Break Up a Cold in Time
BY USING
PYNY-PECTORAL
The Quick Cure for COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRON-CHITIS, HOARSENESS, etc.
Mrs. Joseph Novack,
of St. Catharines, Ont., writes:
"Pyny-Pectoral has never failed to cure
my children of croup since I have used it.
I used it of a long-standing cough, and it has been a great relief. I can say with all confidence, I prefer it to any other medicine for croup, cough or hoarseness."
H. O. BARRETT,
of Little Rock, N. B., writes:
"As a cure for croup Pyny-Pectoral is the best medicine I have; my children will be so cured."

Regular visits made to the suburbs. Consides for the purpose of making large purchases of wheat. All of the leading newspapers in St. Petersburg have operated subscription lists for the relief of the sufferers of the famine in India. The price of wheat in all the grain markets of South Russia and the rates for the transportation of freight have advanced materially in consequence of the foreign demand for grain. Returns received by the government show that the yield of the principal cereals in fifty governments of Russia is 16,500,000 quarters below the average yield during the last thirteen years. The Vedomosti states an article upon the grain trade in which it urges the government to take advantage of the famine to dispose of Russia's surplus store of grain and to enter into negotiations with Great Britain regarding the price to be paid and the quantity to be delivered, after which large stocks could be bought and transported to Black Sea ports, where it could be conveyed to India in British vessels at a low rate of freight. The writer claims that there is now a rare chance to combine charity with the promotion of the country's own interests.
JOHN L. SULLIVAN'S FLIGHT.
THE FORMER CHAMPION MAY LOSE HIS ARM—SPORTING MEN INTERESTED.
NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The Evening
World says:
"The pitiable condition which the former champion, John L. Sullivan, has been reduced to, is a sad sight. It seems almost certain he will have to lose his right arm. Sullivan is suffering from a cancer on the right hand, and although he has had the best medical treatment in one of the Boston hospitals, the disease has become so firmly seated, and has developed so rapidly, that it is about settled that the champion can only save his life by losing his arm. This is the present condition of the doctors who, perhaps, would have performed the amputation but for Sullivan's pleadings to spare him as long as there is a chance of saving him from being made a cripple for life.
UNCLE SAM PREPARING FOR AN EMERGENCY.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—The Register prints a story that the Government will to-day place an order with the Winchester Arms Company for 100,000 rifles of the Lee pattern, the standard small arm of the American navy. This announcement is made on the authority of a statement by a commercial agent who had it from an official of the Winchester Company. According to this agent the contract is due to the relation between the United States and Spain and a desire on the part of the American Government to be prepared for any emergency.

General Intelligence.
A TOTAL ABSTAINER.
The one characteristic of the recently appointed Archbishop of Canterbury, which has most impressed itself on some of the cable correspondents, is his advanced position on temperance. The London Correspondent of the New York
Sun ventures on the observation that Dr.
Temple is the first Archbishop of Canterbury who has been a total abstainer.
This is a daring statement, and if exact would imply a wide knowledge of church history on the part of the person who made it. But it is a fact that though Bishop Temple drank wine during the first half of his adult life he has long been a teetotaler. So late as last week he explained his position at a temperance meeting. He is reported to have said:
"I had been a hard working man for many years, and he did not find when he gave up intoxicating liquors that his health, strength, or power to labor was impaired. He could not agree with those who said that if a man touched intoxicating liquor at all he was sure to get worse and worse. He had drunk intoxicating liquor for a good many years of his life, though few and twenty years ago he gave it up altogether. But he had never at any time felt that he could not check or control himself in the use of it. Then why did he become a total abstainer? Because when he looked in to the social condition of the country, and particularly of those who were nearest to his own

General Intelligence.
IMPORTANT TO TRAVELLERS.MR. MCGUFFIN'S SUIT AGAINST THE PULLMAN CAR COMPANY.

The case of James J. McGuffin vs. the Pullman Car Company was taken up this morning. The case has been before the courts for a long time, but only got down to trial today. It is an important one to the public, and the outcome will be awaited with interest by those who are frequently compelled to travel. The facts of the case are perhaps still fresh in the minds of the public. Mr. McGuffin, who is the well-known tea merchant, while travelling in one of the Pullman palace cars caught a severe cold and had a severe illness occasioned he says by the fact that the car was not kept heated. He is suing for $5,000 damages on that ground. The defence is that the car was heated, and the company, therefore, not negligent.

Messrs. Quigley & Mullin for the plaintiff and Mr. H. H. McLean for the defendant.—Globe 25th.

WEYLER'S FAILURE IN CUBA.

PUBLIC OPINION IN SPAIN AGAINST HIM
—HE IS INDIFFERENT.

MADRID, Nov. 25.—Several of the leading newspapers of Madrid are very bitter in their criticisms of the return of General Weyler to Havana, and declare him to be morally ruined. All of these papers demand that Gen. Azcaraga, the present Minister of War, be sent at once to Cuba to supersede Gen. Weyler.

HAVANA, Nov. 25.—The Captain General gave an interview last night to a New York Herald correspondent. "Did you change your mind about staying at San Cristobal till Christmas, or did the correspondents make a mistake," was asked. "I never said so," replied General Weyler. "I said that perhaps I would stay one day or six months. I never proposed to call any correspondent of my press in advance. There are things regarding my attention at Havana at least every twenty days, and being so near I have come in this distance and shall do so whenever I see fit." Gen. Weyler would not say whether he would go east or west when he leaves Havana again. "How does Mr. McKinley suit you?" was asked. "I am absolutely indifferent as to one or the other, as it is different from any of the United States accords belligerent rights to the insurgents. In that case the protocol would be annulled and I could treat American citizens like any others, which would do much to simplify matters and make filibustering expeditions fewer." General Weyler said this pleasantly and spoke again of his agreeable relations with General Lee and Mr. Williams though the inference was that he would have been less annoyed by them if the granting of belligerent rights had removed the protocol.

THE DUTCHER TRAGEDY.

SULLIVAN COMMITTED.

The preliminary examination into the charge against Sullivan of complicity in the Dutcher tragedy was resumed in the police court before Stipendiary Worman Wednesday afternoon. The court room was crowded.

Mr. F. A. McCully representing the crown said:—"We were in hopes that we would be able to submit to your consideration at this enquiry that which we supposed might be the most important evidence of Maggie Dutcher. The medical attendants and the crown have consulted in the matter and are all of the opinion that in her present state of health, to subject her to the strain of an examination might possibly prevent her permanent recovery. She is rapidly recovering but is still in a very nervous and weak state and especially nervous. Any excitement from the examination might be attended with very serious effects upon her. Therefore the crown decided not to call her at this stage, and we will have no more witnesses to call."

Mr. R. Barry Smith for the prisoner consented to dispense with the reading of the depositions already made. The reading it is understood would have taken three full days.

The prisoner was then called upon to plead and he pleaded "Not guilty."

Mr. R. Barry Smith for the prisoner, said his client had the utmost confidence in the statements of the crown as to the judgment of the medical attendants, but the prisoner would like to have a most important witness—Maggie Dutcher. We would especially desire to have her evidence, and therefore suggest an adjournment for eight days. We also would like to have Dr. Chandler or some other doctor appointed to see whether in his opinion Maggie Dutcher is fit to be called, or able to give testimony. If she is able then we wish her called.

Stipendiary Worman.—Why don't you call your own client; you have him right on the spot.

Mr. R. Barry Smith said he proposed to call no other evidence. He had a right to call her irrespective of the medical attendants' opinion but he would not do so. It was therefore he wished Dr. Chandler in the prisoner's interest to see if Maggie Dutcher could be subjected to an examination.

Stipendiary Worman—I do not think the child is fit to come here.

Mr. Smith repeated his request and said surely he had a right to have her evidence.

Stipendiary Worman—You have the common report as to the child's condition.

Mr. Smith—I know that common report is lying surmounting to the square inch about John Sullivan. I therefore do not suppose there would be any objection to Dr. Chandler seeing her.

Stipendiary Worman.—Nobody objects to Dr. Chandler's being in a very good man. Mr. McCully after referring to the an-

Can't Eat

This is the complaint of thousands at this season. They have no appetite; food does not relish. They need toning up the stomach and digestive organs, which a course of Hood's Sarsaparilla will give them. It also purifies and enriches the blood, cures that distress after eating and internal misery only a dyspeptic can know, creates an appetite, overcomes indigestion and cures nervous headaches, that seem to have almost "a magic touch."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier—is the best after-dinner pill, aid digestion.

dacity of the request made by the prisoner's counsel said, as the medical attendance have decided that it would be prejudicial to have Maggie Dutcher examined at this stage, the crown does not propose to have the life of this witness jeopardized. The crown has made every effort to protect this child and secure the best possible care; and is especially anxious to have her called. A further adjournment is impracticable. It would not be right to subject this child now to the severe strain of an examination. Her recovery so far was wonderful considering she suffered from concussion of the brain.

Mr. Smith.—All I desire is an adjournment. Dr. Chandler, that Dr. Chandler would be able to see the child. This is the first opportunity I have had to make a request.

Stipendiary Worman.—You have had several opportunities of putting your client on the stand. Any request to call a witness would have been gladly granted. If you insist upon calling Maggie Dutcher I shall send for Dr. Ross.

Mr. Smith.—Then I demand the presence of Maggie Dutcher.

The court adjourned for fifteen minutes to permit of Dr. Ross being called.

Dr. Ross appeared but was not sworn. He was questioned by the stipendiary.

Q.—Do you consider it would be safe to put her on the witness stand today?

Dr. Ross.—No! She is not fit; she gets very much excited when talked with. She is getting along well, but her recovery will take time.

Q.—Do you think a delay of eight days will make a difference?

A.—It will make a slight difference but not appreciable. The examination will prejudice her health.

Mr. Smith.—Under the circumstances I press for an adjournment.

Mr. McCully.—Do you consider, Dr. Ross, that any excitement during the next few weeks would permanently injure her?

A.—It would be very apt to put her back. Q.—Especially as it is concussion of the brain.

A.—Yes.

Mr. Smith.—That is perfectly satisfactory to me and I ask an adjournment for eight days.

Stipendiary Worman.—I do not think it is proper to call the child now and shall not adjourn.

The prisoner, John Sullivan, was then committed for trial at the next court court.—Transcript.

A INCURABLE CURED.

AFTER TREATMENT IN CANADA'S BEST HOSPITAL HAD FAILED.

One of the Most Remarkable Cases on Record—Ten Years of Intense Suffering From Acute Rheumatism—The Whole Body Contracted and out of Shape in Every Limb—Again Restored to Active Life.

From the Newmarket Advertiser.

We suppose there is not a resident of Newmarket who does not know Mr. J. A. Moffatt, who does not know of his years of suffering and who has not heard of his release from a life of helplessness and pain through the medium of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Indeed we doubt if in the annals of medicine there is a more remarkable restoration than has been accomplished in Mr. Moffatt's case, and he deems it his duty to mankind to make the facts known through the columns of the Advertiser.

Ten years ago Mr. Moffatt was working in the Newmarket Hat Factory. Through the influence of the damp room and possibly some carelessness in regard to his health, he was attacked with a rheumatic cold which eventually settled in his limbs. For some years he was an almost constant sufferer from rheumatic pains and spent much money in treatment for the trouble, but with no result beyond an occasional temporary release from pain. Finally to make matters worse he was attacked with malaria and rheumatic fever. He was then forced to go to the Toronto general hospital when it was found that he was afflicted with rheumatism. During the first six months in the hospital he was under the treatment of the staff electrician, but the powers of electricity entirely failed, and after a consultation of physicians it was deemed advisable to perform an operation. Six weeks later a second operation was performed. The operation proved successful only in so far as it afforded temporary relief. He remained in the hospital from November, 1886, till January, 1892, and with all the modern remedies and appliances known to the staff that was equipped the institution no permanent relief could be obtained. He was then advised to go home, partly in the hope that the change might prove beneficial, but instead he continually grew worse, and in March, 1892, was again forced to take to his bed, and those who knew of his condition did not believe he had long to live. At this time every joint in his body was swollen and distorted, and he suffered the most excruciating agony. If a person walked across his bedroom it intensified the pain as though he was being pierced and torn with knives, and if touched he would scream aloud with agony. In this state of hopeless suffering he remained bedfast for eighteen months, all the while using all manner of medicines from which relief might be hoped for. Then he was put under the treatment of a celebrated Toronto specialist, but with no better result. After this last experiment failed, he determined to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, at the same time discontinuing all other treatment. At the end of three months there was a very noticeable improvement in his condition, and so much so that his mother thought he could be lifted out-side. He was still so weak, however, that he was only able to remain up a few minutes at a time. When taken back to bed he felt a sudden tingling sensation going up from his toes and through his joints and spine. The next morning when he awoke the pain had left the body and lodged in the arms, and then for some weeks the pain flitted from place to place in the arms and then disappeared, and he has not had a particle of pain since.

He was taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and slowly but surely regaining his strength. Then an invalid's chair was procured, and he was wheeled out, eventually he was able to wheel himself about. The continued use of the Pink Pills constantly added to his strength, and then the chair was discarded for crutches, and then the crutches for a cane. At this time (Sept. 1895) Mr. Moffatt had so far recovered that he was a frequent contributor to the columns of the Advertiser and procuring a horse and buggy he was engaged as local reporter for the paper. The once utterly helpless invalid is now able to go about, and to get in and out of his buggy without any assistance, and is at his post of duty whenever called upon.

These facts that after years of suffering and helplessness Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved successful after all other remedies and the best of medical treatment had utterly failed. With such marvellous cures as this to its credit it is no wonder that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the most popular medicine with all classes throughout the land, and this case certainly justifies the claim put forth on its behalf that it cures when other medicines fail.

NEWS NOTES.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Canadian Premier, Mr. Laurier, is expected in London, accompanied by Sir Richard Cartwright, Minister of Finance, next week. The questions of assisted emigration, a fast mail service and imperial aid towards enlarging the defence works on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts of the Dominion will be the leading topics discussed between the Canadian ministers and Mr. Chamberlain.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Alfred Austin, poet laureate, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday. When he was fishing in the Tweed his boat was upset in the rapids and he was thrown into the water. There was no one near him at the time, and when assistance finally did arrive Mr. Austin had been in the water some time. When he was rescued he was in a complete state of exhaustion, but he is now recovering.

Indian Trouble Expected.

The Indians may use force to expel their Chief.

It has been rumored around town the last few days that there has been some half breeds stirring up the Indians at Eel Ground and Red Bank to take the war path. But the farmers, fishermen and residents of the country and towns need not feel uneasy, as the government depends on Captain Maltby and his efficient Field Battery to protect the people.

So farmers and townspeople come and buy your Christmas Groceries and Provisions the same as usual, but at greatly reduced prices. Talk is cheap, I act, the difference is great, your money back in anything not satisfactory.

Samples given at store or mailed to any address. And now old friends and customers another year will soon have passed away and I again greet you. I am sure you will be interested in what I am going to offer.

My stock of Groceries consists of everything found in a first class city store, consisting of fresh Valencia layer raisins in 7, 14 and 28 pound boxes, put up expressly for family use.

16lbs. of Currants for $1.00
3 cans Corn for 25 cts.
3 cans Peas for 25 cts.
3 cans Tomatoes for 25 cts.
or assorted at the same price.

All these are Fall stock and I guarantee it fresh. Canned Goods of every description.

New Turkish figs, candied citron, orange and lemon peel, spices of all kinds, dates, apples, in Bishop Pippins, Baldwins, Greenings, and Gravensteins, oranges, Florida and Valencia lemons, Malaga grapes, Cape Cod cranberries at 30 cents per gallon.

Toss from 15 cts. good to 35 cts. extra. Ground coffee and coffee beans ground fresh. Sugar in lump, pulverized, granulated and bright yellow. Barbados Molasses, white wine and cider vinegar. Sage and summer savory, evaporated and dried apples, hand picked beans 3 1/2 cts. per pound, rice, flavoring extracts, cheese and crackers in variety, toilet soaps, oysters fresh in raws and stew or on the half shell any by the bucket for 25 cts. delivered to any house in the town district and by pint shelled.

PROVISIONS.

I keep in stock a large supply of hams and bacon, fresh and salt pork, corned beef, lard in tins from 3 to 5 lbs., 20 lb. pails of lard for $1.75 or 50 cts. per lb., cottonseed in 1 lb. tins and in bulk, Hopkins sausages, finnan haddies, 10 lbs. of choice silver skinned onions for 25cts, dried codfish, smoked and salt herring; choice herring for 15cts per dozen, Turkeys very low, in geese and chickens I defy competition. One ton of choice butter, flour in all grades, rolled oat meal, corn meal, buckwheat flour, fresh graham flour, American and Canadian oil, kippered herring, McDonald's tobacco in different brands of cut and smoking, cigars, cigarettes and an incomparable variety of pipes, just the thing for Christmas presents.

Crockery, glass and china ware, fancy cups and saucers with different letterings, and an endless variety for household use as well as suitable for presents, and in individual gifts, cups and saucers for adults and children and fancy goods suitable for presents which must be seen to be appreciated.

TOYS! TOYS!

In endless variety, ranging in price from 5 cts. to $5.00, with booklets, fancy stationery, Bibles, prayer and hymn books, companions, etc.

CONFECTIONERY.

A most choice assortment of confectionery ranging from 9 cts. per lb. good to 50 cts. per lb. extra, in 1 lb. boxes for presents, so come along boys and get a 1 lb. box of Ganong's best assorted creams and chocolates. Everybody is invited to call and examine for themselves. My prices will be found low and the best quality of goods. A liberal discount to the wholesale trade.

Thanking my numerous customers for their past patronage and soliciting their patronage for the next year,

I remain yours respectfully,

THOS. RUSSELL.

P. S. There are some grocery stores that are holding back waiting for my prices and they will attempt to sell at reduced prices on some articles, but if you compare prices all around you will find that I am the lowest in the town. As I buy for spot cash and take my discounts I am in a position to sell lower than the whole lot of them.

THOS. RUSSELL.

THE EMPTY SLEEVE.

While engaged with a commercial house in the city of Cleveland, Ohio, my business frequently called me to many of the important cities and towns of the state. During one of my regular visits to a town in the southern part of the State, which was noted far and wide for the bad character of its saloons and their proprietors, the following incident occurred:

The train was late when I arrived at L—. After a hasty supper I was invited by the hotel proprietor and his wife to accompany them to a temperance meeting. The lecturer, they said, 'was stirring up the whole town.' The meeting had commenced before we arrived, and I noted from the crowded condition of the church, the stirring songs, and the pointed remarks of the speaker, that a deep interest was prevailing in the temperance movement in this community.

When the speaker concluded his address, an invitation was extended to all those who desired not only to sign the pledge, but also a petition to Council to suppress, by a local option ordinance, all of the saloons of the place. Quite a number went forward and signed both papers, among whom were a few of the most temperate people of the town.

Just previous to the closing of the meeting, there arose in the central aisle a tall, dignified gentleman, elegant in appearance, with a pleasing, cultured face, who walked slowly to the speaker's desk, and asked permission of the chairman to occupy a few minutes before closing. His request was cheerfully granted. He said:

'I did not come here to-night to speak, only to listen; but as I always take a deep interest in the temperance work, I could not be quiet until I added a few words to encourage some of those who signed the pledge to-night. My personal experience may help someone to be firm, and sustain them in their efforts to reform.'

'I was born in the town of W—, and received a careful college education. My father started me in business, which proved a success from the start. I gathered around me many warm friends. I married a cultured and refined young lady of a neighboring town, whose parents were highly respected. We had two children, a son and a daughter. I was popular, and was called to reside at nearly all of the social and political meetings of the place, and on my way home I was frequently induced to partake of a glass of wine or beer. The habit became fixed, and I found that much of my time was taken up at the club and social meetings, and that my hours for going home were late.

'My wife spoke kindly to me about my drinking. I replied, 'Never fear; I will never become a drunkard.'

'But as time went on I became more and more a slave to drink, until my friends kindly admonished me. I noticed that my business was being neglected. It was not long before a receiver was appointed to wind up my business affairs. My store, goods, beautiful home, and all went to liquidate my debts, and I was obliged to move into a very poor house on a side street. Now nearly all my former friends deserted me, and I could secure no work, for I could not be trusted.

'At this point I lost my pride, and went about the town and through the streets half drunk, slovenly and shabby, being a complete slave to the drink habit. Then I sold all of the few things which we had been able to keep to procure whiskey and food.

'When my cash was gone I joined a gang of sewer and street workers, and shovelled gravel. Each day my dinner paid went to the saloon, and at night we went there, going home hungry, tired and cross, until I made my home almost a hell.

'One night I had been drinking more than usual, and when I arrived at home I was angry. I saw a light through the window, but the door was locked. I tried to get in, but could not. I pounded at the door in rage. The only response I could get was from my boy, who appealingly said, 'Go away, papa; you won't hurt mamma, will you?' I said, 'You will see if this door is not opened soon.'

'Groping around the door my hand fell upon a hatchet which had been used for cutting kindling-wood that day. With this I broke in the lower panel of the door. From within I saw a small arm extended through the opening, and heard a small voice crying, 'Papa, go away.'

'In my anger and desperation I caught that arm, and with one blow of the hatchet I cut it off, and threw it on the ground.

'The frantic screams of my wife and children soon brought a number of the neighbors and also a policeman. After a severe struggle, with blood dripping from my face I was taken to prison. My boy was conveyed to an hospital, and my wife and daughter were cared for by loving friends. When morning came I was sober, and then I fully realized what I had done. Oh, what would I have given to have replaced that arm and recalled the horrid deeds of that night!

'Court was in session, and I was taken before the judge for trial. I asked no lawyer to defend me. I told the judge that I was guilty. My wife was not to blame, and no sentence was too severe to impose upon me. I was responsible for the crime which whiskey, beer and the saloon keeper assisted me to accomplish. But with the help of a higher Power I would never drink another drop again. I was placed in prison, and had ample time to reflect. I exclaimed, 'O, what a wretch I have made of myself! and I determined to make a man of myself among my own friends at home.'

'I was released in time through the influence of my friends. I came to my own town, sought my wife and children, and asked their forgiveness. I once more commenced business in a small way, and have succeeded from that day until this. I now have the happiest, pleasantest home in America. I desire to introduce my son, Fred, will you please come forward?'

Immediately a fine-looking man arose from his seat and stepped forward to the platform; and as the interested eyes of the audience rested upon the youth, they knew the story to be true, for at his side hung an empty sleeve. His father placed his hand upon the boy's shoulder, and said, 'This is the best of my living; and Fred added, 'My mother, sister and myself all say that father is the best man on earth.'

Looking around, I could not see a dry eye in the audience. Then there were hundreds anxious to reach the desk to sign the papers, and later on every saloon in the place was wiped out.—J. B. King in New York Witness.

A MODERN CRUSADE.

BY WILLAMETTA A. PRESTON.

'Why, boys, what are you doing? You act as if you were up to mischief. I am sure I did not mean to interrupt anything,' apologized Lotta Rowne, as she looked down at the half-dozen boys in the edge of the woods, into whose midst she had come, and who had a decidedly disturbed look.

'It's no matter, Miss Lotta,' said Fred Lee gallantly. 'We were only reading together. Then he flushed guiltily.

'That is a delightful occupation,' replied Lotta, noticing the flush. 'Won't you let me join you for half an hour. I am very fond of listening. Were you the reader, John?' as he seemed to be keeping the place in a book.

'You wouldn't enjoy our reading Miss Lotta,' said Fred, quickly. 'Boys' stories are not nice for ladies.'

'I always read Frank's books,' replied Lotta persistently. 'Won't you gratify me? I would like to rest a while.' She was sure now that there was something wrong

You are weak, "run-down," health is frail, strength gone. Doctors call your case anemia—there is a fat-famine in your blood. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil with hypophosphites, is the best food-means of getting your strength back—your doctor will tell you that.

He knows also that when the digestion is weak it is better to break up cod-liver oil out of the body than to burden your tired digestion with it. Scott's Emulsion does that.

about it, and how else could she so easily find out what and how to stop it.

Thus urged John opened the book and proceeded to finish the chapter. Lotta listened in amazement. No wonder they had been unwilling to read before her. Scenes of murders, robberies and violence, interspersed with oaths and vulgarity. Could it be possible that they often indulged in such things? It seemed probable they were so interested. Lotta resolved that something should be done. At the close of the chapter she thanked them, and started hopeward, trying to plan some remedy for such things, but could think of nothing suitable.

When she reached home, she found Frank had already returned from his excursion, so she told him of her perplexity. She had great faith in this fifteen-year-old brother's knowledge of boys.

'You are just right, Lotta, those are horrid books. I can see they are hurting the boys. They are all the time acting out some stirring part. No, I never read them, thanks to you and papa, and all the good books you get me.'

Lotta and Frank had many private consultations together, then their father and the minister were taken into confidence.

Good Mr. Allontown was shocked at the story Lotta told, and proposed to make it the subject of the next Sabbath evening's talk to young people, but Frank objected.

'Don't do that, please, Mr. Allontown, they would be sure to think Lotta spied, and it would make them mad. I know how it can be managed, if you will help.'

'Frank understands how to manage boys,' said his father proudly. 'He is quite a leader when he chooses to try.'

'Well, let us hear your plan, my boy,' said the minister, gently.

'We'll have a crusade against it, sir. I can fix it so they will think it's nothing but fun.'

'That's a good idea,' approvingly. 'Now how can I help?'

'By fixing up a reading room, just for the boys—only don't let them know about it—with books, papers, games and things for evenings.'

'I see,' said his father, smiling. 'You will succeed, I am sure, and the room will be ready.'

At school the next day Frank gave a tiny note to each of a half-dozen boys, whom he knew he could trust. 'Come to the cove after school.' They all obeyed the summons which was nothing unusual. Some of their best good times had been the result of similar notes.

'What's up now, Frank?' asked Charlie Dale.

'You are, aren't you? Up in history. Don't you know all about the knights of the Round Table?'

'And how they went on crusades? Yes we do,' chimed in Hiram Stockwell.

'Don't you want to undertake such an expedition?'

'Against what and where?'

'Whom for? There ought to be a distressed damsel.'

'For Sister Lotta, and against—well, I guess I won't tell you just now—but her cause is a good one.'

Their consent was soon obtained, then Frank told them that they were to oppose bad literature. Fayal Kenton wanted to have a mock battle upon the subject, but the others would not agree. Moral suasion should be their weapon, they decided, and there was to be no time lost.

It would take too long to tell of all the different ways they took to accomplish their purpose. One or another was on the watch continually. If a few of the 'bads' started off by themselves, one of the knights was sure to join the party, and tell some story of adventure, or he would produce a paper and read them some amusing incident. Once
