Keystone Company Will Present Proposition To Council There

A MASS MEETING TONIGHT

Promoter Fowler, of the Keystone Sugar Company, arrived in the city to-day, and a mass meeting of the the Council Chambers in Harrison
Hall at eight o'clock this evening.
The meeting is to be held for the purpose of getting the feeling of the people and the business men on oposition.

Mr. Fowler, seen this morning, objected to the statement that the Keystone people had not received a satisfactory offer from Dresden. He says that the company received an offer from Dresden that was a bet-interest in bank. offer from Dresden that was a better consideration in a monetary way than the one received from Chatham. He was asked what the offer from Dresden amounted to, but he preferred not to say, remarking that his company had no desire to pit one corporation's offer against another.

A MEMBER IMPLICATED.

The members of the Laurier Government have had plenty of practice in side stepping during the past few months, but although they have to a certain extent been successful in preventing investigations into the methods of their Government, they have by no means strengthened their position with the electors. Charges have been made which the Fremier has found it impossible to disprove and every day brings forth fresh evidence of wrongdoing and injudicious expenditure.

The Magnetewan lighthouse in the Parry Sound district was built last year. Some queer things happened in connection with its construction. The department decided to have the structure built by days work. The member for Parry Sound supports the Government, and it seems that he owns a tug boat. It is not lawful for a member of Parliament to take money from the Government for services. it was stated in the House that this member's boat was employed at the work, that the captain of the boat was engaged as foreman carpenter that another employe of the member was appointed inspector of the work, and that most of the men who worked on the lighthouse were hands employed on the same boat. It was further discovered that the foreman was paid $3.50 per day, while the Minister told the House the other day that his pay was only

Further it was stated by Mr. Bennett, who had moved for and obtained the original accounts, that he had been informed by a person on the spot, that the number of days actually worked by the men employed was less than the number Examining charged and paid for. the papers he detected the coincithat the original charges agreed with his private information. The figures had evidently been erased and larger ones put in their place. The mystery connected with this affair has been deepened by the complete loss of the file of papers which has not been found since the day it was inspected in the Chamber

The muck-raker has been working over-time in Chicago, and the result is that there has been a lot of beefing about the Chicago stock yards. The ultimate conclusion arrived at by the average reader is that the whole business is on the hog.

We hear a lot about civic beautification these days and City Councils will now have the power to at least do away with one of the most unsightly obstacles that great the eye in our streets. By the legislation that will be passed at Ottawa a municipality will be empowered to order the removal of all poles from the streets and compel telephone companies to put the new services that they desire to instal underground. The matter will have to be taken before a board, who will issue directions for the removal or change of the location of a telephone system upon the application of the municipality. Like all Liberal legislation it is composed of half way measures. The telephone company has shown a willingness to go under, but it is the electric light and telegraph tor-

BOBS UP AT THE INSTANCE OF THE EARL OF AMHERST.

Lord of the Manor of Ortford Seizes Astonished English "Vassal's" Best Horse as Heriot-Action Perfectly

The need of some act which wan make a clean sweep of the preposterous relics of the feudal system of land tenure which still survive in many parts of England, has been strikingly shown by a case which has just come to light near Sevenoaks in Kent. There to light near Sevenoaks in Kent. There resides Earl Amherst, who, among his other hereditary claims to distinction, boasts that of being lord of the manor of Ortford. Within the borders of the domain thus designated Herbert Couldrey took up his abode some months ago, totally unaware that thereby he incurred any obligations as a vassal of the lord of the manor.

The other day one of the earl's deputy stewards called upon Mr. Couldroy, affections of the hear and, seeing a horse and trap standing outside the house, asked Mr. Couldrey if the horse was his. On being answered in the affirmative, the deputy steward cut some hairs from the horse's mane, and after depositing them in his pocket, placed a hand on the horse's shoulder, accompanying the action with the words, "This horse is now the property of Lord Amherst."

Cornwall, June 2.—James Leitch, K. C., of Cornwall, last night received notice of his appointment as chairman of the Railway and Municipal Board for Ontario at a selection. of the Railway and Municipal Board for Ontario, at a salary of $6,000 a year. This is the new board brought into existence by an act of the late session of the Ontario Government.

Mr. Leitch was called to the bar in the Easter term, 1876, and at once commenced practice in Cornwall. He was appointed a Queen's Counsel by the Earl of Derby in 1889.

Finding there was no other method by which he could recover the horse, Mr. Couldrey bought it back at the price stipulated. Then, in order to call public attention to the case, he brought suit against the earl for the keep of the horse during the two weeks that the settlement of the matter was pending for in accordance with the abound for, in accordance with the absurd law under which it had been seized, for these two weeks the horse was un-questionably the property of Earl Am.

But this modern sort of procedure was not at all in accordance with feudal notions, and the Sevenoaks judge, be-Toronto, or St. Catharines, was discovered in the river 500 feet up from the brink of the American falls. An officer offered to rescue him with a pole, but he refused all help and was carried to within 15 feet of the falls and 35 feet out from shore.

At 2.06 a, m, he was rescued from this point by Patroiman Batts and Fireman Corroy, who went out on a 40-foot extension ladder brought to the scene from fire headquarters.

Like Comic Opera, But Legal.

In the twentieth century this appears more like a bit of fooling from a comic opera than a valid process, but, thanks to the medieval laws that still remain unrepealed, the deputy steward's fantastic performance actually made Earl Amherst the owner of Mr. Couldrey's steed. However, the deputy steward only took away the hairs that he had cut from the mane, the major portion of his lordship's newly appropriate property, which required stabling and general, being a generous man, did not wish to push his rights to their legal limits and would therefore permit Mr. Couldrey to redeem the horse. From these stretch your strings, which should be all the same size and of catgut. The "G" guitar string will be found the best for this purpose. Now tune all the strings in unison, and the harp is completed. It is, however, well to add a reflector to throw out the sound. This is easily accomplished by placing a thin board above the box, supporting it on sticks fitting into rests,

THE DIVING BELL.

How the First One Made by Dr. Hal-ley Was Operated. It was nearly 200 years ago that Edmund Halley constructed what is of-ten referred to as the first diving bell, although the apparatus must have been much like that which was previously exhibited in the presence of Charles V., says the Technical World Maga-

The principle of the diving bell is simple. An inverted jar sunk in the water retains air at its top, and if there is enough air men may live and breathe and work there and keep dry. Dr. Halley's diving bell was a large wooden chamber open at the bottom and loaded there with lead to prevent it from turning in the water. Pieces of glass set in the roof furnished light. Air was supplied by an ingenious method, for leaded casks full of air were sent down, bung downward. Tipping the barrel, water would rush into

At the depth of thirty-three feet the air is compressed to half its former bulk, and the bell is therefore depth half filled with water, and as the depth increases so do the compression and the pressure.

The Turkish Janizaries. The Turkish janizaries (yeni askari, new soldier) were originally Christian captives, who in the middle of the fourteenth century were trained to be the bodyguard of Sultan Amurath I. Originally they numbered 1,000, but after 300 years they had increased a hundredfold, and under Solyman the Magnificent they formed a force highly disciplined and noted for the wild impetuosity of their attack. The history of these janizaries abounds in con-spiracles and atrocities of every kind, so that at last they became more dangerous to the sultan than his foreign enemies. The lowest officers of this force were the cooks, who were held in the greatest esteem. They wore wooden spoons in their turbans and on great occasions mustered round their kettles, which they turned upside down as a token of revolt. To lose one of these kettles in battle was as much of a disgrace as the loss of a regiment's colors has been in later times.

Could Not Trust Him. After a wordy argument in which neither scored two Irishmen decided to fight it out. It was agreed, says the Washington Post, that when either said "I've enough" the fight should cease. After they had been at it about cease. After they had been at about ten minutes one of them fell and imme-diately yelled: "Enough! I've enough!" But his opponent kept on pounding him until a man who was watching them said:

"Why don't you let him up? He says he's got enough."
"I know he says so," said the victor between punches, "but he's such a liar you can't believe a word he says!"

goes from house to house with a long pole and ribbons flying at the end of it, and standing in the middle floor in each house he repeats a long lesson with great formality. CZAR HAS HIS CHOICE

Douma's Attitude is "Dismiss The Cabinet cr Fight"

THE STRIKE AT ODESSA

St. Petersburg, June 7.—The Douma and the Government are rapidly coming to close quarters, and the inevitable conflict cannot be much longer delayed. Unrest throughout the country in-creases daily. The scene at Tuesday's creases daily. The scene at Tuesday's session when the House refused to hear the Ministers and practically drove them from the rostrum clearly means that the Czar must dismiss the Cabinet or fight. The Douma yesterday was still in fighting spirit, and some of the deputies advocated extreme action. Moderate counsels prevailed, however, and the conflict is temporarily post-

No Tenders Asked.

To Mr. Northrup witness said that in the purchase of supplies no tenders were called. The only stipulation made was that market prices should be paid. Captain Bernier had furnished the department with a list of the supplies wanted. Witness considered that for a three years' cruise the supplies asked for were not excessive. Captain Bernier had been asked by the department to send in this list. A quantity of the goods purchased is A quantity of the goods purchased is still on board the Arctic. Some which would not keep had been sold, but all could be accounted for satisfactorily. Only a small quantity of supplies would be necessary for this year's expedition.

Doctor Ordered Champagne. Captain Spain, commander of the Canadian protective service, was called and said no supplies had been made under his supervision except some nautical instruments. The Minister, the deputy and himself had at first objected to the purchase of aquantity of champagne, but the ship's physician, Dr. Flood, had insisted that it was necessary. physician, Dr. Flood, had insisted that it was necessary. The quantity of supplies asked for seemed to be reasonable. He figured that they would last 40 men for 1,200 days.

He thought that ten cent cigars might be regarded as a little extravagant, but there was not too much to-bacco. The British navy would issue a larger supply for a similar cruise. The quantity of 1,200 gallons of lime fuice was not excessive. It allowed three-quarters of a gallon per month for each man. Neither was $22,000 for clothes o $55,000 for food excessive in view of conditions.

Col. Fred White, comptroller of the N.W.M.P., did not consider the ag-

N.W.M.P., did not consider the aggregate order as being extravagant. The quality of the goods was of the highest. When the police were sent into the Yukon they were not supplied gratis with cigars, thirty year old ports and other luxuries. Cigars and tobacco were kept in stock, but the men had to pay for them. A reasonable supply of liquor was not only necessary, but desirable. Tobacco was a necessity.

Capt. Bernier's Story. Capt. Bernier was examined yester-day afternoon. On June 22, 1904, he received instructions from Capt. Spain to send a requisition for food on a basis of for one man for 1,200 days. He did not know that the Arctic had become a mounted police boat, and made his requisition simply as for a ship go-ing north. He said that he could not carry on the ship all the supplies in the requisition. In Quebec they had to repack a great many things, such as apples, flour, etc. They were repacked apples, flour, etc. They were repacked in tins covered with shellac. This was an added expense.

In August, 1904, Capt. Bernier said he received a further request from Capt. Spain to send a requisition for furs, clothing, boots, etc., for one man for 1,200 days. The cost would be $2,000.

storing supplies he put the cargo in three different holds.

He left Quebec Sept. 17 and arrived at Port Burrow Oct. 1. At Port Burrow they met the Neptune and took from her a few things required for the depot. They also took on board a native and twelve dogs. There were forty-seven men on board, and one lady, Mrs. Moody, and the native. The witness said that they gave no stores to the Neptune in 1904, but gave stores to her in September, 1905, on the way back. The average number of crew and police they had to feed was fifty-four. Vessels adapted for such navigation would sail for four months of the year.

The captain said that liquor "was given out at the proper time and in the proper places." They issued liquor on Thanksgiving Day, on Christmas Day and on New Year's Day, also on St. Patrick's Day, but not on St. Jean Baptiste Day.

Capt. Bernier said that in the north

THAT OVER WORKED, PLAYED OUT FEEL-ING AMONG WOMEN

There are thousands of females all over our land who are broken down in health and dragging out a miserable existence, overburdened with diseases peculiar to their sex, apparently growing old while yes young. Often they have pale or sailow complexion, hollow, sunken eyes, with a lifeless look; the face has a pinched and haggard appearance: they are weak, weary and trembling, often extremely nervous, starting at every little noise. Many are low-spirited, and some are fretful. Some are apparently bloedless, with cold hands and feet, while others are flushed by an unequal circulation of the blood, dizziness, and sometimes dimness of vision, loss of memory, and often loss of appetite and sleep, and are wearied with terrible dreams. Palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, smothering and sinking spells; shortness of breath and the sensation of pins and needles are all indications of a weakened condition of the heart or nervous system, and should any of them be present we would strongly advise the use of

The "Sunshine" furnace and "sunny" ways are synonymous.

The cold, dreary winter days can be made cheery and warm with a pure, healthful heat if you have a "Sunshine" furnace. Is easier to operate, cleaner, uses less fuel and "shines" in many other ways over common furnaces.

Two shakers are used to shake the heavy, triangularshaped grates. This just cuts the work of shakingdown in half, besides being easier on the furnace than the old one-shaker style.

THE ARCTIC

Capt. Bernier Was Very Anxious To Dash For The North Pole

HE WIRED PREFONTAINE

Ottawa, June 7.—The inquiry inte the supplies of the steamer Arctic was again proceeded with yesterday morning. Capt. Bernier, the sailing master, was on the stand. The witness said that when he put in his requisition for supplies for the men for 1,200 days he was not aware that there were to be police on board. The captain explained how the goods were checked and placed on board. At Fullerton he went over the stores when they were dividing them up to leave off certain quantities at the three depots. There were more goods received in some cases than he ordered. He was satisfied that all the goods ordered were on board. There was no more bovril and pemmican received than he ordered. The witness said that he did not send in a requisition for uniforms until he knew the mounted police were to be with them and that they would be going on board whalers. He had very good sleeping bags, which were to be used in case of shipwreck. There were less expensive bags for ordinary purposes. There were forty. He ordered all the clothing, which was for a three years' trip. Each man had three suits. He did not think this too many for three years. Only some of these were delivered, the balance was on board the boat.

Anxious to Go to the Pole.

Anxious to Go to the Pole. Anxious to Go to the Pole.

Captain Bernier was questioned at length about the return of the steamer. He said that when he came back he sent a telegram to Mr. Prefontaine telling him that the Arctic would not take long to be put in repair, and as soon as this was done he wanted to make a trip to discover the north pole. He reminded the Minister that he told him on the bridge of the Arctic before leaving Quebec that he (Prefontaine) would send him on a polar trip. Later on, in October of last year, he followed up this telegram with a letter asking that the Arctic be sent on a polar expedition.

PROGRESS IS MADE A CHARMING EVENT

Until recently it has been a represent to kent, the most fentile county in the province, that in its equipment qf the Registry Office it has lingered far in the rear of less important counties. The present Council has adopted more progressive ideas and when they have finished the fitting up of the offices we will stand second to mone in possessing a spacious modern office, well equipped with all the modern inventions for the safe keeping of books and papers.

The Council has shown its usual wisdom and foresight in its action. And all this has been done at no actual cost to the county, as the Registry Office has for the last 35 years paid over annually to the County and average of $1,500 per annum, and owing to the general prosperity of the County and the oil development gening on in Tilbury East and Raleign the payment this year to the County and period of 115 years. The loss of any of them would create confusion in titles and bring great loss to property owners. In providing for the safe keeping and good preservation of these valuable muniments of title the matter of expense should be a secondary consideration.

We extend hearty congratulations to the County Commissioners for their wise, liberal and progressive action.
