5s. for his room, while he contended that the price agreed upon was only half that amount.

Overdid It—Mr. Labouchere was a "bonny fighter," but sometimes his habit of dropping into personalities hurt his own side. A correspondent sends an example. We were fighting a tough electoral battle, he writes: Liberal hopes were running high, and Mr. Labouchere, the idol of the Radicals in the constituency, and expected soon to attain Cabinet rank, was invited as a "star" speaker. His appearance, wearing the turn down blue and white striped collar which he invariably affected, was greeted with boisterous enthusiasm. But soon we "caught a chill." Here is how our "star" began: "Well, I knew your Tory candidate's father very well, and how he has come to be parent of such an arrant fool as his son I can't for the life of me make out."

"That's done us," said the Liberal candidate, sotto voce; and it had.—Manchester Guardian.

Twisted Names—"Rotten Row" in London is a contraction of "Route du Roi." There are hundreds of such Anglicizations in America. Out in Colorado is a river called by the Spanish "Purgatoire," which has been twisted into "Picket Wire." On the upper Mississippi, near Lyons, are some bottom lands called the "Plum Tar Bottoms"—what is left of the name given to them by the early French settlers of the "Pommes-de-terre Bottoms."—Chicago Tribune.

MANITOBA BILL IS DISCUSSED

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Offers Amendment, Which is Voted Down—Five French Conservatives Support It

OTTAWA, March 8.—The debate on the Manitoba boundaries bill was resumed today. Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that the bill was an implementing of Conservative pre-election promises.

Mr. Lamarche said that he had voted for Sir Wilfrid Laurier's amendment, but not for Sir Wilfrid's reasons. In his opinion the terms were unfair and unjust, not because of any conditions in the bill, but because of the absence of other clauses which he judged absolutely necessary.

Mr. Monk's View Mr. Monk stated that the Manitoba school question was not for all time in 1870 and must be eliminated from the subject. The act of 1876 had never applied to Keewatin district, that having been organized in the following year.

Mr. Pelletier chaffed Sir Wilfrid Laurier for his retreat to the lines of Torres Vedras. "I never was there in my life. I shall not be there tonight."

Mr. Pelletier went into the history of the Manitoba school question. He contrasted with great effect Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speeches in Quebec, where he promised a coercion bill if necessary.

"That's too thin," said Mr. Pelletier. "You want to give the Toronto Globe a chance to come out and say that Roblin has purchased the consent of the Roman Catholic church. You can't have it."

bill of asking our political friends to go down to defeat to benefit the people who have no policy of their own." He had been told, he said, that he should have resigned. "And I would have been a big man in Quebec for several years," he added.

FORT GEORGE STATION

Application for Order is Heard by Dominion Railway Commission To Be On Reserve

OTTAWA, March 5.—Before the railway board today application of the Natural Resources Security Co. of Vancouver, B. C., for a direction from the railway board that a station be erected at or near Fort George when the railway reaches that point, was heard.

The board stated that there could be no question as to the location of the station on the Indian reservation, that being in the grades, it could not possibly be within three or four thousand feet of the Fraser river.

Mr. A. Pringle, K. C., appeared for the Natural Resources Security Co., Ltd. George Lynch-Staunton, K. C., appeared for the large private interests. Clive Pringle appeared for the Fort George board of trade and settlers and A. E. Tripp, K. C., appeared for South Fort George interests.

PREMIER ASQUITH ON COAL STRIKE

His Statement in House of Commons Presents Elaborate Minimum Wage Question

LONDON, March 5.—The House of Commons was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Premier Asquith's statement on the coal strike. He reviewed the striking coal miners and the mine owners' insistence on the fact that the government had been closely watching from the beginning the various stages of the controversy.

Mr. Asquith affirmed that the government's acceptance of a minimum wage was subject to two conditions: First, that the wage must vary district by district. Second, that it must be accompanied by safeguards protecting the employers against abuse, and providing the means of settling the output which in the long run would be determined by all concerned and to the industry itself.

was not idle. They left strongly that the best way of fixing a reasonable minimum wage in the various districts was by agreement between the parties and he still hoped that that might be done. He had spoken of the possibility of a tariff, but he was not in favor of it.

MAKURA FROM THE ANTPODES

Canadian-Australian Liner Reached the Outer Wharf Yesterday Morning from Sydney and Way Ports

The R. M. S. Makura, Capt. John Gibb, of the Canadian-Australian line, arrived from Sydney, Auckland, Suva and Honolulu yesterday morning. She was accompanied by a cargo of about 1,400 tons, after a voyage during which several fresh gales with high seas were encountered.

WILL NAME THE OTTAWA RIVER

Expected that New Canadian-Australian Steamer Will be Named After Canadian Capital—Will Burn Oil

According to advice brought by the Makura the new 13,500-ton steamer being built on the Clyde for the Canadian-Australian route will probably be named the Ottawa, Mohawk and Alberta. The steamer is to be an oil-burner and arrangements will probably be entered into shortly to equip the Makura and the new liner with oil-burners.

PATHETIC INCIDENT AT OUTER WHARF

A pathetic meeting took place when the steamer Makura reached the outer wharf yesterday morning when Mrs. Kilbourn, of Tacoma, met her daughter, Miss Lily Peterson, who was abducted by her father some years ago, and was located a few months ago in the search through the efforts of the British consular service.

Mrs. Kilbourn was divorced from her former husband, Peterson, at Tacoma nine years ago, and he went to the school and carried off his daughter, sending word that he had her up-country to her destination. The police failed to trace Peterson, and after some years the search was abandoned.

Strike Caused Delay. Strike trouble, followed by the L. W. W. strike, delayed C. N. P. construction in Vancouver. The strike in the lumber industry has now been made an end of, however, and work is continuing. The strike in the bridge and timber and silver strikes have been completed and there is no longer any danger of track-laying being delayed at either end.

The cargo brought by the steamer was as follows: For Victoria, 354 cases onions, 75 crates frozen rabbits, 1,045 packages frozen meat, 60 cases sardines, 700 packages sardines, 51 cases honey, 13 packages sardines.

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—Judge Conroy, in the superior court Saturday, decided in favor of defendant in one of the suits brought by Isaac Ryder of Kansas City and 31 eastern stockholders of the Salt Lake Oil Company, against J. E. Hamberg, the Salt Lake Oil Co., and several other defendants, including many of the most prominent oil operators of the country.

HINDU WOMEN

Legal Battle to Determine Their Right to Remain in Canada is Begun at Vancouver

VANCOUVER, March 4.—The initial step in the legal battle which certain prominent Vancouver Hindus intend to fight on the question of the wives of Hindu residents being admitted to British Columbia was taken this morning, when application was made by G. E. McCrossan for habeas corpus on behalf of the wives and children of Balwant Singh and Bhag Singh. The former is a priest in the Sikh temple and the latter is manager of Guru Anand Mining Co.

WILL VISIT AUSTRALIA

Vancouver Cadets Obtain Permission From Militia Authorities For Trip to Antipodes

KELOWNA, B. C., March 4.—A half-breed named Dave McDougall, whose home is at Duck Lake, was murdered near the Indian reservation at Westbank last night. His body was found on the trail leading from Kelowna to Westbank about seven miles from here with a bullet hole in the back of the head.

FATHER'S LONG TRAMP

Adventurous Journey Through Queen Charlotte to Select Lands for Flemish Colonists

John Devlin, a well known interior trader, was found dead on the trail twelve miles out of Merritt a few mornings ago. Exposure to cold and exhaustion had proven too much for his constitution. On the Friday Devlin had left his ranch for the purpose of taking a horse to Aspen Grove.

Irish descent. He was a popular man with all his neighborhood. Deane Lake Gold Field. Albert R. Young, J. A. Pierce and their party, who left Victoria not long ago with the intention of spending a year or more if necessary in investigating the placer wealth of the Deane lake field, as chronicled in the Colonist at the time of their departure hence—have arrived at Prince Rupert, and at last advice were there awaiting opportunity to press on.

WANT LOAN DEPARTMENT The associated boards of trade of the Okanagan have forwarded to the government here a strongly worded resolution in favor of the government organizing a loan department, and advancing money to actual settlers at low rates of interest.

DUNCAN TO ERECT $20,000 SCHOOL

It having been adjudged necessary to erect a new public school building at Duncan, the minimum cost of which is placed at $15,000, the provincial government has made a special assisting grant of $10,000. Taking advantage of this aid, the board is now considering the erection of a $20,000 school, which will be designed to effectually meet prospective as well as pressing immediate necessities.

SUPFRAGETTES ARE SENTENCED

Addition of Hard Labor to Imprisonment Has Discouraging Effect on Window-Smashing Brigade

LONDON, March 5.—Two of the suffragettes who took part in last night's smashing campaign in Victoria Street in the vicinity of the House of Parliament, were sentenced by the Bow Street magistrate today to two months' imprisonment at hard labor. The magistrate has 150 cases against suffragettes still to deal with.

FOUND MURDERED

Body of Okanagan Half-breed Discovered on Trail, with Bullet Hole in Back of the Head

The missionary priests of the Roman Catholic church have never enjoyed the name of feather-bed soldiers of the church militant, and true to the type of their faith, Rev. Father Hartman, who has just returned from an adventurous journey through the Queen Charlotte islands, undertaken with a view to the selection of land upon which a number of Flemish colonists propose to make homes.

WHONNOCK MURDER CASE

Brothers of Victim Seek to Reopen Case in Kelowna

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The result of the consent of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, provisional president of China, to the retention of the capital of China at Peking will be the establishment of a coalition cabinet as well as making that city the headquarters of the Republican party and the assembly which has been in session at Nanking.

PEKING STILL CHINA'S CAPITAL

Such was the substance of dispatches received at the state department today from the American minister at Peking. Dr. Sun's Consent. NANKING, March 5.—In an effort to restore order and inaugurate a stable government, it is understood that Dr. Sun Yat Sen and his advisers have decided to go to Peking and make that city, for the present at least, the capital of the new republic.

CITY OF EVERETT SUNK IN COLLISION

Tank Vessel Was Well Known Here—Ran in Coal Trade Many Years Ago

Advised were received yesterday from Wilmington of the wreck of the whaler-back tank steamer City of Everett, after collision with the British steamer Kensington, Savannah, for Liverpool, 40 miles off the Frying Pan shoals. The Everett sank in five minutes. Capt. Bates and 19 men taking to the boats.

MADRID, of crime in Spain. A woman, whose name is not given, was killed in a village of a man of respect, gamblers and 20th. Penalists were not, and his father, who was the husband of the woman, reported that a quarrel, that satisfied the set on foot.

After being engaged in the coal trade for a time the City of Everett was sent to Fanning, and this coast to make a voyage to India with a cargo of wheat sent to famine sufferers. Of late years she has been used by the Standard Oil company on the Atlantic coast in the oil trade and recently has been towing barges for the company along the coast.

LIBERALS HONOR MR. GRAHAM

BROCKVILLE, Ont., March 4.—The Liberals of Brockville tonight tendered a public reception to Hon. G. E. Graham, the victor in the South Renfrew by-election, and Thomas Low, ex-M. P. who resigned to make way for Mr. Graham in that constituency. The two were escorted from the courthouse square to the new theatre by a band and torchlight procession. Messrs. Graham and Low were presented with an illuminated address signed by the officers of the Liberal Association, and replied with spirited speeches.

MAKES APPEALS TO REPUBLICANS

Decides on Order to Meet in Ohio

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—President Taft's trip through northern Ohio and to Chicago probably will be one of the hardest and one of the busiest the President has taken in months. Republican leaders also believe it will be the most important. No direct reply to Col. Roosevelt's Columbus speech will be made by the President, nor will he go into personalities. He will have many opportunities to make political speeches, and it was the general belief today that he would accept them. The President will leave Washington late today, reaching Toledo on Friday afternoon.

HUMAN SACRIFICE

Religious Fanatic Buries Young Hindu Girl in Pit and is Sentenced to Death

CALCUTTA, March 4.—An extraordinary case of human sacrifice has resulted in sentence of death being passed at Mirzapur, Southern India, on a Hindu named Raghunandan. A party of Hindu girls was gathered in the forest when the prisoner was taken down and the others away. He picked his victim up and carried her, screaming, to a pit which he had dug. Crying three times, "Hail, Mahabir! Hail, Black Goddess! Behold your sacrifice!" he thrust the girl into the pit, rolled stones upon her, and covered her with earth. When the victim's parents arrived the prisoner had filled in the pit and was trampling down the earth. The girl was dead. The prisoner was found upon examination to be quite sane, and was sentenced to death for murder.

PROTEST AGAINST AERIAL FLEETS

International Arbitration League Issues Memorial on Subject—Conference Discusses Drinking Habits

LONDON, March 4.—The International Arbitration League has issued a memorial protesting against the use of aerial vessels in war. "We appeal to all governments," the memorial states, "to foster by every means in their power an international understanding which shall preserve the world from what will add to the horrors of the present hideousness of warfare. Without universal agreement no single power can stay its hand; every day of ingenuity and every pound of money spent diminishes the chance of such an agreement. There are many who argue that, because men fight on earth, and water they may just as well fight in the air. The answer is: There has never yet been a moment when it was practically possible to ban the war machines of earth and water. There is a moment when it is practically possible to ban those of the air. That moment is now—before the use of these machines is proved, before great vested interests have formed. Governments are trustees not only of the present, but of the future of mankind. Fortunate had placed this moment in the hands of the governments of today. We pray of them to use it wisely."

POLICE SUSPECTED

Members of Force at Wilhelmshaven Thought to be Concerned in Plot to Sell Naval Secrets

BERLIN, March 4.—The police at Wilhelmshaven, the most important German naval stronghold on the North Sea, who are to be transferred bodily on account of cases of suspected complicity in an espionage plot, are to be replaced by officers from other towns. According to the newspapers the police superintendents in various Westphalian towns have been asked to submit the names of men whom they can recommend. The transfer is the result of the arrest of three Wilhelmshaven policemen last November on a charge of the theft of naval secrets and of containing the same to England and other foreign powers. One rumor current at the time was to the effect that the policemen had entered into a plot with England to blow up Wilhelmshaven on Christmas Eve. Fireman M. Moore was recently killed and driver A. Bellek recently severely injured recently when a C. P. R. freight on which they were running plunged into a rockslide in the locality of Fisherman. The entire police force of Kelowna—consisting of Chief Jan McRae and Constable Fitzpatrick—has resigned.

ENO'S FRUIT SALTS, 60c

Smart Millinery From Paris, London and New York

Our First Showing of Spring Models Today

Knowing the exacting demands of the women of Victoria, we have endeavored to present only such styles as will appeal to discriminating tastes. Clever, exclusive and original conceptions, that portray the official word of what is to be seen this season are here, and we invite you to inspect them.

This year we have a larger and better appointed show room than ever, in which to display the models without confusion, and as there are many radical changes in the styles this showing should be of great interest.

The fact that our buyers are constantly in the fashion centres, enables us to secure the newest styles as fast as they come out, and the merchandising economies of the department store makes it possible to offer the very best goods at prices that even the most economical woman can afford.

Smart---Strictly Tailored Suits at $25 and $35

IF WE HAVEN'T YOUR SIZE IN STOCK WE'LL MAKE YOU ONE TO MEASURE AT THESE PRICES

The cut on this page is an accurate drawing of this suit but unfortunately we cannot reproduce it here to give the credit that is due to the garment. You can have your choice from plain serges or fancy suitings, and although the prices are so modest, the workmanship is the same high standard that you expect from the best custom tailors. They have 26-inch jacket and the fronts and seams are finished with ¼-inch double stitching. The skirts are six gored and have panels front and back. This is the only store in Victoria where you can get strictly tailored—not factory tailored—suits at a price that is no higher than the average ready-to-wear garments. Ask to see them and you will be pleased with the value they represent.

Exceptional---Strictly Tailored Suits at $35, $40 and $42

REPRODUCTIONS AND ADAPTATIONS OF SPRING MODELS BY THE BEST FASHION ARTISTS

We invite particular attention to these three groups of suits because they excel our previous efforts to have the best suits in Victoria at these prices. Every suit is guaranteed strictly tailored, and we are quite sure they are head and shoulders above any others that have yet been seen in the city.

Many styles are here, including the new ideas of what severely tailored suits should be, also those that are trimmed. Many have the modified cutaway coats that are so jaunty.

You can't get a fair idea of the quality and handsome appearance of these suits without you see them and we invite your inspection whether you purchase or not.

Many other styles and prices to choose from.

A Make-Room Sale in the Carpet Department ---Friday

We have to close out various lines to make room for the new goods that are arriving for the spring trade, and although we intended reserving these goods to sell in the regular way, we can't, space will not permit it.

Our buyer has ordered rather heavily, he had so many rare opportunities to save on the actual cost freight, that he could not resist them, and now we are at a loss to find convenient storage.

However, it's an ill wind that blows no man good, and we shall gain by demonstrating the money-saving opportunities that this store offers to you.

Wilton and Axminster Rugs—For a rich appearance and hard wearing qualities these carpets are hard to beat, in fact it is only the expensive Oriental rugs that are out of the reach of the average person that can equal them, much less surpass their excellent qualities. Many shades and patterns are here to choose from. Sizes 9 x 9 feet and 9 x 10½ feet sold regularly at $30 and $35 each. Friday's special sale price, ... $16.75
