Now I do not ank that the question should be taken up in the present Session, but in the ment, when measure of their constituents will respect to it; and when they shall have had an opportunity to determine whether it is a political question or not. I do not think we can, at present, give an answer to the Petitioners; but we can engage to do so next Session; and I do not think a Resolution pledging the House to do so, can justly be deemed meloss. I do not expect, and neither do the Petitioners expect, that the House should now proceed at once to legislate upon the question; but I wish the House to to them, that the payer of their Petition and, at the carriest period profelile, receive their most mature consideration. Such an answer will, I think, be quifficient for the present.

will, I thuk, be sufficient for the present.

Mr. WIGHTMAN. He would support the Revolution moved by the hon, and learned member for Charlottetown. It was too late in the Session for the House to take up the whole question, with a view to immediate legislative action thereon. He was himself, however, of opinion, that the remedy for intemperance was not to be found in the House, but out of it. People could not be made virtuans by the mere power of a law. Moral sussion was the means by which vice was to be eradicated and virtue induced, And he hoped sincerely, that the day was not distant when, by the gentle, but sure efficacy of moral enssion, the degrading and rainous vice of intemperance would be driven from amongst as. At present, however, it was a fact, that Taverns were on the increase throughout the Island; and, therefore, he would have no objection to enter so far into the question, this Session, as to provide for the diminution of their number.

nowerer, it was a fact, that taverus were on the increase harvagaout the Island; and, therefore, he would have no objection to enter so far into the question, this Session, as to provide for the dimination of their number.

Mr. DAVIES. He was rather disappointed by the manner in which the hon, and learned member for Charlottetown proposed to deal with reference to the object of the Temperance Petitions. It amounted, in fact, to nothing but giving them the go-by. If any thing-was to be done for the suppression of intemperance, the present was the time. It was not yet so late as when the Legislature was convened last year; and there was quite time enough to take up the question, and practically to deal with it by enactment, at least for the amendment of the License Law. To seek, however, to prohibit the importation and distillation of spirits, by law, was a mad and fanatical scheme; and, were such a law in force, it would afford a direct premium on sunuggling. The hon, and learned member for Charlottetown had said, that, were the importation and distillation of spirits prohibited, there would be no Taverus, and, consequently, no premium on amuggling; but he would be gleave to tell the hon, and learned member, that the Law could not eradicate tastes: the taste for liquor would remain; and that taste would afford sufficient encouragement to sanuggling. He was, however, willing to vote for the Resolution of the hon, and learned member, for taking into consideration, next Session, the expediency of prohibiting, by law, the traffic in ardent spirits; but he would also vote for the smotion of the hon, the Treasurer, having for its object, immediate action, in the present Session, for lessening the evils of intemperance.

The Hon, the SPEAKER, after favorably contrasting the dinner and after-dinner temperate babits of respectable individuals of the present day, with the dinner-table intemperate practices of what was called good society, in the days when he was a boy,—when young men were either obliged to submit to be

ON THE ADVANTAGE OF GREEN CROPS. ON THE ADVANTAGE OF GREEN CROPS.

To enumerate all the benefits to be derived from Green Crops, will be found a task not easily accomplished; mammach as it is hardly possibly to overrate their importance, or to state how, far they have been, and assuredly prove to be, the means of fertility, and consequently wealth; nor would it prove as uninstructive enquiry to examine this subject closely as far as it relates to our Provincial Agriculture.

Green Crops are the only care basis of good Farming ; and before a climax of improvement can be attended by this, or any other country the system of Green Cropping must become general and universal, This desirable state of things can only, however, succeed to the first and greatest of all improvements, as consisted with the cultivation

Farm, has eariched the Calivator.

From the experiments of many eminent men—Boussingault, Von Theer and others, Professor Johnston has prepared a table showing the quantity of manure, in pounds produced by the cow, the horse and the sheep. From this we learn, that 20 tons of Turnips will produce 7½ tons of fresh manure, which at 5s. per ton, will be worth £1 17 6 per acre, to this add the value of the roots, £18 14, and we have the worth of an acre of Tureips, to the Farues at home, equal to £15 11 6; again, it has been ascertained, that 34 tons of common Tureips can produce 436 lbs. of beef and tallow, which is nearly 13 lbs. to the ton; as the average at the same unit, which is nearly 13 lbs. to the ton; as the average at the same unit, at 32 tons of Tureips would produce 350 its., of beef and tallow, which at 64 per lb. would be equal in money value to £8 lbs or 7s. per ton. To this must be added the value of manure, which taken at only 30s. and we have an acre of common Tureips equal to £19 5 to the Faruer by home communities.

The Mangold Wurtzel, while its culture is quite as chasp, easy and sofe as that of the Tureip, is still more profitable. We are informed by the late Fart Spencer, in the Royal Agricultural Society's Journal, that while 2 tons of Swedish Tureips produced 64 libs. of beef, 2 tons of Mangold Wurtzel gare 1023 lbs.

Assuming these statements to be correct (and we have no reason to doubt such authority), then it is evident that noting can be directly learning to the Farmer, than Green Cop Husbandry: it ought therefore, to have our primary consideration.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

Your Committee appointed to examine and report on the Public Accounts, for the year 1851, have to report, that after carefully added to the Balance standing against the Colony, on the 31st January, 1862, amounted to £24,173 10 114, and the Receipts at the Treasury for the same 17 41, as herein set forth, viz.:—

The Government of P. E. Island. By Assets in Treasurer's hands, viz. : Bunds With Colonial Secretary Cash Balance against the Colony, Jan. 31, 1852, Balance against the Colony Jan. 31, 1851 Expenditure for the years 1851-2 £16,661 16 41 24,173 10 111 Receipts during the year 1851-2 Balance as above

Your Committee submit, that over £1,300 of the amount included in last year's expenditure, was incurred in the year 1850, and unprovided for, so that, strictly speaking, last year's expenditure was under the Receipts.

Your Committee further submit, that last year's Receipts exceeded the Receipts of the previous year by £107 11 7½, and they believe, that if the Navigation had not closed so very early, last year's Receipts exceeding the previous year by £107 11 7½, and they believe, that if the Navigation had not closed so very early, last year's Receipts exceeding the previous year by £107 11 7½, and they believe, that if the Navigation had not closed so very early, last year's Receipts exceeding the previous year. An increase of Receipts was received at the Treasury during the year ending 31st January, 1852, from the Secretary and Registrar's Offices of £103 11 3½, Light Daty, £36 5 10d; Rum, £705 3 4; while there has been a decrease on Melasses of £346 11; on brown Sugar, £156 5 6½; on Ten, £204

Your Committee would remark upon the sum of £999 2 4½ re-ceived from the Post Office in the past year, that out of that sum the Couriers have still to be provided for, which will considerably reduce the amount below that of the previous year, paid into the Treasury. reduce the amount below that of the previous year, proceedings of the practice heretofore to pay into the Treasury, the nett proceeds only of this department—the Post Office—the-Offices being disbursed by the Post Master. Your Committee, however, would recommend, with a view of shewing more correctly the amount of the Public increase and expenditure, that for the future, the gross proceeds of the Post Office Department be paid into the Treasury; and that all payments made hereafter, be by the authority of the Governor and Council, in the ordinary way.

Your Committee would further remark, that the expenditure of last year was materially increased, on account of new undertakings, and other expenditure, which was indispensable on the introduction of Responsible Government; and so far as repairs are con-cerned, it is submitted, that in all probability, the like sums will not be required for some years to come.

On the 20th, Sir J. Packington said, that the Government had precived despatches from the Government of Vancouver's Island, stating the fact, that gold has been discovered in Queen Charlotte's Island, and, as had been reported to him, of considerable extent. The Government had also been informed, that some American ships had, in consequence of those discoveries, preceded to Queen Charlotte's Island, and it was expected that more would follow. Having received this information, Government had sent out directions to the Admiral in command of the station, directing him to send naval assistance to the Island to preserve order.

In the Commons, on Monday, the Colonial Secretary stated, in an answer to Mr. Hume, that the government was devicing means for assisting the sterving Highlanders and distressed hand-loom weavers of Scotland to emigrate.

A numerous deputation waited upon the Lord Lieut. of Ireland, at the Castle, on Monday, to ask for his intercession on behalf of Smith O'Brien and his colleagus. He refused to recommend the prayer of the memorial to the Queen, for the liberation of the patriots, on the ground that they had not expressed contrition for their crimes, or loyalty or gratitude towards their Severeir in.

Information has been received at Cape Town that 49 bodies have been, washed up from the wreck of the Birkenhead and buried. The body of Or. Laing was recognised, having a gold watch and £18 in money upon it. Forty seven packages of officers' cluthing had also been washed ashore.

The Ordanace Committee have unanimously approved of Col. Hawker's new double carbine.

It was stated that Government intend sending a military force to Australia—the colony to pay expenses.

The principal feature of Irish news for the last few weeks, is the great and rapid improvement, amounting almost to a revolution, in the price of land. The sales in the Eacumbered Estates Court on Tuesday, abundantly proved this. The properties disposed of during the day fetched £166,000, and were situate in various parts of of the country—Mayo, Rescontmon, Westmeath, Galway, Tipperary, Waterford and other counties. Many of the lots produced from 20 to 30 years' purchase. These purchases contrast remarkably with the prices obtainable last year, and afford a graiffying proof of the recovering presperity of the country.

When the new flax-mill of Messra. Russell is completed (at a cost of £80,000), employment will be afforded to 6000 people in Limerick and the surrounding country. Mr. John King, of Manchester, is building a flax mill at Ballyshannon.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.—It is generally admitted that the crops never, within the memory of the present generation, had a more favorable appearance at this season than at the present. The weather, consisting of alternate showers and sunshine, is all that the farmer could devire, and vegetation progresses with extraordinary rapidity. Almost all the accounts agree in describing the breadth of surface under tilläge as more extensive, than it was ever before in Ireland.

BOSTON, June 1.—The disturbance at the temperance meeting in Faneuil Hall, Thursday evening, and the hanging of Governor Boutwell, and Niel Dow, in effigy, on the Common that night, were acts of petty spite, which will be repudiated by all respectable crizens. No man having any self-respect, whatever his opinion might be on the subject of the liquor law, would be concerned in such despicable acts, and the opposition which takes this mode of expressing its feelings, defeats the object at the accomplishment of which it aims. No party or sect, can be put down by riotous demonstrations, but sympathy for persecution has often done much to strengthen even had causes. It is haman nature to interfere in behalf of the oppressed. The friends of the liquor law have consequently no reason to be disheartened by the demonstrations of Thursday evening, and Governor Boutwell may rest with the confortable conviction, that his own neck is not only safe, but that he has at least a hundred new sympathizers for the indignity which has been offered to him. Such are the results of popular demonstrations of A riotous character.

MYSTERIES OF NEW YORK.—The New York Commercial says, that within 14 days, sixteen corpses of unknown adults have been drawn from the water in that city. Some of them bore marks of violence. Several were not recognized. The verdict of the cornone's jury was generally found drowned.

The wheat crop throughout the Western States, is spoken of as looking axtremely fine the present season. The winter, although more than usually free from snow, has been favorable. Regular rains have kept the earth most, and the growing crop wears a green and vigorous appearance.

THE PLAGUE.

It is stated, that much apprehension is felt in New Orleans, of the approach of a new disease, called the Plague, which is now said to be prevailing in the West India Islands. A disease called by the same name has made its appearance in parts of the west. It is said to be like the Cholers, but more fatal. Whether it is the same disease as that which goes by the name of Plague in the East, is not stated. The Boston Medical Journal alludes to the subject as follows:

"It is certain, from the accounts received both here and in England, the True Plague has been introduced into Madeira, and the work of death has been really appaling. The question was frequently agitated—Will that dreadful disease ever reach this continent? There is reason to believe it will; the wonder is, why it has not already. Our commercial intercourse is extensive with various parts of Africa and the Asiatic shore of the Mediterranean, where this great securge is never dead or dying, but simply reposing from one period to another, like a family than one alternative the same condition of thinge exist as characterizes their mode of tife, their social condition, and the absence of all common sense efforts to avert or arrest it, will have an abiding footless.

HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

As we stated in our last issue, the public are now without any account of the expenditure of its money for the last fourteen months. We may be told, that they will be printed as usual in the Appendix to the Journal of the last Session. But we would enquire, why have not the Abstracts been published in the Gazette, as they were in the time of the old Administration? Though we have asked the question ourselves, we will venture to subjoin the answer; because in that case, the people would then be able to judge for themselves—they might take the accounts of the present incumbents of Public Offices, and by reference to the files of former Gazettes, compare them with those of their predecessors, and ascertain whether there had really and truly been that comony practized, which has been so much vaunted of. We honsely concless, that we have so little confidence in the assertion of the party in power, that we are disposed to doubt their correctness, unless accompanied by vouchers. The only thing published in respect of the Public Expenditure, is the report of the Committee on Public Accounts which we have this day published; but what do we gaster from that, except the fact, that the balance is on the wrong side of the page—that there is an excess of expenditure over the Revenue, which ought not to have happened, and of this they seem to be aware, for they have endeavoared to account for it, with what success, our readers must judge for themselves. We shall for the present, decine giving any opinion, till we have the whole before us, though it would seem, we are likely to have our patience rather severely tried, for it has lately come to our knowledge, that name of them are as yet delivered to the printer. We think, however, that we can see through the design of withholding the popular publication of the Accounts of the Public Offices, &c., and confining them to the obscurity of the Appendix to the Journal. They think, perhaps? that the lapse of time will beget forgetfu'ness, both in us and the Public; and that anxiety f papers within a month after its close, has awakened our jealousy; and this has not been in the least allayed by the partial glimpse into their contents, that we have been permitted to take. Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick, it was with the approbation of many, of all ranks and classes of society, who conceived that such a change would be beneficial, if carried out in a truly constitutional spirit; and who were willing to give the aid of their talents and influence, for the purpose of effecting it. At this time, you stood in as favorable a situation, as a political man could well wish to stand. You had a majority in both Houses, well affected towards the measure, the end was determined on, the only question was as to the means. And this was the time for you to have shown your political sagacity and foresight, if you had possessed either. It then became you carefully to look around you before you took the first step, sensible—as you ought to have been—that much of the result would depend upon the direction in which that was taken. Had you then listened to the dictates of that calm calculating prudence, without which no man can ever Had you then listened to the dictates of that calm cal-culating prudence, without which no man can ever expect to rise to great elevation, or keep himself there when he has attained it, you would have learned, that your bost and safest policy would have been to have effected the change with as little harshness as possible; and that every thing, that could in justice be demanded, ought to be freely and frankly conceded, while, at the same time, whatever might be in the power of courtesy to grant, should have been delicately and respectfully tendered. In the great, as well as in the little games of life, much more forhearance is expected and required of the winner than the loser; an expression of dissatis-faction with the turn fortune has taken is always al-lowed to the latter, while any indication of triumph lewed to the latter, while any indication of triumph which may grate on the feelings of the unfortunate, is considered in bad taste, and the mark of an ill-regulated mind. But what was your conduct, and that of your associates? Did it never occur to you, or them, that though a change of system was desirable, though it might be necessary to denote those in power of their might be necessary to deprive those in power of their offices; that these gentlemen, generally, if not universally, stood high in the public esteem as men; that the quarrel was not, and ought not to have been, with them, but with the system under which they acted; that as they had not been the originators of it, so they were not answerable for its defects; that the worst that could be said of them was, that they had been faithful servants in the establishment of which they formed a part, an establishment which, however proper and fit it might have been for the infancy of the Colonies, was insufficient and improper for their more mature growth? The answer is plain and obvious: it did not. The only thing that did occur to you and them was, that you were possessed of a majority in the lower House; that you could,—as you thought,—by refusing the supplies, you cound,—as you thought,—by refusing the supplies, force the government into any and every measure you saw fit to adopt; that you had the power, and was determined to use it, careless and reckless what abuses might follow its exercise; in other words, you suffered passion to usurp the helm instead of reason, and what was the result? You were well nigh wrecked on the rocks of your own seeking. The means you had re-course to, and the loss of honor, reputation, and, con-sequently, of friends, that you then suffered, I shall by and by show you. In the mean time, let me tell you. and by show you. In the mean time, let me tell you if you are not already convinced of it, that you are under a great mistake, when you think that a mere majority in the Assembly will suffice to keep you in power. Without it, it is true, you can do nothing; but unless the measures which this majority will enable you to carry through, be founded on something more stable than popular opinion; unless a profound knowledge of the real wants of the Island, and the best method of supplying those wants, arising from an intimate ac-quaintance with its past history, its resources, and the means of making those available, accompany the deli-berations of your Cabinet, in a very short time their emptiness and futility will be easily made manifest: and emptiness and futility will be easily made manifest: and the ill-matched, ill-assorted body, of which you are the ostensible head, will be shattered to pieces. Before entering upon a deliberate review of the evils of your Administration from the beginning, I purpose, for the benefit of the public, as well as of yourself, to give a short historical account of the Island, previous to the commencement of Responsible Government, in order that we may be well assured of what was sound, as well as what was defective in our Constitution; for unless we are in pressession of this knowledge, we are working as what was defective in our Constitution; for unless we are in possession of this knowledge, we are working in the dark; nor can we form a just estimate of the reform that has, as you are in the habit of saying, been so happily achieved. It is also my intention not to withhold any expression of praise or approbation that may be found justly due; while, at the same time, any thing that may be found worthy of reprehension, shall not be passed over in silence, nor without its just meed of censure: herein obeying the injunction given by Cicero to all those who treat of public events:—

"Ut ne quid falsi dicere audeat, ne quid veri non audeat." "Not to dare to say any thing that is false, and not to be afraid to tell that which is true." 1 am, in the mean time, Your obedient Servant,

EARTH'S CHANGES.

As waves the grass upon the field to-day.
Which soon the wasting seythe shall sweep a As smiles the flow ret in the morning day, Which eve chill blast upon the winds may a Thus in brief glory beast the sens of clay,
They bloom awhile, then wither and decay. BY MRS. SIGOURNEY.

Dust tends to dust,—with ashes, ashes blend, The senseless turf conceals the buried criend: The senseless turf conceats the buried riend:
A few may sigh upon the grave's dark brink,
A few salt tears the broken soil may drink,
A few sad hearts in lowly sorrow bleed,
And pay that tribute which they soon must need.

I saw the infant in its robes of white,
Its dearing moner's ever dear delight,
R clapp'd its hands when tones of mirth went by,
And nature's gladness glistened in its eye:
Again I came! an empty crib was there,
A little coffin, and a funeral prayer.

I saw a raddy boy of vigour bold,
Who feared not summer's heat nor winter's cold,
With desterous heel he skimm'd the frozen pool,
His laugh ran loudest 'mid his mates at school:—
Again I sought him, but his name was found On the low stone that marks you churchyard mound.

Oh! beasted joys of earth! how swift ye fly, Rent from the hand, or hidden from the eye; So through the web the weaver's shuttle glides, So speeds the vessel o'er the billowy tides, So cleaves the bird the liquid fields of tight And leaves no traces of its trackless flight.

But we, frail beings, shrinking from the storm, We love these skies that gathering clouds defor Though wounded oft, as oft renew our toil, To rear our fabric on this sand-swept soil; And still we strive, fragetful of the grave, To fix our anchor on the tossing wave.

Yet He, who marks us in our vain career,
Oft shows how frail is what we hold most dear,
Spreads o'er some face belov'd the deathful gloot
Or hides a parent in the lonely tomb;
Arrests the thoughtless, bids the worldling feel,
Wounds to admouish, and afflicts to heal.

Look to that world where every pain shall cease, Grief turn to joy, and labour end in peace. Oh! seek that world, by penitence and prayer; Sow the seed here, and reap the fruitage there, Where shadowy joys no longer cheat the soul, But one unclouded year in changeless light shall roll.

Darieties.

THE FARMER'S DAUGHTER.

THE FARMER'S DAUGHTER.

There is a world of beauty flourishing in the shades of the country. Farm houses are dangerous places. As you are thinking only of sheep or of curds, you may be shot through by a pair of bright eyes, and melted away in a bewitching smile you never dreamed of, until the mischief is done. In towns and theatres, and thronged assemblies of the titled fair, you are on your guard, you know what you are exposed to, and put on your breast-plate, pass through the most terrible onslaught of beauty, safe and sound. But in those sylvan retreats, dreaming of nightingales, and hearing only the lowing of oxen, you are taken by surprise. Out steeps a fair creature—crosses a glade—lespa a stile. You start—you stand lost in wonder and admiration! You take out your tablets to write a sonnet on the return of the Nymphs and Dryads to earth, when up comes John Tompkins, and says:—"It's only a farmer's daughter."

"What have farmers got daughters now a-days." Those farm houses are dangerous places. Let no man with a poetical imagination, which is only another name for a very tender heart, flatter himself with the fancies of the calm delights of the country; with the serene idea of sitting with the farmer in his old-fashioned chimney corner, and hear him talk of corn and mutton: of jöining him in the pensive pleasures of a pipe, and jug of brown October; of listening to the gossip of the counfortable farmer's wife, of the parson and his family; of his sermons and his pig, over a fragrant cup of young hyson, or wrapped in the deliceous luxuries of young custards and whipped oreams. In walks a fairy vision of wondrous witchery, and a smile of winning and mysterious cragic, and takes her seat just opposite. It is the farmer's daughter, a living creature of eighteen; fair as the lity, sweet as a posy of violets and clove gillivers, modest as early morn, and nimble as your own imagination of Desdesmona or Gertude of Wyoning You're lost. It's all over with you. And that comes of going into the country, out of the way

HIGH LIFE IN THE FIFTEENTH CENTURY.

We give the following glimpse of the manners of the upper classes in England, four hundred years ago, from the journal of Elizabeth Woodwille, subsequently Lady Grey, and finally Queen of Edward IV. Royalty in petto seems to have taken, with a most refreshing cordiality, to the avocations of baking and brewing, pig tending, poultry feeding, and pony catching:

and browing, pig tending, poultry feeding, and pony catching:

"Monday morning.—Rose at 4 o'clock, and helped Catharine to milk the cows. Rachel, the dairy maid having scalded her hand in so bad a manner the night before; made a poultice, and gave Robin a penny to get something from the apothecary.

"6 o'clock.—The buttock of beef much boiled, and beer a little stale; (mem) to talk to the cook about the first fault, and to mead the other myself by tapping a fresh barrel immediately.

"7 o'clock.—Went to walk with the lady my mother in the court yard; fed 25 men and women; child Roger severely for expressing some ill will at attending us with some broken meat.

"8 o'clock.—Went into the paddock behind the house with my maid Dorothy; baught Thump, the little pony myseif; rode a matter of ten miles without bridle or saddle.

"10 o'clock.—Went to dinner. John Grey, a most comely youth; but what is that to me? A virtuous maid should be entirely under the direction of her parents. John ate but little, and stole a great many tender glances at me. Said women could never be handsome in his eyes. who were not good tempered. I hope my temper is not intelerable; nobody finds fault with it but Roger, and he is the most disorderly youth in our house. John Grey likes white teeth; my teeth are a pretty good color. I think my hair is as black as jet—though I say it; and John Grey, if I mistake not, is of the same opinion.

"11 o'clock.—Rose from the table—the company all desirous of walking in the field. John Grey lifted me over every stie, and twice squeezed my hand with much vehomence. I cannot say I would have much objection, for he plays at prison bar as well as any of the country gentlemen; he is remarkably dutifel to his parents, my lord and lady, and never misses church on Sanday.

"3 o'clock.—Poor Farmer Robinson's house burnt down by or Sanday.

"S o'cluck.—Poor Farmer Robinson's house burnt down by needdents fire. John Grey proposed a subscription among the bimpany for the relief of the farmer, and gave no less than four pounds with this benevolent intent. (Mem) never saw him nook so comely as at this moment.

"4 o'cluck.—Went to prayers.

"6 o'cluck.—Fed huga and poultry.

Wise and good men are indeed precious gifts, with which heaves bleases the earth, and their wisdom is seldom justly appreciated, till after their decease.

"When two pairs of affectionate lips are placed together, to the intent of osculatation, the noise is something like the ensuing—spe-at'-el and then the acound tapers off so soft and so musical, that no letters can do it justice."

THE FIRMAMENT.—The Almighty'sbook whose hieroglyphical characters are the unnumbered stars, sun and moon, written on the large volumes of the firmament.
