An Election Protest.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A petition has been lodged against the return of Mr. Cooke, who defeated Mr. Pulley (Gladstonian) in the recent election in Hereford.

World's Fair—1900.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—An official decree has been issued announcing that an international exposition will be held in France in 1900. Alfred Picard is named as commander general.

Cholera in Constantinople.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A dispatch to the Times from Constantinople says: "Cholera has broken out in the Central Prison here in the French municipality and in Pera, and in the lunatic asylum in Scutari. About 25 cases are reported daily. The mortality is about 30 per cent. Business is much afflicted.

Big Crop of Cotton.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—According to the Alexandria correspondent of the Times the Egyptian cotton crop is steadily increasing. The crop reached 5,250,000 cantars (a cantar is a little over 99 pounds) in the year ended Sept. 1, as against 4,750,000 cantars in the year ended Sept. 1, 1892.

Progress of Cholera.

BUDA-PESTH, Sept. 11.—The Catholic Congress fixed to open in Theresiopolis today has been prohibited by the Hungarian Minister of the Interior owing to the prevalence of cholera.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Isolated cases of cholera continue to be reported in the Netherlands.

A Smashing Mob.

MADRID, Sept. 11.—A riot broke out in Santaboro on Saturday during a fire in a populous quarter. A mob forcibly entered the municipal buildings, and after destroying the furniture threw everything out of the windows. The residences of the mayor and the leading councilors were treated in the same way. The mob was finally dispersed by troops.

Rioting in England.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—There was serious rioting in Whitechapin, Cumberland, Saturday evening. A mob went through the streets smashing the windows of houses and electric street lamps. The mob was finally scattered by the police. Soldiers were sent to the police's assistance from Carlisle. The police are now armed with cutlasses. The troops and police have been reinforced throughout the Midland Counties in readiness for any further rioting by the striking miners. Armed forces are constantly moving.

Increase in German Taxes.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Standard's Berlin correspondent says the German Government calculates that the imperial revenue will be increased 100,000,000 marks by the proposed wine, tobacco and bourse taxes. This correspondent also says that the elevation of Herr Schorlemer to be a cavalry captain in the reserve has caused a sensation in German Catholic circles. The Emperor invited him to a gala dinner in Coblentz last week and conversed with him long and cordially.

India's Finances.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Calcutta correspondent of the Times says: Bitter complaints are heard on all sides against Lord Kimberley's action in regard to council drafts. It is asserted that he ignores all suggestions from India, and appears to be callous to the financial troubles of the country. The mercantile public are now afraid to do business, and the banks are afraid to tender bids for drafts. The opinion grows that the management of home remittances ought to be removed from his hands, and intrusted to an appointee of India.

Gone Back to Work.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The miners of North Staffordshire have gone back to work at old wages.

More Cholera in England.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A death from Asiatic cholera was reported to-day from Retford, county of Notts.

A River Calamity.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 11.—The steamer Shermoksha has been burned on the river Volga. Fifteen of the crew and twelve passengers were burned or drowned.

China on Her Dignity.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—The Foreign Office is informed that the Chinese Government is preparing a protest against France's new aggressions in Siam, and has given orders that the Chinese squadron of ironclads be made ready to sail at a moment's notice.

Big Compensation.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The enormous increase in the sums paid for compensation for loss of and damage to goods by the railway companies is attracting attention. While in the past half year the London and Northwestern Railway paid £8,248 as compensation to passengers injured, it paid £30,475 for loss of and damage to goods. The Midland Railway in the same period paid £18,835 for damage and loss of goods—nearly three times what it paid for personal injury to passengers.

Bad Provisions for Troops.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A letter has been received from a volunteer who was engaged in the recent maneuvers at Aldershot, in which some extraordinary statements are made. The heat had a serious effect upon the men who were exposed to it. The men "fought like wild beasts for a bucket of dirty water," and "fell down by ranks" on the return to camp after spending several hours in hard work under scorching sun. The writer of the letter says that several deaths from sunstroke occurred. His statements will no doubt be investigated.

No Telephonic Monopoly.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Postmaster-General has yielded to the public clamor caused by the suspicion that he had conceded too much in the negotiations with the National Telephone Company. He has promised the House of Commons that the agreement with the company would be laid on the table before being signed, and in all probability that will be equivalent to its rejection. A good deal of the credit of this victory over the combined forces of red tape and monopoly belongs to the corporation of Glasgow, which first raised the cry that local rights and privileges all over the country were threatened by the projected arrangement, and then proceeded to organize all the municipal bodies into a sort of anti-monopoly league. This movement is not now likely to stop short of municipalization or nationalization of the telephone system.

A Betting Nuisance.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Some time ago the managers of a public library at Aston, finding their institution blocked and turned into a beer garden every day by crowds of ill-mannered sporting men who used the place simply to study the betting lists and learn the results of the horse racing, resolved to abate the nuisance by blocking out such news a la Russe. The plan, it is asserted, has succeeded pretty well, and at the annual congress of the Librarian's Association, held at Aberdeen this week, the Aston librarian proposed its general adoption. The proposal did not meet with much approval and it was not pressed to a vote. Several librarians expressed the opinion that betting men were "a nasty set of ruffians" and ought to be excluded from public reading rooms, but the majority decided that the blocking-out system savored too much of Russian methods.

Plague of Wasps.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The wasp plague in Cambridgeshire increases in intensity. E. T. Manton, county councilor, of Peterborough, was driving between Mepal and Ely, when both he and his horse were attacked by a swarm of red hornets. Mr. Manton leaped from his dog cart and fled. The horse was stung so severely that it dashed its head against the ground in its vain endeavors to beat off its assailants. It was placed under the care of a veterinary surgeon. In the same district a swarm of wasps made an onslaught on a man and horse at Quaney Farm. The man was so badly stung that medical aid had to be obtained and the tortured horse plunged into a dyke.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—The farmers of the Rhein-Hessen and the Lower Rhine are suffering from a plague of wasps. These insects swoop down in clouds upon the fruit trees and play havoc with the primest fruit.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The fruit on the Chasselas du Roi at Fontainebleau was valued in July at 2,920 francs, but it has been sold for only 1,601 francs. This fall in value is owing to the injury wrought by wasps on the grapes.

Mrs. Gladstone Makes Tea.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—It must have been a pretty sight, Mrs. Gladstone preparing her husband's afternoon tea at Croydon on his way down to Dorking. The couple were in a special saloon carriage, and she was caught in the act of lighting a small spirit lamp and boiling a little kettle. By that mysterious process by which news travels and is propagated it had become known that the Prime Minister and his wife were on the way by train, and the platform was soon filled with admirers of the old statesman. Their presence was quite unlooked for, and on the train drawing up at Croydon Mrs. Gladstone was surprised in the wifely act of preparing tea. It is one of the incidents which will live in history, and historians of later generations will delight to dwell upon it for its human interest more than the oratory of the Home Rule Bill. Some future Carlyle may dilate on the blanket of the dark being rudely lifted and on our seeing this little beautiful wayside scene at Croydon; and if he is made of the same stuff as our nineteenth-century Carlisle, he will also be somewhat jubilant over the fact that, though the crowd called for a speech, the tap of Mr. Gladstone's eloquence was not turned on.

Late Canadian News.

An electric railway from Winnipeg to Selkirk, Man., is projected.

The Allan steamship Siberian, from Montreal for Glasgow, arrived out on Sunday morning with her 239 cattle and 48 horses in good order,

Hon. E. Blake, who is on his way to Canada on the steamship Lake Huron, will land at Rimouski and proceed to Murray Bay to join his family.

The total number of paid admissions for the Montreal Exhibition which closed Saturday were 77,621 as compared with 138,341 paid admissions last year.

The corner stone of a new Liederkranz hall was laid Monday for the German citizens of Toronto. It is on Richmond street west and will cost $25,000.

A bold attempt was made Sunday night to burglarize the residence of A. K. Goodman, barrister, Cayuga. Two men entered the library window, but the inmates heard and frightened them off.

Sir Richard Webster, Lord Salisbury's Attorney-General, was dined at the Rideau Club, Ottawa, by the members of the Government, Monday evening. He was shown around the experimental farm in the afternoon.

The manifesto from the Irish National League denouncing Gladstone and calling upon all Irishmen to strike for the freedom of Ireland is regarded by all the prominent Irishmen of Ottawa as a piece of outrageous nonsense.

J. Warrient Jocks, chief of the Caughnawaga Indians, a full-blooded Indian and a member of the Montreal bar, has returned from the Chicago Fair. He considers the Canadian Indian exhibit superior to the American.

All vendors of the Toronto Times have been summoned into court. The Times was a weekly paper, and, it is alleged, published articles and pictures dangerous to public morals. Editor Bonner is missing.

Robert Seath, an old and highly respected citizen of Montreal, died Monday morning. Deceased, who was a life-long Liberal and a pronounced free trader, was born in Cupar county, town of Fyfe, Scotland, and came to Montreal 51 years ago. He was an ardent Scotchman and one of the founders of the Caledonian Society.

The first steamship of the new Franco-Canadian line, the Olbia, has arrived in Montreal with 88 passengers, all but six bound for the Northwest. She is the largest boat that ever entered the Port of Rouen, being 347 feet long and 3,000 tons burden. She runs twelve knots an hour and contains accommodation for 1,500 people.

Mrs. E. B. Eddy, of Hull, wife of the celebrated match manufacturer, is dead. She was a member of the Methodist Church and was noted for her charitable works rather than for her devotion to society, although her home was one of the most luxurious in eastern Canada. She was a native of Bristol, Vermont, whither the body will be sent on Tuesday afternoon for burial.

The two railways in Montreal are much dissatisfied with the refusal of the Dominion Government to ratify the agreement made between the American commissioner, the representative of the steamship and railway companies, and A. M. Burgess, Deputy-Minister of the Interior, to the effect that all immigrants landing on this side were to be inspected by American officials to see that they were not violating the United States Alien Contract Law.

TERSELY TOLD.

The funeral of Hamilton Fish, American Secretary of State under General Grant, took place at Garrison, N. Y., on Monday.

MARRIED IN WRITING.

Singular Wedding Ceremony Performed on Paper.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—Miss Nellie Bean and Mr. W. D. Dougherty are mutes. Justice of the Peace Orr Saturday united the couple in the holy bonds of matrimony. The justice wrote the marriage down. When everything was in readiness for the ceremony he handed the paper to the young lady. As she read the questions she would answer "Yes" and designate with her fingers the one she answered.

The paper was then given to Mr. Dougherty. Opposite the questions was left blank space enough for him to write the answer to each question, which was properly done. After the ceremony had been performed and Judge Orr had put on the little slip of paper these words: "I pronounce you man and wife," the young couple read it and wrote that they were ready to receive the congratulations of the justice and the few friends who were present.

Judge Orr's congratulations were written on a piece of paper which he gave the young pair.

Fire Record.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 11.—The Spokane exhibition building which cost $100,000 was burned last night. No insurance.

MOUNT VERNON, Ind., Sept. 11.—The elevator of the W. C. Fuhrer Milling Company was destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss $100,000; partly insured.

Labor Notes.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The Empire State Knitting Mills resumed work to-day after a suspension of one month.

John Wiederholt & Co., manufacturers of women's underwear, also resumed operations to-day.

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 11.—The Erie Forge Works resumed this morning.

AQUATIC.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—In the trial cup yacht race to-day the Vigilant won, with the Colonia second, Jubilee third, and Pilgrim fourth. The Vigilant will defend America's cup against the Valkyrie.

—The steamer Flora will make her last trip for the season on Thursday morning, 14th inst., going from Port Stanley to Detroit, where passengers for Cleveland will be transferred to the State of Michigan.

—Such a novelty as the entertainment presented in Victoria Hall last evening by the Orphan Hand-Bell Ringers of Dr. Bernardo's homes deserved a larger audience. The musical part of the programme consisted of harmonies delightfully rendered on the bells, music on the bagpipes, dulcimer and xylophone, and singing by the boys. Scenes in the rescue work and around the homes were shown by stereopticon views and explained by Mr. James B. Wookey. The unique entertainment will be repeated this evening, with variations.

Judge Elliot's Bicycle Decision.

Stratford Herald (Conservative): The decision of Judge Elliot, of London, in the suit of a bicyclist who was run into by a wagon driven by an alderman should not be allowed to stand unchallenged. In the case in point the driver of the wagon was on the wrong side of the road, and the cyclist was forced on the curb, with the result that he was thrown and his wheel destroyed. According to the newspaper reports the learned judge in giving his decision said that bicyclists were entitled to "no sympathy." Wheelmen do not want sympathy, but they must have justice. The bicycle has ceased to be a plaything and occupies the same place in the lives of a small army of men as does the horse and buggy in others better circumstanced. Its use as a means of individual rapid transit is constantly becoming more general, and if there is not now a law to protect riders of the silent steed means of protection should be found at once. Bicycles should have the same rights as any other vehicle. Judge Elliot's decision "must go."

At St. Thomas.

The Railroad City Warmly Greets Hon. Mr. Laurier.

An Immense Audience and Splendid Speeches.

The Young Liberal Fleet Captures the City—Mr. Hyman, M.P., Receives an Ovation—Hon. D. Mills, James Sutherland, M.P., Dr. Wilson and J. S. Willison Speak—The Leader's Eloquent Address.

Those who attended the mass meeting held in Laurier's honor at St. Thomas last evening were amply compensated. They had the pleasure of hearing two of the foremost exponents of Liberalism in the Canadian House of Commons. There was the popular chieftain, with his captivating accent, his graceful manner and his persuasive eloquence; and there was the Hon. David Mills, possessing two of the principal requisites of the efficient parliamentarian, a firm grasp of public questions and a clear, incisive mode of delivery.

HON. WILFRID LAURIER.

Mr. Laurier's speech was in answer to a brace of addresses which had been presented—one by Mr. Hugh Williams on behalf of the St. Thomas Young Men's Liberal Club, and the other by Mr. A. St. Clair Leach, voicing the sentiments of the West Elgin Reform Association He spoke throughout in that polished chastity of style so characteristic of him. He had a kind word to say for the trio of Liberal champions who were on the platform—Wilson, Hyman and Mills. Dr. Wilson was a man of his own opinions, and no man's man. He referred to Hyman as "the man who had such a large place in their hearts, the member-elect for London." This observation provoked great enthusiasm. The audience cheered tumultuously for several moments. Mills was assuredly a man of "encyclopædic mind." Mr. Laurier dealt mainly with the trade issues before the country. The emigration of Canada's populace in large numbers to the States is a fact of wonderment to him. He could understand emigration from Great Britain and other parts of Europe, where there is a surfeited population, but he could not comprehend an emigration from Canada. It was, he maintained, the duty of every friend and foe of the Liberal party, irrespective of political creed, to stand by the country and help raise it from the slough of retrogression into which it had fallen. The Conservatives were inclined to favor tariff reform. What kind of reformation, however, could be expected from them? They might scrape away the paint and varnish, but they would not touch the structure. The attack was wrong! The Liberal party structure was wrong! Protection took from the pockets of one class and put it into the pockets of others. A certain Roman emperor was wont to say that by striking the ground legions would rise to his support. Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper said as much. They thought that if protection were adopted chimneys would rise from the ground. Such had not been the case. Chimneys, he noticed, were pretty scarce in St. Thomas. This sally was greatly appreciated. Citizens present made the application immediately. There was another important plank in the platform besides tariff reform. The Liberal party wanted reciprocity with the United States. Mr Laurier's remarks in this connection received unqualified approbation. "If there is a choice to be made," he exclaimed, "between the farming community and a certain manufacturing class, our choice is made. We stand for the farmers." This emphatic declaration evoked continued cheering. Prosperous farmers, he continued, meant prosperous manufacturers. This was why they had adopted the policy which he was then enunciating. Some one had suggested that the Conservatives might attempt to steal his clothes. He was not alarmed. They were no longer free agents. Their masters would not permit them to make any such depredation. The Tory party had abdicated its right of free agency when it first bowed down to the manufacturing fetish. Towards the latter portion of his address Mr. Laurier touched upon the loyalty question. He recounted the saying of Johnson's that "Patriotism was the last refuge of a scoundrel," and said that while he would not use such strong language, he would say that Patriotism was the last refuge of a Canadian Tory. Mr. Laurier's peroration was an eloquent and passionate plea on behalf of Anglo-Saxon union. He said: "We must be Canadians. We must be a nation. We must stand for the interest of our common country. That is the aim of my life—the goal for which I stand. They say that we are disguised annexationists. If I am I am much more, I am an Imperial Federationist. I am an Imperial Federationist in the broadest sense of the term, but I do not want the Imperial Federation of the Tories. I want something broader. They want a federation composed of Britain and her dependencies. I stand upon a broader platform. I want to make the race the basis of the confederacy. I want a confederacy which will include not only her majesty's dependencies, but all nations springing from Great Britain and all nations of the Anglo-Saxon race." (Cheers.)

HON. DAVID MILLS.

Hon. David Mills said that they had been for the past fifteen years members of her Majesty's loyal Opposition. They wished now to change places with the present Government incumbents. He wished to draw their attention to some very pertinent reasons why this change should take place. He would take an historical retrospect of the history of the Liberal party. He would like to call their attention to the manner in which this party had been last defeated. They had been upbraided prior to this time with not having imposed higher taxes upon the people. The present Government supporters had held out elusive prospects and unbounded promises to oust the Liberals. They said that if the country would give them the necessary support and adopt the N. P., a period of unlimited prosperity would set in—Canada would be made a second Eden. From the year 1878 the present Government had retained power. They had not, however, relied altogether on the National Policy. Any prosperity which ensued after the adoption of that policy was in spite of and not because of the National Policy.

The city of London had not as many manufactories as in 1878. What class of persons in St. Thomas had been benefited by the adoption of the National Policy? He could not conceive of any. Their trade with the States had not been benefited. As long as the present tariff was continued just so long would the Canadian farmer experience an annual minusing of $360 in the amount of his profits. He wanted to draw attention to the voters' list at present in operation in East Elgin. There were 2,000 more names upon the list mentioned than upon that of any other constituency in the country, and 3,000 names which should not be there at all. They took a day each year for a local fair. Why did they not appropriate a day each year for the purpose of supervising the list? Hyman had been cheated out of his seat, but was no more cheated than Dr. Wilson. With a proper list—denuded of spurious names—that gentleman's majority would not have been far from 3,000.

JAMES SUTHERLAND, M.P.

James Sutherland, M.P., the genial Liberal whip, said that he was in politics for fun. It made very little difference to him which side won. If the farmers were willing to stand round and let the manipulators get the best of them it was their own fault. Laurier had not come to them in the spirit of a demagogue. He made no mercenary promises. He would not stoop to any contemptible means of getting any votes in that community. He hoped the young men of St. Thomas would lay aside old party prejudices and vote for a party which tended to advance the country in strength, prosperity and general contentment. He concluded by speaking scathingly of the use which the present Government put the building of public works for election bribery.

CHARLES S. HYMAN, M.P.

One of the most refreshing incidents of this remarkable gathering was the reception accorded Charles S. Hyman, M.P. When he arose to speak it was some minutes before the tumult of applause and cheering subsided. He spoke approvingly of the London Young Liberals. They were, he said, the bulwarks of the party in London. They were staunch soldiers. They were proud to wear the badge of Liberalism.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

J. S. Willison, managing editor of the Globe, who was heralded by the chairman as a man who could not orate unless he was made mad; Dr. Wilson, ex-M.P., and George E. Casey, M.P., all made short speeches.

THE RINK.

The capacious rink was a sea of faces. No one else could have been crowded in. Fully 3,000 persons were present, and half as many more were turned away disappointed. Only a small section of those who went from this city could gain admittance. Every seat was taken before they arrived. No more orderly or attentive gathering could have been imagined. The addresses from first to last were listened to with intensest interest. The interior of the auditorium was finely decorated. Interlacing the rafters were coils of different colored bunting. Flags varied the monotony. At regular intervals about the wall were appropriate mottos. There expressed such iconoclastic sentiments as "Protection Is a Fraud," "The National Policy Discriminates Against Great Britain," "A Tariff for Revenue Only," "All Taxes Should Go Into the Public Treasury," "Reduce the Tariff to the Needs of Honest Government," "An Honest Franchise, One Man One Vote."

ON THE PLATFORM.

Among those on the platform were noted: Rev. Principal Austin, Rev. Dr. Pascoe, Rev. Prof. R. J. Warner; John Cameron, London; W. Coyne, James MacKenzie, Angus Mackenzie, Donald Turner, Southwold; James Carrie, A. A. McKillop, warden of Elgin county; W. O. Pollock, Yarmouth; H. Lowers, H. Brown, Iona; A. Patullo, Woodstock; J. S. Brierly; Frank Yeigh, Toronto; D. Turner, ex-warden; Peter Stevenson, Burwell's Corners; D. McLaws, C. St. Clair Leitch, Dutton; Dr. Carscaden, Dutton; J. Poole, Dutton; Geo. Norman, Shedden; Dr. D. McCarty, John Campbell, Dr. Ruthven, Dutton; D. MacPherson, Fingal; W. H. Morrison, Shedden; T. H. A. Sharon and Ewen Cameron, Southwold; Dr. Sinclair, Aylmer, president of the East Elgin Association; J. M. Gleem, Rev. J. A. Macdonald, Dr. Van Buskirk, S. B. Morris, Rodney; Grenville Haight, Yarmouth; Geo. E. Case, M.P.; Peter Stockwell, Southwold.

The fair sex was also represented, intermingling with the gentlemen just mentioned on the platform. Madame Laurier sat immediately behind the speaker. Mrs. Frank Yeigh, Mrs. (Dr.) Wilson and Mrs. John Cameron occupied seats to her right. A number of other ladies were observed.

THE LONDON CONTINGENT.

The number of enthusiasts which assembled at the M. C. R. station to accompany the Young Liberals numbered probably 500. These, including the 200 naval cadets, completely filled seven coaches. Passing through the cars, the following gentlemen, prominent in professional and mercantile pursuits in this city, might have been seen: Ald. Heaman, M. Shea, John Stephenson, T. S. Hobbs, J. C. Trebilcock, Chas. W. Leonard, Wm. Wiley, W. Morrison, P. Slaght, Ed Horsman, Arch. Sharp, Walter Stevens, Frank Barned, John Herald, D. McKenzie, Charles Peacock, James Shand, P. Flannery, W. J. Craig, R. W. Bennett, Walter Ardiel, T. Edwards, A. E. White, Geo. W. Rennie, Walter Simpson, Charles Bayley, Alex. Stuart, Charles Patten, Wm. Moore, Talbot Macbeth, Frank Butler, Thomas Hiscott, Alex. Burr, J. M. Symonds, J. O'Gorman, L. T. Lawrence, W. Simson, Frank Adams, C. H. Fewings, R. Tatham, Fred L. Evans, John McMillan, Geo. C. Davis, John Talbot, C. E. Wettlaufer, James Kilgour, R. McPherson, John Cameron, J. W. Little, Moses Masuret, Frank Leonard, Ald. J. W. Jones, A. S. McGregor, G. M. Reid, Dr. Sippi, Dr. Beemer and Ald. Scarrow.

On arriving at St. Thomas the train stopped at Talbot street. Here the Liberal brigade descended and formed in processional order. The dense crowd of St. Thomasites, which lined the street in the vicinity cheered lustily as the corps took its place in the line. The horse marines on foot took the primacy. Next to them was the citizens' band, of St. Thomas. Then came the Scottish bag pipers—George Angus, James Milne, John Wilson and John Cloud, preceded by Drum-Major Strachan. Mr. Fred Evans' impromptu musical organization—a brass band of nineteen pieces—did good service. They played admirably well considering that no previous practice had been secured. The Fleet, under Admiral Wanless, looked extremely well. All the way to the place of meet admiring crowds applauded the marching companies.

GERMAN SILVER SOAP.

This article has been recently introduced into this country for polishing metals such as the finest Gold and Silver, Silverplate, Jewelry, Glass, China and Nickelplate, and is a skillful and entirely new combination of the Famous German Putz Pulver, English Jeweler's Rouge and alcohol, and is designed for those who prefer a soap to a powder for cleaning and polishing purposes. As a polish it is a wonder-worker and is bound to become the favorite with everyone that has occasion to use and polish metals. It will not scratch or injure the finest gold. Price 15 cents. On One Platform

Stand Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic.

Opening of the World's Parliament of Religions.

A Wonderful Gathering Never Before Witnessed on the Earth—Priests From Oriental Countries—A Christian Welcome.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 11.—A processional in which the religions of the world were represented, marked the opening of the World's Parliament of Religions at the Art Institute to-day. It was a processional that had a world of meaning in it. One that would have been impossible not many years ago. Jew marched with Gentile and Catholic marched with Protestant. The religious beliefs of India, of China and of Japan were represented as well as those of the English-speaking nations. All attired in their priestly robes and wearing the insignia of their offices, marched to the platform, while the audience rose and cheered at the sight.

First came Cardinal Gibbons, escorted by President Bonney. Then came Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. Charles Henrotin, representing the board of lady managers, and then the following with their suites: Archbishop Redwood, of New Zealand; Archbishop Dionysios Latas, of Zante, Greece; Rev. John Henry Barrows, of Chicago; Archbishop Feehan, Count A. Bernstorff, of Berlin; Dr. Carl Von Bergen, of Sweden; Prof. C. N. Chaharar Dharmaphala and P. C. Moosomdar, of India; Rev. Augusta Chapin, of Chicago; Rev. Alexander D. McKenzie, Pung Quang Yu, of China; Dr. E. G. Hirsch, of Chicago; Miss Jeane Siribi and Khersedji Laugraua, of Bombay; Bishop Bwarnette and Mrs. Laura Ormiston Chant.

Even more inspiring was the scene when the vast audience arose and joined in singing "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," and later when Cardinal Gibbons led those of all nations and all religions in reciting the Lord's Prayer. The regular proceedings of the Parliament of Religions were opened auspiciously by an invocation by Cardinal Gibbons and addresses by President C. C. Bonney and religious lights from various parts of the world. There was not a vacant seat in the hall, and the walls were fringed with people standing up when Clarence Eddy took his seat at the organ and played a selection as preliminary to the processional with which the proceedings were opened. President Bonney, in his address of welcome, said they should all give thanks for being able to take part in so grand a congress, one that so fully exemplified peace and progress, and which would have so great an influence on the world.

Rev. John Henry Barrows, chairman of the committee on organization, addressed the congress. Archbishop Feehan followed, welcoming the delegates on behalf of the Catholic Church. Cardinal Gibbons said that though all did not agree on matters of faith, there was one platform on which all were united, that was charity, humanity and benevolence. Rev. Augusta J. Chapin welcomed the congress on behalf of the women. Rev. Alexander McKenzie said that he stood for the old settlers, the Puritans. There was one thing that we could show the foreigners that could be seen nowhere else in the world, and that was a republic that was in the process of making by Christian forces.

SAWS OF CORSET STEELS.

A Georgia Revivalist, in Jail for Theft, Enabled to Escape by His Wife.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—Rev. John M. Berry, a noted revival preacher of the mountain region, who has been for some time in Gainesville jail awaiting trial for robbing a co-operative store run by the farmers of White county, has escaped. His fervor in the pulpit led his neighbors to trust him.

A few days ago Berry's wife visited him and gave him her corset steels, and out of these he made some very sharp and fine saws, with which he filed off the bolts of the locks. He then filed the iron bars, and out he went with five other jail birds. The sheriff, in speaking about his escaped prisoner, said: "He was the most religious man I ever saw. He prayed night and day, and I would have trusted him anywhere."

The reverend gentleman has a host of friends and relatives in White county, and if he once reaches their protection it will be hard to get him again.

Unreasonable Good Health.

"Anybody in the office sick this afternoon? inquired the philanthropic employer, beaming around on his clerks.

"I guess not, sir," said the head bookkeeper.

"Too bad! Too bad!" said the philanthropic gentleman, sadly. "Here there's no one too sick to work, and the last games of the baseball season are being played."

The One-Hoss Shay.

The peculiar feature of the "one-hoss shay" was, that it was "built in such a wonderful way" that it had no "weakest part." The "weakest part" of a woman is invariably her back, and "female weaknesses" are only too common. With the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, this may be avoided, and women may be comparatively as strong as their brothers. Prolopsus, inflammation, ulceration, periodical pains, leucorrhea, dragging-down sensations, debility, nervousness, sleeplessness, despondency, are only a few of the symptoms of weakness of the female organs which the "Favorite Prescription" is warranted to remove.

LAMBTON.

An unsuccessful attempt was made the other night to set fire to the Huron House, Point Edward.

A young fellow living in Point Edward named Thomas Cooper, shot part of his right hand off Friday morning. He had been duck shooting, and after landing in some way managed to discharge the gun while unprepared, and as a result the charge tore off half of his right hand.

There were 31,970 passengers on through trains passed through the St. Clair tunnel in August for the World's Fair.

MIDDLESEX.

It will cost the town of Parkhill $8,700 to run the municipal machine for 1893.

Mrs. Wm. Morris, wife of the proprietor of Avon cheese factory, is very ill. Dr. Creighton, of Avon, is in attendance.

On Wednesday the infant son of John McCallum was interred in the Avon Cemetery. The remains were brought from Detroit to Ingersoll, where J. McIntyre's hearse met them. Mrs. McCallum was visiting her mother and the child took sick and died.

On Wednesday evening friends numbering about 60 repaired to the residence of L. Whaley, Avon, to pay their respects to his daughter Bertha (who was married in the spring to Archibald McIntyre, youngest son of the late A. McIntyre, and is about removing to a home of her own), which they did by presenting her with a solid gold watch and chain, with a very complimentary address.

OXFORD.

The little son of Lewis Lefaive, Ingersoll, was very seriously bitten in the cheek by a bull dog on Friday. The dog belonged to D. House, liveryman, but his past good conduct did not save his life, as he was shot at once.

Oxford Surrogate Court notes: Hugh McBirdy, West Zorra, farmer, probate granted executors. Estate under $12,000. —Clement George Still, Ingersoll, accountant, administration granted B. N. Still. Estate under $6,500.—William Hault, Ingersoll, manufacturer, probate granted to his widow. Estate $12,500.

Wm. Gray planted the first tree in the streets of Woodstock in 1845.

PERTH.

The Mitchell Advocate says the municipal council will have a surplus of $1,200 to show at the end of the year, with a rate of 18 mills on the dollar.

Mrs. Richard Halpenny, of Trowbridge, and Mrs. Wesley Sturgeon, of Harriston, were thrown out of a buggy at the G. T. R. station, Listowel, Friday morning. Mrs. Sturgeon had five ribs broken and her shoulder dislocated. Mrs. Halpenny had her knee cap split and was injured about the head. Lightning had frightened the horse.

WATERLOO.

There are nine persons at present confined in the Berlin jail.

Waterloo will issue $16,000 worth of sewer debentures shortly.

Lightning struck the barns of L. Wey, of St. Agathe, Saturday and they were burned to the ground with contents. Loss above insurance, $1,000.

"A BLESSING THAT I WILL CLING TO."

A lady, well known in London, Ont., writes as follows: "I am prepared to part with a great many things that I now possess, and, if necessary, forego many of the pleasures that I now enjoy; but there is one comfort and blessing that I will cling to and refuse to give up; this blessing is Paine's Celery Compound. This reliable remedy has been my friend in days of suffering, and has given me rest, sleep and appetite when the doctors failed. Years of agony from dyspepsia and nervousness made life a burden; and owing to the numberless failures of doctors to relieve my sufferings hope had almost fled. Paine's Celery Compound has been my deliverer and life-renewer, therefore you cannot wonder that I am ready to sacrifice a great deal in the way of every-day pleasures rather than lose a precious life-giver. Paine's Celery Compound is giving me health and strength, and making me feel young again."

McGill University.

The examinations for entrance into the faculty of arts, and for exhibitions and scholarships, will begin on Thursday next at Montreal. Candidates for entrance will present themselves at 9 a.m. in the William Molson hall, to register their names and other particulars. The days and hours of the several examinations are given in the calendar. Ten exhibitions, tenable for one year, are open for competition to candidates in the first and second year, and four scholarships, tenable for two years, are similarly open to third year students. The annual values are generally $125 or $100. These are most valuable incentives to work for students of the highest ability. Among the cleverest students they naturally fall to the lot, in most cases, of those who have had the best school education previously. The superiority of schools in large towns or cities weighs heavily against candidates from many rural districts. It is impossible by a competitive examination to equalize the lots of all who, if educated, are by their natural gifts equally likely to benefit their country. Hence the great value of bursaries that may be awarded according to the judgment of the faculty to those who are most deserving and most in need of them. Four of these of the value of $90 each have been offered for the present session by a lady of Montreal, who was equally generous last year. This is a form of benefaction which is exceedingly useful, and it is to be hoped that the example will be followed by many Ontario's Pride!

Parade of Her Magnificent Live Stock at Jackson Park.

Splendid Showing Made by the Province in This Department.

Her Display of Fruit Attracts Australia's Attention.

An Inquiry from That Country—Ayrshires Distance All Comers—Description of the Prize Animals.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, Sept. 9—(Special).—Ten or twelve thousand people had a chance on Wednesday to form an idea of the resources of the Province of Ontario as a horse and cattle breeding country when our stables were emptied and all the prize-winners and those which did not get prizes—though that was no disgrace in the distinguished company in which they have found themselves for the past three weeks—paraded in the live stock pavilion. There were the massive Shorthorns and Herefords, with great promise of steaks and roasts in the future; the curly Galloways, their black hides glistening in the sunlight; the rich, red Devons, the piebald Holsteins and the sleek, lithe Ayrshires, decked out with the many-colored badges of victory. And the horses, the proud, high-stepping American Arabs, showing their pride of birth in every movement; the trim, neat Hackneys, easy winners among the pick of the continent, and contrasted with them the heavy Clydes, Suffolks and Shires, with bones of steel and muscles of brass—the very embodiment of strength and endurance. How they pranced and curveted in the ring, and how they were cheered I—each class having its admirers. It was a sight long to be remembered, and no Ontario man but felt his blood leap quicker as he realized how nobly the banner Province of the Dominion had sustained her reputation in her battles with the world.

As a usual thing at cattle shows, and for that matter at public functions of every kind, one meets many a pessimistic raker-up of old memories, who recalls the performances of a quarter or half a century ago—the royal cattle show in England, the acting of the elder Booth, or the singing of Jenny Lind, it may be, but individuals of such a kidney had no solid ground to stand upon in the White City these August and September days. Col. J. H. Picknell, of Chicago, one of the best known old-time Shorthorn men on the continent, secretary of the Shorthorn Association and judge in that class, is authority for the statement that never in any country has such an assemblage of horses and cattle been gotten together, nor was it ever attempted on the same scale. Those who were there say the present exhibition of Shorthorns is fully equal, if it does not surpass, that at the Royal Agricultural at Warwick, England, last year.

The hero of this show was undoubtedly Young Abbotsburn, 11069—3,000 pounds in weight, and the most massive Shorthorn that ever graced an American prize ring. Three years ago he was purchased by Col. Moberly, of Kentucky, from J. W. Watt, of Salem, Ontario, and since then he has downed everything in sight, rounding off his career by being declared the best on the continent. It was hardly expected that he would so long remain the victor, but that he has done so proves how grand an animal he is. Another beauty is Nonpariel Chief, 113,024, bred by Arthur Johnston, Greenwood, Ontario—a son of old Indian Chief, and also owned by Col. Moberley. He was awarded third prize, while fourth honors went to Earl Fane VIII., 107,695, bred by John Hope, of Bow Park, Ont., and owned by Col. H. F. Brown, of Minnesota. To follow further down the prize list would take more space than I can afford, but after a careful scrutiny of the herd books I find that Ontario blood is strong in many of the other prize-winners now in American herds.

When we came to the younger cattle our breeders showed what stuff they were made of, and established beyond a doubt that Ontario is still the nursery for Shorthorns. Leaving the beef herds, we find first the black and white Hollanders—Holstein-Friesians, as they are generally known. Though not large in numbers, the contingent was select and of high class. Ontario was represented by one herd only, that of I. C. McNiven & Son, Winona, who had no reason to feel ashamed of the position they took among their competitors. The aged bull was a picture, with his soft hide, silky hair and rich quality and color, and ranked a good second.

Who that has read Blackmore and Kingsley does not have ever present before him the green lush meadows of Devonshire, and keep a soft spot in his heart for the rich, dark red cattle which take their name from the loveliest county in all England? Large of frame, sleek of hide, soft of eye, and just the picture of an honest cow that can fill a big pail with milk while she lives, and is a good mark for the butcher when her time comes. Uniform in color and size, the Devon ring was particularly attractive, and the honor of our Province was kept up by W. J. Rudd, of Eden Mills, who was a frequent prize-taker.

It is hard to find a farmer in Canada who has not a kind word for the Ayrshires. Neat, clean, kindly disposed, grand pail-fillers and fair beefers, especially with a Shorthorn cross, it is no wonder they have so many admirers. And in this class was where we distanced all comers, leaving but two or three money prizes to herders outside of Canada. Grander herds than those of Stewart, of Menie, Yuill, of Carleton Place, Guy, of Oshawa, and Smith, of Fairfield Plains, have never been led into the arena, and right well did they fulfill the expectations of their friends. The Quebec Ayrshires, too, were well up in the competition.

In the Jersey class Ontario was represented only by one bull, which, however, did not rank high among the winners.

THE HORSES.

Turning now to horses. The largest class in which Ontario breeders were interested was the Clydes, in which some twenty exhibitors came forward, and most of them were prize takers, though hardly so far up in the list as their friends expected. But it was a grand show altogether, in number and quality, and one which is not likely soon to be repeated. In Shires but one Ontario man, Mr. John Carr, of Front River, came to the front with a well-shaped stallion, War Boy's Fashion. Only two Suffolk Punch stallions were shown by Joseph Beck, Thorndale, and Boyd, Mossow & Co., Bobcaygeon. The high-stepping Hackneys, gentlemen of the horse family, and fully aware of the fact, were very much in evidence and included some animals of high rank, not so large in size, but of grand fashion of body, strong in rib, coupling and quarter, with good thighs and stifles and a beautifully arched neck. A good Hackney is the kind of horse everybody admires, and they showed it very plainly when Mr. Robert Beith's (Bowmanville) Jubilee Chief was put through his paces at the end of a halter. How his black hide did shine, and his four white feet did twinkle, and he seemed to appreciate the salvos of applause from fair hands which greeted him on every appearance. Another of Mr. Beith's stallions, Ottawa, is also a beauty. Dark chestnut in color, rich in all that goes to make a good Hackney, he is very near perfection, and had no rival but his black stable-mate, Lady Aberdeen and Winnifred, also from Mr. Beith's stables, made a beautiful team, and there is no disputing the decision that gave them first and second places and the sweepstakes to the latter. Mr. H. N. Crossley, of Muskoka, sent the elegant mares, Lady Cockney and Lady Bud, into the ring, of the real nag type such as Londoners delight in, both of which were winners. Fireworks, also owned by Mr. Crossley, is a likely colt, and will be "a good one to go" hereafter, surely. Mr. George Hastings, of Toronto, took third prize with his 2-year-old Star of Maple, as handsome a light bay as ever stood in a ring, which needs only a little more training to make him as good as any of them. The great success of Dr. J. B. Hall, of Toronto, in winning five prizes with his three American Arabs, Fez, Aldebaran and Keturah, is still a general topic of conversation among horsemen.

BEEF HERDS.

In the sweepstakes for beef herds Ontario again came to the front and finished off nicely her long list of triumphs. A finer lot of beef cattle it would be hard to find than the eight young herds, including Shorthorns, Herefords, Polled Angus and Galloways, that were ranged along the north side of the pavilion to await the decision of the judges on the second best prize of the show—$600 in cold cash. Right at the head stood J. & W. Russell's familiar quintet, Lord Stanley, Centennial Isabellas, 27 and 30, Nonpareil 50, and Ruby Princess—three of them pure white. Round and round went the judges, poking and punching the ribs and backs of the patient animals, looking before and behind and from the side, comparing notes and shifting the herds from time to time, but never offering to move the Russell herd from their position. To the hundreds of Canadians who were waiting for the verdict it was an anxious time, and when at last the decision was given by the marshal congratulations were showered on Mr. Russell for his splendid victory. Mr. Russell also won sweepstake prizes with his yearling bull and heifer calf, and was third among 2-year-old heifers. W. B. Cockburn, of Aberfoyle, won first with his roan bull calf, beating out of sight, with another set of judges, the little red bull that outranked him in the earlier days of the competition.

There are a good many other points about these cattle competitions which are exceedingly interesting, but they must perforce be held over for another letter. With this week closes the cattle and horse exhibit for the present. The fat stock and fast horses will come on in October, and the sheep and swine towards the end of the present month. In both these latter it is expected that Ontario will be well represented.

Among the visitors of note during the present week have been Sir Oliver Mowat and Hon. John Dryden, who called in to see the wonders of the White City on their return from the region north of Lake Superior. The veteran Premier did a good deal of sight-seeing, and was delighted with the show as a whole, and expressed himself as more than pleased with the exhibits of Ontario in all the departments. In a quiet way Sir Oliver received a good deal of attention, many distinguished men calling on him, and by special request he paid a visit to the Supreme Grand Lodge of Independent Foresters, which was in session in the city, and had the distinction conferred on him of being made an honorary member of the order. Mr. Dryden was especially interested in the live stock and was a frequent visitor to the barns and the stock pavilion.

On Thursday afternoon the owner of the Canadian stock and as many of the attendants as could get away were entertained at the Canadian pavilion by Honorary Commissioner Cockburn, and spent an hour or two very pleasantly fighting the battles over again, and congratulating each other on their successes.

The attendance at the World's Fair is jumping up these days. Ten millions of people paid for admission up to the first of the month, and at the present rate it would be no surprise if nearly as many came during the balance of the season. People seem at last to have awakened to the fact that if they do not visit the White City they will lose the opportunity of a lifetime, and in spite of the hard times they find the money for the trip.

ONTARIO'S FAME SPREADING.

The following letter, among many received by Commissioner Awrey, shows how the fame of Ontario has been spread to the furthest ends of the earth through the medium of her display at the World's Columbian Exposition:

MALVERN COLLEGE, VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA, July 27, 1893.

N. Awrey, M.P.P., Commissioner for the Province of Ontario, World's Columbian Exposition:

Dear Sir,—I have read some reports of the excellent display of fruit shown at the exhibition of your Province and am anxious to obtain the names of the choicest kinds of plums, strawberries, gooseberries, currants, cherries, and pears, together with the addresses of reliable growers from whom I can purchase the plants and who can be depended upon to pack carefully.

Any information you can furnish me with on the most approved methods of preserving and packing fruit, together with the particulars of improved machinery for manufacturing strawberry and fruit baskets, boxes and crates, etc., would be greatly appreciated by me.

If the firms exhibiting would send me their printed pamphlets, giving varieties and prices, it would greatly assist me. Please excuse my troubling you so much, but my great desire is to obtain the latest and best information on the above subjects, in which your Province appears to occupy such an honorable position at the World's Fair.

Your obedient servant,
WILLIAM REID.

GET THERE EARLY.

I would like to urge most strongly on all intending visitors to Chicago the absolute necessity of timing their departure so as to arrive here in the morning. Owing to the great rush of travel the trains on all the railways are invariably late, and there is untold discomfort and annoyance in being landed in an unsavory quarter of a strange city in the middle of the night, when the street cars have stopped running and one can only reach one's hotel or lodging place at largely increased expense by special conveyance.

DYSPEPSIA.

DR. RADWAY'S PILLS are a cure for this complaint. They restore strength to the stomach and enable it to perform its functions. The symptoms of Dyspepsia disappear, and with them the liability of the system to contract diseases. Take the medicine according to directions and observe what we say in "False and True" respecting diet. A few extracts from the many letters we are constantly receiving:

Dr. A. C. Middlebrook, Doraville, Ga.: "I use them in my practice and family in preference to all other pills."

T. A. Peters, Lancaster, Pa.: "I would not be without them. They are something every family should have."

Mrs. Caroline Monteith, Deer Creek, Ind.: "I believe my life has been saved by your medicine. Have long been suffering with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint."

H. A. Carr, P.M., Escambia, Fla.: "Best Pills he has ever used."

Alice E. Ohaver, Mount Storm, W. Va.: "I positively say that Radway's are the best Pills I ever had for Dyspepsia."

Louis Costa, Camden, N. J.: "I always prevent Sick Headache by taking two at the first symptoms."

Dr. D. Hughes, Nicholsville, Ky.: Uses them in his practice and pronounces them without doubt the best in use.

Dr. Thomas J. Jones, Montague, Texas: Has used them for over twenty years and never failed with them in Malaria.

Mrs. George Lohmiller, Santa Fe, Kan., says: "They never fail to give satisfaction" and calls them a "family necessity."

We have received thousands of similar testimonials, and others are pouring into our office daily.

Price 25c per box. Sold by all druggists.

Send a letter stamped to Dr. Radway & Co., No. 419 St. James street, Montreal; information worth thousands will be sent to you.

Latest Cablegrams.

The rejection by the Lords of the bill granting local self-government to Ireland is the talk of the last day or two. Such a gathering of Great Britain's nobility as was witnessed last week has not been seen before within the memory of any living man. The usually tenantless benches and galleries in the splendid chamber of the Lords were crowded afternoon and night. There was row upon row of peers and peeresses. Beauty, jewels, fine gowns and haughty faces flashed down upon bearers of high names famed in history if not in the present. There were beardless youths noted for clothes, debts and scandals. There were men so old that as they sat with heads bowed they looked rather ghosts or corpses than living beings. Many times peers have mustered in some force to destroy some reform measure of the Liberal party, but never did a Liberal bill have so fine a funeral. As the staidest of the Liberal journals, the Chronicle, remarked, the House of Lords runs to sloping foreheads and retreating chins. But this detail did not interfere with the spectacle, for while some of the peers—and peeresses also—were decidedly dowdy looking, bordering on seediness and even meanness of attire, the most of them were smartly dressed.

Title Doesn't Bring Beauty.

Though the average of comeliness among the peeresses was not high—in fact it was most disappointingly low—here and there was a face of rare beauty. Almost all of the women's faces had that supercilious look which comes of a long habit of viewing the toiling world from a cool, contemptuous attitude. The debate was conducted by picked men of the peers. The speeches, therefore, for the most part, were of a high class, but almost all were spoiled by indistinct, often mumbling delivery. To this, however, the listener to English speaking must get accustomed. Lord Rosebery won the highest honors, speaking for the bill with a contempt for his noble hearers so thinly veiled that it must have been irritating in the extreme. Most of the speeches were against the bill, and peers seemed to strive with one another in saying scornful things of democracy. Even Lord Salisbury, usually cautious and discreet, gave way to his feelings and snapped at that democracy which threatens to sweep him and his order out of existence. The scene at the division was memorable. When the call came the whole House arose and, as it seemed, streamed towards the Opposition lobby. Forty-one Government peers kept their seats until the tidal wave had disappeared. Then, forlornly, slowly, they passed to the Ministerial lobby amid the suppressed, scornful laughter of high-born women in the galleries.

The Lords' Only Safety.

Another correspondent says: "It is abundantly proved that a composite photograph of those members of the House of Lords who hold their seats by inheritance, not by appointment, would be the personification of weakness, mental, moral and physical, self-indulgence, selfishness, bigotry and intolerance. I have sometimes expressed the opinion that the English people are too firmly attached to the existing institutions of aristocracy to sweep away the House of Lords if it opposed the popular will persistently. I must add the new conviction that the only safety for the great prerogatives enjoyed by the 400 peers who rejected the Home Rule Bill Saturday morning lies in the mysterious seclusion from which they emerged last week. If their faces and forms should once be depicted before the English people their political doom would be sealed."

Gladstone Not Dismayed.

The Grand Old Man is not at all upset by the action of the House of Lords. He is still in Scotland, and is said to have already derived great benefit by the change of air and scene, although he has not been able to escape entirely from work. He devotes five hours a day to State business and correspondence, and practically all the rest of the day is spent in the open air. Here is a description published to-day of his appearance and habits when ruralizing as at present: "He generally wears a dark-colored Inverness cape, a soft felt hat of wide-awake order, and carries a stout cane. His pace is very fast. Rain does not stop him, and when he becomes heated off goes his hat, and he tramps through the rain as if it were only a little cooling spray. On these walking expeditions he talks unceasingly, using plenty of gesticulation with his hands and stick, occasionally stopping to give the ground an emphatic thump with his stick to add point to his observations."

The Queen's Hand.

Sir Henry Ponsonby, the Queen's private secretary, passed Friday night at Blackcraig Castle, where Mr. Gladstone is taking a holiday with Mrs. Gladstone and a party of friends. On Saturday morning the secretary and the Prime Minister had a long interview, and before noon Sir Henry left with a special dispatch from Mr. Gladstone to the Queen concerning the Government's attitude towards the defeat of the Home Rule Bill in the House of Lords. Sir Henry was conveyed in all haste from the castle to the railway station at Coupar Angus, where an express train was stopped to take him on board and carry him to Balmoral. It is significant that Sir Henry's mission was not undertaken at the Queen's instance, but at the suggestion of Mr. Gladstone two days ago.

The Queen is known to have awaited with unwonted anxiety Mr. Gladstone's decision as to his course after the rejection of the bill by the Lords. The royal idea is that Mr. Gladstone should appeal at once to the country, and the determination understood to have been expressed by Mr. Gladstone in his special dispatch—to hold on indefinitely—will not suit her Majesty at all. According to constitutional precedents the Queen had reason to expect that, after an overwhelming majority of Lords spiritual and temporal had condemned him, the aged Premier would resign and ask the electors again to justify his policy. It is surmised that Mr. Gladstone intimated in the dispatch carried to Balmoral the readiness of the Cabinet to submit to the Queen's prerogative to dismiss her present Ministers. This intimation would mean, however, as he knows he can rely on little, the Queen's discretion to take no step involving the crown in the popular outcry against the House of Lords.

A large and influential part of the ultra-Tory party expects such direct intervention from the Queen, but the expectation will hardly be realized. On the other hand the Queen's opinion as to the proper course for Mr. Gladstone will weigh with him undoubtedly in hastening his appeal to the country.

Shameful Revelations.

Before Friday night's sitting of the Lords the highest vote recorded in the Upper House was 375. This was given on the question of repealing the Corn Laws in 1846, and included the proxies of absent members. The attendance and vote on Friday evening, therefore, was quite beyond precedent. Many of the peers who came to town to vote against the bill had never seen the interior of the House before, and 50 were obliged to sign the roll for the first time before voting. To render the duty of attendance less irksome, some 50 or 60 peers loafed in the refreshment and smoking rooms during the debate. Several, finding the cuisine in the House restaurant unsuited to their tastes, had their own cooks, wines and meats brought in for the occasion. One peer gave a dinner prepared by his own chef, served on his own plate, by his own servants. In neither its public nor its private aspects did the House reveal any characteristics likely to strengthen its chances of a long existence.

Wife Let Him Kill Himself.

Francis Adams, an author of English fame, who had long suffered from consumption, had a hemorrhage Monday last. His wife was about to take him out in a bath chair when he had a violent attack, lost much blood, and said: "I am choking; it is finished," then got up, tottered to a bureau, took a pistol and fell upon the bed. The wife said:

"Not that, dearie."

He exclaimed: "If you love me you'll let me."

At the inquest the widow said to the jury; "I let him and removed his false teeth at his request. I could have prevented him, but I should have considered myself a contemptible coward if I had done so when things were as they were."

There was testimony to show that he could not have lived many minutes longer even had he not shot himself. He and his wife were devoted to each other. In its verdict the jury expressed regret that the wife had not prevented the suicide.

Noisome Westminster.

There is substantial ground for the scare at the House of Commons caused by the suspicious death of one of the attendants. The Palace of Westminster is built on a swamp. The drains run at so low a level that there is no fall. Immense sums have been expended in improving the sanitation. Two years ago $300,000 was paid for a new drainage arrangement without any betterment. The influenza epidemic caused more havoc at Westminster than in any other public building, and recently there were two deaths within a week among attendants from malignant diphtheria. Several members have left since the suspected cholera death, and others are being urged by their families to leave. Mr. Chamberlain is using all his influence to keep his followers in attendance, as he wants to compel the Government to adopt closure to complete the supply. It is believed, however, that the members will not return this week in any number.

Justin McCarthy to Marry.

There is an almost official rumor that Justin McCarthy is about to marry a sister of one of the well-known Queen's consul, a widow of mature years, though much younger than the Irish leader. Mr. McCarthy has been a widower more than thirteen years, and, being an admirer of women, this is not the first time he has been credited with contemplating a second marriage. His daughter is about to marry. His son married some months ago an actress, Miss Jenoure. Mr. McCarthy has not been in robust health of late. Though his books have had a large sale and he has labored all his life in daily newspaper work, he has not accumulated a fortune. The bride presumptive is amply provided with money. Mr. McCarthy is popular, as his mildness and want of strong feelings on any subject, though defects in a political leader, render him greatly liked in society.

The Ardlamont Mystery.

The upper class of the English is talking of nothing but the Ardlamont mystery. There are but meager newspaper reports of the slow unraveling of the murder of Lieut. Hamborough in the wood of Ardlamont estate—for murder it undoubtedly was—and only one paper, and that most gingerly, has touched upon the facts which give a clue to the upper class excitement over the arrest of Monson as the murderer, the getting of $100,000 life insurance being the supposed motive.

Monson is a cousin of Baron Monckton, a nephew of Viscount Oxenbridge and a second cousin to Lord Houghton, the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. As the English upper classes are like one large family, the Tory papers naturally say nothing. As the Monsons include many distinguished Liberals, the Liberal and Radical newspapers do not say much. But English society is watching anxiously the close-meshed men the police are drawing about the young man. All his relatives—everybody except his wife—seem to have abandoned him, although doubtless powerful influence will be brought to bear at the proper time. Viscount Oxenbridge, Master of the Horse to the Queen, got a special report of the case, then took it to his room and has not left it since. The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York instigated the investigation, which disclosed that Hamborough did not kill himself accidentally. There are vigorous protests that Monson is innocent, but the fact that the country police overcame the awe of great families and arrested him looks bad for him. Mr. Astor's newspaper has had the best special dispatches about the case, though they are meagre enough.

Dreadful Atrocities.

A series of frightful barbarities by a band of Indians traveling about the country assuming to be expert oculists has been exposed this week. Many poor people paid the mountebanks substantial sums for operating in a most inhuman way upon the eyes of children. Some of their atrocities are almost beyond belief. Such cruelties as passing an ordinary needle through the eyeball of a little child, and using an ordinary penknife, which they tried to sharpen on a marble mantel, to cut off a strip of skin from an eyelid, after several minutes' hacking, all with no precaution to deaden pain, were described in the court. Four of the miscreants are in jail, and the crowd at the trial expressed a desire to lynch them.

The Monster Diamond.

The great diamond recently found in the African fields is now in the hands of a cutter. It has been named the Excelsior. It is in such good shape that it is believed it will weigh 500 carats when cut, which is several times larger than any other stone. There appears, however, to be a little black speck near the center, which may make it necessary to cut the diamond in two. Even then the two stones would be larger than any others, and of perfect color. The Imperial, the next largest white diamond, sold for $1,000,000. It is said that the owners would accept $1,250,000 for the Excelsior.

Other Cable Gossip.

The insect plague continues in spite of cooler weather. In most parts of England wasps are more numerous than mosquitoes in New Jersey. Many men and animals are stung daily.

The wedding presents of the Duke and Duchess of York, on view until Saturday at the Imperial Institute, were visited by no less than 258,000 persons.

Court gossip has picked out another wife for the Czarewitch, who, it was recently reported, was a suitor for one of the Prince of Wales' daughters. It is said that as soon as the Danish court goes out of mourning the announcement will be made of his betrothal to Princess Sibyl of Hesse.

The mystery of the whopping stories told every year about the shooting on Baron Hirsch's estate in Moravia is explained. Six thousand live partridges in cages arrived on the grounds yesterday and were released. The shooting will begin next week. They call it gentlemanly sport.

WANTS TO SELL BABY.

A Bargain Offered by an Immigrant Who is Disappointed With America.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Superintendent Kimball, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, in New York, has been bothered for several days by a man who wants to sell him a baby girl for $100. The man is Jan Parylack, an Austrian immigrant, who recently arrived, with his wife and child, and is disappointed with America but wants to see Chicago before going back. His wife is with him every time he visits Mr. Kimball, and she seems as anxious to make the sale as her husband. Mr. Kimball likes babies, but he thinks $100 is too much and he cannot make the man understand it.

ONE HUNDRED ACRES OF LAVA.

Hawaii's Volcano Bursts Into Activity and Overflows.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 11.—The steamship Worrimoo arrived yesterday evening from Honolulu and brought the following advices, dated Aug. 31:

The volcano was in splendid activity last week. There were two days of violent ebullition and fountains, with constant overflows of the ten-acre lake. Powell, chief of public works, had a narrow escape from being caught in an overflow on the 27th. The lake rose in a huge tide of fire, carried away the whole of its parapet wall and filled the entire circuit of Halemaulan pit with an unbroken sheet of surging lava 100 acres in extent. A smart shock of earthquake was felt at the same time.

That Tired Feeling

The marked benefit which people overcome by That Tired Feeling derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." J. B. Emerton, a well known merchant of Auburn, Maine, says: "About five years ago I began to suffer with very severe pain in my Stomach, gradually growing worse. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, being convinced that I was troubled with Dyspepsia complicated with Liver and Kidney troubles. I improved at once and am certainly very much better and feel more like working.

CRICKET.

CANADA VS. UNITED STATES.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—At the opening of the twentieth annual international cricket match between teams representing Canada and the United States to-day at the Rosedale lacrosse ground a scattered assemblage of spectators was present. The Canadians won the toss and went to bat first and when time was called for lunch every man but one—Lyon—had been disposed of for a total of 87 runs. The individual scores were as follows:

P. C. Goldingham, Toronto	6
A. F. R. Martin, Hamilton	6
F. W. Terry, Toronto	3
H. Hansard, St. John, N. B.	1
J. M. Laing, Toronto	0
R. W. Saunders, Toronto	0
R. S. C. Saunders, Vancouver	5
A. Gillespie, Hamilton	23
M. Bristowe, Ottawa	0
G. S. Lyon, Toronto, not out	30
F. Grew, London	5

Total	87

The first inning of the home team lasted for two hours and fifteen minutes, when there was a break made for lunch. The game was recommenced at five minutes after 2, Patterson and Brown being the visitors' premier representatives. It was not till 44 runs had been made that the first wicket fell, and by this time it was already evident the visitors were likely to be the victors. Wood, however, the redoubtable gentleman who made 129 runs against Canada last year and who followed Patterson, was clean bowled by Laing with a very fast shooter after three runs. Bohlen then joined Brown, and the two added 35 runs for the next wicket, when Brown went down after making 52, the highest score of the day. Ten runs more were added and the century had just been hoisted over the telegraph board, when greatly to the delight of the onlookers no less than three of American wickets fell. Grew, the slow bowler from London, captured two of these in one over and his bowling appeared for a time to puzzle the visitors. Four wickets were down for the century, and the hopes of the Canadians returned. Thompson and Dixon, however, got to the bat, and the former proved equal to the slow bowling and carried out his bat for 49, scoring 10 twice in succession. The other men merely kept their wickets while he hit. The inning closed at 4:30 p.m., having lasted the same time as the Canadians'. Laing was by far the most successful bowler on the home side and captured 7 wickets for 84 runs.

The Canadians went in for the second time in the same order. This time they met with more success. Goldingham and Martin opened to the bowling of Patterson and Muir. Twelve runs were scored and then Martin was clean bowled by Patterson. Terry joined Goldingham, and in spite of constant changes of bowling remained at the bat until the afternoon closed, when Terry had 32 to his credit and Goldingham 35, both not out. As the game stands the Canadians are 26 runs to the lead with nine wickets on hand in the second inning. With so good a beginning it is possible their score may be a long one, and that the visitors will have stiff work to beat it. Score:

ZIMMERMAN THE GREAT.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 11.—The bicyclist, Zimmerman, gave an exhibition of his skill in Hampden Park yesterday by making an unofficial mile in 2:02 1-5 with a flying start, equal to Windle's world record, made here Oct. 7 last year. In the afternoon he made a half mile in 57¼, equal to Windle's world record for that distance.

WESTERN FAIR'S BICYCLE MEET.

The prizes to be offered at the bicycle races, which will inaugurate the Western Fair next Saturday, have been chosen. They are all either handsome or useful, and represent in every respect the value attached. The list of races, with the awards given, are as follows:

One mile novice, open—1st, double barreled breach loader, $20; 2nd, silver watch, $15; 3rd, set boxing gloves, $10.

Half-mile dash, open—1st, diamond pin, $25; 2nd, Mackintosh rain coat, $15.

Two mile, six minute class—1st piano lamp, $25; 2nd, easy chair, $15.

One mile, open—1st, diamond ring, $40; 2nd, pair field glasses, $25; 3rd, gold chain, $10.

One mile, boys under 15 years—1st, silver watch, $15; 2nd, 22 caliber rifle, $10; 3rd, Jersey racing suit, $5.

Two-mile handicap—1st, marble clock, $25; 2nd, 5 o'clock tea set, $15; 3rd, silver fruit dish, $10.

One mile, 2:50 class—1st, antique oak secretaire, $30; 2nd, one set carvers, $15.

Two mile, Huron district championship—Association gold medal, $25.

Three mile club team race, three men each—Secretaire and chairs, $50.

The entry fee for the latter is $1 50, while for the remainder it is 50 cents. The prizes are to be placed on exhibition.

AQUATIC.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Prince of Wales' yacht Britannia again won the third race for the international gold cup off the Isle of Wight to-day. Distance, 50 miles; time, 1 hour, 22 minutes.

LONDON VS. LEANDERS.

In the race between the London and Leander junior fours at Hamilton Saturday the London crew was A. Huff, George Beling, H. Dahlgreen and G. H. Giles (stroke).

This race proved the most interesting of the afternoon. The Londoners led at the start, but the Leanders came up to them, and on gaining the lead held it without any special effort and won by half a length.

It is likely the London and Leander junior fours will row a return match at London on Oct. 7.

Want Lansdowne to Remain.

SIMLA, Sept. 11.—The silence of the home authorities as to the Viceroy's successor in India still continues. Public opinion is more than ever pronounced in favor of the Marquis of Lansdowne staying until the spring. Many important questions are under settlement, and the Cabul negotiations would alone justify such a step. Sir Henry Durand cannot return until the middle of October, at the earliest, and then only a few weeks will elapse before the Viceroy retires in the ordinary course. This will not permit of an exchange of dispatches on the subject with the Secretary of State. The Ameer, too, may be influenced by the fact that a new Viceroy will probably take charge in December.

The End of the Land.

The Final Distribution of the Domain of the United States.

The Significance of the Opening of the Cherokee Outlet.

Whither Shall the Farmer of the Future Turn His Face?

Camped for many months along the northern border of the Indian Territory, scattered among the farms of Southern Kansas, and traveling from all parts of the continent in wagon, or cart, or ambulance, and by rail, are thousands of home-seekers, anxiously awaiting a signal from Washington to invade the last considerable remnant of the arable portion of the public domain and settle there.

So keen is the desire for farms and homes, so scarce the available lands, so numerous the land-hungry, so sharp the competition for this remnant of a vast arable area, and so common the belief that the Cherokee Outlet affords the "last chance," that thousands of these people have been upon the border many weary months. Their slender means having become exhausted, and labor in the vicinity of the border being so abundant as to render employment unobtainable, rather than retreat, the more sorely pressed and least scrupulous have taken to looting the farms and poultry houses in Kansas.

When the Cherokee Outlet shall have been divided among a fraction of this horde of home-seekers there will come an end to the greatest and most peaceful movement of agricultural population the world has ever witnessed, and the future of the United States development will be hedged about by many of the limitations so long prevalent in other lands.

Heretofore when a rural district in the United States became overcrowded the redundant population could choose between the neighboring town and the vacant Western lands. Whenever the difficulties attending the earning of a livelihood in the towns were increased to an unpleasant degree by reason of the adoption of some labor-saving device, the discontented or displaced artisan and laborer could, and often did, resort to the public domain.

This recourse has had the effect of maintaining and, at times, of advancing wages; but when the Cherokee Outlet shall have been occupied, such a chance for the homeless will have forever disappeared, and the territorial extension of United States agriculture will have come to an abrupt end.

From and after the occupation of the land about to be thrown open to settlement—amounting but to some 6,000,000 acres, only two-thirds of which is in the area of fairly distributed rainfall—agricultural production can, in effect, increase only in the limited way and tardy manner which will follow from the adoption of better methods, and by bringing under the plow such portions of the older farms as are now lying waste or but partially utilized. Additions to the cultivated portions of existing farms will necessarily be slow as well as limited, for the rapid increase of the urban population necessitates great annual additions to the number of dairy and draught animals, and this necessitates proportionate additions to meadow and pasture. So great have been the added requirements in this direction that the rich grain-bearing lands of Illinois and of other central States are converted into pastures.

It is true that the public domain will be far from exhausted when the Cherokee Outlet shall have been occupied; but, for other than pasturing purposes, the vacant lands are mostly valueless except as here and there may be found some small fraction of the arid area reclaimable by irrigation, or some swamp that may be drained. Involving much of time, labor and money, either process implies a scarcity of good lands capable of being reduced to cultivation at low cost. The land susceptible of irrigation at reasonable cost is so limited in quantity as to warrant the assertion that the area which can be added, within the span of an average life, to the productive expanse by this process is not likely to double the 3,631,000 acres under irrigation in 1889.

At the South, in Maine, in Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, swamps of considerable extent will eventually be reclaimed; but, in themselves, such additions to the productive areas will afford conclusive evidence of the scarcity of cultivable lands, of the increasing demand for farm products, as well as of the absence of any considerable areas which can be made productive at the cost which has attended the opening of farms upon the treeless plains.

Forty-four years measures but a fraction of national life; yet 41 years ago the gold seekers traversed an unbroken wilderness from the Mississippi to the Pacific Ocean. Since then, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, the two Dakotas, the mountain States, and those of the Pacific slope have been evolved from this wilderness and have added immensely in quadrupling the productive area of the nation. These States, with Iowa and Missouri, have added to the cultivated area more than 69,000,000 acres since 1865, which year marks the first effort to estimate officially the area under cultivation.

The rapidity with which the trans-Mississippi regions have been subdued and made productive is as wonderful as it is unrivaled in the progress of industrial life elsewhere. The progress made in reducing these wastes to cultivation, and the sudden cessation of this phenomenal development about the middle of the last decade (although more people than ever have, during the last eight years, been desirous of securing farms and homes upon the public domain) afford abundant proof of the now practically complete occupancy of the arable lands.

Unfortunately, census tabulations did not, until 1880 and near the close of the period of greatest development, furnish a measure of the increase of cultivated areas and the progress made in subduing the wilderness; nor do the census tables of 1880 and 1890 help, except inferentially, to determine the relative increase of cultivated acres in the intermediate five-year periods, nor are there other data that do so prior to 1865. Although not wholly satisfactory, such data exist in the reports of the Department of Agriculture for 1865 and subsequent years, and they, with the census figures of 1880 and 1890, render it impossible to measure the astounding strides made between 1869 and 1884; to see how sudden was the halt called when most of the lands of the Dakotas had been occupied, and how slow the development has been since the practical exhaustion of the raw material from which farms are made.

There is probably no more satisfactory or striking way of showing the progress of agricultural development in the periods under review than by tubular statement; and the one that follows, prepared by the New York Sun, gives areas under cultivation in 1865, 1869, 1874, 1879, 1884, 1889 and 1893, by groups of States, the States being grouped with reference as much to their principal agricultural products as to geographical position:

A fact of tremendous significance brought out by this table, and probably the most significant phase of current economic conditions, is that in the five years ending with 1879 the cultivated area of the United States increased by 52,800,000 acres, the annual additions averaging 10,560,000 acres; whereas the additions made during the last four years average but 500,000 acres a year, being less than a 21st part of those of the earlier period.

Words could not so easily show the exhaustion of the arable lands as does this simple numerical statement, especially when taken in connection with the fact that the ratio of would-be farmers to the total population is no less now than fifteen years since, when the additions to the cultivated area in any one of five years was greater than would accrue in 21 years at the present rate of increase.

That the proportion of the population seeking farms is as great now as fifteen years since is shown by the avidity with which each remnant of an Indian reservation is seized and the tenacity with which their occupants hold to the sterile lands of the semi-arid plains.

During the 28 years tabulated above the population of the United States increased 93 per cent., and the area under grain, hay, cotton, tobacco and potatoes, the staples dealt with in the reports of the Department of Agriculture, increased 154 per cent. One result of this disproportionate increase has, since 1876, been a constantly descending scale of prices, the gradual impoverishment of the agricultural class, and the destruction, in great part, of their power to purchase of the products of others.

In the North Atlantic States, Maryland to Maine, the area under staples expanded but little between the close of the civil war and 1874, although farm products then brought the highest prices we have ever known. This shows that high prices do not necessarily stimulate agricultural production, especially when concurrent with great general prosperity and a demand for labor at highly remunerative rates.

Between 1874 and 1879, and immediately after the panic of 1873, but not necessarily connected therewith, although many people were then thrown out of employment in the towns, came an era of agricultural expansion in the seaboard States, and in five years the area under staples here augmented by a fourth and reached its maximum.

The added acres were probably largely used to increase the output of dairy products, an industry then rapidly expanding in this region. All the acreage gains made between 1874 and 1879 were not held, however; and while there is no probability that 1,000,000 acres have since gone out of production in these States, as the figures seem to indicate, they have no doubt been diverted to pasture—probably in rotation—and to such minor products as the fruits and vegetables required by the immense populations here centering in the towns. Whatever the cause of the decrease of the area under grain can be looked for in this section; the probabilities being that grain fields will continue to give place to meadows, pastures, orchards and gardens.

This conclusion is in perfect harmony with the findings of the census, which show that the area under all cereals declined from 11,600,000 acres in 1879 to 10,400,000 in 1889, a net decrease of 1,200,000 acres.

The cultivated area of the lake States (Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin) increased rapidly and continuously from 1865 to 1879. From 1879 to 1889 the increase was comparatively small; and the diminution of the area shown since 1889 would indicate so complete an occupancy of the arable lands as to necessitate the conversion of grain fields to other products for which the demand was more urgent, and that no increase of the area devoted to staples, other than hay, can be expected in this group.

The Missouri Valley States (Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, and the Dakotas) have been the theater of the most wonderful agricultural developement of all time, the increase under staple crops having been unprecedentedly rapid from 1865 to 1889, during which 24 years the cultivated area of the group increased from 6,300,000 acres to 67,500,000, an addition of nearly 60,000,000 acres.

Since 1889 the increase has been much less rapid, and with the aid of Arkansas, Texas, and the far western regions, it has been sufficient only to offset losses east of the Mississippi and to add 2,000,000 acres in four years to the nation's productive farm lands. Some additions to the area under staples may be expected in this group, but it is very questionable if additions to the grain-bearing areas in Kansas, Nebraska, and the Dakotas will hereafter exceed the diversions of grain lands to other products in Iowa, Missouri, and Minnesota.

The completeness with which the arable lands of the Missouri Valley States have been occupied is shown by the greatly varying rates at which the cultivated area has increased in different periods. In the five years ending with 1879, the cultivated land of this group increased from 21,200,000 acres to 41,100,000; the additions of the five years nearly equaling all brought under the plow in the eleven north Atlantic States during the 250 years following the landing at Plymouth.

While the additions in the Missouri Valley averaged about 4,000,000 acres a year from 1874 to 1879, yet the additions of the group during the last four years average but 425,000 acres a year, indicating that it has become difficult to find desirable material from which to create new farms; and the founding of new homes upon farms promises to be as uncommon here at an early day as it now is in eastern regions.

As grouped in the table, the Southern States include Arkansas, Texas, and all the States south of the Potomac and Ohio rivers.

Not until after 1874 did the planters and laborers of the south adapt themselves fully to new conditions; but from about that time southern fields were rapidly restored to production and material additions were made to the cultivated area, notably west of the Mississippi.

Between 1879 and 1889 the Southern States east of the Mississippi added but 2,700,000 acres to the area under cultivation, although they made additions of 3,200,000 acres to the cotton fields, the grain-bearing area having been reduced 500,000 acres in order to add to that employed in growing cotton. During the same period the cereal area of Arkansas and Texas increased 1,300,000, and that under cotton 2,400,000 acres; the additions to the cultivated area of the two States aggregating 3,700,000 acres, and exceeding those of all the other Southern States by 1,000,000 acres.

Only in the trans-Mississippi portion of this group is there probability of any considerable increase in the number of farms; and taken as a whole, the South will do what it has always done—expand as remarkably well as its fields expand as rapidly as the world's requirements for American cotton are augmented.

In the eight mountain States and Territories the ratio of increase has been very great; but, after all, the additions to the cultivated area in this vast arid region have been insignificant, and the entire productive area here is still but little more than the area added in the Missouri Valley in any six months between 1874 and 1879. So adverse are the climatic and other conditions surrounding agricultural development in the arid belt that no material addition to the number of farms can be made in one decade in this group. As similar conditions extend over much of the eastern portions of the three Pacific States, and as the western parts of Oregon and Washington, even where not too precipitous for cultivation, are covered with immense forest growths, development will necessarily be slow, although the Pacific States are likely to furnish more new farms, during the rest of this century, than all the remainder of the country after the United States Government shall have permitted the weary home seekers to parcel out the 50,000 farms which can be made from the Cherokee Outlet and other lands soon to be available in the Indian Territory.

When brought fully into use these 50,000 possible farms will add something less than 1 per cent. to the cultivated lands of the United States, and will have a productive power equaling the requirements of about five months' addition to the population. The whole of the Indian Territory will, when made fruitful, add about 4 per cent. to the country's productive power, and nearly equal the requirements of two years' additions to the population.

From the unimproved portions of existing farms, from railway lands, and from the lands held by non-residents, possibly 6 per cent. may ultimately be added to the food and fiber bearing areas; and an additional 5 per cent. may, within two or three decades, result from the drainage of swamps, the irrigation of arid tracts, and the opening of a new farm here and there, principally west of the Mississippi.

All told, the additions to the cultivated area, which are likely to be made within 30 years, would possibly augment the area now under staples by 15 per cent.—although we must not forget that a considerable part of the limited areas which can be reclaimed will be required for minor crops—and these additions would be equivalent to the requirements of less than seven years' addition to the population. As the areas recently employed in producing food for exportation would furnish subsistence to such additions to the population as will be made in the next two years, we may say that were it possible to make all these waste acres fruitful as fast as the new population required the products, the remainder of this century could be gotten over without materially lowering the standard of living.

Probably not the half of these possibly productive acres will be utilized during the coming ten years.

After that, where can any fraction of the landless found new farms; how are the added people to be fed; what will be the effect upon wages of the inability of any of the added population to resort to the land, and the necessary crowding into the cities of more than 90 per cent. of the 1,560,000 individuals annually added to the nation's working force?

Great is the future of the American farmer, and vast will be the measure of his reward!

S. & J.

There is no use talking; there is no use our telling it, for it is well known that times have changed wonderfully. Time was when people were content with almost anything, so long as they were respectably and comfortably clad. But those days seem to have gone by. Truly, times have changed, and ideas and fashions have changed with them. Not many years ago it was unthought of by merchants to visit the far-away European markets, there to personally select their stocks of various kinds. Comparatively speaking, there are very few from this locality who think of doing that now. But we are of the few, going twice every year. We find that by doing so we can do better for ourselves, and that always means that we can do better for those who deal with us. At any rate our trade has assumed such proportions and is so varied that we are compelled to visit the fashion centers of the Old World, there to select what our experience suggests would be most suited to the demands of our trade.

We have now to hand a great many of this year's purchases. A splendid array of Dress Goods is now on view, including Hopsacking Diagonals, and, what is very popular this season, a Lady's Cloth with a satin finish. When we say these goods are the finest it does not mean they are dear. Indeed, it means the opposite. We have the finest, brightest, latest and most durable stock to be found in London, and at prices that will compare favorably with those of any other house. We do not pretend to know their prices, so do not wish to mislead by stating that ours are the lowest. They may be a great deal lower for aught we know. Come and see. In connection with our well-known house is a Dressmaking Department second to none in the Province. Ladies buying Dress Goods can have them made up tastily on the premises. Our head dressmaker is no novice, but has all the latest ideas, which means a good deal these days.

LAID IN ASHES.

A $15,000 Fire in Renfrew—$25,000 Blaze in Westport, Ont.

RENFREW, Ont., Sept. 11.—Yesterday morning a fire broke out in a hayloft in the rear of Patrick Devine's hardware store on Main street, destroying the storehouse and its contents and badly damaging the store itself. Mr. Devine's loss is $15,000, on which there was only $3,800 insurance.

HIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Sept. 11.—Fire here to-day caused a loss of about $50,000. Half the business houses are in ashes.

WESTPORT, Ont., Sept. 11.—A planing mill here owned by W. B. Darbyshire was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss about $2,500; insured for $1,500.

MONTREAL, Sept. 11.—Two dwellings on Iberville street, occupied by F. T. Dupois, Jos. Dugas and Pierre Desjardins were destroyed by fire this morning. Loss, $2,500, no insurance.

MONTREAL, Sept. 11.—Gerhards & Co.'s cigar box factory and the manufactory of the Montreal Beer Pump Company, at 11 and 13 Hermine street, were partly destroyed by fire to-night. Loss, from $3,000 to $5,000; insured.

AN AWFUL BATTLE

Between a Bear, a Dog and a Man—Bruin Comes Out On Top.

MONCTON, N. B., Sept. 11.—A man named Oliver Gogain went to feed Hunter Sellig's large bear to-night and removed the muzzle. As the man turned to leave it suddenly sprang at him, snapped his chain in two and seized him by the neck, lacerating his head, throat and shoulders terribly. His cries alarmed Mrs. Sellig, who loosened a big dog which is accustomed to fight this bear in Sellig's show. The dog seized the bear by the throat, but was crushed to death by the infuriated beast, and when Sellig arrived the dog was hanging in a death grip at the bear's throat. The bear was then captured and medical assistance summoned for Gogain, whose injuries are believed to be of a fatal nature.

The Export Demand for Hay.

Mr. J. C. Malone, of Three Rivers, one of the largest exporters of hay in Canada, who was at the Hall yesterday, ridicules the notion that the farmers of Canada will get fabulous prices for their hay this winter if they hold it long enough. As a matter of fact, the quotation cabled to Mr. Malone on Monday last was only 85 shillings a ton, c. i. f. Making allowance, therefore, for the freight rates, which are not small, and the insurance, Canadian farmers need not expect more than $5 per 100 bundles, or $6 50 a ton. This year's crop, Mr. Malone says, is between 30 and 40 per cent in excess of that of last season.—[Montreal Star.

EAST BUFFALO.

EAST BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Cattle—238 cars on sale; fair demand. The commoner grades sold at irregular prices, ranging from 15c to, in some cases, 25c and 30c lower. Choice 1,460 lb steers sold at $5, with good 1,452 lb steers at $4 62½, and good 1,420 and 1,320 lb steers at $4 35 to $4 40, and fair 1,250 lb at $4 15. In the lighter weight steers of fair quality, 1,000 to 1,120 lb weights, $3 25 to $3 50 was the range. In cow stuff, except the very best fat lot, prices were very low and irregular, common cow stuff selling down to $2, with fair lots at $2 25 to $2 50, and choice cows and heifers at $2 75 to $3 25. Western cattle and Texas steers were very slow, $2 50 to $2 75 for good lots, and fair lots $2 25 to $2 50.

Sheep and Lambs—65 cars on sale; a few good and best lambs sold at $5 25 and $5 15, but as good lambs sold at $5, and good lots sold around $4 75 to $4 90, while in common lambs they ranged all the way from $2 50 to $3, and fair 60 lb at $3 50 to $3 80, and even at the low prices the big supply of common and medium grades was far in excess of the demand. Sheep steady at last week's price.

Hogs—85 cars; prices on the York weights were lower by about 20c to 25c than the close of last week. The best Yorkers sold early at $6 30 to $6 35, and a few at $6 40, but later in the morning $6 25 to $6 30 bought the best Yorkers, while buyers generally gave the grassy stock the go-by. Packers' grades sold nearer to the figures at the close of last week, selling at $6 25 to $6 30, or about the same price as the good Yorkers; heavy ends ruled slow at $5 75 to $6.

LAURIER IN LONDON.

The thousands of friends of the Dominion Liberal leader will be glad to know that he will be able to spend a few hours in this city to-morrow.

Mr. Laurier will arrive from Leamington by the G. T. R. Atlantic express, which reaches this city at 12:10 p.m., and will be the guest of Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P., till he resumes his journey to Mitchell, by way of Stratford, by the train which leaves the G. T. R. station at 5:55 p.m.

Between the hours of 3 and 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Laurier will hold a reception at the Liberal rooms, Oddfellows' block. The public generally—ladies as well as gentlemen—will be gladly welcomed by the distinguished statesman.

Entrance to the rooms will be by the reading-room door on the right hand side, and exit will be made by the door of the main assembly room.

Coming Liberal Gatherings.

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, the Liberal leader, and other statesmen will address the electors in the under-mentioned places on the dates named:

Leamington, Tuesday, Sept. 12, 2 p.m.
Mitchell, Thursday, Sept. 14, 2 p.m.
Arthur, Saturday, Sept. 16, 2 p.m.
Durham, Monday, Sept. 18, 2 p.m.
Walkerton, Tuesday, Sept. 19, 2 p.m.
Port Elgin, Wednesday, Sept. 20, 2 p.m.
Owen Sound, Friday Sept. 22.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Chief of Police Williams is indisposed.

—Mr. John Kickham, Chicago, Ill., is visiting his parents on King street east.

—Mrs. John Mills, Charlotte street, East London, has returned from a trip to Montreal.

—Mr. Islay McConnell, of Windsor, is spending his holidays with his parents on Pall Mall street.

—Mr. James Campbell, carpenter, has returned to London West, his former home, after an absence in Chicago of some years.

—Mr. Warburton, of the Erie and Huron Railway, denies emphatically that his company has any intention of tendering for the lease of the London and Port Stanley Railway.

—No. 1 company of the Seventh Battalion met for drill last night, and decided to pay their visit to St. Thomas on Thursday night of this week. The bugle band accompanies them.

—Charley Haystead, formerly of this city, has given up his efforts to star his wife, Miss Josie Mills. She has accepted a position in the "Master and Man" company, which opens the season in Philadelphia on Monday night. Charley himself is business manager of the "Fair Rebel" company.

—Ex-Ald. James A. Thomas, of South London, arrived home yesterday from a six weeks' trip to the Pacific coast, going by Vancouver and returning by San Francisco, taking in the World's Fair en route. He had a most enjoyable time.

—An inmate of the asylum named Wm. Generaux, escaped from that institution yesterday morning. The police were notified and Detective Nickle arrested the man in the evening, in South London. He was taken back by the asylum authorities.

—The first carnival of the season at Westminster Rink last evening was largely attended. The costumes were all tasty and pretty. The Citizens' Band provided good music. The rink is a popular place of recreation under the management of Mr. Whit. Lancaster.

Conservative Delegates.

At the Conservative meeting on Carling street last night Messrs. Ed Flock, S. F. Glass and R. M. C. Toothe were elected delegates to the Conservative convention at Toronto on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Mr. C. W. Norman, city, and T. C. Bartlett, Strathroy, are members for this city and the west of the executive committee.

Dan McCarthy Coming.

The attraction at the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoon and evening will be Dan McCarthy in his latest success, "The Rambler from Clare," a play that only needs to be seen to be appreciated. It is produced in Mr. McCarthy's best style by a superb company. Special attention has been given to the scenic and mechanical effects. Every bit of scenery used in this grand production is carried by Mr. McCarthy and is the work of such eminent artists as Harley Merry and S. R. G. Penson. The "Rambler from Clare" is one of the few plays that is entirely free from vulgarity. That this is appreciated is shown by the crowded houses it draws. The comedy is pure and refined. If you want to spend a pleasant evening go and see Dan McCarthy and his merry company in "The Rambler from Clare."

Still Another Robbery.

The gang of thieves that appear to be stalking around London in broad daylight evidently have an utter disregard for the local police force. At noon yesterday Mr. G. F. Robertson, a merchant in the East End, locked the front door of his place of business for a moment and stepped across the way to a neighboring store. He was gone scarcely five minutes, but that was time enough for someone to effect an entrance through the back door, which had been left unlocked. The till was emptied of $14 or $15 and the thief left the same way in which he came. A lane leads from Dundas street to Queen's avenue, at Mr. Robertson's store, and it would be a very easy matter for the thief to have noticed him lock the front door and then to have walked through the lane and into the back door and afterwards leave unnoticed by way of Queen's avenue. The police officers, of course, protess to know nothing about these numerous petty robberies. But they are about as unsuccessful as the council in suppressing legitimate news.

A Memorial Service.

St. James' Episcopal Church was Sunday the scene of a service in memory of the late Mr. John Beattie. The congregation which attended was largely in excess of the accommodation afforded. The interior of the edifice was somberly draped. During the course of his sermon the Dean of Huron said: "No member of the many in this church took a more lively interest in the welfare of the church than did the late John Beattie. Ever ready to come forward with counsel and material aid, we can say that the present position of this church, apart from the energetic labors of your rector, is very largely due to his good works. Some are demonstrative and aggressive, while others seek the shade, and their works are only known by the flowers that grow along the path which they have trodden. Our brother was of this latter class. He was successful in business, kind and benevolent, and the poor especially will miss him. It is hard for us to understand why one so useful was removed from amongst us, but it was done in the wisdom of him whose ways are not our ways." All the music on the occasion was appropriate.

Ontario Investment Association vs. Leys—Judgment on appeal by the defendants from the judgment of Armour, C. J., the trial judge, in an action upon the covenant for payment in a mortgage deed, finding a sum due to the plaintiffs beyond what was paid into court by the defendants; and on cross-appeal by the plaintiffs from the same judgment, seeking to increase the amount found due. The principal question raised was as to the rate of interest to be allowed, the plaintiffs setting up a special agreement in that regard. Defendants' appeal allowed with costs, and plaintiffs' cross-appeal dismissed with costs. The interest to be computed at 7 per cent. for the first year, and at the statutory rate thereafter. Moss, Q.C., for the defendants; W. R. Meredith, Q.C., for the plaintiffs.

Wyld vs. Hooper.—Judgment on appeal by the defendants from the judgment of Street, J., who tried the action at London, in so far as it was in favor of the plaintiffs. The action was for a declaration that a certain stock of goods and fixtures in the possession of the defendants was subject to an execution upon a judgment recovered by the plaintiffs against one Hemstreet, and for an account and a setting apart of such goods from other goods of the defendants. The judgment appealed against declared that the stock of goods was never subject to the plaintiff's execution but that the fixtures were subject to it. The plaintiffs also appealed from the same judgment in so far as it was against the plaintiffs. Defendants' appeal allowed with costs, plaintiffs' appeal dismissed with costs, and action dismissed with costs. N. McDonald (St. Thomas) and Treemear for the defendants, Gibbons, Q. C., for the plaintiffs.

Their New Year.

Yesterday the followers of the Hebrew religion all over the world are celebrating the advent of the year. The Jewish New Year's day begins at 6 o'clock in the evening of Sept. 10 and ends at 6 o'clock the next evening. This New Year's day, Rosh Hoshonah, is not a civic, but a religious holiday purely. It is the first day of a period devoted by the followers of the faith of Abraham to reckoning up the deeds of the past year, and to prayer for strength to aid in good works for the new year. The new year period differs from all other Jewish holidays. These are all in celebration of some great event in their national history, while this is a solemn occasion divested entirely of the feasting invariably an accompaniment of the other festivals. The books of Numbers and Leviticus contain commands for its observance and the day is called in the Bible, "Memorial of the trumpet call," "Day of memorial" and "Day of the trumpet blast." In ancient times the blowing of the ram's horn was one of the features of the day, but latter a symbolic representation of the custom has been used. The three trumpet blasts, according to Mosaic writ, were reminders to the faithful of God as king of the world; of God as the judge; of the duty owing to himself of self and spiritual improvement. Rabbis in every synagogue throughout the world hold special services on the day, when sermons are preached and lectures delivered on the commands and suggestions of the Holy Book for the observance of this most solemn occasion. Though the day in no way corresponds with the civil New Year's day, Hebrews, especially the younger generation, are wont to greet their friends with: "I wish you a happy New Year."

Must Be Built.

At the regular monthly meeting of the London Bicycle Club, held recently, Dr. C. W. Belton was in the chair. One of the most important matters under discussion was that of the proposed bicycle track at Queen's Park and the offer of the Western Fair Board in connection therewith. Judging from the general interest manifested, it is certain the promoters of the scheme will not allow it to drop, but will push matters vigorously in every direction until the track is an accomplished fact.

Mr. Walter Mann was in favor of letting the offer of the Western Fair pass. He said a joint stock company could readily be found to acquire new grounds, erect stands, etc., and this would give the wheelmen sole control of the undertaking. He moved that no action be taken.

Mr. Carroll thought Mr. Mann's idea impracticable. The cost of grounds, inclosing same, building track and erecting suitable stands would not fall short of $10,000, and in view of the fact that the only means of revenue would be the rental derived from one or two "meets" and the annual fees of those using the track, he failed to see the inducement to shareholders. The offer of the Western Fair Board was most liberal; they had acceded absolutely to every demand of the various clubs; and for the wheelmen now to lose heart because the council could not at first sight see the importance of the undertaking was foolish in the extreme. At present they actually had one half of the track, and he was confident that when the council had the matter presented to them in its true significance they would soon have the balance. United action was necessary, and there should be no flagging until every obstacle was overcome.

Dr. Balfour agreed with Mr. Carroll, and it was decided that a committee be appointed to wait upon the various aldermen and urge that the matter be reconsidered. There are a few good workers in the London Bicycle Club, and they are in dead earnest over this matter. The aldermen should give them a patient hearing.

To an ADVERTISER representative Mr. Carroll said it was really surprising how few outside of cyclists themselves really recognize the importance of the sport. In Sarnia recently, at the annual meet of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association, it was estimated that fully $20,000 was left in the town by the visiting wheelmen and their friends. There was a subtle charm about the bicycle that was totally inexplicable to non-participants, but that it was a fact no rider would dispute. What other sport could arouse such enthusiasm and draw such enormous crowds? The time had come when every city should have its bicycle track. Talk about advertising London! what better scheme could you possibly have than this? With a suitable track we could have the annual convention next year sure and bring 5,000 visitors to the city. This was not mere idle talk, but good solid facts, and the sooner the council realize it the better would it be for all concerned.

Several members of the club were finally appointed to interview the aldermen in each ward. Another appeal to the council will be made afterwards. The names of the committees are: No. 1 ward, Dr. Belton, James McCormick, P. T. Carroll; No. 2 ward, James McCormick, W. Reid, H. Southam, D. Mills; ward 3, Dr. Balfour, James Belton, W. Fitzgerald, W. Mann; ward 4, David Mills, P. T. Carroll, F. Beltz, C. White; ward 5, Fred Scandrett, O. Cunningham, F. J. Sanders; ward 6, A. Johnston, R. F. Hungerford, E. White.

Four hundred men were present at Victoria Hall Sunday afternoon to hear an address on "Social Purity," by James B. Wookey, of London, Eng., and are not likely to forget the message so earnestly given. It was a stirring appeal to purity in heart and life and an exaltation of the Lord Jesus Christ as our only Saviour and Deliverer. Mr. Wookey was assisted by the hand bell ringers from Dr. Bernardo's home, who played several selections that captivated the audience. This was the first in the series of men's popular meetings to be held Sunday afternoons at Victoria Hall, and augurs well for the coming months.

The committee, under the leadership of Prof. F. T. Harrison, are making every effort to have the best that can be had, and it will pay our young men to attend these services. Prof. W. C. Barron is taking charge of the music and a good orchestra will lead.

About 40 of the boys enjoyed a trip through the "World's Fair" at their room on Thursday last through the kindness of Will H. Sallmon, who gave them a very interesting description of the sights to be seen at the White City. Mr. Sallmon also addressed the boys' meeting on Friday night and spoke on the "Bible Telephone" to an interested group of boys.

A tramp to Pond Mills completed the programme for last week, and was indulged in by twenty pedestrians who thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

A BIG SUIT

Against the Massey-Harris Company—The Mercer Company Claim to be Oppressed.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—To-day is citizen's day at the exhibition grounds, and there is a very large attendance. In addition to the attractions of last week the International Bench Show of Dogs opened today with over 600 entries. Another attraction is the Royal Cadets of Montreal in regimental, physical, bar, bell exercises and fancy marching.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—The Massey-Harris Company, J. K. Osborn, G. G. Mills and Frank Price, were to-day at Osgoode Hall made defendants in suit, filed by Messrs. Mercer, Titus and Bradford, solicitors, for $100,000 damages. Claim is made on behalf of the Mercer Manufacturing Company, of Alliston, Ont., who manufacture among other agricultural implements the "Mercer binder" and other harvesting machines. The damages, as set out in the writ, are for wrongfully, unlawfully and maliciously conspiring to injure the plaintiffs, and inducing the firm of Wood, Vallance & Co., of Hamilton, and the Nova Scotia Steel and Forge Company of New Glasgow, N. S., and others to sell and assign to the Massey-Harris Company certain promissory notes and accounts and taking proceedings thereon for the purpose of having the plaintiffs placed in liquidation to lessen the competition of the Mercer Company with the Massey-Harris Company.

Horse Dealer Wulff bet Land Owner Harxen 1,000 marks ($240) that a thoroughly sound horse could not compete with a first-class bicyclist in a race over a course of 35½ kilometers (about 22 miles). Harxen rode his own magnificent thoroughbred. Wulff got the services of one of the best bicyclists in North Germany—Grundmann, president of the Oldenburg Bicycling Club. The bicyclist won a signal victory, covering the distance in 62 minutes—three minutes less than the horse.

HIS REPENTANCE.

"Yes, I did," the girl replied. "And I hope he will be punished yet. I remember the time, too. I had had a letter that morning from one of the women who went with the regiment, a soldier's wife; she spoke of my husband in it in a way that vexed me; and she said, amidst other news, that their captain—Captain Davenal—had just got married. The letter put me up to think that perhaps Captain Davenal could do some good for me with my husband, and I came off at once to Neal and asked him. Neal said he should not trouble Captain Davenal with anything of the sort; and the answer made me angry, and I reminded Mr. Neal that I could say one or two things about him that would not be pleasant, if I chose to be ill-natured; and at last he promised to send a letter for me to Captain Davenal, inclosed in one from himself, if I liked to write and state the case. I remember quite well saying that I could have satisfaction somehow, no matter what the punishment to my husband. Did my letters ever reach you, sir? I wrote two or three."

"Never."

"Like enough Neal never sent them," she exclaimed, with an angry toss. "He said he did; and I have been always asking him whether he received no answer for me."

"Is Neal your uncle, Mrs. Wentworth?"

"I call him so sometimes, sir, when I want to be pleasant with him, but in point of fact he is no real relation. My stepmother is his sister; and that makes him a sort of uncle-in law."

"And you have not—excuse my pressing the question, Mrs. Wentworth, but I have a reason for it—given Neal reason to believe that you were ever married to any one except Sergeant Wentworth?" resumed Captain Davenal.

"Never in my life, sir," she replied, and her accent of truth was unmistakeable. "Say to Neal that I was married to anybody else! What for? It would be childish to say it; he knows quite well that I am Sergeant Wentworth's wife."

The falsehood then had been Neal's! Captain Davenal glanced at Sara. But the sergeant's wife spoke again.

"Could you interest yourself for me with Wentworth, sir?"

"Ah, I don't know. It is a ticklish thing, you see, to interfere between man and wife," added the captain, a jesting smile upon his lips. "How does the old proverb run?—that any man who does, gets his teeth drawn by both parties, the upper ones by the wife, the lower ones by the husband. What is your grievance against Wentworth?"

Mrs. Wentworth entered on her grievances; a whole catalogue. She required that her husband should send for her to be with him in India, or else that he should make her a better allowance, so that she could live "as a lady." She knew he got plenty of prize-money, she said, for she had been told so; and she finished up by saying that she had been to the War Office, and to half a dozen other offices, to complain of him, and could get no redress.

"Well," said Captain Davenal, "I'll tell you what I'll do. I will write to Sergeant Wentworth—a man for whom I have great respect—and inquire his version of the quarrel between you. We should always hear both sides of the question, you know, Mrs. Wentworth. When I get his answer you shall hear from me. To be candid with you, I must say that I don't think Wentworth is one to allow of much interference. He has good judgment and he likes to exercise it. But I will write to him."

"And you'll promise to see me again, sir, in spite of Neal? What his objection was, I don't know, but he did all he could to prevent me from seeing you."

"I don't think you need fear Neal's prevention for the future in regard to seeing me," said Captain Davenal, in a significant tone, as he civilly bowed out Mrs. Wentworth.

"Well, Sara, and what do you think of Neal, now?"

"I can't understand it; I can't understand why he should have said it, or what his motive was," slowly replied Sara. "Oh, if he only knew the cruel days and nights it caused me to pass! Shall you tell Aunt Bettina of Neal's falsity?"

"Tell her!" repeated Captain Davenal. "Do you think I can allow you and her to be any longer under the same roof with a villain such as Neal?"

Not to Miss Bettina, however, did Captain Davenal at once take his way, but to Parliament street. The revelation of Sara that morning—that the one dark episode in his own past history had been known to Oswald Cray—was troubling Edward Davenal's mind far more than any inconvenience wrought by Mr. Neal.

Oswald was at home and came up to his sitting-room to welcome Captain Davenal. A few words of greeting, and then the captain plunged wholesale without any ceremony or preparation, into the object which had brought him.

"I have come to ask you a question," he began, dropping his voice to a confidential whisper. "How did you become acquainted with that miserable business of mine?"

"With what miserable business?" returned Oswald, in surprise.

"Don't you recall what I mean? That affair that swamped me. Or, I'm sure I may better say, swamped my father. The—the—those bills, you know."

Oswald did not know in the least. And said so.

"Hang it, Cray," exclaimed the captain, why force a man to speak out? Those forged bills that I put into circulation, and couldn't get back again."

"I protest I do not know what you are talking of," returned Oswald. "I don't understand what it is you would ask me."

"I only ask how you became acquainted with the affair."

"I never was acquainted with the affair; with any affair such as you allude to," persisted Oswald. "I am not acquainted with it now."

"Do you mean to say that you did not become cognizant of that dreadful trouble I got into before leaving England—the signing of those bills?"

"I never heard of it in my life. I never heard or know that you were in any trouble whatever."

Captain Davenal sat staring at Oswald. How reconcile this denial with Sara's positive assurance of that day? "You are telling me truth?" he cried with a perplexed air.

"Entire truth," said Oswald. Why should I not?"

"What then could Sara mean?" debated Captain Davenal aloud. "She tells me that you did know of it,"

"Sara tells you so?"

"She does. She says that. I don't see that I need scruple to speak," broke off Captain Davenal, "it's all over and done with, I suppose. Sara says it was your knowledge of the affair that caused the breaking off of the engagement between yourself and her."

Oswald Cray was silent. A doubt crossed him of whether the gallant captain had received some sabre cut or sunstroke in India, to effect his brain. Captain Davenal noted his puzzled look, and strove to be more explanatory.

"When you and I were returning to town from Hallingham the night of Caroline's wedding, you hinted that there existed an attachment or engagement between you and Sara. For the first time I spoke of this to Sara this morning. She admitted that something of the kind had existed, but said it was over; and I saw that the subject was painful—one she wished to avoid. So I dropped it. Afterwards, in speaking of this worse business of mine I observed that it was known to three people only; my father, Alfred King and Sara; but Sara interrupted me, saying it was known to Oswald Cray. I disputed the fact; I said it could not have been known to you, but she persisted in her assertion, and finally confessed that it was in consequence of its coming to your knowledge that you broke off the engagement to her, deeming she was not worthy to become your wife. Pardon me yet a moment when I state that I am not here to question the decision; I don't wish to enter upon it at all, except to say that many would have done as you did, after what I, her brother, had been guilty of. All that is apart from the business, and I am only telling you how it came out. Sara said that it was the sole cause of its breaking off the engagement, and that you must have known of it almost as soon as—as my father knew. Now I want you to tell me, Mr. Oswald Cray, how and whence that affair came to your knowledge. Have I made myself clear?"

"Perfectly clear, so far as explanation goes; but it is nothing but obscurity to me, for all that. In the first place, allow me to assure you that I never knew before now that you were in any trouble whatever. This is my first intimation of it."

"And was it not that knowledge that caused you and Sara to part?"

"It was not. How could it have been, when I assure you I did not possess the knowledge? A—a great trouble, of which I would prefer not to speak, did lead to the parting, but it was entirely unconnected with you."

"Well, this is Greek," returned Captain Davenal. "There was no other trouble connected with the family, but mine. I suppose you mean that it was connected with them?"

"Yes."

"With which of them? There was no scapegoat in it except me."

"It was connected with Dr. Davenal," said Oswald reluctantly. "I cannot say more."

"With my father? Nonsense, if you mean anything wrong. A more upright man never breathed. Fancy him sending forth bad bills!"

"I could not fancy him doing so," replied Oswald. "The matter had nothing to do with money."

"I'll lay all I am worth it had to do with me, with my business," impulsively spoke Captain Davenal. "I will tell you how it was——"

Pride is better than envy—but a man may get along without either.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

We ought to keep peace with China as long as we have a Pacific Ocean between us.

THE CATHOLIC CONGRESS.

Education Exhaustively Discussed—The Need of Higher Education Upheld.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—A number of the strongest men intellectually in the Catholic Church in America discussed the subject of education to-day from a Catholic standpoint before the Catholic Congress. The attendance was unusually large, amounting to a genuine crush. Among other addresses was one by Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, of the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, on "The Needs of Catholic Colleges."

"A crisis has come in higher Catholic American education. If it remains stationary now it must eventually go backwards. We need, first of all, in our Catholic colleges a firm insistence on some system which will make men rather than exotics. We need a system of discipline which will lay more stress on the honor of the youth and less on the subtle distinctions between venial and mortal sin. I do not propose to find fault with the study hall and dormitory arrangements, imported from the continent of Europe, so far as boys under the age of 16 are concerned. They may be useful or not. But I do mean to insist that where young men over the age of 16 are concerned they are sometimes detrimental to the mental advancement of the student and always to his self-respect. There is also a gap between the Catholic college and the higher parochial or public schools which must without much more delay be filled. Harvard, Yale and Cornell and Ann Arbor have brought themselves by means of scholarships directly in contact with the most studious and worthy classes of our young men. The pupil of the parochial school, no matter how industrious and clever he may be, no matter how ambitious, must, in order to obtain further instruction, be financially well off or have a friend who will pay his tuition at a Catholic college. Failing these things, he can obtain through some of the public high schools a scholarship in one of the secular colleges, frequently reducing the yearly expenses from $500 to $100. It is no wonder that the sons of the people are the most desirable, because the most ambitious and persevering students are always well represented in the graduating classes at Harvard, and that at Cornwall the poorer Catholic who has secured a scholarship is enabled to gratify his ambition to stand as the equal of any man in his fight for a place in society. The Catholic colleges need endowment. But more than all, they need scholarships. And with the scholarships will come just such students as they ought to have. And with such students will cease the maintenance of a system of discipline which can only be justified on the presumption that each older student is possessed of a devil which cannot be exorcised, but which must be caged. Lay professors of character and of acquirements are needed, too. No college which is entirely manned by ecclesiastics can thoroughly do its work or obtain its proper effect on society in America."

Look Here!

Do you feel blue and despondent? Do pains rack and tear away at nerve and muscle, and have you been disappointed in finding a remedy that will afford certain and speedy relief? If so, go at once to any drug store and buy a bottle of Polson's Nerviline. Polson's Nerviline never fails to relieve neuralgia, cramps, headache, rheumatism, and all internal or external pains. J. B. Carman, druggist, Morrisbury, writes: "All the parties I supply speak very favorable of Nerviline, and always purchase a second lot." Polson's Nerviline is sold in bottles at 25 cents—by all druggists and country dealers everywhere.

They tell of a person in Detroit who has two tongues. They say he is a man, but we know better.

Worms cause feverishness, moaning and restlessness during sleep. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant, sure and effectual. If your druggist has none in stock, get him to procure it for you

There are two things in the world upon which there have never been any improvement—the wheelbarrow and kissing.

Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common Cathartic or Purgative Pills as they are extremely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

Every wife occasionally wishes she could vindicate herself by letting some woman her husband praises have him for a few weeks.

A mans' wife should always be the same especially to her husband; but if she is weak and nervous, and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they will make her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so too.

It is no doubt a good habit for a woman to do her own sewing; but the woman who is her own dressmaker is apt to get into many bad habits.

During the Past Fifty Years.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for over FIFTY YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHŒA. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

As long as a man can assign the property of his creditors over to his wife marriage is not wholly a failure.

A Wonderful Cure.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little affect. But since using three bottles of the VEGETABLE DISCOVERY the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know." 3

An heir break should invariably go with every fortune which is left to a rapid or frivolous young man.

IS HE EATEN UP?

Dr. Johnston, the African Traveler, Thinks Emin Still Lives.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Dr. James Johnston, of Jamaica, West Indies, who is now in New York, was asked by a reporter his opinion of the latest story about Emin Pasha's death. The doctor said:

"I do not believe Emin is dead. Everything I know about the man leads me to doubt that he could possibly have come to his death in any such way as the foreign dispatches tell us. Emin Pasha is a diplomat, skilled in the finest attributes of the art. None knows better than he how to deal with the Arabs and Mohammedans of Central Africa. He knows their leaders, their customs, and their strength and vindictiveness, and he surely would not be foolish enough to go into their fastnesses, as he is said to have done, and wreak summary vengeance on men whose thousands of friends he could be certain would more than pay him back in kind. He is a politician, and there is nothing foolish in his make-up. There is not in Africa a more skillful tactician than he.

"No, you can rest reasonably assured that Emin Pasha is not dead, I do not believe it, and will not until some white man who has seen either his remains or some indisputable proof of his having been killed, comes forward and tells the story.

"These tales of death in equatorial Africa are frequent and unreliable. Most of them come from natives, and a few travelers, who have seen heads exposed on poles, have, when they reached the coast, told strange tales of the deaths of explorers.

"I was not far from Emin's locality about eight months ago, and heard from him frequently. He was then a little south of Victoria Nyanza, and everything thereabouts was in perfect peace. He sent me word that he had never been on better terms with the Arabs, and that he had regained with the people of Central Africa nearly all the prestige that he had previously lost. His prospects were bright, and there was not a cloud on his horizon of success. These reports of his death are periodical, and, as you know from experience, utterly worthless.

THE SOAP AGE.

There has been great progress made in manufacturing of Laundry Soaps the last few years; so much so that the old fashioned way of merely combining grease and lye is done. Soap is now made and combined on scientific principles from first to last and is an immense improvement on the common yellow soap so long in use. So manifest is this improvement that many people are demanding better soaps which give better results and are more economical. SURPRISE Soap is made to fill this want of a first-class laundry soap. It has been seven years on the market and is now for sale all over Canada. Its success is due to its remarkable qualities for washing clothes — its purity—its general excellence.

A Night Clerk's Adventure.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Harry Warner, night clerk in the drug store of E. A. Holiday, Eighteenth street and Wabash avenue, had a terrible struggle for his life early yesterday morning with two robbers. He was shot in the mouth and then beaten on the head with billies until the thieves left him, as they supposed, dead. The cash register in the store was rifled and an attempt made to rob the safe. From Warner the thieves took $20.

E. A. STORRS.

1302—Pope Innocent VI died.
1494—Francis I of France was born; died 1547, the first eminent victim of what was then called the "Italian sickness."
1642—Cinq-Mars, long a favorite of Louis XIII, was executed at Lyons, with his friend De Thou, on a charge of conspiracy against Cardinal Richelieu.
1683—John Sobieski and his Poles drove an army of 200,000 Turks from the siege of Vienna.
1786—Griffith Jones, Welsh author, famous for children's stories, died.
1806—Edward Lord Thurlow, chancellor of England and famous law writer, died.
1819—Lebrecht von Blucher, the famous Prussian commander, died.
1885—Emery A. Storrs, eminent and eccentric lawyer and politician of Chicago, died; born 1855.
1888—Professor Richard Anthony Proctor, English astronomer, died; born 1837. J. Newton Gotthold, famous actor, died.
1892—Fire island people refused to allow a quarantined steamer with passengers to land.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—"My pigmy counterpart,' the poet wrote
Of his dear child, the darling of his heart;
Then longed to clutch the stupid printer's throat
That set it up, "My pig my counterpart.'

Mr. A. Zimmerman, city, has returned from the World's Fair.

—Miss Maggie Yates, Parkhill, is visiting her parents at 520 Ontario street.

—Rev. J. A. Murray, city, left for the World's Fair via the G. T. R. last night.

—Miss Ada Taylor, Adelaide street, has returned home after a lengthy stay in Chicago, Ill.

—Isaac Brock, 422 Hill street, has a building permit for alterations and additions to his residence.

—Mr. M. C. Cameron, Q.C., Goderich, has been in the city on a visit to his son-in-law, Dr. Wilson, Queen's avenue.

—Dr. L. E. Morgan, of Baton Rouge, La., is in the city. He is on his way to visit his father, Mr. John Morgan, Kerwood.

—Mrs. R. T. Kelly, of Chicago, has returned home after spending three weeks with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Kelly, Central avenue.

—On Friday evening the young people of Elizabeth Street Church gave a very successful social and entertainment, a large number being present.

—Mr. Ernest Lakey and Mr. Armstrong, of Providence, R. I., left yesterday for the World's Fair. While in the city they were the guests of Mr. Geo. P. Angus.

—Mr. David L. Hardey, formerly of East London, was married in Toronto on Aug. 30 to Miss M. Dowswell, of that place. Rev. W. F. Wilson performed the ceremony.

—Mrs. John Roberts and family, of Burnside, Lapeer county, Michigan, are visiting the old folks at the homestead, Guernsey cottage, Hackett street, East London.

—Messrs. R. Stinchcombe and William Peters, of London West, are home after a visit to the World's Fair.

—Work upon the line of the new electric railway in London West is progressing rapidly. Already the ties are laid along Dundas to the Wharncliffe. The latter thoroughfare is now being plowed up.

—G. T. R. Constable Logan was in Watford yesterday and as a result Alex. Laing, Hugh Black, J. Roach and Thos. Halliday, four boys charged with being disorderly on a train, were fined $1 and costs each.

—In the boat race at Hamilton the London Rowing Club's four were defeated by half a length. The water was very rough. This seriously hampered the city boys. They were swamped at the outset. The race had to be started again.

—A suit has been entered by Col. F. B. Leys, of South London, against Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, for $976, which the plaintiff claims to have been paid out in election expenses during Mr. Ross' candidature in West Middlesex in 1883.

—Mr. R. A. Jones, postmaster at Kensington, London West, has returned from a ten weeks' visit to Great Britain. His friends say that he looks ten years younger. These weeks of recreation have evidently been extremely rejuvenating.

—P. C. James Gillson has reported to Sergt. Crawford and he to the city engineer that seven signs on Dundas street project further than the bylaw permits. Complaints have frequently been received regarding them, and no doubt such action will be taken as will cause the observance of the bylaw.

—A correspondent asks the meaning of the word "nee" placed in front of a woman's name. "Is it correct," he asks, "to write of Miss Brown, nee Mrs. Jones?" It is not. But it is proper to write of "Mrs. Jones, nee Matilda Brown," if Brown was the maiden name of the individual in question.

—An esteemed East London citizen writes that they did not ask for a drain on English street to Carling's Creek, but for a drain on Dundas street of the same capacity as the one already laid on English street. He further says the residents there have reason to complain that they got about one-fourth what they requested. "Some $12,000 have been spent in improvements on the block, corner of Dundas and English streets. This is rendered about useless from the overflow water—a loss to the city of hundreds of dollars in taxes."

Merely an Introduction.

An advertisement is merely an introduction. The goods once brought to notice must take care of themselves. Just in the same manner a social introduction is valuable, but not conclusive if the individual turns out to be worthless.—[Printers' Ink.

Mrs. Prince's Condition.

The condition of Mrs. Prince, whom her stepson is accused of brutally assaulting, was not altered much yesterday. It was probably, though, for the worse. The bruises upon her face had colored, and the swelling in the region of the left temple was greatly aggravated. Her head was aching severely. Her condition is still considered extremely critical.

Laurier at St. Thomas on Sunday.

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier spent Sunday in St. Thomas, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Wilson. In the morning they attended services in the Catholic Church. In the evening, accompanied by Dr. Wilson and Alex. Darrach, Hon. Mr. Laurier attended Knox Presbyterian Church, and listened to a sermon preached by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Macdonald. Services are being held in the Sunday school room on account of repairs being made to the church. A solo was sung by Mr. Wm. Carrie, of Kansas, a former St. Thomas boy.

—When you are shingling your roof use British Columbia red cedar shingles. W. D. Willis & Co., corner York and Adelaide streets, have a large supply of them, perfect both in quality and manufacture. Don't be persuaded into purchasing before seeing theirs. They also carry a full line seasoned joists, boards and scantling. 'Phone 786.

He Was Keenly Self-Willed.

"Will you kindly wake up and register?" asked the clerk in one of the city hotels late last night as he shook the shoulders of a drowsy old gentleman who was leaning over the office desk.

"Might, but I won't," was the sharp retort.

"But all the rest of our visitors write their name in the book," urged the urbane clerk.

"Maybe, but I'll pass. Please don't excite me," was the reply.

"Then give me your name and address and I'll register for you."

"Well, I'm from Biddulph," replied the sleepy man with a yawn, "and if you will take off my collar you'll find my name on the shirt band."

Police Court Items.

Seated upon a bench before the dock in the Police Court yesterday morning was Ida Powell. She was there charged with keeping a house of evil repute. Apparently she felt her position keenly. Her face was buried in a handkerchief, and she wept copiously. This was as an actual fact merely feigned. When Magistrate Parke suspended judgment on condition that the city was abandoned immediately, she made a blithful rush for the door. Matthew Hunter, a frequenter, who is alleged to be the woman's husband, was told that the corporation could exist admirable without him. The Powell woman was convicted on a similar charge last December. Until three weeks ago she was in Detroit. Latterly she has been living on Horton street east.

Harvey W. Babcock, as the magistrate adjudged, has committed a breach of the bylaw. He drove a small wagon for delivery purposes without possessing a license. In mitigation of his offense he pleaded that no soliciting was done by him upon the usual stand, and that someone else had the wagons, unlicensed, going from store to store seeking custom. Sergt. Crawford stated that the latter only did work at the unasked bidding of merchants. Magistrate Parke held that there was no difference in the two cases, and adjourned the case for a week to allow Babcock to get a license.

Joseph Thompson and Robert McIntyre, two barbers, were charged with Sabbath desecration. The former admitted the offense. McIntyre equivocated slightly. The magistrate warned him to tell the truth or it would go hard with him. Both were fined $2.

Was Hard to Keep.

A man named Jack Warwick, who was arrested in London township Sunday afternoon, charged with an attempted burglary, gave his captors a great deal of trouble. When County Constable Crawford caught him, after he had been found in a rural house, he fought vigorously for liberty. He eluded the grasp of the law's defender, and took to flight. A sharp sprint ensued, which ended in a second detention. Warwick was then brought to Detective Graham's agency here. A search was then instituted for a magistrate. None could be found. At the end of two hours Warwick became tired of his forced lethargy. He rushed to the door, and started down towards London West. It is thought that he wanted to look up Squire Lacey himself. Those who pursued him, however, were unwilling to have him do this. They took him back to Graham's. Squire Glass then appeared on the scene. He remanded Warwick until Monday afternoon.

More Robberies.

The residence of Mr. W. A. Tanner, 28 Garfield avenue, South London, was entered by thieves Sunday night, and over $50 worth of jewelry and money carried off. The entrance was effected through a bedroom window while Mrs. Tanner had gone to meet her husband on his way home from church. When they returned a few minutes afterwards, a watch, a wedding ring, two diamond rings and a clock were missing, together with a considerable sum of money. The family silverware had been losely gatherd up and then left, as if the thief had become frightened and had hurried off.

Another robbery occurred on the Grand Trunk station platform Sunday evening. A gentleman was walking along with two valises, one in each hand, when he was suddenly seized from behind by one man, while another went through his pockets and relieved him of $140. The job was done so quickly, and so active were the thieves that they had disappeared before the man could make known his loss. These numerous occurrences indicate the presence in the city of a gang of pretty bold thieves.

Mr. Chauncey Smith, fruit dealer on the market, was relieved of his cash box, containing $50 and some valuable papers, while his back was turned for a moment on Saturday. He was watching the muscular performance of the strong man, and had his eyes off his stand. He missed the box immediately, but could find no clue to the thief.

Western Fair Preparations.

Preparations for the "great and only" Western Fair go on apace. The grounds and buildings are rapidly being put into shape by a small army of carpenters, painters and landscape artists. Already the framework of many of the displays in the main building are going up. The hay supply is coming into the cattle sheds in quantity. Workmen were busy yesterday stringing the electric lights all over the grounds. The judge's stand in the ring has been much improved and moved back. The special attraction platform has been raised considerably and can now be plainly seen from any part of the grand stand. The attraction committee have reported the entry list of class races and will keep the list open until Wednesday, thus giving all horsemen a chance to forward their entries. Many of the live stock will come direct from the Montreal Exposition, entries having been received as far away as Stanstead, Como and Petit Lac, Que. The main building promises to be as well filled as ever. From the number of entries and the class of exhibits in the fine arts line, this department will, to lovers of art, be worth the price of admission alone. The offices will be moved out to the grounds on Thursday morning.

Children Enjoy
the pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative; and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use, so that it is the best family remedy known and every family should have a bottle.

For your benefit we tell our story from Hamilton and Paris
Neuralgia Cured.
HAMILTON, Jan. 7, 1891.
MESSRS. ISAAC WILLIAMS Co., London, Ont.,
Sirs,—After suffering for a long time with indigestion and neuralgia, bought two bottles of your Royal Crown Remedy. It entirely cured me. I can recommend it as the best medicine I ever used. MRS. BAKER,
30 Poulette street.

Life Prolonged.
PARIS, Jan. 21, 1891.
MESSRS. ISAAC WILLIAMS Co.,
Dear Sirs,—I was troubled with rheumatism for several years. A friend induced me to try your "Royal Crown Remedy," which I did. After taking two bottles I felt great relief. At the present my health is better than it has been for a long time. I can confidently assure you your medicine was the means of prolonging my life. The above testimony you have my permission of using as you see fit. I am yours respectfully, MRS. JACKSON.
Hundreds of others could tell and will in future tell how Royal Crown Remedy has prolonged their life. y

MARA'S
TUESDAY.
Trade at this store has its fall boom on. Saturday and our Monday Bargain Day were "hummers." We hope all were waited on. We have added six to our staff of clerks this last week and will have more help before the fair. Next week our city will doubtless be thronged with visitors to the fair, and we confidently expect our store will be thronged with them also. Citizens are earnestly requested, where possible, to make their purchases this week, though if not convenient to do so, we will of course gladly attend to them at their convenience.
