The Potter-Wood Conspiracy

Mister Wood, Mister Wood,
It is well understood
That you're not the right sort of clay;
For it really is unfeeling,
Against reciprocal dealing,
To work in that Pottering way.

Your position requires
That the telegraph wires
Should, at least, from suspicion be free;
Then to use them in rude,
For faction and feud,
When nations desire to agree.

This land needs you food,
Mister Telegraph Wood,
And you're under some slight obligation
To keep honest wires,
Not make them liars,
To promote premature annexation.

The time may yet come
That is long'd for by some,
While others will strive to resist it;
But playing such tricks
Will get you in a fix,
And make us unite to prevent it.

Then tell Consul Potter
His place will be better
Than most prudent men would desire;
And tell him, in fine,
He had better resign,
Then bid us farewell, and retire.

And when we're inclined,
We'll speak out our mind,
If our renegade statesmen shall make us;
But when you shall see,
O. S. Wood, that won't be,
Till our Queen and her statesmen forsake us.

COSBUN SANDY.

A Family Soem.

At a farm house in the county of Wayne, a precocious and inquisitive juvenile who had been to the Post Office, rushed into the house with a Lyons's Republican in his hand, when the following dialogue ensued:

Juvenile—Pa, what do these figures and letters mean that are stuck on the edge of the Republican with a little strip of yellow paper?

Pa—Why that's the name by which it is directed to me.

Juvenile—Yes, I know about the name, but here it says June '57. What does that mean?

Pa, a little fidgety—Why that, my son, is some mark the printers have—they understand it.

Juvenile—And don't you know what it means?

Pa—Never mind; I don't you be too inquisitive.

Juvenile—Well, anyhow, old Toby, who was in the Post Office said it meant five years, and you had better write up, and was as able as any man in the township, and printers couldn't live without money any better than other men.

Mother—There John, I've told you a hundred times that it was a shame that you didn't pay for your paper. I declare, I blush for shame every time I take up that paper and think how faithfully it comes and supplies us with news, and how you keep the printers out of their dues. I hope now that drunken old Toby and your own children talk about it, you'll be ashamed of yourself and pay up. You ought to make the Editor a present of a turkey to pay the interest.

John slipped out of the house and was gone an hour. When he returned he looked ten years younger as he informed his wife he had asked the Postmaster to frank a letter and had enclosed eight dollars—paying up old scores and something in advance. John slept soundly that night, without the night mare he had always fancied himself hidden through the air by a printer's devil. He has never been troubled with it since.

May a man run into debt? asked a modern Boswell of an imaginary Dr. Johnson. "He may," was the characteristic reply, "provided he don't mind walking into prison."

Sheridan, a scholar, wit, and spendthrift, being pursued by a tailor to pay at least the interest on his bill, answered that it was not his interest to pay the principal, nor his principle to pay the interest.

True piety and morality are inseparable, or rather they are the same spirit differently manifested. Piety is love with its face towards God, and morality is love with its face towards men.

Discontent is a sin that is its own punishment, and makes men torment themselves; it makes the spirit sick, the body sick, and all enjoyment sour; it arises not from the condition, but from the mind.

A Good Story of a Pretty Widow.

The following story is told of an Alabama Sheriff:

"Court was in session, and amid the multiplicity of business which crowded upon him at the time, he stopped at the door of a beautiful widow, on the sunny side of thirty, who by the way, had bestowed smiling glances upon the Sheriff's mistress. He was admitted and soon the widow appeared. The confusion and delight which the visitor's arrival had occasioned, set off to a greater advantage than usual, the captivating charms of the widow. Her cheeks were the beautiful blended tint of the apple blossom; her lips resembled rosebuds, upon which the morning dew yet lingered; her eyes like the quivers of cupid, the glances of love and tenderness, with which they loved, resembling arrows that only wanted a fine beam (pardon the pun) to the full execution. After a few common-place remarks, the Sheriff said to the matronly matron, 'I have an attachment for you.'"

A deeper blush than ever, mantled the cheeks of the fair widow—with downcast eyes whose glances were centered upon her beautiful face, half concealed by the flowing drapery, gently patting the floor, she, with equal candor, replied—'Sir, the attachment is reciprocal!'

For some time the Sheriff maintained an astonished silence; at last he said—"Madam will you proceed to court?"

"Proceed to court!" replied the lady, with a merry laugh; she shaking her head, she added:

"No, sir, though this is Leap Year, I will not take advantage of the license therein granted for my sex, and therefore greatly prefer that you should proceed to court."

"But madam, the justice is waiting."

"Let him wait; I am not disposed to hurry matters in such an unbecoming manner; and besides, sir, when the ceremony is performed, I wish you to understand that I prefer a minister to a justice of the peace."

"Madam," said he, rising from his chair with solemn dignity, "there is a great mistake here; my language has been misunderstood; the attachment of which I speak was issued from the office of Squire Jones, and commands me to bring you instantly before him, to answer a contempt of court in disobeying a subpoena in the case of Smith vs. Jones."

Here we drop the curtain.

Good Spelling.

A pious, illiterate deacon, a certain town in Massachusetts, gave a stage driver a slip of paper, with which he wished him to call at a bookstore. The driver called at the store and handing the memorandum to the clerk said: "There is a couple of books which Deacon B. wishes you to send to him. The clerk, after a careful examination of the paper, was unable to make head or tail of it, and passed it to the bookkeeper who was supposed to know something of letters, but to him it was Greek. The proprietor was called, and he also gave it up in despair; and it was concluded best to send the memorandum back to the deacon, who was supposed he must have sent the wrong paper. As the coach arrived at the village inn, the driver saw the deacon waiting on the steps.

Well, driver, said he, did you get my books to-day?

Books! no, and a good reason why, for there couldn't a man in Worcester, read your pen marks.

Couldn't read 'em? Let me see the paper.

The driver drew it from his pocket, and passed it to the deacon, who taking out and carefully adjusting his spectacles, held the memorandum at arm's length, exclaiming as he did so in a very satisfied tone:

Why it is as plain as the nose on your face, To S-A-M-B-U-X-two psalm books; I guess his clerks had better go to school a quarter. And here the deacon made some reflection on the ignorance of the times and want of attention to books by the rising generation, which would have been all very well if said by somebody else.

A Difficult Case.

A correspondent of the Drawer is involved in domestic perplexities. He writes:—I got acquainted with a young widow, who lives with her step-daughter in the same house. I married the widow; my father shortly after fell in love with the step-daughter of my wife and married her. My wife became the mother-in-law and also the daughter-in-law of my own father, and my wife's step-daughter is my step-mother, and I am the step-father of my mother-in-law. My step-mother, who is the step-daughter of my wife, has a boy, he is naturally my step-brother, because he is the son of my father and of my step-mother; but because he is the son of my wife's step-daughter so is my wife the grandmother of the little boy, and I am the grandfather of my step-brother. My step-mother is also a boy; my step-mother is consequently the step-sister of my boy, and is also his grandmother, because he is the child of her step-son; and my father is the brother-in-law of my son; because he has got the step-sister for a wife. I am the brother of my own son who is the son of my step-mother; I am the brother-in-law of my mother, my wife is the aunt of her own son, my son is the grandson of my father, and I am my own grandfather—Harper's Magazine.

Loss of the "Van Cappellan."

HORRIBLE DEATH AND SUFFERING OF THE CREW.

The following is a statement by one of the five survivors of the ship Van Cappellan, the loss of which vessel was announced in our last week's paper. The survivors have arrived in the Victoria Docks from Ouleta. The statement shows that the poor fellows underwent the most fearful sufferings, several of the unhappy crew were drifting about in a boat for fifteen days, dying from exhaustion and the want of food. The Van Cappellan, Capt. Sewell, left Calcutta in the early part of February for Hull, and the voyage proceeded as usual, nothing particular occurring until the morning of the 19th of March, when the vessel was in lat. about 8. N. lon. 68 E. At 5:30 a.m., all sail being set, ship on the port tack, a heavy squall of rain, blowing her over on her starboard beam end. All the endeavors of the crew failed to right her, and she shipped water so fast, that the boat crew were prepared to make a raft in readiness for leaving the ship. At seven a.m. the ship disappeared, sinking down in the port tack, and Mr. L. Stone, the cook John Herman, seaman M. French, A.B., and George Allan, a seaman, being the only survivors. The vessel was a small boat, spruce, hence, Dr. Robert Hamilton, the carpenter, thus describes what follows:—

"With great exertion we managed to get the boat turned over. We baled her out, and picked up the survivors, who were clinging to spars, &c. We succeeded in picking up three pumpkins, a small pig, and four ducks. Seeing a ship we pulled after her, but the breeze springing up we lost sight of her, leaving us to our fate. To each man we served out an inch and a half of pumpkin, a piece of raw pork, and a piece of duck. On the 17th, a lighted ship with painted ports, pulled for her, but the breeze increasing we were unable to get at her. The sun was very hot, and we had but little or no clothing to protect our bodies, having cast them off to save our lives. We suffered very much from want of water, and the port being spoiled, could not get any. There was a number of sharks alongside, and we tried to get one, but were unsuccessful. On the 18th, cloudy, with a light breeze, sun very hot, served out to each man some pieces of pumpkin; tried to catch a shark in a running bowl with a piece of the spoiled pork, but without success. On the 19th, cloudy, no rain. Thinking the water fresher below the surface, I flung an oar over the stern of the boat, and went down and drank freely, but without finding any relief. 20th, cloudy; caught a shark and drank its blood, which relieved our thirst a little, and partook of a small piece of the shark. On the 21st, cloudy, no rain. On the 22nd, William Allen, A.B., George Liberty, A.B., Joseph Pask, and Hugh Howard, steward, perished in washing the meat of the shark, but they became delirious, and died in the evening. 23d, Cloudy, with a light breeze. Employed ourselves in cutting a gutter in the side of the boat, to catch the fresh water should it rain. 23d, Cloudy, with a few drops of rain. 24th, Clear, sun very hot; no sail in sight. Bathing frequently to keep ourselves cool, but the salt water was making our skin very sore. 25th, Dark and cloudy weather. Hawkins died, and was buried in the forenoon. On the 26th, dark and stormy. Served out one and a half inch of pumpkin. This being the last morsel of food in the boat, and no water left, things began to look very dismal. Thomas Price, second officer, died. 27th, Cloudy. The Worcester Bay State proprietor and his crew are swallowing like some old-fashioned chimney? Because they have choked flow.

Why do people doubt the merits of Mr. Buchanan—or any other but their President? Because his excellency (His Excellency) is not apparent (a parent).

A contemporary of ours protests most earnestly that he is always as good as dead. No doubt he is, but his word is good for nothing. Says Pratfall:

The darkest scene we ever saw, says a contemporary, as a darky in a dark cellar with an extinguished candle, looking for a black cat that was't there!

A teacher of one of the Sunday school was lecturing a class of little girls on the influence of pious instruction in the formation of youthful character.

'Ah, Miss Caroline,' said he to one of the class, 'what do you think you would have been without your good father and pious mother?'

'I suppose, sir,' answered Miss Caroline, 'I should have been an orphan.'

'Your hand annoys me exceedingly,' said the Prince of La Roche to a talkative person who was constantly sutting the action of the world as he sat at his dinner.

'Indeed, my lord,' replied the babler, 'we are so crowded at the table that I do not know where to put my hand.'

'Place it upon your mouth,' replied the prince.

Dogget, the actor, was a man of great humanity, as will appear by this anecdote. His landlady's maid, having taken an opportunity to go into his chamber one afternoon, and get her throat with one of his razors Dogget, when told of it behind the scenes, said to her: 'What a great pity!'

'Zounds, I hope it was not with my best razor!'

I say.—Dr. Sharp, of Hart Hall, Oxford, had a ridiculous, though very common habit of prefacing a sentence with the words 'I never see a student graduate having minkieped this peculiarity, the doctor sent for him to give him a jobation, which he began thus:

'I say, they say, you say, I say I say; when, finding the ridiculous combination, concluded by bidding him quit the room.

Dignum and Moses Kean, the mimic, were both tailors and intimate friends. Bannister met them under the Piazza, in Covent Garden, arm-in-arm.

'What a fine fellow your brother,' said he, 'but I think of a play of Shakespeare's.'

'Which of them, Bannister?'

'Why, Measure for Measure.'

The Charleston Advertiser says a whale of the hump back species was driven ashore at Nantux, some few days since, and upon being cut open a pair of boots marked "J." in a good state of preservation, were found in his entrails. It is supposed that the boots, as they were marked "J." belonged to Jonah, and were taken off and left behind him when he made his exit from the fish.

THE SMITHS.—A wag who called aloud in the pit of Drury Lane Theatre, 'Mr. Smith your house is on fire,'—whereupon a hundred and twenty-five Mr. Smiths rose up and said, 'Thank you, it is Mr. John Smith's house, that ten sat down; leaving a preponderance of a hundred and fifteen Johns in a net amount of one hundred and twenty-five Smiths.

YOUNG LADIES' ACADEMY OF THE GREY SISTERS.
OTTAWA CONVENT.
Under the Patronage and under the light Reverend Dr. GUIGUES.
THIS Institution, established some twenty years ago, is well calculated by its position between Upper and Lower Canada, to afford the greatest facilities to French and English Young Ladies, for acquiring a complete education in their mother tongue, and in the English language, and that of the sister languages.

Nothing has been neglected that could contribute to their intellectual and the ample and honorable testimony constantly rendered, proves the effort to have been successful.

Those who are employed to develop the intellect and cultivate a literary taste, are a well regulated Post Office and a Weekly Newspaper, are attached to the Institution.

In the Commercial course a practical education is excited by a Bank and Commercial Rooms, in which the pupils are employed.

It is a particular point of the rule that some of the recreations of the day, are each alternate week, devoted to the study of the French, for those who are capable of speaking both languages.

Those who study Music will find everything that could secure them rapid and brilliant success; for this, it suffices to say that no fewer than Six Teachers are devoted to this Department, which embrace the Harp, Piano, Organ, Meisodan, Organ, &c.

A similar number of Mistresses preside over the departments of Painting, Needle, French, English, Painting, and the different kinds of Drawings, Embroidery, Wax Work, Artificial flowers, &c. The Dramatical is not permitted, as respects the pupils, at all, as it is the obligation of the mother and practice of Domestic Economy.

No distinction of Religion is made in the admission of pupils. Children of different denominations, though obliged to conform strictly to the order of the House, are not required to assist in the Religious exercises of the community.

Circulars containing particulars can be obtained by addressing the Lady Superior.

NO FARM WITHOUT A BAROMETER.
—Every farmer who has a Barometer, as if his valuable instrument was in general use in this country there would be very little hay and grain lost, and the farmer would be enabled to observe its indications the right time to cut it can be told almost to a certainty.
The Barometer is now placed within the reach of every one as I am now selling a beautiful article a solid Rosewood, marking alterations in the column to the 100th of an inch, with correct thermometer attached, for $75.
The following is the best proof of the excellence of this instrument.
"CERTIFICATE."
"I do hereby certify that I have had one of Mr. Charles Smallwood's in the Observatory for some months, for comparison, and I find the indications very correct; the tube is clear and well filled, and he scale and the other parts of the instrument are well got up. I can confidently recommend such Barometer as well adapted for popular observation."

Insurance against Fire on all liberal terms. Every description of Life Assurance business transacted on liberal terms, and at very moderate rates compared with the London and Lancashire. No Fire or Life Insurance Office hitherto established either in Europe or America, has attained to the success of the London and Lancashire, in point of income or strength of position, in the same space of time. Its progress has been entirely unprecedented. The increase of Government duty in 1853 over 1852 was larger than any London Office, and the percentage of increase more than doubled that of any other Fire Office in Great Britain.
New property insured for 3 years at very low rates.

DR. GREENE'S

A FAMILY MEDICINE.

For as more than half the diseases "to which flesh is heir" originates from colds so this may be considered a general preventive of all diseases, by removing the primeval cause.

Dr. Ward's
DEAD SHOT
WORM CANDY.

(CERTIFICATE.)
Albany Medical College }
December 15, 1882.

I do hereby certify that I have analyzed Dr. Ward's Dead Shot Worm Candy, and to the public I would say that it contains nothing that is in the least injurious to the youngest infant. They are entirely vegetable, and possess those truly antihelmintic qualities which above all others are preferable as exterminators of the common Tape Worm.

J. V. P. QUACKENBUSH,
Prof. of Obstetrics and diseases of Women and Children

This Medicine has been prepared by the proprietor for a number of years; has been used with the most decided success in numerous families of the first respectability, and has received the approval and recommendation of several eminent medical gentlemen. The most alarming symptoms of the disease arising from the prevalence of worms in the intestines have been speedily and entirely removed by the use of the VEGETABLE WORM CANDY.

Dreadful indeed are the effects of these pernicious vermin on the constitution, destroying the appetite, vitiating the nourishing principles, and their certain consequences are, indigestion, emaciation, a stoppage of the growth, and often followed by consumption and decline. Even where worms are not discharged, this medicine acts as a gentle and safe domestic physic—clearing the passages of whatever is noxious, introducing a healthy cycle into the constitution.

This is a purely vegetable preparation, and contains nothing that is injurious to the smallest infant, and children will eat them as quickly as common candy.

Price 25 cents.
