THE FINNEGANS.

Arrah, Biddy, be aisy ashore, Sure you needn't be feared as a Finnegan, For if they should come to our shore,
His back mighty quick they'd thin agen.
Och we're ready all over the land,
And our boys they'll fight, but never run,
With a musket and sword in one hand,
And a blackthorn stick in the other one.

There's Roberts, O'Mahoney and all,
They keep a sharp eye for the tin agen, While Sweeney's to open the ball,
The dirty old one armed Finnegan.
With an Irish army so grand, We're told now by one Mr. P. Day, Who their arms will take in their hands And then they will come and take Canada.

But when a man's eye is shot out It's a mighty hard thing to shoot in agen;
So they'll take my advice without doubt,
And keep far away from their Finnegan.
For our boys are loyal and true,
'Pon me conscience I'm proud to be sayin it, And they'll slaughter the Fanian crew, With their muskets, their broadswords and bayonet.

But Biddy, a jushla mooree, I hope that you may never sin agen, Till an Irish grand army you see, Led on by old Sweeney the Finnegan.
Ar coose they're a patriot band, Who, if they'd a chance, would get frisky
dear,
And they love their own dear native land, But the thing they love most is her whiskey
dear.

Now we've powder and arms galore,
In a fight we'd be certain to win agen,
And sure, as I told you before,
That would just be the end of the Finnegan.
Arrah, Biddy, agra, they won't dare, At last, I don't think there's a fear as yet,
And though they may give us a scare, Bedad, that's the last we will hear as yet.

THE PHANTOM SHIP.

(CONCLUDED.)

A NAVAL STORY.

BY WALTER THORNTON.

In an incredibly short time the "Spitfire" was under sail, and availing herself of every glimpse of moonlight, and every puff of the useful out-and-in wind to reach the second light, the hidden lagoon that concealed the mysterious vessel of which Powis was in pursuit.

He is a fine lad but it's all of no use, said Gasket to himself; she'll bolt just as we get near, and before we can tack and get a gun-ready, off she'll be, well out at sea, laughing at us, and as full of slaves as an egg is full of meat. These Portuguese fellows are as quick and as cunning as monkeys.

Hitherto all had gone well. The "Spitfire" had come to the mouth of the second light, and no enemy had yet appeared. Powis gave orders to arm the men and lower a boat. His object was to pull along the shore of the light, and search for the concealed lagoon.

The men, whose superstitious fears were still working, hesitated for a moment to step into the boat. The Scotchman muttered something about "snares of the devil," the coxswain, more practical, said there was no captain, and they'd be overmatched, and the quartermaster won't go.

But I do go, shouted Gasket, leaping into his place, and shame on all towards! Why, lads, if we trap this slaver we're all made for life. Come, altogether; quietly, no shouting.
The men, ashamed of their fears, now took their places, muffled their ears, buckled on their cutlasses, and loaded their pistols. Four men only were left in charge of the ship.
When a pistol was fired from the boat, they were to reply with a gun as a signal of attention.

The men pulled swiftly and silently into the light, keeping as close as possible to the covered sides of the lagoon.
They did not dare yet to venture into the mid-channel to even obtain a glimpse of the further shores, where the phantom ship (if it were indeed manned by flesh and blood) might be lying.

The boy-captain, at the last clump of bush, cried "Ship your oars!" and there they lay crouched, peering through the bows of the hugo poisonous-blossomed trees that trailed into the water.

It was by this time day-break. Imagine the brave lad's rapture, on standing up in the boat, and parting the boughs with his hands, to behold, not five-hundred yards off, the phantom ship, a low-lying, rakish Portuguese schooner, painted greyish white, the better to elude observation at night (grey being a peculiarly vanishing colour). It was at anchor. The only men visible were two or three negroes, leaning half-deep over the stern, fishing, and, lockily, with their backs turned towards the place where the "Spitfire's" boat lay hid.

Powis turned round, his face beaming with triumph, and in a cautious whisper communicated the glorious news to Gasket and the boat's crew.

Gasket was as brave as a lion, but he was unaccustomed to act on his own responsibility, and he dreaded the rashness of a midshipman.
He coughed, looked hard at a special rowlock, rubbed it with his great horny fist, and muttered something about—

Spouse it's a lambentade. What can we do agin forty or fifty Portuguese? and as for blacks, they can fire muskets as well as white men.

Cha! said Powis, speaking between his half-clenched teeth. Do you think my brains are all leather like yours? Don't I see that the rascals are gone ashore to bring slaves from the barroos? There can be no one on board but a nigger and a sick man or two. I tell you, man, I go alone, and swim to the phantom ship if you are all cowards.

This first damp powder of the old sea-dog's spirit. There is a drop of Cain's blood at the bottom of most men's hearts.

Avast your cowards! he cried, pulling out his big cutlass and running his big thumb along the edge in a most business-like way.— It was a bad omen for the slaver's men.

Powis's eyes glistened as he seized old Gasket's hat, and took off his own cap and waved it. Then he and the men took out their pistols and looked to the locks or tightened their belts, and slung round their cutlasses smug-ger for their hands.

The boy-captain's speech was spoken in a low but firm voice. "Men," he said, "we may be doing a safe thing or we may be going to our death, for even if we do get the slaver safe, our captain and comrades may not return in time if the dogs dare to try and get her back.
If we die, let us die like Englishmen, true to our God and our Queen; we must hold together, tack to back, and no flinchers. If we fall, they will at last say in England that we deserved to have succeeded. God be with us, and guide us to victory, for our cause is a good cause. Now, then, men, give way with a will,
and board her!"

Pull straight for her, Spitfires! cried Gasket, and out the boat flew from between the branches as if it was driven by steam.

The water was scarcely splashed by the oars. It seemed only an instant after that the boat lay alongside the phantom ship, and headed by Powis, the boarders dashed like wild cats at the main chains, and sprang on deck with an English hurrah that was full of cheerful courage.

Three or four frightened negroes and an old Portuguese sprang to arms, but they were cut down or beaten down in a moment. One Spitfire was shot in the arm; but with the exception of that casualty, and a knife-cut on Powis's sword-wrist, the daring assault suffered no hurt. The phantom ship was their own.

Well done! cried Powis, wrapping a handkerchief round his wrist. The dog tried hard to get at my throats, but I gave him No. 3, Gasket, and that'll last him for some time.— See to him; he mustn't bleed to death. The ship is our own. Now get up the anchor, for we must hurry and move her off.

He fired his pistol, and the "Spitfire" answered with a gun as agreed on.
We haven't too much time, he said, for directly the blackguards hear the row they'll be after us. Now, with a will, lads, and I'll take a captain's bayonet, for I've got my left hand all right still.

And they did work with a will. They found some slaves in the hold, and made them too help. In an incredibly short time the vessel's head was turned, and she and the Spitfire were working down the lagoon, towards the old morning pace.

And now, in the hull of excitement, the boy's nature began to crop up again. Once more on board the Spitfire and down in the cabin, he danced horripops and tugged Jeykell. Nor was Jeykell one bit less delighted.

Only think, Jeykell how pleased the governor and master will be to hear how we took the slaver.

The doggy old fellow, shouted Jeykell.
Alloa me, gentlemen, to propose the health of Captain Powis, of the Phantom Ship; that's the style.

But the boy's talk was broken by the entrance of Gasket. He looked hurried, and rather pale with excitement.

Mr. Powis, he said, it's all up; here's the dirty blackguards of Portuguese on us as thick as thistles—lads, lads, lads, sir, ramrapping away like so many sore bears. You can see then poking their noses out of the bight there, as thick as bees at a swarming.

Cold was awake in a moment, and ready for the emergency. If there was not a Nelson, there was at least the making of a Collingwood in that Pickle of the Phantom Ship.

We'll warn the dogs, Gasket, he said leaping up and calmly loading a revolver that lay on the table before him. What we've contrived to get we'll contrive to keep. It can't be long before Captain Willoughby and our messmates return. Be quick, men, then, and give them a shell before the canoes spread out in the bay; we shall have them more in a lieu now.

There was no time to lose. When Powis got on deck, five or six canoes crammed with shouting negroes, mulattoes, and piraticallooking Portuguese sailors in Panama hats, were rowing furiously out of the tree-shaded mouth of the lagoon, and pulling straight for the Spitfire.

Give it to them hot; don't throw away a shot! cried bold Powis to the men at the guns.
Well thrown, but a little over them.
The next moment the second gun thundered out.

Famous, by Jove! cried the boy-captain.
This time the shot ploughed into the second canoe, and shattered it into fragments. The leading canoes halted to assist the wounded and pick up the survivors.

The Spitfire gave a shout of triumph.— The next moment the storm burst full upon them. The slaves rallied and bore down upon them in full force. From the first canoe a dozen rough, black-muzzled fellows dashed at the Spitfire's side and attempted to board her.
Powis met them with pike and cutlass, and drove them back over the ship's gunwale after ten minutes hand-to-hand fighting. Twice Gasket's cutlass saved the boy-captain's life.

Three of the oldest hands, urged on by Jeykell, kept at work all the time with a central gun, to keep off the other in secret.

It was hard work, and the men were apparently spent, when a discharge of musketry arose into the air from the foot of Elephant Hill.

God be thanked! cried Powis, as he leant faint and wounded against a gun-carriage.— We are saved, boys. Give it to them again!
Blow the dogs out of the water! Now, all at once.

The pirates had fled, leaving one-third of their number dead in Elephant bay. But Captain Willoughby had not arrived a moment too soon. Great was his astonishment and delight to discover that his "Pickle" of a midshipman had captured the famous phantom ship.

Powis is now, we rejoice to say, first lieutenant of H. M. S. A., one of the finest vessels in the Channel Fleet.

A HUSBAND'S PRESENT.

It was a bitter cold night on the 25th of December. The snow lay deep on the frozen earth, and the bright moon, riding half way up the heavens, lent crystalline lustre to the scene. In the high road a short distance from a quiet, reposing village, stood the form of a human being. His garments were scant and tattered—by far insufficient to keep out the bitting frost; his frame shook and trembled like the ice-bound boughs of the weeping willow that grew near him, and his face, as the moonbeams danced upon it, exhibited the footprints of the demon—Intemperance. Poor, wretched, and debased he looked—and such, in truth, he was.

Before him, at the end of a neatly fenced and trellised inclosure stood a small cottage.
It was elegant in its simple neatness, and just such a one as the humble lover of true comfort and joy would seek for a home. The tears rolled down the bloated cheeks of the poor inebriate as he gazed upon the cottage, and at length, as he clasped his hands in agony, he murmured:

"Oh, thou fond home of my happier days, thou lookest like a heaven of the past! Beneath thy roof I was married to the idol of my out, and within thy peaceful walls, God gave me two blessed children. There, peace and plenty were mine, and love and joy. My wife —God bless her gentle soul—and was happy then; and my children—may heaven protect them—laughed and played in glistenous pleasure. Gladness played upon us then, and every hour was a season of bliss. But I lost them as a fool loses his own salvation! Six years have passed since the demon that I took to my heart, drove me from your sheltering roof. And those six years! Oh, what misery, what anguish, what sorrows, and what degradation have they brought to me, and my poor family! Home, health, wealth, peace, joy and friends are gone, all, all gone! Oh, thou fatal cup—no, I will not blame thee, it was I—I who did it. Year after year, I tampered with thy deadly sting, when I knew that destruction lurked in thy smile. But, but—and the poor man raised his eyes to heaven as he spoke, there's a room on earth for another man—and I will be that man!"

Within the only apartment of a miserable and almost broken down hovel, sat a woman and two children—a boy and a girl. The cold wind found its entrance through a hundred crevices, and as its biting gusts swept through the room, the mother and the children crouched nearer to the few embers that still slumbered on the hearth. The only furniture was four poor stools, a rickety table and a scantily covered bed; while in one corner, nearest to the fire-place, was a heap of straw and tattered blankets, which served as a resting place for the brother and sister. Part of a tallow candle was burning on the table, and by its dim light one might have seen that wretched mother's countenance. It was pale, wan and wet with tears. The faces of her children were both buried in her lap, and they seemed to sleep peacefully under her prayerful guardianship.

At length the sounds of foot-steps on the snow-crust struck upon the mother's ears, and hastily arousing her children, she has them to their lowly bed, and hardly had croached away beneath the thin blankets, when the door was opened and the man whom we have already seen before the pretty cottage, entered the place.
With a trembling and fearful look the wife gazed up into her husband's face, and seemed ready to crouch back from his approach, when the mark of a tear drop upon his cheek caught her eye. Could it be, thought she, that that yearly drop was in truth a tear? No—perhaps a snow flake had fallen there and melted.

Once or twice Thomas Wilkins glanced up on the point of speaking some word to his wife, but at length he turned away and silently un-dressed himself, and very soon his weary limbs had touched the bed he was asleep.

Long and earnestly did Mrs. Wilkins gaze upon the features of her husband, after he had fallen asleep. There was something strange in his manner—something unaccountable; surely he had not been drinking, for his countenance had none of that vacant, wild, dejected look that usually rested there. His features were rather sad and thoughtful, than otherwise; and—O heavens, is it possible—a smile as if of prayer, issued from his lips while he slept.

A faint hope, like the misty vapor of approaching morn, flitted before the heartbroken wife. But she could not grasp it—she had no foundation for it, and with a deep groan she let the phantom pass. She went to her children and drew the clothes more closely about them, she then knelt by their side and after imprint-ing on their cheeks a mother's kiss, uttered a fervent prayer in their behalf, and then sought the repose of the pillow.

Long ere the morning dawned, Thomas Wilkins arose from his bed, dressed himself and left the house. His poor wife awoke just as he was going out, and she could have called him, but she dared not. She would have told him that she had no fuel, no bread—not anything with which to warm and feed the children; but he has gone, and she sank back upon her pillow and wept.

The light of the morning came at length, but Mrs. Wilkins had not yet risen from out her resting place. A soft and footsteps were heard from without, accompanied by a noise, as though a light sled were being dragged through the snow. The door opened and the husband entered. He laid upon the table a heavy wheaten loaf, a small pail, and a paper bundle; then from his pocket he took another paper parcel, and again he turned toward the door.
When next he entered he bore in his arms a load of wood and three times did he go out and return with a load of the same description, then bent over the fireplace, and soon a blazing fire snapped and sparkled on the hearth. As soon as this was accomplished, Thomas Wilkins bent over his children and kissed them; then he went to the bedside of his wife, and while some powerful emotion stirred up in his soul and made his chest heave, murmured:

"Kiss me Lizzie." Tightly that wife wound her arms about the neck of her husband, and as though the love of years had centered in that one kiss, she presented it upon his lips.

"There—no more," he uttered, as he gently laid the arm of his wife from his neck; these things I have bought for you and our children; and as he spoke he left the house.

Mrs. Wilkins arose from her bed, and tremblingly examined the articles upon the table. She found the loaf, and in the pail she found milk; one of the papers contained two smaller bundles—one of tea and one sugar; while in the remaining parcel she found a nice lump of butter.

"O," murmured the poor wife and mother, as she gazed upon the food that was thus spread out before her, whence came these? Can it be that Thomas has stolen them? No, he never did that! And then that look—that kiss—those kind, sweet, sweet words! O, my poor, poor heart, raise not a hope that may only fall and crush thee!

"Mother," at this moment spoke her son, who had raised himself upon his elbow, "is father gone?"
"O, tell me, mother, did not he come and kiss me and little Abbie, this morning?"

"Yes, he did," cried the mother, as she flew to the side of her boy and wound her arms around him.

"And mother," said the child, in low, trembling accents, while he turned a fearful look to his parent's face, "will not father be good to us once more?"

That mother could not speak—she could only press her children more fondly to her bosom, and weep a mother's tears upon them.

Was Lizzie Wilkins happy as she sat her children down to that morning's meal? At least a ray of sunshine was struggling to gain entrance to her bosom. Toward the middle of the afternoon, Mr. Abel Walker, a retired sea captain of some wealth, sat in his comfortable parlor, engaged in reading, when one of his servants informed him that some one at the door wished to see him.

"Tell him to come in," returned Walker.
"But it's that miserable Wilkins, sir!"
"Never mind," said the captain, after a moment's hesitation, "show him in. Poor fellow," he continued, after his servant had gone, "I wonder what he wants. In truth I pity him." With a steady look, Thomas Wilkins entered Captain Walker's parlor.

"Ah, Wilkins," said the old captain, "what has brought you here?"

"The poor man twice attempted to speak, but his heart failed him."

"Do you come here for charity?"
"No, sir," quickly returned Wilkins, while his eye gleamed with a proud light.

"Then sit down and out with it," said Walker in a blunt, but kind tone.

"Captain Walker," commenced the poor man as he took the proffered seat, "I have come to ask you if you still own that little cottage beyond the hill?"

"I do."
"And is it occupied?"

"No."
"Is it engaged?"

"No," returned the captain, regarding his visitor with unconcerned interest; "but why do you ask?"

"Captain Walker," said Wilkins, in a firm and manly tone, even though his eyes glistened and his lip quivered, "I have been poor and degraded, deeply steeped in the dregs of poverty and disgrace. Everything that made my life valuable, I have almost lost. My wife and children have suffered—and God only knows how keenly! I have long wandered in the path of sin. One after another the tender cords of friendship that used to bind me to the world have snapped asunder; my name has been but a foul blot. But, sir, from henceforth I am a man! Up from the depths of my long grave I dragged my heart, and love still has its home within me. I have sworn to touch the fatal cup no more; and in my heart there is no lie. My wife and children shall suffer no more for the sins they never committed. I have seen my old employer, at the machine-shop, and he has even been kind enough to give me an order in advance for necessary articles of clothing, food and furniture. Tomorrow I commence work."

"And you come to see if you could obtain your cottage back again to live in," said Captain Walker; Wilkins hesitated.

"Yes, sir; to see if I could hire it of you to turn the poor man."

EUROPEAN INTELLIGENCE. ARRIVAL OF THE CHINA.

The China, Inzlia, left Liverpool at 10 on the morning of the 17th, Queenstown on the 18th arrived at Halifax at 8.30, p. m. 27th. Has 46 Halifax, and 66 Boston passengers. Late telegrams from Leeds says, in consequence of rumors of expected Fenian outbreak, while a large number of Volunteers and six hundred tradesmen have been sworn in special constables. Secret drilling has been going on among Fenians of Leeds for some time.

Times of the 17th, in announcing that the Reciprocity Treaty between the United States and British North America terminated that day, says American fishermen will be "duly warned, after a fixed time, the exclusion of their boats will be enforced. For this purpose a British war vessel will be stationed to see that the rights of the fishery which revert to the British Crown are not infringed, and also to prevent collisions between the fishermen of the Province and of the United States. In this, as well as in all that relates to Fenianism, Times believes British Government may count on friendliness and courtesy of Johnson's Government.

In House of Lords, on the 16th Earl Grey, in a long speech upon Irish grievances, moved that the House on the 20th should go into Committee on his resolutions to consider the state of Ireland. Debate ensued. Earl Russell deprecated attempt to carry out living remedies proposed by Earl Grey to create unprecedented agitation in country. He preferred gradual and well considered reforms. Grey's motion negatived without division.

Chances of Reform Bill continue subject of active discussion. Conservative journals demand its rejection; others call for amendments. Daily Telegraph declares it is growing clear that Bill will become law. The real crisis of the measure was its first appearance, which it passed safely.

The Bank of England rate of discount, which stood at 7 per cent. since the 22nd ult., was reduced on Thursday to 6 per cent. The date of the introduction of this year's budget is made contingent upon the progress of the Reform Bill. Mr. Gladstone is anxious to pass the latter measure as rapidly as possible, and he will move the second reading on the 12th April. The budget will be introduced on the first available Government night after the motion for the second reading of the Reform Bill has been disposed of.

On an early day, Sir F. Kelly will submit to the House of Commons a resolution in favour of a reduction of the malt tax, with a view to its ultimate abolition. Mr. Dowdeswell, the Conservative member for Tewkesbury, has accepted the Children's Bill, in order to become a candidate for Worcester West, in place of the Hon. F. Lygon, now Earl Beauchamp. A new writ for Tewkesbury has been issued.

The mortality in Liverpool last week was something startling. We are not yet aware of the exact number of deaths registered, but we see from the Registrar-General's report that the mortality in the borough was at the annual rate of 55 per 1000. This excessive rate, however, was probably owing more to general than to local causes, as we notice that very large increase of deaths took place in London and other places. (Thus the deaths in the metropolis were at the annual rate of 31 per 1000; in Edinburgh, 42; in Dublin, 35; in Bristol, 37; in Manchester, 46; in Leeds, 41; and in Glasgow 35 per 1000.)

The continuance of cold and damp weather was one of the principal contributory causes to the excessive death-rate in Liverpool last week. The statement that the strike had ceased amongst the workmen engaged in iron ship-building at Stockton and Middlesbrough was not correct. The platers, riveters, blacksmiths, fitters, joiners, and labourers who desire to participate in the nine hours' movement still hold out, and there is no prospect of the employers giving way.

To-day (Saturday), the festival of St. Patrick, is looked forward to by the Irish authorities with much apprehension, as it is generally believed that serious disturbances, if not an actual Fenian rising, will then take place. In anticipation of trouble, the Lord-Lieutenant is taking steps to provide most effectually against open violence.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Bruce, the Under-Secretary for Home Affairs, stated, in reply to Sir A. Agnew, that the Government had received information confirming the report that the rinderpest prevailed among sheep in several parts of England and Scotland. [The Government has since received the satisfactory assurance that the disease existing among sheep is not the rinderpest.]

At a quarter before five the Chancellor of the Exchequer rose and moved the first reading of the bill framed by the Government for the purpose of amending the representation of the people. In a speech of two and a half hours' duration, the right honourable gentleman described the character of the proposals contained in the bill and the probable result of their operation. We are to have a £7 qualification in boroughs and a £14 qualification in counties. In fixing these limits the Government, Mr. Gladstone says, was actuated by a desire to extend the suffrage so far as it was possible to do so without giving an undue preponderance of power to the working classes. The Government further proposes a lateral extension of the borough franchise by abolishing the ratepayers' clause; placing householders who compound for their rates on a level with ratepayers whose names appear upon the rate books; giving a vote to persons who occupy a part of a tenement and are not separately rated provided they pay £10 a year rent; and giving a similar privilege to lodgers occupying apartments at £10 a year exclusive of furniture. Mr. Gladstone estimates that these changes would add 204,000 to the borough constituencies.

In the House of Lords, on Tuesday, the royal assent was given, by commission, to several bills. The Jamaica Government Bill, the Marine Mutiny Bill, and the National Debt Reduction Bill were read a second time; and the bills granting allowances to the Princess Helena and Prince Alfred were read a third time and passed.

In the House of Commons, the adjourned debate on the Reform Bill was resumed by Mr. Lowe, who candidly declared that he should resist the progress of the measure to the utmost of his ability, because he believed it was unnecessary and uncalled for, and because it would introduce a strong democratic element into the constitution of the country. Mr. Villiers (President of the Poor-law Board) followed Mr. Lowe and endeavoured to expose that gentleman's ingenious sophistries. Mr. Villiers contended that the proposed reforms were imperatively required. Messrs. Phillips, Leatham, A. Peel, Allen, Acland, and Fawcett spoke in favour of the bill; and Messrs. Schreiber, Long, Miller, and Whiteside against it. Mr. Bright contradicted the freely circulated statement that he had taken a part in the framing of the bill, and avowed his desire to obtain household suffrage.

The House of Lords will adjourn next Friday for the Easter holidays. Their lordships will re-assemble on April 12. The business transacted in the house on Thursday was unimportant. In the House of Commons, the President of the Board of Trade stated that a measure was under consideration to enable joint-stock companies, under the act of 1862, by special resolution, to alter the value and number of their shares, retain their capital intact. The details of the bill had not been finally decided upon. In reply to a question, the Chancellor of the Exchequer stated that when the house went into committee on the Church Rates Abolition Bill he would endeavor to frame clauses to carry out the suggestions which he had made on the second reading. In reply to Mr. Dent, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said that the Government had not yet had time to consider how compensations was to be paid for cattle compulsorily slaughtered previous to the passing of the Cattle Diseases Act. On the motion for going into committee on the Parliamentary Oaths Bill, the Home Secretary announced that the Government would agree to the first clause of the oath of which Mr. Disraeli had given notice, and also the second if he would omit the word "defend," which was objected to on behalf of some members who had already been allowed to make an oath of affirmation, and would prevent a uniform oath being taken in the case; but the Government could not agree to the last clause, with respect to the Queen's supremacy. Mr. Disraeli agreed to omit the word "defend." The house having gone into committee, Mr. Disraeli, on clause 1 being read, moved to substitute the following oath:—"I do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to her Majesty Queen Victoria. I do faithfully promise to maintain and support the succession to the Crown as the same stands limited and settled by an act passed in the reign of King William III., entitled 'An act for the further limitation of the Crown and better securing the rights and liberties of the subject.' I do further solemnly declare that her Majesty is, under God, the only supreme governor of this realm, and that no foreign prince, prelate, state, or potentate hath any jurisdiction or authority in any of the courts within the same. So help me God." The two first clauses having been agreed to, the Attorney-General opposed the last clause. Sir H. Cairns supported the amendment on the "strongest constitutional grounds." After some remarks from Lord E. Howard against the amendment, and Mr. Whitbread and Mr. Disraeli in support of it, a division took place, when the amendment was rejected by 236 votes against 222. The other clauses were then agreed to, and the bill passed through committee. In committee of the whole house, a resolution was adopted sanctioning a new tariff for the Isle of Man.

EXCOMMUNICATION OF THE BISHOP OF NATAL.—The last mail from Natal brings the formal excommunication of Dr. Colenso which took place on Sunday, the 6th of January, at the cathedral of Maritzburg, at the early service, when the deans read out the sentence as follows:—"In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ—We Robert, by Divine permission metropolitan of the Church in the province of Capetown, in accordance with the decision of the bishops of the province in synod assembled do hereby, by the authority of Christ committed us, pass upon John William Colenso, D. D., the sentence of the greater excommunication, thereby separating him, from the communion of the Church of Christ so long as he shall obstinately and impudently persist in his heresy, and daring to exercise the office of a bishop within the province of Capetown. And we do hereby make known to the faithful in Christ, that being thus excluded from all communion with the Church, he is according to our Lord's command, and in conformity with the provisions of the xxxiii. of the Articles of Religion to be taken of the whole multitude of the faithful; as a heathen man and publican." (Matt. xviii. 17, 18.) Given under our hand seal, this 16th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.—R. CAPETOWN." We learn also that Dr. Colenso has found a new conductor in his unauthorized ministrations at the cathedral in the person of the Rev. Mr. Nisbet, a military chaplain attached to the forces in Natal.

AUSTRIA. Vienna journals assert there has been no interchange of diplomatic notes on question of Duchies between Austria and Prussia, since February 7th. Vienna telegram says convention with Mexico, in reference to recruiting in Austria for Austrian volunteer corps, Mexico, was signed on the 15th, by Count Mensdorff, Mexican minister.

FOUR-FOLD MURDER IN NEW ZEALAND BY A SOLDIER. Last mail we called attention to the diminution of crime in Auckland. We wish we could renew our statement; but, unfortunately, we cannot. A four-fold murder has been committed by a discharged soldier of the 65th regiment, named Stack, the victims being his mother-in-law and three brothers-in-law. This horrible murder was committed at Otahuhu in the latter end of September last; and it was not until Friday last that any of the bodies were discovered. He had decamped on the Monday previous, and was arrested at Kaipara by an old sergeant of his regiment, an lodged in goal yesterday (Wednesday). The persons murdered were named Finnigan, and lived at Otahuhu, on one of the pensioner allotments, which they enjoyed as heirs of a pensioner settler sent out here as the foundation of the colony. Stack married Finnigan's daughter, who died recently. He murdered in one night the old woman and her three sons, aged respectively 57, 17, 15, and 12 years, and buried them in the garden. Over the old woman's body he had planted a plot of carrots, which were well-grown. The murder must have been completed in one night; and, strange to say, it was perpetrated in a room of a double house, separated from the apartment occupied by another family by a single board partition. The woman living in the adjoining room said she was at home the night of the murder—the night when the entire family disappeared—and heard and heard neither groans nor any unusual sound. The murderer burnt the clothes of his victims. His object appears to have been to inherit the house and acre of freehold in Otahuhu that belonged to his late wife's family. He battered in victims' skulls with a hammer, and in addition cut the eldest youth's throat. The body of the youngest lad has not yet been found.

From what we have heard there is some reason to connect Stack with the murder of the two men of the German military settler company whose bodies were found tomahawked and stripped, one near Otahapu and the other near Cambridge, six or eight months ago. At the time, it was laid to the charge of the Marries; but Stack is known to have disposed of some articles belonging to the murdered men. Strange to say, no inquiry was ever instituted into this matter, which, if done at the time, might have saved the lives of four innocent persons.—(Daily Southern Cross, Dec. 29.)

FRANCE. The Empress of the French continues to attend the meetings of the Cabinet Council, and to take an active part in the affairs of the State. There is a rumor in Paris that her Imperial Majesty has decidedly espoused the Liberal side on home politics, but it is difficult to ascertain the foundation for such an assertion. A contradiction has been given to the statement that the French Government had consented to prolong the extradition treaty with this country. The sentiments of the Roman Catholic clergy in this country in reference to the question of Parliamentary oaths have not escaped observation in France. The Paris correspondent of the Morning Post, who alleges that upon the continent there is known of the pretensions and practices of the Catholic Church than can be understood in England, endeavours to show that the policy of Rome towards temporal sovereigns has not changed nor ever will. Rome does not sanction or acknowledge in any country an oath which gives supremacy to the reigning sovereign; nor can any oath be framed in England which would be acceptable to the Catholics without impeaching the authority of the Queen.

SPAIN. Rumored General Olanco will replace General Dule in Captain Generalship, Cuba. General Cordova succeeding Olanco in directorship of infantry.

The Standard. ST. ANDREWS, APRIL 4, 1866.

We have devoted a large space in our present issue to extracts from our English papers. The debate on the Want of Confidence motion is not yet concluded. Mr. Needham was speaking in favor of Government. The Woodstock Railway Bill to enable town to take $20,000 stock agreed to.

The Volunteers are performing garrison duty, and in the afternoons are put through a number of movements by Lt. Col. Willis; on Saturday and Monday last they were exercised in street protection and fighting, and made quite an imposing appearance, acquitting themselves with credit. The Artillery Company are drilled twice a week in big gun practice. We learn that Major James is to be appointed Paymaster to the Western Division, under Col. Anderson, who is at present at St. Stephen.

The election of Parish Officers was held on Tuesday; the list of officers will be published in our next number. Many persons have expressed a desire to abolish these meetings.

CHANCERY PRACTICE.—We have received from Geo. Bosford, Esq., (the compiler,) a copy of the Rules and Statutes regulating the practice of the Court of Chancery in this Province, also Supreme Court Rules made since 1847. Such a work will be no doubt, well patronized by the Profession. We do not feel in a position to speak of its merits.

We regret to announce the sudden death this morning, of B. R. FITZGERALD, Esq., J. P. He was an active Magistrate and respected throughout the County.

The Report of the Chief Superintendent, upon the state of the Common, Superior, Training, Model and Grammar Schools of New Brunswick, for 1865, has been laid on our table. It is carefully and ably drawn up, and contains much useful information; from it we learn that a fair measure of success has attended the operations of teachers during the year. The evils arising from dissensions amongst the inhabitants of rural districts, subdividing the districts, and establishing additional schools, are forcibly pointed out. The number of teachers employed during the last year was 826, of which 598 were trained, and 228 untrained. The "Chief" we are pleased to notice, deals very fairly and independently with the evils arising from incompetent teachers being employed, and suggests a remedy. The "miserable apologies for schools rooms in several important towns," is commented upon, and the principle of Direct Assessment ably and convincingly advocated. With reference to the Grammar Schools the Chief Superintendent says—

"Even the most popular amongst them, and by reason of that very popularity, are not just Grammar Schools ought to be. The attendance at these is very large, but many of the pupils, in point of age and attainments, are fitter subjects for the Parish than the Grammar Schools, especially as the law makes no provision for Assistants in the latter. Others again are unpopular and have but small attendance, which is not always compensated by superiority of attainments in the pupils. There are other defects besides these, but these are deemed sufficient to show that all is not right. It may be thought I have drawn too gloomy a picture, but it is surely best where evils exist to bring them to light that, if possible, they may be removed. The Grammar Schools were at one time well adapted to the circumstances of the Province; I doubt very much if they are so now. If they are to continue, they should be provided with licensed Assistants, and both they and the Parish Schools placed under one and the same local supervision."

Inspector Morrison in his Report strongly advocates direct taxation for the support of schools; and makes the following apposite remarks with reference to the books used, says that—

"Teachers along the frontier, sensible of the inferiority of our own, have been compelled to adopt American books even at a greatly increased price. Now it is quite unnecessary that I should point out the objections to school-books got up under a strong non-nominational bias, and the evils resulting from the use of American books are quite as obvious. How can a teacher comply with the directions of the School Act, and impress upon the minds of the children committed to his care, the principles of loyalty, love of their country, and a universal benevolence, from books whose teachings are intended to loosen in the minds of our children, their feelings of loyalty to the British throne, and to stir up hatred to British usages and institutions; books, such as these, ought not to be tolerated in any of our schools, much less in those of them which owe their very existence to the unparalleled munificence of our Government."

The Fifth Annual Report of the Crown Land Department for 1865, and the Tenth Annual Report of the Post Office Department for 1865, were received this morning.

Quickest run on record.—The Bge. "Jessie," Capt. B. R. Grant, of this town, has just made the passage from New York to Cardenas, Cuba, in 6 days and 7 hours. The "Jessie" was built last year at Bay Side by O. B. Rideout, Esq.

MILITIA GENERAL ORDERS. HEAD QUARTERS, FREDERICTON, 28th March, 1866. Commissions signed by His Excellency the Commander in Chief: First Battalion Charlotte County Militia. Eber S. Polleys, gent to be Ensign, 28th March 1866. Third Battalion Charlotte County Militia. Lieutenant John Farmer to be Captain, 28th March, 1866. By Command. G. J. MAUNSELL, Lt. Col., Adj. Gen. of Militia. FREDERICTON, March 29. The Attorney General introduced a bill to authorize the sale of real estate of Idiots, Lunatics, &c. A bill to enable the Magistrates and Judges to try causes in local rates and taxes, agreed to. A bill to abolish property qualification of members of General Assembly debated at length and progress again reported. Correct principle of measure generally admitted,—supported by Costigan, Needham, Landry, Sutton, Hatelyway and Wetmore.—The practical working of the measure thought to be wrong, and the bill was opposed by Smith, Oty, Lindsay, Dr. Thomson, McMillan, Boyd, Lewis and Wilnot. FREDERICTON, April 2. Several bills were introduced to place by roads in different districts, on the great road list. All referred to the Chief Commissioner to report on the same next Session.

MEDICAL ASSISTANCE.
THE GREAT AMERICAN REMEDY

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF.

THE GREAT EXTERNAL AND INTERNAL REMEDY STOPS THE MOST EXHAUSTING PAIN IN A FEW MINUTES.
RAPIDLY CURES THE PATIENT.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

Proves its superiority to all other Medicines at once.
ITS FIRST INDICATION To relieve the sufferer of PAIN, no matter from what cause it may originate, or where it may be seated.

If in the Head, Face, or Throat; If in the Neck, Spine, or Shoulder; If in the Arms, Breast, or Side; If in the Joints, Limbs, or Muscles; If in the Nerves, Feet, or Feet;

Or in any other part of the body, its application to the part or parts where the pain exists will afford immediate relief.

IF SEIZED WITH PAIN
In the Stomach, Dizziness, or Nausea; In the Head, Spine, or Liver; In the Teeth, Ears, or Throat; In the Brain or Nervous System;

One teaspoonful of RADWAY'S READY RELIEF in a teaspoonful of water will, in a few minutes, relieve the patient to ease and comfort.

If Lame, Crippled, or Bed-ridden; If Pained, or Irritated; If Bruised, Wounded, or Cut; If Struck, Injured, or Shocked; If Run Stroke, or seized with Fae-If Weak in the Spine or Back;

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

should be applied to the part or parts afflicted. It is steadily relieving the patient from pain, and quickly restoring him to his normal state. It is a powerful remedy, and its use is recommended in all cases of acute pain. It is a powerful remedy, and its use is recommended in all cases of acute pain.

FEVER AND AGUE.

Parasites deposited in the Malaria of Ague, or if seized with Chills and Fever, will find a positive Antidote and Cure in RADWAY'S READY RELIEF.

It is a powerful remedy, and its use is recommended in all cases of acute pain. It is a powerful remedy, and its use is recommended in all cases of acute pain.

WHEN SEIZED WITH

CHOLERA, or Diarrhoea, or Flux; Dysentery, Cholera, and Spasms; Typhoid, or Typhus; Scarlet, Typhoid, or other Fevers; Diphtheria, Diphtheria, or other Fevers; Inflammation of the Stomach or Bowels;

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

SHOULD BE TAKEN INSTANTLY.
One dose will stop the pain, in continued use will, in a few hours, cure the patient.

HOW IT CURES.

The secondary indication of RADWAY'S READY RE-LIEF is to cure the patient of the disease or ailment that causes the pain; this it accomplishes rapidly and radically. It is the patient's friend, and it is the patient's friend.

PREVENTION BETTER THAN CURE.

There is no occasion for SICKNESS.
When you first feel pain, take a teaspoonful of the READY RELIEF, in water, or apply it to the part where the pain exists.

ALL MALIGNANT DISEASES.

Friction wearing of their processes, and if brought before they become severely introduced within the system, will be readily expelled.

SIGN OF SICKNESS.

Headache, Pain in the Limbs, in the Stomach, Bowels, and Kidneys—Cold Chills, and Hot Flushes, Costiveness, Burning Stomach, Nausea, Dizziness, Dimness, Loss of Appetite, Headaches, Giddiness, &c., &c., are premonitory signs of Malignant Diseases. One teaspoonful of RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will immediately give him ease and secure him the first aim and safeguard of the READY RELIEF.

SOLDIERS.

Every soldier should carry with him a supply of RADWAY'S READY RELIEF. It supplies the place of all other medicines; and as a beverage, a teaspoonful of the Relief, in a wine-glass of water, is a more pleasant and stimulating than brandy, whiskey, or bitter.

SICKNESS PREVENTED IN THE NEW MAINS REGT.

Both Maine regiments, Serjeant C. P. Lord, writes that RADWAY'S READY RELIEF saved the regiment from death while quarantined at Tybee Island, S. C., when working in the trenches, creating fortifications. Every man suffered with Typhoid and other Fevers, Fever and Ague, Diphtheria, Dysentery, Rheumatism, was cured by the use of the READY RELIEF.

In all cases use the READY RELIEF. Take no other. See that the signature of RADWAY & Co. is on the outside label of each bottle. Every agent is supplied with a new and fresh stock. Price 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists, Merchants and country storekeepers.

NEW ENGLAND SETTLEMENT IN

NEW BRUNSWICK TRACT OF LAND IN NEW JERSEY.

THE NEW ENGLAND SETTLEMENT IN NEW BRUNSWICK TRACT OF LAND IN NEW JERSEY, was first settled in 1739, and has since that time been the scene of one of the most successful agricultural enterprises in the world. The soil is fertile, the climate is healthy, and the water is pure. The land is well adapted for the raising of wheat, corn, and other grains. It is also well adapted for the raising of stock, and for the cultivation of the soil.
The land is now being offered for sale, and is being sold at a very low price. The price is $20 per acre, and is paid in three equal installments, the first being paid at the time of purchase, and the other two being paid at intervals of one year. The land is being sold in lots of 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 200, 500,
