The Boers were, repulsed at Wopener and heally withdrow from the neighborhood having the work of the work Boers ver. repulsed a two-pear and healty withdrow from the neighborhood in histo, probably through fear of having their retreat northwards out off by the British. The news from Bloemfentein has been tame and there are no indications of an immediate advance by Lord Roberts and the main army in the direction of Protoria. The chief cause of the delay and of the suspension of operations so far as the British are concerned is said to be the lack of horses. A surprise party burst on Buller's forces at Ladysmith whom the Boers auddenly unmasked six or soven guns and bombarded the town for soveral hours. Altayether the Boer forces are very much divided as are the British forces, but the advance on Protoria of a powerful army with its lines of communication well protected will result in drawing in the various Boer commandoes and concentrating them at some strong place of defence on what will probably be the British line of advance. This place sooms to be Kroonsrad, north of Bloewforten, awaiting the British advance. Mafe. advance. This place soums to be Irrocusted, north of Bloewichten, where the main army of the Boers is awaiting the British advance. Mafeking to the surprise of overybody still holds out, though its brave defender, Colonel Baden-Powell, is reported dead by the Boers, which report, however, has not yet been confirmed. The plucky little garrison is said to be suffering from hunger and is screly pressed by the repeated attacks of the Boers, who are apparently bent on capturing the place. Winston Churchill who has honestly faced the situation from the beginning and at all times, and who was a prisoner with the Boers, but effected a plucky escape, claims that the war is not nearly over and that a force of at least 250000 men will be necessary to enable the British to reach Frestoris: our the other hand the Times. force of at least 250000 men will be neces-sary to enable the British to reach Pretoris; on the other hand the Times draws conclusions that the Beers are becoming heartily sick of the war and are only waiting for an excuse to dis-continue it.

There is in England an over increasing in an over increasing in an over increasing in the War.

It was an over increasing in the War.

It was a citions and tactices the actions and tactices displayed by the British Generals in South Africa. Even Lord Roberts has not escaped, as may be seen from the tone of English Papers which are filled with the severest criticisms yet made on the generalship shown by the British commanders. The Capture of Breadwood's column comes in for some scathing comment and is laid at the English people are chronic grumblers; but it must be admitted that for once they have had ample reason for indulging that national failing. British Generalship has attracted the attention and criticism of the world—for its inefficiency and pronounced failures. Poor Gatacre, after one stern set-back by the Boers, inaugurated a policy of masterly inactivity that called down upon his devoted head the ire of the Army Office and led to his ignominious withdrawal from active service. The meeverly mactivity that called down upon his devoted head the ire of the Army Office and led to his ignominious withdrawal from active service. The men who have pleased the British public are those who held on to their ports at Ladysmith, Kimberley — and yet — at Matcking. On the Continent generally, millitary men fail to see much that is attractive. Inspiring or brilliant in British operations in South Africa, which still seems to be the grave of military reputations. Public opinion is also changing towards the war in the United States; where the people, never very much Pro-British are becoming more Pro-Boer. It is predicted that the Pro-Boer sentiment will increase there as the Presidential election approaches. Of course, the Irish in America are blamed largely for the growth and development of Pro-Boer sentiment, and this probably because they make no scoret of the direction in which their sympathics run. Canadians in general take the most cheerful and hopeful view of the situation, probably because of the wide-apread feelings of pride and satisfaction due to the compionous bravery of the Canadian troops in South Africa, as well as to the national spirit of cheerfulness and hopefulness. picuous bravety of the Cauadian troops in South Africa, as well as to the national opirit of cheerfulness and hopefulness.

It needs no demonstration to establish the trulsm that beauty which approaches nearestitud's beauty is the highest beauty. His essence is the ultraste measure of beauty, as of first hand poodules. There is not question here of the hearty which pleases most the human compound, but of the beauty which absolutely ranks size. While we are in the bedy we next no the bedy, we are to weak to rest sweetly in the keon appear and of the intellectual, of the spiritually but beauty is as an its home. In these valleys we for ever mistake the agreeable for the beautiful. "The tree order of going or of being led by others to the things of low," said Plate in the "Symposium," "is to use the beauties of earth as stops, along which we mount upward for the sake of the higher beauty."

We learn as we go to press that the condition of His Graco, Archbishop O'Connor, is favorable, and in the opinion of his physician, there are indications of improvement.

The Church in Art.

It is one of the glories of the Church that it has seconed no human gift, condemned no form of genius. Whatever individuals may have done the secone of its action and influence, its general spirit has been really Catholic. It has ever looked upon the Christian revolution as the full manifestation of the divine reason, which by word or deed seeks to make itself provall in the history of the race; not to thwart or cripple human activity, but to consocrate liquad to give it higher alms.

itself provail in the history of the race; not to thwart or cripple human activity, but so conscrate it is and to give it higher all the second of the second of the second of the second of apparont contradictions, there is harmony between Christian faith and acione. Its appeal is to reason and confidence, not to force. It preserved the ancient literature; it encouraged men of learnings and goines. During the period known as the Ronaissance, in which the modern mind first awakened, Italy led the other nations, and in Italy the Popes were the chief promoters of the new culture. It refused to permit learning to become the appanage of a caste or an aristocracy, but fostered talent, whether it was found in the prince or peasant. It made ability and not or peasant. It was a shilly and not birth the test of worth; choosing its rulers from the lowest classes of society if it discovered there is ablest most, whose teaching, open to all all was a world-wide proparts or the alless most, it was in itself a people's understanding the capacity and equality and modern assection. #### How Do You Treat Your Sister.

How De You Treat Your Sister.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a boy to be polite to some other follow's sister. Then why is it some of them find it so hard to remember to be qually contreous to their sisters? Many a boy is rude to his sister without really realizing it in other words, he forgets to be polite. Then sgain he is straid of being dubbed a sissy if we should be caught paying some attention to his sister. It is a badhabit for any one to get into—that of saving one's polite ways, frontaiders.

If she sake you a question don't answer her in a rude or carcloses manner saif you thought she did not know what she was taking about and wasn't worth listening to.

Don't teese her or make fun of her in any way to hurt her feelings. You wouldn't do that to some other girl.

You can just bank all you have on the boy that is kind and thoughtful to his own, for you may be sure he will dove lop into the right sort of a man that it bound to win the respect and affection of every one.

A friend has sent me a copy of a Montreal paper containing the report of the debate on the budget in the Dominion Parliament at Ottawa on March 30. The report before me is in a partizan newspaper and is set off with a partizan newspaper and is set off with a partizan neading intimating how "An Artistic castigation was administered to "Sir Richard by Sir Charles." I have read through the report and find the disenseion was not one so much of policios as of personalities. It was said that Gladstone's budget speeches read like romances. I think myself that budget speeches offer great opportunities tract or rators, Oae can have no grander them than the

The occasion of it was an attack on the Brown family by the "Beauty of Carleton" alias "Bill" Powell and "John A." one night in the last united Canadian parliament meeting in Toronto. The "Colonist." a daily paper edited by George Shepard, and until that night a supporter of the conservative ministry, was so disgusted that it changed sides and came out sext morning with a crushing editorial headed "Whitter as we drifting?" I remember that night well and the attack because I was present at it. It was started on account of a criticism of George Brown on the government; but that was not to be wondered at because it was constant. The hour was nearly midnight, work members were present and they were gathered up near the speaker's chair. Only the alley was between Brown and his seasilants. In time we hate that which we often fear.

A story is told of two Protestant gontlemen who were looking as the dome of St. Pater's. One read aloud the inscription that circles the dome, translating slowly as he read from Latin. The service is that circles the dome, translating slowly as he read from Latin. The service is the single slowly as he read from Latin. The continuing: "To thee will I give the keps of the kingdom of Heaven. Whatsoever thou shalf bind upon earth shall be bound in Heaven," etc. When he hed finished he turned to his companion and remarked: "Why, it was to one man Christ was speaking! Thou and theel How-porcenal and direct it all is. Peter held the keys of Heaven." The two men looked each other in the oyes and saw the fissh of conviction reflected there. Both became Catholics and both attributed their convorsion to the force of the text calanty conned from its most appropriate page, the dome of the world's cathodral.

There is a growing complaint among women of the present day that men's manners are not what they used to be. Formerly, they say, a man's chiefoest pleasure was to wait on and care for his womankind. Now that is all changed, and he allows them to wait on themselves and look after their own comfort while he looks after his own. Men are only too glad to show the respect they feel for womanhood, but if the women themselves reject it, what are the men to do? Certainly not keep on offening it, only to have it flump back at thoom.

The solemn services peculiar to the The solumn services peculiar to the closing days of Holy Week took place in all our churches, with one notable exception, made necessary by the inability of his Grace Arabbishop O'Conto officiate at the sacred ceremonies and service on Holy Thursday. who though doubting leved Him with a great leve.

This incident is commemorated in the gospel of Low Sunday:—
And after eight days, again His disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Josus cometh, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, nend said "Peace be to you." Then He saith to Thomas, "Put in thy finger hither, and see my hands, and bring hither thy hand, and put it into bring hither thy hand, and put it most my side; and be not faithless but believing." Thomas answered and said to Him, "My Lord and my God." Jesus saith to him, "Because thou hast seen Me, Thomas, thou hast believed: blessed are they that hast believed: bleased are they that have not seen and have believed."

Thi-4 noident furnishes a striking illustration of the difference between faith and conviction. Faith is to believe without doubting whatever Clod has revealed, and this on a recognized and duly appointed authority; conviction is to arrive a rand rest in an attitude of certainty authority; conviction is to arrive at and rest in an attitude of certainty through and by the evidence of the senses and the reasoning faculties.

Clerical and Lay Editors.

An interesting controversy was started a short time ago by the New World, a bright and most readable Catholic paper, on the question of Ulerical and Lay Editors of Catholic overiest and Ley scattors of Ostholic papers. The question has received considerable attention, as appears from our exchanges. The prevailing opinion seems to be the very natural one, that the Olsrical Editor is more competent by education, training and the special character of his sacred work to deal with questions of theology and morals. The Editor of the Mid land Review after a very full and able discussion of the question, in which he quotes Cardinal Vaughan in support of the position taken up by The New World, concludes as follows:

New World, concludes as follows:

"In conclusion may we not refer the great daily journal as an instance every shoecasker to his last? Usus there are three or four columns of itorial matter. Does case man write all? Scarcely. Frequantly seab ed rial is the work of a specialist. Tellor, which we would be some particular line with which herever the particular line with which herever the search of the seasons and the seasons are the seasons are the seasons and the seasons are rial is the work of a specialist. The editor-in-chief writes one article along once particular line with which he is more reason to particular line with which he is conversant; the comparion, additor writes of shooks, bouds, the outlook for creign or domestic trade; the topical editor writes of wars, the gold-ours, the faith-cure, anything of oursen interest; the paragrapher fills space with sundry litering observations, and so to the end. All these are supposed to be spacialists in their line—authorities on the subjects they treat. When consists arises—and we believe such consists arises—and we believe such consists arises—about the Catholic journal series—and the service of specialists competent to speak with full authority? We think not. As we see it, Catholic journalism has need of both priest and syman, sech labories cannestly within his sphere."

We might add that a great de depends on the characteristics of the paper itself. Some Catholic paper paper itself. Some Catholic papers may be looked upon as distinctly religious papers; such demand the services of pricets for editorial work. Others aim at the wider and less restricted sphere of Catholic news-papers, dealing from a Catholic stand-point with the thousand and one subjects, apart from theology and the day: such papers have been and are ably edited by laymen. The best Catholic journal will be one whose editorial pages are informed and graced by pen both of pricet and

The Church for the Times.

Plain's speaking the meaning is that the people of the times are to be entrusted with the superhuman task of framing a crood and a church, which will, as far az possible, admit of the preacher telling his flock not what Jesus Christ gare his Apostles to preach mate all nations, but what a disgruntled twentieth century Christianity would have conformable with its views of the life here and of the life that is to some. The Divine is to be eliminated from this Church's toaching; human ity to be delfied.

The Queen's Visit to Iraland.

Her Majesty's visit to the Emerald Her Msjesty's visit to the Emerald Isle still eugages the attention of the English press, and so far, if we except the seizure of an issue of The United Irishman, nothing has happened to mar the peaceful if not pasificating purpose of the visit; while on the other hand, it is apparent that the visit itself has failed to stir the people as a whole to anything it that degree of enthusiasm which was so conspicuously paraded in the English and Canadian papers.

The unusual interest that attaches to the event is due to the feelings of visit itself, may nave alloyed those feedings.

Our opinion, based upon a careful view of the situation as reflected by the Irish press; is that the heart of Catholic Ireland has not been touched Catholic Ireland has not been touched by the Queen's presence in the country. Iriah valor evoked a great jout-burst of enthusiasm in London for the "wearers of the green;" but just exactly to what extent this feeling is returned by the people of Ireland, who, after all, are the most concerned in the matter, it is not, as some would make out, difficult to tell. True, many of the Irish people resident in England have expressed the hope that the Queen's advances would be met by equal advances on the part of the people of the [Green Isle; s but that has not been the case.

mee by equal advances out no pass of the people of the [Green Isle; s but that has not been the case.

The Naw York Sun sums up the situation pretty accurately when it says, "It will searcely be pretended that Irish Natiroalists have any cause that I rish resumbles the any section of the reign of Queen Victoria, or to feel any gratitude to the Sovereign herself. The truth is that the sentiment of loyally has become well-nigh extinct loyalty has become well-nigh extinct in the greater part of Ireland, and that the eprihet, 'Loyalist,' adopted that the eprithet, 'Loyalist,' adopted by the larger land-owners and by the Protestant minority in Ulter, has become a term of reproach among the people at large."

It would seem from the above-that the bulk of the Presbyteriau Church in the United States, including clargy and laymen have become avowed heretics to the fundamental avowed heretics to the fundamenta-formula of their faith. Great changes formula of their faith. Great changes are predicted in the religious life and belief of the various Protestant churshes, at this the closing of the 19th century. Here is one that seems to be little short of ananimity on the place of that which hitherto was descreed all sufficient and satisfactory. We allinds as the fances. EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Irish language is being so generall studied that its decay has not only been arrested, but it promises to become a living and widely spoken tongue. Next year's census will prob-ably show that it has made rapid strides amougst the Irish reople.

Rev. Dr. David Gregg, of the Lafa-yette-Avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N.X., says. "Though I am a conservative Presbyterian, I say that the Confession of Faith, on which the Preshyterian Church stands, is dead." Truly the Preshy terian Church is in a bad way, and evidently requires another Reforma-tion to resoue it from threatened fossilization.

Among the Irish American Press the opinion widely prevails that the Queen's visit to Ireland is to induce and assist in the obtaining of Irish recruits for the British Army. Be this selit may the following notice appearselit may the following notice appear-od in the official Gazette:

"Her Majesty the Queen having deemed it desirable to commonorate the bravery shown by Itsh regiments in the recent operations in South Africa, has been graciously pleased to commadinat an Irish regiment of Foot Guards be formed. This regiment will be designated the Irish Guards."

It is announced that a Catholic Ollege for women is about to be srected at Washington in close proximity to the world-renowned Catholic University. This step stamps beyond dispute the tavorable attitude of the Church authorities towards woman's right to avail herself of the very highest intellectual attainments. The work of founding this proposed College for women has been intrusted to the Sisters of Notre Dame of Namur, Bel-gium, whose reputation throughout Europe and portions of America is that of the most enviable character in test of the most envisors energeter in respect to their teaching proficiency and maintainance of high ideals. In the New England, Middle Atlantic and Pacific Slope States this Order is very strong, as also in Ohio, where the Mother house of the United States is situated.

While public attention is fixed on the fascinating but sanguinary conflict going on between two Christian peoples, the black, gaunt spectre of famine is stalking through Obviotion some of the fairest parts of Millions of money and thous lives are being spent in the pro of India mittons of money and thousands of lives are being spent in the prosecution of a war that ripe opinion has deelar-ed unnecessary and avoidable, whilst so far as Great Britain is concerned, the relief of India's famishing mil-lions is left to private charity and philanthropic effort. It is true that the Indian soverment has alread philanthropic effort. It is true that the Indian government has already spent $10,000,000, in relief work, but that does not prevent thoughtful people from reflecting that much of the famine area of India could be redeemed for what the needless war in South Africa is costing.

Some of our Canadian papers have already taken up the subject of American opinion towards the war and make out that it is becoming Amerio and more antagonistic to Eng more and more antagonistic to Eng-land. If so, it must proceed from the blind hate of the American people for England and not because they are convinced of the unrighteomness of her cause. To be logically hostile towards the procedution of the present war, they should first rectore their own ill-gotten gains in Cuba and cease their policy of subjugation in the ines. Consistency is a jewelnot appreciated apparently by McKinleyism that at present stands for the will of the American people. It is difficult to differentiate, with redit to the United States auth between any ineident in the South Africanwar and; the shooting of 58 Filipinos coralled in a station and overpowered by superior numbers. The Duke of Newcastle, one of the

The Duke of Newcastle, one of the leaders in the ritualistic movement in Hingland in an address referred to the attitude of the English Archishops towards the movement as "perposterous," talked about "blathous towards," talked about "blathous English ritualists were contending for and asked the prayers of "American Catholice" in the troublows times Catholics" in the troublens times which he said were just ahead. This which he said were just absad. This is nobling new, as pronounced ritablists have for years emissaded that they have the real presence on their alears; but investigation and comparison invariably demonstrate that it is a "real presence" which hardly any two ritualistic members define alike it is corporest yet only spiritual; it is spiritual in the form of corporest; it is anything but what Oatholies, whose ceremonies they are aping, whose services they are many ling, and whose dogmas they are perverting, understand by the Real Presence. The Oatholie doctrine of the Real Presence is as clear, as the Real Presence is as clear, as defluite, as uncompromising as the words of our Lord Himself, and to be only near to it is the same as being far away from it.

A ROMANTIC INCIDENT IN A CANA-DIAN CONVENT.

(Written for The Register.)

In the realm of pure fletion it often bappens that sensational stories are wrengith out f mere cupity vapors of the magination. This present tate is not, however, of that intere, for it has a solid foundation in real truth. The incident goes to show how little scalar worldlings and non-Catholies know of the inspirations, motives, are sanctity of lives that are lived with in convent walls. To such erroneous thinkers it seems in conceivable that flesh and blood have need of such things as mor tiffeation, self-denial, or austerity of life in order to gain the full measure of folicity promised to the faithful few in the long hereafter.

The fair-minded Carlistians of all the seats, no doubt, admit and admire the sanctity of nums lives and the overpure and wholesome atmosphere thay reigns within the clobster. But this is not the sentiment of the great unthinking multitudes who refuse to view the matter in its best aspect, or who are rather unifitted by mere worldly training and indulgences, to form a right idea of the motives that cause devoted women to abandon social life and its alluroments for the stern abode of the conventuell. To individuals who recken by the pleasure of the senses along, the carl tent is regarded an a priscalled of the sense along the conventuelly for the stern abode of the conventuell. To individuals who recken by the prisesure of the senses along, the carling the sense along the carling of the stern abode of the conventuelly to the stern abode of the conventuelly of the stern abode of the conventuelly of the stern abode of the surface of the motives that a such a file devoted women to abandon social life and its alluroments for the stern abode of the conventuelly of the stern abode of the part that shocks sell love and pride and its alluroments of the stern the surface of the world in a content of th tell. Every worl-read American knows that old Stadacoom is an attractive spot for American tourists, and that its historic convents are choice places to vielt, and that the wortiny lumates are noted for their hospitality and courtesy to visiting strangers, especially from the land of Gande Sam. On a certain day in the year above named a party of United States lades proceeded from the Chateau Frontema to one of Quebec's venerable convents for the purpose of inspection, and the Rev. Mother Superior deputed one of the Sisters to conduct the party through the institution; the conductrees happened to be one of those bright laddes of cheerful heart and preposessing appearance, who the New York laddes, for such the party were, thought would be litted to out a figure in sockey and that it was a crime to keep her where she was; and they at once jumped to the conclusion thate store in face and tigners was not there by free choles, but that force or fraud had brought her there, and that the was teller duty to devike ways and means to help her to escape. by the Boers, and we must say that proveitheranding all the stories told concerning them, they have not behave a worse than a more civilized nation—round have done.

Our Fathers iii the Transvanl ard not holosted, and we have been told that General Joubert had a notice posted on the doors of Newcastle convent warning the Boers not to injure the property. This step was unfortunate by taken a little too late, as the rooms had already been looted and damaged. But after all such is the law is wer, and we should not complain too loudly. The poor Dominions Sisters of Newcastle and Dandes are now in Marittsburg, suffering in patience and living in hope of soon going back to hear the proper beautiful in the Vicariate of the Free State they are in a worse patient. Blekon Gaughran is sint up in Kimberley with several prices and making, and there is no sign of any pooling of the property with the property of the property with the property of the property of the property with the property of the propert seight unless he could draw good out of the but, humanly speaking, there is senough to make us moet anxious about the future.

Will the Boers have the best of it? If so, we have to fear for our Kaffir missions, and for some of our schools which receive a grant from the Natal Bererament. Beskles, there is that law of dissabilities which threatens us; for, let Dr. Leyds say what he likes, there is such a law in the Transvani, and with few exceptions this law is sufforted. Perhaps the Boers would now change their policy; many said, even before the war, that it was only a master of a very few years so alter their way of treating the Catholics. Our Convent schools have done a grant deal; in that direction by removing prejudioss and ignorant notions about religion.

On the shher hand, should England be victorious, what is likely to happen? Bosse of our missions inversected by a september of a time, went supposing that he compensation be granted us, as promised, Besides, many foresee a decrease in Natal's importance. Those, of course, are human views and speculations.

Above all we must, and we do, trust in God's Providence, and try to be as sheerful as possible under the circumstance. Those, of course, are human views and speculations.

Above all we must, and we do, trust in God's Providence, and try to be as sheerful as possible under the circumstance. Over here in England I'm helpin' wi'
the hay,
And I wisht I was in Ireland the Ivelong day;
Weary on the English bay, and sorra
take the wheet!
Och! Corrymeela and the blue sky over tt!

There's a deep dumb river flowin' by beyont the heavy trees,
This living air is moldhered wi' the hummin' o' the bees;
I wish I'd hear the Cladagh burn go runnin' through the heat Past Corrymeela, wi' the blue sky over it.

D'y mind me now, the song at night is mortial hard to raise, The girls are heavy goin' here, the boys are ill to place; When on'st I'm out this workin' hive, tils I'll be back again— Ay, Corrymeela, in the same soft rain.

The puff o's moke from one ould roof before an English town!
For a shaugh will Andy Feelan here I'd give a slivor crown.
For E curl of hair like Mollie's ye'll ask the like in vain Sweet Corrymeela, an' the same soft rain.
