One of the passengers in the second cabin was thrown down, breaking one of his legs. One of the saloon passengers was also badly injured, sustaining a fracture of the skull. Another of the passengers, Mrs. G. A. Daily, died during a faint-

St. Petersburg, Sept. 1.-The Novosti says that the time has arrived for the three powers who intervened in Armenia's behalf to supplement their representations to the Porte by a united naval demonstration in the Dardanelles. The Sultan, the paper adds, should understand that th demonstration would be only the penultimate act of the powers whose prestige urgently demands the adoption of energetic measures for coercing the Ottoman

Government. London, Sept. 1.-The Standard publishes a dispatch from Vienna stating that Prof. Vambery, who has intimate personal relations with the Sultan, has written an article which appears in the Pesther Lloyd declaring that the Sultan will assent to establishing reforms in Armenia if Germany, Austria and Italy will join the three protesting powers, Great Britain, France and Russia, thereby making unanimous the concert of Europe, which would lessen the insult of having to place the internal administration of one of his own provinces under foreign control.

A WARNING.

Berlin, Sept. 1.—Sedan Day was generally celebrated throughout Germany. The German colony at Warsaw celebrated the day at the Hotel Europe. The Germans in Zurich also celebrated. The Basle papers caution the Germans not to cause a recurrence of the disastro ... scandals connected with the celebration of German victories at "Zurich and Basie in 1870 and 1871. The Upper Silesian Warriors' Unions cele brated the day by a field service at Lesbschutz. At 3 p.m. the Warriors' Union of Zauditz, Liebsschutz, Koberwitz and Schrieberschorf stormed the strongly fortified Stueberwitz, which was defended by the Steuberwitz Warniors' Union and other societies. Then followed the capitulation of the place, the capture of Napoleon and a repetition of Napoleon being transported to Wilhelmshohe. In the evening there was a banquet in Rothbusch. At 8 p.m. a bivouac of all the unions took place, and at 11 p.m. there was a military entry into Liebschutz, with a great tatoo and military polonaise on the market place. Steglitz, near Berlin, celebrated the day by dramatic, open air, patriotic plays, a banquet, illuminations and a torchlight procession. The Danzig town council granted 5,000 marks to celebrate the day. The programme included school fetes and Bull Fighting in France-The People Eager for the Brutal Exhibition.

Paris, Sept. 1 .- A series of great bull fights was fixed to begin at Bayonne today, and the celebrated Spanish bullfighter Mazzantini was especially engaged to appear. The police, however, refused to allow the fight to proceed, and they caused Mazzantini to be conducted to the Spanish frontier. The people were anxious to see a bull fight, and the action of the police was greeted with hoots and cries of derision. A number of senators and members of the Chamber of Deputies and the Municipal Council intervened with the police to have the performances go on. but all their efforts were useless. When the members of the Municipal Council found that the police were determined to prevent the fight and to send Mazzantini, they held a special meeting and unanimously decided to resign. Five brigades of gendarmes and many mounted police occupied the arena. The young King of Servia was present, but his mother had been assured beforehand that the authorities would not allow the fight.

At Arles there was a bull fight in the presence of 5,000 persons. Three bulls and three horses were killed, but nevertheless the performance was tame and unexciting, and the spectators hooted the toreadors.

It was intended to have a fight at Tarascon, but the authorities prohibited it. The inhabitants were made very angry by the intervention of the police, and the members of the town council protested against the fight being stopped. The police were obdurate, however, and the fight did not take

THE WONDERFUL OLD MAN

Popular as Ever and Locking Younger Than a Year Ago.

The New York Sun's London special says: The wonderfully strong hold which Mr. Gladstone retains upon the affections of his countrymen was strikingly shown last week. The Grand Old Man has retired from the affairs of State, and people have been gradually reconciling themselves to the inexorable fact. Yet upon the very first opportunity after a general election in which for the first time in over 60 years Mr. Gladstone took no part, they assembled in thousands to do him homage. The occasion was the visit of the venerable statesman to the house near Birmingham of his old friend and political enemy, Lord Norton. The scenes reminded one of the stirring times of the Grand Old Man's political activity. At every station where his train stopped on the journey from Chester a strong barricade had to be erected to keep the people from overwhelming him. Men and women waited for hours to have a chance of cheering, and, mayhap, of hearing his voice. Many cherished the hope of a speech from his railway carriage, as of yore, but they were disappointed, although an occasional twitching of the fine old mouth betokened that the impulse was controlled with some difficulty. Mr. Gladstone at present looks much stronger and younger than he did a year ago. It seemed to the newspaper men who saw him for the first time for a couple of years that he was dressed with a good deal more care than he used to show when in the har-

One of Mr. Gladstone's traveling party says that during a wait of a half hour at Birmingham, necessitated by the railway arrangements, he conversed upon at least a dozen subjects with as many different people. With the station master, for instance, he chatted about the development of the railway system of the world, and with the chief constable he discussed the evolution of the modern police force and the regulation of street traffic. In the latter connection he referred to Ambassador Bayard's recent tribute to the London police, and jocularly remarked that when he used to be in attendance at the House of Commons he reckoned the police saved his life on an average four times a day by helping him ocross dangerous roadways.

Savard's house, where near-by a stand had been erected, and about 1,200 people had gathered. An address was presented to him by P. V. Savard, the Liberals' future candidate, and in rehour and a half. His special points were the promise made by the Conservatives to reduce the expenses made by the Mackenzie Government, but that on the contrary they were augmented. The Liberal leader then spoke on protection, showing the large pronts made by the manufacturers, and finished his speech by a reference to the Manitoba school question. He condemned the Government for not keeping their promise, and praised Hon. Mr. Anger for his pluckiness on resigning. He then stated that should be be called, as he expects he will be, he will certainly settle the question by appealing to the people. THRILLING STORY.

How the Ridgeway Was Burned at Sea

-Told by a Surv.vor. San Francisco, Sept. 1.—Albert Rosrop, a sailor on the ship Sarah E. Ridgeway, of Philadelphia, which was burned recently off the coast of Queensland, Australia, tells a thrilling story about the loss of the vessel: "It was a wild night off the Queeensland coast,' said he, "when the Ridgeway sprung a leak. The seas were terrific. Great waves swept completely over the decks. I saw three of my shipmates carried overboard. Hardly had the last been swept off when I myself was struck by a yard and mass of rigging attached, that had been torn away by the forces of the gale. The captain saw that the vessel was sinking fast, and finally determined to leave her in the small boats. I was unable to move. but the captain would not leave the ship until I had been placed in one of the boats. We were five days on the sea, and finally made a landing, when the storm had gone down, at Bondeberg. Help was sent us from the nearest English settlement. Just as we were leaving the Ridgeway the captain set the ship on fire. For hours we could see the blaze off on the disturbed ocean, making an almost ghastly light every time the gale fanned the flames."

On the Occasion of Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson's Visit.

The President's Reply-Future Fovements of the Distinguished Visitors.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—The reception given by the Toronto Board of Trade to Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the G. T. R., was largely attended yesterday morning. Mr. Goldwin Smith was among those present, and at the solicitation of Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson he was introduced to him. Mr. Stapleton Caldecott, as president of the Board of Trade, read the address to Sir Charles, which declared that the following reforms on the G. T. R. were needed to put Toronto in line with the rest of the continent in the matter of progress:

1. A local board at Montreal, to be vested with power to decide important matters without reference to England. 2. A reduction of passenger fares to

3. Improvement of the rolling stock on branch lines.

4. Improved service between Toronto, Buffalo and New York. 5. Extension of the service between North Bay and Lake Temiscamingue. Sir Charles discussed the demands seriatim and very fairly, but held out no hope that they could be ac-ceeded to. He said the position in which he found himself was very simhar to that in which he was placed on arriving in Egypt. The finances of the G. T. R. were disorganized, as were those of Egypt, but the road was in a and Buffalo, he thought arrangements had been already made with another road. In regard to 2-cent fares, he thought, concerning the last balance sheet of the company, it was unfair to order the company to make such a sacrifice. As to the extension from sponse Mr. Laurier spoke for about an North Bay to Temiscamingue, he was sure such a proposal would be regarded with great hesitation in England, where there was already an idea that the road's misfortunes had been que to a desire for undue extension.

After luncheon Sir Charles and party inspected the new Union station and the various works of the company. In evening the distinguished visitors were dined at the Toronto Club by the council of the Board of Trade. Today was spent quietly, and on Monday morning the party will leave for an inspection of the Midland and divisions, returning probably on Tuesday afternoon. They will then leave as soon as possible for Chicago via the Grand Trunk route, stopping off to inspect the tunnel arrangements. On their return to Canada from Chicago they will visit the London shops and also Hamilton, and by that route on to the Suspension Bridge, whence they will go to New York, where they will attend the traffic conference on

CHOLERA IN HONOLULU.

First Time the Disease Has Appeared in the Hawaiian Islands.

San Francisco, Sept. 1. - The news brought by the Monowaii of the breaking out of cholera in Honolulu does not alarm the local health officers. "I do not apprehend any danger from the spreading of the disease to this port," said Dr. Chalmers, for every precaution will be taken to prevent it from gaining a foothold. The quarrantine regulations are strict enough if carried out and all vessels arriving from Honolulu will be submitted to the closest inspection." This is said to be the first time cholera has been known in the Hawaiian Islands. At the time of the Monowaii's sailing it was believed the disease was under control. There had been eight deaths from the disease and there were only two cases remaining and those were both in quarantine. Here with such admirable facilities for quarantining even if the cholera should get what might appear to be a foothold it could be easily stamped out, the health

A TICKLISH POSITION.

Parker Valentine Has a Fortune Left Him.

But If He Shows Up to Get it He May Be Hanged.

San Francisco, Sept. 1.—If Parker Pearsons Valentine will come forward and be hanged or take his chances on it he can have $100,000. Valentine is wanted in Minnesota for murder, and they want to give him his big estate, bequeathed to him in the will of his mother, Mrs. Lucy A. Valentine. Mrs. Valentine died in Columbia county, Wisconsin, two years ago. She had considerable property of her own and she inherited about $35,000 from the estate of her half-brother, Hiram A. Pearsons, the capitalist, who was drowned in Lake Michigan. A portion of the property is in this city.

According to the story that Major Mhoon told to Judge Coffey, a twentyyear trust was created by the will of Mrs. Valentine, the property to be held during the period of trust for the missing son. If the son does not appear the estate is to be given to St. John's Home, Milwaukee.

The attorney said that when young Valentine was 7 years of age he had a quarrel with his mother and left home. He went to Chicago, and worked as a clerk, but soon speculated and made $60,000. He then went to Minreapolis to study medicine. There he married much against his mother's will and a few months later he killed a man whom he found in the house. He fled, and soon after he visited his mother. Mrs. Valentine upbraided him and he went away, and since that time nothing has been heard of him. A former business associate of the son claimed to have heard from him in Colorado, a few years ago, and when Mrs. Valentine died she believed her son to be still living.

EARTHQUAKES IN BROOKLYN.

Three Distinct Shocks Experienced on Sunday Morning.

New York, Sept. 1.-Three distinct earthquake shocks were felt by the residents of Brooklyn about 6 o'clock this morning. They were not severe, as no damage to life or property is re-ported from any section of the city. The district of East New York and South Brooklyn received the greatest shock, but it was also distinctly felt in other directions. The shock was pretty severe on Coney Island, and many persons were awakened from their sleep. Pictures, crockery and even pieces of furniture in many of the houses were dislodged from their positions.

From telegraphic reports it appears that the earthquake was felt on Staten Island and throughout New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania, as far south as Philadelphia.

The scheme to get control of this traffic was, it is said, evolved by Collis P. Huntington, president of the Southern Pacific Railroad. It is nothing less than a combination of all the trunk lines in the United States with the principal transatlantic passenger steamship lines, the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company to handle round-the-world business in joint competition against the Canadian Pacific Railway and Steamship Company.

ENGINEER IVEY'S CASE. The Provincial Authorities Will Look Into the Matter-

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 1.-The Attorney-General's Department has decided to investigate the case of G. T. R. Engineer Ivey, who was the other day reported drowned at Collingwood. Ivey was brought here on a G. T. R. train last night and taken to his nome, 538 West street west. Ivey was not dead, but was half-dead. No one but the physicians and his wife have been allowed to see him. The trainmen in whose cars he came here say that he was brought Friday night to the door of his boarding house in Collingwood, having been supposed to have been drowned since the preceding Monday evening, and was then in a wretched condition, physically and mentally. He presents every appearance of having been terribly sandbagged, and it is supposed that he has been subjected to this treatment in mistake for another party.

RATHER DIE THAN SAW WOOD. Montreal, Que., Sept. 1.—Bertrand Thomas, 12 years of age, living in the east end, is supposed to have committed suicide. On Saturday his parents forced him to saw some wood, and he afterwards told a companion he was going to drown himself in the river. He has not been seen since.

MORE PICKINGS FOR LAWYERS. Chicago, Ill., Sept. 1.-Robert Antrim, who is employed as a night watchman for the stock yards, thinks he is one of the heirs to the $80,000,000 British estate left by the late Lord Antrim. There are about 125 Americans scattered over the country who think likewise. About three months ago he learned from a Chicago paper that the last heir of the estate in England had died. He immediately sent a letter of inquiry to the American ambassador in London and received an answer on Aug. 5 which stated that such an estate existed and advised to engage a solicitor to push his claims. Detective Geyer who unearthed the body of young Howard Pietzel in Irvington, Ind., a suburb of Indian-apolis, says he is not at liberty to give additional information regarding the case. Indignation against Holmes runs very high in Indianapolis, and the people are clamoring for him to be sent to that place for trial.

The company had repeatedly made promises of settlement, but these not being carried out the men on Thursday quit work.

by Autumn Brides, For church weddings everything pertains to formality, and the invitation as well as the ceremony is impressive in all details. The names of the parents heading the invitation are now more often written in full, thus insuring a good-looking line at the top of the note. The use or the initials, which are indefinite, is to be discouraged. The "r" and "rs" in "Mr." and "Mrs." are frequently engraved above the line, owing partly to the English custom of so doing and because, when the parents' names are long, more space on the line is gained. With short names the abbreviations are preferable on the line with the other small letters. For the same reason "and" in full is substituted for the abbreviation, although the latter is more often used. The line, "requests the honor of your presence," almost invariably appears on a church invitation with "honour" spelled with a "u."

The names of the bride and groom are separated by the little word "to" although some consider "and" quite proper.

The omission of the prefix "Miss" from the daughter's name is customary on an invitation, but should never occur when the bride is a sister, cousin or niece of the people issuing the iniviations.

If a widow is remarrying she uses the prefix "Mrs." with her Christian names and the surname of her deceased husband. If the bride is an orphan, with no one to issue the invitations for her, the reading reads, "The honour of your presence is requested," etc

When the bride has more names than one When the bride has more names than one is customary touse all.

The address of a well-known church is generally omitted although it is frequently a convenience for out-of-town friends to know it. Names of churches ending with

We say "I' at every turn in a conversation, and the familar word falls lightly from our lips, most frequently without weight or responsibility. Yet "I" is a distinct and amazing assertion, so that we make none like it except when we say "God." It means that, although a long line of ancestors have united to create and equip a man so that an onlooker can trace the contrbutions of half a dozen people in his habits of thought and trend of temper, in his very walk and appearance -besides the traits of descent too ancient for our identification—there is some subtle quality in the man which has never been seen before, and never will be seen again. It is his own property, and cannot be matched. It is unique in the history of the race. Without this addition he would have had to say "We"; with it he dares to "I.".-Ian Maclaren in the Young

Trilby's Foot. The step 'twixt the sublime and the ridiculous is quickly made. Surely literature presents no more grotesque idealization than Trilby's foot, and the numerous worshippers that have, figuratively speaking, bent knees and kissed the big toe of the foot when reason once more comes to their rescue will feel as if the production of the genus Ass were perennial. By the way, did you notice when reading Trilby how highly it commended Putnam's Corn Extractor, which renders impossible the discordant excrescence, corns. Trilby's foot would not be worthy of homage if marred by corns; neither would yours. Use Putnam's

TO REMOVE IRON RUST. A Process Which Does Not Injure the Most

Delicate Fabric. To remove iron mold or rust from any white cotton, linen, or other vegetable fiber, the following process is the best, as it does not injure the fabric: The spots are stretched over an earthen plate and moistened salts of lemon are then strewn over the marks and rubbed in with a bone or wooden spatula until the stain is removed, afterwards thoroughly rinsing in warm water to remove the acid. Nearly all stains and dyes will be discharged by oxalic acid; therefore, careful usage is necessary. Salts of lemon, salts of sorrel, oxalic acid, should be used with due caution. Mildew is removed by first brushing off any loose mildew. Then a little common salt should be rubbed in, afterwards liberally sprinkled with powdered chalk, and thoroughly moistened with clean cold water. After this the articles should be slowly dried in the open air, and then rinsed, and if the marks are not removed the treatment should be repeated, possibly several times, but in the end the mildew will be removed.

Taken altogether, curtain dressing is not hard work, and may well be done at home in the majority of households, as what is most required is patience sufficient to secure careful manipulation. It is certain, also, that curtains carefully treated in cleaning and getting up have their durability much increased; indeed, some lace curtains have passed through my hands annually for the past ten years and are now sound and good, but they have never been framed.

Summer Responsibilities.

A mother with grown or half-grown daughters needs to exercise both tact and wisdom to shield them in a summer hotel or boarding house from foolish friendships and love affairs. There is danger in the social freedom allowed to young people at summer resorts, and where there is a party of them there may be some with questionable characteristics. It is not an easy matter for a mother to be always watchful and vigilant during the weeks that her mind ought to be easy and at rest if she would gain the

Tired mothers can avoid this by selectcare and resposibility which is sure to arise where any considerable number of young people congregate. It is a safeguard for a mother to identify herself with her daughter's interests as far as possible, to be a friend with her friends, to be watchful of their out-door life, to guard against a close intimacy, to provide a useful and interesting occupation for the daughter a part of each day and to talk with her freely and confidentially of the laws of her being. The time has passed when it was considered a want of delicacy in a mother indulging in silly flirtations. The exchange of photographs between young people who meet during the summe should not be encouraged, although there may be many cases where it is pe feetly right and natural to do so. The mother should know best in regard to this, but she, as well as the daughter, should understand that college rooms display dozens of pretty faces to every student who lounges into them, and that a young man's room in a boarding school is free of access to many people who will make their comments upon the faces seen there. Even in his own home, the comments well liked at the seaside, and always so appropriately worn, is a natty reefer jacket of white cloth, lined throughout with jonquil yellow silk, the very deep sailor collar and spreading revers faced with the same pale golden color. The buttons used are either large, heavy, pearl white ones, or those of proof gilt of medium size. With this costume will be worn a white wash kid gloves, or those of pale chamois, both being equally in favor. The perfectly plain white silk parasol has a white enamel or dainty Dresden handle, and is lined with pale yellow taffeta. This is a costume that the modiste can recommend as one not extravagant, most desirable, becoming and stylish for either blonde or brunette, and suitable for nearly every dressy occasion the summer through. Pale mauve silk was used instead of yellow in a cos-

In washing embroideries done with crewels on a foundation of linen or crash, the first time bran water should always be used to set the colors. To prepare the water pour a gallon boiling hot over a pound of bran. Let the bran soak in the water a day, stirring it occasionally, then strain it well. Invitations to Church Weddings. There is a good deal of dispute in regard to the etiquette of acknowledgment of a card for a church wedding. Some high authorities assert that the invitation is so general and means so little particular attention that no notice need be taken of it, except in the regular line of future visits to the bride and to the bride's mother, But Mrs. John Sherwood who is, probably, our American social oracle, declares that a card is obligatory at the hour of the wedding, if one cannot attend, and that if the house address is unknown, his card should be sent to the church. If this is necessary, most people err woefully, for few nen-attendants send

The Scrap Bag.

Everything nowadays can be reduced ] to a science. Even handshaking has been studied up by a learned gentleman. I have only room to give one or two of his definitions, which will be North and South, all admire and wear it. sufficient, however, to show that the subject is not so superficial as might at first appear.

First: The firm, full-handed grasp, indicative of sincerity, heartiness and true friendship. One can generally tell by the handshake the quality of the friendship. A "trusty friend" is the friend most desired of all, and it is not possible to imagine the grip of the hand of such a friend to be aught but sympathetic, hearty and sincere. There is an eloquence in this full-handed grasp far more thrilling than language is; it is, so to speak, a kind of unbroken speech of the heart compressed into a graceful voluntary act, designed by nature to be easy and simple, approved by the custom of many centuries, and adopted by all sterling men and women in greeting those whom they regard and esteem as friends.

Secondly: The lingering, trifling handshake. Beware of such a handshake. There is cunning and craft in it, and it generally belongs to an enemy. The effusive.demonstrative handshake may be sinister, but this is positively wicked. Avoid it as you would avoid the "fawning publican" smile of a Shylock! Happily, this form is very rare, but it may be met with. The writer remembers, with a shudder, once shaking hands with an individual who brought apparently good introductory credentials with him. The handshake of the stranger was of this class-a soft, velvety touch that somehow held the hand by a kind of fascination; a lingering, loth-to-let-you-off sort of shake, that was as novel as it wasn't nice. After some talk-likewise of a loitering description—the stranger, rising to go, and again extending the obnoxious palm, ventured, while again fascinating with his handshake, to solicit the loan of money, which nad been the object of his visit, and which object he tried literally to accomplish by the art of a species of palmistry.

Thirdly: The lackadaisical handshake, suggestive not of feebleness of physique, but also of friendship. This form of handshaking is altogether davoid of art. It has not even the robustness of number two to recommend It. Its chief characteristic is want of character. And yet, how common is this form! Who has not experienced it somewhere within the circle of acquaintanceship?

Fourthly: The finger-shake. Who is have adopted this pernicious, impertinent form of handshaking, and that often without knowing it. There is only one effective way of curing the habit: Decline the fingers, and without thanks.

At Prayer Meeting .- In a small town near Syracuse recently, an illiterate but good man made the following prayer: "Oh, Lord, Thou knowest that we are thankful to Thee that our souls ere safe from the fire that quencheth not. If a man lose his horse, Thou knowest that he can buy another; if he lose his house, Thou knowest that he can build another; if he lose his wife, Thou knowest he can get another: but if he lose his soul-goodbye. John."

S. G. H.-The answer to your question depends somewhat upon the characters of the young lady and gentleman, their ages, intimacy, etc. Under ordinary circumstances a young man does not necessarily intend to ask a young woman to marry him because he sends her flowers, visits her, asks her to drive, etc. The manner in which these attentions are given shows more the intention in them than the deeds themselves. It is better for a young lady to receive them as trifling kindnesses than as done with a serious motive, unless she is sure of the contrary. A young man, if he has no serious intention to such attentions to a young lady, should be very sure that she understands them as they are meant.

Of all the alluring summer materials cf which dainty gowns can be made, none is so universally popular as organdy. Summer damsels from the East, West

Here are a few of the prettiest I have seen: A white organdy with a lavender sprig in it, made over lavender silk. The skirt has two flounces of the material, edged with white dotted net around the bottom. The bodice is cut a little low in front, with three bands of lavender ribbon veiled with net forming what looks like a box plait from neck to belt. A band of net-veiled ribbon finishes the neck, with a bow at the back. The sleeves are shirred along the seams to make them appear full without so much material as is usual in some of the large puffed sleeves. Two net-edged flounces trim the upper sleeves and a bow of lavender ribbon covered with net is set on each shoulder.

Another beautiful organdy is white with a large blue frock in it. The skirt is plain except for the belt and sash ends of striped blue and white ribbon. bodice has two flounces of material edged with Valenciennes lace running around the shoulders. A collar of the stripped ribbon is edged with Valenciennes and finished with a bow at the back.

The gown shown here is a combination of corn color and purple. The dress is corn-colored organdy with purple belt and collar. The hat has purple feathers and ribbon.

New Fashions From Abroad. The latest ideas which have come across the ocean with returning visitors whose business it is to take close observation of dress and trimmings indicate that the new not familiar with this form of insult? fashions are as varied as ever. Feathers One, two, three, four fingers may be for trimming continue to be all the rage, Many people (ladies are not exempt) Paris and London the waists ornamented geometry, 100. with sequins are in full fling. These tasteful little trifles are often expensively put on in the fronts of waists, making the whole appearance very tasteful and striking. They are worn, too, with beads, and the combinations are innu-merable. Ladies are wearing ruffles for candidates for a commercial diploma, the neck made of various suitable materials. The use of fine hair nets is very common in England, and they agree admirably with some of the present styles. of dressing the hair. The lace collar with its elaborate work, giving a handsome effect to the orthodox high sleeved dress, is very popular. Among the infinite varieties of material for blouses the goffered silks are much in demand, while the velvet capes with ornamented bead and feather trimmings are as stylish a freak of fashion as has been seen for a long time.

Care of the Lingerie. If one wishes one's underwear to look dainty and be so the same care must be given to it as to the rest of one's wardrobe. The inclination of the laundress is to overstarch, which not only takes away its beauty and causes a garment to wear out, but makes it uncomfortable: therefore, except for the lower portion of a skirt, a general order should be given that one's belongings are to be laundered soft." Drawing-strings will be found rather more desirable than buttons, but they need to be of good quality and firmly secured. Personally, I have found that inch-wide lutestring ribbon is more desirable than tape, and waskes very well. For drawers a soft cambric is recoinmended, and the preferred trimming is a group of fine tuck and a lace frill, or the narrow embroidered point, with an evelet above it, which i( called "convent work." They reach quite to the knees and are very broad. Yokes are preferred to bands, and the drawing-strings start from each hip so that the fullness is entirely in the back.

How to Manage Skirts. A girl cyclist says that she has no trouble in keeping her dress down, and the way she has guarded against the flopping dress shirt is as follows: She has made a pair of stirrups of black elastic, and fastened them to a short piece of black tape, which had a buttonhole worked lengthwise in the other end. On the hem of the skirt on each side, and two or three inches from the bottom, she sewed buttons, to which she buttoned the stirrups. They can thus be removed when she is not riding. She slips her foot through the stirrups when riding, and that holds her dress as smooth and comfortable as though she were in a rocking with lace, ruffles and insertion, has become such an expensive adjunct to a wardrobe, because of the expense in doing it up, that most women are wearing petticoats of silk, or of the moreen that is watered and has a look of moire antique. Of course, a number of wash petticoats elaborate as they used to be. Millinery Decorations Large.

A special feature is that the blossoms and foliage used for decoration are extremely large, many of the huge leaves that extend at right angles from the sides of the hat or bonnet being shaped like those of the begonia. Flaring wing effects are still a dominant characteristic of spring and summer millinery. These are made to equalize in a degree the broad effect of the shoulders. This style of trimming is however far more becoming to the faces of slender women than to either round or oval conutenances. The : Pure coffee, with plenty of milk : lace and flower capote with high aigretted effects towards the front are much more complimentary to faces of the latincre complimentary to faces of the lat-

TORN TO PIECES BY BEARS. Mrs. William Zeppher Thought to Mave Met a Terrible Death.

Perham, Minn., Sept. 1.-Grave fears are entertained that Mrs. Wm. Zeppher, a resident of the little town of Butler, in Ottertail county, has been destroyed by bears. Mrs. Zeppher is aged and has not been in her right mind for some time. A few days ago she wandered away from home, and when last seen was entering the forest, which is known to shield a great number of bears. A searching party, it was learned, came to a place where there were signs of a desperate struggle, and on making close investigation, found blood and torn bits of the dress last worn by the missing woman. Around the place were bear tracks in plenty. There were also signs of some heavy body having been dragged away, and it is believed that Mrs. Zeppher was killed by the bears and dragged farther into the woods. A second party has started out on the trail, which is plainly marked.

STRANGE DISCOVERY OF A WILL A strange discovery of a lost will has occurred at Forgue, Aberdeenshire. A bachefor farmer, who had no friends or heirs, died a few months ago, and his property passed to the Crown. All the goods were disposed of except a pocket Bible and a few venerable books, which were given to his old and are seen, but they are by no means as faithful housekeeper. To her astonishment she has just found a scrap of paper in the Bible which proved to be her master's will, by which he left her all his possessions. The Crown now will have to refund £2,000.-London Tid-Bits.

All Precedent and All History Demonstrates It To Be Correct.

A Practical Suggestion, Which, if Carried Out, Would Prove a Blessing to Thousands of People.

The question often arises, "Why are women such sufferers from all sorts of unexplained and apparently indefinable ills?" It is easily explained. Find a woman whose bowels are regular, and who gives proper attention to herself in this particular, and you will find a perfectly well woman in nine cases out of ten. The careful woman in this respect always has a clear, healthy look, a bright eye and a good complexion, while the one who neglects these charges of Dame Nature is usually sallow looking, with a blotchy skin and sunken eyes.

The bowels are the natural drains of the system, and when clogged lead to disease and general ill-health. The deductions of a famous doctor on this line led to the production of Karl's Clover Root Tea, which is nature's grandest remedy for constipation and all kindred ills. This eminent practitioner concluded that to treat this trouble successfully a natural remedy would be most efficient, and this celebrated medicine was compounded directly from roots and herbs to meet his views. Its success has been marvelous. Mrs. W. P. Warden, of Otin, Mass., says of Karl's Clover Root Tea: "I have tried many different kinds of medicine without receiving any benefit, and had given up all hopes of any cure or even relief. I was troubled with constipation for years, until I was a total wreck. Finally it ran into rheumatism and other trouble, and I have been confined to the house (was in bed for eight menths) for two years. I have been using Karl's Clover Root Tea, and find that it has done me more good than anything I have ever tried. You are at perfect liberty to use my name as a testimonial, as I am glad to know that I have been the means of relieving oth-

TALK OF CONSCRIPTION. London, Sept. 1.-Mr. Joseph Chamterlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, repudiates the report that was started by the Rev. Hugh Price Hughes to the effect that he advocated in the Cabinet a scheme of military conscription and fines in lieu of service, the fines going to float an old age pension fund. Though Mr. Chamberlain is known as an advocate of voluntary enlistment, some influence inside and outside the Cabinet favor the conscription system. Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, who succeeds the Duke of Cambridge as commander-in-chief of her Majesty's forces, advocates this system as being necessary to the existence of Great Britain, and the Duke of Devonshire, Lord President of the Council, sympathizes with it. The triumph of Conservatives at the polls has been followed by a clamor on the part of the military press for the assimilation of the British forces on the continental system. The Rev. Mr. Hughes was wrong in fathering the scheme on

Mr. Chamberlain, but the question pervades the air. CURATES' UNION PROPOSED. Dr. Thackeray, erstwhile Mr. Henry George's right hand in the United States, who is now a curate in South London, proposes to ask the coming Church Congress which will be held at Norwich, to assist in the formation of a Curates' Union. There is no doubt that Dr. Thackeray has a case, but he will find weak backing among the superior clergymen who hold fat fees and pay their curates starvation wages to do their work. The practical objects of the union proposed by Dr. Thackeray include the abolition of private patronage, no big prize offices, and the graduated taxation of clergymen's incomes when they amount to over $1,500. The risk of public ignominy may induce some of the church dignitaries to ostensibly approve of DISTINGUISHED PASSENGERS. Among the saloon passengers sailing yesterday for New York are Sir Henry Irving and Ellen Terry. Sir Henry and Miss Terry were given an enthusiastic send-off by a large number of their friends and admirers. The mayor of Southampton, accompanied by the American consul at that place, met Sir Henry at the ship's side and conversed with him for some time, after which they bade him God-speed. Crowds lined the quay and repeatedly cheered Sir Henry and Miss Terry. The latter received the mayor of Southampton in her stateroom and thanked him for the welcome that he had given her.

SELLING ARMS TO SLAVE TRADERS.

A Berlin correspondent says. charges recently made by the Etoile Belge, the organ of the Congo Government, against the German authorities and traders in the Congo region of assisting the sale of arms to Arabs and slave dealers met with an indignant denial by the Cologne Gazette. denial elicited a reply from the Etoile Belge, which declared that proof existed that an English dealer named Stokes had sold all his stock of arms and other goods throughout the German possessions in Africa, the authorities of which territory had imposed a heavy duty upon the guns, etc. German agents worked with Stokes, who, the Etoile says, met his just fate, death. The North German Gazette, after making an explicit and emphatic denial of the assertions that the German authorities were implicated in the sale of arms to Arabs and slave traders, proceeds to caution the Belgians against their summary execution of white men who ought to be tried in a court of justice instead of being left to the mercy of a high-handed official. The Gazette suggests that the Congo officials executed Stokes because he was their greatest competitor in the ivory trade, and adds that Germany's interest in the matter is increased by the fact that the Congo State seeks to extend its boundaries to the northeast, and declares that it is extremely doubtful whether or not it has a right to the coveted territory. The Congo State, the Gazette says, owes its existence to the good will of the powers, and that good will it cannot dispense with now. The significance of the utterances of the North German Gazette and the Co-Icgne Gazette are due to indications of the rapprochement of England and Germany in a common policy in regard to the Hinterland against France and

SEDAN DAY IN BERLIN. The preparations for the celebration of Seday day in Berlin are proceeding with feverish anxiety. The municipal authorities have voted the sum of 50,-000 marks for decorating and illuminating the Schloss, which promises to present the grandest spectacle of the kind the capital has ever seen. All of the Government and municipal buildings will be adorned with designs in electric, gas and other lights, which thousands of workmen are busily engaged in arranging today. Crowds of people throng the streets viewing the progress of the decorations, the principal centers of attraction to spectators being the Schloss, the Palace of Justice and the statue of Frederick the Great, the latter being covered with garlands of oak leaves, the chief features of which is their arrangements in various unique festoon devices. The appeal of Burgomaster Seelers to the inhabitants of Berlin to decorate their houses with flags, etc., has been responded to werywhere, with the result that the louses upon miles and miles of streets re displaying flags and garlands. Most of the houses have some forms of illumination, Bengal lights having been supplied through the authorities to in-habitants who were unable to buy

HEALEY'S AMBITION Isaac N. Ford cables from London to the New York Tribune: Mr. Healey's guerilla warfare has been almost the only sign of political campaigning in one of the dullest weeks ever known in Parliament. He has attempted to tious and Mr. Sexton absent, he has been battling for the Irish leadership, and has been resolutely supported by a group of followers who believe that a sham fight is better than no fight at all. He apparently set out with a determination to keep the House in session until the close of September, unless Mr. Balfour would make some legislative concession which would enable him to go back to Ireland and say that he had done something, when his colleagues were either sulking in their tents or skulking from the field. Mr. Balfour, after a short period of masterly inactivity, applied the closure mercilessly and secured on Wednesday night all the civil service votes, except the Irish, the colonial, and the postoffice, which were disposed of on the following days with the army and navy estimates.

The end of the session is now in sight, and cannot be deferred by Mr. Healey's ambition. He will go back to Ireland without having accomplished any practical result, but probably with increased prestige as a leader who never knows when he is beaten. There has been a distinct note of defiance in his policy of exasperation, and it is echoed by his Irish organ's contemptuous comments upon Mr. Plunkett's amiable but impracticable proposals for a conference of Irishmen of all parties and factions to agree upon non-partisan measures for the material progress of M'CARTHY'S SUCCESSOR. The New York World correspondent cables: The majority of the Irish party, including a large proportion of the Healeyites, regard the selection of Mr. Sexton as Mr. McCarthy's successor as the only escape from a split. Mr. Dillon would willingly accept. Mr. Dillon, who is considered a capable and reliable man for the post, though Mr. Healey's superiority as a tactician, as a speaker, in political knowledge and in standing in the House of Commons, is unquestioned. But it is doubtful if Mr. Dillon would take the leadership except by an unanimous request. The outlook for the Irish party is very uncertain just now, unless some decision regarding the leadership in the Commons is reached.

FOOTBALL SCHISM. The New York Sun's London correspondent says: The long threatened In Lancashire and elsewhere Mr. Chaprevolution in connection with England's national winter sport, Rugby football, has come at last, with the announcement of the formation of the Northern Union of Football Clubs. The trouble arose out of growing disposition of certain clubs affiliated with the famous Rugby Union to pay their best players, notwithstanding that Rugby football, unlike the association game, is confined to amateurs. Association football has for years been given over to purely professional players. The Rugby Union, in their resolution to preserve their game from such contamination as betting and unfairness, went to the opposite extreme, and refused payment to regular players, even of out-of-pocket expenses. The formal deed of separation was done on Thursday night, when delegates representing 22 leading clubs of Yorkshire and Lancashire met at Uddersfield and constituted the Northern Union. Most people who have followed this dispute think the Rugby Union absurdly puritanical and behind the times.

THE CEREMONIES BEGIN. The inaugural ceremonies of the celebration of the 25th angiversary of the battle of Sedan, the final engagement of the Franco-Prussian war, took place at Berlin today. The programme in this included the inauguration of the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church. The church itself was completely covered with flags, flowers and garlands. Troops lined the roadway in front of the church, and the German-American veterans held a position around the porch ommanding the entrance. Court Chaplain Faber delivered an address, sketching the life of William the Great, in which he praised that monarch's childlike and simple-minded piety, his kind-ness and thoughtfulness for the lowest of his servants, and his sincere fear of God. Archbishop Muller preached a sermon from the text of the 26th After the ceremonies at the church, the Emperor, the Empress and the rest of the royal party, preceded by Herr Von Wedel, left the church by the center aisle. As they reached the steps leading from the edifice they stopped while the bells rang. As they got outside the church the children, ranged on either side of the walk, sang "Die Wacht am Rhine." The soldiers, who had been stationed at various points in the vicinity of the church, headed by their bands of music, and with colors flying, then passed before the Emperor. The Emperor and Empress then entered their carriage and drove away amid the cheers of the assembled people.

The decorations of the nouses along the principal streets showed that the citizens had combined their efforts to produce most startling effects. The effects were that there were long lines of evergreens, masses of flowers, and a profusion of flags and banners. In the face of the universal jubilation the Socialist leaders persist in holding counter-meetings, which have been arranged for Sedan Day. It is probable that these meetings, if held, will result in disorder. Later it is proposed to hold a series of meetings for the purpose of declaring in favor of universal fraternity, and Jenouncing the memory of the late Emperor William. A STOP-GAP SESSION.

Apart from Lord Lansdowne's explanations of the Government's policy of reorganizing the War Office on the general lines of the Hartington report, and Mr. Campbell-Bannerman's proposals, no important speech has been made from the Ministerial bench this week. The question hours have been filled with chaffing badinage and evasive talk. The Government has had only one policy—that of securing the financial votes and postponing everything else until. February. The new Irish Secretary has had a chance to try his hand fencing with Mr. Healey and Mr. Dillon, and has revealed unexpected resources and skill in debate. Mr. Curzon is showing great ability. But reputations cannot be made in this stop-gap session, which is mainly useful in enabling the new members to learn when to take off hats, how to address the chair, and other small points block supply and prolong the session. In the etiquette of the Commons. The With Mr. McCarthy paired, Mr. Red-position benches have been empty, the Liberals being indifferent to the progress of estimates and financial routine. Sir Wm. Harcourt has been conferring with men of all factions in private, but has not taken any active part in the debates.

SIR CHARLES DILKE. Sir Charles Dilke has been more active than any one else on the Liberal side. His influence is steadily increasing by virtue of his knowledge of foreign affairs, his ability in debate and his sympathy with the working classes. His most sanguine friends are fore-cesting prematurely to complete restoration to his political fortunes. He will undoubtedly exert great influence in the October conferences respecting the Liberal reorganization and policy. What will be the result of those conferences nobody is rash enough to predict, but a recasting of the Liberal programme is more probable than a change in the leadership, although Mr. Labouchere has declared war to the knife against Lord Rosebery.

A SORRY SPECTACLE. The spectacle now witnessed at Westminster is unworthy of the splendid traditions of that historic place. The party in power, although supported by a great majority, deliberately evades the responsibility of dealing with public questions of supreme importance and is content to put money into the public purse and force an early adjournment. The Liberal Opposition has almost ceased to exist as an organized body and is honeycombed with intrigue. The benches are vacant and the leaders are silent, listless and indifferent to what is going on. The functions of a vigilant, critical Oppo-sition have always been regarded as essential to the maintenance of good government under a double party system, but these have been virtually suspended. Mr. Healy's line of skirmishers stands for the Home Rule cause of which Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Parnell have been the champions, and the Irish members are convulsed with merriment when the ambitious leader of a faction threatens to devote his energies to the politics of Mekong or Macedonia, or when Dr. Tanner assumes a tragic air and then follows it with a bit of low comedy. There is nothing in these proceedings in the Commons that impresses the impartial observer with the dignity of responsible, representative government. It is well for Mr. Gladstone's peace of mind that he is not compelled to witness these scenes. He is happier at Drayton Manor looking back 60 years and recalling Sir Robert Peel. FORGOTTEN PLEDGES. Mr. Chamberlain has lost sight temporarily of his scheme of old age pensions, and also of his project for enabling, through State aid, poor artisans and farm laborers to own their own homes. Whether these pre-election pledges will ever be redeemed it is now idle to forecast. Lord George Hamilton has come very near reversing himself on the question of the repeal of the Indian cotton duties. Mr. Balfour has repeated his expression indicating a lack of faith in the possibility of an international agreement on the currency question in existing conditions, and thereby has discouraged bimetallists. lin has discussed the agricultural distress, but has been able to meet the general demand for relief measures only by a vague assurance that the Government may some day do something helpful. The subject of prison made carpets imported from India has come up in the Commons, but the inquisitive objector has only been referred to the Board of Trade for information. Members of the Government take less interest in these matters now than they did when they were making campaign speeches.

CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY. Mr. Chamberlain has not been a conspicuous figure during the week. He has something to say about Cyprus, asserting that the occupation had been a good bargain for France if not for England, and that the island needed roads and irrigation works, and adding that he should certainly ask the House for necessary supplies if he were convinced that by the assistance of the Imperial Government in making these improvements satisfactory terms could be secured for the British taxpayer. That is the motive of his new colonial policy, so far as he has disclosed it; Imperial investments for the development of the neglected estates of the realm and the promotion of the interests of British commerce.

The German journals have never taken much notice of Mr. Chamberlain. They are now commenting upon the significance of his recent utterances and predicting that he will devote his attention to the African colonies and favor opening them up by means of railways subsidized by the State. The North German Gazette remarks that the new and intenser activity on the part of England in colonial matters can be permitted from a certain point of view so long as it restricts itself to its own legitimate sphere. This semi-official utterance means that England is at liberty to round out its African empire so long as the circle of annex-ations does not intersect the German

The Alerts Get Away With the Galt Nine.

Interesting Cricket Match Played on the Asylum Crease.

Results of the L. A. W. Meet at Montreal The Tennis Champion—The Windser Races.

SNAP FOR THE ALERTS. The Alerts struck another great snap on Saturday afternoon when they played Galt one of the championship ser-ies on the Athletic Park. London's players were after victory from the start, and by superior fielding and heavier batting they won. Bert Sheere was again in the box for the home team, and again he showed that he was no back number. He played his position well, and held the sluggers down to nine hits, scattered so far and wide that scoring was slow. The Galts had their idol, Handley, for-merly of the St. Thomas Browns, in box, but he was an easy mark for the Alerts, who safely reached his curves thirteen times, and made ten runs. This was the biggest surprise to the 250 spectators, who expected better things from the St. Thomas man. The Alerts, however, dropped on him in the first, when Hynd made a twobagger, but failed to tally, as the necessary batting was not done before the side was retired. Sam Thorpe, the catcher who plays to win every time, started the scoring in the second, when he got first on balls, stole second, and crossed the plate on a hit by Sheere, which Jones allowed to pass between his legs. The third inning was a blank, the score was steadily increased.

but in each one of the remaining six The Galts had their whole show in three innings. Lyons, first on the roll, got his base on balls in the first Inning, and it looked as though the side would retire, and he would die on a base. But Humphrey, after Cock-man and McDonald went out at first, knocked a three-bagger in Farnworth's direction, and Lyons scored. McDon-ald and Jones made hits in the fourth. but the former was forced out at third. Ripley, with a three-bagger, scored Jones, and crossed the plate himself on a fly of Spalding's to right field, which Hiscott dropped, making the only error for the Alerts. With the score 10 to 3 against them, the Galts went in in the ninth to do or die, and when two long drives were made to center field the cranks had a lurking fear that Galt might yet win. They had not forgotten that the Alerts recently lost a game by allowing an opposing team to make ten runs in the last two innings, and win by one. Such good luck was not in store for the Galts, however, and they were retired after they had run their score to 5. Mr. C. G. Moorehead's official score is:

which Galt was retired in four in-Farnworth made an excellent running catch of Humphrey's long drive in the fourth. Hiscott redeemed himself for his error in the fourth by catching Lyons long fly in the next inning.

Lyons and Cockman were the only Galts to get bases on balls. Handley gave four men first on balls. Joe Weber umpired. Some of his de cisions in the first part of the game were were rank. He improved as the match went on.

Dunn's attempt to steal second base was a funny failure. Steve got within fifteen feet of the bag, when he stopped, and started to roll.

Ripley is not a bad ball player. He has one fault, however. His tongue is almost uncontrollable, and he had to be called down more than once. Ripley formerly played for Hamilton. Handley was called out in the seventh for stepping on the plate when about to hit the ball. Weber's decision caused no end of kicking, especially from Lyons, but the bluff didn't work

THEIR THIRTEENTH VICTORY. A game of ball was played on the military grounds on Saturday last between the Orients of the City League and the V. R. I. team of Wolseley Barracks, which resulted in an easy win for the military team by a score of 15 to 11 and an inning to spare, making the thirteenth victory for the soldiers this season. The special feature of the game was the battery work of Gibbs and Pinel for the V. R. I. team, Gibbs striking out fourteen men and only five hits being made off his delivery. The Orients were only able to bunch their lifts once—in the sixth inning—getting two singles, which netted their four runs, with the assistance of an error or two. Pinel, who plays as catcher for the V. R. I., and who also officiates for the Pastimes in a similar capacity, is without doubt the most promising young player in the city. He has played in fourteen games for the V. R. I. this season and has only two errors. He is a safe hitter and a very speedy runner. Lee, for the V. R. I., played in his old-time form at short, being credited with five putouts, three assists and no errors. Robinson, Ryan and Woonton, for the Orients, also deserve mention for the good game they put up. The score:

Louisville......26 EIGHT HOME RUNS. Toronto, Sept. 1.—It was the greatest game of the season over the Don Sat-

turday afternoon, as far as hitting was concerned. Scranton's pitchers were banged unmercifully, the Torontos getting eight home runs, triples, doubles and singles galore. The home pitchers all took a hand in it, as they had the game from the start. Hudson ran into Smith at third and the two exchanged blows.

Toronto and Scranton play three championship games at the Queen City on Monday, one in the morning and two in the afternoon.

The Boston Amateur Baseball Club on Saturday defeated the Middlesboro nine by 15 to 3. This concludes the provincial tour of the Americans. They started for London in the evening much pleased with the reception of themselves and of the game.

At Berlin on Saturday a baseball league game was played between Galt and Berlin in the county league series. Score: Galt 15; Berlin 3.

THE WHEEL.

FAST TIME MADE IN ENGLAND. London, Sept. 1.—At Catford yester-day R. Palmer, the bicyclist, rode ten miles in 21 minutes 8 2-5 seconds, beating the amateur records for from two miles upwards. His time for the entire distance is a new record. At the Herne Hill track W. Ridgeway rode 50 miles in 1 hour, 53 minutes and 25 seconds, beating the record and also cutting other records. L. A. W. CIRCUIT EVENTS.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Wet weather somewhat interfered with the annual meet of the Canadian loop of the L. A. W. national circuit which was held on the Montreal Bicycle Club's grounds yesterday afternoon, but there were from 3,000 to 4,000 people present. The rain, however, made the track heavy, there was no record breaking, and the ime made was rather slow. The American cracks made an excellent showing and secured some of the chief places. Summary:

Buffalo, Sept. 1.—All yesterday's races were in the Class A, and were run without any remarkable time or other performances, as a stiff wind was blowing and general conditions were unfavorable. Eddie Bald rode a quarter mile flying start, unpaced in 25 seconds, tieing the world's record. He rode the reverse way of the track from quarter to three-quarters to get the wind at his back. Chas. H. Callahan tried for the world's half mile record. He outstripped his pacemakers in the first quarter and the tandem forgot to pick him up, so he practi-cally rode an unpaced half mile. He covered the distance in 1:03. Lee Richardson the fancy rider, rode a half mile backwards against his own record of 1:43 3-5, but 1:55 was the best he could do. Bald rode a paced mile in 2:04. The track record is 2:02 1.5 made by Zimmerman. C. E. Lang was thrown against the fence and badly hurt in the five-mile handicap. His scalp was fearfully torn.

News From All Over Manitoba and the Territories

In looking through his potato patch one day last week J. A. Wilson noticed in one hill and growing from one potato 125 small ones. This is from actual count. Who can beat that in the potato line ?-Arden Mail. Great excitement prevails at Donald, owing to the discovery of a new ledge of gold fourteen miles in extent, and which is said to be the richest yet discovered in British Columbia. - Edmonton Herald.

A large number of half-breeds have gone from St. Albert to the Athabasca gold fields and are reported doing well. A good many will remain there to live permanently. Between them and white men there are nearly 400 miners now on the Athabasca. -

Edmonton Herald. Occasionally in Manitoba persons driving through the country will notice a flower bed consisting of roses, asters and sunflowers raised high in the air and supported by poles. These modern hanging gardens are the old sod roof of shelters formerly used for cattle and the plentiful moisture of this season has caused a luxuriant growth of native plants in these curious places.-Pilot

Mound Sentinel. Just as we were going to press Mr. Jos. Tottle called at our office with a genuine Manitoba-grown harvest apple plucked from a tree in his garden. It is a fair specimen of a well known variety, the Duchess of Oldenburg, and measures a little over eight inches in circumference. The tree was covered with blossoms last spring but the frost killed all but this one which grew on the lower and more sheltered portion of the tree and was not discovered until yesterday.—Stonewall Argus.

E. Lyons returned from the Athabasca yesterday evening having taken the gold dredge belonging to Lyons and Murphy out. They reached the river by the new road safely and went about six miles above the crossing before putting the scow in. The bar upon which they propose to work is about three miles long and gives a good prospect, but the dredge had not begun working when he left. The river is falling slowly and the miners are beginning to work, making good wages. The rush of men to the gold workings continues. On the way in Mr. Lyons met, he believes, 150 men on the way out to mine. -Edmonton

An important discovery has recently been nade in the Cypress Hills, and gives promise of developing into a bonanza for the promoters, one of whom is Ed. Fearon, M. L. L. This discovery is no less than the finding of a large deposit of manganese ore, a mineral which is much used now-a-days in the hardening of iron. It is the binoxide of manganese which is used so largely in the production of hardened armor plates for battle ships. Another peculiarity about the ore lies in the fact that nowhere else in America is it found in large quantities, simply in small pockets. That which now enters into commerce is exported from provinces of Austria and Germany. The body of ore in the Cypress is several feet thick, is about 80 feet wide and has been followed along the seam for between 200 and 300 feet. The gravity of this ore is 4.8 to 4.9, so it will be seen that there is considerable ore already in sight. Samples of the ore sent east for analysis assayed 40 per cent to the ton. The value of the binoxide of manganese is between $60 and $100 per ton. If the expectations of the promoters are realized Maple Creek has a bonanza at its doors.— Medicine Hat News.

"I WILL !"

Chicago Determined to Finish the Big Canal.

She Will Only Desist When Forced to Do So by the Government.

Col. McKenzie, assistant chief of engineers at Washington, says that the measurements recommended by the board of army engineers which investigated the probable effect of the Chicago drainage canal on lake levels would be made as soon as possible. It is the purpose of the department to have these figures ready, if possible, by the time Congress meets in December. Congress is expected to take action of some sort in view of the character of the report just made.

According to Col.McKenzie and other army authorities who have charge of the improvements of the navigable waters of the United States, control of the drainage canal by the Government cannot well be avoided, although at present this work is assumed to be an enterprise purely local to the city of Chicago and the Chicago sanitary district and to the State of Illinois, which chartered it.

No attention to the engineers' report, respecting lake levels, will be paid by the Chicago drainage canal trustees. Trustee R. J. Prendergast, when interviewed in Chicago about it, said: "The work will go right ahead, just as if the commission's report had never been presented. It will not be delayed a day on account of it. The completion of the work and the turning of the lake waters into the canal will not lower the lake levels to any appreciable extent, and the report of the commissioners does not say that it will. "Any restraining order of the Government or the courts to prevent us turning the waters into the canal as soon as it is ready to receive them is a difficulty which will have to be overcome when we reach it. We are not borrowing trouble by planning to meet difficulties which in all probability will never arise. As the law stands at present sent know of nothing to prevent the drainage trustees turning the waters of Lake Michigan into the canal as soon as it is ready to receive them. We should do so today if it were ready without consulting anybody's permission. We will do so as soon as the canal is ready unless things change very materially in a way we do not expect to prevent us."

Trustee W. E. Cooley said: "There is no likelihood relative to the cooley said:

is no likelihood whatever that when the work is finished the Government will step in and prevent us turning on the water into the canal on the strength of an undemonstrable suspicion. Until the waters are turned on nobody can say what the effect will be on the lake levels. It is an undeterminable quantity except by experience. If the worst comes to the worst, however, all we would have to do would be to come to the worst. would be to go to Congress for an enabling act, and so long as we propose to carry out the policy of Cngress there is ro reason to suppose that it would be refused."

SENSATION AT WOODSTOCK.

A Respected Resid nt Drops Dead in a Cemetery.

Woodstock, Ont., Aug. 31.—George Rennie, a highly respected resident of this town, dropped dead tonight. He had attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Davidson at the Presbyterian Cemetery. While there he left the other friends and walked over to the grave of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Andrew Pattullo. The son, after completing the grave, started home, and passing the place found Mr. Rennie lying quite dead. He was at once removed to his home and medical aid summoned, but life had been extinct for some time. Death was due to heart disease. He was 60 years of age, and leaves a widow and six children-four sons and two daughters.

THE RED FLAG.

Socialist Demonstration in Chicago-Schwab's Prediction.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—The Socialist Labor party carried its red emblem through the streets today, but the color was concealed by a covering of black. The Socialists held a celebra-tion this evening in the back yard of an avenue on Clayborne street, which Oscar Neebe and Michael Schwab—two of the Anarchists pardoned by Governor Altgeld-and Lucy Parsons were present. The day was made the occasion for the presentation to the party of a handsome red flag by the wives and daughters of Socialists. It was unfurled amid great cheering, but it was not waved in public in obedience to orders from the mayor. The speakers were M. V. Britsius and Michael Schwab. Britsius denounced Mayor Swift for interfering with the right to march through the streets with a red flag. Mr. Schwab said his followers would succeed if 100,000 of them were thrown in prison.

AN ALARMING INCREASE.

The Prevalence of Female Complaints Found to Result Largely From the Kidneys.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 2.—Doctors are beginning to turn their attention more exclusively to the causes for the great increase of what are known as female complaints during the past ten years, and to remedies for the same. Many cases have been investigated, and among others that of Mrs. Reany, of Ashland, Wis., who was cured of this form of trouble by the use of a kidney medicine known as Dodd's K medicine known as Dodd's Kilney Pills, which originated in Canada, but has now become widely known and used throughout the Western States. This and other similar cases go to show that these troubles are largely due to the kidneys, and that the above mentioned remedy is likely to have a great effect in lessening the number of victims to this form of complaint.

THE IMMENSITY OF THE UNI-VERSE.

To form some idea of the largeness of the earth, one may look upon the landscape from the top of an ordinary church steeple, and then bear in mind that one must view 900,000 similar landscapes to get an approximately correct idea of the size of the earth. Place 500 earths like ours side by side, yet Saturn's outermost ring could easily inclose them. Three hundred thousand earth globes could be stored inside the sun, if hollow. If a human eye were capable of looking upon a fresh measure of world material 5,400 square miles large, that eye would need 55,000 years to overlook the surface of the sun. To reach the nearest fixed star one must travel 20,600,-000,000 miles; and, if the velocity were equal to that of a cannon ball, it would require 5,000,000 years to travel that distance. Besides single stars, we know of no system of stars moving round one another. Still, we are but a short way into space as yet. Outside our limits of vision and imagination there are no doubt still larger spaces. The Milky Way holds at least 20,191,000 stars, and, as each is a sun, we presume it is encircled by at least 50 planets. Counting up these figures, we arrive at the magnitude of 1,000,955,000 tars. A thousand million stars! can comprehend it? Still this is only a part of the universe. The modern telescopes have discovered more and more Milky Ways still farther away. We know of sone: 3,000 nebula which represent Milky Ways like ours Let us count 2,000 of them as being of the size of our Milky Way; then 2,000 by 20,291,000 equals 40,382,000,000 suns or 2,010,100,000 heavenly bodies.

PRACTICAL jokers of Theodore Hook's type still flourish in England. Mr. S. Edalji, vicar of Great Wysley, an out-of-the-way place far from the railroad, has for three years been the victim of some one who sends out letters of all kinds in his name. Clergymen come to conduct funerals for him or to visit dying persons who need them; lawyers and detectives are sent for valuable information which he is said to have; managers of newspapers receive from him bogus notices of deaths, marriages and births, tradesmen are directed to send him articles of all sorts from spirits and medicine to musical instruments. DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION is ccasioned by the want of action in the olliary ducts, loss of vitality in the stomach to secrete the gastric juices, without which digestion cannot go on: also, being the principal cause of Headache. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills taken before going to bed, for a while, never fail to give relief and effect a cure. Mr. F. W. Ashdown, Ashdown, Ont., writes: "Parmelee's Pills are taking the lead against ten other makes which I have

MR. SMALLEY ON THE DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE'S SUCCESSOR.

He is Considered the Most Accomplished of All English Soldiers---The Country

The Duke of Cambridge has for a long time been one of the best abused men in England. The charges against him are many. He is cousin to the Queen. He is rich. He holds various military sinecures. He is ranger of Hyde Park, and also of the parks called St. James', Green and Richmond. He was in the Crimean War and was not thought to have shown brilliant capacity in that contest, whereas all other British Generals, as we know. were distinguished by the highest military talents. He enjoys an annuity of $60,000 a year. He has been commanderin-chief for forty years, save one. He has opposed reforms. He has enforced discipline and his own views of army administration, regardless-when he could be regardless-of the views of amateur soldiers and parliamentary chiefs of the War Office. He speaks English with a slight German accent. Finally, he is old and old-fashioned.

This is a formidable list of accusations to bring against any man. Some of them are true. In the way in which I have put them they are all true. To say that he is cousin to the Queen is only a round about way of alleging that he holds his great office by favoritism, or because he is of the royal family, and not by merit. That is a reproach to the Queen and not to the Duke of Cambridge, but as the Queen stands too high to be attacked, it is easier to hold the Duke responsible for the exercise of the royal prerogative in his favor The Queen, it is well known, is jealous of her military supremacy. She, and not the Duke, is the real Commander-in-Chief. The Duke is Field Marshal commanding in chief, which is different. If you look at the army list you will see that the Queen's name stands first. The army is hers, like the navy. It has been remarked before now that royalty monopolizes almost everything, and that the only English institution purely national, in style and title as well as in fact, is the national debt. It was the Queen, at anyrate, who in 1856 appointed her cousin General commanding in chief. He did not become Field Marshal till 1862, his appointment dating from the Prince of Wales' twenty-first birthday in that year, the 9th of November. Thus was the coming of age of the heir apparent celebrated; thus and other-

If the Queen has not been much belied, she wished her third son, the Duke of Connaught, to succeed the Duke of Cambridge. That would have kept it in the family. At one time it was all settled, or supposed to be. There was an outery. In these days things are thought scandalcus which a generation ago would have seemed matters of course. The unchecked use of the royal proregative in favor of members of the royal family is ne longer feasible. Lord Salisbury has a freer hand than the Queen. The Duke of Connaught may or may not be a beaverborn warrior. His mother naturally thinks him so.' She does not cease to be a mother because she is a Queen, and her partiality for the Duke of Connaught is known. Others, less partial, describe him as a well taught and competent soldiercompetent, that is, to set a squadron in the field or a division. He makes a creditable appearance at Aldershot on review days, and has, I believe, done well f that great permanent camp. Even that the radical cue to oppose whatever seems as a stepping-stone to the Commanderlarge measure the opposition to that act which convinced Her Majesty's advisers, think that a sufficient foundation. and, perhaps, Her Majesty, also, that she could not safely venture on this darling object of her motherly and queenly ambition. But if I dealt with all the other counts is but nine years younger than Mr. Gladday, however, he is one of the hardest working men in England. His industry was never denied, nor his conscientions devotion to what he thought the true interests of the army. If the Horse Guards -his military headquarters-have been for many purposes so long omnipotent, it is because the Duke toiled early and late at the immense mass of business which passed through his hands. No eight hour law for him. He is at work by nine till long past the next midnight. It is his rule to betake himself to his beloved official papers after dinner, say by elven in the evening, and to finish them off before he goes to bed, which is commonly not till two in the morning or later.

If he did his work badly his zeal would be no excuse, but he does it extremely well, from his own point of view and from a merely administrative point of view. He is methodical, business-like. and he has an almost unequalled knowledge of the multitudinous details which go to the governing of an army. He has, even now, vigor and endurance enough to tire out many a younger man. All of his race have strong physiques. Old George Third, his grandather, had. Trevelyan said of him that he did his work

WOLSELEY IS CHIEF. | badly as it could possibly be done. The first two adverbs are just as applicable to the grandson as to the grandfather. So I suppose, is the third, if you come to the question of reform. The real reproach to the Duke is not that he is old, but that he has remained old-fashioned. The most extraordinary thing about Mr. Gladstone is that on certain classes of subjects-by no means on all-he has kept his mind open and fresh, and capable of receiving new facts and opinions. Not so the Duke of Cambridge. It would be too much to say that all military reforms have found in him an inflexible opponent, but many have, and these among the most vital. There are still plenty of soldiers, and soldiers of high rank, who will tell you to this day that the British army as a whole is the worse, and not better, for the almost revolutionary changes which have been made in it, changes due largely to its new commander, Lord Wolseley. That, of course, is a pipe clay view. All armies have been modernized, and the British army, which was most conservative of all, had to be modernized with the rest. You cannot pit Brown Bess against the Lebel or Lee Metford rifle. I use that as an extreme illustration. The Duke, I believe, has not stood in the way of material improvements. But he opposed the abolition of purchase, opposed the re-organization of the whole machine, which was necessary to make it efficient and modern. The stock appeal to British prejudice used to be made by declaring that the British army was being Prussianized. That is only saying that the Prussian was recognized as the best model. All European armies, the French included, have been Prussianized. The German genius for organization was supreme, and Moltke was the supreme expression or incarnation of it. And organization is one of those things for which the English have little genius. But a dozen Dukes of Cambridge could not have stood against the tendency of the time, and the new theories and discoveries, and systems of military organization.

Lord Wolseley during a great part of the Duke of Cambridge's command was the foremost champion of army reform. It is, of course, dramatic and piquant, and it is also in the order of things, that the champion of the new should turn out the champion of the old. The old order changeth. The new man steps to the front. The periods during which Lord Wolseley held the adjutancy-general ship of the army were periods of acute conflict between him and the Duke, and of much strong language on both sides. The Duke's proficiency in that art is known. Lord Wolseley's is less strong, ir one sense, than forcible and plain. But with or without language he conceived and carried through reforms which no man less adroit and persistent, or with a less remarkable courage, could have accomplished. No doubt about Lord Wolseley being modern. These reforms are so largely reforms of detail, and so entirely matters of military administration and organization, that I do not attempt to refer to them here, except in the most general terms. It is about Lord Wolseley's personal character that I wish

I wish it the more because I think he is much misunderstood in this country. Much of what has been said about him here has been hostile, much of it bitter. He is not popular in the United States. and I imagine that our dislike of him springs from the supposition that he dislikes us. There is a minor reason, which I will refer to in a moment. We date our enmity to Lord Wolseley-we in the North, at any rate-from the civil war. He was supposed to take sides with the South, and he probably did. In the first

DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE. year of the civil war he was Lieutenant Colonel Wolseley and stationed in Canada. He got leave of absence, got a permit at Washington to join the Union army in Maryland as visitor, did so, and in company with at least one Englishman, not less distinguished than himself, crossed the lines and joined Lee in Virginia. He conceived an extravagant admiration for Lee as a general and an since he was appointed to the command affection for Lee personally. He expressed both, in season and out of season. He appointment raised a small storm. It is has continued to express them, and out of this somewhat unchecked enthusiasm a privilege to royalty. If it was meant for an over-rated Southern General has grown up a notion that Lord Wolseley is ship-in-Chief, it was ill-laid. It was in unfriendly to America. I know of no other foundation for it, and I do not There are, on the other hand, many sufficient grounds for saying that he has a real admiration and good will for this country. I will select one, because it offers the most striking set off to his of the indictment against the Duke of | fancy for Lee. When President Grant Cambridge I should exhaust my space. I died a memorial service was held in Westwill touch only on the really important | minster Abbey. There was no official ones. Age must be admitted. The Duke reason why Lord Wolseley should be present. He had ceased to be adjutant-general stone, and is two months less two days and was Commander-in-Chief of Her older than the Queen herself. To this | Majesty's forces in Ireland. Whether he was actually in Dublin, I forget, but there was some reason why it was impossible for him to attend the service. But he wrote a letter to an American friend expressing in very cordial terms his regret at his enforced absence and his deep respect for General Grant's charcater and military fame. The letter was published. What made this the more interesting was that Lord Wolseley had been supposed to take a critical view of General Grant's in the morning, and his day is not over achievements as a soldier. Most of us can remember how deeply we felt at that time, and I will venture to say that Americans abroad felt not less but more than those at home. You never know how strong the love of your own country is till absence reveals it to you. Be that as it may, this was a testimony of regard from Lord Wolseley at a moment which made it valuable and put the sincerity of it beyond dispute. He need have written no lette. It was a voluntary expression. Then I imagine that we have resented, consciously or unconsciously, Lord Wolse. ley's dislike of Mr. Gladstone. Here there is no defence for him. I don't speak of personal dislike. That is not in question, and whether it exists or not has nothing to do with the matter. There may be ad antagonism on public grounds as with which private feeling is totally uuconnected; though this, I know, is also puted by the idolators, who treat a dissent from Mr. Gladstone's policy as evidence of personal animerity. But Lord Wolseley had a special ground for a severe view of Mr. Gladstone as Prime Minister. Mr. Gladstone was Prime Minister when the expedition up the Nile for the relief of Gordon took place. Even the idolaters, I believe, now admit that this expedition ought to have started earlier. It failed to rescue Gordon by three days, even as it was. If it had been despatched in Mayor June instead of in August there can be no question that Khartoum would have been relieved and Gordon brought safely back. The idolaters of Mr. Gladstone had always tried to put the blame for the failure, or some of it, on Lord Wolseley. He deserves not an atom. Given the date and circumstances of starting, his conduct of that difficult enterprise was a marvel of energy and military skill. But the delay which imperilled and finally ruined it was due to Mr. Gladstone and to him alone. It a black chapter in his history and will be blacker when the whole truth comes out. "I was on my knees to Gladstone for months," said Lord Wolseley, in his pict resque and impassioned way, "to get leave to start." When he had once got it, preparations were made and the expedition pushed forward with an energy which was the admiration of the Germans themselves, the severest and the most competent of mil itary critics. Lord Wolseley is sixty-two years old, and by common consent the most accomplished of living English soldiers. There are those who think Lord Roberts his superior in the field or in the conduct of a campaign, but the two have been tried in such different ways that there are no very good means of judging. Lord Wolseey's superiority as an administrator is hardly questioned, and it is in administration that the work of a commanderin-chief, certainly in peace, has to be done. If he had been passed over in favor of the Duke of Connaught or anybody else, the injustice would have been glaring. He has a great opportunity before him. He can do all he tried to do as adjutant-general withot the friction he then met. He cannot make England the military rival of any great power on the Continent, but he can give her an army fit to defend her against invasion. That will be the measure of his success. Of both the Duke of Cambridge and Lord Wolseley one thing may be said: Both are delightful personally. The Duke is the one member of the royal family who hates royal etiquette and court ceremony. He likes human intercourse on a human basis. His talk is bluff, hearty, frank, soldierly and to the point, and he has a geniality of manner and of character which has made him immensely popular. Lord Wolseley's conversation is among the best in London. He is one of the few men who speak his mind in all companies and all his mind. He has an alertness, a fluency, a clearness of speech and a direct way of reaching his point which are more American than English. No trace in him of what we sometimes think over-deliberateness of thought. He is as rapid in speech as in thought, whereas the swiftness of movement of the American mind is apt to disguise itself in slowness of utterance. If such a word may be used of a man, Lord Wolseley is charming in manner and charming in character. He is a soldier to the tips of his fingers, but not too obviously a soldier. He conforms to the rule that a well-bred man should not have any stamp, professional or other, too visibly impressed upon him. He is not to be summed up in a phrase, but it may be said of him that there is no better soldier, no more interesting companion, no more honorable man, no finer intelligence, and certainly no man whom the great majority of Englishmen more heartily wished to see commander-in-chief.

Good Time to Buy Furs.

This is a capital time to buy furs. It sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? when the sun is blazing away in the heavens and muslins are the only wear, but it is true. I realized it myself yesterday, when a charming girl confided to me that she had hovered between getting her life insured and purchasing a sealskin coat. She had finally decided on the former, but to my notion a good sealskin often insures one's satety, and, therefore, one's life, in a much pleasanter way than does a mere policy. At this season there is a great reduction in the price of furs, and it is easy to leave an order and save money when cold weather comes and the garment is needed. As for the fashions in fur, believe me, they are pretty well settled. by this time. Broadly speaking, sealskin capes will be waist-length, jackets are moderately short, and sleeves slightly more reasonable than they were last year. Velvet, trimmed heavily with fur, will continue to be worn, but for more definite i iformation a trip to any firstclass furrier's will suffice. I am only suggesting the economic possibility of the season, and do not venture to outline the fashions so far ahead.

The Secret Out.

"Are you all dead?" was his greeting, as he popped his head above the trap. "Overcome by grief at my absence, eh? Don't, don't be so weakhearted, my friends; I am here, and with me the choicest bits of soleleather steak and stale bread that hungry men can want. O, this is a old town we have stumbled on. You can get most anything you want for money enough-if you only don't want anything but hard-tack and some lively old cheese. But what's up? you

reem to be alive, and yet "Two gentlemen have been in the water," now exclaimed one of the party, meeting him at the door of the room in which the fire was. "They are pretty well used up, but I guess we will bring them round."

With a cry not unlike a suppressed cath, Q dashed by him into the room. "Dr. Cameron!" burst from his lips, folowed by the still more emphatic exclamation of "Dr. Molesworth!" And his surprise having had its expression, he threw down the basket, and becoming at once physician and nurse in charge, busied himself in furthering the efforts already made toward restoring warmth and animation to his two benumbed and half-drowned companions, with as much fervor, skill and judgment as if he had never done any-thing else in his life than tend the skk and reanimate the dying.

Not till he saw the two men comfortable again did he venture upon an inquiry. Then he gave Dr. Cameron a

"Was sneaking off, eh?" he whisperered, "or did he think he would make away with himself?"

"No," answered Dr. Cameron in the ear bent down to him, "he was only trying to escape. There was a boat, it seems, strung up under the balcony, and while I was dozing here, he slipped from the room, broke in the door you locked and found his way out. But he wasn't used to such business, and in lowering the boat one of the ropes slipped out of his hands, and he consequently fell into the water. I heard him and made after him like a shot, but it was desperate work, Q, desperate

"I believe you," returned the thoroughly deceived detective, glancing at the other pale face on the further side of the fire. "I'm only glad you are alive, sir. I'll get no credit for this with the inspector. Not to know there was a boat hanging there! But it was the storm, sir, that kept me from making investigations. With such a hurly-burly in the air one does grow a little careless. But I shall never forgive myself nothwithstanding; and as penance, I promise not to boast of my feats in this enterprise till I have forgotten they were not as highly credita-ble as yours. And that will be a trial, sir, for this storm affords one a big field for his imagination, and I could have reeled off a tale that would have made the boys stare. But we all have to deny ourselves in this world, especially if we want to advance." Then in a lower tone, "You are a doctor; don't you think he looks pretty bad over there? Don't you think we can trust him not to make any more efforts to

And r. Cameron, noting Dr. Molesworth's hollow eyes and stern but slightly fallen lips, felt justified in re-I kely to enjoy for some time. For it and all I want at present, is rest."

And rest was what they all seemed likely to ejoy for some time. For it snowed again that evening, and though the sun shone out on the morrow, there, was no more prospect of travel than there had been the day before. Indeed, Thursday came and went before the roads were sufficiently clear for the owner of the cottage to come up from the village, where he had gone on that memorable Monday merely to purchase provisions. And when he came-but I will pass over the scene with its growl and banter-merely suggesting that if the crabed old curmudgeon ever found his match, it was Q, and that on the contrary, if Q ever found his, it was at this time and in this place, in the crooked, ugly, selfish old hermit Harvey, who felt that himself, and his effects also, were contaminated if another man so much as looked at them, much less sat down in his chairs, and feasted from out his empty crocks. On Friday the roads began to be cleared and the trains to run. The first that left carried with it our two doctors and the now silent Q. As they quitted the spot where they had suf-fered so much, the doctors exchanged one long look. It was not the first. During the last two days they had been much together, and frequent had been their glances, though few had been their words. And in those glances a rowing intimacy had arisen which was fast weaving their hearts together in those rare and indissoluble bonds which sometimes unite two men of opposite tastes, instincts and conditions. But they had never forgot themselves and never awakened the least suspicion in Q, who saw in them only enemies intent upon opposite schemes. The ride to New York would have been interesting had they not been laboring under such tremendous anx-As it was, they scarcely noticed the unwonted aspect of the country till they had reached the city itself; then they were forced into a recognition of the changes which had been made in the every-day scenes they knew, by this furious and unpreceflented storm. Their experience, which they had almost thought unique, they found to have been a common one not only in the suburbs of the city but in the city itself. While they were strug-gling through fields where the drifts threatened to overwhelm them, strong men were doing the same in the streets and parks of New York, and not always with success. Arrived at the depot, Dr. Cameron parted from Molesworth with a few polite words and a quiet bow. He knew that Q would not leave him to his own devices, and Molesworth knew it too. Though he might seem to be his own man, he would never in reality be so again till the police had obtained from him all that he knew. It was this realization probably which face such a melancholy look and away from Dr. Cameron. so the latter was forced to think when it rose before him again and again upon his journey home; and the thought brought him anything but comfort in the ordeal that lay before him. But he had got to that pass where he expected none, and went on his way because it was his way, and there was no other to be trod. And thus he came to his own door and entered into those fresh anxieties which the sight of his home would be apt to crouse after an absence of nearly a week, at a time so critical. He rang the bell—somehow he did not wish to use his key-and when the door was opened he saw by the look of the girl that there had been no great change in his absence. Was it a relief. He did not know.

His inquiries proved that he was right, and the one glimpse of his wife which he allowed himself satisfied him that the opinion of the nurse was cor-rect when she said: "It will not be long now, sir. In a day or two we shall know what to expect. I almost fancy I see her move at this moment." But what would happen in that day or .wo.

CHAPTER XXXVII. Dr. Cameron wrote and sent the following note to the inspector that "I promised too much. I could not make Dr. Molesworth talk, though I did succeed in finding him and bringing him back to New York. If you have any better luck with him than I, please let me know."

CHAPTER XXXVIII. There is a point beyond which a man cannot suffer. Dr. Cameron felt that he had reached that point. But when on his return from the breakfast table the next morning, he saw the nurse standing at the head of the stairs with her finger pressed to her lips, he found there were possibilities of misery still within him.

She has moved; she has lifted her arm and let it drop," came in a whisper down the stairs.

He answered not a word, but reeled into his office and shut the door. If a thousand hands had combined to push him into Genevieve's presence at that moment, he felt that he would have resisted them all. For at the sight of this woman waiting to address him, such a flash of hope had gone through him that she would cry death instead of life, that he knew his faith had been shaken, and that he no longer looked upon his wife as the idol of his life, for whom every excuse should be made, and to whom all adoration should be

Russia, France and China Working Together

To Remove the British Customs Con troller-China Asks O'Connor's Recall.

London, Aug. 31.-The active attempt of Russia, supported by France, and favored at Pekin, to oust Sir Robert Hart from the control of Chinese customs, and place him with Russian and French officials, demands the immediate intervention of the Brit-ish Foreign Office. The Government had been warned by private nonofficial advices from Pekin and Shang-hai that Sir Robert's dismissal was imminent. A dispatch from the Iritish Minister at Pekin confirmed the fact that inimical measures, giving Russia control of the customs, were threatened. It is understood the Cabinet has decided to intervene in the matter.

THE FIRST STEP. London, Aug. 31.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says that the Tsung Li Yamen, of Chinese Foreign Office, has instructed the Chinese Minister in London to procure the recall of the British ambassador at Pekin, Mr. N. R. O'Connor, owing to the latter's menacing attitude in connection with the demands made by Great Britain for the apointment of a commission to inquire into the Ku Cheng massacre.

MIDDLESEX NOTES.

Marriage of Hon, G. W. Ross' Niece at Strathrey to Rev. John Crawford, Niagara Falls.

A very interesting wedding was celebrated in Strathroy on Wednesday last, when Miss Martha Rose, daughter of Mrs. Rose, of Frank street, was mar-ried to Rev. John Crawford, B.A., B.D., of Niagara Falls. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Jordon at the residence of Mrs. Rose, and guests were present from Toronto, London, Detroit, Glencoe, and Niagara Falls. The wedding was, however, a very quiet one, only the most intimate friends of the contracting parties being present. A wedding dinner, perfect in all its appointments, was served, and immediately after Mr. and Mrs. Crawford departed for Asbury Park, where they will spend two months. They will then return to Niagara Falls, where Mr. Crawford will resume his work as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. He will certainly take his bride to a host of appreciative friends, for Mr. Crawford, during the four years in which he has ministered to the Niagara Falls people has established himself as one of the most eloquent and forceful preachers in the Western Peninsula. Telegrams of congratulation were received from all parts of the Province, among them being one from the bride's uncle, the Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, wishing that their lives may be a perpetual honeymoon. One cannot refrain from saying that the manse at Niagara Falls will in future have a very useful. charming and energetic mistress, and one whose smile will be a benediction. Both Mr. Crawford and his wife are natives of Middlesex, and Middlesex has cause to be proud of them.

RETURNS TO HER DYING HUSBAND.

Had Married Another, to Whom Her Husband Had Consigned Her.

Deer Isle, Me., Sept. 1.-Violet Haskell, whose strange course in marrying Prof. Brister, of Cincinnati, while her husband, Everett Haskell, lay at death's door in this town, has come back, and is at the bedside of the man she was said to have deserted. She says she is going to nurse him back to health, and then set him up in business. She claims that when her husband was supposed to be dying, he consigned her and her child to the care of Prof. Brister, and that she did not marry the latter until she had received a letter from her husband's brother announcing Haskell's death. She produced this letter, and her husband said it was in the brother's handwriting.

THE LAST OF THE SEDAN CHAIRS. In many country towns Sedan chairs remained in use until a period well within the memory of men still comparatively young. In Peterborough, for instance, they were used down to at least 1860; and ten years later, one solitary survivor might have been seen in Exeter. At Newcastle one was still extant in 1885, and at Bury St. Edmands in 1890. Sir Walter Scott, in his "Diary," mentions using a Sedan chair in February, 1831; and about the same time, Lady Salisbury, who died four years later, at the age of 85, was in the habit of going to evening parties and other assemblies in her oldfashioned chair.

Sedan chairs were still in common use in Bath in the early years of the present century, and extremely useful and convenient they were for invalids. The chair could be entered in the hall of the hirer's own home, and being borne to its destination, was carried right into the house, where, the hall door being shut, the chair could be opened, and its occupant step forth into as genial an atmosphere as he or she had left.

With carriages or bath chairs, invalids were always endangered by the exposed transit between the door of the carriage and the house door. Some six or seven years ago there were rumors of a possible revival of the old chairs at Bath.—Chamber's Jour-

LETTERS TO THE "ADVERTISER."

REASONS FOR COMMERCIAL WORK IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of the "Advertiser": Seeing that Trustees Griffin and Hunt are doing everything in their power to establish a commercial form in our public schools, I deem it my duty to help further their purpose, as I presume Tuesday night next will decide the question, Commercial form or no commercial form in our public schools. Now, sir, the parents of pupils are given every chance to say whether they want a commercial form in our public schools, and if they do not re-spond in sufficient numbers, let them forever hold their peace. It is a well known fact that if commercial work is established in our public schools, it will greatly relieve the Collegiate Institute, besides giving pupils a good practical education in much less time than if they went to the high school. Pupils must understand that before they can take up commercial work in the institute they must pass the entrance examination. Now, by having the same work conducted in our public schools the pupils that do not pass can take up commercial work without having to remain in the same room for another year, and the pupil that does pass can attend and take up commercial work, thus placing both in the same category. Another thing, there would be a great saving of expense. Suppose both systems equally good, experience has taught us that our children can be more cheaply educated in the public schools, or in other words, the teaching of commercial work in our public schools is just what is wanted for boys who are either going to learn a trade or take a position in a store, which will give them more practical education in one year than he would get in three in the Collegiate Institute.

High school men may deny it, but it is a fact that there is a strong tendency to foster and pamper the higher institutions at the expense of the public schools. It may not be intentional, but the evil has been growing almost imperceptibly and surely, until at last it is really becoming a grievance.

There need be no fear that, if propery organized, it will not be success-If this matter had been brought up a few days sooner, or before the opening of the schools, I feel satisfied that 100 of those who passed for the high school would have taken commercial form work in the public schools if such were established. So do not fail to give in your names, as advertised, before Tuesday night next. Yours truly, G. J. LYON. next. Yours truly, London, Aug. 31, 1895.

RESULTS PROVE MORE THAN ES-TIMATES. Mr. A. N. Udy, well known in London as a most reliable and painstaking insurance agent, has been appointed city agent for the Ontario Mu-tual Life Assurance Company, and now occupies their office in the C.P.R. building. As those procuring life or endowment policies wish to select the ing. company which gives the best returns to policy-holders, it will be to the in-terest of intending insurers to consult Mr. Udy before placing their applications elsewhere. The following letter is appended to support the claim that the Ontario gives the best returns of all the companies doing business in Canada. Mr. Bell's reputation as a successful manufacturer of organs and pianos, and as a shrewd business manager, gives the more importance to his letter.

In the comparison of Mr. Bell's letter, it should have been stated that the Equitable's premium was $220 98, and the Ontario's $196 92. No account was taken of the interest on the annual difference in premium, which would make the result still more favorabe to the Ontario. Guelph, March 26, 1895. Wm. Hendry, Esq., manager the On-tario Mutual Life Assurance Company, Waterloo, Ont .:

Dear Sir,-I beg to express my entire satisfaction with policy No. 5.625, issued by your company in 1880 for $3,-000, on the fifteen-year endowment plan, at age 47, annual premium $196 92.

The premiums paid, less dividends, amount to $2,472 39, so that I have received $527 61 more than I paid, besides fifteen years' insurance. It may be interesting for you to know that I had an exactly similar policy in the Equitable, of New York. The result of that policy is as follows:

Value of policy and bonus ad-Value over cost ...... 313 30

Your company's policy was worth over cost ...... 527 61 Difference in your favor .....$ 214 31

Of course, he has the usual grist of new fish stories, but the one about the pike he caught-or didn't catch-and which he and two companions had a hard tussle trying to land, but couldn't succeed, is a tough one. Line, rod, and tackle generally, suffered in the struggle. Those who know Mr. Taylor are satisfied the yarn must be true. -The parade of the trades' unions today will be well worth witnessing, and should not be missed by citizens. It will be participated in by the members of every trades union in the city, the large majority of whom have gone to considerable expense to make their organization the most attractive in the line. Tomorrow morning the annual trades congress of Canada will open in the City Hall, when delegates

The sessions are open, and the public are cordially invited. -George McLean, said to be the oldest molder in the union molders' list in America, died Friday at Milwaukee and will be buried in this city this morning from the residence of his mother, 366 Dufferin avenue. George was about 60 years of age and unmarried. He worked at his trade in every part of the continent, frequently in London. He was the only child of his aged mother, who is 84 years of age, and has lived in London 50 years. Mrs. McLean, it may be stated, is remarkably hale and in full possession of her

It read: "Antonius Stradivarius, Cremonensis, Faciebat, Anno 1715." Stradivarius was a renowned violin manufacturer residing in Cremona, Yesterday and today are harvest festival days with the Salvation Army. At the regular services yesterday the platform was piled several feet high with the fruits of the earth. There was a profuse collection of vegetables of every description and a great many manufactured articles of food. A clothes line hanging across the northeast corner of the hall was adorned with articles of clothing, etc. These things will be sold today by private sale in the afternoon and by auction in the evening. The "target" of the local branch is $130 and it will be easily more than reached as the cash collections alone form a most creditable sum. The services yesterday were of an unusually inspiring nature and several converts were made. They were conducted by Adjutant Turner. Services will be held this afternoon and evening and at the latter the total amount raised will be made known. SQUIRE LACEY'S COURT. Nellie Cornelius, of Oneida, appeared before Squire R. F. BROKE HIS LEG

An unfortunate accident nappened on Saturday afternoon to an employe of the Barber Company in an excavation at the corner of the Market Lane and Dundas street. Several men were engaged here under a Barber foreman making a connection of some sort. While the men were working the bank caved in and pinned James Rosier in the ground as high as his hips. The other workmen quickly dug him out, when it was found that his left leg was broken between the ankle and the knee. The ambulance was summoned, and during the usual delay a large crowd gathered. Rosier sat on a bank of earth, very pale, but uttering no sound except when questioned by the imported stenographer of the company, who got the particulars of the accident and the names of the witnesses for the use of the company in case of litiga-tion. Rosier lives with his family at 510 Horton street. The fracture was
