By Way of Introduction

THE visitor to Hamilton is usually taken to the brow of Mount Hamilton and permitted a birds-eye view of the city. He sees the large factory buildings with their numerous stacks, each bearing witness to a tremendous industrial activity; he distinguishes many imposing buildings--churches, schools, civic institutions and business structures; the parks, the well paved streets are pointed out to him--also the beautiful scene of bay and beach in the distance.

But probably the greatest impression left with the visitor is of the sweeping panorama of roofs of homes--the homes of the people who make Hamilton the splendid city she is.

The purpose of this booklet is to serve as a souvenir of that phase of our city's attraction which is probably less generally mentioned and more deserving of prominence than any other the beauty of its homes. At our request, the owners of a number of Hamilton's fine homes have generously co-operated with us in its production.

In arranging this booklet no attempt has been made to classify the various periods and schemes of furnishings, or the styles of architecture, other than to group all views from one home together when possible, and to show as many different ideas in thoughtful home-furnishing as is possible in a limited space.

It is interesting to note, incidentally, that in every view shown the decorating or furnishing has been done with the co-operation of our home-furnishing service.
