BENNETT BURLEIGH'S STORY.
New York, Dec. 21.—A dispatch to the Herald from London gives the following account of the battle of Tugela
River, which was sent to the London Daily Telegraph by Bennett Burleigh, its correspondent in the field.

The action which was fought on Friday, Dec. 15, between the British forces and the Boers, was a very severely-contested affair. Gen. Buller, who commanded, was repeatedly under a deadly fire. Surgeon-Major Hughes, of his staff, was killed, while Lieut. F. H. S. Roberts was wounded, dying later. Other officers had narrow escapes, their horses being shot under them.

The object of Gen. Buller's advance was to force the passage of the Tugela, carry the Boer entrenchments, and open up a road to Ladysmith
across the river.

The British force, comprising the first battalion of the Connaught Rangers, the first battalion of the Royal Irish Rifles, the first battalion of the Durham Light Infantry, and the first battalion of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, was sent to ford what is known as Bridle Drift, west of Doornkop.

Gen. Buller's brigade, consisting of the second battalion of the Devonshire Regiment, the second battalion of the Border Regiment, and the second battalion of the East Surrey Regiment, was sent to support the first brigade and cross the river near the iron bridge.

Gen. Lytton's brigade, which was composed of the second battalion of the Cameronians, the third battalion of the King's Royal Rifle Corps, the first battalion of the Durham Light Infantry, and the first battalion of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, was sent to support the first brigade and cross the river near the iron bridge.

The British cavalry and field guns were stationed on either wing. The main body were posted in a central position on the west side of the railway, while Col. Long, with his artillery, went to the east side of the railway, and the rest of the infantry, Gen.
Hildyard sent ahead the Queen's Royal West Surrey on the right, and the Devons on the left of his front, while the Hants and the Buffs, the Connaught Rangers and the Dublin Fusiliers, were sent to support the first brigade
and cross the river near the iron bridge.

PRAYER FOR A RACE HORSE.

Dean Hole, of Rochester, England, tells of a very innocent and gentle creature who went to a Yorkshire parish, where the parishioners bred horses and some times raced them. He was asked to invite the prayers of the congregation for Lucy Grey. He did so. They prayed three Sundays for Lucy Grey. On the fourth the clerk told the curate he need not do it any more. "Why," said the curate, "she is dead."

"No," said the clerk, "she's won the steeplechase."

DEBS AND HIS OPINIONS

The Great Social Reform Advocate Talks to Londoners.

His Schemes for the Betterment of Mankind.

Small but Appreciative Audience Greeted the Noted Labor Leader.

Eugene V. Debs, the champion of the rights of the workingman, and the advocate of social reform, spoke last night in the Grand Opera House upon the subject of "Labor and Liberty." His audience was not large, but his hearty approval of his theories and remarks was amply evidenced by the applause which frequently interrupted his speech.

The chair was occupied by President A. S. Johnston, of the Trades and Labor Council. In introducing Mr. Debs he said that it was the wish of the council to eliminate politics from municipal affairs. He briefly outlined their platform.

Mr. Debs was well received. He commended the union, and its aims, and said that if possible he would have every workman a member of some union, to enjoy its benefits and share in its aspirations.

He said that the competitive system under which the work of the world was done was responsible for the low wages and lack of work of today. In the manufacturing world, with the best of machinery at the command of capital, it was the man who paid the least wages who was able to sell the most goods. The world's producers were the wage-workers. In the past forty years a man's productive capacity had increased twenty-fold, on account of better mechanical aids, but he did not get twenty times as much for it, nor did he have to work only one-twentieth of the time. The easier it was to produce a certain article, the keener was the competition in its production.

Man's consuming capacity had increased. Over-production was based on under-consumption. At present one man does two men's work, but he does not consume for two men. The day of individual success had departed, and it was no longer possible for a poor man to amass a fortune, as it was 50 years ago. The tendency was for large fortunes to grow larger, while the great mass of the people became more and more dependent on the few who owned the middle class would be extinct before many years had gone by. The man with small capital would be swayed by the trusts, and competition would eventually be merged into combination. The trust was but one link in the endless chain of progress. This tendency to concentrate would result finally in the people assuming control of the trusts and operating them for the benefit of the masses. People had long been trying to regenerate corporations by law, but corporations had such a powerful interest in the question of whether or not these laws should be passed, that every statutory enactment to control trusts had failed. The trust was simply the large tool of production. All owners of trusts were opposed to competition, and combined for protection, but not for production. This was the cause of large fortunes on one hand and starving thousands on the other. The trust could not be abolished. The evil in connection with them was in their private ownership. The trust was a blessing in disguise. In manufacture, business and agriculture, the big and strong were swallowing up the smaller concerns, and the final result of that system would be an economic oligarchy.

Because a man was mentally superior to others, that gave him no right to amass a fortune at the expense of others. A large fortune was simply the evidence of a crushed competition. Up to a certain point a man controlled his money; beyond that his money controlled him. He instanced cases where the evil effect of a long succession of wealthy generations was apparent. The man who owned the money, the man who controlled the system would be an economic oligarchy.

The speaker believed that the world belonged to the people in it. Trusts were the result of the competition, which he considered equally against the interest of the whole people. The profitable investment of small capital would be an impossibility within five years. Business failures today meant the disintegration of the middle class. Socialism was not popular. Christ was a socialist. He Doctors now agree that consumption is curable.

Three things, if taken together, will cure nearly every case in the first stages; the majority of cases more advanced; and a few of those far advanced.

The first is, fresh air; the second, proper food; the third, Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil with hypophosphites.

To be cured, you must not lose in weight, and, if thin, you must gain. Nothing equals Scott's Emulsion to keep you in good flesh.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, Toronto.

Jumping into Consumption

This may sound odd but it is none the less true! Carelessness after violent exercise has been the cause of many a breakdown of the lung structure. An athletic person is apt to push a "trifling" cold—until he eventually finds that it is no trifling matter. At the first feeling of sore throat or cough, stop at once, and take Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites. It will at once strengthen the weak parts and heal those which are inflamed and sore. For over 50 years it has been an effective and safe remedy for the whole purchase money will be refunded if it does not fulfill its promise.

A young friend of ours—who is quite a local celebrity for his prowess in the athletic field—caught cold by foolishly lying on the grass, without any extra covering, when much over-tired. His mother's trunk advised him to take something for it that night, but he laughingly refused saying—"It will be far enough by the morning."—So it was, in the morning far enough advanced to be alarming. Happily he knew of the merits of Scott's Emulsion and sent for a bottle at once. It did not fail him. It checked his ailment immediately, but it took over three weeks to thoroughly cure him.—The twelve hours which he wasted before taking Scott's Emulsion cost him more than twelve days in getting well.

Sold in Canada and the United States at 50c, 50c and $1.00 a bottle. In England at 10s. 6d., 20s. 6d. and 45s. S. C. Wells Co., Toronto.

was of the poor, and loved them. The speaker believed that he who created wealth should have wealth. He said that the man who paid the least wages on account of them being worked on the best economic lines. A strike now-a-days was a struggle between a hungry man and a bank vault. The people required not to legislate for but to own the trusts. It was a true principle that if a man had the right to live he also had the right to the wealth of the world. He thought that the competitive system was nearing its close. The idea of a collective ownership of public utilities was rapidly increasing in popularity. As the public owned the postal system, so they should own railroads, electric lighting plants, water-works, telegraph and telephone. At present the outlook was not a bright one, and it was so gloomy now, that would it be for the succeeding generations. There would have to be a great upheaval in economic conditions.

Where Electors Should Agree.

The municipal elections are only a few days distant. Electors will differ in the choice of candidates, but there ought to be very little difference of opinion over the question of abolishing the wards, which, in accordance with Ald. Plant's resolution, will be submitted to a popular vote. If the ward system has any advocates, we hope they will discuss it. They owe it to the public to reveal the hidden beauties of the scheme, if it has any. We have been unable to discover any necessity for splitting a city like London into six imaginary sections, each pitted against the other in a scramble for expenditures. The abuses of the system are written in the record of every meeting of the city council. Even the best of aldermen are apt to lose sight of the general interests, in a mistaken loyalty to their own little constituencies. As a result, the money that should be applied to large and systematic improvements is too often frittered away in odd jobs and patch-work, to placate the ward vote. The system lends itself readily to the arts of the wire-pulling alderman, who tries to make a pocket-borough out of his particular ward and thus dissuades better men from entering the field. We might go on enumerating the evils of ward representation, but if there is anything to be said on the other side we should be pleased to hear it.

The Gospel of Hard Work.

Premier Ross' pleasant little talk to the Strathroy Old Boys in Toronto the other evening, contained some practical philosophy, which the young Canadian should lay to heart. The Premier modestly reviewed his own career—which is an inspiration to every ambitious youth, who has to fight his own battle in life. At the age of 16 Mr. Ross began teaching a rural school in this county, afterwards launching into journalism in Strathroy. As he facetiously put it, he was reporter, editor, collector and canvasser for advertisements and subscriptions. In the midst of these duties—and there is no busier man than the journalist—the future Premier of Ontario was already laying the foundations of his public career. He studied law, and cultivated his mental powers with that strenuous application which he accounts a main factor in his success. Those who regret their lack of educational advantages or academic training will find a stimulating example in Mr. Ross, who is virtually a self-taught man. The imprudent of a university is not necessarily the hall-mark of culture. By his own efforts Mr. Ross acquired a scholarship, which qualified him to direct the educational system of Ontario, upon which he has left the lasting impress of his own mind. He has also become the most polished orator in his native province. Hard work, he declares, has been the delight of his life. It is a gospel he can consistently preach, as he has exemplified it in his own life. Brains, energy and character are the only capital a young man requires in this country, where the avenues to the highest positions are open to all.

Waking Up the British Manufacturer.

The Ironmonger, the leading publication of the metal trades in Great Britain, has issued a special edition devoted to the hardware trade in Canada, with special reference to the Dominion as a market for British manufacturers in that line. The edition is a direct result of the interest in Canada awakened in the mother country by our preferential tariff. The Ironmonger sent to this country a member of its editorial staff with instructions to investigate on the spot the conditions of Canadian trade, and inform himself of the factors which had been instrumental in losing that trade to Great Britain. He traveled through Newfoundland, the Maritime Provinces, Ontario and Quebec, interviewing manufacturers, merchants and consumers. He reported to the Ironmonger in a series of very able letters. These attracted great attention in the British hardware trade, which cannot fail to profit by the variety and extent of the information gathered. The writer repeats the oft-told story of the backwardness of the British manufacturer, his adherence to old-time methods, and his refusal to adapt his wares to the requirements of the market. The Germans, he reports, are pushing their goods throughout Canada with great success, the secret of which is the thorough method in which they go to work. They quote goods delivered and duty paid to various centers in Canada, so that the purchaser knows exactly what he has to pay, but the British makers refuse to figure out the various items, such as duty, freight, package and dock dues, and in this way lose many sales. The Americans, too, show more adaptability than the British, and have an advantage in dealing direct with Canadian customers instead of through factoring houses, as the British habit is. The American is also satisfied with smaller orders. Another stumbling block to the British is the currency. In fact, the writer frankly tells the British manufacturer that he has much to learn and unlearn if he is to hold his own with his more alert competitors. The preferential tariff has done him a double service—it has awakened him to the necessity of greater activity in the Canadian market, and it has given a distinct advantage over his rivals if he is enterprising enough to seize it. He must learn that no market is his by divine right.

Perhaps there is some excuse for European joy over British reverses. There is a shrewd suspicion that the British are fighting European strategy.

All the British generals now in South Africa are described as highly educated men. But what's the good of education if you cannot put it to a proper use?—Kingston Whig.

Don't the generals put it to a good use in writing dispatches?

A Scotch constituency flopped over from the Unionists to the Radicals yesterday. This may not be the handwriting on the wall, but it hints at the temper of the electors. The Government's fortune will be swayed by the fortune of war.

The smallest municipal body in this city is the board of water commissioners. The members of it are elected by general vote. Is it not a fact also that the waterworks is probably the best managed department in the city? The moral is obvious.

If the electors vote to abolish the ward system on Jan. 1 next, the change will not go into effect until 1901, so that there will be plenty of time to prepare for the new mode of representation. It ought to be accompanied by a reduction of the number of aldermen and the extension of the aldermanic term to two years.

Another pitiable attempt is being made to bring Canada into contempt in the eyes of the empire by representing that the Cabinet is divided on the question of sending another contingent to South Africa. To some extent this effort may succeed. Other parts of the empire are apt to incur a pretty poor opinion of Canada when they find that it contains people so ready to fling mud at their own country.

We advise the electors to study the very able paper read by Ald. Parnell at the recent municipal convention and published in last night's Advertiser. The paper is the joint production of Ald. Parnell and Ald. Graham, two of the ablest and most progressive representatives in this year's council. It will be noticed that they regard the abolition of the wards as the basis of municipal reform. Some of the ratepayers may not agree with all their ideas, but the paper indicates the growing opinion that a change of some kind is necessary.

What Others Say.

Poking Fun at Us.

[Boston Herald.] If the report that Correspondent Winston Churchill has escaped from the Boers is true, he has scored by all odds, the biggest British beat of the campaign so far.

A Canadian of the Best Type.

[Montreal Herald.]

Sir George Kirkpatrick's latter years furnished a fine example of a strong will and a fine mind triumphing over the ills of the flesh. He was a man sick unto death for a couple of years, but nothing in his despondency, whenever he was able to appear in public, could have led anyone to believe that he had perforce to think of himself before others. His latter years showed Sir George Kirkpatrick to be a man of high fortitude, just as in his whole life was displayed the best type of manly Canadian.

The British Bull Dog.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

But the most important result of all is that the British bulldog has been aroused. He now, for the first time, knows the real fight before him. His muscles are tense, his jaws are set, his muscles tense with a grim determination that will not relax until he or his foe is beaten. Certainly not in the present generation have the British people been so stirred. They will conquer South Africa now, or they will exhaust themselves in the struggle. The vast resources of the empire in men and money will be drawn on to the utmost if necessary, and they have been signally overestimated or the Boers will be completely whipped, and any outside power like France that may dare to push itself into the quarrel will be served likewise.

FACE & HEAD COVERED WITH SCALES

Shed a Tablespoonful at Night. Hair Full of White Scabs. Offer $100 for Cure. Friend Suggests CUTICURA REMEDIES. Tries Them and is Cured.

Last summer I had company, a man and his wife. The man's hands and face had dry, scaly scales on them, and his head was covered with the same, his hair being full of those white scabs or scales. His wife said, "Some morning she would find a tablespoonful or more of them in the bed." I asked him what ailed him, and he replied, "I tried everything, but nothing would cure myself." "Why don't you cure yourself?" "I would give a hundred dollars to be cured. I have paid out a lot of money, but don't get cured." He said, "Well, I told him 'I would cure him for less than that,' and told him to get the CUTICURA remedies and use them. As he was living in Bristol, Vt., I did not see him for some time after, and he said he had cured himself. 'I am cured,' CUTICURA has done it. The Lord bless you and CUTICURA." MRS. SARAH E. MINER, Feb. 27, 1898. Lincoln, Addison Co., Vt.

TETTER CURED BY CUTICURA

I had Tetters on my hands for two years. My hands were all cracked to pieces, and bled so that I could not decently dress myself, and they itched terribly. JAMES BARRETT

CONVICTED

Another of the Stone-Throwing

Cases Dealt With.

One of the Witnesses for the Crown

Painted While in the Witness

Box—A Half Holiday.

At the county court this morning

James Barrett was convicted of throwing a stone with intent to wound a street railway detective on July 5 last.

The detective, George French, was standing at the rear of a street car

passing the corner of Richmond street and Central avenue, when a stone was thrown in his direction, and he barely escaped being struck. The stone shattered the glass behind the detective. Crown Attorney Magee prosecuted, and Messrs. McEvoy and Perrin appeared for the prisoner.

French identified the prisoner as the man who threw the stone. He also told of chasing Barrett and striking him on the head with a "billy." Wm.

Beatty, another detective, and the defector, Judson Moore, also identified the accused.

The motorman, W. H. Laughlin, was called, and created a sensation by fainting just as Mr. McEvoy began his cross-examination. A pallor spread over Laughlin's face and his lips moved tremulously. One of the jury hastened to bring some water, and the man was removed from the box. He was unable to be recalled before the case went to the jury.

William Kane and Fred Grogan were called for the defense, and their evidence went to show that the prisoner was standing in front of the car when the stone, which came from the rear,

was thrown. The prisoner was not called.

The jury was not out over twenty minutes.

Owing to the indisposition of Mr.

Essey and illness in Mr. E. Meredith's family, none of the cases slated for immediate trial could be proceeded with, and at 1 p.m. the court adjourned

until 9:30 a.m., Friday.

JOHN DARE DID

NOT RESPOND

When His Name Was Called in Court

—Ball Bonds Had Not Been Renewed.

The trial of John Dare, who is alleged to have turned the street railway switch at the corner of Lyle and Dundas streets, and sent the car to the barns on the day of the riots,

was set for a hearing yesterday, and the crown was ready to take up the case at the conclusion of Walter Richards' trial. Dare's name was called three times, but there was no response, and the Barrett case was called. Dare was called to appear at the fall assizes, but when the riots

cases were adjourned to the sessions

his bail was not renewed, as was done in the other cases. It is claimed, therefore, that Dare's sureties are no longer liable.

ASPIRANTS FOR

THE COMMAND

Of the Second Corps Are Not

Scarce.

Fitness for Position Will Outweigh

Social "Pulls."

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—There is a general scramble for positions as officers on the contingent. As far as Dr. Borden is concerned, fitness for the position will be the only influence that will have any weight. The social pull is always put forward in cases of this kind strongly, but with the minister of militia it will have no effect.

The general, as well as Dr. Borden, is determined that the contingent shall be one of which Canada may well be proud.

Among the officers for the command of mounted troops, the names of Lieut.

Col. Steele, of the Mounted Police;

Lieut.-Col. Denison, Toronto, and

Lieut.-Col. Evans are mentioned.

There will be in charge of the Mounted Rifles a commanding officer,

and a senior major, or second in command. There will also be three majors,

A DEAD HEART A Love Story.

"That was what I believed; that was the idea to which I had sacrificed myself; and now, in a fit of anger and passion, purposely I believe to make me miserable, he had told me the truth—told me that the dead sin was the sin of Hubert's father, that the buried wrong was one in which my love had no share. I told me the story of the wicked home; of the noble, generous, kindly man who had taken his own life in his mad despair; of the proud, unhappy mother, who had visited her resentment on her son; of the noble, brave young son who had labored for his daily bread, rather than seek help—told me all in his anger, and then repeated to me the story of the failure of the great bank of 'Fane of Cultures.' Some friend of his, some money in his pocket, some even, Henry Gordon Fane, and I understood why my love shrank from using it."

"He repeated afterwards of having told me, and tried to unsay it; but it was too late. He could never again undo the effect of his words. They made me more and more sure that for I saw that my sacrifice had been in vain; but they made me happier in another, for the vision of my lover's face was clearer to me. My heart was a hero still, without shadow or blame. But from the day he told me, my misery had increased, my unhappiness had been greater than I could bear. I had made a great sacrifice, and to have made it in vain, is the greatest calamity."

"My little baby came, and she brought me some comfort. I called her Berta, that being the nearest name I could find to Hubert. She was a comfort to me. I could talk to her about Hubert; I could tell her, when I showed her the blue sky and the rosy clouds, that someone mamma loved very dearly was waiting for her there. She clapped her little rosy hands and repeated, 'Waiting for you.' 'Ah, yes, my dear love, waiting for me! How my unhappy life will end, I know not; what the future hold for me I know not. But this I know, that in all the lands on the face of the green earth there is no more desolate creature than I, who used to call myself 'Miriam May Dacre'; for I loved my love, with a love so true, so devoted, so entire, so tender, that out of his life no life have I."

These were the written words of her ladyship, as I read them in after years.

CHAPTER XVII.

It was late in the autumn, and still Sir Aleck had not returned. Doria Hope had gone away, and Lady Glen was quite alone. She had few visitors; she spent the greater part of her time in reading and waiting for her heart to be kept by her. She looked so ill. When she was Miriam May Dacre she had a lovely color, like the sweet flush of a wild rose; but now her beautiful face was white as a lily. Perhaps she was lonely, or she was thinking ever of me.

I had decided to go; the pain was too great for me; I could not stay now, while my dear lady was so ill. I must wait until the color came back to her face, and the light to her eyes. My instinct always guided me to her. When she was out of the house I seemed to guess always where she was. One night—a soft, dark, dreamy night—something whispered to me that she was in the garden, and I went in noiselessly. There was no sound until I came to the cedar tree; and there I found such passionate weeping, such bitter sobs. I knew then that my lady had left her stately mansion, and sought shelter under the old cedar, that she might weep as she would; and I, who would have shed my heart's blood for her, I who loved her as man never loved woman before, went away and left her alone.

One dark, dreary, rainy day a messenger came riding in hot haste from Carnarvon with a telegram for my lady. It was taken to her in the morning-room that she had made her own. Without preparation, without warning of the terrible truth it held. She opened it, and, as was usual with her in times of great emotion, became white, and motionless. She sat holding it in her hands, as one before she had held the paper telling of her lover's death; then she rose slowly, and they heard her say:

"They have met face to face at last."

"A great trembling came over her. The words of the telegram were these: 'From Allan Grant, Trevellock Castle, Scotland, to Lady Glen, Atherton Hall, England.—Grieved to say Sir Aleckrosity, she sat holding it in her hands, as one before she had held the paper telling of her lover's death; then she rose slowly, and they heard her say:

"They have met face to face at last."

DEROULEDE SENT TO PRISON

For Libeling the High Court of France.

France Sending 5,000 Troops to the West Indies—Labeled in Place of Hon. J. B. Balfour.

Paris, Dec. 21.—In the senate, sitting as a high court of justice, M. Derooude, president of the League of Patriots, one of the prisoners on trial for conspiracy, virulently denounced the senators and law officers for being "subservient to the government's orders."

Amidst immense uproar, M. Derooude added: "I wish to be condemned. I will say what I think of these scoundrels. This is an infamously and dishonorably France and the republic." During increasing din M. Derooude continued: "I include in my denunciation both the senate and the president of the republic."

M. Derooude continued to hurl insults at the high court, coupled with the assertion that he desired punishment. He was sentenced to two years' imprisonment on the charge of libeling senators composing the high court of justice.

FRENCH INTERESTS IN THE WEST INDIES.

A dispatch from Port of Spain, Trinidad, says that 5,000 troops have been sent by France to Guadeloupe and Martinique. It is believed that the increase in troops is the outcome of the recent reference in the French Chamber of Deputies to Joseph Chamberlain's speech at Le Havre.

LIBERAL VICTORY.

London, Dec. 21.—In the parliamentary election yesterday in Glackmannan and Kinross, to fill the vacancy caused by the appointment of the Right Hon. John Blair Baird, Liberal Unionist, to the ship of Scotland, Mr. E. Watson Lord (Liberal and Radical) defeated the Unionist opponent, Mr. G. Younger, by 616 votes. Mr. Lord's majority is less than that by which Mr. Balfour carried the constituency at the last election against Mr. Younger.

TO INCREASE THE FRENCH NAVY.

Paris, Dec. 21.—The naval committee of the Chamber of Deputies unanimously approved the principle of the proposed bill of the minister of marine, M. Lockroy, opening a credit of 500,000 francs for the purchase of coast and naval stations, and an increase in the number of ships.

MENELIK'S CLAIMS.

New York, Dec. 21.—Commenting on recent rumors that Menelik, Emperor of Abyssinia, was desirous of war against England, the Tribune says Menelik's objective in making any demonstration of a military character just at present was to save a definite boundary settlement between Abyssinia and the Anglo-Egyptian territories.

Such a settlement might surrender the Abyssinian part of a large portion of the Bahir-el-Ghazel Province, which the French possessed by treaty. The French commander, Marchand, was ordered by the minister of war to abandon the territory extending northward as far as the White Nile. Menelik's plan tends to be the owner of the right bank of that river, from the fourteenth to the second degree of latitude, just opposite Fashoda.

GIVEN UP TO DIE BY TWO DOCTORS

The Third Doctor Prescribed Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Saved the Young Lady's Life.

Dr. J. W. Bates, of Cortu, N. Y., states: "A most remarkable case has come under my hands of late, and has fully convinced me of the wonderful power of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food over diseases of the nerves."

A lady who was treated for over two years for epilepsy by two doctors was given up to die. She came to me, and on careful examination I found that her sickness was not epilepsy, but nervous trouble, due to menstrual derangements, and prescribed four of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food pills at each meal, and at bed time. It is three months since she began this treatment, and she has not had a single bad spell. Her health has rapidly improved, she has gained about fifteen pounds in weight, and I do not hesitate to state that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has saved her life and made her well. (Signed)

Paris, Dec. 21.—The naval committee of the Chamber of Deputies unanimously approved the principle of the proposed bill of the minister of marine, M. Lockroy, opening a credit of 500,000 francs for the purchase of coast and naval stations, and an increase in the number of ships.

MENELIK'S CLAIMS.

New York, Dec. 21.—Commenting on recent rumors that Menelik, Emperor of Abyssinia, was desirous of war against England, the Tribune says Menelik's objective in making any demonstration of a military character just at present was to save a definite boundary settlement between Abyssinia and the Anglo-Egyptian territories.

Such a settlement might surrender the Abyssinian part of a large portion of the Bahir-el-Ghazel Province, which the French possessed by treaty. The French commander, Marchand, was ordered by the minister of war to abandon the territory extending northward as far as the White Nile. Menelik's plan tends to be the owner of the right bank of that river, from the fourteenth to the second degree of latitude, just opposite Fashoda.
