

FOG IN CITY LAST NIGHT JUST LIKE "OLD LONDON"

DECLARES "BUNK" BEING DISPENSED BY TRAFFIC BODY

Ald. Edmund Hayden Recommends That Committee Be Disbanded.

JUST TALK, TALK

Ald. Edmund Hayden recommends that the traffic committee be disbanded, as nothing is accomplished that accounts to very much.

"Just long at last night's gathering," exclaimed Ald. Hayden today. "Nothing but a lot of bunk and nonsense and talk, talk, talk, all evening. I think it would be a mighty fine idea if we did away with this committee altogether. As it is, everything has to come back to the regular committee, and usually the council throws out everything that we propose."

And then they went ahead and appointed a couple of more members to it last night. What right have we to do that at this stage of the game? Why, they were trying to pull stuff there last night with which they have nothing to do. Just imagine recommending to the C. N. R. that they stop ringing their bells."

"They dispensed a lot of 'bunk' there last night, and spent most of the evening talking nonsense. A lot of funny work. Then they went ahead and asked the street railway to make certain stops. Why, that responsibility falls upon the transportation commission, not the traffic committee."

Ald. W. A. Wilson, chairman, added his opinion that it was time also to disband the special city hall committee. "Ald. Burdick and his colleagues are only wasting their time," he advised.

FOG LAST NIGHT AND TODAY WORST IN CITY HISTORY

McGillivray Township Man Badly Hurt in Auto Collision in Mist.

CARS DELAYED

Old London fogs have nothing on London fogs in the opinion of local citizens who have experienced both. Last night a cold gray blanket descended on London and vicinity making traffic exceedingly dangerous. It was impossible for motorists to see more than a few feet in front of their cars and serious accidents were narrowly averted.

The fog may claim one victim, however. Mr. Hodgins of McGillivray Township lies seriously injured in St. Joseph's Hospital as a result of a motor crash near Melbourne last night. Mr. Hodgins' car struck a Coca Cola truck and was badly demolished. Owing to the fog neither driver was aware of the other's proximity until the accident had occurred. The truck was on its way to London when Mr. Hodgins' car loomed up out of the fog and struck him, the truck driver states.

The injured man was hurried to London by passing motorists. Dr. H. A. Stevenson performing an operation on Hodgins shortly after he reached the hospital. His condition this afternoon was very grave, according to hospital authorities.

Cars Held Up.
The London Street Railway as well as the roads had to be held up last night. Not only last night but until 8:30 this morning street railway crews were hard put to keep up any kind of a decent service. Four Ridout cars were huddled at once on the switch at Horton and Ridout streets. It was impossible to see up the Ridout street hill and when a car did finally decide to "make the break," it met a Normal car coming down the hill. The Normal car caused a near collision but the Ridout finally slid down the hill and let the Normal slip by.

Farmers who were in the city last night reported that they had great difficulty in finding cross roads and the proper turns that would eventually lead them to their own homes. One man stated this morning that he went two concessions past his own road before he found out where he was.

A Bad Night.
Wind shields were absolutely blurred and had to be put down before motorists could proceed on their way. A hearse would be said to be speeding, judging by the pace the majority of the cars were making. Bright lights did not penetrate the fog any better than the dimmers, motorists state. It was the worst night they were ever out in a number of years.

A motorist who stalled his car at the foot of Ridout street last night, cursing the fog, narrowly escaped having his car smashed by a Normal street car. The auto refused to move, and remained on the tracks. Great Britain, in addition to pushing and pulling, just managed to get his vehicle clear of the tracks when the street car came rumbling down the hill. The motorist afterwards told the autoist he could not see the stalled car at all. Other autoists coming down the street from the north bumped the machine after it had been pushed from the tracks.

PREFERENCE TRADE PLANS CAUSE WORRY IN ARGENTINE

Associated Press Despatch.
Buenos Aires, Oct. 11.—The proposals made at the imperial conference in London to give preference to the British Dominion and colonies in the purchases of meat and other food products have caused anxiety in Argentina, as 90 per cent of this country's production is marketed in Great Britain, in addition to large quantities of cereals.

URGES CHINESE IMMIGRATION TO DEVELOP CANADA

Vancouver Magnate Declares Oriental Laborers Would Bring Prosperity.

BLAMES SUN YAT SEN

Responsibility for the present industrial and social chaos in China is placed directly on the shoulders of Sun Yat Sen, former president, by Lieut.-Col. Bruce Powley, noted Canadian industrial magnate, who just returned to Canada from a two-years' visit in the Orient.

Col. Powley is from Vancouver. He stopped off at the Tecumseh House yesterday and part of today on a trip to the United States. His experiences in China as the head of one of the greatest import and export businesses in the world, covers a period of 30 years, and he is a recognized authority on Chinese affairs.

Col. Powley believes that the solution of Canada's business problems lies in a wide open immigration policy. He declared Canadian industry would receive an unprecedented boom if Chinese workmen were allowed into the country on indenture.

Would Start Boom.

"Fifty thousand Chinese coolies in the British Columbia would start the country on the biggest boom in history. White men will not work on the undeveloped territories of this country unless they receive big wages. The Chinaman, on the other hand, can be hired for almost nothing to do our dirty work. They would not compete with Canadian labor in any way of what the unions say. In fact, white labor would be raised to a higher status, and the chances are that the average laborer would receive more money with Chinamen doing the rough work than he does now."

China is "upside down," Col. Powley declared. Although unrest is not to the eye of the stranger, one familiar with past conditions cannot help but observe that intense agitation prevails everywhere. Col. Powley, who knows Sun Yat Sen, the former president of an "opportunist" China, would disappear if Sun Yat Sen faded out of existence.

Losses Influence.
"He got his start as an advocate of labor, but he turned on labor and sought the support of the wealthy merchants of southern China. This was refused, and I believe Sun Yat Sen has been practically robbed of all influence. But while he lives there will always be dissension in China."

Col. Powley added that unrest is more apparent in business. The old type of Chinese businessman was the best to deal with. The new, half-literate type, cannot always be trusted.

"These men are half-baked with sort of Chinese merchant believes the country would be happier and more prosperous under a monarchy. There is no such thing as a real democracy in China. The parliament is an assembly of intelligent men, chosen by the wealthy classes. Of course, this system is actually superior to one by which every illiterate would have a vote, but it is not democratic."

Must Quiet Down.
"Canada cannot develop more intimate trade relations with the East until things quiet down. It is foolish to talk of doing big business with a nation in the turmoil of China. I have been traveling there for 30 years, and never has the situation been so fraught with possible catastrophic consequences."

"There is no danger of a so-called yellow peril for decades to come. How can a great unorganized people of 400,000,000 population bear any substantial influence in world affairs when they are uneducated and seething with discontent?"

Col. Powley's denunciation of Sun Yat Sen is the result of the latter's action in condemning the British empire as "the greatest enemy China." This statement was made before a group of American businessmen following Sun Yat Sen's escape from his adversaries through the kindness of the British consul. Sun Yat Sen was staying at the Asia Hotel in Canton when the British consul was fired upon. The former general took refuge with the British consul, who sent him to safety in a warship, and subsequently secured for him passage on the Empress of India.

Sun Yat Sen indicted the British empire the following day as "China's greatest enemy" before a meeting of American representatives.

Speaking of conditions in British Columbia, Col. Powley said trade was showing signs of improvement. He thought the shipping of Western grain products by way of the Pacific would in time yield gratifying results.

GERMANS CLAIM FRENCH POLICY HURTS INDUSTRY

Ruhr Residents Strongly Urge Avoiding Disturbances in Future.

DEEPLY CONCERNED

Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, Oct. 12.—An official statement quotes a telegram from Essen to the effect that contrary to French reports, labor leaders and the population generally are deeply concerned about the situation in the Ruhr. The opinion is said to prevail in well-informed quarters that the French policy of negotiating with individual groups is a hopeless and unworkable work.

If the economic life of the occupied region is to be resumed, the state must assert, both Germans and French must do their utmost to avoid causes of further disturbance. Certain restrictions on the resumption of work are largely due to French measures. Moreover, the French official arrangement for handling the Ruhr is most inadequate, particularly as regards the import and export of goods. The political situation is still in a state of extreme uncertainty. With the final vote on Chancellor Stresemann's authorization law postponed until Saturday, the coalition ministry faces another crisis; for, should the measure fail, as seems possible, the cabinet would doubtless be forced out. In this event, it is taken for granted that a dictatorship with dictatorial powers would take the helm.

If Chancellor Stresemann dissolves the Reichstag, as he has been empowered to do by President Ebert, in case the authorization bill fails, it is questionable whether new elections could be held within 60 days, as provided for by law, for it seems hardly possible that the balloting could be unhampered. Instead of dissolving the national parliament, the president and chancellor may on the other hand, declare the indefinite adjournment of the Reichstag, thus obviating the necessity for sending the voters to the polls.

DAWSON REFUSES PROVINCIAL HELP TO GUARD MURRELL

Relies On Prison Guards Who Are All Men of Police or Military Experience.

FEELS NO ALARM

Provincial guards have been offered Governor Byron Dawson to guard Murrell, but the governor refused the offer. His own guards, men of police, and military experience, have been keeping a strict watch on the prisoner.

When provincial police officers arrived from San Francisco to the man's nerves were racked from the long journey and the strain of keeping a continuous watch on the prisoner.

"We don't want to discourage you, but this man is one of the most desperate in the country," the officers said. "Many times his nerves were racked from the long journey and the strain of keeping a continuous watch on the prisoner."

"San Francisco has one of the best jails on the continent, and the people there were mighty glad to get rid of Murrell," one of the officers said.

"Well, we'll do the best we can," replied the governor. And he has.

Night and day a man watches every move Murrell makes. While he sleeps, a guard, wide awake, sits just outside his cell, armed.

Henry Jack (Slim) Williams, who is expected back from Kingston today or Saturday is an entirely different sort of prisoner.

When he was sentenced to seven years in Portsmouth (Kingston) Penitentiary Governor Dawson took him on the 350-mile journey.

After they left London station, Governor Dawson removed the handcuffs and put him on his honor.

"In taking those off, on condition you behave yourself," the governor said. "No one will know who you are. But, remember, if you attempt to get away, I'm going to shoot."

"Don't worry," Williams assured him. "I won't try to get away. All I'll try to do is to get out of here, right up to the prison gates, Williams was on his honor. He even had his meals in the diner with the governor."

When he was taken to the office two years ago, has built up an efficient service at the jail. Only men of police or military experience are given positions there. Other applicants have been refused.

Governor Dawson himself had been engaged in the work all his life. For some time he was a member of London police force.

Present Conditions.
Conditions at the jail are much different than when the governor and a Byron Sanatorium man, who was an officer at the time, arrested two Indians at Springbank. Governor Dawson was on duty there as a policeman. Coming to London in an auto, one of the Indians cut the Byron man's throat. Governor Dawson promptly put the Indian out of action. When the prisoners were brought to the county jail, Sidney Murrell was there.

It was midnight, and the special guard, hired at $5 a night, to guard Murrell, was sound asleep on the floor above that where the cells are located. Even after the officers had lodged their prisoners in jail, the Indian refused medical attention. The jail doctor was called. Still the Indian refused to have the cut in his head stitched. The jail turnkeys were afraid to tackle him, so Governor Dawson (then county constable) held him while the doctor performed the operation.

Police officials say that the governor has put the jail on an efficient basis, and that they can get on operation at all hours of the day and night.

There is not a man on the jail staff who would hesitate to attack Sidney Murrell. This was demonstrated when Murrell refused to take his bath.

PREMIER KING REPLIES.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON.
Canadian Press Cable.

London, Oct. 12.—"Into our conference we seek to carry the spirit of the freedom of London, knowing that so long as that spirit survives the British Empire will endure."

These words were used by Right Hon. Mackenzie King, premier of Canada today, when, in her agent's guildhall of tradition and story, London conferred on him, as Premier Baldwin of Great Britain and Premier Brund of Australia, her honorary freedom. And the words were indicative of the tenor of his remarks both then and at the subsequent luncheon, given by the Lord Mayor in Mansion House.

On the first occasion, Premier King showed wherein the "freedom of the city" was a thing of the past, the British empire, which comprised an empire scale of the freedom of London; on the second, he carried to different parts of the world. By unbroken tradition, he said, the freedom of London was linked with the freedom of the community of nations, to which formal expression was given in the imperial conference. It was in London that the self-government had its birth; the very kernel of the freedom enjoyed today, not less in Canada and Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, Ireland, and Newfoundland than the United Kingdom itself.

"It is inevitable," continued Premier King, "that as the British dominions continue to increase in size and grow in importance and influence, their freedom in all particulars will become commensurate with the extent of their interests, but such changes and modifications of existing forms and methods of procedure as may be necessary to this end will be worked out in a spirit of cooperation; worked out by conciliation and conference in a manner which, whilst rendering more apparent and real the complete autonomy of all the self-governing parts, will continue to maintain the unity of the whole."

Traces Early Struggles.
Premier King traced the struggles of the London freeman for liberty back to the days of the Norman conquest, through civil war to the day when the Guildhall had drawn up a solemn warning against the fatal policy pursued by the ministers of George III against the American colonies.

"Union, confidence and peace to the whole empire," continued Mr. King; "such is the object of the conference, which has brought together from beneath the southern cross and matters of supreme interest, which are of concern to us all. May the community of British nations forever flourish and expand, conferring upon countless millions the benefits of its social and political civilization. Such is my sincere wish as a Canadian; my first wish as a free man of the city of London."

At luncheon Premier King recalled that in the wars with France, it was the city fathers of London who instructed their representatives in parliament to insist upon the retention of preference among the products of Canada for England. "The merchants of London," he added, "were men of vision. In more ways than one they are being numbered among the founders of the empire." With the cession of all Canada came the London merchants, bringing with them the principles of fair play and constitutional government.

Indebted to Pioneers.
"Canada was indebted to them," Mr. King continued, "especially for the influence they brought to bear in securing the first representative charter—the constitutional act. Neither in the constitutional act, nor in the constitution was there a clause defining Canada's relations with the mother country."

"We have no need of treaties or declarations of loyalty," said Mr. King. "The bonds which unite the people in the great community of British nations are of far more enduring value. This great empire, commonwealth which ever you wish to call it, exists, and will remain, indissoluble so long as it rests upon full, complete and untrammelled autonomy of its constituent parts. This principle lies the strength of the individual nations and the greatness of the collective body."

"The men to whom we owe the beginning of our world-wide trade showed their vision in their choice of the city's ancient motto, 'dominus dirige nos.' If that prayer had meaning to them what it should mean to us, charged as we are with the responsibilities of government, is that we should have entrusted to men of the calibre of the city fathers of London the task of guiding our progress in our studies, while it classes are necessary, wear them and enjoy real sight happiness."

HOME BANK DIRECTORS ARE AGAIN REMANDED

Labor Will Fight Any Move Against Firemen's Union

HOME BANK DIRECTORS ARE AGAIN REMANDED

Preliminary Hearing Adjourned For Week Pending Investigation.

ARE BOUND OVER

Cabinet Expected To Accept Resignation of R. P. Gough Today.

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, Oct. 12.—In a crowded police court today the directors of the Home Bank, charged with negligently concurring in a false return to the government on the affairs of that institution, and the officials charged with preparing a false report, appeared before J. Edmund Jones, and were remanded for a week. H. H. Dewar, K.C., appearing for A. E. Calvert, general manager, asked for a longer adjournment than a week in view of the crown's not being prepared to proceed pending the accountants' investigation, but this was not agreed to by E. J. Murphy, assistant crown attorney. The magistrate expressed the opinion that such long adjournments were allowed only when the crown did not object.

"I would move that it stand for a week in the meantime," said Mr. Murphy.

"And you will look into it," suggested the magistrate.

Mr. Murphy assented.

"We will see when we can go on with the preliminary inquiry," he said.

One by one each of the accused was bound to appear a week from today, the bondsmen in large sums to have them on hand at that time to answer the charges preferred against them.

"Is that all?" asked Mr. Jones.

"No, there is one other," replied Mr. Murphy. "Mr. H. J. Daly. I have asked Dr. Lockwood to be present to testify to his condition. He will be here later."

ACCEPT RESIGNATION.
Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Oct. 12.—Cabinet will meet this afternoon when it is expected the resignation of R. R. Gough from the Canadian National directorate will be presented.

Announcement has been made in the hands of Acting Premier Fielding, but Mr. Fielding declined this morning to discuss the matter.

Announcement has been made in the hands of Hon. L. P. Brodeur, former judge of the supreme court, to the post of lieutenant-governor of Quebec. This appointment has been forecasted for some time, but it is now believed to have been made, although official confirmation is lacking.

Hon. A. K. MacLean of Halifax, is in the capital, and his presence suggests the possibility of his appointment to the vacancy on the exchequer court bench. In some quarters, however, it is said, that no appointments which would result in by-elections will be made until after the North Winnipeg result is known.

The grain situation may come up for consideration at the meeting this afternoon, when Hon. T. A. Low, minister of trade and commerce, may confer with his colleagues in regard to the movement of the crop.

STEEL CAGE BEING BUILT IN JAIL FOR 'BAD' CASES

Special Accommodation at Castle Dawson For "Hard-Boiled" Gentlemen.

NOW BUILDING

New Concrete and Steel Cell Will Defy All Efforts of Jail-Breakers.

A cell within a cell is fast nearing completion at the Middlesex county jail, and it is more than likely that Sid Murrell, alleged murderer, will be the first occupant, although there is a chance that "Slim" Williams, a member of the Murrell gang, who will be brought from Kingston penitentiary to give evidence at the Murrell trial, will have the doubtful honor of being locked up in the all-steel cage that has been erected in what prisoners term "No. 1 cell."

There won't be a chance in the world of any escape from the miniature fortress recent prisoners who have helped in the work state. The cell is described as being about 20 feet long and 15 feet wide, with a steel top and floor. The bars are all of chilled steel, while there is a double lock of an intricate nature on the door. A prisoner, even after breaking out of this prison would still have the regular cell door to open. This door is of the type that now stands between the cell and the corridor, where a watchful guard is stationed.

Defies Jail Breakers.

"This new cell, that they told us was for dangerous or insane prisoners, would defy any jail-breaker in the land," stated a prisoner who helped to mix and lay concrete for the place. "It backs right up against two of the night cells in No. 1 cell, and is fastened down in concrete. There are two steel benches in the place and a little steel table, which are embedded in cement. At one end there is a little alcove sort of place containing toilet and wash bowl. The pipes all go through 8-inch cement, and there is nothing in it that could be pried loose and used for a weapon. It is the most complete thing I ever saw in my life. The riveters are finishing up their work, and it should be ready for an occupant by tomorrow. The contract was let to a Hamilton firm, I believe."

"Murderer's Rest."

"There is just a small opening where meals may be pushed through. It has a double lock on it, too. There isn't one chance in a million of a man getting out of that place. However, you never can tell."

"There was a meeting of the jail committee of the county council some weeks ago, when the matter was discussed, it is believed. The inspector of prisons was in London, as was also Lincoln Goldie, M. L. A. for South Wellington and minister of public works in the Ontario Government. Both these men were shown over the jail, and as a result of their visit, plus recommendations made from time to time by grand juries, the cell within a cell was decided on."

Great secrecy has prevailed at the jail regarding the building of "Murderer's Rest," as the prisoners term it, and jail officials were warned not to mention it to outsiders.

GOOD RESPONSE TO APPEALS FOR STRICKEN JAPAN

London Red Cross Society Is Working Hard For Worthy Cause.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST

Six million people stricken in one stupendous moment of disaster!

They are the citizens of Japan, and the rest of the civilized world is now faced with the task of helping rebuild the wreckage of a nation.

The Canadian Red Cross Society is heading the organization of Canada's effort, supported by personal appeals from its excellency the governor-general, and the Hon. G. H. Ferguson, premier of Ontario.

London's branch of the Red Cross has issued a general invitation to the city which has already met with response. The following letter which has been received by Mrs. Ronald Harris, president of the London branch, from Dr. Fred W. Routley, director of the Ontario division, gives indication of the objectives which are being attained by rival cities, and of what London must do to measure up in humanity:

Toronto Has $55,000.

"Toronto has raised $55,000 for Japanese relief through personal canvasses, appeals in theatres and schools. The campaign is still on, and it is expected that this will be increased very considerably."

"Guelph has raised almost $2,000 by personal canvass. Port Arthur has raised almost $1,500 by personal canvass, a tag day, and by using every available organization to help in the campaign."

"Hamilton's objective is $10,000. The last report from them they had raised over $3,000, with the campaign just nicely begun. In the last report from Ottawa they have raised over $5,000, with the campaign just well under way."

"The first report from Chatham included a check for $500. The first report from Newmarket included a check for $275. The objective of Ottawa is $5,000. The last report gave $2,500. The objective in Woodstock is $1,500, and the campaign is just begun."

"Sturtevant has raised nearly $1,000, with the campaign just under way. Brantford and Sarnia have raised nearly $1,000, with the campaigns well under way. North Bay, Fort William, Oakville, Niagara Falls, all report preparations for an extensive campaign."

Subscriptions should be forwarded to Mrs. A. E. Cooper, treasurer of the London branch, at 526 Waterloo street. Acknowledgment will be made both individually and in The Advertiser.

LONDON'S BUILDING ALMOST EQUALS OCTOBER LAST YEAR

This is splendid weather for the building trades and, while the month is not half over, the total of construction expenditures of October, 1922, as evidenced from issuance of building permits, has almost been reached.

Building Inspector Piper reported today that no less than 93 permits have been issued since October 1 for work estimated roughly at $207,200, as compared with $233,530 for the entire month of October, 1922.

FREEDOM OF OLD LONDON IS EXTENDED TO PREMIERS

Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King Traces British History in Reply.

NEW PLAN IS URGED

Empire Settlement Scheme Has Given Rise to Bitter Disappointment.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON.

Canadian Press Cable.

London, Oct. 12.—There was a lull in the imperial conference today to permit the delegates to attend the ceremony of the presentation of the freedom of London to Premier Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain, Premier Mackenzie King of Canada, and Premier Stanley M. Bruce of Australia. The developments of the last few days, however, as might have been expected, are having an aftermath of comment today. The disappointing results of the conference are giving point to suggestions for the adoption of some wide plan of group settlement.

Premier Bruce is a vociferous supporter of the settlement scheme. The Times, giving it editorial sanction, observes that "in Canada the long winter, during which the prairie farms are snowed up for months at a time, makes the need for some social intercourse all the more acute if the settler is to remain in his new home."

Committee to Act.

The whole problem of empire settlement is now in the hands of a special committee of the economic conference. The committee has given its discussions, but so far they have been merely preliminary to the submission of concrete proposals. In this connection, as in others, it is emphasized that the Canadian representatives are anxious to co-operate in any possible way with Great Britain and the other dominions but only through a common front.

They have no intention of pressing for schemes which would involve additional burdens on the British taxpayer, "no matter how desirable the results," as they are going hand-in-hand for favors.

As a phase of the empire settlement problem, Canada intends to submit a proposal for extending to civilians aid by way of loans, as is now granted to ex-soldiers of the imperial forces. The fiscal conference, which has been given impetus by the British government's offer of increased preferences, is developing.

The Daily Mail, which a couple of days ago referred to Premier Bruce in highly laudatory terms, today returns to the attack on his suggested terms on foodstuffs which came given in the five points of the Australian premier's proposals earlier in the week. Suggesting a subsidy of two shillings a bushel for wheat, the Daily Mail declares that the Baldwin government must keep its hands off food taxes.

After Decisions.

"They cannot have these, even to please the dominion statesmen," says the Mail. It continues: "We are most anxious to do anything in reason to stimulate the rapid development of the (Australia's) vast and thinly populated territories, but it is not reasonable to expect us to make sacrifices which would weigh grievously upon our own burdened workers."

Gossip is heard in political circles today that the Baldwin government is unlikely that the Baldwin government will propose any widespread changes of tariffs on the foodstuffs.

SEES TROUBLE AHEAD

"Bunk!"

That is what Ald. John Colbert thinks today about the British recommendations as they apply to the firemen's union.

Ald. Colbert explains he is more convinced than ever that the duty still rests upon the members of the city council to investigate that department.

"If that is what we are paying $5,000 for, I would be inclined to think that we have been throwing the money away," he enlarged. "Our money has been lost. I would like to know what Dr. Britain and his men know about the real conditions among the members of the department."

"And what is further, the officers of the department should not be given any salary increases, recommended, but either resign from the union or from the department. They'll never turn to Page 16, Column 2."

IS SINKING MANY HOLES IN SEARCH FOR WATER

Engineer Curd Making Systematic Survey For Public Utilities Commission.

USES PAST DATA

Actual Drilling Operations To Be Carried Out by the City.

The most systematic and careful survey ever conducted in the city of London in the search for an adequate water supply is that being carried out by Engineer Curd, who has been engaged by the utilities commission to make a survey of the possibilities of a ground water supply for the city.

Mr. Curd, who has been operating to the north of the city, has taken into consideration practically everything that might affect ground water. He has been supplied with the logs of all wells drilled by the city, and is using these for comparative information.

From these logs he also obtains an idea of the geological formations of the earth's strata underneath the city and in this manner, he can with more or less certainty decide on the proper area in one well that flows in ancient days also enters into his considerations. These having gouged out the bed rock here and there, with the result that pockets have been formed where the water is more likely to be found.

Although Mr. Curd is not yet undertaking any actual drilling operations, he is nevertheless sinking test holes, but these are so fine that only a minute flow could be obtained. After he has determined on the best places to drill, the city will carry out the work, sinking the well shaft and placing the casing and clarification machinery.

The well-drilling firm of Ohio, which was engaged by the commission last year to sink several wells, has not completed its work in the city, one well being partly sunk. The firm is now working on the completion of the well started.

SAYS LONDON FLAPPERS "VAMP" TRAFFIC COPS

Ald. Wilson Charges That an "Eye" and a Smile Can Do Wonders.

TRAFFIC BREACHES

Officers Diverted From Duty by Lingering Looks From Languorous Lamps.

Are London traffic policemen in danger of being vamped by city maidens? Are the eyes of local constables diverted from the direction of traffic by the smiling lamps and bobbed tresses of automobiling Cleopatras?

These are questions to which Dr. Britain has paid little or no attention in his famous report, but it is on no less an authority than Ald. William Wilson, that stalwart city councillor, who is the spokesman of London "vamps," who, if they were men, would be apprehended for violation of traffic regulations.

"Ald. Wilson brought the question before the city traffic committee last evening, and the staid councillors expressed horror that such a condition of things could exist in lovely London."

Not Like Mother's Day.

But Ald. Wilson pressed his point. He declared emphatically that window flappers were not behaving as "mother would have done," and that they were distracting local constables from the paths of duty even as Cleo did to Tony.

"I have seen them, circle the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets and smile at traffic policemen," Ald. Wilson said, as his colleagues gasped their horror.

"I don't believe it," Mayor Wenje exclaimed. "It's true," the veteran said, emphatically. "Why, all a girl has to do is smile or wink an eye, and the policemen let them abuse traffic laws. I've been investigating, so I ought to know."

Situation Desperate.

Ald. Wilson went on to explain that these attractive little flappers "pulled the wool over the eyes of constables." In fact, the situation was becoming so desperate that young men who wished to ignore traffic regulations would merely have to take a girl out in their cars to be afforded ample protection. When the boys make a breach of regulations and are caught by a policeman, they tell their fair companions to "smile at the cop," and the latter individual winks with repentance.

The committee decided, however, that they would let Ald. Wilson continue his investigation before dealing further with the question.

EXPECTS BRITAIN TO GRANT WIDER PREFERENCE RANGE

Associated Press Despatch.
Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 12.—Hon. Earle Page, treasurer of the commonwealth, has expressed gratification with the auspicious opening of Premier Bruce's mission in London. Page says he trusts that before the conclusion of the imperial conference, a much wider range of tariff preference may be granted by the imperial government.

STATES U.S. MUST FIRST ENTER PACT FOR PEACE

Lloyd George Declares American Government Holds Real Solution.

WOULD END WARS

Former British Premier Explains in Detail Plan For Understanding.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN.

Special to The Advertiser.

Aboard Lloyd George Special en route to Winnipeg, Oct. 12.—It is strictly up to the United States to decide when world peace shall become a fact instead of a desired ideal, Lloyd George believes.

Going a step further today in discussion of his plan for peace insurance by an unwritten compact between the United States and the American Republic, the British statesman expressed the belief that Great Britain and all her dominions are ready today for an understanding with the United States which, in Lloyd George's opinion, would mean that no aggressor nation would ever fire a gun, because the mighty power of America and Britain would crush economically and, if need be, by military force, any warlike power or group that dared threaten world peace. America, therefore, must speak before this plan can become operative. That it will eventually be the means to bring back world peace and then preserve it, he has no doubt.

The first step in the direction of American willingness for such co-operation lies in the Hughes proposal on reparations, Lloyd George feels. The Hughes plan, if carried out, would simply restore the original basis of handling the reparations question, he said. Until that question is settled there can be no peace, he says, and peace would be preserved when the United States rejected the Versailles Treaty.

Lloyd George stressed against the fact that his proposed understanding for preserving world peace would not be an offensive or defensive alliance, or in fact any alliance of any sort.

"Just let me know," he said, "that America and the British empire are in agreement that peace must be preserved, and peace would be preserved. That is all there is too it."

Bettors Favor Yankees Again

Weather Looks O. K. For Third Game of Series.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Oct. 12.—The odds swung back to six to five on the Yankees today. The awakening of the Sables made the Huguenots slight favorites over the Giants to win the world's series.

New York, Oct. 12.—Gray, overcast skies that gave promise of clearing by game time, with higher temperature than yesterday, made it seem certain the third game of the world series would be played today without interference from the elements.

Probable batteries for the third game of the world series this afternoon are:

Yankees—Jones and Schang.
Giants—Ryan and Snyder.

ALBERTA COAL DEVELOPS STRANGE CHARACTERISTIC

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, Oct. 11.—A rather peculiar feature of Alberta coal has developed here. It has been found that ashes from a single day's burning of coal will start a fire in a wooden box. Fire Chief Kapelle made the discovery when called to a home to extinguish a small blaze. He has a box of ashes at the fire hall, in which the ashes are two days old, and are still hot enough to scorch the hand. It is thought that the coal burns so fine that the ashes compact so closely that the heat does not escape. He has warned householders to keep all ashes in metal containers.

Claims Gt. Britain's Best Craftsmen Have Gone to U.S.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Oct. 12.—Laments that Great Britain is being drained of her best craftsmen because of unemployment here and the superior attractions of the United States labor market are becoming frequent in the press. This loss is said to be causing the greatest concern to employers and labor leaders, not only because the skill of these workers is necessary to the welfare of British industry, but also because their departure throws an ever-increasing number of unskilled workers into the ranks of the unemployed.

The steel plant employees and the shipbuilders are the chief, although the best markets abroad.

DO YOUR EYES OR STOMACH HOLD KEY TO YOUR HEART?

The secret of Dorothy Dix is her friendliness and her whole-some understanding of human nature.

The article which she has written for The Advertiser today describes the various classes of men in response to a young woman who wants to know how to make a young man, who isn't in love with her, fall in love with her.

Dorothy Dix says there are so many different kinds of men that "each woman must study her individual problem and puzzle out her own combination and jimmy her own luck."

She says there are men who think only of beauty; others who may be won through their stomachs; others who may be flattered into love; others who need to be flouted; others who want comforting; some who wish to pursue, and some again who like to be pursued themselves.

Which class fits your case?

Dorothy Dix is writing for The Advertiser every day now. It is worth turning over a few pages to become her friend.

DUMBELLS AGAIN DELIGHT AT GRAND

Londoners Welcome Return of Al. Plunkett and His Splendid Company.

NEW FEATURES

London theatregoers have a soft spot in their hearts for the Dumbells. This organization, now world-famous in the realm of entertainment, started its professional career in Canada, and at the Grand Opera House in this city. Crude as their production was at that time, lacking the magnificent virtuosity and costumes it now possesses, it showed at once that the talent was there with which to produce a remarkable entertainment. They commenced in a small way but, to paraphrase the statement of Al and Morley Plunkett in their inimitable song number, they "went on and on" until today they stand unique as the finest organization of the kind before the public.

It's a long cry from the first Dumbell show to the splendid revue "Cheerio," which Capt. Plunkett is using as a vehicle for his entertainers this season, but the hold the company easily secured on its patrons has increased, rather than diminished. Four weeks ago "Cheerio" ap-

At the Theatres

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Today and Saturday, evening, 8:15. Saturday matinee, 2:15. — Return engagement by popular demand, The Dumbells Company, Limited, presents Capt. Plunkett's fifth annual Canadian revue, "Cheerio," with Ross Hamilton and Al Plunkett.

appeared at the Grand Opera House and broke the Canadian record for three days' business, hundreds of people being turned away unable to obtain admission. Last evening the same attraction returned, and from the outset it was apparent that it was a "Dumbell" night. There's a sort of homey cheerfulness about the Dumbell performances which other professional companies cannot duplicate—audience and performers become en-rapport with each other at the rise of the curtain.

Splendid Company. Possibly it is because the company of solid entertainers has such a remarkable hold upon the affections of Canadian theatre-goers—more likely the reason is found in the fact that the entertainment they provide is always a No. 1. At any rate no attraction appearing in London sells its audience away so thoroughly satisfied.

Since its last visit minor changes have been made in the personnel of the company. The old favorites who scored such a success are all there, but the company has been strengthened ed by the addition of Jack Loughheed, a remarkable whistler, who contributed to the success of the show. The Overseas Orchestra has also been added to, and is, as usual, a feature of the show.

Al Plunkett and Ross Hamilton are as popular as ever. The inimitable Al has his song cycle, and his numbers, as usual, win prolonged encores. As on the last appearance his "Oh Gee, Oh Gosh" was given the warmest reception, but all were enjoyable.

Of Ross Hamilton little new can be written. He is the same delightful "Marjorie" of yore, possibly with more elaborate and striking gowns, but the same wonderful stage presence, which long ago established him as the greatest female impersonator on the stage.

Splendid Comedians. John Hagen and Pat Rafferty, with that precious pair of black face artists, Ben Allen and Jack Grace, funny as ever, Hagen's barber-shop scene being received with round after round of laughter and applause, and all four boys scoring high in their contribution to the sum total of the amusement.

Stan Bennett in his "Archibald" character again convulsed the house, his singing of a number which "Capt. Plunkett's" sweet tenor was heard to decided advantage. In his solo number "Winter is Coming," and with Al and Morley, rendered, "Down by the Old Apple Tree," and other numbers in a manner which has won a big hit. Teddy Reeve, pianist, again delighted with his own arrangement of "Alice, Where Art Thou?"

The performance closes with the laughable afterpiece, "O'Brien's Party," introducing the entire company and furnishing a fitting finale to a delightful show.

Last evening 75 medical students from the University of Western Ontario attended in a body and kept the audience well amused by their jokes and quips in the intermission.

"Cheerio" will continue at the Grand tonight and twice tomorrow.

POLA NEGRI STARS IN LOEW'S FEATURE

Displays Keen Ability in Stirring and Fascinating Play,
"The Cheat."

VAUDEVILLE GOOD

Years ago, with Fannie Ward and Sessue Hayakawa, "The Cheat" was something of a sensation. The new version of it, which is at Loew's for the remainder of the week, adds to the dramatic story the advantages of a beautiful modern setting, and the charms of the ravishing Pola Negri. The milk-and-water substance of "Bella Donna" was a sore handicap to Pola Negri's rare personality, but "The Cheat" gives her a splendid opportunity of displaying the ability and individuality, which are her claim to a fame above that of all other stars.

Even after "Bella Donna" one felt alarm for Mary Pickford in her rival role of the street-singer to that of Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer." On seeing "The Cheat," one wishes Mary back again into her pinafores and curls, in which field at least, she is supreme.

Jack Holt Co-stars. In "The Cheat," Pola Negri has the support of Jack Holt, as Dudley Drake, and Charles de la Roche as Mary's lover. The wariness of her personality seems to have inspired even Holt, as he acts with much more zest than is his custom. The Frenchman, however, has a gleaming set of teeth, which aid him much in looking particularly villainous, but beyond this, he hasn't yet evinced much capability of real acting.

The picture is a George Fitzmaurice production and carried out with the usual beauty and luxury of setting. As nearly as can be remembered, the modern version follows quite closely the earlier picture, with the exception of the concession to the Japanese, Sessue Hayakawa. It was on his success in "The Cheat," however, that Hayakawa largely rose to fame, but in the second picture all the glory goes to Pola Negri.

Stirring Scenes. The court scenes at the conclusion become tremendously stirring and the last word in dramatic situations is the star as she whips forward the brand upon her shoulder, her evidence for defence. Altogether you will find "The Cheat" a stirring picture, and one is hopeless who fails to become impressed with Pola Negri.

The headline of the vaudeville bill, a neat little thing in the way of reviews is extremely taking. It is not only pretty, but each of the five who compose it is skilled in one way or another; one of the four girls, a very capable toe-dancer. One might mention that the setting is a trifle too "pink," lacking something in contrast, but the act is one of airy entertainment that readily redeems a flaw or two of this sort.

Two clowns open the bill with the rather unusual combination of musical novelties and tumbling, and the second act is a young lady who sings, her encore yesterday afternoon being much better than her act.

QUESTION MAN'S DEATH FIND HE WAS MURDERED

Former Torontonians Believed To Have Been Shot by Woman.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Oct. 11.—William H. Ray, former Torontonians, was murdered by a woman in Bay Minette, Alabama, last Sunday. It was learned by the Toronto police this afternoon.

The remains were shipped here for burial, and Ray's relatives did not know what had happened to him. They had received no word of how he met his death.

At their suggestion the police sent a telegraphic inquiry to Bay Minette, and this afternoon word came from the police of Bay Minette that Ray had been killed by a woman by the name of Rath, who was held on a charge of murder. An examination of the body showed a bullet wound. Ray was in business in Bay Minette, Alabama.

Good Health in Happy Old Age

THE chief concern of elderly people is their health, and that is best assured by regular daily bowel movement. There is no truth, however, in the notion that because you are old you need a "strong physic." In fact, just because you are old a mild laxative is better for you. The trouble with purges and cathartics and physics is that they shock the system and weaken it and make the muscles of digestion flabby. Mr. John Mase, 123 Prince Edward St., St. John, N. B., says Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is the best medicine on earth and Mrs. George Luth, Pope, Man., who is in her 79th year, has found it easy to take, gentle in action and entirely satisfactory.

Does Not Gripe

You can be sure of satisfactory evacuations every day if you will take a spoonful of Laxative Syrup Pepsin at night when you retire. You will not need to take it very long as a few doses will soon encourage the bowels to act for themselves. The popularity of this wonderful family remedy has become so great that it is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Because of its mildness and freedom from gripping it is especially ideal for the extremes of ages, for children and for elderly people.

Effective at Small Cost

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin at any drug store. The formula is the same as the one used by the army and navy, and the cost less than a cent a dose. Take it when you feel heavy, sleep poorly, have headache or night cramps, for these are also symptoms of constipation. Give it to the children when they are restless, feverish or have a cold. Laxative Syrup Pepsin will keep you and your family free from constipation, a condition that lowers the vitality 25 per cent and raises the blood pressure 28 per cent. Freedom from constipation lessens the pain of kidney trouble, neuritis and rheumatism.

WILL BUILD SCHOOL FOR RALEIGH PUPILS

Trustees of Bloomfield Section To Erect Building On Northwood Survey.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, Oct. 11.—The school trustees of the Bloomfield section, Raleigh Township, have decided to build a small school on the Northwood survey, after turning down an offer made by the Chatham board of education to temporarily accommodate pupils of that survey.

Crowded conditions of city schools made it necessary for the city school authorities some time ago to bar children of the Northwood survey, adjacent to the city limits, from attending city schools. Children were faced with the necessity of journeying three miles to the nearest township school at Bloomfield in Raleigh, which proved to be a hardship for those of tender years.

Representations were made by the Bloomfield trustees to the city authorities that 35 pupils be taken care of in Queen Mary school, for which privilege the rural trustees were prepared to make compensation. The city's offer to accept the pupils at $4.87 per head per month was viewed as excessive, hence the decision to build a school on the survey.

Ranges
Make Happy Homes

You—the woman with a family—know what it means to have a range that is so easy to regulate, that is a good cooker and a dependable baker. There is no single fixture in your entire house that is as important as your range.

Every woman who does her own cooking knows what it means to have even heat and plenty of room in the oven. She realizes what a large cooking surface means and the benefits of regulators and little labor-saving attachments.

Three hundred thousand Canadian women know the dependability of Happy Thought ranges from actual every-day experience. They have found them consistent and satisfactory, economical in fuel and easy to operate. Ask any of these happy women about these ranges.

A few dollars down puts this Range in your home.

NORTH WEST BOYS HONORABLE CAPTAIN

George M. Reid Is Presented With Loving Cup At Reunion of Veterans.

PLAN ORGANIZATION

Grateful for all he had done in keeping them together during the past 40 years, veterans of the old 7th Fusiliers of '85 met last night in the armory and presented Captain George M. Reid, their old adjutant, with a large silver loving cup.

Colonel A. M. Smith, chairman of the meeting, declared: "We are assembled to do honor to George M. Reid. We value him for his efficient service to the regiment and to the country. The wish has been expressed by many that we show by some token our appreciation of his work during the past 40 years."

In making the presentation, Colonel W. M. Gartshore declared Captain Reid was modest, and that if he had known what was brewing he would have been a busy man. "You have kept us together," he told Captain Reid. "We have enjoyed every reunion, and in appreciation of your work we ask you to accept this loving cup. And our love goes with it."

"I'm entirely nonplussed," Captain Reid responded. "Anything I have done has been for my own heart and of my own desire. No one got more pleasure out of the reunions than I. This is more than a reward for what I have done. I have had my ups and downs during the last 40 years. I have been at the bottom and at the top of the heap. But I have always known that I am in the midst of the family heirlooms, and I have down from generation to generation. I do appreciate that you are at my back. The old comradeship of '85 always binds us together."

Praises Captain. Lieut. A. G. Chisholm lauded Capt. Reid for all he had done for the veterans and stated the presentation was most fitting.

Capt. Frank Butler testified to the work Capt. Reid had done for the veterans of '85, and hoped he would be spared to enjoy many such reunions.

Capt. Butler spoke of the death of Pte. Uri McRoberts, whose funeral is to be held from George E. Logan's undertaking parlors today. Those present volunteered to attend the funeral of their former comrade.

Capt. John Grant expressed himself as being in full accord with what had been done, and expressed the wish that Capt. Reid would be spared many years.

All the reunions have been of an informal nature, but last night the 26 veterans resolved to form an association of the members of the old 7th Regiment who went to the North-West Rebellion.

A committee composed of Capt. Reid, Lieut. J. K. H. Pope, Capt. Graham, Col. Gartshore, and J. P. Moore was formed to prepare plans for the organization of the association.

Veterans of '85, now residing in all parts of the continent, contributed to the presentation.

Regrets Absence. Lieut. Pope read regrets of absence from James H. Burns of Quebec, J. Smythe of Toronto, Harry Bay, and A. Mulhead, Alf Jones, William R. George R. Westland of Beamsville. Letters of approval of the event were received from all parts of Canada and the United States.

Originally 350 men were in the Rebellion with the 7th Fusiliers. Last night there were 28. They were: Capt. George M. Reid, Col. A. M. Smith (formerly major), Col. W. M. Gartshore (formerly major), Capt. Frank Butler, Capt. John Graham, Lieut. J. K. H. Pope, Lieut. A. G. Chisholm, J. P. Moore, R. H. Dignan, S. Lancaster, Alf. Anderson, George McComb, John Walton, James Smith, James Harding, Robert Coughlin, Ed. Harrison, W. J. Brazier, William Hayden, W. D. Mills, W. P. George, C. H. Gould, John Sinnott, Duke Steele, Michael Cotter and John Davidson.

Following the speeches, the veterans indulged in cards and billiards, and reminiscences of the "good old days of '85." Lunch was provided by the Western Ontario Regiment (formerly the 7th Fusiliers), of which Col. Eric Reid, son of George M. Reid, is commanding officer.

ALLEN'S THEATRE CLAIM WILL BE RE-EXAMINED

Allen's Theatre has been granted another hearing before the court of revision.

Assessment Commissioner Bennett explains that this institution has been getting a reduction of taxes in other years, and it was decided to cease this practice this year. The court of revision recently adopted his recommendation to that effect, but the Allen Theatre was not represented at the hearing.

Another hearing has been granted, although the aldermen point out that it was the fault of the theatre management that they did not have their legal counsel present, as they had been duly notified.

STEAL CAR WHILE OWNER IS ATTENDING CHURCH

St. Thomas, Oct. 11.—The St. Thomas youths who were arrested in London on Sunday evening in a charge of attempting to steal a car, were visited in the London jail by Detective McCulley of the local police force this morning. As a result of the trip, Detective McCulley brought home a signed confession, in which the boys admitted stealing Mr. Thomas's car some three weeks ago, while Mr. Thomas was attending church. The car was found several hours later abandoned in a field near London, having been stripped of all removable parts. It is not known yet what disposition of the boys will be made.

FIREMAN INJURED. Ted. Beatty, a popular member of the Central Fire Hall, is confined to his home, suffering from a wrench on his back and other bruises about the body as a result of a fall sustained on Wednesday night. Mr. Beatty had answered a call sent in, and in his hurry to slide down, missed his grasp and fell heavily to the floor. He will be laid up for some time.

YOUTH IS INJURED. While riding his bicycle last night Sam Bartlett was attacked by a dog, and in an effort to turn out to the ground, causing injury to his leg. The boy was removed to Victoria Hospital to determine whether his leg is broken. The accident occurred shortly after six o'clock.

Our Family Food

Select the Foods That Will Help To Build Sound Teeth

By WINNIFRED STUART GIBBS.

The astute Mikado was apparently blessed with a considerable amount of general information and knowledge of human nature. When he talked about "making the punishment fit the crime" he was merely taking into account one of the best-known laws of nature.

One of these laws relates to diet as a builder of sound teeth and, conversely, to the punishment that follows the crime of eating one-sidedly. Even in the case of grown-ups it is not always easy to look forward and reckon with a punishment that is more or less remote and the children must not be expected to do this unaided. It is our responsibility to show them that the dietetic sins of today will bear a full crop of toothaches in the years to come.

Teach the children that tomatoes and potatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, carrots and string beans are among the dentists that will work for them. Tell them that the whole grains are also in the firm of tooth builders, with apples and raisins, dates, grapes and oranges forming the more decorative partners.

The youngsters are so accustomed to having milk and then more milk preached to them that they will not be surprised to learn that this valuable beverage must also be represented in a diet that is designed to eliminate future visits to the dentist's chair.

Because of the fact that all foods given to children may fall of their mission if badly cooked we give some suggestions in this important matter.

The whole grains, with the outer covering present in full measure, must be judiciously used. In the case of young children or for those who may have any intestinal disturbance the bran or cellulose may cause irritation from generation to generation.

It is to be appreciated that you are at my back. The old comradeship of '85 always binds us together.

served stewed as a sauce. Dates make a popular and nourishing marmalade after mashing and straining. As to the effect of sugar or candy, this is a moot question. Some authorities maintain that if the teeth are well brushed after eating these sweets there will be no danger of decayed teeth. Others say that because of the taking up of the lime salts from the blood the teeth are robbed of one of their most necessary elements.

Be that as it may, it is best to steer a steady course, eating candy in very moderate quantities, omitting raw sugar altogether and taking great care to teach the children to brush the teeth with extra care after indulgence in goodies of this character.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HALLOWEEN
By way of varying the witch theme for a Halloween supper, try a Macbeth evening.

Three hostesses dressed to impersonate the Macbeth witches may greet the guests and lead them to the supper room. A huge cauldron in the middle of the dining-room floor might hold the refreshments. This should be of an informal character, doughnuts, apples, popcorn balls, ginger bread in witch shapes, and tiny buttered rolls.

The witches lead each guest in turn to the cauldron, reciting an incantation freely adapted from Macbeth and the guest is told to await whatever the fates have in store for him. Naturally the witch hostess is careful to see that the guest is given the proper refreshments and to arrange these on a gaily decorated tray. The guests carry these, cafeteria style, to a table designated by "the fates," if having been the care of the hostesses to plan the seating so as to make happy combinations of guests with similar interests.

Another variation of this would be to have a "Witches Cooking School." The guests would be led to the dining room where the attractively served dishes would be pointed out and the guest asked to guess which of the somewhat "spooky" viands mentioned in the witches' incantation he supposed to be represented by each. For example, snails and other creepy dishes might be represented by smelts or a salad of shrimps. Dried fruits make delicious additions to cereals, or raisins may be snakes, and so on.

Household Suggestions.
Waiting on Table—It is a general rule that foods be served and removed on the rule of 15.

This rule means that the food should be followed if the guests are placed in such a way that they will be uncomfortable if everything is handled from the right.

Laundry Soap—When making hard soap from the rule on the can of lye, add one-half cup ammonia and one-half pound box of borax. Stir this thoroughly into the grease and lye. It makes an excellent laundry soap, without the aid of washing fluids or powders, and is also fine for washing hands. This soap improves with age, but should be cut as soon as set. It is surprising how quickly one collects five and one-half pounds of grease, the amount required for one can of lye.

Renovating Walnut Frames—Black walnut frames will become dull and rusty looking. They may be renewed by first brushing thoroughly with a stiff brush to remove dust and then applying pure linseed oil with a proper brush or with a piece of new bleached muslin.

Macaroni With Cheese.
1½ cups condensed milk
3 cups cooked, drained macaroni cut in two-inch lengths 1½ cups grated American cheese
1½ tablespoons flour
1½ tablespoons butter or butter substitute
1½ teaspoonful salt, scant 1½ teaspoonful pepper

Few grains paprika
Make a white sauce of the flour, butter, seasonings and the milk undiluted. Stir in the macaroni. Thoroughly oil a rather shallow baking dish, put in the layer of the macaroni, then one of the cheese, continuing in this way until all is used and making the last layer one of cheese. Bake in a modern oven until browned, about thirty-five minutes.

PROMINENT CITIZENS HONOR W. J. ELEMENT IN DEATH

The funeral of W. J. Element was held Wednesday from his residence, 135 Langarth street, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and was largely attended. The Canadian National Railways were represented by Divisional Superintendent C. Forrester, Superintendent W. S. Wilson of Toronto, Chief Postmaster Doherty of London, and friends of Mr. Element, George M. Reid, B. C. McCann and Inspector O. H. Talbot of the London Customs House, were also present.

The services at the grave were conducted by the Rev. Quintin Warner of Cronyn Memorial Church. The pallbearers were his four sons, C. P. Element, R. K. Element, W. J. Element and M. O. Element, his brother, J. P. Element, and his son-in-law, N. H. Boath.

Get All the Facts.

It was inevitable that there should be a difference of opinion regarding the amount of publicity given to the Imperial conference. There were matters for discussion that could not be belittled from a public platform, and again there were sure to be times when publicity would be the right thing.

At a gathering of this sort, made up of premiers of dominions, it is well to remember that they are honorable men, each anxious for the best results. There is not a man among them but realizes the serious responsibility that is his in trying to carefully interpret the feelings of his people, and catch the national aims and ambitions of his colleagues from other dominions.

It is with poor grace and poorer taste that a few Conservative papers in Canada are seeking to turn to small political advantage the meagre information that is coming from the capital of the empire.

Premier King, or any other premier in similar circumstances, should have fair treatment and sympathetic consideration. He is there, not as leader of the Liberal party, but as premier of the Dominion of Canada.

If, when all the facts and reasons are known, it appears that he has failed in his duty, let the criticism be forcible and plentiful. It is not fair to speak yet with but a small knowledge of what has transpired or what is transpiring.

Watching the Ball Game.

Watching a ball game played in New York, right at the corner of Richmond and York streets in London. The attendance, cheers, everything except the admission. And it is all possible because of a clever device called the "Playograph." There is the diamond, the bases and the list of players, with an arrow pointing to the one at bat. The ball goes to the pitcher's box, travels over the home plate and is registered on the board as strike one. If it is hit it goes to right, center or left field. If it is caught the runner is seen to fade away as he nears first and the result is registered as "one out."

Crowds? Yes, thousands. The staid businessman comes along. Of course he shouldn't stand out there in the road. He should have a reserved seat, but with a sort of patronizing smile he steps out on the road, watches for the time Babe Ruth shall bat, gives a very dignified grunt of pleasure when he whacks the ball so hard that the Playograph shows it is a home run. And he stays—of course there is business to attend to, but it can wait. So he stands out there in the middle of the road, jostles with the crowd, and grumbles when a street car ambles along to spoil his vision even for half a minute. You know it's contagious.

The baseball-fan, and he is a numerous person in London, says it is the best baseball service ever given. He stands there for two hours, shouts his objection when the indicator puts the wrong man at bat, and registers his approval when his favorite pitcher downs them one, two, three.

The world is moving, and standing on The Advertiser corner watching a ball game in New York is quite up with the rest of the procession.

Getting an Education.

Education is an excellent and a wonderful thing. Not in years have a body of young men so vigorously entered into college work as on the day of initiation at Western. If the speed is maintained Dean Fox will be pinning on B.A. decorations in a year.

This form of education is intensely practical. When a student gets hit on the nose with a tomato in which mortification has already developed to an acute stage, his mind at once turns to the thought that tomatoes should be consumed when they are fresh. Doing things on time will be his hobby, and when he graduates he will probably write a series of books on 100 per cent efficient, and start a large factory for making time-saving devices.

Then, it is a fact that another student got struck in the ear with an egg. It is said that a contented old hen put this egg in a nest by the straw stack shortly after the conclusion of the Boer war. That would bring home to him the need for the grading of eggs, and he may turn out to be a produce merchant or a chef in a restaurant.

The presence of so much loose soot in bags would at once show the need for a new style of architecture that would sprout a chimney in which soot would not collect. There is a greater market for this than for Andy Gump's combination hair brush and mirror.

The appearance of the crowd after the performance was over would also drive home the lesson that a man who shoots stagnant eggs is very likely to be struck with a stale one himself, and that those who heave bad tomatoes at other people's heads are almost sure to be smitten on their own jaw with a like missile. Likewise those who seek to blacken other folks with soot or anything else will certainly have cause to reach for the cleanser and the hot water themselves. That's a bit homely, we know, but just the same it's capable of fairly wide application.

They Will—They Won't.

The Free Press is in a bad way about the window panes at Alexandra School. On October 11 in one corner of page 15 a heading was inscribed to say:

"Will Not Remove Double Windows—Education Committee Takes No Action on Recommendation of M. O. H."

Quite plain in big black letters, so that even a very pronounced Conservative could read. Those windows were going to stay right there.

On the same page, and likewise on the same date, is another heading, mightier than the first. It found place away off in the opposite corner, where it says:

"Removal of Double Windows Without Breach Is New Problem For School Board—Trustees Willing to Accede to Request, But Believe That Operation May Be An Expensive One."

Then the story following this heading is also quite emphatic: "After weathering the storm and sunshine of a dozen years, the double glazing in Alexandra Public School windows is to be removed."

Well, well, and there in the opposite corner stands that heading: "Will Not Remove Double Windows."

You see, if they take 'em out the Free Press will be able to say "We told you so," and if they do not take these windows out it will be able to point to the other corner and say "There, we told you so."

Such is the ne.s. of the day.

Their Deduction Is Wrong.

A pamphlet used by anti-prohibitionists points to the claim that 2,000 were killed in United States last year by the use of moonshine, drawing the inference that prohibition laws are the cause of these deaths.

All of which is positive nonsense. These deaths were the result of breaking the law.

A man goes in to rob a bank. It is against the law, but he goes just the same. In the carrying out of his scheme he gets shot and killed. An inquest is held, and the man who did the shooting is not blamed, neither is there a statement sent out that the death was due to the law that allowed people to shoot those who robbed banks.

Anti-prohibitionists are not going to make much progress in seeking to capitalize for their own purposes the results of law-breaking.

Why Mr. Meighen Speaks.

When Mr. Meighen spoke at Weyburn, the chairman said it was not the desire of Mr. Meighen to forward the interests of the Conservative party on his tour.

Why is it that a chairman feels called upon to get up and give expression to such an idea? Mr. Meighen is out for two purposes: (1) to increase his own standing as the leader of the party, and (2) to discredit the government as much as possible.

If there are other reasons, they do not appear on the surface, nor can they be guessed from the subject matter of his speeches.

The effort of Mr. Meighen's Weyburn chairman in trying to throw up a smoke screen is at least amusing.

Note and Comment.

Many a father's fondest hope is that his son shall grow up to be like he used to be.

American $1 bills raised to $20 are in circulation around St. Catharines. Sort of a 20 to 1 chance with odds in favor of the man who gets rid of it.

Glencoe schools were closed for several days to be fumigated in an attempt to head off the measles. The youngsters are understood to be entirely sold on the theory of fumigation, and even more so on the practice.

In the day's news Walkerton figures as saying good-bye to three young men who are leaving there, while Aylmer had a dinner for two more who are going away. The Ontario towns keep on handing over the cream of their young manhood to the larger centers, a contribution that is great and priceless, and yet one for which the smaller centers get scant recognition.

WILL NOT ASSUME BANK'S LIABILITIES

Association Declines To Assist Depositors of Defunct Institution.

NOT THEIR BUSINESS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Oct. 11.—After deliberations lasting over an hour, the delegation of Home Bank depositors, which waited on the Canadian Bankers' Association this afternoon, failed to obtain any further concession from that body than what has already been announced.

The bankers announced they were not prepared to assume the liabilities of the Home Bank, and did not consider it their business to put any recommendations before the shareholders of the various other banks in the hope of inviting them to do anything to make good the losses of Home Bank depositors. They said the banks were quite willing to face any situation that might arise out of the people losing faith in banks through the refusal of bankers to further intervene on behalf of Home Bank depositors, if any agitation were to arise on this subject.

The Bankers' Association was represented by Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, A. F. C. Ross, secretary; C. E. Neill, Royal Bank of Canada; E. C. Pratt, Montreal Bank. The depositors were represented by W. T. J. Lee, F. Edgar, J. McLaughlin, K.C., Toronto; J. E. Weldon, Lindsay, Ont.; M. M. Sperber, K.C., Henry Weinfeld, K.C., and Lionel Coviensky of Montreal.

Feeling of Unrest.

While all the delegates took part in the discussion, the principal spokesman of the depositors was Mr. McLaughlin, who set forth that there was a very strong feeling of unrest abroad, that citizens were greatly worked up against banks in general. There was, he said, great danger of an agitation arising and the feeling spreading that the banks were not able to supply the needs of the country, thereby working great injury to the banks themselves.

Mr. McLaughlin pointed out that the simple faith of people who deposited their savings and other funds in the bank is being largely destroyed. It had taken hundreds of years to build up that simple faith, but it would not take a hundred years to pull it to pieces again. It could be destroyed very rapidly. It was an easier thing to pull down than to build up. Mr. McLaughlin said he believed it would be good policy on the part of all the banks to endeavor to bolster public confidence in the banks, and he suggested it would be advisable for the assets and liabilities of the Home Bank to be taken over by the Bankers' Association.

Speaks For Bankers.

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, replying on behalf of the Bankers' Association, said that while he personally sympathized with the depositors in their losses, and while that was only the general sentiment among the banks and the bankers, he did not see how the Bankers' Association could make good the deposits. He was convinced that the shareholders of the banks would object to taking over a liability greater than the assets. The banks, he said, were prepared to meet any conditions that might arise as a result of the failure of the Bankers' Association to make good the depositors' losses, no matter what agitation might take place.

However, he added, there will probably be meeting of the full council of the Bankers' Association at an early date and the matter would then be brought before the council.

WILL ASK ENLARGEMENT.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto Oct. 11.—When the case of the crown against the directors and officials of the Home Bank of Canada is called tomorrow in the police court, Crown Attorney E. J. Murphy will ask Magistrate Jones for a further enlargement for at least a week. The bail of the several accused will be renewed and, in the case of C. A. Bernard of Montreal, an application will be made to change the bondsmen in order that matters may be facilitated, and to do away with the necessity of bringing the bondsmen to Toronto. The crown is not ready to proceed and will not be in a position to do this until G. T. Pearson, the liquidator, has had time to go through the books of the bank and make his deductions. The crown desires that at least a month should be given for this information to be compiled and tabulated.

ACQUITTED MAN DENIES PLAINTIFF'S STATEMENT

In connection with the police court action yesterday in which Thomas James was allowed his freedom on a charge of fraud brought against him by John A. Barnard, the statement was made by Mr. Barnard that James' mother had said she hoped he would be sent down for a long term.

This is not correct, as Mr. James' mother died some 18 years ago. Furthermore, Mr. James' mother-in-law denies making any such statement. His stepmother is at present in Vancouver and has never been in touch with Mr. Barnard, Mr. James states.

RESIDENTS COMPLAIN OF NOISE ON RAILWAY

Police Department Will Be Notified and Action Taken.

That engineers of the C. N. R. are ringing the bells of their engines and sounding their whistles unnecessarily during shunting operations at night was the complaint brought before a meeting of the traffic committee last night. Ald. Douglass told the members of the committee that numerous complaints had been received from residents of Stanley and other streets of South London in the vicinity of the railroad tracks.

The committee decided to notify the police department and have the disturbing noises stopped.

Several changes are to be made in the downtown parking bylaw by the traffic committee. It was pointed out that the present bylaw did not make it clear no parking is allowed on the opposite side on an angle parking street.

"No Parking" signs are to be painted on curbs in front of the Dominion Express Office on Talbot street and the court house on Ridout street. Automobiles will not be allowed to park on the east side of Picton street.

A lengthy discussion on the merits of issuing warning cards, instead of summonses to first offence violators of the motor vehicles act, ensued at last night's meeting. It was finally decided Mayor Wenigo should bring up the question at the next meeting of the police commission.

A billboard owned by The Signry, which is said to obstruct the view of motorists at the corner of Dundas and Thames streets, will be removed, and City Engineer Near is to investigate the dangerous corner of Beaconsfield avenue and Wortley road. He is to submit a report to the next meeting of the traffic committee on whether it would be advisable to have the sidewalk at that corner removed or to order all cars to come to a full stop before they cross or turn the corner.

On Ald. Douglass' recommendation the street railway will be asked to institute stops at Cromwell street and Renwick avenue.

Allan Towe made his first appearance as a member of the traffic committee at last evening's meeting.

Yankees Make Use of Terrific Batting Power To Even World's Series

Bambino the Dynamo in Miller Huggin's Victorious Machine

SLASHING HOME-RUN DRIVES BY RUTH AND WARD WIN SECOND GAME FOR THE HARD-HITTING YANKS EMIL MEUSEL SCORES ONLY HOME RUN FOR GIANTS

Hugh McQuillan, Pitching For the Giants in First Four Innings, Is Knocked From Box in Fourth Inning When Babe Ruth and Aaron Ward Hit Him For Home Runs—Herbert Pennock, Yankee Hurler, Hit by Pitched Ball, But Is Able To Go On.

CROWDS GO WILD AS BABE SLAMS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Babe Ruth crossed with mighty tread today the threshold of world's series glory that has been barred to him for two years.

Driving out two thundering home-run thrusters in successive innings, a fast, unparalleled in championship baseball history, Ruth was the dynamo in the powerful attack that enabled the Yankees to turn the tables on the Giants, capture the second game of the series by a score of 4 to 2, and square the count with the world's champions in the 1923 struggle for diamond supremacy.

First up in the fourth inning, with the score tied at one all, the great slugger put the Yankees into the lead with a terrific, towering blow that landed atop the second tier of the right field grandstand, and started the swiftness of Hugh McQuillan, Giant ace. Another run was scored in that hectic inning, but on his next turn at bat, in the fifth, the Babe crashed one of Jack Bentley's southpaw slants into the lower right field stands. That blow was the climax of the game; Yankee victory was clinched then and there, for it proved merely a formality to carry on to the finish.

It was a spectacular triumph for the Yankees, whose punch master John McGraw's strategy and gave them the first world's series victory they have known since the fifth game of the 1905 championship—a span over which eight defeats and one tie have been the disastrous portion of the American League champions.

It was a brilliant day for Herb Pennock, fragile left-hander, for he twirled the Giants into subjection in masterful fashion; and for Joe Dugan, fleet-footed third-sacker, whose marvelous defensive play brought him repeatedly into the limelight.

But, over and above the mere outcome of the game, the brilliant cogs that fitted into the winning Yankee machine, it was the day of days for Ruth, baseball's star of stars, who had come into his own and found the end of the rainbow world's series fame for which he had sought before in vain. True, Ruth earned his spurs as a pitcher, hanging up a record of 29 scoreless innings in championship play that still stands, but it was batting laurels that the greatest home-run hitter of all time was seeking, and he gained them today. No matter what he does in the rest of the series, his place among series immortals is secure.

Ruth's Great Triumph.

Effective, Though Hurt.

Pennock fell to the ground, writhing in agony, and it required several minutes' work upon him before he was able to walk to first base. But the mishap apparently did not lessen in the least his effectiveness, for he retired the Giants in order in the next two innings.

The Yankees gathered ten hits off McQuillan and Bentley, only one more than the Giants collected off Pennock, but the blow of the American Leaguers' bats was the more solid variety. Both clubs hit hard sporadically, and Ruth was not the only one to gain home-run glory.

Aaron Ward, second sacker, who played an excellent all-round game, scored the first run in the second inning with a booming clout to the upper right field corner, and the Yankees' lead was established. In the fifth, McQuillan hit the home run, but it was not the only one to gain home-run glory.

Ruth's first monumental crash opened the fourth inning, but the Yankees inched their advantage to two runs when Pipp singled, went to third as "Fey" Young juggled Schang's smash, and scored on Scott's drive to center. That blow ended McQuillan's stay on the mound, and he was replaced by Bentley. Assuming the rescue role, Bentley filled the bases by hitting the side by forcing Witt to fly out.

After Ruth's second homer, in the fifth—a clout that brought the Babe one of the most thunderous ovations he has ever been accorded—Bob Meusel also got to second when Young mishandled his single, but Pipp and Ward were easy for Bentley.

Situation Reversed.

The story of victory was one of giant smartness, alertness and generalship, plus the decisive ninth-inning home run of Casey Stengel. Today the situation was reversed and it was Pipp, typified by Ruth, that decided the issue. And the Yankees won, because they carried their brains in their bats. Yesterday it was the Yankees who knocked at, but could not open, the door of opportunity; today it was a tale of missed chances by the Giants, though they were fewer than their opponents had in the opening game.

Except for two innings, Pennock, southpaw star of Miller Huggin's staff, had the Giants at his mercy.

Opposed to the frail-looking, but superbly confident left-hander were two of McGraw's mound string—McQuillan, who was hampered in retirement by the fourth inning, and Jack Bentley, portender, who, except for Ruth's second circuit, clout, pitched equally for the rest of the game.

Pennock's vigorous performance was all the more remarkable in the face of an accident in the fourth inning, when he was struck on the side of the head by the first ball pitched by Bentley.

BALTIMORE TIES JUNIOR SERIES

Beats Kansas City 3-1—Groves Wins Own Game With Timely Single.

Associated Press Despatch.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 11.—The Baltimore Orioles, International League champions, tied the junior world series here today by defeating the Kansas City Blues, American Association pennant winners, 3 to 1, in the second game. Baltimore hit Caldwell opportunely, while Groves held Kansas City to four scattered hits.

Groves won his own game when he singled over third to score Boley in the sixth.

Although Groves, when necessary, pitched spectacular ball, and held Kansas City to four hits, he was erratic and his wildness kept him in trouble much of the time. After his team-mates had given him a run in the first inning on a single by Lameley and a triple by Porter, Groves walked three men and passed out a single in the last half. He held Kansas City to one run, but he was out of control in the eighth, when he hit Wright and grounded. Caldwell pitched steadily, but was hit more freely.

In the sixth inning, with the score tied, Boley singled with one down, Bishop grounded to Brannan and Cobb was given an intentional pass. Groves, who had fanned in both of his previous trips to the plate, hit a low fly over second that was just too short for Brief to handle. Brief smothered the pick-off, but Boley, who had turned third base almost at the crack of the bat, threw. Jacobson scored. Baltimore's third run in the ninth, when he reached first on Brannan's error, took third on Porter's single and scored on Shedy's sacrifice fly.

The teams will resume the series Saturday after a day of rest tomorrow. Baltimore probably will pitch for Kansas City, but Baltimore's selection is uncertain. The crowd today, in spite of a light rain before the game, and threatening weather all day, was approximately 13,000.

GALT TERRIERS EXPECT TO REPEAT

Week of Rest Has Put Squad "In the Pink" Again—Coyer Aids Coaches.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—The National League made it two straight over the Americans in the Chicago city series today, when the Cubs won the second game of the set from the Sox, 4 to 3. Vic Aldridge pitched tight ball and was afforded brilliant support for seven innings, but after yielding two runs in the eighth and passing Mortel, first up in the ninth, he was replaced by Russell. Hollis Thurston twirled the route for the Sox and was hit hard in spots.

Catcher Ray Schalk of the Sox was banished in the second inning for throwing a handful of dust at Umpire Ormsby in protesting a close decision at second, when Schalk was called out.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON.
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor."

Terry Decides To Run Away For Miles' Sake—Hears From Betty

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.

Miles Sheridan has just learned that the girl with whom he has been taking a yacht trip, under the impression that she was his wife, is in reality, a beautiful show-girl, is, in reality, a beautiful show-girl, is, in reality, a beautiful show-girl.

Juliet Divine, the Million Dollar Doll, a beautiful show-girl, is, in reality, a beautiful show-girl, is, in reality, a beautiful show-girl.

Teresa Desmond (Terry), Juliet's innocent half-sister, whom the Doll sent to masquerade as herself. Miles is madly in love with Terry and is eager to divorce his wife.

Betty Sheridan, who is infatuated with Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian. Salvano has now deserted Betty for Rose Callahan, a somewhat ordinary young heiress, traveling in Europe with her father. Betty, learning of Paul's desertion, is determined to lose her husband also, and goes to Algiers, where Miles' yacht is lying.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, long in love with Terry, has almost succeeded in persuading the girl that her only course is to marry him. Miles and Terry are enjoying a brief sojourn at Bouanday with Miles' servant, Mrs. Harkness, as chaperone. Miles is preparing to rejoin his wife at Algiers.

CHAPTER LXXXIX.

Betty's Message.

Miles tipped the head waiter to serve the meal for Terry and himself on the balcony. They had a red-shaded lamp, and a few flowers from an exotic garden sprinkled over a mound of golden oranges. To Terry, it was a feast of romance, as she and her prince looked into each other's eyes, and forgot the world. Hand clasping hers as their arms lay across the tiny white table.

A thousand thoughts rushed through the girl's brain. What should she do. Had she the heart to run away while Miles was gone, so that he might believe her cruel, and hard, and put her out of his heart? People in books were always giving each other up with the noblest motives, and making great trouble for themselves, and everyone else concerned. She didn't want to be like that.

But how was she to know for certain what was right? She was so young! And then, she had no money to go away with, even if it were her duty to go.

Hiding these thoughts, she smiled at Miles in the moonlight, with the faintest smile he had ever seen. He believed it a smile of happiness and love, not guessing that it was instead a smile of love and renunciation.

It was not yet 9 o'clock when they took their farewell. They had seen each other good-bye on the balcony, and when Miles had gone, the girl went quickly to her own room.

She shut herself in, and lay on the bed fully dressed, in the dark, for it seemed as if she could not bear to talk with Harkny that night. Presently the old woman knocked, and when she came, knocked again. Still Terry did not speak. She hoped that Mrs. Harkness might suppose she had gone to sleep. At last the tapping stopped, but the footsteps she could hear moving away were slow and reluctant.

What if Harkny had had something important to tell her? With a revulsion of feeling, Terry switched on the light, slid off the bed and rushed to the door.

She was about to unlock it, and call the old woman, or even run along the balcony to her window if she had disappeared; but before she had turned the key, her eyes fell upon an envelope which had been slipped beneath the door.

The girl did not turn the key. She stooped and picked up the letter. There was no name upon it, no writing at all; but of course it must be for her. Most likely, she thought, Miles had scrawled a few words in haste at the last moment and told Mrs. Harkness to bring the note to her room. She opened the envelope eagerly.

Never had she seen Sheridan's handwriting, but, instinctively, she knew at first glance that this was not his. It was not like him; and this letter had no beginning. A bit of folded paper had been pinned to the top.

"I send you the inclosed, so that you may be sure I told the truth today," she read. "I beg of you, to see me tonight, if only for a few minutes. Yours ever, B. N."

Nazlo! He had found out the number of her room and had put the letter under her door, hoping that she would read on before she guessed who was the writer.

Terry unpinned the morsel of paper from to top of the page. Nazlo had apparently cut it out of a letter; but the embossed heading was only too familiar: a tiny flag, and "S. I. Silverwood."

The girl's heart missed a beat. "I haven't the slightest intention of divorcing my husband, no matter how shamefully he has behaved." The words, in a woman's writing, sprang to her eyes.

Betty Sheen—Betty Sheridan—had written them, Terry was sure. Why hadn't Nazlo shown Mrs. Sheridan's letter to Miles? Or had he shown it, and had Miles not told, because he wished her to keep up hope—because he was certain of inducing his wife to change her mind for the second time?

As she gazed and pondered, again a knock sounded at the door. Whoever was outside could see the light now, therefore, it was useless to keep quiet and pretend to be asleep. In tomorrow's instalment Mrs. Harkness gives her advice.

One of the Little Bob Whites Is Badly Wounded

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Bob White, sitting on a fence post, had seen all that had happened over in the wheat field. He had seen the dog find the flock of young Bob Whites. He had seen the hunter come up with his terrible gun. He had seen the young Bob Whites fly and that terrible gun go bang, bang. It had been a dreadful moment for Bob White. Yes, indeed, it had been a dreadful moment. You know, those young Bob Whites were his own children.

Perhaps you can guess something of the great relief which filled his heart when, after the bang, bang, of that terrible gun, no young Bob White went fluttering to the ground. But he knew that at least one had been hit. He had seen one give a sort of little jump in the air as he flew. There might be others. Of this he couldn't be sure.

He kept his place on the fence post and watched his children scatter as they had been taught to do. They scattered far and wide, for never in their rather short lives had they been frightened as they now were. So most of them flew until they could fly no further. But every one of them flew over onto Farmer Brown's land. Of this Bob White made sure.

"That's something to be thankful for," said he, and sighed with relief. "I don't believe that hunter will dare come over on this land. If any of them had forgotten and had landed on the other side of the fence I would be worried. I'll let them remain where they are for a while, each one by himself, and give them a chance to think things over. Then I'll call them together. I hope that youngster who

ON "TREADING ON LOVE"

LOVE is like a SHOE—
It should never be allowed To grow SHABBY and get Thoroughly WORN OUT.
What cannot be REPAIRED
Should be REPLACED.
Many a woman
Gets a man
For a husband
Who has been half-SOLED
Several times;
But it doesn't hurt her
If she doesn't know.
And sometimes the shoe
Is on the other foot.

In marriage a HUSBAND
Is often like a shoe
That PINCHES;
But a WOMAN is generally
Like a slipper that SQUEAKS.
Many a man finds that His SOLE soon wears through.
But that his wife's TONGUE Wears on FOREVER.
Still, when all is said and done,
New shoes, like NEW loves,
Make for ELEGANCE.
But for real COMFORT
We all like the OLD ones
EVERY TIME!

Mothers and Their Children

That "Dawdling" Problem.
One mother says:
Almost all mothers must have, at some time, shared my exasperation at the constant disturbance of the household routine caused by the children's dawdling over their dressing. Seeing how they dressed quickly when some pleasure promised or when a playmate called, I searched for other ways than nagging to hurry their dressing. The ownership of prized pets needing regular care and feeding in the morning caused one child to appear promptly; a limit of twenty minutes to dress, with a forfeit of some pleasure for failure, hastened another, and the most stubborn case was cured by the youngster being sent to bed early at night, the time being in proportion to the time lost in the morning by useless dawdling.

SAYS ONTARIO BEHIND
IOWA IN SCHOOLS

Facilities and Equipment More Advanced, Dr. Fields Tells East Huron Teachers.

Special to The Advertiser.
Blyth, Oct. 11.—The East Huron teachers opened their annual convention here today. Miss Edna Jamieson of Sarnia, vice-president, acting as chairman. For the opening exercises the Scripture lesson was taken from St. Luke 11:40-52, followed by prayer.
Dr. Milne gave the address of welcome, and expressed the pleasure of the people of Blyth in having the teachers' convention.
At the morning session Fred Sloman was to have read a paper on the O. T. A., but owing to his absence Dr. Field gave an interesting talk on his visit to the schools of Iowa, where he was sent by the Provincial Government to obtain new ideas for Canadian schools.
Dr. Field reported that Iowa is further advanced than Ontario in facilities and equipment for the teaching. They receive no state grant, he said, and yet the teachers' salaries there compare favorably with the salaries in Ontario. He also spoke of the wonderful hospitality and kindness shown him on his inspection tour.

WILL URGES CHIEFS OF HOME BANK FUNDS

FAVOR JUD FOR MAYOR ON CONSERVATIVE SLATE

Tories Prepared to Support Him If He Will Accept Nomination.

"BLUE BOYS" ACTIVE

First Real Move in Campaign
To Capture All Executive Civic Offices.

Tory wise men from the east and also from the west met yesterday afternoon and pondered anew upon municipal prospects.

And the interesting report—not at all unexpected—was forthcoming to the Advertiser today that the vice-president of the association is "inside the rail" in the romp for the mayorality nomination—no less a figure in the public eye than Ald. Albert Judd, chairman of the finance committee.

As the Tory "runners-up" point out, it is only logical to assume that Ald. Judd should be the first choice, if it is proposed to select a candidate to oppose Mayor Wenige of straight Tory tendencies and bearing. The chairman of the finance committee had numerous supporters at the Tory convention preceding the last provincial contest, who were not any too well pleased when he stepped aside as Sir Adam entered backstage.

Prospect Is Silent.
Now it seems that Ald. Judd is "going to his reward." He is not saying anything for publication, of course, merely "marking time" pending developments at headquarters and elsewhere.

The fact cannot be overlooked that the Juddites still comprise a powerful group in the association, members of which will fight stubbornly from the very beginning that they must not be "run over" by the assumed, that their choice is ready and willing to try conclusions with the present incumbent of the mayor's chair—who "must" at all times be assured that the official trademark of the party.

It was further stressed today by officers of the Conservative Association that no official action is to be taken by them. The party is not out to "get" the mayor—not officially at any rate. Any action contemplated is by members of the organization, acting as individuals, and their activities do not bear the official trademark of the party.

Aldermanic Possibilities.
It is still proposed to support those Aldermanic candidates supposedly of Conservative proclivities, and several suitable names have already been considered.

While certain members of the present council may count upon the whole-hearted support of the Judd group, as Ald. John Greer, the suggestion to introduce new blood into the fight has fallen in fertile soil.

Definite assurance was given by those who are seeking to oppose Mayor Wenige that they cannot depend upon such support as Jared Vining, Col. Garthshore and several others already mentioned. Ald. Judd is the favorite today, by long odds.
And it is his turn to "go to the out." He did not receive the provincial nomination. He was one of those obviously willing at that time to prevent a probable "run" by ranks by retrieving his hat from the arena.

WHAT ALD. DRAKE SAYS
OF COMMERCE CHAMBER

Also What Officials of That Body Say of Alderman Drake.

Ald. Gordon Drake does not consider he was over a member of the Chamber of Commerce, and states that therefore it does not become anyone for him to resign. He points out that the physical impossibility for him to resign something to which he never belonged.

"What has the Chamber of Commerce over done in the way of bringing new industries to the city?" is the question he asks.

"Why, I never considered that I was a member of their organization, and what is more, I have not allowed into any sort of trouble trying to get things through in the council for them. For instance, I have supported their proposals to have a pavement office in the industrial area, and the people out here are raising all kinds of trouble about it. They don't want it at all, they say, and they have been going at me about it."

Ald. Drake is inclined to think that he will now get more support than ever through his ward.

Allegations by Ald. Drake in connection with the British report and the Chamber of Commerce are ridiculed by
Geo. Reid and others declare that Ald.
Drake is speaking in ignorance when he makes alleged relations to the activities of the chamber; and his statements that he never really took out a membership with that body is vigorously denied.

"We have his membership card, signed by him, right in this office," Secretary Gordon Reid said. "When he says he is not a member he is saying he never paid his dues. He pledged himself to membership three years ago, but did not pay his dues."

DIVISION COURT JUDGMENT.
Judge J. C. Judd has handed down judgment in the division court case of E. J. Cornelius vs. Lewellian M.
Shaw as follows: "Let judgment be entered for $15 with division court costs and for the defendant for her costs according to the tariff of this court, the money allowed the plaintiff to be applied on account of the defendant's costs."

POINTS TO SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION IN DEPARTMENT

Near States Reorganization
Has Been Under Way
During Year.

ECONOMY PREVAILS

City Engineer W. P. Near is quite pleased with such recommendations for his department as submitted by Dr. H. L. Brittain and his associates.
As a matter of fact, he points out that reorganization detail as outlined in the report, has been under way in the department throughout the year, and is meeting with vast success. The other general constitution and economy and general contentment of the men.

"We have but two superintendents as suggested by Dr. Brittain," the engineer explained. "One for the garbage, collection and other services, and the other for general constitution and repairs to permanent works.
This is a much better plan than having several different superintendents as previously."

"We find that this is an excellent arrangement for the use of our men, for at least such of it as he has gathered from the newspaper. In fact, the experts had no criticism at all of the employees themselves or the chief."

The city engineer is well pleased with the report of his department, and he is sure that the general public will be satisfied with the result of the employees themselves or the chief."

TEACHERS GIVEN INTERESTING TALKS ON VITAL SUBJECTS

East Middlesex Educationists Convene in City For Two Days' Meeting.

MANY SUGGESTIONS

Instructive addresses composed the program of this morning's session of the East Middlesex Teachers' Institute, which is holding its annual two-day convention in London.

Meeting at the county council chambers at 9 a.m., the teachers, numbering about 180, heard addresses by prominent instructors in their different subjects.

It was given by Miss K. Anderson and Miss Elsie Ferguson on the subject of "Picture Study in Art, in Public Schools." This proved to be very interesting, and many illustrations were used to describe the main points of the address.

"Music in the Schools" was the subject of the address given by E.
W. Goethe Quanz, and which was followed most closely by all present, the subject being one that is full of interest and instruction.

The final address of the morning was given by T. E. Clark, B.A., B.Ed., the subject being "Economy in Teaching Spelling." Many new ideas were introduced by Mr. Clark, and suggestions offered by him will undoubtedly be tried out in the county schools on the return of the teachers.

The meeting adjourned at 12 noon for lunch, convening again at 1:30 p.m.

LONDON ALONE HAD DRUNKS AT ITS FAIR

Provincial Officials Say Smaller Fairs Were Very Orderly.

Only two drunks were seen at any of the fairs in Middlesex this fall, and both were captured at the Western Fair, according to License Inspector Bolton and Provincial Officer J. Stratton, who with yesterday's "Licensing" committee, conducted a tour of every fall fair held in Middlesex County this year.

"Not a drunk did we see at any of the fairs," said the license inspector today. "There was not a disorderly person at any of the exhibitions. I never saw more orderly crowds. Middlesex has certainly a record to be proud of."

ADDRESSES KIWANISANS.
The present state of agricultural depression and the conditions responsible for it, were dealt with in an address at the Kiwanis Club today by J. B. Reynolds, president of the Guelph Agricultural College. Mr.
Reynolds contrasted the independent state of the European farmer with conditions in Canada, where the complete interdependence of town and country. He pointed out the progress made by agricultural, equal and parallel with that made in industrial development.

No Owner Has Yet Appeared

The four packing cases containing many bottles of valuable wines and liquors, captured by License Inspector Bolton in a C. N. R. freight car on the night of Oct. 3 in the east end yards, will remain in the police station for one more week before being confiscated.
License Inspector Bolton appeared in police court today and asked that they be confiscated under Section 70 of the O. T. A., but as there was no regular affidavit of service made by the C. N.
R. agent at Barrie, where the shipment

STATIONERS NEEDS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS
REACH HUGE TOTAL

Board of Education Purchases 45,000 Work Books For Students.

SECURED BY TENDER

Stationery requisites for the board of education for one year total an enormous amount of pieces, judging from the list prepared by Secretary W. A. Tanner, in connection with the tentative estimates for the year.

The supplies, which are mainly for the public schools and kindergartens, are ordered from many firms, the prices being secured by tender, and delivery made as soon as the board requires the articles.

Some of the items needed for the public schools are as follows: un-ruled work books, 96 pages each, totaling 45,000; and exercise books,
64 pages, ruled, numbering 35,000.
More than 100,000 sheets of eight-inch paper, ruled, are used. The size of the sheets being seven by eight inches. Nearly the same number of sheets of foolscap are ordered, the exact amount being 90,000. For drying up the ink 52,000 sheets of blotting paper are used.

White drawing paper to the number of 195,000 sheets, and manila drawing paper to the number of 225, 000 sheets are ordered. The general purpose of the order is to supply the children in the public schools with the best type of paper for their studies.

Kindergarten supplies reach high not to be so familiar as the general public as those in use in the public schools. Folding paper, with which the children make their little souvenirs, amounts to 42,100 sheets.
Many colors—silver, gilt, cardinal,
dark blue, yellow, green, and gray.
Three thousand four hundred sheets of black cutting paper are among the items. While 1,010 sheets of Bristol board are also included in the list.
Oak tag paper and bogue paper comprising 13,550 sheets, and 825 sheets of Japanese tissue paper are needed.

Cover paper in various colors amounts to 44,100 sheets. More folding paper of different sizes and colors totals 45,000 sheets.

Manila paper, nine by eleven inches, is ordered as 28 packages of 100 sheets. Cutting paper of red, blue, gold and silver accounts for 1,200 sheets. Of assorted strips 27, 000 are ordered. The paper of heavy quality and varied colors is called for in packages numbering 42. A few other items, smaller in amounts are also included in the kindergarten list, making the total required for all purposes an immense amount.

Having successfully completed the deal in Toronto yesterday for the purchase of the control of the Carling Export, Brewing and Malting Company, Limited, of London, a local representative of the Carling group, headed by Harry Low and Charles H. Burns of Harrow, is making preparations to begin operations immediately.

The output of the plant which has been idle a year will be increased steadily to manufacture soda water, ginger ale and other soft drinks.
Export business will follow. The location is ideal for export trade, a double spur track running into the property.

Col. J. Innes Carling concluded negotiations for the deal at 4:30 o'clock at Toronto yesterday afternoon. H.
P. Bellingham of Toronto was the vendor. The price is said to have been the neighborhood of $300,000.
Manufacturing is expected to begin early in the week. Heavier drinks will be produced on an extensive scale for export.

When the Carling family controlled the brewery, it was one of the city's leading industries. The new syndicate, however, intends to operate on a scale greater than any yet attempted.

Mr. Bellingham purchased control in the plant one year ago, but owing to trouble in disposing of stock, operations did not commence.

SHOT AT AND MISSED
WHILE ON 'LOVERS' ROW'

Bullet Whined Past Head of London Man Whose Auto
Had 'Stalled.'

"Shot at and missed" was the expression of a local young man last night, who was on "Lovers' Row," otherwise known as Hale street. The motorist was stalled near the C. N. R. tracks, and just as adjustments had been made by the autoist, he was more than startled to hear a shot and bullet whining over his head. He lost no time in getting the machine started and hurried down to the police station where he filed a complaint.
Sergeant Tomlin and a constable investigated the matter, but did not find any prowling characters in the vicinity.

SCRIBE HONORED BY BEING MISTAKEN FOR TEACHER

A guilty conscience must be an awful thing.
Last night, as The Advertiser appeared one of the young women teachers of the East Middlesex Teachers' Institute, who was sitting in the library at the Normal School, asked what factories had been visiting during the afternoon. The young dame held up an admonishing finger and, waving it at the reporter, said in a reproving voice:

"Ah-hah. Where were you this afternoon? Were you absent too?
Needless to say, the scribe did not secure his information at that source."

It will not be the fault of the co-athletic representatives of that in-

Friday's field meet at Queen's Park.

The imaginative minds of pupils of that school have done their best in outlining a series of yells, to which these other colleges will be expected to respond. Central, take second place. Much ingenuity has been expended on the said yells and choruses, and the students fully expect to demoralize all supporters alien to the purple and gold.

The following are the yells with which they will encourage their representatives, while the song is the one that will be heard at the prize-

PREDICTS GREAT FUTURE
FOR I. O. F. MOVEMENT

At the regular meeting of the Court
Byron, held last night in the Imperial Bank Chambers, the business of the golden jubilee membership drive was discussed. Under the direction of Alex. Anderson, Hamil-

London for some time. Mr. Anderin a short address outlined the great future of the order.

A committee was formed at last night's meeting to organize a carpe-

ADVISES READING
AS BEST ROUTE TO KNOWLEDGE

John Barnard Urges Oracle
Club Members To Adopt Systematic Plan.

INFLUENCES FUTURE

"Self-Education and the Value of Systematic Reading" was the subject of the feature address at the Oracle Club last night when John Barnard, in an interesting talk, gave advice to club members on how to secure the best benefit from literary creations of the world.

Mr. Barnard described himself as a "lover and a literary co-ope," saying that his purpose in addressing the club was to supply them with food for thought. "Perhaps there will be food for thought in my address," Mr. Barnard said. "I have taken upon myself the responsibility of a dietitian when prescribing for the literary appetite."

In all lines of professional work, the speaker declared, men and women are compelled to absorb great masses of information. As soon as one becomes interested in one subject he has to read a large amount of literature. The systematic reading was in its broadest sense, and gradually the whole gamut of literature is perused in an elementary way. The value of this systematic reading was in its broadening influences. But its effect was virtually nil unless the reader confined himself to works which caused thought and necessitated concentration.

"The present generation reads great quantities of print, but it does not always read the proper things. I believe, with Emerson, that one should never read anything less than a year old. And books that have already cured the indigestion of cultured men should be the only ones to demand your attention. Further, I believe men and women should read books that please—that is, books which are in no way detrimental to good and clean thinking, living and working."

Mr. Barnard quoted several noted authorities on what they considered the best type of books to read. He touched briefly on training in schools from a reading standpoint.
He observed that a man's future reading depends in a large measure on what he has been taught to read in youth.

All reading should be done with one object—the desire for culture. It makes happiness and books, properly read and absorbed, bring culture.

Before Mr. Barnard spoke, George Ellis gave a reading on David Gray-son's "The Friendly Road." Grayson, G. Steele vs. Bertha Borland, an action to recover goods and chattels from the estate of the late David Grayson, was one of the biggest list is entered, seven students seeking this position. They are Misses Alta Bell, Gertrude Smith, Joyce Boyce, Gladys Cooper, Muriel
Westland, Mary Campbell, and Mr.
LeSaulnier.

Home Bank Depositors Makes Suggestions.

ASKS EARLY ACTION

Canadian Press Despatch.
Montreal, Oct. 12.—That the Hon.
L. A. Taschereau, prime minister of the Province of Quebec, should convene a conference of the premiers of the several provinces most directly concerned by the failure of the Home Bank of Canada, and that the assembled premiers should pledge themselves to the opening of provincial banks in the event of the final failure of the Canadian Bankers' Association to take ameliorative action in the Home Bank matter, was the suggestion of Bernard Rose, K. C., at the meeting here last night of Montreal depositors in the Home Bank.

The suggestion followed the reading of a letter received by Mr. Rose from Premier Taschereau, in which the latter sympathized with the plight of the depositors, assured them that his government closely followed the progress of the Home Bank happenings and further, that if possible and if necessary, the provincial authorities would take whatever action they would deem best. The tone of the meeting, largely influenced by the date gloomy reports concerning the conditions of the Home Bank and the refusal of the Canadian Bankers' Association to take action, was far more bitter than such meetings have been hitherto.

CITY TEACHERS, GUILD WILL HOLD RECEPTION

Members Arrange To Entertain Windsor Teachers On November 9.

An important event of next month will be the reception to be held by the Women Teachers' Guild of the city in honor of the visiting teachers from Windsor, this function to take place at the Ryerson School on November 9.

Miss Marjorie Tolhurst, the new president, in the chair. The reception will be a big affair, the whole teaching staff of the city, as well as the members of the board of education being invited to meet the visiting teachers, both men and women.

Another interesting function in connection with the Windsor teachers' visit will be the luncheon at the Tecumseh House given by the Teachers' Association, the body which is bringing them to the city. Previous to the reception, a musicale will be held in the Ryerson School at three o'clock, under the direction of Mr. E. W. Quantz, and later the building will be thrown open for inspection. At the executive meeting plans were made for the regular guild meeting on Monday afternoon next.

An inspiring address was given by Monsignor Brady, who encouraged the mothers to continue the splendid work they have been doing. Mrs. R. M. Burns, president of the Catholic Women's League, also addressed the mothers, suggesting a program of work to be carried out during the coming year. Plans were made for a Parish Fair to be held Oct. 22.

Following the business part of the meeting an enjoyable program, which had been arranged by Mrs. Charles Kelleher, was presented, including piano selections by Mrs. Wyatt and solos by Mrs. J. McCaffery. Refreshments were served under the sponsorship of Mrs. Larkin. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. J. Hoy.

Miss Ida Lewis is convening the dance.

STUDENTS ARE HONEST.
The honesty exists in the schools of the city is more than exemplified by a notice posted on the board at the Normal School. The notice, as follows: "Found, five cents, in library. ## ABERDEEN CLUB PLANS BAZAAR FOR NOVEMBER

Will Present Play in February Under Direction of Strong Committee.

Meeting last evening the Aberdeen Mothers' Club arranged an active program for the near future. A bazaar, to be held the latter part of November, was planned, and a play, to be presented in February under the direction of Mrs. Dickson, Mrs. William Bartlett and Mrs. H. Winnett. A jam shower for the day nursery was arranged to be held Wednesday next in the school. As the mothers supply the fruit and sugar for the jamming—done by the senior girls in the domestic science classes—the club decided to ask the board of education if this fruit could be donated to charitable institutions. The conveners appointed for the bazaar are as follows: Fancy work and handkerchiefs, Mrs. Hunter; tea room, Mrs. Claude Brown; groceries, Mrs. Winnett; aprons and towels, Mrs. Carothers; home cooking, Mrs. Max Lerner; candy, Mrs. H. Winnett; guessing contest, Mrs. Barnett.

A vivid description of his trip through the eastern countries was given by Mr. S. F. Lawason. He spoke of his visit to Palestine, through the Mediterranean and Jerusalem; telling of the Armenian settlement in Jerusalem. He impressed upon the mothers that they should be justly proud of belonging to the British Empire, and stated that after his trip he regards the empire as a League of Nations in itself, whose whole object is to create peace in the world.

Readings by Miss Nann Kellman and piano selections by Miss Madeline Langford were greatly enjoyed. Mrs. William Bartlett presided over the meeting.

Another delightful entertainment was also given the patients this week by Miss Topley Thomas and her pupils, assisted by a number of artists. The pupils presented a clever little play, "Columbine," which was most enjoyable, and a number of charming solos were also given. # "1915"—TOLD BY WINSTON CHURCHILL

Kitchener's Mastery of War Council Contributed To Its Weak Indecision Which Ended In Gallipoli Disaster

Day of Resolve Is Followed by Changes in Plans.

THE MUDDLE BEGINS

Kitchener Cancels Transport Order To Send Troops East.

By RT. HON. WINSTON CHURCHILL. ARTICLE IV.—THE GENESIS OF THE MILITARY ATTACK.

Up to this point in the story of the Dardanelles the war council and the admiralty had accepted unquestioningly the basis that no troops were available for offensive operations against Turkey. In his first letter to me on Jan. 3, Lord Kitchener had said: "We have no troops to land anywhere. We shall not be sorry for anything big for some months." The first telegram to Admiral Carden of Jan. 3 had asked: "Are you of opinion that it is practicable to force the Dardanelles using ships alone?" At the evening meeting of the war council on Jan. 28 when the final decision was taken, Lord Kitchener repeated: "We have at present no troops to spare." It was on that foundation alone that all our decisions in favor of a purely naval attack had been taken. But henceforward a series of new facts and pressures came into play which gradually but unceasingly changed the character and enormously extended the scale of the enterprise. Under these influences in less than two months the naval attack, with its limited costs and risks, became subsidiary, and in its place there arose a military development of great magnitude. Over this new plan the admiralty had no responsible control. Our advice did not prevail; our criticisms were not welcomed, and even inquiries became a matter of delicacy and tact. Nevertheless, by the results of this military operation we had to stand or fall.

After all there was an army. From the very moment when the purely naval attack had been finally decided troops from many quarters began to come into view. From that moment the pressure to employ troops in one way or another grew steadily in every mind. The decision to abandon or postpone indefinitely the advances along the Belgian coast liberated portions of the reinforcements destined for Sir John French. The feeble character of the Turkish attack on Egypt and its repulse liberated the greater part of the army concentrated there. The continued improvement in the training of the Australian and territorial troops in this army increasingly fitted them for offensive operations. The suppression of the rebellion in South Africa had removed other anxieties. Meanwhile, the first and second of the new armies (in all twelve divisions) were improving in training and progressing in equipment. The large number of armed and organized soldiers in the United Kingdom should have removed all apprehension of overseas invasion.

At least, Ten Divisions Available. At intervals during the next three months there were actually ordered to the Dardanelles: From England—23rd division; two first-line territorial divisions; Royal Naval Division; Yeomanry mounted division. From Egypt—Two Australian divisions; one extra Australian brigade; Lancashire territorial division; one Indian brigade. From France—Two French divisions.

All these troops were available for moving at this moment. The transport for their conveyance by sea could readily have been procured. All, or their equivalent, and more were subsequently sent. Together they comprised an army of at least 150,000 men. This army could have been concentrated in the eastern Mediterranean in readiness to intervene at any point selected, some time before the end of March. If at any time in January it had been deliberately decided to use such an army, according to some good plan and with a resolute purpose, in a great combined operation to seize the Gallipoli peninsula and thus open the passage for the fleet, few will now doubt that a complete victory would have been gained. On the other hand, apart from the 23rd division, all these troops had been raised or permanently embodied only since the outbreak of the war. To open a new campaign on a large scale was a most serious decision, in view of their partially trained character and of the general shortage of munitions. This was the justification for the naval attack. It also within its limits presented a logical and consistent scheme of war. Either plan was defensible. But for what happened there can be no defence except human infirmity. To drift into a new campaign piecemealed and without any definite decision or careful plan would have been scouted by everyone. Yet so obliquely were these issues presented, so baffling were the personal factors involved, that the war council were drawn insensibly and irresistibly into the muddle.

Lord Kitchener in the Tolls.

The workings of Lord Kitchener's mind constituted at this period a feature almost as puzzling as the great war itself. His prestige and authority were immense. He was the sole mouthpiece of war office opinion in the war council. Everyone had the greatest admiration for his character, and everyone felt fortified, amid the terrible and incalculable events of the opening months of the war, by his commanding presence. When he gave a decision, it was invariably accepted as final. He was never, to my belief, overruled by the war council or by his cabinet in any military matter, great or small. No single unit was ever sent or withheld contrary to his advice. Scarcely anyone ever ventured to argue with him in council. Respected by the man, sympathetic for his immense labors, confidence in his professional judgment, and the belief that he had plans deeper and wider than any could see, his misgivings and disputes, whether in the council or at the war office. All-powerful, imperturbable, reserved, he dominated absolutely our councils at this time in all that concerned the organization and employment of the armies.

Yet behind this imposing and splendid front lay many weaknesses, evidences of which became increasingly disquieting. The secretary of state for war had burdens laid upon him which no man, no three men even of his great capacity, could properly discharge. He had absorbed the whole war office into his spacious personality. The general staff was completely in abeyance, save as a machine for supplying him with information. Even as such a machine it was woefully weak. All the ablest officers and leading and strongest minds in the general staff and army council, with the exception of Sir John Cowans, the quartermaster-general, had hurried eagerly out of the country with the expeditionary force, and were now in France, feeling that they ought to control the whole conduct of the war from the highly localized point of view of the British general headquarters at St. Omer.

In their place, filling vitally important situations, were officers on the retired list or men whose opinions had never counted weightily in British military thought. These officers were petrified by Lord Kitchener's personality and position. They none of them showed the natural force and ability to argue questions out with him vigorously as man to man. He towered up in his uniform as a field-marshal, a torrent of rushing, swirling, and irresistible nature. As a result his decisions were sometimes contradictory. He was torn between two perfectly clear-cut views of the war, both urged upon him with force and passion, with wealth of fact and argument. All the leading soldiers in the British army, all the august authority of the French high command asserted that the sole path to victory lay in sending every single man and gun and shell to the French front to "kill Germans" and break their lines in the west. All the opinion of the war council, which certainly contained men who had established themselves as the leading figures of the public life of their generation, was focused upon the southern and eastern theatre as the scene for the campaign of 1915. Kitchener himself was strongly drawn in this direction by his own eastern interest and knowledge. He saw the full vision of what success in this quarter would mean, but he also felt what we did not feel—the fearful alternative pressure to which he was continually subjected from the French front.

The problem was not insoluble. The task of reconciling these apparently opposed conceptions was not impossible. A well-conceived and elaborated plan and program could have been devised for action in the Near East in March, April, May or even June, and for a subsequent great concentration and operation on the western front in the autumn of 1915, or better still under far more favorable conditions in the spring of 1916. The successive development of both policies in their proper sequence and each in its integrity was perfectly feasible if the great authorities concerned could have been won over. However, in the event Lord Kitchener succumbed to conflicting forces and competing policies.

Beside these trials and burdens, to which he was certainly not able to rise superior, stood the whole vast business of recruiting, organizing and equipping the new armies; and behind this again there now marched steadily into view a series of problems connected with the manufacture and purchase of munitions upon a scale never dreamed of by any human being up till this period. These problems comprised the entire social and industrial life of the country and touched the whole economic and financial system of the world. All this the daily expositions of all military business in cabinet and in council—a process most trying and burdensome to Lord Kitchener, and one in which he felt himself at a disadvantage; add, further, the continuous series of decisions upon executive matters covering the vast field of the war, including important operations and expeditions which were campaigns in themselves, and it will be realized that the strain that descended upon a king's greatest subject was far more than mortal man could bear.

His Courage and Kindness.

It may be, however, be stated that Lord Kitchener in no way sought to lighten these terrific burdens. On the contrary, he resented promptly any attempt to interfere in and even to diminish his responsibilities. He resented the efforts which were made from January onwards to remove the provision of munitions and equipment from his control as secretary of state. He devolved on to subordinates as little as he could. He sought to manage the great war by the same sort of personal control that he had used with so much success in the command of the tiny Nile expedition. He kept his cabinet and staff, what was left of it, in a condition of complete subservience and practical abeyance. He even reached out, as his cabinet office justly put it, into political spheres in questions of Ireland, of temperance, and of industrial organization.

It is idle at this date to affect to disregard or conceal these facts. Indeed, the greatness of Lord Kitchener and his lasting claims upon the respect and gratitude of succeeding generations of his fellow-countrymen, for whose cause and safety he fought with single-hearted purpose and a giant's strength, will only be fortified by the fullest comprehension of his character and of his difficulties. If this story and the facts and arguments on which it rests constitute a contribution upon his military policy, I must also testify to the overwhelming weight of the burdens laid upon him, to his extraordinary patience and courage in all the difficulties and perplexities through which we were passing, and to his unvarying kindness and courtesy to me.

Venezelos Declines Proffered Division. At the war council of February 9 it was decided to offer the 29th division (which was still in England) to Greece, together with a French division, if it would join the allies. I thought that this offer, taken by itself and apart from any effects which might result from the naval attack on the Dardanelles, was wholly inadequate. I did not believe that Greece, and still less Bulgaria, would be influenced by the prospects of such very limited aid. Indeed, the exigencies of the assistance were in themselves a confession of our weakness. This view was justified, and the offer was promptly declined by M. Venezelos.

Meanwhile the preparations for the naval attack had been steadily moving forward. I still adhered to the integrity of the naval plan. Knowing what I did of the military situation and of the state of our armies, I did not undertake the serious nature of a decision to commit British troops to severe and indefinite fighting with the Turks on the Gallipoli peninsula. I had of course thought long and earnestly about what would follow if the naval attack succeeded and a British fleet entered the Marmora. I expected that if and when the Turkish forts began to fall, the Greeks would join us, and that the whole of their armies would be at our disposal thenceforward. I hoped that the apparition of a British fleet off Constantinople and the flight or destruction of the Goeben and the Breslau would be followed by political reactions of a far-reaching character, as the result of which the Turkish government would negotiate or withdraw to Asia. I trusted that good diplomacy, following hot-foot on a great war event, would induce Bulgaria to march on Adrianople. Lastly, I was sure that Russia, who never had need elsewhere, would not remain indifferent to the fate of Constantinople, and that further reinforcements would be forthcoming from her. It was on these quasi-political factors that I counted in our own military policy, for the means of exploiting and consolidating any success which might fall to the fleet. The reader will see how far these speculations appear to have been well founded.

Needed a Large Army.

But, of course, if after all Lord Kitchener and the war council saw their way to form a substantial British army in the east, the prospects of a great and successful combination were vastly more hopeful. Such an army assembled in Egypt and the Greek islands might well be the motor muscle which would decide and animate all the rest. It could either seize the isthmus of Bulair if the Turks evacuated the peninsula after the fleet had passed the straits; or, if a convention was made with Turkey, it could occupy Constantinople promptly. Incidentally, if landing parties on a larger scale were needed during the passage of the fleet, they could be supplied from this source. Thus a considerable unit was established on the immediate step of sending troops to the east between persons who on the further steps held very different views. Amid the conflicting opinions, competing plans and shifting exigencies of the situation, the desirability of concentrating the largest possible army in the eastern Mediterranean with extreme promptitude, and placing at its head a supreme general, seemed to all of us at the admiralty to be obvious. Therefore, we at all times, in all discussions, supported everything that would promote and expedite this concentration.

ARRANGES FOR RENTAL OF SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

Secretary Tanner Declares Collegiate Space Can Be Used For Various Purposes.

Final regulations in connection with the use of the Central Collegiate auditorium have been drawn up by Secretary W. A. Tanner in conjunction with the principals of the colleges of the city, the rental of the space being fixed at $15 per evening.

Rules governing the occupation of the rooms are not severe, but special emphasis is placed on the fact that students whenever the latter desire to make use of it at all times.

In addition to this regulation there is one that states no fees or remunerations are to be paid to the caretaker or any other employees of the board by the lessees. The fee for renting must be paid before or immediately after the night use.

It is also stated that as the building is unlicensed, no stated fee for admission to concerts or other functions is to be made.

Steps will now be taken to allot the use of the auditorium to some of the many organizations which have made application, several of these having been received within the past week.

HEIR TO THRONE HAS BUSY DAY IN MONTREAL

Prince of Wales Goes Shopping and Visits Royal Victoria Hospital.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Oct. 12.—Lord Renfrew went shopping here yesterday, and his excursion into the uptown retail district formed one of the features of his day's program. He paid some informal calls also, made a brief visit to the Royal Victoria Hospital, took a walk, played squash racquets, dined at the Mount Royal Club as the guest of E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and afterwards went on to a dance.

At the racquet court his opponent was Major Arthur Chipman, with whom he engaged in several sets of squash. After this he returned to lunch at the Ritz Carlton, taking a table in the main restaurant. Later in the afternoon he motored to various points of interest with Mr. K. J. Rose. Today Lord Renfrew will hunt, the meeting being at Arthur's Corner. He will motor out from Montreal to the rendezvous.
