ENEMY READY FOR ATTACKS ON THE OISE

Expect the Allied Counter-Offensive to Be Opened There. RAIN RETARDS GERMANS British Drive Them From Positions in Moreuil Sector.

While the advance of the German armies in Picardy has come almost to a halt there has been savage fighting on the extreme western edge of the battle zone.

The French line further south have stood firm against savage assaults, especially in the region of Montdidier and eastward of that place along a part of the line which was subjected to a terrific strain for two days last week.

The German efforts apparently have been in the region of Moreuil and Albert. Around these places there has been moving down by artillery, machine gun and rifle fire.

London, April 1.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The fight for Moreuil lasted a whole day. Our Canadians actually intermingled with their French comrades and fought like demons to keep the place. It was twice captured by the Germans and twice lost. In the end the khaki and horizon-blue had the best of it, and the village, which was the nearest point the enemy reached on the way to Amiens, and a point particularly coveted by the German staff, remains in our hands.

SOLDIERS FIRE ON RIOTERS IN DISORDERS AT QUEBEC

Many of the Troops Are Injured, Civilians Killed and Wounded, and Hundred Suspects Are Placed Under Arrest—Crowd Sniped With Revolvers From Alleyways and Machine Guns Are Used.

Quebec, April 1.—The riotous day in Quebec and the military forces which have taken over the policing of the city fought a battle tonight in St. Roch, the lower town section of the city, as a result of which three civilians were killed, soldiers and four citizens were wounded, and one hundred men placed under arrest.

The fighting lasted from 8:30 till midnight, and during this time the snipers fired revolvers haphazard at the military from doorways and from behind snow banks. The military, who fired on the disturbers with machine guns, were much hampered in locating them by reason of a thick fog which covered the city.

Private Mayhew, Toronto, hit on the head with a brick. Private George Checkley, Greenwich, Conn., shot in leg. Private Leroy Johnston, Toronto, bullet thru jaw.

Crowds Gathered. Despite solemn warnings from the military that the rioting in Quebec would be put down with a stern hand, and urgent appeals for people not to repeat the disorder of the past three days, crowds gathered in several parts of the downtown section of Quebec tonight, and had to be broken up by the Toronto infantry and Dragoons.

A number of soldiers were injured in the fighting, and a batch of suspected rioters were placed under arrest.

After being absent from eight all day, at nightfall the soldiers were ordered from barracks and stationed in different parts of the city. The upper town was cut off from St. Roch, where the disorderly element reside, by a line of troops. Four hundred men of the 2nd Central Ontario Rifles, under Major Mitchell, were stationed at Jacques Cartier square.

Armand Lavergne, the Nationalist leader, was expected to address a meeting in this square, but respected the military edict banning such assemblies.

A large crowd was on hand, however. Rioting began.

The rioting began soon after the soldiers were posted. Bricks were thrown from house-tops, while revolver shots were fired from alleyways. The soldiers, immediately hostilities began, waded into the crowd and arrested seven men.

Several men took shots at the military and escaped into the mob. One soldier had a miraculous escape. He accosted a rioter who dodged in front of him, pulling the trigger of a revolver five times. It did not explode. The cavalry repeatedly charged the mob to keep them moving, with drawn swords, but the moment the troops' backs were turned, the crowd returned.

About a hundred yards away, near the C.P.R. station, the soldiers were greeted by a mob with a fusillade of revolver shots, bricks and ice. Several soldiers fell in this attack, slightly injured.

After patiently bearing the bombardment of the crowd the soldiers received orders to fire in return. A number of shots were sent over the heads of the mob near the Jacques Cartier square.

As the casualties began to occur, a Red Cross emergency dressing station was opened in the Mercer Building, opposite Jacques Cartier square, with Major Tassie and Major St. Amant, both of Quebec, in charge. Here the men had wounds treated speedily and were conveyed by an ambulance to the military hospital on St. Louis street.

Machine Guns Used. As the evening advanced a dense fog settled down. The rioters, who had been broken up by the infantry and cavalry, gathered in doorways and fired at random down the street. The soldiers answered the shots wherever they were sure where they had come from. This method of dealing with the snipers failed to stop the shooting, so machine guns were directed in the direction of the revolver shots.

The soldiers bore their ordeal with great calmness and fortitude. One man, Leroy Johnston, of Toronto, shot in the jaw, after having his wound dressed, asked for leave to go on duty again. The doctor sent him off to the hospital.

The rioters at 10:30 o'clock caused considerable inconvenience to the fire brigade by ringing in false alarms. At the same time the rioters were sent to scenes of the supposed fires, but the officers in charge soon found out the trick and afterwards ignored the alarms.

The men arrested by the military gave the following names and addresses: Bernier, 147 St. Roch street; Harbour, 106 Morin street; J. J. Giguere, 56 Chateauguay street; Joseph Lachance, 3 Dargenson; Emile Bousquet, 11 Dupont street. All the men stoutly protested innocence of rioting.

Civilians Shot. The first death of a civilian occurred at 11:15. A man, Laperriere, was shot thru the heart and instantly killed. The bullet was fired by the military. Laperriere had nothing to do with the rioting and was returning home from work at the time he was shot.

Chased from the neighborhood of Jacques Cartier square, the mob collected in the vicinity of the grocery store on Dorchester street, and took a quantity of liquor. They were routed by soldiers.

Civilians Killed. At midnight a man on Crown street, Bagota street, was shot and killed, and another man named LeLain, 100 St. Sauveur, was wounded. The police received word that a man named Trepanier had been killed at the pillaging of the Lajeunesse store and another man, A. Tremblay, St. Malo, had been badly wounded.

The militia closed up the Frontenac bowling alley, and about 75 young men were taken into custody.

Capt. Desrochers, head of the federal police here, today specifically denied the allegation that officers had arrested men under the Military Service Act and had torn up their exemption papers.

Mayor Lavigne announced today that he had received information that the ringleaders in the rioting were strangers in Quebec, and that these agents were being paid by some outside parties. He said he had ordered the fullest investigation into this charge.

The prime minister stated that official information received by the government indicated that the real trouble makers were limited to a comparatively small number of men, probably not more than two hundred; and that while many of the on-lookers may have been sympathetically inclined towards the rioters, they were not disposed to join them in their defiance of the law. It is believed in official circles here that the small number of men who commenced the trouble been promptly dealt with by the police there would have been no possibility of calling upon the military authorities for aid.

TWO THOUSAND POUNDS MORE OF FOWL TO BE DESTROYED

William Davies' Winnipeg Branch Still Has That Much Chicken Unfit for Food—Commissioner Says Food is Kept for High Prices.

Winnipeg, April 1.—Commissioner P. B. Tustin, who conducted the investigation into the cold storage business of the Wm. Davies Co. in Winnipeg, with particular reference to the destruction recently of 8,500 pounds of poultry at the city incinerator, has made public his report to J. D. McGregor, western representative of the Canada Food Board.

After dealing with the evidence adduced at the inquiry, the commissioner says that last month the Davies Company had in storage 50,000 pounds of poultry, but that they are now rapidly disposing of all stock on hand that is fit for human consumption at very reduced prices, but he adds, there will be about 1,500 or 2,000 pounds more to be destroyed.

Reviewing the evidence, the commissioner comes to the conclusion that the poultry which should have been sold was deliberately kept in storage in order that a certain price might be obtained.

In reporting as to the cause of the deterioration of the poultry, Mr. Tustin says he comes to the conclusion that the causes were as follows: The poultry was not properly bled when put into cold storage; carelessness in handling, as some birds that were stranded were packed among other birds; imperfect ventilation of the room in which the poultry were kept.

Comparing the price lists of the Wm. Davies Company with another local storage house, Commissioner Tustin says that the prices of the former ran slightly higher all thru last year. For the months of June, July, August and September, comparisons of the two price lists, as made in the commissioner's report, show quotations of fowl by the Davies Company were one cent higher for June, two to three cents in July, four cents in August, and from two to four cents higher in September; while the quotations for chicken were from one to two official high prices in June, three to four cents higher in July, five cents higher in August, and four to five cents higher in September.

IMPORT RESTRICTIONS PURELY SPECULATIVE

Cabinet Has Not Yet Considered Recommendations of the War Trade Board.

Ottawa, April 1.—It was authoritatively stated tonight that statements which have been made as to the extent of restriction of imports of foreign goods into Canada are of a purely speculative character. While the matter has received some consideration by the war trade board, the cabinet has not yet had an opportunity to review recommendations that have been made by that body to the minister of trade and commerce.

As already announced, restriction of imports into the United States goes into effect on April 15, but it is hardly probable that the Canadian list will be decided upon by that date, as the government is receiving a considerable number of objections from industries most likely to be affected, which will have to be considered.

GABINET DISCUSSES QUEBEC TROUBLES

Premier Has Information That Disorderly Element is Comparatively Small One.

Ottawa, April 1.—The cabinet council was in session until seven o'clock this evening, but no official announcement was subsequently made relating to the Quebec situation. When questioned Sir Robert Borden expressed the opinion that Gen. Lussard, who has been on the scene of the trouble since yesterday, has made all the necessary arrangements to deal with any possible developments.

The prime minister stated that official information received by the government indicated that the real trouble makers were limited to a comparatively small number of men, probably not more than two hundred; and that while many of the on-lookers may have been sympathetically inclined towards the rioters, they were not disposed to join them in their defiance of the law. the British Army in France. Smiling aside and the fight had up till noon failed the Germans out for further in their grand offensive the British front. Little fighting appeared during the night. The probability was enemy was not quite ready for big attack north of the line, although the fact that the majority of his available divisions were present further activity may come at any time.

are at present something more than 37 divisions in the battle zone, and about 37 divisions are being sent further south. Ten of these have been sent against the British front against the French.

Difficult Terrain.

German guns are not all forward as yet. The Somme front presents a very difficult terrain which to move artillery are indications that the north will be a set of all the stage effects, and as many guns as possibly can be put up. Thus far the enemy has been comparatively light in zone of advance.

interesting facts are now from captured documents. General statements regarding the situation of the British front. To sum up the situation the Germans had expected to be the line of the Somme on the 21st of the drive. On that day they greatly favored the attack, for a heavy mist over the whole country and impossible for the British to engage the German guns in long range. Despite this for the defenders, they incurred heavy casualties on the close quarters that the British progressed only one-quarter of the distance they had expected to first day.

Failure on Scarpe.

heavy attack delivered by the British on the Scarpe on March 15th, however, there mist to assist the onrush, and they came under such punishment from the British machine guns and rifles that progress was checked after a mile. The British made comparatively small gains, and reports of the British show that the Germans most heavily along the front of attack. The objective of the German high command set for the attack on the Scarpe was to reach the Arras and Vimy Ridge.

was to be taken by the Second division, one of the emperor's units. Special assault divisions were to go thru the front line after the British battle had been stormed. But these divisions never came into the front-line because they could not push their way into the defences.

the British preliminary attack biotted out all the British excepting one just opposite the British post, with a small number of machine guns northward toward the Germans heavily attacking troops. However, on the sides of this post, and the British fighting their way back, fighting continued all day, and their gallant defence found it advisable to fall back between Bailleul and Willerval, furnished particularly good for machine gun attacks by the German.

Willerval failed to swing the British back. Just to the south of the British holding the back word they would fight, and this was virtually what they gallantly stood.

day and Saturday nights they pushed their lines forward in somewhat.

If You'd Have Perfect Comfort When You Sleep--Try a Marshall Mattress

It is most scientifically constructed, with well-covered coil springs, is well ventilated, hygienic and very durable, and the latest type has tape bows instead of tufts.

Do you realize that about a third of your life is spent in bed? And, this being the case, do you see how important it is that so much of your life shall be spent in comfort? Only thus can tired bodies and nerves relax and secure the complete rest necessary to fit them for the strenuous lives which are the rule today. And as a means to this end, the Marshall mattress could scarcely be improved upon.

The whole secret of its remarkable comfort is that it is filled with numerous little coiled springs, encased in separate pockets, and covered with a layer of hair, felt or moss. This arrangement of springs--every one independent of the other--causes the mattress to conform to the contour of the body, prevents it from becoming lumpy and allows of interior ventilation--a most important matter from the hygienic point of view.

All these points are testified to by the fact that the Marshall is increasing in popularity in hospitals and public institutions, in hotels and the great ocean-going liners, which make such a feature of comfortable beds.

Prices are as follows: 3 ft. 3 ft. 6. 4 ft. 4 ft. 6. For moss top Marshall $27.00 $27.00 $27.00 $27.00 For felt top Marshall. 26.00 28.00 29.00 30.00 For hair top Marshall. 30.00 31.00 33.50 35.00

PLAYS, PICTURES AND MUSIC

BRIGHT DIALOG AND BRISK ACTION

"Mary's Ankle," which opened at the Royal Alexandra last night, is a trifle whiffing and its brisk action and its unceasing gay dialogue.

"The Studio Girl" at the Strand this week shows Constance Talmadge in a very lovely and appealing role, admirably adapted to her personality.

"The Tenth Case" at Loew's this week is a photoplay which tells the story of a devoted wife, made defendant in divorce proceedings, heads the bill at Loew's Theatre and Winter Garden.

"The Forty Thieves" playing at the Star crowded with music of the bright and tuneful variety, to say nothing of hundreds of pretty gowns and exceptional numbers.

Charlotte Walker, whose popularity with Toronto audiences has long since been established, was reassured as to its sincerity last night when the Princess Theatre was crowded with a highly appreciative and demonstrative audience on the occasion of the star's appearance in a brand new play.

NEW LEAGUE MEETS TO DRAFT SCHEDULE

Wednesday's New York Confab Will Straighten Out All the Kinks.

Just what cities will compose the rejuvenated International League will not be known until after the meeting in New York tomorrow. To say that Toronto fans are interested in putting it mildly, but they can rest assured that it will be a compact and interesting league.

The men behind the big men willing to take a chance. The "die easy" crowd that howled early and loud that there would be no baseball for International League cities are now home in their small towns and as quiet as lambs. The good news there are a few real men left in baseball and when the faint-hearted magnates were afraid to show and "carry on" until better days the regular men came out with a league, and it will be good one.

Toronto, Rochester, Baltimore and Jersey City are the former International League cities that will have clubs, and the four best cities from the New York State League will be lined up with them to make up the league.

The class of ball will not suffer. International League players are to be had in abundance and will be only too pleased to land a job for this year. The magnates are now busy signing them, and we expect to see the same high class of ball that has always characterized this A.A. league.

The schedule will likely call for 128 games, with the season getting under way on May 1. All the details will be thrashed out at Wednesday's meeting, and a full report of the proceedings will be ready for the eager fans on Thursday morning.

The Toronto club is one that will go the limit to put a first-class team in the field. Five players were secured from the retiring Montreal club and these, along with the men left from last season, will be the foundation for a smart team.

Stiek Dunn is another to always provide a fast team. The other cities will follow the lead of those two and the fans can rest assured that it will be an A.A. league in every sense of the word.

No manager has been secured for the Toronto team as yet. The local club will come thru with a good man and it is expected that President McCaffery will announce his name on his return from New York.

Word was received at Boston yesterday from Little Rock, Ark., that the Boston American League baseball club has traded Elicher George Foster to the Cincinnati Nationals for Dave Shean, a second baseman and former member of the Providence club of the International League. It was said that the local club and Foster had been unable to reach an agreement as to salary.

Manager Barrow of the Boston American League Club last night confirmed the report that he has traded Elicher George Foster for Secondbaseman Dave Shean of Cincinnati. Barrow said that reports that Foster had decided to quit the game were untrue. He said that Foster was willing to play this season, but he demanded more money than was offered in the contract tendered him.

RICHARDSON STADIUM FOR QUEENS
Kingston, April 1.—Captain George T. Richardson of the 2nd Battalion, who was killed in action two years ago, left five thousand dollars to Queen's Army Cadets for the improvement of the athletic grounds, and the principal, together with three trustees in interest, has been handed over to the university authorities. It is likely that the money will be used as a basis on which to establish a stadium, probably on the site of the present athletic field.

Linfield F.C. would like to arrange a practice game with an I. D. H. team early Saturday afternoon. Write E. R. Hollingsworth, secretary, 551 Parliament street, or phone General 4716. Linfield players don't forget practice every Saturday evening at Earl Grey School ground. The players' list of this club is now complete, and everything is ready for the spring series.

THIRTEEN TEAMS IN THE SENIOR LEAGUE

Also Seven Juniors for the Toronto and District Soccer League.

The monthly meeting of the T. & D. delegates was held in Sons of England Hall last night, and was well attended. It was decided to open the league season on April 27. The senior league, to be composed of thirteen teams, and the junior with seven. In order to make the number even in each division, the application in an application for either league before Friday, April 5, will be admitted to membership.

A rule which opened up considerable discussion was the eligibility of candidates for directors and officers, and it was decided any who have sat as directors or delegates during the two seasons previous to the election is eligible, providing he is a member of a club in good standing and has not been expelled from membership.

WESTERN CITY LEAGUE READY FOR BUSINESS
Same Four Clubs to Play at Willowvale Park—Will Be Strong.

The Western City Senior Baseball League held a good meeting last night and opened the campaign for the coming season. The four teams comprising the league last season, St. Francis, Moose, Wychwood and Hillcrest, were represented, and all promised to provide strong teams this season. Burr Maxwell will handle the Moose team. Nip Dwan will look after the Hillcrest, Frank Britton is at present looking after the interests of St. Francis, while Bob Wilson, who led the Belmont to victory last season, will manage Wychwood.

The league will stage their games at the present location of the stadium, the star catcher of the Athletics, will meet with St. Francis. Babe Dye will meet with Hillcrest. Hogan Smedley is with Wychwoods this year.

JIMMY ARCHER WILL BE POPULAR PIRATE
Jacksonville, Fla., March 30.—Manager Hugo Besdek of the Pittsburgh club is reporting on the condition of pitcher Jimmy Archer, the famous receiver who would be hard to find a more popular player anywhere than the gingerly veteran, and the fact that the likable athlete has reached top form so early is a source of great relief to Besdek.

The young pitcher Archer ends up would be hard to find a more popular player anywhere than the gingerly veteran, and the fact that the likable athlete has reached top form so early is a source of great relief to Besdek.

Word comes from Indianapolis that Herman Bronkie has been made manager, pro tem, of the Hoosiers. This is possibly the wisest move made by Owner McGill in several months. Bronkie has been successfully holding down the third sack for three seasons, and had it not been for a little slight-of-hand work on the part of the Chicago Cubs he would have had his chance at managing a ball team long ere this.

Herman is almost as full of pep as our own Lena Blackburne, but what he lacks in pep, he makes up in hitting. Always trying and working hard every minute that he is on the field. His judgment in getting the ball to first is in a class by itself in the American Association; in fact, when seen in class A.A. he shapes up like a real live major leaguer. The reason that he is not in the big show must be just another one of those fool baseball quirkies, which either keeps a man with the majors for 25 or 30 years or does not give him a chance at all.

The present conditions make poor old Bronkie's initial appearance rather hard. In the first place, he is attempting to manage fellows whom he has played with for the last three years and who, perhaps, feel that they had

Ida Displays Inside Knowledge Of Heavyweight Pugilists

Betting on Fred Fulton to Defeat Jess Willard for the Championship, Tho Fifty Friends Insist That It is the Wrong Dope.

By Ida L. Webster.
We found a laugh tucked away in the sporting page of The New York World the other day. The writer was trying to find out in the interest of the country why Willard had been very successful in handling his circus, and we all know that it takes some promoting to make a circus go, therefore why should the little fellow not promote the coming of Fred Fulton?

So far as the nation at large is concerned there is no reason in the world why he should not, but if his promoting ability is to be judged from his work with the circus, then, believe us, boys, he is some promoter.

Willard bought a circus which had made about $200,000 profit in the season, and when he bought the circus the promoters went with it, so that he was not forced to use his brain in an effort to find someone to keep the show on a paying basis. In other words, he had nothing whatever to do with the promoting. Probably he figures that his name is a promotion. If he does, he is making a mistake in that, as well as in the idea that he seems to cherish to effect that that guy Fulton will be merely a case of exercise for him.

Like all other sportsmen, he is a drawing card, but he has it all over the others like a dollar over a dime, for the very fact that the average man is anxious to see just what kind of a body man he is, and he is willing to pay for the real secret of his success in the circus business. As for the promoting end of it, he pays about $15 a week for that, and then he is able to snatch wind-er glory happens to be flying around.

With Fulton and Jess Willard, it will be different. The present white hope has no intention of permitting anyone to take money out of his pocket, and he is evidently so thick-skinned that the entire world thinks of him as a matter of supreme indifference, so that his opinion of himself has not changed since the day on which he first declared that he was a fighting man.

His really great fighting ability, but every little bit added to what you have in the meantime. The general public that are betting on Fulton to get the decision. This we have heard have made him a dollar bill, as did one other of the glitzy champions. Nay, nay, Pauline, you don't reckon that the exhibit in his pocket and had his tailor sew it up. He borrowed two dollars from Tex Rickard.

Thought of glory in good old days. Never Bothered About the Size of Purse in Real Champ's Day.
New York, April 1.—There is a lot of difference between the prize fighting of today and the fighting of a few years ago. In the early days of the game it was the glory men fought for as much as the money. The old English champions were, many of them, gentlemen who threw their prizes to the crowd when the fight was over.

Who one knows just how long ago it was that boxing first came into fashion in England, but as long as memory can go back to the first great boxers of that country came from Birmingham. The home of Britain's first great steel works, country earned their living in the Birmingham area.

SQUEEZE PLAY NOT A PENNANT WINNER

First Place Teams Do Not Seem to Favor the Play.

Brief reference was made in a recent article on how different major league managers regard the squeeze play as a valuable factor in the work of winning games, and very few were found something more in detail on the subject, as it is discovered by careful keeping of the records the conclusion will be, says Ernest Langran, in submitting the data, that while the squeeze play is a thriller, when it works, and even when it does not, it is not a great factor in winning pennants, if the records mean anything.

Bill Donovan's team led in the Squeeze Play League last season, says Langran, but it did not win the pennant. In fact, in the pennant race, no team tried the play and got away with it so often as the Yankees, but they finished in front of the Red Sox in that respect, only by a narrow margin. The manager of the Yankees, like Donovan, fancied the squeeze play as a means of scoring and he had the former change of strategy for Jack Barry, who almost as frequently used the play. The New Yorkers worked the play 23 times, the Bostonians 27 times.

Some teams didn't try it at all. These all were National League outfits—the Giants, the Cubs and the Athletics. Braves only used the squeeze play, the Browns was the limit of the Browns' squeeze combinations working Dono-Dono. All told, there were 571 squeezes in the American and 21 in the National League. Pirates and Cardinals were the Yankees for their league, the Pennsylvania and the Milwaukee combinations working Dono-Dono. In the way of winning games, the squeeze play is not very divided. Just 12 battles were captured by the man on third starting for the plate after he had squeezed the batter, the Red Sox capturing five of these controversies, the White Sox three, the Yankees three and the Cardinals two.

Shocker Could Lay 'Em Down.
The most interesting feature of the squeeze was Urban Shocker of the Yankees, who now the property of the Browns. Twice in the year he used the squeeze play when he had two strikes assessed against him. Joe Godson, who accompanies Shocker, stated that he had seen Shocker use the squeeze play in a game against the Tigers and secured admission for his hunt proceeded to center field.

Who Invented the Squeeze Play is Unknown, but it was used back in the Bro-therhood days and probably earlier. It was used by the Yankees and the Browns, and they were about the only set of athletes who used it for a long time. Its fame spread to the American League, and in the Wisconsin-Illinois League, it was used by the Milwaukee Braves, who lost his job because he tried the play. The run-making stunt as John McGraw has—that it is one of the non-essential things in the game, moreover, never heard of the play and thought that it was a new thing. It was only when the manager obtained it from the Old Fox, stating that the Yankees had already used it, that he was successful. That the W.I. leader was restored favor of his employers. He never tried the squeeze again, however, as long as he remained on that circuit.

George Cunningham, Tiger pitcher, who spent some time in the Chicago circuit with Kid Lillibridge, says that he has seen one game where the Lookouts obtained nine of their 12 runs on the squeeze.

Few Double Squeeze Appear. The double squeeze appeared a few times last season, the pitcher being that they were at their best in 1912, when supposed to have discovered a new mode of attack, and they were expert at getting two runs on one punt. But here again the historians come to bat with some data regarding the double squeeze, long before the Athletics introduced it in the American League. This is a clipping from The New York Times of July 15, 1905, describing a game between the Chicago Cubs and the Boston Braves.

LONG before Labatt's Brews come to the fermenting tuns, they have passed through the processes which give them the flavor, the body, the tonic quality which has made the old style Labatt's Ale, Canada's favorite for over eighty years.

Old London Brew, the new brew which Labatt's will put on the market at Easter time, is made with the same ingredients, with the same care and skill and by the same processes as the ale you have known and used for so many years.

Loft. After the ceremony Mrs. Lowndes held a reception at her house in Crescent road, where she wore mauve satin veiled with net of the same color. The house was beautifully decorated with roses, lilies, palms and ferns, many of the guests being present from Hamilton, Galt, St. Mary's, etc. On going away the bride wore a tailor-made of Monaco blue cloth trimmed with champagne, and small black hat with roses. New York is their present objective before going on to Washington, where they will live, Mr. Hunter having been appointed to the British Aviation Mission.

EARLY CABBAGE

A Dependable Cash Crop for the Market Grower

By J. T. ROSA, JR.

One of the most dependable early cash crops for the market man to grow is cabbage, which is practically certain of a good yield and a good demand. A method which is used by some of the most successful growers of early cabbage in central and northern sections is about as follows, with suitable adjustments for local conditions: Seed is sown in cool greenhouses or hotbeds in January or February, allowing about one ounce of seed for each 4000 plants. If plants are to be set in the field about fourteen days before the plants are to be set, a good distance for the early crop, about 15,000 plants are required for each acre. Enough plants should be grown so that the weakest may be discarded. About three or four weeks after seed sowing the plants should be large enough to transplant—that is, have at least one pair of rough leaves. The plants may be set in flats about three-quarters inches apart each way, and the flats placed in the same hotbed or greenhouse where the seedlings were grown, or they may be transferred at once to cold frames. The plants should not be sown in a warm greenhouse to the cold frame so early that they will be subjected to freezing inside the frame, although slight freezing does little harm.

When plants are handled in this way they are held in the cold frame until planting-out time. For early crops, seed may be sown two weeks earlier, transplanted to flats two by two inches apart, later shifting every fifth plant to four-inch pots. However, good crops of early cabbage can be grown from plants which were given no intermediate shift, by sowing seed thinly in the hotbed and by giving very careful ventilation and watering as the plants attain some size.

Good Growth in Cool Weather.
Cabbage may be set in the open very early—so soon as the ground can be worked properly—for hardened plants are not injured by a little cold, and seed growth is made during the cool, moist weather of spring. Rows thirty inches apart, with plants set fourteen inches apart in the row, will give the most efficient room for early cabbage when a number of medium sized heads are desired. From a given area, nearly double this space may be needed for the late crop.

Cabbage is a cross feeder, especially calling for large amounts of moisture and nitrogen. For this reason cabbage land should be heavily fertilized with stable manure the previous fall and winter. This should be supplemented with some phosphatic fertilizer, applied in the rows at planting time, and side dressings of nitrate of soda or dried blood should be given once or twice in the early part of the growing season, to stimulate rapid, leaf growth. These dressings of fertilizer should be scattered along the sides of the rows and worked into the soil by shallow cultivation. Practically all of such applications are utilized by the crop.

Crop May Last a Month.
In the early part of the season cultivate frequently and thoroughly to keep the soil loose, conserve moisture and keep down weeds; but as the plants become larger use caution in cultivating to avoid cutting the roots. Early cabbage usually is harvested before it is mature; the loose green heads, early in the season, are often worth more than hard, white heads later on. The crop from a single field often lasts a month.

Sales should always be made by the pound, three cents a pound being a very good figure for early crops. When the price falls below one cent a pound it may be more profitable to convert the remainder of the crop into sauerkraut. All burred heads can be used for sauerkraut, as they are unsalable. A weight of 12,000 salable heads of cabbage an acre from the early crop is not extraordinary, yet if the heads averaged ten pounds the crop would be eighteen tons, worth over $700 at an average price of two cents a pound.

The questions of variety and seed supply are very important also. Eastern and southern growers have for a great many years depended entirely on the various strains of the Wakefield variety for the extra-early crop. The Jersey Wakefield is an old English variety, with small, pointed heads, which mature very early. The plants are also quite hardy.

The Charleston Wakefield is a somewhat larger, less pointed and slightly later variety. The disadvantage of the Wakefield varieties is the number of inferior varieties, the heads being open and to run to seed prematurely. Growers should select the middle variety, now using the Copenhagen market variety almost to the exclusion of the Wakefield varieties. This is a very early cabbage, with small to medium sized heads, which are practically round.

plants to branch out. Keep in the same temperature, watering carefully, shade from bright sun; otherwise the heads will be scalded.

When the nights become warm they should be taken outdoors. In the beds I referred to I plunge the pots up to the rim, allowing six inches between each pot, and for a background of foliage plants are put out asparagus and ferns. By plunging the pots the soil does not dry out so quickly; dry roots will cause a severe check.

Achimenes also are excellent subjects used as specimen, flowering plants for porch or window, in baskets, well prepared and in full bloom, they are things of beauty. To grow them in wire baskets, line the bottom with moss on which place some soil, insert a ring of the plants, placing them two inches apart, growing part overlapping the other. Add more soil and soil and continue until the basket is full, the plants with a few in the top to complete it. The soil must be made quite firm as planting proceeds, and it must be short and regularly watered. When grown in complete shade so that the sun may never touch it when the foliage is wet, the easiest mode of watering is to dip it carefully in a tub of water.

Achimenes delight in a humid atmosphere, and when cared for in the right way the plants become a perfect mass of bloom, which practically hides all foliage. The plants may be procured in separate colors, ranging from white, mauve, lavender and blue, to pink, rose and bright red.

Achimenes in the Shade

The achimenes are ideal flowering plants for shade. They bloom freely through the summer and well into fall in complete shade without becoming in many homes our porches are so heavily shaded by trees that it is impossible to keep flowering plants in perfect bloom for any length of time. This is equally true of flower beds surrounding the house. In my case these beds are filled with tulips in the late fall and are a perfect joy to all in the spring; but what shall we fill them with in the summer? I tried many subjects for some years, but without success till I luckily hit on the achimenes.

The little scaly rhizomes or roots should be procured in the spring and planted in the greenhouse or in a warm, sunny window. They are not expensive, and, as they increase most prolifically under careful cultivation, you can start with few.

Start them in shallow boxes or pans, using a compost of leaf mold and loam in equal parts, with a good sprinkling of sand. Place the tubs on the side at least one inch apart, and cover to the depth of half an inch. Water regularly, but be careful that the soil never becomes sodden. If the temperature of the greenhouse or room is maintained around sixty-five to seventy degrees, growth should make its appearance in the course of two weeks.

When three inches high, transplant to flower pots or baskets. The same method is suitable, but with the addition of a half part of well rotted manure, made quite fine by passing it thru a small sieve. Carefully lift the growing tubs and place them two inches apart, using four for a five-inch pot, slipping out the top of each growth to induce the

PERENNIALS FROM SEEDS.

Those who have a conservatory, gently heated, can begin sowing seeds of perennials for plants to set out in the spring that will bloom during summer. Some will germinate in a temperature of 50 degrees, but will require more heat as soon as they are up. The seeds should be sown in shallow boxes filled almost to the top with good light soil containing plenty of sand. The boxes should not be more than two or three inches deep, and the soil should be sifted, dry soil to cover them, one-eighth of an inch deep, and the boxes should be covered with a flat piece of wood.

The same was true with potatoes, vegetables that were stored in the cellars, and the breaking cold that stood the very severe and prolonged winter and have been frozen. Labor is so scarce that many market gardeners and farmers interviewed find it necessary to greatly reduce the acreage usually planted. All this points to high prices.

On small plots only vegetables for immediate use, such as lettuce, radishes, tomatoes, peas etc., according to the size of the plot. On large plots, such as potatoes, turnips, carrots, parsnips can be grown, and these stored for winter use, extending the season of the garden over a much longer period.

Get the seed and nursery catalogs and study them. They are interesting and filled with useful information.

Those who have the ground for a garden and the time to care for it should make the most of the opportunity. Plant only what can be properly cared for and harvested. To sow a quantity of seeds and not care for them is wasteful and seeds are scarce. Every seed this year should be made to produce.

The indications now are that all vegetables will be high in price the coming season. Last autumn many acres of potatoes were left in the field, as farmers were unable to procure sufficient labor to dig them. The same was true with cabbages. Vegetables that were stored in the cellars, and the breaking cold that stood the very severe and prolonged winter and have been frozen. Labor is so scarce that many market gardeners and farmers interviewed find it necessary to greatly reduce the acreage usually planted. All this points to high prices.

On small plots only vegetables for immediate use, such as lettuce, radishes, tomatoes, peas etc., according to the size of the plot. On large plots, such as potatoes, turnips, carrots, parsnips can be grown, and these stored for winter use, extending the season of the garden over a much longer period.

Stocks can be used for so many purposes that they are favorites with every English gardener. The foliage is attractive, the flowers great over a long blooming period. They are unsurpassed for cut flowers, edging, for pot culture and for window boxes.

For early flowers sow the seed the last of February using well drained, shallow boxes of light soil, to which may be added good results a little crushed mortar from an old building. Sow the seed, being careful to use only a small quantity, and cover by the same method as above. The boxes can be kept in the house, with warmth sufficient to keep out the frost. Pricking off must be done before the seedlings become crowded.

In May transfer to deep, rich beds in the garden, into which water has been worked. Set the plants a foot apart. Transplanting the seedlings frequently tends to make them more sturdy.

For late flowers sowings may be made in the open ground in May, and if the plants that start to flower in winter carefully potted they will flower all winter in the house.

MAY INCREASE TARIFF

London and Port Stanley Railway Granted Permission by Railway Board.

Ottawa, April 1.—By the terms of a new board judgment handed down today, the London and Port Stanley Railway Company is authorized to increase its standard passenger tariff by 15 per cent, and its freight rate on coal by 15 cents per ton. The increases are granted, the judgment states, because "it is clear that the company's revenues are insufficient to properly cover the costs of operation under the conditions of today."

Enemy Protests to Russia Against Fighting Finland

London, April 1.—Germany has protested to the Russian Government against the continuation of the movement of Red Guard forces from Russia into Finland and asks the withdrawal of such Red Guard detachments as have passed the frontier according to a wireless dispatch from Berlin today. The punishment of the "guilty" in this connection is asked, as well as preventive measures for the future. Germany will take the necessary measures herself if the Russian Government is unable to fulfill its obligations in this respect. The Russian authorities are informed.

GERMANS BEGIN TO LOSE GROUND

Unfavorable Current Has Set on Against Enemy in Battle.

ATTACKS SMASHED

British Kill Large Numbers—Present Stronger Front Than at First.

British Army Headquarters in France, March 31.—The last 24 hours continued unfavorable to the aggressive Germans along the British sector of the new battlefield, and was a strikingly good period for the defenders. This morning the British were holding their entire line with strength, and they smashed numerous heavy German attacks at various points and had taken the initiative at several places successfully.

The most intense fighting continued south of the Somme, in the zone where the French have been making such a gallant stand. The outstanding feature of the conflict on the northern end of the front is that the British again have killed a great number of the enemy—which, despite its harsh sound, is what will end the war.

Today the British indicated a forward movement about Feuchy Coppe, east of Arras. They launched a local attack at three o'clock this morning, and pressed it so vigorously that they reclaimed a stretch of territory 1500 yards long and averaged about 100 yards in depth. This success had tactical advantages, but they were small compared with the fact that the British were able, after the past ten days of grueling work, to undertake an offensive operation.

South of the Somme, where there has been so much hard fighting, the British appear to have the situation well in hand, and the town hall of Moreuil, about 15 kilometers from the front, has been in British hands for some time. At last reports still flying the British flag defiantly from the steeple. One of the most successful operations attempted yesterday was the capture of Morlancon and the Somme, where a heavy assault was made against the Australians shortly after midnight. The attackers came forward in waves, and the British threw them back, and the advancing lines so furiously that the Germans were hurled back, leaving 3000 dead.

Straightening of Line.
The British operation at Lassaigny Farm, south of Hébouville, between Albert and Arras, yesterday afternoon, which resulted in straightening the defensive line, was a brilliant success. The Germans were pushed back with heavy casualties, and British troops returned with 200 prisoners, 40 machine guns and a trench mortar.

South of Arras the enemy made two attacks yesterday. One was near Hébouville, outside the Arras-Bathone railway, while the other was north of Boileux St. Marc. Both of these attacks were smashed, although the efforts were very energetic. In this particular case the Germans advanced in great numbers, and an intense bombardment of the British lines for two hours. At three places the enemy succeeded in penetrating the defenses, and a bitter hand-to-hand struggle ensued. The British made strenuous resistance that the Germans were thrown back, leaving numbers of dead.

Northeast of Arras the Germans made a small attack Saturday after breakfast, and pushed forward over a tiny strip of ground, but the operation was so small as to be hardly worth considering.

There was an unconfirmed report that a large concentration of German troops in preparation for an attack on a certain place on the battlefield had been detected in an artillery and machine gun barrage and completely knocked out.

Results Satisfactory.
The result of the fighting on the British front south of the Somme during the past two days have been satisfactory. Heavy German attacks on both sides of the Avre, where Friday forced the British to fall back somewhat, Friday night the enemy pushed forward and penetrated a large wood northeast of Moreuil, which created an uncomfortable situation for the defenders.

The result of the British decision to attempt to restore the lines, and cavalry was sent out for the purpose of clearing the Avre and re-establishing the positions of the British. The operation was not a hitch in the program. The cavalry swept thru the forest like a whirlwind, and forced the enemy to fall back, not only here, but farther to the north.

North of the Luce the enemy yesterday attacked in a series of attacks in force along the British line between Warfusse and Marceville. This assault was preceded by a vigorous artillery bombardment, and the enemy again came into play, and by 10 o'clock the Germans were compelled to admit defeat and to retire with large casualties.

A little later the enemy again put down a tremendous barrage between Warfusse and the Somme, and, after two hours of terrific gunfire, advanced in masses. They came against more cavalry and met a similar fate, the British line remaining intact.

North of Aubercourt, south of Marceville, the British stormed and recaptured important high ground, to which the Germans had clung tenaciously.

CHURCH IN FORTRESS.

London, April 1.—Speaking of the fact of life in a church from a shell fired of long range by a German, semi-official Berlin dispatch, forwarded from Amsterdam by the Central News, says it is to be deplored, but that every church within an attacked fortress necessarily is subject to incidental hits. The responsibility for the security of the inhabitants of Paris, the dispatch says, must rest with the French Government.

RETURNS FROM OVERSEAS.

Cobalt, April 1.—Lieut. Howard Barton returned from overseas yesterday and will be attached for duty in Canada. Lieut. Barton has been overseas since November, 1915. He left with the 159th Brigade, but subsequently served in France with the 4th C.M.B. and the 5th railway construction battalion.

BATTLE REDOUBLES ON OISE-AVRE LINE

German Transfer Weight of Attacks From British to French.

LITTLE FOR LOSSES

Gallantry of French Dis-mounted Cavalry Checked Enemy Onward March.

London, April 1.—A despatch from French headquarters says that the battle yesterday between the Oise and the Avre has redoubled in intensity. The Germans, following their habitual tactics of alternate blows, have transferred the weight of their attack from the Somme sector, which has been the scene of the heaviest fighting since Thursday last, to the line along the Avre, where a furious battle is now raging.

As the result of the day's fighting, involving apparently even heavier losses than have yet been suffered during any battle since the beginning of the offensive, the Germans fought their way down to the bank of the Avre at Moreuil. The enemy is still held on the eastern bank of the Avre, and except that he enlarged his position along the course of the stream, has nothing to show for the losses.

The gallantry of the French troops is recognized for the first time. Certain corps, consisting of dismounted cavalry and infantry, were the first French troops to be thrown into the battle, and it was they who, for days following, manfully barred the Oise valley against the passage of the GERMANS, REFUSING TO BE RELIEVED WHEN RELIEF WAS OFFERED, RAIN SPOILS ROADS.

After a week of uninterrupted battle, on Friday night the weather broke, and it rained continuously yesterday. The enemy's roads must be rutted and transformed into quagmires. The Germans are now bringing up heavy artillery, which has not yet participated, and the breaking weather must necessarily delay its appearance on the battlefield. The extraordinary feature of the battle is that so far it has been fought on the German side almost entirely by infantry.

So far the Germans have only been able to use field guns and light field howitzers and they have not kept the heavies inactive from choice, but because the retreating British methodically blew up the roads and bridges. For the past few days the enemy used light mortars but little, due probably to the inability of the munition convoys to keep pace with the demands made by the gunners owing to the overcrowding on the roads.

Hitherto the enemy's quick advance has been due to his employment of masses of infantry, but the concentration of this fighting without bringing up the artillery proved far too great for him to do so long.

The advance has slackened in the last few days, and the gains were only made on narrow fronts. In the meantime the air and artillery reinforcements are arriving. With each day it is growing that Ludendorff's plan of a swift and bloody passage thru the junction of the French will degenerate into a long battle on the whole front. The enemy hopes that advancing farther will depend upon the impression that can be made upon the resistance of the allies north and south. With each successive blow, the enemy's power becomes weakened out of all proportion to the capacity of the continued resistance, but perhaps it is chiefly on the mere weight of numbers that the enemy is staking one desperate gamble.

BATTLE STILL VIOLENT NORTH OF MONTDIDIER

French Record Continuation of German Efforts to Break Thru.

Paris, April 1.—The French official communication of today says: "Yesterday night the battle of Montdidier. The enemy directed his efforts in particular along the front between Montdidier and the Frenois, and threw forward important forces with the particular object of enlarging his gains west of Haignant-up the assaulting waves, which were not able to debouch. A brilliant counter-attack, in which our allies gave proof of their valor, enabled the French to throw back the enemy completely and recapture this village.

"The fighting further south was no less violent. On several occasions the object of powerful attacks which were renewed fighting. This town remained in the hands of the French, who inflicted considerable losses on the Germans.

"Between Montdidier and Lassaigny there is nothing to report."
